The Defense-Wide Working Capital Fund finances the commercial and support-type operations of the Defense Logistics Agency, Defense Finance and Accounting Service, and the Defense Information Systems Agency. The Fund finances, in accordance with section 2208 of 10 U.S.C. through receipt of funded customer reimbursable orders, operating and capital expenses (excluding Military Construction), and uses cost accounting and business management techniques to provide DOD managers with information that can be used to monitor, control, and minimize its cost of operations. REFINED PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, MARGINAL EXPENSE TRANSFER ACCOUNT

Due to difficulties forecasting fuel prices ten to twenty months in advance of the fiscal year, the Department of Defense 2011 Authorization Request will include a request for a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover the difference between the funds the Department budgets for the purchase of refined petroleum products and the actual market prices the Department pays for fuel, i.e., the additional marginal expense.

The military departments and Defense agencies will continue to budget for fuel and other refined petroleum products as they have in the past. The budget request for fuel starts with the Administration's economic assumptions about the future cost of crude oil, which is based on the crude oil futures market and is consistent with private sector forecasts.

The indefinite appropriation applies only to the additional marginal expense of purchasing refined petroleum products. Not covered are the additional costs that the Defense-Wide Working Capital Fund charges its customers for transportation, facilities, overhead, and depreciation.

The indefinite appropriation would provide additional funds when fuel prices increase above the budgeted price. When fuel prices drop below the budgeted price, the extra budgeted funds would be cancelled. Over time it is anticipated that any additional funds provided by the indefinite appropriation would be offset by the cancellation of funds budgeted for fuel purchases, but not needed for that purpose due to decreases in the price of fuel.

The establishment of a separate transfer account will provide visibility. In addition, business rules have been established to allow for the monthly reconciliation of Department of Defense purchases. The monthly reconciliation will ensure that transactions to and from the transfer account are transparent and auditable.

Section 662 of the National Defense Authorization Act for 1992 and 1993, Public Law 102-190, established the Voluntary Separation Incentive (VSI) Fund to more effectively manage and account for the costs of the Voluntary Separation Incentive program. The VSI program provides annual payments to former active-duty servicemembers who voluntarily left service after serving more than six but less than 20 years of service. For all members who left service after December 31, 1992, the Department of Defense was required to deposit the total present value of their future VSI benefits into the VSI fund by the time authority to approve VSI benefits ended on December 31, 2001. DOD was also required to cover the unfunded benefits of former members who separated before January 1, 1993 through yearly, actuarially-determined Government contributions from the DOD military personnel appropriations. Permanent authority to make these payments is contained in section 8044 of the 1997 Defense Appropriations Act. The fund also receives interest on its investments.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The President's Budget reflects a bold Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) reauthorization strategy that improves accountability systems, enhances teacher effectiveness, expands educational choice, and strengthens teaching and learning. Subsequent to ESEA reauthorization, the Administration expects to send up a budget amendment to align the Budget's request for the Department of Education with the authorizations contained in the enacted bill. Contingent on Congress successfully completing a fundamental overhaul of the Act that includes the President's proposed reforms, the Administration would seek up to $1 billion in additional funding for certain ESEA programs on top of the increases requested in the 2011 Budget. This additional funding would be for ESEA programs such as Title I Grants to Local Educational Agencies (renamed College- and Career-ready Students) to support rewards for highly effective local educational agencies and schools, State Assessments (renamed Assessing Achievement), and a reformed 21st Century Community Learning Centers program.

The Administration will work closely with the Congress to enact its ESEA reauthorization proposal and carry out its fundamental restructuring of Federal funding for education. The 2011 request for the Department of Education reflects enactment of this proposal. However, if ESEA is not reauthorized prior to the 2011 appropriation, the Administration strongly believes its requested increase for ESEA programs should be devoted to programs best positioned to reform K-12 education. See the Department of Education's Congressional Justification for more information.

<sup>1</sup>To account for the Administration's ESEA reauthorization proposal, the 2011 Budget eliminates the $1.7 billion advance appropriation that was previously in the School Improvement Programs account (renamed the Education Improvement Programs account) and replaces it with corresponding increases to advance appropriations in the Education for the Disadvantaged account ($841 million, renamed the Accelerating Achievement and Ensuring Equity account) and the Special Education account ($841 million). Total advance appropriations in the Department of Education remain $21.9 billion.

The Administration is proposing legislation reauthorizing programs included in the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), including programs in this account. Consistent with this reauthorization proposal, the Budget proposes to rename this account Accelerating Achievement and Ensuring Equity and realign programs in ESEA accounts. When new authorizing legislation is enacted, resources will be requested for these programs.

See the Legislative proposal, not subject to PAYGO schedule for additional details.

College- and career-ready students (formerly Grants to local educational agencies).—Funds would be allocated via formula for programs that provide academic support to help students in high-poverty schools meet college- and career-ready standards. States would annually assess all students in certain grades in at least English language arts and mathematics, and use the results of these assessments to measure local educational agency (LEA) and school progress in ensuring that all students are meeting, or on track to meet, college- and career-ready standards; to inform families about whether their children are meeting or on track to meet such standards; and, with additional information, to develop appropriate improvement and support strategies for schools and LEAs. States would develop plans to recognize and reward highly effective schools and LEAs, require rigorous school intervention models in the lowest-achieving schools, and intervene in low-performing LEAs that are not serving their students or schools well.

School turnaround grants.—Funds would primarily support grants to States to help LEAs turn around their lowest-achieving schools by implementing one of four rigorous school intervention models. In general, such schools would rank in the bottom five percent of performance in their States, based on proficiency rates and lack of progress, or, in the case of high schools, have a graduation rate below 60 percent. Once States have served their lowest-achieving schools, funds could be used for other school improvement and support efforts in eligible schools.

Evaluation.—Funds would support studies designed to evaluate Title I policies and practices, including analyses of implementation, outcomes, impact, and cost effectiveness of key Elementary and Secondary Education Act requirements, including assessments, accountability systems, and school improvement requirements.

State agency migrant program.—Funds would support formula grants to States for educational services to children of migratory farmworkers and fishers, with resources and services focused on children who have moved within the past 36 months.

State agency neglected and delinquent children and youth education program.—Funds support formula grants to States for educational services to children and youth in local and State-run institutions for neglected or delinquent youths, community day programs for neglected and delinquent youths, and adult correction facilities.

Homeless children and youth education.—Funds would support formula grants to States to provide educational and support services that enable homeless children and youths to attend and achieve success in school.

The resources in this schedule are proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Impact Aid helps to replace the lost local revenue that would otherwise be available to educate federally connected children. The presence of certain students living on Federal property, such as students who are military dependents or who reside on Indian lands, can place a financial burden on local educational agencies that educate them. The property on which the children live and their parents work is exempt from local property taxes, denying local educational agencies access to the primary source of revenue used by most communities to finance education.

Basic support payments.—Payments will be made on behalf of over 930,000 federally connected students enrolled in about 1,220 local educational agencies to assist them in meeting their operation and maintenance costs. Average per-student payments will be approximately $1,200.

Payments for children with disabilities.—Payments in addition to those provided under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act will be provided on behalf of approximately 55,000 federally connected students with disabilities in about 900 local educational agencies. Average per-student payments will be approximately $900.

Facilities maintenance.—Funds will be used to provide emergency repairs for school facilities that serve military dependents and are owned by the Department of Education. Funds will also be used to transfer the facilities to local educational agencies.

Construction.—Approximately 15 construction grants will be awarded competitively to the highest-need impact aid districts for emergency repairs and modernization of school facilities.

Payments for Federal property.—Payments will be made to approximately 200 local educational agencies in which real property owned by the Federal Government represents 10 percent or more of the assessed value of real property in the local educational agency.

<sup>1</sup>To account for the Administration's ESEA reauthorization proposal, the 2011 Budget eliminates the $1.7 billion advance appropriation that was previously in the School Improvement Programs account (renamed the Education Improvement Programs account) and replaces it with corresponding increases to advance appropriations in the Education for the Disadvantaged account ($841 million, renamed the Accelerating Achievement and Ensuring Equity account) and the Special Education account ($841 million). Total advance appropriations in the Department of Education remain $21.9 billion.

The Administration is proposing legislation reauthorizing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), including programs in this account. Consistent with this reauthorization proposal, the Budget proposes to rename this account Education Improvement Programs and realign programs in ESEA accounts. When new authorizing legislation is enacted, resources will be requested for these programs. See the Legislative proposal, not subject to PAYGO schedule for additional details.

Comprehensive centers.—Funds support at least 20 comprehensive centers that focus on building State capacity to help school districts and schools meet the requirements of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The resources in this schedule are proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Effective teaching and learning: literacy.—Funds would support competitive grants for State and local efforts aimed at implementing comprehensive literacy strategies for providing high-quality literacy instruction to students from pre-kindergarten through grade 12.

Effective teaching and learning: science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM).—Funds would support competitive grants to States to improve the teaching and learning of STEM subjects.

Effective teaching and learning for a well-rounded education.—Funds would support competitive grants to States and high-need school districts to develop and expand innovative practices to improve teaching and learning in the arts, foreign languages, civics and government, history, geography, economics, and financial literacy. The new program would also include a national activities authority under which the Department would reserve funds to support research, technical assistance, prize awards, dissemination, and grants to support the effective use of technology in the core academic subjects and the development of aligned instructional systems.

College pathways and accelerated learning.—Funds would support competitive grants to high-need school districts for programs that prepare students to enter and succeed in college.

Assessing achievement.—Funds support formula and competitive grants to States to implement college- and career-ready standards and assessments.

Rural education.—Funds would support formula grants under two programs: Small, Rural School Achievement and Rural and Low-Income Schools. The Small, Rural School Achievement program would provide rural local educational agencies with small enrollments with additional formula funds. Funds under the Rural and Low-Income School program, which would target rural local educational agencies that serve concentrations of poor students, would be allocated by formula to States, which in turn would allocate funds to eligible local educational agencies.

Native Hawaiian education.—Funds would support competitive grants to public and private entities to develop or operate innovative projects that enhance the educational services provided to Native Hawaiian children and adults.

Alaska Native student education.—Funds would support competitive grants to school districts and other public and private organizations to develop or operate innovative projects that enhance the educational services provided to Alaska Native children and adults.

Women's educational equity.—Funds would support competitive awards to a variety of public and private organizations, agencies, and institutions for programs that design and implement gender-equity policies and practices. Research, development, and dissemination activities may also be funded.

The resources in this schedule are proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The Indian Education programs support the efforts of local educational agencies and tribal schools to improve teaching and learning for the Nation's American Indian and Alaska Native children.

Grants to local educational agencies.—Formula grants support local educational agencies in their efforts to reform elementary and secondary school programs that serve Indian students, with the goal of ensuring that such programs assist participating students in meeting the same academic standards as all other students. In 2009, the Department made 1,264 formula grants to local educational agencies and tribal schools serving more than 472,500 students.

Special programs for Indian children.—The Department makes competitive awards for demonstration projects in early childhood education and college preparation, as well as professional development grants for training Native American teachers and administrators for employment in school districts with concentrations of Indian students.

National activities.—Funds support research, evaluation, data collection, and related activities.

The resources in this schedule are proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Race to the top.—Funds would support grants to State educational agencies (SEAs) and local educational agencies (LEAs) to create incentives for State and local reforms and innovations designed to lead to significant improvements in student achievement, high school graduation rates, and college enrollment rates, and to significant reductions in achievement gaps. In addition, funds would encourage the broad identification, dissemination, adoption, and use of effective policies and practices and the cessation of ineffective ones.

Investing in innovation.—Funds would support grants to LEAs or to nonprofit organizations in consortium with one or more schools or LEAs to develop and expand innovative strategies and practices that have been shown to be effective in improving educational outcomes for students.

Excellent Instructional Teams:

Effective teachers and leaders State grants.—Funds would support formula grants to States and school districts to promote and enhance the teaching profession; recruit, prepare, support, and retain effective teachers, principals, and other school leaders, especially in high-need LEAs, schools, fields, and subjects; ensure the equitable distribution of qualified and effective teachers and effective principals; increase the effectiveness of teachers and principals; improve the preparation of teachers and principals through developing, supporting, and expanding effective pathways to the education profession; improve instruction and help ensure teachers have the knowledge, skills, data, and support needed to be effective in the classroom; and improve the management of human capital in SEAs and LEAs.

Teacher and leader innovation fund.—Funds would support competitive grants to States and school districts to improve the effectiveness of the education workforce in high-need schools by creating the conditions to identify, recruit, prepare, retain, and advance effective teachers, principals, and school leadership teams in those schools.

Teacher and leader pathways.—Funds would support competitive grants to: (1) school districts, to create and expand pathways into teaching and increase the number of effective teachers serving in high-need and low-performing schools and high-need fields and subjects; and (2) States and school districts, to recruit, prepare, and retain effective principals and school leadership teams with the skills to turn around low-performing schools.

Expanding educational options.—Funds would support competitive grants to SEAs, local educational agencies, charter school authorizers, charter management organizations, and other non-profit organizations to start or expand high-performing autonomous schools, including charter schools. A portion of the funds would also support competitive grants to LEAs, and to SEAs in partnership with one or more high-need LEAs, to develop and implement a comprehensive choice program that increases the range of high-quality educational options available to students and improves the academic achievement of students attending low-performing schools.

Magnet schools assistance.—Funds support competitive grants to LEAs to establish and operate magnet school programs that are part of an approved desegregation plan.

Fund for the improvement of education: programs of national significance.—Funds would support nationally significant projects to improve the quality of elementary and secondary education, including a data quality initiative designed to improve the quality, analysis, and reporting of Department of Education elementary and secondary education data.

Promise neighborhoods.—Funds would support competitive grants and other activities for projects designed to significantly improve the educational and developmental outcomes of children within the Nation's most distressed communities, with the goal of transforming those communities so that all children in the community have access to a cradle-through-college-and-career continuum of academic programs and community supports, including effective schools and services.

Successful, safe, and healthy students.—Funds would support competitive grants and other activities to assist States, local educational agencies (LEAs), and partnerships between LEAs and non-profit organizations or local government entities in improving school climate; reducing or preventing drug use, violence, or harassment; and promoting and supporting the physical and mental well-being of students so that schools are safe, healthy, and drug-free environments.

21st century community learning centers.—Funds would support competitive grants and other activities to assist States, local educational agencies (LEAs), and partnerships between LEAs and non-profit organizations or local governmental entities in operating 21st Century Community Learning Centers. These centers would serve students through activities that improve their academic achievement by providing additional time for students to engage in learning and providing access to comprehensive supports that promote academic achievement as well as mental and physical health.

<sup>1</sup>To account for the Administration's ESEA reauthorization proposal, the 2011 Budget eliminates the $1.7 billion advance appropriation that was previously in the School Improvement Programs account (renamed the Education Improvement Programs account) and replaces it with corresponding increases to advance appropriations in the Education for the Disadvantaged ($841 million, renamed the Accelerating Achievement and Ensuring Equity account) and Special Education ($841 million) accounts. Total advance appropriations in the Department of Education remain the same at $21.9 billion.

State Grants:

Grants to States.—Formula grants are provided to States to assist them in providing special education and related services to children with disabilities ages 3 through 21.

Preschool grants.—Formula grants provide additional funds to States to further assist them in providing special education and related services to children with disabilities ages three through five served under the Grants to States program.

The goal of both of these programs is to improve results for children with disabilities by assisting State and local educational agencies to provide children with disabilities with access to high quality education that will help them meet challenging standards and prepare them for employment and independent living.

Grants for infants and families.—Formula grants are provided to assist States to implement statewide systems of coordinated, comprehensive, multi-disciplinary interagency programs to provide early intervention services to children with disabilities, birth through age two, and their families.

The goal of this program is to help States provide a comprehensive system of early intervention services that will enhance child and family outcomes.

National activities.—These activities include personnel preparation, technical assistance, and other activities to support State efforts to improve results for children with disabilities under the State Grants programs.

The goal of National Activities is to link States, school systems, and families to best practices to improve results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Performance data related to program goals include:

	2004–2005 actual	2005–2006 actual	2006–2007 actual

Total .....	100% / 669,083	100% / 681,667	100% / 676,075

Note—Percentages may not add to 100% due to rounding.

Note—Previous versions of this table did not contain the categories "Transferred to regular education" and "Moved, but known to have continued in education." The Department of Education recently revised its data collection forms to include these additional items, which track additional students with disabilities ages 14 and older who leave special education, and are mutually exclusive with other categories included in this table. Because this is the case, the percentages reported in this table are not comparable with percentages reported in the same table in previous years.

Note—Exiting data on students with disabilities for the 2007–2008 school year were originally expected to be ready by fall of 2009. However, several States failed to submit exit data and the Department of Education is currently working to obtain accurate and reliable data for all States.

Vocational Rehabilitation State grants.—The basic State grants program provides Federal matching funds to State vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies to assist individuals with physical or mental impairments to become gainfully employed. Services are tailored to the specific needs of the individual. Priority is given to serving those with the most significant disabilities. Current law requires that between 1.0 percent and 1.5 percent of the funds appropriated for the VR State grants program be set aside for Grants for Indians.

The program performance measures for this program are based on State VR agency performance indicators developed pursuant to Section 106 of the Rehabilitation Act. One of these indicators measures the percentage of general and combined State VR agencies that assist at least 55.8 percent of individuals receiving services to achieve an employment outcome. In 2008, 79 percent of the agencies met this performance criterion. Another indicator measures the percentage of general and combined State VR agencies that assist at least 85 percent of individuals with employment outcomes to achieve competitive employment. In 2008, 96 percent of general and combined agencies met this performance criterion. These outcome data are based on the approximately 353,880 individuals whose service records were closed in 2008 after receiving services.

The request for the VR State Grants program reflects the Administration's proposal to consolidate the funds of the smaller VR-related programs and eliminate their separate funding authorities under the Rehabilitation Act in order to reduce duplication of effort and administrative costs, streamline program administration at the Federal and local level, and improve accountability. An additional $56.282 million would be made available to the VR State Grants program from the consolidation of employment-related programs.

Client assistance State grants.—Formula grants are made to States to provide assistance in informing and advising clients and applicants about benefits available under the Rehabilitation Act and, if requested, to pursue legal or administrative remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of individuals with disabilities.

Training.—Grants are made to States and public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, including institutions of higher education, to increase the number of skilled personnel available for employment in the field of rehabilitation and to upgrade the skills of those already employed.

National activities to improve rehabilitation services.—Funds would be used to support technical assistance and short-term projects designed to improve program performance and the delivery of vocational rehabilitation and independent living services under the Rehabilitation Act.

Supported employment extended services for youth with significant disabilities.—Grants would be awarded on a competitive basis to assist States in expanding supported employment opportunities for youth with significant disabilities as they transition from school to the workforce. Funds would be used to expand the provision of extended services that support and maintain such individuals in supported employment after receiving services provided by the VR State Grants program.

Independent living.—Grants would be awarded to States and nonprofit agencies to support a network of independent living centers that assist individuals with significant disabilities in their achievement of self-determined independent living goals. In addition, grants would provide support services to older blind individuals to increase their ability to care for their own needs.

Protection and advocacy of individual rights.—Formula grants are made to State protection and advocacy systems to protect the legal and human rights of individuals with disabilities.

Recreational programs.—Grants are made to provide individuals with disabilities with recreational and related activities to aid in their employment, mobility, independence, socialization, and community integration.

National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research.—The Institute carries out a comprehensive and coordinated program of rehabilitation research and related activities. Through grants and contracts, it supports the conduct and dissemination of research and development aimed at improving the lives of individuals with disabilities. The Institute also promotes the development and utilization of new technologies to assist these individuals in achieving greater independence and integration into society. Funds would also be used to conduct rigorous evaluations of programs and activities authorized under the Rehabilitation Act.

Workforce innovation fund.—Funds would be used to test and validate more effective approaches to achieving positive employment outcomes for program participants, particularly the most vulnerable populations. The Secretaries of Education and Labor (and other agency heads as appropriate) will partner to break down bureaucratic constraints and work together to build and share evidence of what works.

Helen Keller National Center for Deaf-Blind Youths and Adults.—The Center provides services to deaf-blind youths and adults and provides training and technical assistance to professional and allied personnel at its national headquarters center and through its regional representatives and affiliate agencies.

Assistive technology.—Assistive Technology (AT) programs support AT State grants to implement comprehensive Statewide programs designed to maximize the ability of individuals with disabilities of all ages to obtain assistive technology. States conduct activities that include alternative financing programs, device reutilization programs, device loan programs, and device demonstrations. Formula grants are also provided under the AT Protection and Advocacy program to systems established under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act for protection and advocacy services to assist individuals with disabilities of all ages. Funds also support national technical assistance activities for these formula grant programs.

The Budget supports legislation that has passed in the House of Representatives and is pending in the Senate that would reform student lending to eliminate tens of billions of dollars in wasteful subsidies to financial institutions, expand Pell Grants for needy students, and simplify the student aid system. This Budget also supports mandatory funding for priority education programs that are included in this legislation. This mandatory funding is reflected in this account, and includes a new American Graduation Initiative that will strengthen and support community colleges, focus on college completion, and graduate 5 million more students by 2020; an Early Learning Challenge Fund to help children enter school ready to succeed; and funding for other purposes.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as any administrative expenses for the College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program and the Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are on a cash basis. These programs are administered separately but consolidated in the President's budget for presentation purposes.

College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program.—Funds for this activity pay the Federal costs for administering the College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans (CHAFL), College Housing Loans (CHL), and Higher Education Facilities Loans (HEFL) programs. Prior to 1994, these programs provided financing for the construction, reconstruction, and renovation of housing, academic, and other educational facilities. Although no new loans have been awarded since 1993, the Department of Education will incur costs for administering the outstanding loans through 2030.

Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program.—The Historically Black College and University (HBCU) Capital Financing Program provides HBCUs with access to capital financing for the repair, renovation, and construction of classrooms, libraries, laboratories, dormitories, instructional equipment, and research instrumentation. The authorizing statute gives the Department authority to enter into insurance agreements with a private for-profit Designated Bonding Authority. The bonding authority issues the loans and maintains an escrow account in which five percent of each institution's principal is deposited. The Budget requests $20.228 million in loan subsidy, allowing the program to guarantee an estimated $279 million in new loans in 2011. In addition, the Budget requests funds for Federal administrative activities to administer the program and provide technical assistance activities that improve the financial stability of HBCUs.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Federal Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1996 and beyond. The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) purchases bonds issued by the HBCU Designated Bonding Authority. Under the policies governing Federal credit programs, bonds purchased by the FFB and supported by the Department of Education with a letter of credit create the equivalent of a Federal direct loan. HBCU bonds are also available for purchase by the private sector, and these will be treated as loan guarantees. However, the Department anticipates that all HBCU loans will be financed by the FFB. The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals.

Notes.—Figures include, in all years, institutional matching share of defaulted notes assigned from institutions to the Education Department.

Funding from the Student Financial Assistance account, the new Federal Pell Grants account, and related matching funds would provide over 10.8 million awards totaling nearly $37.0 billion in available aid in award year 2011–2012.

Federal Pell grants.—Pell Grants are the single largest source of grant aid for postsecondary education. More detail on this program is provided in the new Federal Pell Grants account below. The Budget Reform chapter in the Analytical Perspectives volume further explains the Budget's Pell Grant policy and the funding included in this account and the Federal Pell Grants account.

Federal supplemental educational opportunity grants (SEOG).—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which use these funds to award grants to undergraduate students. While institutions have discretion in awarding these funds, they are required to give priority to Pell Grant recipients and other students with exceptional need. The Federal share of these grants cannot exceed 75 percent of the total grant. The 2011 Budget includes $757 million for SEOG, which would generate $959 million in new aid to 1.3 million students.

Federal work-study.—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which provide part-time jobs to eligible undergraduate and graduate students. Hourly earnings under this program must be at least equal to the Federal minimum wage. Federal funding in most cases pays 75 percent of a student's hourly wages, with the remaining 25 percent paid by the employer. The Federal Work-Study program also requires participating institutions to use at least 7 percent of the total funds granted to compensate students employed in community service jobs. The 2011 Budget includes $980 million for Work-Study, which would generate $1.2 billion in new aid to nearly 770,000 students.

Iraq and Afghanistan service grants.—This program, which becomes effective July 1, 2010, will provide non-need-based grants for students whose parent or guardian was a member of the Armed Forces who died in Iraq or Afghanistan as a result of performing military service after September 11, 2001. Service Grants are equal to the maximum Pell Grant for a given award year. The Administration anticipates spending $240,000 to support an estimated maximum of 1,000 awards in 2011.

Federal Perkins loans.—Institutions award low-interest loans from institutional revolving funds, which are comprised of Federal Capital Contributions, institutional matching funds, and student repayments on outstanding loans. No new Federal Capital Contributions have been appropriated since 2004. The Administration supports action by Congress to modernize and expand the Perkins Loan program so more colleges can participate and more students receive access to greater aid. The proposal would increase the total annual loan amounts available to students to $6 billion from the current $1 billion beginning in July 1, 2011. Rather than operating through institutional revolving funds, Perkins Loans will be originated and serviced by the Federal Government. Loan volume will be allocated among degree-granting institutions using a method currently being determined in consultation with Congress. The Administration intends for this new formula to encourage colleges to control costs and offer need-based aid to prevent excessive indebtedness. Schools will continue to have discretion with regard to student eligibility. Perkins Loan borrowers will retain the 5 percent interest rate, however interest will accrue while students are in school. Loan maximums also will not change from the current program; other loan terms and conditions will be the same as the current Unsubsidized Stafford Loan program. As current Perkins Loan borrowers repay their loans, schools will remit the Federal share of those payments to the Department of Education. Schools will retain their own share of the revolving funds, as well as amounts sufficient to cover the costs of the various Perkins Loan forgiveness provisions. Mandatory loan subsidy costs associated with this proposal are shown in the Federal Perkins Loan program account.

Funding tables.—The following tables display student aid funds available, the number of aid awards, average awards, and the unduplicated count of recipients from each Federal student aid program. Loan amounts reflect the capital actually loaned, not the Federal cost of these loans. The data in these tables include matching funds wherever appropriate. The 2010 and 2011 data in these tables reflect the Administration's legislative proposals. Therefore, all the following tables include 2010 FFEL data only for the first three quarters of 2010, based on the budget proposal to transfer all loan activity to the Direct Loan program beginning with Academic Year 2010–2011 (July 2010).

The Budget proposes to change the language authorizing the Pell Grants program by making it an entitlement beginning in 2010. This account displays the mandatory funding related to this proposal.

The Budget Reform chapter in the Analytical Perspectives volume further explains the Budget's Pell Grant policy and the funding included in this account and the Student Financial Assistance account.

Pell Grants are the single largest source of grant aid for postsecondary education. Funding for this program has been provided from two sources: discretionary appropriations and, beginning in 2008, mandatory funding authorized under the College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007. The Recovery Act provided additional discretionary and mandatory budget authority in 2009.

In 2010, more than 8 million undergraduates will receive up to $5,550 to help pay for postsecondary education. Undergraduate students establish eligibility for these grants under award and need determination rules set out in the authorizing statute and annual appropriations act.

The 2011 Budget proposes to convert Pell Grants into a mandatory program and increase the maximum award annually by the consumer price index plus 1 percentage point. To implement this, the Budget proposes to amend the HEA to clarify that Federal Pell Grants are an entitlement to the individual and remove the eligibility limits created by the College Cost Reduction and Access Act. The Budget also proposes changes to the HEA that will simplify the FAFSA by changing elements from the needs analysis formula, which could increase the number of students receiving Pell awards and change Pell awards for some students. The Budget request includes $34.9 billion for Pell Grants in 2011, supporting a projected maximum award of $5,710.

The Department of Education manages Federal student aid programs that will provide over $173 billion in new Federal student aid grants and loans to nearly 15 million students and parents in 2011. Primary responsibility for administering these programs lies with the Office of Postsecondary Education and the performance-based Federal Student Aid (FSA), which are both overseen by the Office of the Under Secretary. FSA was created by Congress in 1998 with a mandate to improve service to students and other student aid program participants, reduce student aid administration costs, and improve accountability and program integrity.

The 2011 Budget includes $673 million for student aid administration and $497 million for loan servicing activities, for a total of $1.170 billion. Most of these funds support systems maintained by private contractors to process student aid applications; provide and track aid awards to students, parents, and schools; and promote efforts aimed at reaching out to key student populations and simplifying the aid application experience. To promote greater transparency within the student aid administration account, loan servicing costs are being presented separately from non-servicing costs beginning in 2011.

STUDENT AID ADMINISTRATION

For Federal administrative expenses to carry out part D of title I, and subparts 1, 3, 4, [and] 9, and 10 of part A, and parts B, C, D, and E of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, [$870,402,000, which shall remain available until expended] $1,170,231,000: *Provided, That unobligated balances of funds provided under this paragraph at the end of fiscal year 2011 not needed for fiscal year 2011 shall remain available until expended to invest in Federal Student Aid information technology hardware and software infrastructure, including related equipment and non-payroll administrative expenses associated with this information technology infrastructure. These need-based programs provide grants to full- and part-time students who are eligible to receive a Pell Grant. Eligibility for second-, third-, and fourth-year students is based on maintenance of a 3.0 grade point average. The Ensuring Continued Access to Student Loans Act (ECASLA) expanded the grants to non-citizens, part-time students, and students pursuing certificate programs.

Academic Competitiveness Grants (ACG).—These grants are awarded to first-year and second-year students who have completed a rigorous course of study in high school. Grant levels are $750 for first-year students and $1,300 for second-year students.

Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent (SMART) Grants.—These grants are awarded to third-year and fourth-year students pursuing a major in mathematics, science, or a foreign language deemed critical to national security. Grant levels are $4,000 for both third- and fourth-year students.

Taken together with other Federal student aid, grants cannot exceed a student's cost of attendance. Program funding in excess of the amount needed to fund grants in a given year can be carried over for use in subsequent years; if the mandatory funding level is insufficient to fund program grants, grant levels are reduced. For AY 2010, $932 million in ACG/SMART was made available for 936,000 students.

In 2011, the Administration proposes to cancel $597 million in unobligated balances. Remaining balances are sufficient to meet estimated demand in these programs through the 2011–2012 academic year, when the authorizing statute specifies the program will sunset.

The TEACH grant program, authorized by the College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007, awards annual grants of up to $4,000 to full- or part-time undergraduate and graduate students who agree to teach mathematics, science, foreign languages, bilingual education, special education, or reading at a high-poverty school for not less than 4 years within 8 years of graduating. The program began awarding grants in the 2008–2009 award year. Students must have a grade point average of 3.25 or higher to be eligible to receive a grant. Students who fail to fulfill the service requirements must repay the grants, including interest accrued from the time of award.

Because TEACH grants turn into loans in cases where the service requirements are not fulfilled, for budget and accounting purposes the program is operated consistent with the requirements of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990. This program account records subsidy costs reflecting the net present value of the estimated lifetime Federal program costs for grants awarded in a given fiscal year. Under this approach the subsidy cost reflects the cost of grant awards net of expected future repayments for grants that are converted to loans.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1998 clarified that reserve funds held by public and non-profit guaranty agencies participating in the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program are Federal property. These reserves are used to pay default claims from FFEL lenders and fees to support agency efforts to avert defaults. The Federal Government reimburses these reserves for default claim payments. The following schedule reflects the balances in these guaranty agency funds.

The Federal Government currently operates two major student loan programs: the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan (Direct Loan) program. In an effort to provide a stable source of student loans and better utilize taxpayer dollars, the Administration proposes to end entitlements to FFEL lenders on all new Federal student loans starting July 1, 2010. The Budget supports legislation that has passed the House and is pending in the Senate that would reform student lending as the Administration has proposed by originating all new loans through the Direct Loan Program. The Budget assumes passage of current legislation under consideration in its presentation of policy figures. A single student loan program will be more efficient and less expensive, saving more than $25 billion through 2015 to help finance substantially larger Pell Grant scholarships for low-income students. This summary section outlines the structure of these two programs, highlights their differences and similarities, and provides text tables displaying program cost data; loan volume, subsidy, default, and interest rates; and other descriptive information.

FEDERAL DIRECT STUDENT LOAN PROGRAM ACCOUNT—Continued

From its inception in 1965 through 2009, the FFEL program has provided over $878 billion in loans to postsecondary students and their parents. Since July 1, 1994, the Direct Loan program has provided $292 billion in new and consolidation loans to students and parents. The Direct Loan program will make over $116 billion in new loans available in 2011.

Loan capital in the FFEL program is provided by private lenders, facilitated by the Federal guarantee on the loans. In addition, State and private nonprofit guaranty agencies act as agents of the Federal Government, providing a variety of services including collection of some defaulted loans, default avoidance activities, and counseling to schools, students, and lenders. The Government provides substantial payments to these guaranty agencies. The Government also pays interest subsidies to lenders for certain borrowers, as well as most costs associated with loan defaults and other write-offs.

Under the Direct Loan program, loan capital is provided by the Federal Government while loan origination and servicing is handled by private-sector companies under performance-based contracts with the Department. The Direct Loan program began operation in academic year 1994–1995 with 7 percent of overall loan volume and is expected to account for 34 percent in academic year 2009–2010.

The Direct Loan and FFEL programs share many basic elements. Interest rates, terms, and conditions are very similar or the same. Each program offers four types of loans: Stafford, Unsubsidized Stafford, PLUS, and Consolidation. Evidence of financial need is required for a student to receive a subsidized Stafford loan. The other three loan programs are available to borrowers at all income levels. Loans can be used only to meet qualified educational expenses.

For Stafford Loans made on or after July 1, 2010, and before July 1, 2011, the borrower interest rate is fixed at 4.5 percent. The College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007 (CCRAA) included a phased interest rate reduction for new Stafford Loans, with fixed rates dropping to 3.4 percent on July 1, 2011, and rising to 6.8 percent on July 1, 2012. Interest payments for these loans are fully subsidized by the Government while a student is in school and during grace and deferment periods. Borrower interest rates on new Unsubsidized Stafford loans are fixed at 6.8 percent. The fixed borrower interest rate on PLUS loans made on or after July 1, 2006, is 7.9 percent for Direct Loans and 8.5 percent for FFEL.

In the FFEL program, lenders may receive an interest subsidy, called a special allowance, from the Government to ensure a guaranteed rate of return on their loans. Special allowance payments vary by loan type, are determined quarterly, and are based on current borrower interest rates and market-yield formulas. For periods when the borrower interest rate exceeds the special allowance rate on loans made on or after April 1, 2006, lenders remit the difference to the government. Special allowance rates differ for for-profit and not-for-profit loan holders. For Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans made on or after October 1, 2007, for example, the Federal Government must pay lenders a special allowance if the average 3-month commercial paper rate for a given quarter plus 1.79 percent for for-profit holders or 1.94 percent for not-for-profit holders is higher than the current interest rate charged to borrowers. The guarantee percentage paid to lenders on most defaults is 95 percent of unpaid loan principal (including any accrued interest on the full loan principal).

Consolidation loans allow borrowers to combine loans made under Title IV of the Higher Education Act—FFEL, Direct Loans, and Perkins Loans—as well as some loans made under the Public Health Service Act. The interest rate for new FFEL and Direct Consolidation loans equals the weighted average of the interest rate on the loans consolidated, rounded up to the nearest one-eighth of one percent. Lenders may choose to offer a lower rate. Interest rates for all new FFEL and Direct Consolidation Loans are capped at 8.25 percent.

In compliance with the Higher Education Reconciliation Act of 2005, as of July 1, 2010, Direct Loan origination fees have been reduced to 1 percent. Borrowers in both programs may be offered financial incentives to encourage prompt repayment.

Loan limits are also identical across the two programs. Loans made under both programs are discharged when borrowers die, are totally and permanently disabled, or, under some circumstances, declare bankruptcy.

Under both programs, new borrowers after October 1, 1998, who are employed as teachers in schools serving low-income populations for five consecutive, complete school years, qualify for up to $5,000 in loan forgiveness; this benefit is increased to $17,500 for mathematics, science, and special education teachers considered highly qualified under criteria established in the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

In addition, under a loan forgiveness program for public-sector employees qualifying borrowers who have worked for 10 years while making payments on their student loan will have any remaining loan balance forgiven. This benefit is only available in the Direct Loan program, though FFEL borrowers may access the benefit by taking out a Direct Consolidation Loan; it is available for all borrowers, regardless of when they took out their loans.

FFEL borrowers may choose from among four repayment plans. Repayment periods under standard, graduated, and income-sensitive repayment may not exceed 10 years. An extended repayment plan of up to 25 years is available for new borrowers with outstanding loans totaling more than $30,000. FFEL borrowers may change repayment plans annually. Borrowers under Direct Loans may choose from the same repayment plans available in FFEL, except that instead of the income-sensitive repayment plan an income-contingent repayment is available (with terms similar to the new income-based repayment plan). Direct Loan borrowers may switch between repayment plans at any time.

In addition, since July 1, 2009, qualifying student borrowers may also choose an income-based repayment plan under which loans (except Parent PLUS) are paid according to the borrower's income and outstanding balances, if any, are forgiven after 25 years in repayment. (In the first three years, an interest subsidy is available for Stafford Loans and the Stafford portion of Consolidation Loans.) To provide additional assistance to borrowers struggling with increasing levels of college debt, the Budget proposes to ease the burden of repayment by reducing monthly bills and the length of time until loan discharge under this repayment plan. Currently monthly loan payments can be up to 15 percent of a borrower's prior-year income. (Payments cannot exceed the amount calculated under the Standard 10-year repayment option.) The proposal would reduce the assessment to 10 percent of income. The policy would also reduce the number of years of income-based repayments to 20 years for loan forgiveness.

The following tables display performance indicators and program data; including projected overall Direct Loan and FFEL costs; loan volume, number of loans, and average loan amount; descriptive data, and program activity assuming passage of the President's Budget and legislative request.

<sup>1</sup>Default rates displayed in this table, which reflect projected defaults over the life of a loan cohort, are used in developing program cost estimates. The Department uses other rates based on defaults occurring in the first two years of repayment to determine institutional eligibility to participate in Federal loan programs. (The Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008 changed this requirement to a three-year rate.) These two- and three-year rates tend to be lower than those included in this table.

FFEL program payments are made to lenders (interest subsidies, loan defaults, and discharges) and guaranty agencies (default collection costs, administrative services). These payments are partially offset by borrower origination fees and lender fees for originations and an annual consolidation loan holder fee. In Direct Loans, cash outflows are primarily payments to Treasury. Cash inflows include principal and interest payments on outstanding Direct Loans.

The following table shows Government payments to and from lenders, guaranty agencies, and borrowers for specific years, regardless of when loans were originated. These flows do not reflect long-term costs to the Government, nor the value of outstanding loan assets: these are reflected in credit reform subsidy estimates. For example, defaulted FFEL loans that are repaid through consolidation produce cash revenue in the current year as the underlying loans are paid off, which is included in the table. But these consolidations also incur estimated future costs — such as subsequent re-defaults, loan discharges, and lender interest subsidy payments — that are not reflected.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 accounts for differences in the amount and timing of cash flows among direct and guaranteed loan programs to make cost estimates for these programs comparable with each other and other Federal programs.

<sup>2</sup>Under the Budget proposal all activity will be in Direct Loans for the entire cohort of 2011.

Notes: For 2009, the rates are current; these include the actual executed rates for 2009 and the effect of re-estimates on those rates. Under ECASLA there now exist FFEL direct loans which record the costs of FFEL loans purchased by the Department. Those rates are not included in the Guaranteed rates in this table. This table does include the costs of FFEL loans prior to purchase by the Department.

The chart above compares total FFEL and Direct Loan costs on a subsidy rate basis: program costs calculated under the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 and comparably projected estimates of Federal administrative costs, including expenses related to FFEL program oversight and servicing the Direct Loan portfolio. As with any long-term projection, the comparison is based on assumed future interest rates, borrower characteristics, administrative costs, and other factors over the life of the loan cohort. To the degree actual conditions differ from projections, estimated subsidy rates will change.

<sup>3</sup>Fees primarily reflect borrower obligation fees and, in FFEL, lender origination and consolidation loan holder fees. Other primarily reflects loan discharges due to death, disability, or bankruptcy; contract collection costs; loan forgiveness; and Direct Loan interest rate rebates.

Notes: This table attempts to compare the subsidy rates of direct and guaranteed loans. For 2009, the rates are the most current; these include the actual executed rates for 2009 and the effect of re-estimates on those rates. Under ECASLA there now exist FFEL direct loans which record the costs of FFEL loans purchased by the Department. Those rates are not included in the Guaranteed rates in this table. This table does include the costs of FFEL loans prior to purchase by the Department.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 requires the cost of existing loan cohorts to be reestimated to reflect changes in actual and assumed borrower behavior, interest rates, and other factors. The following table shows the impact of these reestimates in FFEL and Direct Loans.

Loan Disbursement and Subsidy Costs

(amounts in billions)

	FFEL	Direct Loans
Original Subsidy Costs .....	+$77.7	-$3.8
Cumulative Reestimates .....	-$19.5	+$9.9
Net Subsidy Costs .....	+$58.2	+$6.1
Total Disbursements .....	+$878.7	$292.0

Changes in interest rate projections are a significant factor in FFEL and Direct Loan reestimates; recent declines in interest rates below historical averages have accordingly been a major driver in changes to program costs. Changes in borrower behavior (notably, prepayment of loans through consolidation and reduction in defaults) have also contributed to these reestimates.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this program account records the subsidy costs associated with Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL), formerly guaranteed student loans (GSL), committed in 1992 and beyond. Beginning with the 1993 cohort, mandatory administrative costs, specifically contract collection costs, are included in the FFEL subsidy estimates of each year's cohort. Subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

Research and Statistics:

Research, development, and dissemination.—Funds support a diverse portfolio of investigator-led research and development, evaluation studies, research and development centers, and dissemination activities that provide parents, teachers, and schools with scientifically based information on effective educational practice. Funds requested in 2011 would be used to expand research and evaluation efforts on topics in early childhood, elementary, secondary, and postsecondary education. The requested increase would also be used to continue the evaluation of activities supported with funds appropriated by the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act.

Statistics.—Funds support the Department's statistical data collection activities, which are conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES). NCES collects, analyzes, and disseminates statistics on education at all levels, from preschool through postsecondary and adult education, including statistics on international education activities. The requested increase for 2011 would allow NCES to make strategic improvements to the statistics program, including conducting an equating study between the National Assessment of Educational Progress and The Third International Mathematics and Science Study (TIMSS) that would allow States to compare their students' 8th grade mathematics achievement to that of students in other countries.

Regional educational laboratories.—Funds support a network of 10 regional laboratories that provide expert advice, including training and technical assistance, to help States and school districts apply proven research findings in their school improvement efforts. Funds requested in 2011 would be used to extend the current lab contracts for an additional year so that the new contracts may reflect and support any significant changes in the upcoming reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and the Education Sciences Reform Act.

Assessment.—Funds support the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP). NAEP administers assessments to samples of students in order to gather reliable information about educational attainment in important academic areas. The increase requested for 2011 would support the NAEP share of the NAEP and TIMSS equating study, with the remaining funds supporting the 2011 national and State reading and mathematics assessments in grades 4 and 8; a national writing assessment at grades 4, 8, and 12; a State grade 4 writing assessment; 2011 assessments in a small number of urban districts; preparation for the 2012 grade 12 economics assessment, the 2012 long-term trend assessment, and a special technology literacy study; and analysis of assessments conducted prior to 2011.

Research in special education.—Funds support research to address gaps in scientific knowledge in order to improve special education and early intervention services and results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Statewide data systems.—Funds support competitive awards to State educational agencies to foster the design, development, and implementation of longitudinal data systems. In 2011, funding would support systems that include postsecondary and workforce information and information on children of all ages and also would support awards to improve data coordination, quality, and use.

Special education studies and evaluations.—Funds support studies, evaluations, and assessments related to the implementation of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act in order to improve special education and early intervention services and results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Naval Reactors.—This account funds all naval nuclear propulsion work. It begins with reactor technology development, continues through reactor operation, and ends with reactor plant disposal. The program ensures the safe and reliable operation of reactor plants in nuclear-powered submarines and aircraft carriers (constituting 40 percent of the Navy's combatants), and fulfills the Navy's requirements for new nuclear propulsion plants that meet current and future national defense requirements.

Due to the crucial nature of nuclear reactor work, Naval Reactors is a centrally managed organization. Federal employees oversee and set policies/procedures for developing new reactor plants and operating existing nuclear plants and the facilities that support these plants.

Programs funded within the Weapons Activities appropriation support the nation's current and future defense posture, and its attendant nationwide infrastructure of science, technology and engineering capabilities. Weapons Activities provides for the maintenance and refurbishment of nuclear weapons to sustain confidence in their safety, reliability, and performance; expansion of scientific, engineering, and manufacturing capabilities to enable certification of the enduring nuclear weapons stockpile; and manufacture of nuclear weapon components under a comprehensive test ban. Weapons Activities also provides for continued maintenance and investment in the Department's enterprise of nuclear stewardship to be more responsive and cost effective. The Department also supports the capability to return to underground testing, if so directed by the President. The major elements of the program include the following:

Campaigns.—Focuses on scientific, technical, and engineering efforts to develop and maintain critical capabilities and tools needed to support stockpile refurbishment and continued assessment and certification of the stockpile for the long-term in the absence of underground nuclear testing.

Directed Stockpile Work.—Encompasses all activities that directly support specific weapons in the stockpile. These activities include: maintenance and day-to-day care; planned refurbishment; reliability assessment; weapon dismantlement and disposal; and research, development, and certification technology efforts to meet stockpile requirements.

Readiness in Technical Base and Facilities.—Provides the underlying physical infrastructure and operational readiness for the Directed Stockpile Work and Campaign activities. These activities include ensuring that facilities are operational, safe, secure, and compliant with regulatory requirements, and that a defined level of readiness is sustained at facilities funded by the Office of Defense Programs.

Secure Transportation Asset.—Provides for the safe, secure movement of nuclear weapons, special nuclear material, and weapon components to meet projected DOE and DoD requirements. The Program Direction in this account provides for Federal agents and the transportation workforce.

Nuclear Counterterrorism Incident Response.—Formerly the Nuclear Weapons Incident Response, manages strategically placed people and equipment to provide a technically trained response to nuclear or radiological incidents worldwide, mitigates nuclear or radiological threats, and has a lead role in defending the Nation from the threat of nuclear terrorism.

Facilities and Infrastructure Recapitalization.—Continues its mission to restore the physical infrastructure of the national security enterprise. The program funding is utilized to address an integrated, prioritized series of repair and infrastructure projects focusing on elimination of legacy deferred maintenance that significantly increase the operational efficiency and effectiveness of the NNSA national security enterprise sites. The program is scheduled to conclude in 2013.

Site Stewardship.—Ensures environmentally compliant and energy efficient operations throughout the nuclear security enterprise, while modernizing, streamlining and sustaining the stewardship and vitality of the sites as they are transitioned within NNSA's plans for transformation of the national security enterprise.

Defense Nuclear Security.—Provides protection for NNSA personnel, facilities, and nuclear weapons and information from a full spectrum of threats, most notably terrorism. Provides for all safeguards and security requirements including protective forces and systems (except for personnel security investigations) at NNSA landlord sites, specifically the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Los Alamos National Laboratory, Sandia National Laboratories, Nevada Test Site, Kansas City Plant, Pantex Plant, Y-12 National Security Complex, and the Savannah River Site Tritium Facilities.

Cyber Security.—Provides the requisite guidance needed to ensure that sufficient information technology and information management security safeguards are implemented throughout the NNSA enterprise. The vision of the NNSA Cyber Security Program is to transform the NNSA security posture by making strategic investments in people, operations, and technology.

The mission of this program is to: 1) prevent the spread of materials, technology, and expertise relating to weapons of mass destruction (WMD); 2) advance the technologies to detect the proliferation of WMD worldwide; 3) and eliminate or secure inventories of surplus materials and infrastructure usable for nuclear weapons. The program addresses the danger that hostile nations or terrorist groups may acquire WMD or weapons-usable material, dual-use production technology or WMD expertise. The major elements of the program include the following:

Nonproliferation and Verification Research and Development (R&D).—This element of the program reduces the threat to national security posed by nuclear weapons proliferation/detonation or the illicit trafficking of nuclear materials through the long-term development of new and novel technology including treaty monitoring and verification capabilities. Using the unique facilities and scientific skills of NNSA and Department of Energy (DOE) national laboratories and plants, in partnership with industry and academia, the R&D program conducts research and development that supports nonproliferation mission requirements to close technology gaps identified through close interaction with NNSA and other U.S. Government agencies. It meets unique challenges and plays an important role in the Federal Government by developing new technologies applicable to nonproliferation, homeland security, and national security needs.

Nonproliferation and International Security (NIS).—The NIS mission is to prevent and counter the proliferation of WMD, including materials, technologies, and expertise, by states and non-state actors. The program provides policy and technical support for nonproliferation and associated treaties and agreements, domestic and international legal and regulatory controls, and diplomatic and counter-proliferation initiatives, and through cooperation with international organizations and foreign partners on export controls, safeguards, and security. The program makes vital contributions to strengthen international security and the nuclear nonproliferation regime in four main areas: (1) Nuclear Safeguards; (2) Nuclear Controls; (3) Nuclear Verification/Transparency; and (4) Nonproliferation Policy. The NIS program safeguards nuclear material to ensure it is not diverted for non-peaceful uses, controls the spread of WMD material, technology and expertise, and verifies nuclear reductions and programs.

International Nuclear Materials Protection and Cooperation (INMP&C).—The INMP&C program supports one of the Administration's top priorities to lead a global effort to secure all nuclear weapons materials at vulnerable sites within four years — the most effective way to prevent terrorists from acquiring a nuclear bomb. INMP&C prevents nuclear terrorism by working in Russia and other regions of concern to 1) secure and eliminate vulnerable nuclear weapons and weapons exploitable materials, and 2) install detection equipment at international crossing points and Megaports to prevent and detect the illicit transfer of nuclear material. The program continues to improve the security of nuclear material and nuclear warheads in Russia and other countries of proliferation concern by installing Material, Protection, Control and Accounting (MPC&A) upgrades and providing sustainability support to sites with previously installed MPC&A upgrades. Reducing the potential for diversion of nuclear warheads and nuclear materials has been a critical priority for the United States. The United States, through DOE/NNSA's Second Line of Defense Program, will continue to work with international partners to enhance their capabilities to detect, deter, and interdict illicit trafficking in nuclear and other radioactive materials, including the screening of containerized cargo at strategic international seaports.

Elimination of Weapons-Grade Plutonium Production (EWGPP).—Enhances nuclear nonproliferation by assisting Russia in ceasing its production of weapons-grade plutonium by providing replacement heat and electricity production capacity. This will result in the shutdown of the world's last three plutonium producing reactors, two of which have already been shut down in Seversk, and eliminate the production of 1.2 metric tons of plutonium per year. This program is scheduled to be completed in 2010 with the completion of the Zheleznogorsk portion of the program.

Fissile Materials Disposition.—The program goal is to eliminate the surplus Russian weapons-grade plutonium and surplus United States (U.S.) weapons-grade plutonium and highly enriched uranium. These disposition activities are concrete steps towards the Administration's vision of a world without nuclear weapons and are consistent with Administration international nonproliferation and arms control obligations. The program focuses U.S. efforts to downblend surplus U.S. highly enriched uranium and to implement the Plutonium Management and Disposition Agreement between the United States and Russia, which commits both countries to dispose of no less than 34 metric tons of surplus weapons-grade plutonium—enough for 8,000 nuclear weapons.

Global Threat Reduction Initiative (GTRI).—The GTRI mission is to reduce and protect vulnerable nuclear and radiological materials located at civilian sites worldwide. GTRI directly supports the Administration's goal to secure all vulnerable nuclear material around the world within four years, as well as objectives defined at the Moscow Summit in July 2009 concerning material removal and conversion of research reactors.

GTRI supports the U.S. Department of Energy's Nuclear Security Goal by preventing terrorists from acquiring nuclear and radiological materials that could be used in weapons of mass destruction (WMD) or other acts of terrorism by: 1) Converting research reactors and isotope production facilities from the use of highly enriched uranium (HEU) to low enriched uranium (LEU); 2) Removing and disposing of excess nuclear and radiological materials; and, 3) Protecting high-priority nuclear and radiological materials from theft and sabotage. These three key aspects of GTRI—convert, remove, and protect—together provide a comprehensive approach to achieving its mission and denying terrorists access to nuclear and radiological materials.

The Defense Environmental Cleanup program is responsible for identifying and reducing risks and managing waste at sites where the Department carried out defense-related nuclear research and production activities that resulted in radioactive, hazardous, and mixed waste contamination requiring remediation, stabilization, or some other type of cleanup action. The budget displays the cleanup program by site.

Closure Sites.—Funds post-closure administration costs after physical completion.

Hanford Site.—Funds the Hanford site cleanup and environmental restoration to protect the Columbia River. The Hanford site cleanup is managed by two Environmental Management (EM) site offices: the Richland Operations Office and the Office of River Protection.

The Hanford site (Richland) is responsible for cleanup of most of the geographic area on the Hanford site, and its projects are displayed in two new accounts: projects that focus on Central Plateau remediation and projects to be completed within the River Corridor and other cleanup operations. These new accounts are proposed in the 2011 Budget to better align activities at the Hanford site with the way the work is completed and eliminates the previous accounts of 2012 Accelerated Completions and 2035 Accelerated Completions. The primary cleanup focus is the safe storage, treatment and disposal of Hanford's legacy wastes and environmental restoration. Risk to the public, workers, and the environment will be reduced by removing contamination before it migrates to the Columbia River.

The Office of River Protection at the Hanford site is responsible for the storage, retrieval, treatment, immobilization, and disposal of tank waste and the operation, maintenance, engineering, and construction activities in the 200 Area Tank Farms. Its budget has two components, the operation and maintenance of radioactive liquid waste tank farms and construction of the Waste Treatment and Immobilization Plant.

Idaho.—Funds the Idaho Cleanup Project, which is aimed at reducing the risk of contamination reaching the Snake River Plain Aquifer from nuclear and hazardous waste buried or stored on-site. It also funds efforts to eliminate infrastructure costs by aggressively conducting cleanup operations to reduce the site "footprint"; stabilize legacy spent nuclear fuel through 2012; and treat and dispose of the sodium bearing tank wastes, close tank farms, perform initial tank soils remediation work, and prepare the stored high-level waste calcine for final disposition.

NNSA Sites.—Funds the safe and efficient cleanup of the environmental legacy at National Nuclear Security Administration sites including Los Alamos National Laboratory, Nevada Site, and the Separations Process Research Unit. The cleanup strategy is a risk-based approach that focuses first on those contaminant plumes and sources that are the greatest contributors to risk. The overall goal is first to ensure that risks to the public and workers are controlled, then to clean up soil and groundwater using a risk-based methodology. NNSA is responsible for long-term stewardship of its sites after physical cleanup is completed.

Oak Ridge.—Funds defense-related cleanup of the three facilities that make up the Oak Ridge Reservation: the East Tennessee Technology Park, the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, and the Y-12 Plant. The overall cleanup strategy is based on surface water considerations, encompassing five distinct watersheds that feed the Clinch River. Cleanup actions will contain that waste; improve on-site surface water quality to meet required standards; and protect off-site users of the Clinch River.

Savannah River Site.—Funds the safe stabilization, treatment, and disposition of legacy nuclear materials, spent nuclear fuel, and waste at the Savannah River site. The cleanup funding is displayed in two new accounts: projects that are associated with risk management and projects that focus on cleanup and waste disposition, which includes nuclear material stabilization, radioactive tank waste, and the Defense Waste Processing Facility operations. These new accounts are proposed in the 2011 Budget to better align activities at the Savannah River site with the way the work is completed and eliminates the previous accounts of Nuclear Material Stabilization and Disposition, 2035 Accelerated Completions, and Tank Farm Activities. The Savannah River cleanup strategy has four primary objectives: 1) eliminate the highest risks first through safe stabilization, treatment, and disposition of EM-owned nuclear materials, spent nuclear fuel, and waste; 2) significantly reduce costs of continuing operations and surveillance and maintenance; 3) decommission all EM-owned facilities; and 4) remediate groundwater and contaminated soils, using an area closure approach.

Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.—Funds the world's first permitted deep geologic repository for the permanent disposal of radioactive waste, and the Nation's only disposal site for defense-generated transuranic waste. The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, managed by the Carlsbad Field Office, is an operating facility, supporting the cleanup of transuranic waste from waste generator and storage sites. The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is crucial to DOE completing its cleanup and closure mission.

Program Direction.—Funds the Federal workforce responsible for the overall direction and administrative support of the EM program, including both Headquarters and field personnel.

Program Support.—Funds EM Headquarters policy and oversight activities. This includes management and direction for various crosscutting EM and Department of Energy initiatives; establishment and implementation of national and departmental policy; and analyses and integration activities across the Department of Energy complex in a consistent, responsible and efficient manner.

Safeguards and Security.—Funds activities to protect against unauthorized access, theft, diversion, loss of custody or destruction of Department of Energy assets and hostile acts that may cause adverse impacts on fundamental national security or the health and safety of Department of Energy and contractor employees, the public or the environment.

Technology Development and Deployment.—Funds projects to address the immediate, near- and long-term technology needs identified by the EM sites, enabling them to accelerate their cleanup schedules, treat orphaned wastes, improve worker safety, and provide technical foundations for the sites' end state visions.

Federal Contribution to the Uranium Enrichment Decontamination and Decommissioning Fund.—Funds the Federal Government's contribution to the Uranium Enrichment Decontamination and Decommissioning Fund.

The Defense Nuclear Waste Disposal appropriation was established by the Congress as part of the 1993 Energy and Water Development Appropriation (Pub. L. No. 102-377), in lieu of payment from the Department of Energy (DOE) into the Nuclear Waste Fund for activities related to the disposal of defense high-level waste from DOE's atomic energy defense activities. The Administration has determined that developing a repository at Yucca Mountain is not a workable option and that the Nation needs a different solution for nuclear waste disposal. As a result, the Department will discontinue its application to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) for a license to construct a high-level waste geologic repository at Yucca Mountain in 2010 and establish a Blue Ribbon Commission to develop a new strategy for nuclear waste management and disposal. All funding for development of the Yucca Mountain facility will be eliminated, such as further land acquisition, transportation access, and additional engineering. Ongoing responsibilities under the Act, including administration of the Nuclear Waste Fund and the Standard Contract, will continue under the Office of Nuclear Energy, which will lead future waste management activities. Residual responsibilities for site remediation will be assumed by NNSA and the Office of Environmental Management.

High Energy Physics.—The high energy physics (HEP) program aims to understand how our universe works at its most fundamental level, by discovering the most elementary constituents of matter and energy, probing the interactions between them, and exploring the basic nature of space and time itself. The program encompasses both experimental and theoretical particle physics research and related advanced accelerator and detector technology research and development (R&D). The primary mode of experimental research involves the study of collisions of energetic particles using large particle accelerators or colliding beam facilities.

In addition to contributing to breakthrough scientific discoveries, HEP research also makes major contributions to accelerator technology and provides the expertise necessary for the expansion of such technology into medicine, industry, and homeland security, as well as materials, biology, and chemistry research using light sources. One notable recent example is the Linac Coherent Light Source, now operating at the SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory: the concept and proof-of-principle for this state-of-the-art basic energy sciences facility grew out of particle accelerator technology developed for the HEP program.

The HEP budget request supports a world leadership program at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory. Funding is provided for the Large Hadron Collider (LHC) research program, including support for software and computing, pre-operations and maintenance of the U.S. built systems that are part of the LHC detectors; and accelerator commissioning and accelerator physics studies using the LHC.

While the future trajectory of the worldwide HEP program has an emphasis on the energy frontier, the proposed long-range program will provide the U.S. with a balanced and diverse array of world-leading efforts, including new facilities to ensure continued U.S. leadership at the intensity and cosmic frontiers of exploration, such as intense particle beams to probe rare and subtle particle interactions, or ground and space-based observatories for understanding dark energy and dark matter.

Nuclear Physics.—The nuclear physics (NP) program provides new insights and advances knowledge on the evolution and structure of nuclear matter. The program focuses on three broad but highly related research frontiers: strong interactions among quarks and gluons (quantum chromodynamics) and how they assemble into the various forms of matter; the structure of atomic nuclei at their limits of existence and nuclear astrophysics to address the origin of the elements and the evolution of the cosmos; and development of a new Standard Model of fundamental interactions and understanding of its implications for the origin of matter and the properties of neutrinos and nuclei.

NP develops the scientific knowledge, technologies, and trained workforce needed to underpin DOE's applied missions and is inherently relevant to a broad suite of applications that are important to the Nation. The advancement of knowledge of nuclear matter and its properties is intertwined with nuclear power, nuclear medicine, national security, environmental and geological sciences, and isotope production.

The NP request continues support of the Relativistic Heavy Ion Collider at Brookhaven National Laboratory to characterize new states of matter and phenomena that occur in hot, dense nuclear matter; the Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility (CEBAF) at Thomas Jefferson National Accelerator Facility to understand the substructure of the nucleon; and the Holifield Radioactive Ion Beam Facility at Oak Ridge National Laboratory and Argonne Tandem Linear Accelerator System at Argonne National Laboratory for the study of nuclear structure and nuclear astrophysics. Construction continues on the 12 GeV CEBAF Upgrade project to double the electron beam energy at CEBAF, which will open the opportunity for new discoveries and an understanding of quark confinement. Engineering and design is initiated for the Facility for Rare Isotope Beams, which will enable a comprehensive description of nuclei, elucidate the origin of the elements in the cosmos and the behavior, of neutron stars, and establish the scientific foundation for innovative applications of nuclear science. The Isotope Development and Production for Research and Applications program develops and produces commercial and research radioisotopes that are provided to medical institutions, universities, research organizations, and industry for a wide array of uses and applications.

Biological and Environmental Research.—This program funds research in global climate change, environmental science, and systems biology. In conjunction with the advanced scientific computing research program, an earth systems modeling activity is continued to accelerate progress in coupled atmosphere-ocean-land-sea ice development through use of enhanced computer simulation and modeling. Genomics science activities will develop the science, technology, and knowledge base to harness microbial and plant systems for cost effective renewable energy production, carbon sequestration, and environmental remediation. The budget continues support for Bioenergy Research Centers, where research focuses on developing the fundamental science underpinning biofuel production.

Basic Energy Sciences.—The basic energy sciences (BES) program supports fundamental research in material sciences, chemistry, geosciences, and aspects of biosciences to understand, predict, and ultimately control matter and energy at the electronic, atomic, and molecular levels. BES supports two innovative approaches to integrated research: Energy Frontier Research Centers and Energy Innovation Hubs. The Energy Frontier Research Centers support multi-year, multi-investigator scientific collaborations focused on overcoming hurdles in basic science that block transformational discoveries. The Energy Innovation Hubs establish larger, highly integrated teams working to solve priority technology challenges that span work from basic research to engineering development to commercialization readiness.

The BES program operates large national user research facilities: a complementary set of intense x-ray sources, neutron scattering centers, electron beam characterization capabilities, and research centers for nanoscale science. These facilities probe materials in space, time, and energy at resolutions that can interrogate the inner workings of matter to answer some of the most challenging grand science questions. The request includes continued support to maintain utilization of and provide instrumentation for these state-of-the-art national user facilities. Research areas that will benefit from the facilities funding include structural biology, materials science, superconductor technology, and biomedical research and technology development. The request also supports construction of the National Synchrotron Light Source II at Brookhaven National Laboratory.

Fusion Energy Sciences.—The fusion energy sciences (FES) program works to expand the fundamental understanding of matter at very high temperatures and densities and to develop the scientific foundations needed to develop a fusion energy source. This is accomplished by the study of the plasma state and its interactions with its surroundings. An essential element of the FES program is the invention of advanced measurement techniques to ascertain the properties of plasma and its surroundings at the level required to test, challenge, and advance theoretical models. This validation forms the foundation of computational tools used to understand and predict the behavior of natural and man-made plasmas systems, including burning plasmas for fusion energy.

The FES program is now moving into the burning plasma regime through its participation in ITER, an international fusion research facility under construction in Cadarache, France, which is designed to achieve and investigate the characteristics of a burning plasma. FES funds the U.S. contributions to the ITER Project in collaboration with the European Union (EU), Japan, Russia, Korea, China, and India. ITER is the next step toward eventually developing fusion as a commercially viable energy source. The U.S. input to ITER physics design and preparations for its scientific exploitation are being coordinated by the U.S. Burning Plasma Organization (USBPO), which is a FES community-wide activity leveraging ongoing research at major facilities and at universities. The FES program operates three major research facilities (DIII-D, Alcator C-Mod, and the National Spherical Torus Experiment) to develop a more complete understanding of the physics of magnetically confined plasma and to identify approaches that may improve the economical and environmental attractiveness of fusion power. The FES program also provides support for basic research in plasma science in partnership with the National Science Foundation, the study of high energy density laboratory plasmas through a joint program with the National Nuclear Security Administration, and investigation of the innovative plasma confinement concepts. Finally, the FES request continues to support theory, modeling, and advanced simulation using high performance computing and research on new diagnostic measurement techniques and enabling technologies to enhance the capability of FES research facilities.

Advanced Scientific Computing Research.—This program supports advanced computational research, applied mathematics, computer science, and networking. The program also supports the operation of large high performance computing and network facilities including leadership computing facilities at the Oak Ridge and Argonne National Laboratories, the National Energy Research Scientific Computing Facility at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, and the Energy Sciences Network. The request includes research, integrated with other science programs, on application of computer simulation and modeling to science problems.

Science Laboratories Infrastructure.—The mission of this program is to support scientific and technological innovation at the Office of Science (SC) laboratories by funding mission-ready infrastructure and fostering safe, sustainable, and environmentally responsible operations. Paramount among these is the provision of the infrastructure necessary to ensure world leadership by the SC national laboratories in basic scientific research, now and in the future. The request continues funding for the Infrastructure Modernization Initiative that is ensuring the mission readiness of the laboratories.

Safeguards and Security.—The mission of this program is to support the conduct of Departmental research missions at SC laboratories by ensuring appropriate levels of protection against unauthorized access, theft, diversion, loss of custody, destruction of DOE assets, hostile acts that may cause adverse impacts on fundamental science, national security, the health and safety of DOE and contractor employees, the public, and the environment. The request maintains levels of protection specific to each facility and provides funding for the following areas: protective forces, security systems, information security, cyber security, personnel security, material control and accountability, and program management.

Workforce Development for Teachers and Scientists.—This program trains young scientists, engineers, and technicians in the scientifically and technically advanced environment of the SC national laboratories to meet the demand for a well-trained scientific and technical workforce, including the teachers who educate the workforce in areas of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics. The program also funds the DOE Office of Science Graduate Fellowship program.

Program Direction.—This program provides a highly skilled Federal workforce to develop and sustain world-class science programs that deliver the scientific discoveries and technological innovations needed to solve our nation's energy and environmental challenges and enable the U.S. to maintain its global competitiveness. The Office of Science workforce is responsible for overseeing taxpayer dollars for science program development; program and project execution and management; the administrative, business, and technical management of research grants and contracts; the oversight of 10 of the 17 DOE national laboratories; and providing public access to DOE's R&D results.

The Energy Transformation Acceleration Fund provides funding to implement the Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E) within the Department of Energy, as established by the America COMPETES Act of 2007 (Pub. L. No. 110-69). The mission of ARPA-E is to overcome the long-term and high-risk technological barriers to the development of energy technologies.

ARPA-E will facilitate initiatives to enhance the economic security of the United States through the development of energy technologies that reduce energy imports, improve energy efficiency, and reduce energy-related emissions including greenhouse gases. ARPA-E will identify and promote revolutionary advances in the fundamental sciences, translating scientific discoveries and cutting edge inventions into technological innovations. It will also accelerate transformational technological advances in areas that industry by itself is not likely to undertake because of technical and financial uncertainty. The role of ARPA-E is not to duplicate DOE's basic research and applied programs, but to focus on novel early-stage energy research with possible technology applications.

The Office of Nuclear Energy funds a range of research and development activities as well as supports the Nation's nuclear facilities. The 2011 budget continues programmatic support for advanced reactor R&D activities; fuel cycle R&D dedicated to waste storage and management solutions; and the safe, environmentally compliant, and cost-effective operation of the Department's nuclear energy infrastructure vital to nuclear energy R&D activities. To better align program functions with strategic goals, the 2011 budget establishes the Reactor Concepts Research, Development and Demonstration program, which will support new and ongoing R&D and other activities focused on innovative small modular reactors, the Next Generation Nuclear Plant, Light Water Reactor Sustainability, and other advanced reactor concepts. A new Nuclear Energy Enabling Technologies program is also established to enable support of R&D focused on a broad spectrum of nuclear energy issues that crosscut reactor types and fuel cycle issues, including fuels, materials, and modeling and simulation. This program will also support a new effort to fund cutting-edge nuclear technology R&D across the full spectrum of nuclear energy issues. The effort will encourage out-of-the-box thinking and inspire creative solutions to the broad array of nuclear energy challenges. Preliminary design and engineering for a domestic capability to produce plutonium-238 for use in radioisotope power systems required for certain National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) space missions and national security missions will be funded in 2011 as well. Notably, Safeguards and Security for Idaho National Laboratory is funded under the Other Defense Activities appropriation. In addition, the Office of Nuclear Energy will oversee ongoing responsibilities under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, including administration of the Nuclear Waste Fund and the Standard Contract, and will lead future waste management activities.

The mission of the Office of Electricity Delivery and Energy Reliability (OE) is to lead national efforts to modernize the electric grid, enhance security and reliability of the Nation's energy infrastructure, and facilitate recovery from disruptions to the energy supply. This effort is accomplished through research, development, demonstration and technology transfer; implementation of the electricity grid modernization requirements contained in the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (including the congestion study and analysis of potential National Interest Electric Transmission corridors as authorized by Section 1221) and the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007; technical assistance and analytical support to States and regions for policies, market mechanisms, and activities that facilitate competitive, reliable, environmentally sensitive, and customer-friendly electric markets; authorization for electricity exports and Presidential permits for cross-border transmission lines; energy power systems analysis; and coordinating and carrying out DOE Lead Sector Specific Agency responsibilities for protecting the Nation's critical energy infrastructure. Partnerships to engage industry, utilities, States, other Federal programs and agencies, universities, national laboratories, and other stakeholders in OE's efforts to ensure a more secure, reliable, efficient, and affordable national electricity supply will continue to be a key element of the program.

In addition, Legacy Management is responsible for the management and administration of pension and benefit continuity for contractor retirees at these sites. These activities are funded within the Other Defense Activities appropriation beginning in 2009.

Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy (EERE) programs undertake research, development, demonstration and deployment activities to advance technologies and related practices to help meet the growing global demand for clean, reliable, sustainable, and affordable energy services and to reduce energy consumption. EERE programs include:

Hydrogen and Fuel Cell Technologies.—This program aims to reduce petroleum use, greenhouse gas emissions, and criteria air pollutants, and to contribute to a more diverse and efficient energy infrastructure by enabling the widespread commercialization of hydrogen and fuel cell technologies.

Biomass.—This program funds research, development, and deployment to validate and assist in commercialization of integrated biorefinery technologies. The program's activities include the development of biomass conversion technologies to produce a variety of biofuels, bioproducts, and biopower. The program also develops environmentally sustainable, regionally available feedstock production systems to supply these conversion processes. The program's long-term goal is to enable industry to develop commercial biorefineries that can sustainably and economically convert lignocellulosic biomass and algae to fuels, chemicals, heat, and power. The program's near-term goal is to help make cellulosic ethanol cost competitive by 2012 using a wide array of regionally available biomass resources and biorefinery pathways.

Solar Energy.—The program's main objective is to achieve cost parity for solar electricity by 2015. To achieve this objective, the Photovoltaic subprogram collaborates with several industry-led consortia focusing on lowering costs through manufacturing and efficiency improvements. The Concentrating Solar Power subprogram is developing thermal storage and supporting systems research and optimization to provide baseload power on demand. Additionally, the Systems Integration and Market Transformation subprograms support cost goals by addressing grid integration issues and accelerating the deployment of solar through city outreach and workforce development efforts.

Wind Energy.—This program develops technology in partnership with industry to improve the reliability and affordability of land-based and offshore wind energy systems. The program also supports resource assessments, advanced modeling, as well as activities that help reduce barriers to electric grid interconnection and other issues related to technology acceptance in the market.

Water Power.—This program conducts research, development, validation testing and deployment of innovative water technologies to accelerate market penetration of cost-effective and environmentally responsible renewable power generation from water. Early priorities of this relatively new program include: cost and resource assessments of the suite of potential marine, hydrokinetic, and advanced hydropower technologies, and environmental studies.

Vehicle Technologies.—The program's R&D seeks technology breakthroughs that will enable the U.S. to greatly reduce highway transportation petroleum use and greenhouse gas emissions. Program activities encompass a suite of technologies for hybrid, plug-in hybrid, fuel cell, and advanced efficiency vehicles, including lightweight materials, electronic power controls and electric driven motors, and advanced energy storage devices. This program also supports research to improve the efficiency of advanced combustion engines, using fuels with formulations developed for advanced engines, and incorporating non-petroleum based fuels components. The program also funds community-based outreach via Clean Cities coalitions, competitive awards, and other activities to facilitate the market adoption of alternative fuels and highly efficient automotive technologies.

Building Technologies.—In partnership with the buildings industry, the program develops, promotes, and integrates energy technologies and practices to make buildings more efficient and affordable. The Building Technologies Program accelerates the availability of highly efficient building technologies and practices through research and development; increases the minimum efficiency of buildings and equipment through the promotion of model building efficiency codes and the promulgation of national lighting and appliance standards; and encourages the use of energy-efficient and renewable energy technologies and practices in residential and commercial buildings through activities such as the ENERGY STAR partnership with EPA, and the Builders Challenge.

Industrial Technologies.—The Industrial Technologies Program supports cost-shared R&D of technologies to reduce industry's energy intensity and carbon emissions. Market transformation and technology development and deployment activities are pursued to accelerate industry's adoption of clean energy technologies that increase energy productivity.

Federal Energy Management Program.—This program enables the Federal Government to meet the relevant energy, water, greenhouse gas, and transportation goals of existing legislation and Executive Orders by providing interagency coordination, technical expertise, training, financing resources and contracting support.

Facilities and Infrastructure.—In support of EERE's R&D mission, this activity provides funding for the National Renewable Energy Laboratory for general plant projects, maintenance, upgrades, and the final installment of funding to complete the Energy Systems Integration Facility (ESIF).

Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities.—The Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities program supports clean energy deployment in partnership with State, local, U.S. Territory, and Tribal governments. The State Energy Program provides technical and financial resources to States to help them address issues in utility, renewable energy, and building code policies. Funding also supports energy efficiency and renewable energy projects that meet local needs. The Tribal Energy Program supports feasibility assessments and development of implementation plans for clean energy projects on Tribal lands. The Weatherization Assistance Program lowers energy use and costs for low income families by supporting energy efficient home retrofits through state-managed networks of local weatherization providers. The 2011 Budget also continues support for the Innovations in Weatherization activity to demonstrate new ways to increase the number of homes weatherized in partnership with non-traditional weatherization providers.

RE-ENERGYSE.—This program is focused on accelerating the transition to a low-carbon economy by creating an energy-literate generation, educating future leaders in science, engineering, and technology; and building a highly skilled U.S. workforce to develop affordable, abundant, and clean energy.

The American Reinvestment and Recovery Act provided funds to EERE in 2009 both to expand and accelerate existing EERE activities — such as demonstrations of biorefineries and enhanced geothermal systems, weatherization of low-income homes, and increasing the availability and reliability of renewable energy systems — as well as for new activities including battery manufacturing, electrification of the transportation infrastructure, rebates for energy efficient appliances and energy efficiency and conservation block grants.

The Non-Defense Environmental Cleanup program includes funds to manage and clean up sites used for civilian energy research, and non-defense related activities. Past activities related to nuclear energy research and development resulted in radioactive, hazardous, and mixed waste contamination that requires remediation, stabilization, or some other type of action. The budget displays the cleanup program by site.

West Valley Demonstration Project.—Funds waste disposition, building decontamination, removal of non-essential facilities in the near-term, and development of the Decommissioning Environmental Impact Statement. West Valley Demonstration Project plans to achieve interim end state completion no later than 2012.

Gaseous Diffusion Plants.—Funds surveillance and maintenance of the former Uranium Program facilities and manages legacy polychlorinated biphenyl contamination. Also included are the operation of two depleted uranium hexafluoride conversion facilities at Paducah, Kentucky, and Portsmouth, Ohio, to convert the depleted uranium hexafluoride into a more stable form for reuse or disposition.

Fast Flux Test Facility.—Funds the long-term surveillance and maintenance and eventual decontamination and decommissioning of the Fast Flux Test Facility, constructed and operated from the 1960s through 1980s.

Small Sites.—Funds cleanup, closure, and post-closure environmental activities at a number of geographic sites across the Nation, including Brookhaven National Laboratory, Energy Technology Engineering Center, Moab, and the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, as well as non-defense activities at Los Alamos and Idaho. Some sites are associated with other Department of Energy programs, particularly the Office of Science, and will have continuing missions after EM completes the cleanup. Others will transition to the Office of Legacy Management or private sector entities for post-closure activities.

The Fossil Energy Research and Development program supports high-priority, high-risk research that will improve the Nation's ability to use fossil energy resources cleanly and efficiently. The program funds research and development with academia, national laboratories, and the private sector to advance the technology base used to develop new products and processes. Fossil Energy R&D supports activities ranging from early concept research in universities and national laboratories to applied R&D and proof-of-concept projects with private-sector firms.

Research, Development & Demonstration.—Program activities focus on: 1) advanced coal-fueled power systems that support carbon capture and storage (CCS), including integrated gasification combined cycle (IGCC) technology, hydrogen turbine technology and fuel cells; 2) CO2 capture technology applicable to both new and existing fossil-fueled facilities; 3) CO2 storage, with emphasis on CO2 monitoring, verification and accounting; and 4) advanced research to bridge fundamental science and engineering development. The Department will continue to work with the private sector and academia to conduct and direct research toward overcoming critical challenges to reducing greenhouse gas emissions from fossil energy power generation in the United States.

Program Direction and Management Support.—The program provides the funding for all headquarters and field personnel and overhead expenses in Fossil Energy R&D including research by Federal employees. In addition, it provides support for day-to-day project management functions. No funding is proposed for the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Project Loan Guarantee program because existing balances are sufficient to address current project activity. Also included is the Import/Export Authorization program which will continue regulatory reviews and oversight of the transmission of natural gas across the U.S. borders.

Environmental Restoration.—DOE is managing the environmental cleanup of former and present Fossil Energy project sites. Activities include environmental protection, onsite cleanup, and cleanup at several former offsite research and development locations in Wyoming and Connecticut and environmental efforts at the National Energy Technology Laboratory Morgantown, Pittsburgh and Albany sites.

Following the sale of the Naval Petroleum Reserve 1 (NPR-1) (Elk Hills) site mandated by the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (P.L. 104-106), the most significant post-sale activity is the environmental remediation under the Corrective Action Consent Agreement with the State of California Department of Toxic Substances Control (Docket HWCA P1-08/09-003) and finalizing activities to complete the transfer of certain sections of the Naval Petroleum Reserve 2 (NPR-2) under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act 120(h). Activities include settlement of ownership equity shares with the former unit partner, Chevron USA Inc.

The account also funds activities at the Naval Petroleum Reserve 3 in Wyoming (Teapot Dome field), a stripper well oil field that the Department is operating until it reaches its economic production limit. No funds in the account will be made available to subsidize oil and gas research and development activities at the Rocky Mountain Oilfield Testing Center.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

In 2005, congressional budget subcommittees implemented a number of structural changes, including the unification of energy efficiency and renewable energy programs under a single subcommittee. Consequently, programs formerly funded under Energy Conservation were funded through the Energy Supply and Conservation account.

The object of this program is to reduce the vulnerability of the United States to energy supply disruptions by maintaining a crude oil stockpile capable of rapid deployment at the direction of the President. This program enables the President to meet the Nation's membership commitments within the International Energy Agency's coordinated energy emergency response plans and programs to deter intentional energy supply disruptions and to take effective, coordinated action should an energy supply disruption occur.

This account provides for ongoing storage site operations and maintenance activities, planning studies and activities, drawdown testing/readiness of the Reserve, and program administration. The 2011 budget continues to provide further insurance against oil supply disruptions that could harm the U.S. economy by pursuing a Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) program that is environmentally responsible and fully responsive to the needs of the Nation and the public. The 2011 Budget proposes to cancel prior year balances either provided for, or suggested for, new site expansion, and use these funds instead to partially fund SPR operations and maintenance activities. In 2011, DOE proposes to perform activities to integrate into operation a replacement cavern for an existing storage cavern at one SPR site that posed an environmental risk for continued use.

The key measure of program performance is expressed as capability to comply with Level 1 Technical and Performance Criteria. These criteria are specifically engineered performance and reliability standards applied to critical inventory storage, drawdown, and distribution systems required for drawing down and distributing crude oil inventory.

This account provides for the acquisition, transportation, and injection of petroleum into SPR, including U.S. Customs duties, terminal throughput charges, incremental drawdown costs, and other related miscellaneous costs. In 2009, a multi-year initiative to fill the SPR to its capacity of 727 million barrels was completed. This fill was achieved through a combination of placement of Department of the Interior Federal royalty oil into the SPR, and direct purchase of oil in 2009 using $551 million in sales receipts from the September 2005 emergency sale of SPR oil in response to Hurricane Katrina. The Petroleum Account also funds draw-down and sales operations of the Reserve.

The Energy Information Administration (EIA) is the statistical and analytical agency within the U.S. Department of Energy. EIA collects, analyzes, and disseminates independent and impartial energy information to promote sound policymaking, efficient markets, and public understanding of energy and its interaction with the economy and the environment. EIA is the Nation's premier source of energy information and, by law, its data, analyses, and forecasts are independent of approval by any other officer or employee of the United States Government. EIA conducts a comprehensive data collection program that covers the full spectrum of energy sources, end uses, and energy flows; generates short- and long-term domestic and international energy projections; and performs informative energy analyses. EIA disseminates its data products, analyses, reports, and services to customers and stakeholders primarily through its website. Priority areas include analysis of energy market behavior and the interrelationship of energy and financial markets, improved surveys of energy use in homes, commercial buildings, and manufacturing to provide more data for more states, upgrades to the National Energy Model, and continued implementation of improvements in data coverage, quality and integration.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (Commission) regulates and oversees key interstate aspects of the electric power, natural gas and oil pipeline and hydropower industries. The Commission assists consumers in obtaining reliable, efficient and sustainable energy services at a reasonable cost through appropriate regulatory and market means. Regulated businesses pay fees and charges sufficient to recover the Commission's full cost of operations.

Just and Reasonable Rates, Terms and Conditions.—One of the Commission's fundamental statutory responsibilities is to ensure that rates, terms and conditions for wholesale sales and transmission of electric energy and natural gas are just and reasonable and not unduly discriminatory or preferential. The Commission uses a combination of regulatory and market means to achieve this goal, consistent with national policy and priorities.

The Commission approves cost-based, and where appropriate, market-based rates for the interstate transportation of natural gas and oil on jurisdictional pipelines, and for the interstate transmission and wholesale sales of electric energy. The Commission accepts tariff provisions, as appropriate, to allow natural gas and oil pipelines and public utilities to modify their services to meet their customers' needs.

The organized wholesale electric markets illustrate the Commission's use of regulatory and market means to ensure that rates are just and reasonable and not unduly discriminatory or preferential. Improving the competitiveness of these markets is important in achieving that goal because competition encourages new entry by supply-side and demand-side resources, spurs innovation and deployment of new technologies, improves operating performance, and exerts downward pressure on costs. Notable benefits also stem from more broadly diversifying the fuels used to generate electricity.

The Commission will continue to pursue market reforms to allow all resources, including renewable energy resources, to compete in jurisdictional markets on a level playing field. These efforts could include amendments to market rules, the modification or creation of ancillary services and related policies, or the implementation of operational tools that support the reliable integration of renewable resources.

The Commission will continue its efforts to identify and eliminate barriers to participation by demand resources in organized wholesale electric markets. Demand response, for example, can provide competitive pressure to reduce wholesale electric prices, increase awareness of energy usage, provide for more efficient operation of markets, mitigate market power, enhance reliability, and, in combination with certain new technologies, support the use of renewable energy resources and distributed generation.

To facilitate demand response participation on a non-discriminatory basis, the Commission will identify and encourage the implementation of best practices for demand response in organized wholesale markets. The Commission will conduct informal outreach with industry representatives and, as appropriate, will consider initiating formal proceedings to reform existing market rules.

The provision of ancillary services is critical to the reliable operation of the interstate electric transmission grid. To build on earlier reforms, the Commission will consider instituting formal proceedings to determine whether the modification or creation of ancillary services is necessary to support the provision of transmission service on terms and conditions that are just and reasonable and not unduly discriminatory or preferential.

The development of RTOs and modified market structures was aimed at increasing the efficiency of wholesale electric market operations and increasing non-discriminatory access to the transmission grid. To measure the benefits of RTOs and ISOs, the Commission will develop appropriate operational and financial metrics. The Commission will also identify opportunities to enhance operational efficiency in jurisdictional markets by encouraging public utilities, particularly RTOs and ISOs, to deploy new modeling software and optimize their market operations.

The Commission recognizes the value of resolving proceedings filed by jurisdictional companies through consensual means and using alternate dispute resolution techniques in the energy markets it oversees. The Commission will build on its successful use of consensual resolution and apply these concepts to additional areas of the Commission's work to improve regulatory outcomes. The Commission will begin by identifying issues and proceedings that lend themselves to consensual resolution.

Oversight and enforcement are essential complements to the Commission's approach to ensure that rates, terms and conditions of service are just and reasonable and not unduly discriminatory or preferential.

The Commission will review internal compliance programs as part of its compliance audits, issue publicly available audit reports, and engage in formal and informal outreach efforts to promote effective compliance programs.

Audits are planned and prioritized using a risk-based approach in order to maximize the impact of the Commission's resources.

The Commission also uses its oversight authority to prevent the accumulation and exercise of market power by reviewing mergers and other corporate filings to ensure that mergers and consolidations will not harm the public interest.

Infrastructure.—The Commission plays an important role in the development of a strong energy infrastructure that operates efficiently, safely and reliably. One aspect of the Commission's role in energy infrastructure development stems from siting authority that includes licensing non-federal hydropower projects, certificating interstate natural gas pipelines and storage projects, authorizing liquefied natural gas (LNG) facilities, and, in certain circumstances, permitting electric transmission lines.

Throughout all of these processes, the Commission's goal is to expedite application processing without compromising environmental responsibilities or public participation. The Commission encourages, and sometimes requires, project proponents to engage in early involvement of state and federal agencies, Indian tribes, affected landowners and the public.

The lack of adequate transmission facilities creates a significant barrier to trade between markets and among regions. To encourage greater investment in the Nation's transmission infrastructure, Congress directed the Commission to adopt rules making incentive rate treatments available for electric transmission infrastructure investments meeting certain criteria. The Commission has approved 30 proposals for incentive rate treatment of 58 projects to build over 10,700 miles of transmission lines, at a total cost of approximately $40.7 billion.

The Commission will support the deployment of smart grid applications by reviewing and adopting, as appropriate, standards and protocols developed through the process coordinated by the National Institute of Standards and Technology. In addition, the Commission will implement rate treatment policies that support investments in smart grid technologies in the interim period between development and approval of smart grid standards.

Although ownership of the interstate electric transmission grid is highly disaggregated, with more than 500 owners, the need for, and effect of, transmission expansions to meet both reliability and economic needs must be considered not only on a local basis, but also on a sub-regional and regional basis. The Commission therefore requires transmission providers to participate in an open and transparent regional transmission planning process that aims to improve the coordination of transmission planning among utilities. The Commission will assess best practices, including the potential for collaborative decision making, and adopt reforms as necessary to its transmission planning process requirements.

The Commission is responsible for the safety of LNG and non-federal hydropower facilities throughout the entire life cycle of a project: design review, construction and operation. To meet this mandate, FERC primarily relies on physical inspections of the facilities.

In 2011, the Commission will prepare a portfolio risk assessment of the Commission's dam inventory. By identifying high-risk dams through this process, the current safety status and the need for additional dam safety studies and investigations will be thoroughly evaluated. By using risk-informed decision making, the Commission will be able to focus its resources on those structures that pose the greatest risk.

The Commission also has an important role in maintaining the reliability of the electric transmission grid through its oversight of the bulk power system infrastructure and the Electric Reliability Organization (ERO). The ERO develops and enforces mandatory reliability standards, including cyber and physical security standards, subject to the Commission's oversight and approval.

The Reliability Standards development process requires the ERO to use an open and inclusive process that employs extensive negotiation, consultation and coordination among many stakeholders. Regional Entities may also develop regional Reliability Standards or regional modifications to a national Reliability Standard. In addition, the ERO may develop interpretations of approved standards, subject to Commission review. In all such cases, the Commission must either accept or remand these filings. The Commission may also, upon its own motion or upon complaint, order the ERO to submit a proposed reliability standard or a modification of an existing reliability standard that addresses a specific reliability matter. Once proposed standards are filed, it is important that the Commission respond in a timely manner so that mandatory and enforceable standards affecting reliability can be implemented timely.

The Commission will enforce compliance with the Reliability Standards primarily through its oversight of the ERO and Regional Entities. This will typically be accomplished by participating in selected ERO and Regional Entity compliance audits and investigations of users, owners and operators of the bulk power system. The Commission also conducts its own audits as well as independent investigations of significant blackouts, system disturbances and other reliability incidents. The Commission also monitors system disturbances to identify near and long-term issues affecting generation and transmission.

To determine the effectiveness of the compliance program, the Commission will track the number and type of violations, particularly violations of Reliability Standards involving high Violation Risk Factors.

The Commission staff will establish processes to track studies that are related to the development of reliability parameters associated with the integration of renewable energy into the electric transmission grid. Using this data, the Commission will perform analyses to see if these reliability parameters are feasible for the bulk power system. The Commission also will seek input from industry and will coordinate and work with other government agencies to identify reliability issues that affect the national goals of reducing carbon and increasing the penetration of renewable energy resources.

Management Initiatives. — The Commission has management initiatives underway and administrative processes in place to support its two strategic goals. These activities, including the effective management of human capital, agency resources and information technology, help the Commission work more efficiently, both within and across program areas. The Commission also understands that open lines of communication with affected parties and the public are critical for effective function of Commission operations. The Commission therefore communicates its policies and actions to the public in order to provide a transparent and open process.

The alternative fuels program was established in 1980 for the purpose of expediting the development and production of alternative fuels from coal. A loan guarantee was issued by the Department of Energy in 1982 for the construction and startup of the Great Plains Synthetic Fuels Plant to produce synthetic gas lignite coal.

Upon default of the borrower in 1985 under the terms of the loan guarantee, the Department acquired ownership of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project plant by foreclosure. On October 31, 1988, the Department completed the transfer of the Great Plains Plant to Dakota Gasification Company (DGC) under terms of an Asset Purchase Agreement.

Funds in this account are used to pay for expenses and responsibilities related to the Department's prior operation of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project and the administration of the Asset Purchase Agreement and related contracts and agreements which transferred the facility to the private sector. Remaining outstanding obligations are for carrying out contractual obligations through the end of the contract term in December 2009.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-58) created a mandatory Ultra-Deepwater and Unconventional Natural Gas and Other Petroleum Research program beginning in 2007. The program is funded from Federal revenues from oil and gas leases. This Budget proposes to cancel the program through a legislative proposal.

ELK HILLS SCHOOL LANDS FUND

Title XXXIV, Subtitle B of Public Law 104-106 required the Department to sell the government's interest in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills) pursuant to the terms of the Act. The sale occurred in February 1998. Section 3415 of the Act required, among other things, that the Department make an offer of settlement based on the fair value of the State of California's longstanding claims to two parcels of land ("school lands") within the Reserve. Under the Act, nine percent of the net proceeds were reserved in a contingent fund in the Treasury for payment to the State. In compliance with the Act and in order to remove any cloud over title which could diminish the sales value of the Reserve, the Department entered into a settlement agreement with the State on October 11, 1996. That agreement calls for payment to the State, subject to appropriations, of nine percent of the net proceeds of sale, payable over a seven-year period (without interest), commencing in 1999. Under the settlement agreement and provided that funds are appropriated, the first five installments are for $36 million each year, and the remaining balance is to be paid in two equal installments in years six and seven unless the seventh payment needs to be deferred in whole or in part due to the equity finalization schedule. Under the settlement agreement, $300 million has been paid to the State of California. There is no request for funding in 2011. The timing and levels of any future budget request are dependent on the schedule and results of the equity finalization process.

The Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve provides an emergency supply of home heating oil supply for the Northeast States during times of inventory shortages and significant threats to immediate further supply. Two million barrels of heating oil will provide supplemental emergency supply over a 10-day delivery period, the time required for ships to carry heating oil from the Gulf Coast to New York Harbor.

Four-year contracts for the storage, operation and maintenance of the reserve were awarded in August 2007 to Hess Corp (for 1,000,000 barrels in New York harbor) to Morgan Stanley (for 750,000 barrels in New Haven, CT), and to Hess Corp (for 250,000 barrels in Groton, CT). A sale of 35,000 barrels was conducted at the time to offset storage costs. The Department repurchased 19,253 barrels of the oil in 2008. Purchase of the remainder, 15,427 barrels of oil, is scheduled for 2010. New storage contracts are planned for award in late 2011.

The Nuclear Waste Disposal Account was established as part of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (P.L. 97-425), as amended, to provide funding to implement Federal policy for disposal of commercial spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste. The Administration has determined that developing a repository at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, is not a workable option and that the Nation needs a different solution for nuclear waste disposal. As a result, the Department will discontinue its application to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a license to construct a high-level waste geologic repository at Yucca Mountain in 2010 and establish a Blue Ribbon Commission to develop a new strategy for nuclear waste management and disposal. All funding for development of the Yucca Mountain facility will be eliminated, such as further land acquisition, transportation access, and additional engineering. Ongoing responsibilities under the Act, including administration of the Nuclear Waste Fund and the Standard Contract, will continue under the Office of Nuclear Energy, which will lead future waste management activities. Residual responsibilities for site remediation will be assumed by NNSA and the Office of Environmental Management.

The mission of the DOE isotope production and distribution program includes the production and/or distribution of radioactive and stable isotopes that are in short supply, associated byproducts, surplus materials, and related isotope services; maintenance of infrastructure required to produce and supply isotope products and related services; and the pursuit of R&D on new and improved isotope production and processing techniques. Commercial isotopes will continue to be priced to recover full cost. Research isotopes will be made available at reduced price based on an equitable basis to provide reasonable compensation to the government while encouraging research and development.

Section 136 of the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 established a direct loan program to support the development of advanced technology vehicles and associated components in the United States, known as the Advanced Technology Vehicles Manufacturing Loan Program (ATVM). The 2009 Continuing Resolution (CR), enacted on September 30, 2008, appropriated $7.5 billion to support a maximum of $25 billion in loans under the ATVM. The ATVM provides loans to automobile and automobile part manufacturers for the cost of re-equipping, expanding, or establishing manufacturing facilities in the United States to produce advanced technology vehicles or qualified components and for associated engineering integration costs.

The 2011 Budget reflects placeholder estimates for direct loan subsidy costs. These estimates are not related to any specific project proposals. DOE will calculate the credit subsidy cost of any direct loan on a case-by-case basis in accordance with Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (FCRA) and OMB Circular A-11. For any project, the terms and conditions of the loan, the risks associated with the project, and any other factor that affects the amount and timing of such cash flows will affect the credit subsidy cost calculations.

As required by the FCRA, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Loan Guarantee Program Office will consider and coordinate Departmental action on all loan guarantee applications submitted to the Department of Energy in compliance with Title XVII of the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (EPAAct of 2005). Section 1703 of that Act authorizes the Department to provide loan guarantees for renewable energy systems, advanced nuclear facilities, coal gasification, carbon sequestration, energy efficiency, and many other types of projects. These projects must avoid, reduce, or sequester air pollutants or anthropogenic emissions of greenhouse gases; employ new or significantly improved technologies compared to commercial technologies in service in the United States at the time the guarantee is issued; and offer a reasonable prospect of repayment of the principal and interest on the guaranteed obligation. DOE has been implementing this program under authorizing law that allows borrowers to pay the credit subsidy costs of these loan guarantees.

Section 406 of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, Pub. L. No. 111-5 (the "Recovery Act"), amended the LGPO's authorizing legislation, by establishing Section 1705 which is a temporary program for the rapid deployment of renewable energy and electric power transmission projects. Section 1705 provided $4 billion in appropriated credit subsidy which allows the Secretary to make loan guarantees available for the following categories of projects that commence construction not later than September 30, 2011: renewable energy systems, including incremental hydropower, that generate electricity or thermal energy, and facilities that manufacture related components; electric power transmission systems, including upgrading and reconducting projects; and leading edge biofuel projects that will use technologies performing at the pilot or demonstrations scale that the Secretary determines are likely to become commercial technologies and will produce transportation fuels that substantially reduce life-cycle greenhouse gas emissions compared to other transportation fuel. Funding for these biofuel projects shall not exceed $500,000,000.

The decision to issue loan guarantees will depend on the merits and benefits of particular project proposals and their compliance with statutory and regulatory requirements.

As of 2010, $51.0 billion in loan guarantee authority was available to support all eligible projects under Section 1703. Loan volume utilized may not be reused. The 2011 Budget increases the program's loan authority by $36.0 billion to support additional nuclear power facilities and provides an additional $500 million in appropriated subsidy for energy efficiency and renewable energy projects that are eligible under Section 1703. The 2011 Budget reflects placeholder estimates based on illustrative examples, unrelated to any specific project.

The Loan Guarantee Program Office will centralize loan guarantee services for the Department to ensure all processes and criteria are applied uniformly in accordance with established requirements, procedures and guidelines. The Department requests $58.0 million in funding in 2011 to operate the Office and support personnel and associated costs. This request will be offset by collections authorized under the EPAAct of 2005. To ensure that the Department meets statutory requirements and implements effective management and oversight of its loan guarantee activities, program funding also will support the procurement of outside expertise in areas such as finance, project engineering, and commercial market assessment.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Alaska Power Administration (APA) was created in 1967 by the Secretary of the Interior to assume the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation in Alaska. These functions include operations, maintenance, transmission, and power marketing of the two Federal hydroelectric projects (Eklutna and Snettisham), and the investigation of future water and power development programs. All Alaska activities of APA, including the Juneau headquarters office, were terminated on September 30, 1998. A fund is maintained to liquidate the remaining obligations of the APA.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, SOUTHEASTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Southeastern Power Administration (Southeastern) markets power generated at 22 Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric generating plants in an eleven-State area of the Southeast. Power deliveries are made by means of contracting for use of transmission facilities owned by others.

Southeastern sells wholesale power primarily to publicly and cooperatively-owned electric distribution utilities. Southeastern does not own or operate any transmission facilities. Its long-term contracts provide for periodic electric rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers the costs of operations and the capital invested in power facilities, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements. As in past years, the budget continues to provide funding for purchase power and wheeling expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses. In addition, pursuant to the permanent reclassification enacted in 2010, the budget provides funding for annual expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses.

Program Direction.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of transmission and power contracts, collection of revenues, development of wholesale power rates, amortization of the Federal power investment, energy efficiency and competitiveness program, investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatch of power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administration of contractual operation requirements, and determination of methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of electricity in connection with the disposal of power under contracts with utility companies. Customers are encouraged to use alternative funding mechanisms, including customer advances and net billing to finance these activities. Offsetting collections to fund these ongoing operating services are also available up to $74 million.

Reimbursable Program.—The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 (Pub. L. No. 110-161) provided Southeastern with authority to accept advance payment from customers for reimbursable work associated with operations and maintenance activities, consistent with those authorized in section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944. Funds received from any State, municipality, corporation, association, firm, district or individual as an advance payment for reimbursable work will be credited to Southeastern's account and remain available until expended.

A continuing fund maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power in the Southeastern service area is available to defray emergency expenses necessary to ensure continuity of service (16 U.S.C. 825s-2). The fund was last activated in fiscal year 2009 to finance power purchases associated with below normal hydro power generation due to severe drought. Consistent with sound business practices, the Southeastern Power Administration has implemented a policy to recover all emergency costs associated with purchased power and wheeling within one year from the time funds are expended, as proposed in the 2008 Budget.

The Southwestern Power Administration (Southwestern) operates in a six-state area as a marketing agent for renewable hydroelectric power produced at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' dams. It also operates and maintains 1,380 miles of high voltage transmission lines, 25 substations, and switching facilities, power system controls and communication sites, and is responsible for the construction and maintenance of these facilities.

Southwestern markets and delivers its power at wholesale rates primarily to publicly and cooperatively owned electric distribution utilities. In compliance with statutory requirements, Southwestern's power sales contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of operations, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investments in power facilities, with interest. Southwestern is also responsible for scheduling and dispatching power and negotiating power sales contracts to meet changing customer load requirements. As in past years, the budget continues to provide funding for purchase power and wheeling expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses. In addition, pursuant to the permanent reclassification enacted in 2010, the budget provides funding for annual expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses.

Program Direction.—Provides compensation and all related expenses for personnel who market, deliver, operate, and maintain Southwestern's high-voltage interconnected power system and associated facilities.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, SOUTHWESTERN POWER
ADMINISTRATION—Continued

Operations and Maintenance.—Provides essential electrical and communications equipment replacements and upgrades, capitalized moveable equipment, technical services, and supplies and materials necessary for the safe, reliable, and cost effective operation and maintenance of the power system.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provides for the purchase and delivery of energy to meet limited peaking power contractual obligations. Federal power receipts and alternative financing methods, including net billing, bill crediting, and customer advances are used to fund system-purchased power support and other contractual services. Customers will provide other power resources and/or purchases for the remainder of their firm loads.

Construction.—Provides for replacement, addition, and modification of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable delivery of power to customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall efficiency.

Reimbursable Program.—This activity involves services provided by Southwestern to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

In 2010, Southwestern will compensate the licensee of Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Project No. 2221 for impacts of the White River Minimum Flows project. A minimum payment of $5 million per year is required; however, Southwestern plans to accelerate the payment as power receipts are available. Under this legislation, Southwestern also has the authority to collect and disburse receipts for Purchase Power and Wheeling expenses as a result of the implementation of the White River Minimum Flows project.

A continuing fund maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power in the Southwestern service area, is available permanently for emergency expenses necessary to ensure continuity of electric service and continuous operation of the facilities. The fund is also available on an ongoing basis to pay for purchase power and wheeling expenses when the Administrator determines that such expenses are necessary to meet contractual obligations for the sale and delivery of power during periods of below-average generation (16 U.S.C. 825s-1 as amended further by Public Law No. 101-101). Consistent with sound business practices, Southwestern has developed a policy to recover emergency costs associated with purchased power and wheeling within one year from the time funds are expended, as proposed in the 2008 Budget. The Continuing Fund was last activated in 2009 to restore power as a result of a severe ice storm.

The Western Area Power Administration (Western) markets electric power in 15 central and western states from federally-owned power plants operated primarily by the Bureau of Reclamation, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the International Boundary and Water Commission. Western operates and maintains about 17,000 circuit-miles of high-voltage transmission lines, more than 300 substations/switchyards and associated power system controls, and communication and electrical facilities for 15 separate power projects. Western also constructs additions and modifications to existing facilities.

In keeping with statutory requirements, Western's long-term power contracts allow for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operations, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investment in power facilities, with interest.

Power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. Receipts are deposited in the Reclamation Fund, the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund, the General Fund, the Colorado River Dam Fund and the Colorado River Basins Power Marketing Fund.

As in past years, the budget continues to provide funding for purchase power and wheeling expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses. In addition, pursuant to the permanent reclassification enacted in 2010, the budget provides funding for annual expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses.

Systems Operation and Maintenance.—Provides essential electrical and communication equipment replacements and upgrades, capitalized moveable equipment, technical services, and supplies and materials necessary for safe reliable operation and cost-effective maintenance of the power systems.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of electricity in connection with the distribution of power under contracts with utility companies. Customers are encouraged to contract for power and wheeling on their own, or use alternative funding mechanisms, including customer advances, net billing and bill crediting to finance these activities. Ongoing operating services are also available on a reimbursable basis.

System Construction.—Western's construction and rehabilitation activity emphasizes replacement and upgrades of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable power delivery to its customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall operational efficiency. Western will continue to participate in joint construction projects with customers to encourage more widespread transmission access.

Program Direction.—Provides compensation and all related expenses for the workforce that operates and maintains Western's high-voltage interconnected transmission system (systems operation and maintenance program), and those that plan, design, and supervise the construction of replacements, upgrades and additions (system construction program) to the transmission facilities.

Utah Mitigation and Conservation.—This account is primarily for environmental mitigation expenditures covering fish and wildlife, and recreation resources impacted by the Central Utah Project and the Colorado River Storage Project (CRSP) in the State of Utah.

Reimbursable Program.—This program involves services provided by Western to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Western will continue to spend out of the Colorado River Dam Fund for operations and maintenance activities associated with the Boulder Canyon Project via a reimbursable arrangement with the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation. The Colorado River Dam Fund is a revolving fund operated by the Bureau of Reclamation. Authority for Western to obligate directly from the Colorado River Dam Fund comes from section 104(a) of the Hoover Power Plant Act of 1984.

This account includes appropriations enacted in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 for use by Western Area Power Administration to complete activities authorized in section 402 of the Act.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (the Act) provided Western Area Power Administration (Western) borrowing authority for the purpose of constructing, financing, facilitating, planning, operating, maintaining or studying construction of new or upgraded electric power transmission lines and related facilities with at least one terminus within the area served by Western, and for delivering or facilitating the delivery of power generated by renewable energy resources constructed or reasonably expected to be constructed after the date of enactment. This authority to borrow from the United States Treasury is available to Western on a permanent, indefinite basis, with the amount of borrowing outstanding not to exceed $3.25 billion at any one time. Western has established a separate program and office to administer the borrowing authority and to comply with the transparency and reporting requirements established under the Act. The new Transmission Infrastructure Program will support Western's and the Department of Energy's priorities by facilitating the delivery of renewable energy resources to market.

FALCON AND AMISTAD OPERATING AND MAINTENANCE FUND—Continued
Pursuant to section 2 of the Act of June 18, 1954, as amended, Western Area Power Administration is requesting funding from the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund to defray operations, maintenance, and emergency (O,M&E) expenses for the hydroelectric facilities at Falcon and Amistad Dams on the Rio Grande River. Most of these funds will be made available to the United States Section of the International Boundary and Water Commission through a reimbursable agreement. Within the fund, $200,000 is for an emergency reserve that will remain unobligated unless unanticipated expenses arise. Revenues in excess of O,M&E will be paid to the General Fund to repay the costs of replacements and the original investment with interest. Pursuant to the permanent reclassification enacted in 2010, the budget provides funding for annual expenses through discretionary offsetting collections derived from power receipts collected to recover those expenses.

Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) is a Federal electric power marketing agency in the Pacific Northwest. BPA markets hydroelectric power from 21 multipurpose water resource projects of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and 10 projects of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, plus some energy from non-Federal generating projects in the region. These generating resources and BPA's transmission system, consisting of over 15,000 circuit miles of high-voltage transmission lines and 259 substations, are operated as an integrated power system with operating and financial results combined and reported as the Federal Columbia River Power System (FCRPS). BPA provides about thirty-five percent of the region's electric energy supply and about three-fourths of the region's high-voltage electric power transmission capacity.

BPA is responsible for meeting the net firm power requirements of its requesting customers through a variety of means, including energy conservation programs, acquisition of renewable and other resources, and power exchanges with utilities both in and outside the region.

BPA will finance its operations with a business-type budget under the Government Corporation Control Act, 31 U.S.C. 9101–10, on the basis of the self-financing authority provided by the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act of 1974 (Transmission Act) (Public Law 93–454) and the U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (Pacific Northwest Power Act) (Public Law 96–501) for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–5), and other legislation. Authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury is available to the BPA on a permanent, indefinite basis. The amount of U.S. Treasury borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $7.70 billion. BPA finances its approximate $4.0 billion annual cost of operations and investments primarily using power and transmission revenues and loans from the U.S. Treasury.

Operating Expenses-Transmission Services.—Provides for operating about 15,000 miles of high-voltage transmissions line and 259 substations, and for maintaining the facilities and equipment of the Bonneville transmission system in 2011.

Power Services.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective resources. These resources are needed to serve BPA's portion of the region's forecasted net electric load requirements. This activity also includes protection, mitigation and enhancement of fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. This activity provides for payment of the operation and maintenance (O&M) costs allocated to power the 31 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation hydro projects, and amortization on the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation capital investment in power generating facilities and irrigation assistance at Bureau facilities. This activity also provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation. It also provides for extending the benefits of low cost Federal power to the residential and small farm customers of investor-owned and publicly-owned utilities, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act and for activities of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council required by the Pacific Northwest Power Act.

Interest.—Provides for payments to the U.S. Treasury for interest on U.S. Treasury borrowings to finance BPA's capital investments under $7.70 billion of U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Power Act for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, and other legislation. This interest category also includes interest on U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, BPA and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation appropriated debt.

Capital Investments-Transmission Services.—Provides for the planning, design and construction of transmission lines, substation and control system additions, replacements, and enhancements to the FCRPS transmission system for a reliable, efficient and cost-effective regional transmission system. Provides for planning, design, and construction work to repair or replace existing transmission lines, substations, control systems, and general facilities of the FCRPS transmission system.

Power Services.—Provides for direct funding of additions, improvements, and replacements at existing Federal hydroelectric projects in the Northwest. It also provides for capital investments to implement environmental activities, and protect, mitigate, and enhance fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. This activity provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation.

Capital Equipment / Capitalized Bond Premium.—Provides for capital information technologies, and office furniture and equipment, and software capital development in support of all BPA programs. It also provides for bond premiums incurred for refinancing of bonds. The 2011 capital obligations are estimated to be $758 million.

Contingencies.—Although contingencies are not specifically funded, the need may arise to provide for purchase of power in low-water years; for repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies, including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; for unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments, including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims and relocations; or for payment of a retrospective premium adjustment in excess nuclear property insurance.

Financing.—The Transmission Act provides for the use by BPA of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of BPA. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and transmission services. The Transmission Act also provides for authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. BPA has $7.70 billion of U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Power Act for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, and other legislation. The amount of BPA's current outstanding bonds with the U.S. Treasury is $2.13 billion. BPA also currently has $6.56 billion of non-Federal debt outstanding, including Energy Northwest bonds. BPA will rely primarily on its U.S. Treasury borrowing authority to finance capital projects, but may also elect to use cash reserves generated by revenues from customers or seek third party financing sources when feasible to finance some of these investments.

In 2009, BPA made payments to the Treasury of $845 million and also expects to make payments of $834 million in 2010 and $785 million in 2011. The 2011 payment will be distributed as follows: interest on bonds and appropriations ($367 million), amortization ($397 million), and other ($31 million). BPA also received credits totaling $91 million applied against its Treasury payments in 2009 to reflect amounts diverted to fish mitigation efforts, but not allocable to power, in the Columbia and Snake River systems.

BPA, with input from its stakeholders, considers other strategies to sustain funding for its infrastructure investment requirements as well. BPA's recently updated Financial Plan defines strategies and policies for guiding how BPA will manage risk and variability of electricity markets and water years. It also describes how BPA will continue to manage to ensure it meets its Treasury repayment responsibilities.

Direct Loans.—During 2011, no new direct loan obligations may be made.

Operating Results.—Total revenues are forecast at approximately $4.6 billion in 2011.

It should be noted that BPA's revenue forecasts are based on several critical assumptions about both the supply of and demand for Federal energy. During the operating year, deviation from the conditions assumed in a rate case may result in a variation in actual revenues of several hundred million dollars from the forecast.

Consistent with Administration policy, BPA will continue to fully recover, from the sale of electric power and transmission, funds sufficient to cover the full cost of Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits for its employees. The entire cost of BPA employees working under the Federal Employees Retirement System is fully recovered in wholesale electric power and transmission rates.

Western Area Power Administration's (Western) operation and maintenance (O&M) and power marketing expenses for the Colorado River Storage Project, the Colorado River Basin Project, the Seedskaadee Project, the Dolores Project and the Fort Peck Project are financed from power revenues.

Colorado River Storage Project.—Western markets power and operates and maintains the power transmission facilities of the Colorado River Storage Project consisting of four major storage units: Glen Canyon on the Colorado River, Flaming Gorge on the Green River in Utah, Navajo on the San Juan River in New Mexico, and the Wayne N. Aspinall unit on the Gunnison River in Colorado.

Colorado River Basin Project.—This project includes Western's expenses associated with the Central Arizona Project and the United States entitlement from the Navajo coal-fired powerplant. Revenues in excess of operating expenses are transferred to the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund.

Fort Peck Project.—Revenues collected by Western are used to defray operation and maintenance and power marketing expenses associated with the power generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck Project, and Western operates and maintains the transmission system and performs power marketing functions.

Seedskadee Project.—This project includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from the Fontenelle Dam power plant in southwestern Wyoming.

Dolores Project.—This project includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from power plants at McPhee Dam and Towaoc Canal in southwestern Colorado.

Equipment, Contracts and Related Expenses.—Western operates and maintains approximately 4,000 miles of transmission lines, substations, switchyards, communications and control equipment associated with this fund. Wholesale power is provided to utilities over interconnected high-voltage transmission systems. In keeping with statutory requirements, long-term power contracts provided for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of O&M, and all capital invested in power, with interest. This activity provides for the supplies, materials, services, capital equipment replacements and additions, including communications and control equipment, purchase power, transmission and wheeling services, and interest payments to the U.S. Treasury.

Program Direction.—The personnel compensation and related expenses for all these activities are quantified under Program Direction.

This appropriation provides Department-wide, including the National Nuclear Security Administration, audit, inspection, and investigative functions to identify and correct management and administrative deficiencies which create conditions for existing or potential instances of fraud, waste, abuse and violations of law. The audit function provides financial and performance audits of programs and operations. The inspection function provides independent inspections and analyses of the performance, on a system basis, of programs and operations. The investigative function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving programs, personnel, and operations. Through these efforts the OIG identifies opportunities for cost savings and operational efficiencies; identifies programs that are not meeting performance expectations; recovers monies to the Department and the Treasury as a result of civil and criminal prosecutions; and identifies ways to make Departmental programs safer and more secure.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

[SEC. 301. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to prepare or initiate Requests For Proposals (RFPs) for a program if the program has not been funded by Congress.]

[SEC. 302. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used—

(1) to augment the funds made available for obligation by this Act for severance payments and other benefits and community assistance grants under section 4604 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2704) unless the Department of Energy submits a reprogramming request to the appropriate congressional committees; or

(2) to provide enhanced severance payments or other benefits for employees of the Department of Energy under such section; or

(3) develop or implement a workforce restructuring plan that covers employees of the Department of Energy.】

SEC. 【303】301. The unexpended balances of prior appropriations provided for activities in this Act may be available to the same appropriation accounts for such activities established pursuant to this title. Available balances may be merged with funds in the applicable established accounts and thereafter may be accounted for as one fund for the same time period as originally enacted.

SEC. 【304】302. None of the funds in this or any other Act for the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration may be used to enter into any agreement to perform energy efficiency services outside the legally defined Bonneville service territory, with the exception of services provided internationally, including services provided on a reimbursable basis, unless the Administrator certifies in advance that such services are not available from private sector businesses.

SEC. 【305】303. When the Department of Energy makes a user facility available to universities or other potential users, or seeks input from universities or other potential users regarding significant characteristics or equipment in a user facility or a proposed user facility, the Department shall ensure broad public notice of such availability or such need for input to universities and other potential users. When the Department of Energy considers the participation of a university or other potential user as a formal partner in the establishment or operation of a user facility, the Department shall employ full and open competition in selecting such a partner. For purposes of this section, the term "user facility" includes, but is not limited to: (1) a user facility as described in section 2203(a)(2) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 13503(a)(2)); (2) a National Nuclear Security Administration Defense Programs Technology Deployment Center/User Facility; and (3) any other Departmental facility designated by the Department as a user facility.

SEC. 【306】304. Funds appropriated by this or any other Act, or made available by the transfer of funds in this Act, for intelligence activities are deemed to be specifically authorized by the Congress for purposes of section 504 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 414) during fiscal year 【2010】2011 until the enactment of the Intelligence Authorization Act for fiscal year 【2010】2011.

SEC. 【307】305. Of the funds made available by the Department of Energy for activities at Government-owned, contractor-operated laboratories funded in this Act or subsequent Energy and Water Development Appropriations Acts, the Secretary may authorize a specific amount, not to exceed 8 percent of such funds, to be used by such laboratories for laboratory directed research and development: Provided, That the Secretary may also authorize a specific amount not to exceed 4 percent of such funds, to be used by the plant manager of a covered nuclear weapons production plant or the manager of the Nevada Site Office for plant or site directed research and development.

SEC. 【308】306. (a) In any fiscal year in which the Secretary of Energy determines that additional funds are needed to reimburse the costs of defined benefit pension plans for contractor employees, the Secretary may transfer not more than 1 percent from each appropriation made available in this and subsequent Energy and Water Development Appropriation Acts to any other appropriation available to the Secretary in the same Act for such reimbursements.

【(b) Where the Secretary recovers the costs of defined benefit pension plans for contractor employees through charges for the indirect costs of research and activities at facilities of the Department of Energy, if the indirect costs attributable to defined benefit pension plan costs in a fiscal year are more than charges in fiscal year 2008, the Secretary shall carry out a transfer of funds under this section.】

【(c)】(b) In carrying out a transfer under this section, the Secretary shall use each appropriation made available to the Department in that fiscal year as a source for the transfer, and shall reduce each appropriation by an equal percentage, except that appropriations for which the Secretary determines there exists a need for additional funds for pension plan costs in that fiscal year, as well as appropriations made available for the Power Marketing Administrations, the title XVII loan guarantee program, and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, shall not be subject to this requirement.

【(d)】(c) Each January, the Secretary shall report to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate on the state of defined benefit pension plan liabilities in the Department for the preceding year.

【(e)】(d) This transfer authority does not apply to supplemental appropriations, and is in addition to any other transfer authority provided in this or any other Act. The authority provided under this section shall expire on September 30, 2015.

【(f)】(e) The Secretary shall notify the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate in writing not less than 30 days in advance of each transfer authorized by this section.

(b) Funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act or any other Act may be used to ensure, for purposes of meeting any applicable reporting provisions of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5; 123 Stat. 115), that the Bonneville Power Administration uses a fund symbol other than the Bonneville Power Administration Fund Treasury account fund symbol solely to report accrued expenditures of projects attributed by the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration to the increased borrowing authority.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is responsible for protecting the public health by assuring the safety, efficacy, and security of human and veterinary drugs, biological products, medical devices, our Nation's food supply, cosmetics, and products that emit radiation. The FDA is also responsible for advancing the public health by helping to speed innovations that make medicines more effective, safer, and more affordable; and helping to provide the public accurate, science-based information about medicines and foods to improve their health. FDA decisions affect Americans on a daily basis. The Budget includes funding for counterterrorism activities that specifically relate to the protection of products or therapies regulated by the FDA (such as drugs, vaccines, foods, and animal feed), and the availability of medical products for public health preparedness in the event of an attack. Specifically, the Budget requests funding for food protection, drug safety, medical device review and safety, advancing FDA's scientific infrastructure, and headquarters consolidation in White Oak, Maryland.

The Budget includes a number of new and current user fees. The Budget proposes a food registration and inspection user fee to support and improve inspections, surveillance, laboratory capacity and response to prevent and control foodborne illnesses. The Budget also proposes user fees to support activities related to generic human drug reviews, re-inspections of FDA-regulated facilities, and the issuance of export certificates for food and animal feeds.

Notwithstanding any other law or regulation, funds transferred from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Indian Health Service shall be administered under Public Law 86-121, the Indian Sanitation Facilities Act and Public Law 93-638, as amended.

Funds appropriated to the Indian Health Service in this Act, except those used for administrative and program direction purposes, shall not be subject to limitations directed at curtailing Federal travel and transportation.

[None of the funds made available to the Indian Health Service in this Act shall be used for any assessments or charges by the Department of Health and Human Services unless identified in the budget justification and provided in this Act, or approved by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations through the reprogramming process.]

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds previously or herein made available to a tribe or tribal organization through a contract, grant, or agreement authorized by title I or title V of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (25 U.S.C. 450), may be deobligated and reobligated to a self-determination contract under title I, or a self-governance agreement under title V of such Act and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation.

None of the funds made available to the Indian Health Service in this Act shall be used to implement the final rule published in the Federal Register on September 16, 1987, by the Department of Health and Human Services, relating to the eligibility for the health care services of the Indian Health Service until the Indian Health Service has submitted a budget request reflecting the increased costs associated with the proposed final rule, and such request has been included in an appropriations Act and enacted into law.

With respect to functions transferred by the Indian Health Service to tribes or tribal organizations, the Indian Health Service is authorized to provide goods and services to those entities on a reimbursable basis, including payments in advance with subsequent adjustment. The reimbursements received therefrom, along with the funds received from those entities pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination Act, may be credited to the same or subsequent appropriation account from which the funds were originally derived, with such amounts to remain available until expended.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) supports a number of categorical programs designed to improve the health, safety, and protection of all Americans. These activities include immunization, HIV prevention, chronic disease prevention and health promotion, infectious disease control, occupational safety and health, injury prevention and control, environmental health, and programs that reduce the occurrence of birth defects and developmental disabilities. CDC also supports bioterrorism, emergency response, and pandemic influenza preparedness activities. The CDC infectious diseases activities include resources directed at enhancing preparedness for influenza pandemics. In recent years, CDC supported response activities, domestic and international surveillance, communications, community mitigation, and laboratory support for virus detection with annual budget authority. The Budget will finance these ongoing activities through unobligated balances available from P.L. 111-32, the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 2009. P.L. 111-32 appropriated $7.65 billion to the Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund for pandemic influenza preparedness and response activities to respond to the novel H1N1 influenza pandemic and to prepare for potential future pandemic influenza outbreaks. Within this total, CDC received a direct appropriation of $200 million and over $2 billion in transfers to support the vaccination campaign, grants to States and for virus detection and disease surveillance. The pandemic preparedness activities funded through resources provided in P.L. 111-32 are shown in the total CDC obligations level for FY 2011.

Medicaid assists States in providing medical care to their low-income populations by granting Federal matching payments under title XIX of the Social Security Act to States with approved plans.

Medicaid estimates assume budget authority for expenses that are incurred but not reported (IBNR).

Authorized as part of Title XIX, Vaccines for Children (VFC) finances the purchase of vaccines for low-income, eligible children. VFC is administered by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and is funded entirely by the Federal Government.

Note.—The FY 2009 and FY 2010 total CHIP appropriations do not fully reflect the appropriation of $40 million for Territories because of adjustments made to the CHIP account to properly account for funds as part of the Childrens Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (CHIPRA). The total available appropriation for 2009 is $10,602 million.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 established the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) under Title XXI of the Social Security Act. Title XXI provides Federal matching funds to States to enable them to extend coverage to uninsured children from low-income families. States are able to use Title XXI funds for obtaining health benefit coverage for uninsured children through a separate CHIP program, a CHIP Medicaid expansion program, or a combination of both. The Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-3) reauthorized the CHIP program through FY 2013 and made some modifications to the program including increased funding for States and territories, bonus payments for States that exceed enrollment targets, a contingency fund to assist States who spend above their available allocated CHIP funds, and support for child health quality and outreach activities.

The Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act (CHIPRA) of 2009 established the Child Enrollment Contingency Fund under Title XXI. Beginning in FY 2009, a State may qualify for a contingency fund payment if it projects a funding shortfall for the fiscal year and if its average monthly child enrollment exceeds its target average number of enrollees for the fiscal year.

The fund received an initial appropriation equal to 20 percent of the FY 2009 national allotment ($2.1 billion). In fiscal years 2009–2013, the bill appropriates the amount necessary to make payments to eligible States, but not to exceed 20 percent of the total annual appropriation for CHIP allotments to States. Any amounts in excess of this aggregate cap will be made available for CHIP performance bonus payments. Also, the contingency fund will be invested in interest bearing securities of the United States. The income derived from these investments constitutes a part of the fund.

P.L. 104-191 established the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control (HCFAC) account within the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and appropriated funds, from the trust fund to the HCFAC account for specified health care fraud and abuse control activities of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the Department of Justice, and other agencies.

This schedule reflects the estimated distribution of the account for 2011. As required by statute, actual 2011 agency distributions will be determined by the Secretary of HHS and the Attorney General consistent with the Administration's priorities.

The Budget includes a discretionary request for efforts to safeguard Medicare and Medicaid that will supplement the mandatory funds made available by P.L. 104-191. The 2011 discretionary investment is a part of a multi-year fraud and abuse proposal in the Budget; similar funding has been enacted for the past two years.

It is important that these cost increases and new enforcement investments be fully funded. The Administration is proposing to fund them as contingent appropriations. To ensure full funding of the new enforcement investments, the Administration proposes to employ a budget enforcement mechanism that allows for an adjustment by the Budget Committees to the section 302(a) allocation to the Appropriations Committees found in the concurrent resolution on the budget. These adjustments would only be permissible if the use of these funds was clearly restricted to the specified purpose. The maximum allowable adjustment to the 302(a) allocation would be $561 million for 2011. See additional discussion in the Budget Reform Proposals chapter in the Analytical Perspectives volume.

The HCFAC entities will develop a comprehensive plan for Medicare, Medicaid and CHIP program integrity activities. The plan will indicate how program integrity appropriations from all sources will be allocated to address program integrity priorities. These priorities include identifying and recouping excessive payments, pinpointing potential weaknesses in program integrity oversight, and establishing new processes and safeguards to correct programmatic vulnerabilities.

This request sustains critical supports for children, youth and families by investing almost $1 billion more in Head Start and Early Head Start to maintain the historic expansions funded by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). This budget also provides a range of targeted program increases to improve services for vulnerable children and families: +$10 million for Child Abuse Discretionary Activities programs; +$11 million for Violent Crime Reduction programs; and +$3 million for a new effort targeted to early childhood evaluation. This Budget eliminates the Rural Community Facilities program and redirects funding for Children's Health Act programs to the Ad-option Opportunities program.

Note.—The reimbursable program (HCFAC) in the Administration on Aging (AoA) reflects the estimated distribution of the allocation account for 2010. Actual 2010 distributions will be determined by the Secretary of HHS and the Attorney General.

The proposed level invests $102.5 million to help families care for their aging relatives by expanding support for existing caregiver and supportive services programs that help to keep seniors healthy and independent and provides continued funding for core formula grant programs that provide nutrition, supportive services and caregiver support services through the aging network. These programs are part of a comprehensive system of home and community-based support for older people and their families.

This program supports coordination, leadership, and development of Federal health information technology activities and Federal initiatives for the nationwide advancement of private and secure interoperable health information technology, in cooperation with participants in the health sector. The Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology was established in the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act (P.L. 111-5, Title XIII), for the purpose of addressing strategic planning, coordination, and the analysis of key technical, economic and other issues related to the public and private adoption of health information technology.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (P.L. 111-5) included additional funding for ONC to implement the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act.

Through this program, activities related to and supporting the President's Health Information Technology Initiative are coordinated across several HHS organizations, as shown in the following consolidated table.

The Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund (PHSSEF) provides resources to support a comprehensive program to prepare for the health and medical consequences of bioterrorism or other public health emergencies. This account includes funding for the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response (ASPR), as authorized by the Pandemic and All-Hazards Preparedness Act. Funds will be used for hospital preparedness and other emergency preparedness activities including the National Disaster Medical System. The PHSSEF also supports the HHS Cyber Security program, the Medical Reserve Corps, and the Office of Security and Strategic Information.

The PHSSEF also continues to support the advanced development of biodefense countermeasures. These resources will be derived from available funds appropriated for the BioShield Special Reserve Fund. Included will be all administrative expenses of the Biomedical Advanced Research and Development Authority.

The PHSSEF also includes resources directed at enhancing preparedness for influenza pandemics. In recent years, significant progress has been made in developing rapid diagnostics, producing and stockpiling H5N1 vaccines, enhancing the U.S. based vaccine production capacity and advancing new production methods and dose-sparing technologies, building antiviral stockpiles, and working with the states to enhance their preparedness. The 2011 Budget will continue to advance these activities, with continued emphasis on preparedness for rapid and diversified response to a pandemic influenza strain, by further expanding vaccine manufacturing capacity in the U.S., including cell-based and recombinant production technologies, maintenance of the H5N1 vaccine and adjuvants, supporting the augmentation of a library of vaccine potency assay reagents, and expanding rapid diagnostics capabilities. In 2011, these activities will be financed through unobligated balances available from P.L. 111–32, the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 2009. P.L. 111–32 appropriated $7.65 billion to the Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund for pandemic influenza preparedness and response activities to respond to the novel H1N1 influenza pandemic and to prepare for potential future pandemic influenza outbreaks. The pandemic preparedness activities funded through resources provided in P.L. 111–32 are shown in the total PHSSEF obligations level for 2011.

HHS Service and Supply Fund (SSF) provides a wide range of logistical and support services to components of the Department and other Federal agencies. The Program Support Center includes activities such as personnel and payroll support, information technology, financial management operations, and administrative services, including acquisitions management, building and property management, telecommunication services, medical supplies repackaging and distribution services, and the Federal Occupational Health Service. The Office of Secretary activities include the fund manager, departmental contracts, audit resolutions, Commissioned Corps force management, web management, claims, acquisition integration and modernization, small business, grants tracking, the physical access aspects of the Department's implementation of Homeland Security Presidential Directive 12, and commercial services management.

Most Commissioned Corps officers work for agencies in the Department of Health and Human Services and are reflected in the agencies' personnel summaries. However, some officers are assigned to other Federal agencies. The allocation account section in the following personnel summary shows officers assigned to other agencies, which are paid directly by that agency, either through an allocation account or by directly citing that agency's appropriation.

The Analysis and Operations appropriation provides resources for the support of the Office of Intelligence and Analysis (I&A) and the Office of Operations Coordination and Planning (OPS). This appropriation includes both National Intelligence Program (NIP) funds for I&A and non-NIP funds for OPS. Even though these two offices have distinct missions, they work closely together and collaborate with other Departmental components and related Federal agencies, as well as state, local, tribal, foreign, and private sector partners, to improve intelligence analysis, information sharing, incident management support, and situational awareness.

Office of Intelligence and Analysis (I&A).—I&A is responsible for the Department's intelligence and information gathering and sharing capabilities for and among all components of DHS state, local, and private sector partners, and the Intelligence Community (IC). As a member of the IC, I&A's primary contribution to our national security is its ability to execute its homeland security intelligence analysis and warning mission while serving as a nexus for integration and coordination of actionable intelligence from both domestic and foreign sources. I&A serves as the primary Federal interface with State and Local fusion centers, providing for reciprocal intelligence and information sharing in support of homeland security operations across all levels of government and the private sector. The blending of actionable intelligence, coupled with access to component and stakeholder source data, allows for unique analytical mission support and the subsequent development of high quality intelligence-related products. The Under Secretary for Intelligence and Analysis (U/SIA) leads I&A and is the Department's Chief Intelligence Officer (CINT) responsible for managing the entire DHS Intelligence Enterprise, and is also the Department's Chief Information Sharing Officer responsible for implementing the objectives of the Program Manager-Information Sharing Environment (PM-ISE) within DHS.

Office of Operations Coordination and Planning (OPS).—The mission of OPS is to integrate DHS and interagency planning and operations coordination efforts in order to prevent, protect, respond to, and recover from terrorist threats/attacks or threats from other man-made or natural disasters. OPS plays a pivotal role in the DHS mission to lead the unified national effort to secure America by facilitating the Secretary's responsibilities across the full spectrum of incident management efforts (i.e., prevention, protection, response and recovery). OPS provides situational awareness, assessments, and operations coordination for the DHS Secretary and facilitates operational information sharing with all DHS components, as well as for Federal, state, local, tribal, private sector, and international partners. In support of the Secretary's role as the Principal Federal Official for domestic incident management, OPS develops and coordinates Departmental and interagency strategic-level operations plans. Additionally, OPS supports the DHS mission to lead the national unified effort to secure America by maintaining the National Operations Center (NOC) and by providing 24/7 incident management capabilities to ensure a seamless integration of threat monitoring and information flow. The NOC serves as a 24/7 multi-agency organization, fusing law enforcement, national intelligence, emergency response, and private sector reporting. The NOC is the primary national-level hub for domestic incident management, operations coordination, and situational awareness.

This account finances the cost of conducting and supervising audits, inspections, and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the Department to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness and to prevent and detect fraud, waste, and abuse in such programs and operations. The Budget includes adjustments-to-base increases for the annualization of prior year funding and the 2010 pay raise; the 2011 pay increase, and GSA rent. The Budget reflects resources that will enable the Office of Inspector General to perform its oversight responsibilities, as well as assist DHS in achieving its goal of "organizational excellence." The resources requested will increase the number of reports that the OIG is able to produce and its ability to provide a greater number departmental managers with recommendations to ensure that their program/activities are operating in the most economical, efficient, and effective manner possible. In addition, the resources will enable the OIG to conduct new audits annually, including in-house grant audits of state grantees and local government sub-grantees; adequately staff existing investigative field offices; address major information technology issues facing the Department in the various stages of development and implementation; and continue the prominent operations of the OIG's Emergency Management Oversight office.

The mission of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) is to adjudicate and grant immigration and citizenship benefits, provide accurate and useful information to its customers, and promote an awareness and understanding of citizenship in support of immigrant integration, while also protecting the integrity of our Nation's immigration system. USCIS approves millions of immigration benefit applications each year, ranging from work authorization, lawful permanent residency, and asylum and refugee status. The Budget continues to invest in technology to improve and automate business operations, eliminate paper-based processing, improve information sharing, and enhance USCIS' ability to identify and prevent immigration benefit fraud.

The Budget assumes that USCIS will continue to be funded primarily through fees on the applications and petitions it adjudicates.

The United States Secret Service (USSS) performs two critical homeland security missions: protection and criminal investigations. The USSS protects the President and Vice President, their families, visiting heads-of-state/government, and other designated individuals, such as the Secretary of Homeland Security; investigates threats against these protectees; protects the White House, Vice Presidents Residence, Foreign Missions, and other designated buildings within the Washington, D.C. area; and designs, coordinates, and implements operational security plans for designated National Special Security Events. The USSS investigates violations of laws relating to: counterfeiting of obligations and securities of the United States; financial crimes, such as access device fraud, financial institution fraud, identity theft, and computer fraud; computer-based attacks on our nations financial, banking, and telecommunications infrastructure; and provides critical forensic support for associated investigations for the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). Funding for contributions to the District of Columbia's Police and Firefighters Retirement Plan (DC Annuity) has been moved from the Salaries and Expenses account to Contribution for Annuity Benefits account.

This account provides the Secret Service contributions to the District of Columbia's Police and Firefighters Retirement Plan (DC Annuity). Prior to 2010, the Secret Service contribution for its retired members was captured under the Salaries and Expenses, No-Year appropriation. The creation of this new account will clearly separate discretionary and mandatory funding, will allow for more timely and accurate budget reporting, easier distinction among funding sources in budget execution, and elimination of improper manual code entry which affects budget creation in the MAX database and requires manual changes to FACTS data. This separation of mandatory and discretionary funds into separate accounts will also create greater transparency into the Secret Service's budget execution.

The Budget proposes $5,810 million in discretionary and mandatory resources for the Transportation Security Administration's aviation security activities. Of this amount an estimated $2,150 million is financed by offsetting collections from passenger security fees and air carrier security fees. The $2,150 million amount does not include the first $250 million in fee collections, which are provided to the Aviation Security Capital Fund.

Overall funding in this account will be used to fund screening personnel, compensation and benefits, and related expenses for transportation security officers; screening technologies; privatized passenger and baggage screener contracts; aviation regulation and enforcement activities, airport managerial and support activities; air cargo screening operations; and operational testing and activities to improve flight deck and air crew security.

As the largest investigative arm of the Department of Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) brings a unified and coordinated focus to the enforcement of Federal immigration and customs laws.

The Budget supports ICE's mission to enforce immigration and customs laws. It funds all aspects of immigration and customs enforcement, including the Secure Communities program, which support the identification and removal of criminal aliens. The Budget takes steps towards improving management and operations at ICE by optimizing the effectiveness and efficiency of its workforce and operations.

ICE works to protect the United States and its people by deterring, interdicting, and investigating threats arising from the movement of people and goods into and out of the United States. Major programs funded by the Salaries and Expenses appropriation include:

Investigations.—Responsible for investigating a range of issues, including human smuggling and trafficking; weapons, narcotics and all other contraband smuggling; export enforcement, such as investigating illegal arms exports and exports of dual-use equipment that may threaten national security; financial crimes, such as money laundering, bulk cash smuggling, and other financial crimes; customs fraud and intellectual property rights violations; cybercrime; immigration crimes; child pornography and child sex tourism; and human rights violations.

Intelligence.—Responsible for the collection, analysis, and dissemination of strategic and tactical intelligence data for use by the operational elements of ICE and DHS.

Detention and Removal.—Responsible for promoting the public safety and national security by ensuring the departure from the United States of all removable aliens through the fair enforcement of the nation's immigration laws.

International Affairs.—Responsible for investigating violations involving contraband smuggling, immigration violations, money

laundering, arms/technology trafficking, child sexual exploitation and cyber crimes overseas.

Principal Legal Advisor.—Serves as the legal representative for the U.S. Government at immigration court hearings, and provides the legal advice, training, and services required to support the ICE mission while defending the immigration laws of the United States.

Secure Communities Comprehensive Identification and Removal of Criminal Aliens (SC/CIRCA).—Coordinates the planning and operational activities devoted to criminal alien enforcement within ICE. Through SC/CIRCA, ICE is leveraging technology to increase national security and community safety by working with State and local law enforcement agencies to identify, process, and remove removable criminal aliens, beginning with those who pose the greatest known risk to public safety.

The DHS Secure Border Initiative (SBI) is a comprehensive, multi-year plan to secure the borders of the United States and reduce illegal cross border activities such as smuggling of economic migrants, illegal drugs, and articles and people with terrorist intent. Within this broader SBI framework, the SBInet Program is responsible for acquisition, development, installation and integration of technologies to provide (1) surveillance and detection tools for situational awareness; (2) command, control, and intelligence tools; and, (3) a communications infrastructure needed to augment the DHS ONENET communications network to transport sensor information to/from field and headquarters elements. The initial focus of the SBInet Program is to mitigate or eliminate the clear and pressing vulnerabilities existing along the U.S. southwest border between the ports of entry. Along the southwest border, the threat is most grave in the Arizona sectors, and as such, SBInet's initial development and deployments will be focused in this area. Over time, the SBInet Program will evolve a solution, when combined with tactical infrastructure and personnel, to enable DHS to gain and maintain effective control of the U.S. land borders.

The Automation Modernization account is divided into two program and project activities, the Automated Commercial Environment (ACE) and Critical Operations Protection and Processing Support (COPPS). The funding for information technology initiatives as well as maintenance of the existing information technology infrastructure at CBP resides in this account. ACE is being developed and deployed in increments and will replace the current trade management system, the Automated Commercial System (ACS). ACE will provide tools and enhance the business processes that are essential to securing U.S. borders while ensuring the efficient processing of legitimate goods. COPPS provides nearly all the CBP Information Technology (IT) infrastructure to operate and maintain mission-critical IT systems requisite to secure the borders while facilitating legitimate trade and travel.

Funding requested in this account supports the operations of the Coast Guard as it carries out its duties as a maritime, military, multi-mission operating agency and one of the five armed forces. To fulfill its mission, the Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States. In 2011, the Coast Guard will continue the disposition of legacy assets where new assets are coming online. Additionally, the savings from operational efficiencies and consolidation initiatives are redirected to support Coast Guard's highest priority; the continued recapitalization of aging assets and infrastructure.

Funding requested in this account will support the Coast Guard's continuing plans for fleet recapitalization and improvement. The majority of the funding requested in this account provides for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, information management resources, shore facilities, and aids to navigation required to execute the Coast Guard's missions and achieve its performance goals. In 2011, the Coast Guard will continue the recapitalization of aging boats, cutters, and aircraft through the acquisition of new assets—including the Response Boat-Medium, National Security Cutter, Fast Response Cutter, cutter small boats, and Maritime Patrol Aircraft. Further, the Coast Guard will continue fleet sustainment projects to enhance and extend the service life of selected existing aircraft and cutters. These vital recapitalization projects, along with the corresponding emphasis on acquisition personnel and management, will provide the Coast Guard with additional capability to perform its missions.

In 2011, the Coast Guard will continue to deploy Rescue 21, the national distress and response system modernization project and will invest in the shoreside acquisition and construction of modern structures that are more energy-efficient, comply with regulatory codes, minimize follow-on maintenance requirements, and enhance training and operational readiness. In 2011, the Coast Guard will also invest in Coast Guard-owned family housing facilities to enhance the quality of life of the workforce. These funds will be used to plan, execute, administer contracts, acquire, and construct military housing to provide greater access to suitable and affordable housing for Coast Guard members and their families assigned to areas where there are documented shortages.

The Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund is used to finance oil pollution prevention and cleanup activities by various Federal agencies. In accordance with the provisions of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, the Fund may finance annually up to $50 million of emergency resources and all valid claims from injured parties resulting from oil spills. For Coast Guard, this funds the Trust Fund Share of Expenses and Oil Spill Recovery accounts. The OSLTF is funded by an excise tax on each barrel of oil produced domestically or imported. The Energy Improvement and Extension Act of 2008 (P.L. 110–343) increased the tax rate to eight cents on each barrel of oil through December 31, 2016, and nine cents on each barrel of oil for the period January 1, 2017 through December 31, 2017. The tax currently will sunset December 31, 2017.

The Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) United States Visitor and Immigrant Status Indicator Technology (US-VISIT) project was established in May 2003 to continue the implementation of a series of statutory initiatives designed to enhance national security at our borders. Those initiatives collectively require DHS to create an automated entry and exit system; to integrate existing biometric databases; use available data to match alien arrival and departure records; and use biometrics to screen visa applicants and applicants for admission to the United States against watchlists.

US-VISIT receives, stores, and shares information, including biometric identifiers, on foreign nationals seeking to enter the United States. This information is collected to determine whether individuals should be prohibited from entering the United States; determine whether individuals can receive, extend, change, or adjust immigration status; determine whether individuals have overstayed or otherwise violated the terms of their admission; determine whether individuals should be apprehended or detained for law enforcement action; and determine whether individuals need special protection and/or attention (e.g., refugees).

US-VISIT's budget activities consist of Identity Management and Screening Services; Unique Identity; Comprehensive Biometric Exit; Operations and Maintenance; and Program Management Services.

The Infrastructure Protection and Information Security (IPIS) appropriation funds Infrastructure Protection and Cybersecurity and Communications activities.

The Office of Infrastructure Protection (IP) leads the coordinated national effort to reduce risk to our Critical Infrastructure and Key Resource (CIKR) posed by acts of terrorism and enables national preparedness, timely response, and rapid recovery in the event of an attack, natural disaster, or other emergency. There are three major mission areas within IP: Identification and Analysis; Coordination and Information Sharing; and Mitigation Programs.

Identification and Analysis.—The Identification and Analysis mission area includes IP projects and activities supporting capabilities to identify the Nation's CIKR, assess CIKR vulnerabilities and consequences, and analyze and reduce risk. Activities include developing an inventory of CIKR assets; risk analysis, modeling and simulation; and fusing information from field assessments to enable analysis of infrastructure interdependencies.

Coordination and Information Sharing.—The Coordination and Information Sharing mission area includes IP projects and activities enhancing situational awareness and maximizing the ability of government and private sector security partners at all levels to assess risks, coordinate programs and processes, and execute risk-mitigation programs and activities. Coordination and Information Sharing leads and coordinates the execution of the National Infrastructure Protection Plan, acting as a central clearinghouse for information sharing and coordination activities of individual sectors as well as facilitating development and support of security partner governance models.

Mitigation Programs.—The Mitigation Programs mission area includes voluntary and regulatory projects and activities, enabling security partners to identify and mitigate vulnerabilities, implement protective measures, and increase preparedness for facilities, systems, and surrounding communities. They support public awareness efforts and facilitate sharing CIKR protection-related best practices and lessons learned as well as enabling IP planning, readiness and incident management.

Cyber Security and Communications (CS&C) collaborates with public, private, and international partners to ensure security and continuity of the Nation's cyber and communications infrastructures in the event of terrorist attacks, national disasters, and catastrophic incidents. Additionally, CS&C protects and strengthens the reliability, survivability and interoperability of the Nation's communications capabilities, including those utilized during emergencies, at the Federal, State, local, territorial, and tribal levels. The CS&C budget includes the National Cyber Security Division, National Communications System, and Office of Emergency Communications.

National Cyber Security Division (NCSD).—NCSD partners with the private sector, government, military, and intelligence stakeholders in risk assessments and mitigating vulnerabilities and threats to information technology assets and activities affecting the operation of the government and civilian critical cyber infrastructures. NCSD provides cyber threat and vulnerability analysis, early warning, and incident response assistance for public and private sector constituents. In addition, NCSD is the Federal executive agent for carrying out many of the mandates under the Comprehensive National Cybersecurity Initiative.

National Communications System (NCS).—The NCS provides mission-critical national security and emergency preparedness (NS/EP) telecommunications for Federal, State and local governments, and private industry through the following functions: 1) administering the National Coordinating Center for Telecommunications to facilitate the initiation, coordination, restoration and reconstitution of NS/EP telecommunications services or facilities under all circumstances; 2) developing and ensuring the implementation of plans and programs that support telecommunications infrastructure hardness, redundancy, mobility, connectivity and security; and 3) serving as the focal point for industry and government NS/EP telecommunications planning and partnerships. The NCS budget includes the Priority Telecommunications System, Programs to Study and Enhance Telecommunications, Critical Infrastructure Protection, and Next Generation Networks programs.

The Office of Emergency Communications (OEC).—The OEC supports and promotes the ability of emergency responders and government officials to continue communicating in the event of natural disasters, acts of terrorism, or other man-made disasters. OEC works to ensure, accelerate, and attain interoperable and operable emergency communications nationwide.

The Federal Protective Service (FPS) is the federal law enforcement organization responsible for the protection of federal facilities. FPS executes the Department of Homeland Security's responsibility to protect federally owned property, leased property and personnel across the nation, as required by section 1315 of title 40 United States Code. FPS operations focus on security and law enforcement activities reducing vulnerability to criminal and terrorist threats, while ensuring facilities are secure and occupants safe. FPS protects federal facilities and the employees within them through measures such as all hazards based risk assessments; appropriate placement of countermeasures, law enforcement response; assistance to stakeholders through Facility Security Committees; and emergency and safety education. FPS also partners with federal agencies to provide additional required security services. FPS is the lead Government Facilities Sector-specific Agency for the National Infrastructure Protection Plan (NIPP).

The 2004 Homeland Security Appropriations Act provided advance appropriations for Biodefense Countermeasures. This program, which the Departments of Homeland Security and Health and Human Services jointly manage, was designed to support the government's efforts to secure medical countermeasures to strengthen the Nation's preparedness against bioterror attacks by pre-purchasing critically needed vaccines and other countermeasures for biodefense. The program, including all unobligated balances, was transferred to HHS in 2010. As such, all procurements for advanced medical countermeasures will be funded by HHS.

As the principal medical and health authority for DHS, the Office of Health Affairs, headed by the Chief Medical Officer and Assistant Secretary for Health Affairs, is tasked with maintaining the skills needed to respond to homeland security challenges at the intersection of health and security. OHA staff has extensive training and expertise in public health, epidemiology, medicine, intelligence analysis, policy-making, planning, science of weapons of mass destruction (WMD), agriculture and veterinary medicine, and prehospital medicine. This expertise enables OHA to provide critical medical and public health information to DHS components and programs as well as to other Federal agencies. OHA provides risk and threat assessments to guide preparedness activities, planning, and incident management. OHA also provides occupational and operational medicine, health, and safety guidance for the DHS HQ Offices and Components, and coordinates the activities of various Federal government entities to respond to threats to the health security of the Nation. OHA operates the BioWatch system, which monitors the environment for harmful pathogens in major US cities and urban areas, and will begin procuring and preparing for the deployment of faster, automated BioWatch sensors in 2011.

FEMA provides State and local governments with grants, training, exercises, and technical assistance to improve their readiness for terrorism incidents and catastrophic events. This assistance strengthens homeland security preparedness by supporting development of key capabilities in prevention, protection, response, and recovery. The approach outlined below provides rationalization for focusing efforts into three general stakeholder categories: the State and region, the major urban area, and the Federal complementary component that serves to unify the Homeland Security mission. The Budget further rationalizes by combining prior stand-alone grant programs and making previously mandatory carve-outs now allowable expenses under appropriately augmented programs. This consolidation increases State discretion and ability to provide funding to those highest risk areas and prioritize investments that cater to specific homeland security needs that may vary from State to State. In addition, the grants process is streamlined, as the number of individual programs and associated workload is reduced.

State and Regional Preparedness Programs.—Programs included in this overarching category seek to address preparedness concerns at the State and regional level. Major components of the 2011 request include:

State Homeland Security Grants ($1,050,000,000).—Grants to States to support the implementation of prevention and protection capabilities per each State's homeland security strategy. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk and effectiveness and then adjusted to ensure that each State receives a minimum allocation. At least 25% of all funds shall be directed to law enforcement terrorism prevention activities. In addition, $50,000,000 of the total amount for State Homeland Security Grants is slated for use in Operation Stonegarden to focus on the Nation's Southwest Border security issues. Initiatives and investments formerly funded through the Citizen Corps Grant Program, Driver's License Security Grant Program, Interoperable Emergency Communications Grant Program, and the Metropolitan Medical Response System are now allowable expenses under the State Homeland Security Grant Program.

Emergency Management Performance Grants ($345,000,000).—These grants support State and regional efforts to achieve target levels of capability in catastrophic planning and emergency management. This program provides funding by formula basis to all 56 States and territories.

Firefighter Assistance Grants ($610,000,000).—These grants provide direct assistance to local fire departments for investments to improve their ability to safeguard the lives of firefighting personnel and members of the public in the event of a terrorist attack. The $610 million request for 2011 is focused on grants for hiring and retaining firefighters, training, equipment, and personal protective gear. The Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) grant comprises $305 million of the total amount, while the remaining $305 million will go toward the Assistance to Firefighter Grant (AFG) and Fire Prevention and Safety programs. The competitive, peer-review grant process will give priority to applications that enhance capabilities for terrorism response and other major incidents.

Regional Catastrophic Preparedness Grants Program ($35,000,000).—This program supports the coordination of regional all-hazard planning for catastrophic events, including the development of integrated planning communities, plans, protocols, and procedures to manage a catastrophic event.

Metropolitan Statistical Area Preparedness Programs.—Programs included in this overarching category seek to address preparedness concerns at the high threat urban area level. Major components of the 2011 request include:

Urban Area Security Initiative ($1,100,000,000).—Grants to address the unique homeland security needs of high-risk metropolitan areas and to assist those areas in building enhanced and sustainable capabilities to prevent, protect, and recover from acts of terrorism. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk and effectiveness. At least 25% of all funds shall be directed to law enforcement terrorism prevention activities. In addition, up to $200,000,000 of the total amount for the Urban Area Security Initiative is slated for use by those metropolitan areas in the provision of additional security involved in hosting terror-related trials.

Port Security Grant Program ($300,000,000).—As part of the transportation and infrastructure protection portfolio of programs, these grants support projects which enhance the layered protection of the Nation's seaports from terrorism. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk.

Public Transportation Security Grant Program ($300,000,000).—As part of the transportation and infrastructure protection portfolio of programs, these grants support security projects at bus, rail and ferry transit systems in high-risk urban areas. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk.

Buffer Zone Protection Program ($50,000,000).—These grants provide funding to increase the preparedness capabilities of jurisdictions responsible for the safety and security of communities surrounding high-priority pre-designated Tier 1 and Tier 2 critical infrastructure and key resource (CIKR) assets, including chemical facilities, financial institutions, nuclear and electric power plants, dams, stadiums, and other high-risk/high-consequence facilities, through allowable planning and equipment acquisition.

Training, Measurement, and Exercise Programs.—These programs are a complement to other major programs requested within FEMA and represent the Federal offering that binds together all of the State and local preparedness initiatives within the Department of Homeland Security. Major components of the 2011 request include:

National Exercise Program ($42,000,000).—Funds exercises for WMD events and other major incidents.

National Domestic Preparedness Consortium ($114,000,000).—Supports the unique training facilities managed by the Center for Domestic Preparedness and other members of the Consortium that specifically focus on enhancing first responders' capability to prepare for, respond to, protect against, and recover from incidents involving chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or explosive (CBRNE) agents.

Technical assistance and Evaluations and Assessments ($33,000,000).—Supports technical assistance for grantees in catastrophic planning and other key investment areas. This program also supports preparedness policy development, data collection, and program evaluation.

Continuing Training Grants Program ($21,590,000).—These grants award funds to competitively selected applicants to develop and deliver innovative training programs addressing high priority national homeland security training needs.

The Administration will expand and improve the coordination of Federal efforts to incentivize state and local government to plan for and implement pre-disaster mitigation strategies. Through a partnership with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the goal is to support strategic local approaches to sustainable development by coupling hazard mitigation with related community development goals and activities that reduce risks while protecting life, property, and the environment. Funding requested through this program will provide grants funding to State, local, and tribal governments to reduce the risks associated with disasters. Resources support the development and enhancement of hazard mitigation plans, as well as the implementation of pre-disaster mitigation projects. Operating independently of the Disaster Relief Fund (DRF), which provides post-disaster mitigation funding, the Pre-Disaster Mitigation program provides a stable, year-to-year funding source for qualified projects that is not dependent upon Presidentially declared disaster activity. account Resources support the development and enhancement of hazard mitigation plans, as well as the implementation of pre-disaster mitigation projects. Through the Disaster Relief Fund (DRF), FEMA provides a significant portion of the total Federal response to Presidentially-declared major disasters and emergencies. Primary assistance programs include Federal assistance to individuals and households, public assistance, and hazard mitigation assistance, which includes the repair and reconstruction of State, local, and non-profit infrastructure. In 2011, disaster readiness support activities will continue to be funded within the Disaster Relief Fund Appropriation. The Budget uses the five-year historical obligations for non-catastrophic events (those less than $500 million in estimated obligations) less the average of the five-year estimated recoveries to calculate the DRF for 2011. The rationale for this methodology is that large or catastrophic events are rare and would likely involve a supplemental or emergency appropriation. As a result of this assumption, obligations in response to large or catastrophic events are not included in the DRF. The Administration seeks to protect the DRF and prevent redirection of these funds for non-disaster purposes by proposing to employ a budget enforcement mechanism that allows for an adjustment by the Budget Committees to the section 302(a) allocation to the Appropriations Committees found in the concurrent resolution on the budget. To ensure full funding of the DRF request, this adjustment would be permissible only if the bill provided for full funding for the DRF and the language included a provision preventing transfers. See additional discussion in the Budget Reform Proposals in the Analytical Perspectives volume.

The Flood Map Modernization Fund is used to ensure the Map Modernization investment is preserved and that FEMA makes progress toward addressing flood hazard data update needs for communities who rely heavily on structural flood control defenses as well as those communities at high risk of flooding along the Nations open coasts. Further, the requested funding will allow FEMA to implement a multi-year mapping effort that meets the FEMA statutory requirement to review the flood hazard maps on a five-year cycle and address flood hazard data update needs.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate floodplain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within one year of the time they are identified as flood-prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes. In addition, Federally regulated funding institutions cannot provide loans to non-participating communities with an identified flood hazard.

The Budget Request assumes collection of all of the administrative and program costs associated with flood insurance activities from policy holders. In addition, $50,000,000 from premium collections will be used to support repetitive loss mitigation. Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $350,000 for residential and $1,000,000 for other types.

This account also provides $40,000,000 for flood mitigation activities that reduce the risk of flood damage to structures insurable under the National Flood Insurance Program. These activities provide flood mitigation assistance planning support to States and communities through the Flood Mitigation Assistance grant program.

Disaster assistance loans authorized by the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.) are loans to States for the non-Federal portion of cost-sharing funds and community disaster loans to local governments incurring substantial loss of tax and other revenues as a result of a major disaster. The funds requested for this program include direct loans and a subsidy based on criteria including loan amount and interest charged. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis. Loan activity prior to 1992, which is budgeted for on a cash basis, totals less than $500,000 in every year and is not presented separately.

This account supports the research and development programs of the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office (DNDO). DNDO is dedicated to both the development and enhancement of global nuclear detection architecture; deployment support for the domestic detection system; coordination of effective sharing of nuclear detection-related information; the coordination of nuclear detection development; technical nuclear forensics; and the establishment of procedures and training for end users of nuclear detection equipment.

The 2011 Budget provides for a systems development program aimed at providing near-term technical solutions addressing pressing operational requirements. Funding is also provided for the test and evaluation of all developed systems prior to acquisition decisions, ensuring that a full systems characterization has been conducted prior to any deployments. Additionally, funding is provided to expand operational support programs that provide information analysis and situational awareness, technical support, training curricula, and response protocols to field-users. The 2011 Research, Development, and Operations scope and budget reflect the transfer of Transformational Research and Development from DNDO to Science and Technology in a move to consolidate research within the Department.

Research, development, and operations funds for each fiscal year will be available for obligation for three years.

Funds for this account are used to procure a full range of radiation detection technologies for DHS components. These technologies are deployed at the Nation's ports of entry as well as in some urban areas. In 2011, mostly mobile and some fixed systems will be acquired for use by the Customs and Border Patrol, Coast Guard, and Transportation Security Administration. The emphasis on mobile systems reflects the shifting focus away from stationary radiation portal monitors at ports-of-entry and onto scanning at non-traditional pathways and flexible rad/nuc screening operations.

SEC. 501. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 502. Subject to the requirements of section 503 of this Act, the unexpended balances of prior appropriations provided for activities in this Act may be transferred to appropriation accounts for such activities established pursuant to this Act, may be merged with funds in the applicable established accounts, and thereafter may be accounted for as one fund for the same time period as originally enacted.

SEC. 503. (a) None of the funds provided by this Act, provided by previous appropriations Acts to the agencies in or transferred to the Department of Homeland Security that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year [2010] 2011, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure through a reprogramming of funds that: (1) creates a new program, project, or activity; (2) eliminates a program, project, office, or activity; or (3) increases funds for any program, project, or activity for which funds have been denied or restricted by the Congress; (4) proposes to use funds directed for a specific activity by either of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate or the House of Representatives for a different purpose; or (5) contracts out any function or activity for which funding levels were requested for Federal full-time equivalents in the object classification tables contained in the fiscal year 2010 Budget Appendix for the Department of Homeland Security, as modified by the joint explanatory statement accompanying this Act, unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

(b) None of the funds provided by this Act, provided by previous appropriations Acts to the agencies in or transferred to the Department of Homeland Security that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year [2010] 2011, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees or proceeds available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure for programs, projects, or activities through a reprogramming of funds in excess of $5,000,000 or 10 percent, whichever is less, that: (1) augments existing programs, projects, or activities; (2) reduces by 10 percent funding for any existing program, project, or activity, or numbers of personnel by 10 percent [as approved by the Congress]; or (3) results from any general savings from a reduction in personnel that would result in a change in existing programs, projects, or activities [as approved by the Congress], unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

(c) Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the Department of Homeland Security by this Act or provided by previous appropriations Acts may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation, except as otherwise specifically provided, shall be increased by more than 10 percent by such transfers: Provided, That any transfer under this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under subsection (b) and shall not be available for obligation unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such transfer.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) currently provides deep rental assistance to more than 4.6 million households through at least 13 different programs (each with its own rules) administered by three operating divisions with separate field staff. These programs, with income-based rents, are implemented through an infrastructure of some 4,200 Public Housing Agencies (PHAs), 17,000 private owners with individual federal contracts, and hundreds of non-profit rental program administrators. This structure increases transaction costs for developers and communities and makes it more difficult for families in need to access HUD programs, while at the same time worst case housing needs and homelessness are increasing significantly.

The numerous programs and administrative entities present many barriers to eligible low-income families seeking an effective and accessible rental assistance program. For example, an eligible low-income family seeking HUD rental assistance cannot apply at one location for all programs; instead, the family must apply on separate waiting lists at various locations. Depending on the type of assistance received, the family may be required to reside in a specific location and may lose its subsidy upon relocation to another dwelling.

The sheer number of entities that administer HUD rental assistance, combined with the geographical limits under which most operate, impede fair access to scarce resources, resulting in waiting times that vary substantially and other adverse impacts. In addition, this balkanized administrative geography limits the use of Federal rental assistance to decrease concentrations of poor and minority families or to expand opportunities to live in mixed-income sustainable neighborhoods.

Another challenge is the capital needs of the aging public and assisted housing stock, which hinders Federal efforts to provide safe, high-quality affordable housing. The Public Housing program in particular has long wrestled with an old physical stock with a backlog of unmet capital needs. Moreover, highly prescriptive government regulations and the isolation of the program from market forces undermine effective and efficient property management.

To address these issues, HUD proposes to initiate a multi-year effort called the Transforming Rental Assistance (TRA) initiative. In 2011, the first phase of this initiative will provide $350 million to preserve approximately 300,000 units of public and assisted housing, increase administrative efficiency at all levels of program operations, and enhance housing choice for residents. When fully implemented, TRA will also improve families' access to HUD rental assistance.

PHAs and private owners will be offered the option of converting to long-term property-based rental assistance contracts that include a resident mobility feature. Some $290 million will be used to fill the gap between the funds otherwise available for the selected properties and the first-year costs of the new contracts. These funds will place participating properties on a sustainable footing from both a physical and financial standpoint, and enable owners to leverage private financing to address immediate and long-term capital needs and implement energy-efficiency improvements.

Up to $50 million will be available to PHAs for three purposes: 1) to offset the one-time costs of combining Housing Choice Voucher (HCV) program administrative functions in approximately 50 regions or areas where PHAs submit locally-designed plans to increase efficiency and effectiveness; 2) for outreach to encourage landlords in a broad range of communities to participate in the program; and 3) to provide additional services to expand families' housing choices. Together with other policy changes HUD plans for 2011, these funds and the administrative changes they support will streamline and improve the delivery and oversight of rental assistance and increase the share of housing choice vouchers used in lower poverty communities.

Under this voluntary initiative, HUD will prioritize for conversion public housing owned by agencies that do not operate HCV programs and public housing or assisted multifamily properties owned by PHAs that also administer HCV programs and agree to combine HCV administration with PHAs serving adjacent communities. In addition to achieving economies of scale, this effort will enable residents, if they choose, to move with a portable voucher that becomes available. This resident mobility feature will not reduce the number of units with property-based assistance. Three types of privately-owned HUD-assisted properties will also be eligible for conversion to the proposed new form of rental assistance: Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation contracts administered by PHAs, and properties assisted under the Rent Supplement or Rental Assistance Programs.

By the spring of 2010, the Administration will transmit to the Congress proposed legislation to amend the project-based voucher program under section 8(o)(13) of the U.S. Housing Act and authorize the long-term property-based rental assistance contracts (with a resident mobility feature) that would be funded by the Budget request. Enactment of a number of the provisions in the Section 8 Voucher Reform Act is also an integral part of the Transforming Rental Assistance initiative. The Administration will work with the Congress to finalize this vital legislation.

Following Hurricane Katrina, approximately 36,799 displaced families were assisted through this account. HUD received $79 million in 2005 from a FEMA mission assignment to provide housing assistance to these families who were previously HUD-assisted or who were homeless. An additional supplemental appropriation of $390 million pursuant to P.L. 109–148 continues to provide assistance to these families. Over the past three-and-a-half years, most of these families have transitioned to other HUD-funded permanent supportive housing programs. As of December 2009, only 685 families remained in this program. HUD expects these families to transition to the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance (Housing Choice Voucher) program.

The Tenant-Based Rental Assistance Program (also known as the Housing Choice Voucher program) provides housing assistance to approximately two million extremely low- to low-income families to rent in the neighborhoods of their choice. This is the Federal government's largest and most income-targeted program for assisting low-income families to rent decent, safe and sanitary housing in the private market. The program includes a set-aside for tenant-protection vouchers, which are provided when certain actions occur, such as public housing demolition or disposition, or when landlords opt out of Project-Based Section 8 contracts. About 2,400 state and local Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) administer the Housing Choice Voucher program.

With the 2011 Budget, the Department reaffirms its commitment to improving the Housing Choice Voucher program. The level of funding requested in this Budget will allow PHAs to fund vouchers under lease as of the end of 2009, as well as new vouchers awarded in 2010. By the end of 2011, the Department expects to help almost 2.2 million families through this program. This is over 100,000 more families than were assisted at the end of 2009, and represents the largest number of families ever assisted by this program. The 2011 Budget also proposes shifting $113.6 million required to renew nearly 15,000 Section 811 Housing for Disabled Persons Mainstream vouchers from the Section 811 account to this account. This one-time shift will allow the Department to consolidate rental assistance programs, thereby saving a significant amount of administrative resources.

The 2011 Budget also provides $85 million in new special purpose vouchers for homeless and at-risk of homelessness families with children and persons with disabilities.

In addition, the Administration proposes to: 1) Design a comprehensive development strategy to improve HUD IT systems to better manage and administer the Voucher program; 2) Implement an improved Section 8 Management Assessment Program (24 CFR 985) that will ensure strengthened oversight, quality control, and performance metrics for the Housing Choice Voucher program; 3) Continue the study to develop a formula to allocate administrative fees based on the cost of an efficiently managed PHA operating the Housing Choice Voucher program; 4) Develop a study to evaluate current Housing Quality Standards and improve the unit inspection process; and 5) Eliminate the cap restriction imposed by past Appropriations Acts on the number of families that each PHA may serve.

The Budget requests $9.4 billion for project-based rental assistance, of which $400 million is requested as an advance appropriation to become available in 2012.

The Project-Based Rental Assistance program assists approximately 1.3 million extremely low- and low-income households in obtaining decent, safe, and sanitary housing in private accommodations. Project-based rental assistance serves families, elderly households and disabled households and provides transitional housing for the homeless. Through this funding, HUD supports approximately 18,000 contracts with private owners of multifamily rental housing to provide housing for low- and very low-income families. This funding pays the difference between what a household can afford, generally 30 percent of its eligible income, and the approved market-based rent for a housing unit. Program activities include the following:

Contract Renewals and Amendments.—These activities provide funding for HUD to renew expiring lease contracts. Currently, around 81 percent of the contracts are renewed annually; the other 19 percent are long-term contracts funded with previous appropriations. These funds go directly to the housing costs of low- and very low-income families in the program. Also, funding amendments to a Section 8 contract are required to maintain the project until its contract expiration date if actual costs incurred exceed the amount of budget authority originally obligated for the project. These additional costs are funded in part by utilizing recoveries of excess balances remaining on expired Section 8 contracts that utilized less than anticipated resources to complete the contract.

Contract Administrators.—This activity funds the local level administration of this program through HUD contracts with performance-based contract administrators. These entities, which are typically public housing authorities or state housing finance agencies, are responsible for conducting on-site management reviews of assisted properties; adjusting contract rents; reviewing, processing, and paying monthly vouchers submitted by owners; renewing contracts with property owners; and responding to health and safety issues at properties. For 2011, not to exceed $322 million is requested for this set-aside.

Tenant Resources, Information and Outreach Activities.—The Department may make available up to $10 million of funds available under this heading for tenant resources, information, and outreach grants. These grants will provide financial assistance to tenant groups, nonprofit organizations, and public entities for building the capacity of tenant organizations and furthering the purposes of the Mark-to-Market program, including preservation of low-income housing and tenant services. The authority to make available these funds is provided under Section 514(f) of the Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act (MAHRA) of 1997 (42 U.S.C. 1437f note).

The Public Housing Capital Fund, a formula-driven program based on estimated need, is designed to respond to the capital and management improvement requirements of public housing. The program protects and enhances a valuable affordable housing resource, which serves approximately 1.1 million families with limited income. Of those families, 30 percent are elderly and 33 percent are disabled.

Of the $2.044 billion requested for this program, nearly $2 billion will fund capital grants. Other uses include up to $15 million for public housing financial and physical assessment support, up to $20 million for emergencies and disasters, and up to $9 million for administrative and judicial receiverships.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5) provided $4 billion for the Public Housing Capital Fund. In 2009, HUD awarded $3 billion by formula and $1 billion through a competition. These funds will reduce the backlog of capital needs and support energy efficient, green communities and other priority investments. The 2011 Budget request recognizes that the program is working to absorb funding appropriated in the Recovery Act and anticipates that funding already in the pipeline will produce a high level of output through 2011.

The Budget request of $4.829 billion will fund 100 percent of Public Housing Authorities' (PHAs) estimated eligibility for operating subsidies under the Operating Fund formula. Operating subsidies are provided to PHAs to assist in funding the operation and maintenance expenses of public housing units in accordance with Section 9(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. The tables below display the sources of PHAs' revenue and expenditures by category and are based on PHAs' annual financial statements for fiscal years ending June 2009 through March 2009.

Sources of PHAs' Operating Revenue

Category	Annual income	Percent of total
Operating Subsidies .....	$3,762	57%
Dwelling Rental .....	2,520	38%
Investment .....	112	2%
Other Income .....	219	3%
Total, Operating Revenue .....	$6,613	100%

Operating Subsidies.—Represent HUD's contributions to a PHA's operating budget. After consultation with PHAs, HUD adopted the current formula in 2007 based on the congressionally sanctioned cost study conducted by the Harvard Graduate School of Design. HUD sets a formula-determined project expense level (PEL) for each project and separately computes the project utility expense level (UEL) and audit costs. The subsidy is the projected PEL, UEL, and allowable add-on expenses minus projected dwelling rental income.

Dwelling Rental.—Income derived from tenants' rents.

Investment Income.—Income from interest earned on general fund investments.

PUBLIC HOUSING OPERATING FUND—Continued

Other Income.—Includes income from other sources such as renting rooftop space for signs or broadcasting, and from operating services for tenants, such as laundromats or day care centers. Excludes Proceeds from Disposition from Assets Held for Sale, Cost of Sale of Assets, and Gain/Loss on Sale of Fixed Assets totaling $54 million.

PHAs' Operating Expenditures

Category	Annual expenditures	Percent of total
Utilities .....	$1,574	25%
Administration .....	1,860	29%
General Operating Expenses .....	596	9%
Maintenance .....	2,039	32%
Tenant Services .....	171	3%
Protective Services .....	158	2%
Total, Operating Expenses .....	$6,398	100%

Utilities.—Includes water, sewer, electricity, gas, and fuel.

Administration.—Includes administrative salaries, legal expenses, staff training, travel, accounting fees, auditing fees, sundry, and outside management costs.

General Operating Expenses.—Includes insurance, payments made to local governments in lieu of taxes, terminal leave payments, employee benefit contributions, collection losses, interest on administrative and sundry notes, and other general expenses.

Ordinary Maintenance and Operations.—Consists of expenses for labor, materials, contracts, and garbage fees associated with the day-to-day operation of the public housing authority.

Tenant Services.—Covers salaries, recreation, publication, contract costs, training, and other expenses.

Protective Services.—Includes expenses for labor, materials, and contract costs.

The Choice Neighborhoods Initiative will provide $250 million in competitive grants to transform neighborhoods of extreme poverty into functioning, sustainable mixed-income neighborhoods with appropriate services, schools, public assets, transportation, and access to jobs. The goal of the program, first funded in 2010, is to demonstrate that concentrated and coordinated neighborhood investments from multiple sources can transform a distressed neighborhood and improve the quality of life of current and future residents.

Choice Neighborhoods grants will primarily fund the preservation, rehabilitation, and transformation of public and HUD-assisted housing. The program builds on the successes of public housing transformation under HOPE VI with a broader approach to concentrated poverty. Grantees will include not only public housing authorities but also local governments, non-profits and for-profit developers. Grant funds can be used for resident and community services, community development and affordable housing activities in surrounding communities, and multifamily or single family property disposition, including the conversion of these properties to affordable housing. The program will also implement rent and work incentives to help public and HUD-assisted housing residents access jobs and move to self-sufficiency.

Grantees will undertake comprehensive local planning with input from residents and the community. A strong emphasis will be placed on local community planning for school and educational improvements, including early childhood initiatives. Up to ten percent of the appropriation will be used for planning grants to assist local partnerships to develop strong proposals for future fiscal year grant competitions.

The Department will place a strong emphasis on coordination with other Federal agencies, notably the Departments of Education, Labor, Transportation, Health and Human Services and the Environmental Protection Agency, to leverage additional resources. Where possible, the program will be coordinated with the Department of Education's Promise Neighborhoods proposal. The Administration will propose authorizing legislation to implement this initiative in the spring of 2010.

The HOPE VI program, in coordination with funding from the Public Housing Capital Fund, has accomplished its goal of contributing to the demolition of 100,000 severely distressed public housing units. The Budget proposes no additional funds. Instead, the Department proposes to build on the success of the HOPE VI program with its Choice Neighborhoods Initiative. First funded in 2010, Choice Neighborhoods will make a broad range of transformative investments in high-poverty neighborhoods where public and assisted housing is concentrated.

The remaining balance of $750 million in HOPE VI funds at the end of 2009 will spend out over several years as redevelopment projects are completed. Cumulative results of the HOPE VI program as of September 30, 2009 are as follows: 72,718 households relocated; 94,367 units demolished; 80,130 units (new and rehabilitated) completed; and 78,347 completed units occupied.

Title I of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act (NAHASDA) of 1996 (P.L. 104-330) authorized the Native American Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds on a formula basis to Indian tribes and their tribally designated housing entities to help them address housing needs within their communities. HUD has determined, using 2000 Census data, that 273,658 American Indian/Alaska Native households, out of 965,684, have "severe housing needs." This is defined as a lack of basic plumbing or kitchen facilities, having more than 1.01 persons per room, or having a cost burden of over 50 percent of income. According to the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, in 2002, 90,000 Indian families were homeless or underhoused. On tribal lands, 28 percent of Indian households were found to be overcrowded or to lack adequate plumbing and kitchen facilities, compared to 5.4 percent of national households. The Budget supports a program goal to reduce over-crowding on Native lands by 10 percent.

The Budget includes $580 million for the total activities of this program in 2011. Because of the appropriations provided in the Recovery Act, direct program output, as measured by outlays, will be at historically high levels in 2010 and 2011.

The Native American Housing Block Grant program includes a guaranteed loan provision (Title VI). A guarantee level of $20 million is proposed for this loan guarantee program for 2011. A primary goal of the Title VI program is to encourage private lenders to provide financing in Indian country. Therefore, the program provides for the Federal guarantee of notes or other obligations issued by Indian tribes or tribally designated housing entities for the purpose of financing affordable housing activities described in section 202 of the Act.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1998 and beyond (including modifications of guarantees that resulted from obligations in any given year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Hawaiian Homelands Homeownership Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-568) amended the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 by adding Title VIII, which authorized the Native Hawaiian Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds to assist and promote affordable housing activities to develop, maintain and operate affordable housing for eligible low-income Native Hawaiian families.

It authorizes annual grants to the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands (DHHL) for housing and housing-related assistance, pursuant to an annual housing plan, within the area in which DHHL is authorized to provide that assistance. DHHL uses performance measures and benchmarks that are based on the needs and priorities established in its five- and one-year housing plans. The Budget requests $10 million for this program.

The Low-Rent Public Housing Loan Fund provides direct Federal loans to fund remaining Public Housing Agency (PHA) and Indian Housing Authority (IHA) construction, acquisition, and modernization activities reserved under the Annual Contributions appropriation through 1986. These loans are made by borrowing from the Treasury. Under legislation enacted during 1986 (P.L. 99-272), amounts borrowed from the Treasury are forgiven at the end of each fiscal year and the loans to PHAs/IHAs are forgiven as construction, acquisition, and modernization activities are completed. Since 1987, new reservations of capital funds for construction, acquisition, and modernization activities have been provided directly from the Public Housing Capital Fund appropriations.

This program provides access to sources of private financing for Indian families, Indian tribes, and their tribally designated housing entities who otherwise could not acquire housing financing because of the unique legal status of Indian trust land. The Budget proposes funding to support additional loan guarantee activity and to provide managerial and systems support. The program has issued 9,438 loan guarantees totaling $1.4 billion since 1995, with 52 percent of the activity occurring in 2008 and 2009. Program growth for 2011 is expected to increase by 45 percent, representing almost $1 billion in obligated lending authority, comprised of 6,933 loans. Even through the national foreclosure crisis, the program maintains a claims rate of less than one percent.

The Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS (HOPWA) program is the only Federal program dedicated to address the urgent housing needs of low-income Americans living with HIV and AIDS. HOPWA funding provides States and localities with resources and incentives to devise long-term comprehensive strategies for planning and providing housing and supportive services to meet the complex, multiple needs of persons living with HIV and AIDS and their families. HOPWA funds have been demonstrated to help reduce the risk of homelessness, increase housing stability and improve access to HIV care and health outcomes for program participants.

Ninety percent of HOPWA funds are distributed to States and eligible metropolitan areas according to a formula, which is based on the number of AIDS cases in the jurisdiction. The remaining 10 percent is awarded competitively to States, local governments, and private nonprofit entities, including faith-based organizations, for projects of national significance. Awards are also made to States and local governments for projects in jurisdictions that do not qualify for a formula allocation. HUD provides funding priority to the renewal of expiring competitive projects that provide permanent supportive housing. The $340 million requested for 2011 will support outcome goals in which assisted households will achieve housing stability in permanent housing.

The Community Development Fund account includes the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and a number of Administration initiatives administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The CDBG program provides flexible annual formula grants to the States, Insular Areas, and more than 1,160 local governments to benefit mainly low- to moderate-income persons. The funding is used for a wide-range of community and economic development activities, such as public infrastructure improvements, housing rehabilitation and construction, job creation and retention, and public services (e.g., child care). Seventy percent of the CDBG formula grants are distributed to mainly urban areas (entitlement communities), and 30 percent to the States (non-entitlement communities).

The 2011 Budget fully funds the CDBG program at $4.4 billion. In addition, the Budget proposes a number of improvements to the CDBG program, including redesigning the state and local government consolidated plans and planning process, increasing accountability, and improving performance metrics in grantee reporting. Further, long-term disaster recovery reforms, including housing-related issues, are being considered as a part of the White House Long-Term Disaster Recovery Working Group and recommendations will be presented to the President this spring.

A new initiative, the Catalytic Investment Competition Grants program will provide $150 million in competitive grants with the purpose of providing economic development and gap financing to implement and capitalize innovative and targeted economic investment for neighborhood and community revitalization for low- to moderate-income families. The outcomes of the grants will be measured improvement in economic activity and job creation in targeted neighborhoods. The program will create a competitive funding stream that is responsive to changes in economic and market conditions. The funds will be targeted towards communities or neighborhoods experiencing demonstrated distress as defined by the Secretary and that have developed an innovative and robust plan with measurable outcomes to improve economic vitality and increase jobs in a target area. The definition of distress may include, but is not limited to, large-scale property vacancy and abandonment due to long-term employment and population loss. The plans to improve economic vitality may vary, including increasing economic development that is centrally located or near public transit.

Grant funds may be used for, but are not limited to, activities that: 1) implement projects designed to reclaim vacant property, for the purposes of creating green infrastructure and other environmentally and economically sustainable uses; 2) remove or ameliorate property-related obstacles to economic recovery; 3) support assistance to small and medium-sized businesses and other redevelopment activities to facilitate economic development, neighborhood viability, high quality infrastructure, and attractive amenities in targeted neighborhoods; 4) support economic activities related to transit-oriented development; and 5) administrative costs, as established by the Secretary.

The Department will consider how much and to what extent the project will complement and leverage other community development and revitalization activities. A project may implement activities to augment the Choice Neighborhoods Initiative, Promise Neighborhoods, HOPE VI, Sustainable Communities, or other place-based strategies to help strengthen existing and planned investments in targeted neighborhoods to improve economic viability, extend neighborhood transformation efforts, and foster viable and sustainable communities. Applicants will be required to leverage other federal resources, such as, concentrating CDBG investments in particular neighborhoods, applying Section 108 Loan Guarantees, and local and state economic development programs.

The 2011 Budget funds the Sustainable Communities Initiative at $150 million, equal to 2010. The Administration believes that affordable housing is best developed "in context" of communities and regions, because proximity to transit, jobs, and retail and other amenities influences the long-term success of both the housing and its occupants. Walkable, transit-oriented, mixed-income and mixed-use communities substantially reduce transportation costs (now a greater part of many family budgets than housing costs), create energy savings (i.e., reducing Vehicle-Miles Traveled), reduce transportation-related emissions, and enhance access to employment and educational opportunities. This initiative has four components.

First, HUD will continue to collaborate with the Department of Transportation (DOT) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to offer Sustainable Communities Planning Grants with the requested funds. The program will catalyze the next generation of integrated metropolitan transportation, housing, land use, and energy planning using the most sophisticated data, analytics, and geographic information systems. These integrated plans will inform state, metropolitan and local decisions on how and where to allocate Federal, state, and local transportation, infrastructure, and housing investments. Better coordination of transportation, infrastructure and housing investments will result in more sustainable development patterns, more affordable communities, reduced greenhouse gas emissions, and more transit-accessible housing choices for residents and firms.

Second, this initiative will fund challenge grants to help localities implement the Sustainable Communities Plans. These investments will provide a local component to the regional planning initiative, enabling local and multi-jurisdictional partnerships to put in place the policies, codes, tools, and critical capital investments to achieve sustainable development patterns. The funding is intended to incentivize rapid changes in practice by local jurisdictions and to properly scale this transforming initiative to meet the substantial interest by communities in meeting sustainability visions initiated in 2010.

Third, the proposal will support the creation and implementation of a capacity-building program and tools clearinghouse designed to support both Sustainable Communities grantees and other communities interested in becoming more sustainable. As of 2009, the number of mayors that have signed the Climate Protection goals is significantly more than could be supported through the planning and challenge grant program. This clearinghouse and educational program will be designed to assist a wide array of stakeholders and build the capacity of all levels of government to implement sustainable community strategies.

Finally, the Initiative will provide additional funding for a joint HUD-DOT-EPA research effort designed to advance transportation and housing linkages on a number of levels.

For 2011, the Administration will also expand and improve the coordination of Federal efforts to incentivize state and local government to plan for and implement pre-disaster mitigation strategies through the Sustainable Communities Initiative. Through a partnership with the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency, the goal is to support strategic local approaches to sustainable development by coupling hazard mitigation with related community development goals and activities that reduce risks while protecting life, property, and the environment.

This account also funds the University Community Fund at $25 million. These funds serve to promote revitalization in communities surrounding the universities, with a renewed emphasis on energy conservation, homeownership training/counseling, and other community and economic development activities.

The Indian Community Development program will continue to be funded in this account at $65 million. This program provides eligible grantees with direct grants for use in developing viable Indian and Alaska Native Communities, including decent housing, a suitable living environment, and economic opportunities, primarily for low- and moderate-income persons.

This account also reflects prior year CDBG disaster supplementals spending, the 2009 American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding of $1 billion in CDBG formula grants, and $2 billion for Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP) II competitive grants. The NSP grants are for emergency assistance for the redevelopment of abandoned and foreclosed homes and are in addition to $3.92 billion NSP funding under the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, which was a mandatory appropriation and is reflected in a separate account.

No new appropriation is requested for the Empowerment Zone (EZ) and Renewal Community (RC) programs in the 2011 Budget. The EZs' and RCs' tax incentives were scheduled to expire on December 31, 2010. The Administration supports extension of the EZs and RCs through December 31, 2011.

Empowerment zones and renewal communities are federally designated economically distressed areas that receive a mix of tax incentives and grants to promote job creation and economic revitalization. Recent research suggests that an area's designation as an EZ can lead to substantial improvements in employment rates for local resident (including among high school dropouts), declines in poverty rates, and increases in property values and rents.

The Administration supports extending the Federal Community Renewal tax incentives so that the EZs' and RCs' ongoing efforts to encourage and support business investment, economic revitalization, and expansion of job opportunities for residents in the designated high poverty, high unemployment census tracts may continue. The initiative complements the President's goals of strengthening communities and focusing Federal resources on areas of greatest need, primarily through the expansion of business opportunities. In addition, as part of the Administration's place-based agenda, the Administration will explore new ways to target economically distressed areas; simplify the mix of tax incentives and grants; strengthen data reporting and evaluation; connect zones to broader regional economies; and increase benefits to small businesses.

An amendment to the Internal Revenue Code enacted in fiscal year 2001 (the Community Renewal Tax Relief Act of 2000) approved major tax incentives to revitalize areas of pervasive poverty, unemployment, and general distress, and HUD designated 40 urban and rural RCs and a third round of eight urban EZs under the 2001 law. This law also allows the earlier 22 urban EZs to receive the same package of tax incentives, all of which expired December 31, 2009.

The 2011 Budget requests no funding for the Brownfields Economic Development Initiative (BEDI) program. BEDI is a competitive grant program designed to assist cities with the redevelopment of brownfield sites for the purposes of economic development and job creation. Brownfields are abandoned, idled, and underused industrial and commercial facilities and land where expansion and redevelopment is burdened by real or potential environmental contamination. The program is relatively small and local governments have access to other public and private funds, including the larger Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), which can serve similar purposes.

The HOME Investment Partnerships Program is authorized by the National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101-625), as amended. This program provides flexible annual formula grant assistance to States and units of local government to increase the supply of affordable housing and expand homeownership for low- to very-low income persons. Sixty percent of the formula grant funds is awarded to participating local governments and 40 percent is awarded to states. These communities often use the funds in partnership with local non-profit organizations to fund a wide range of activities that build, buy, and/or rehabilitate affordable housing for rent or homeownership or provide direct rental assistance to low-income people. Projects funded by HOME often leverage private dollars and are used in conjunction with the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit, Community Development Block Grant, and local funds.

Over time, the funding provided in the 2011 Budget is estimated to result in the production of almost 69,220 units of affordable housing through new construction, rehabilitation, and/or acquisition. It is also estimated that communities will use a portion of their funding to support tenant-based rental assistance for over 15,929 units.

In addition, the Budget does not include distinct funding for the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (SHOP) that had been previously funded in the separate SHOP account. However, all eligible activities of the SHOP program are eligible activities under the HOME program.

This account also includes a $2.25 billion special allocation of HOME funds provided under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5) to accelerate the production and preservation of tens of thousands of units of affordable housing that have received an award of Low-Income Housing Tax Credits.

The Housing Trust Fund was originally authorized in the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Pub. L. 110-289) under section 1338 of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.) with a dedicated funding stream from assessments on Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. However, the Federal Housing Finance Agency has indefinitely suspended these assessments. The Budget proposes to fund the Housing Trust Fund through legislation directing $1 billion to finance the fund.

The purpose of the Housing Trust Fund is to provide grants to States to increase and preserve the supply of rental housing for extremely low- and very low-income families, and to increase homeownership for extremely low- and very low-income families. The funding will be distributed by formula to States or State-designated entities that will target resources to areas with substantial needs. The Housing Trust Fund will help address the growing shortage of affordable housing, which is one of the most serious social and economic problems facing the country. The funding will be used for production, preservation, and rehabilitation of affordable rental housing and for production, preservation, and rehabilitation of housing for homeownership (limited to 10 percent of the funding). Of the total amounts made available, not less than 75 percent shall be used to benefit extremely low-income households, for whom the affordable housing shortage problem is most acute. Over time, the funding provided for the Housing Trust Fund in 2011 is expected to produce approximately 29,000 rental units and 7,000 homebuyer units.

The 2011 Budget provides $60 million for a redesigned Capacity Building program. The Administration proposes a competitive grant program to develop the capacity and ability of community development corporations, community housing development organizations, and local governments to undertake community development and affordable housing projects and programs for low-income families.

Recipients will include national and regional intermediaries with local affiliates and partnerships, and consortia of intermediaries with demonstrated expertise. Eligible recipients will have: (1) demonstrated expertise and experience in housing and community development; (2) demonstrated sound and extensive understanding of the need for capacity building in relation to objective information and data; (3) successful past performance in administering technical assistance and capacity building funding; and (4) demonstrated compliance with any other factors or priorities as the Secretary may prescribe.

The economic downturn and foreclosure crisis have significantly depleted resources in local governments while increasing demand for services. Since states and cities face serious budget constraints, revenue declines often turn quickly into layoffs and cuts in services for the poor. In addition to non-profit intermediaries and other consortia, this program will work with states and cities to help them readily understand how to meet the needs of their communities, leverage private and other kinds of resources, and align existing programs to build resilience in tough economic times.

Assistance to non-profits and local governments will develop core skills of staff and management and enable them to become partners with the Administration to implement key initiatives such as Choice Neighborhoods, Sustainable Communities, and the Catalytic Competition, and to work to restore the economic vitality of their communities. Capacity building activities include the development of core skills to organize, manage, implement and access capital to carry out community development and affordable housing projects.

Grants provided under this program will require a three-to-one match from private sources.

The 2011 Budget requests no appropriations for the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program. Activities under the Capacity Building for Community Development and Affordable Housing Program (formerly called Section 4) are requested separately under a new Capacity Building account.

The Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (SHOP) is authorized by Section 11 of the Housing Opportunity Program Extension Act of 1996, and provides funds to increase the ability of non-profit organizations to leverage funds from other sources to assist low-income homebuyers willing to contribute "sweat equity" toward the construction of their houses. The Administration plans to encourage state and local government grantees of the larger HOME Investment Partnerships Program to fund SHOP projects, as the HOME statute includes the same eligible activities.

The Capacity Building for Community Development and Affordable Housing Program is authorized by Section 4 of the HUD Demonstration Act of 1993 to develop the capacity and ability of community development corporations and community development organizations to undertake community development and affordable housing projects and programs. The Administration proposes a redesigned Capacity Building program, which will expand eligible grantees for funding, and deepen the capacity of community-based organizations to more effectively assist low-income families.

The Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP) was authorized by the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (HERA) and funded at $3.92 billion. In response to the foreclosure crisis, HERA directed HUD to develop a formula to distribute the funds to states and local governments with the greatest need. To determine the areas with the greatest need, the allocation formula had to be based on home foreclosures, subprime loans, and mortgage defaults or delinquencies. Grantees may use NSP funds for a number of eligible activities, including establish financing mechanisms; purchase and rehabilitate abandoned or foreclosed properties; establish land banks; demolish blighted structures; and redevelop vacant or demolished property. NSP grantees must use at least 25 percent of the funds appropriated for the purchase and redevelopment of abandoned or foreclosed residential properties that will be used to house individuals or families whose incomes do not exceed 50 percent of the area median income. In addition, all activities funded by NSP must benefit low- and moderate-income persons whose income does not exceed 120 percent of area median income.

In late September 2008, HUD announced direct NSP allocations to 309 jurisdictions, including all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Insular Areas. Pursuant to HERA, grantees have 18 months from the date funds are made available to obligate the funds, meaning that all obligations and substantial disbursements are expected by the end of 2010.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA) made several changes to the NSP program as enacted by HERA and appropriated an additional $2 billion in funding for the NSP program. The ARRA funding for NSP is reflected within the Community Development Fund account .

In 2011, the Administration will be implementing the HEARTH Act, legislation that combined HUD's three competitive grant programs—Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, and Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Single Room Occupancy—into a single Continuum of Care program with flexibility to better meet community needs. Additionally, the HEARTH Act renames the Emergency Shelter Grants program as the Emergency Solutions Grant program and amends the program to place a larger focus on homelessness prevention. Finally, the legislation created the Rural Housing Stability Assistance program, which dedicates resources to preventing and ending homelessness in rural areas nationwide.

The Homeless Assistance Grants account provides funds for the Emergency Solutions Grant (ESG), Continuum of Care (CoC), and the Rural Housing Stability Assistance programs. These programs, which award funds through formula (ESG) and competitive (CoC and Rural Housing Stability Assistance) processes, enable localities to shape and implement comprehensive, flexible, coordinated approaches to address the multiple issues of homelessness. Many communities have made great strides in creating comprehensive approaches to ending chronic homelessness through the development of local plans.

The Budget requests $2.1 billion for a wide range of activities to assist homeless persons and prevent future homelessness. HUD estimates it will use $1.7 billion for competitive renewals in the CoC program, about $160 million for new competitive projects in the CoC and Rural Housing Stability Assistance program, and $200 million for the Emergency Solutions Grant Program. The HEARTH Act places a major emphasis on permanent housing for homeless individuals and families by requiring 30 percent of competitive funds to be used for this purpose.

The Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2008 (P.L. 110-252) created this new account and provided $73 million for permanent supportive housing assistance as referenced in the Road Home Program of the Louisiana Recovery Authority (LRA). Of the total amount appropriated, $50 million is for permanent supportive housing, which serves approximately 1,000 homeless individuals and families living with disabilities. These grants are administered under the Shelter Plus Care program, as authorized under subtitle F of title IV of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11403 et seq.). The LRA would be eligible to apply for Homeless Assistance Grants to renew this assistance. Additionally, this account provides $23 million in project-based rental assistance vouchers to LRA to support an estimated 2,000 elderly and disabled disaster victims, as authorized, under section 8(o)(13) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(o)(13)). Beginning in 2010, these vouchers are funded within the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance account.

cient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs, all of which are no longer active. The operational expenses are financed from a permanent, indefinite appropriation to administer the remaining repayments of loans and recaptures in the portfolio. Annually, any amounts in the account are returned as a dividend to the Treasury.

The Section 312 loan program portfolio, which provided first and junior lien financing at below market interest rates for the rehabilitation of homes in low-income neighborhoods, constituted a large portion of the account activities. This program ceased to originate new loans over 10 years ago. Since the sale of the Section 312 loan portfolio to the private sector in 2001, activity in this account has been minimal.

The 2011 Budget increases the guaranteed loan limit to $500 million, but does not request appropriations for the Community Development Loan Guarantee program (Section 108). Carry over Section 108 Loan Guarantee credit subsidy in this account will continue to be used until exhausted. Appropriations language requires zero credit subsidy cost and provides for the collection of fees to fund program costs. Program activities include economic development projects, housing rehabilitation, public facilities rehab, construction or installation for the benefit of low- to moderate-income persons, or to aid in the prevention of slums.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed since 1992 (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses for this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Guaranteed loans.—The 2011 Budget does not request appropriated funding for the Section 108 Loan Guarantees program. The Administration requests legislation to allow HUD to collect fees to offset credit subsidy costs. The financing account shows the status of privately financed guaranteed loan commitments made in and after 1992. An accompanying liquidating account shows activity for Federal Financing Bank (FFB) direct loan activity obligated prior to July 1, 1986, and any pre-1992 loan guarantee activity.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of loan guarantees that resulted from commitments in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

Guaranteed loans.—Guaranteed loan assistance under the Community Development Loan Guarantee (Section 108) program is provided to eligible communities to finance economic development activities, such as housing rehabilitation, development or expansion of public facilities, acquisition of real property, and rehabilitation of publicly owned real property. Until 1986, the Federal Financing Board (FFB) in the Department of Treasury financed these guaranteed loans. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 required private financing of all loan guarantees committed after July 1, 1986, but the FFB will continue disbursing loans for commitments approved prior to July 1, 1986. The activity shown in the above account reflects privately financed guaranteed loans for which commitments were made prior to 1992.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this liquidating account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from FFB direct loans for which loan guarantees were committed prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis.

The Housing for the Elderly (Section 202) program provides capital advance grants and operating subsidies to nonprofit sponsors to construct multifamily housing for very low-income elderly people. The 2011 Budget proposes to eliminate construction funding for new projects in order to redesign the program and institute reforms that will ensure that future projects are more cost effective and well-targeted. The Budget provides $183.7 million to fully fund anticipated renewals and amendments of existing project rental assistance contracts and $90 million for grants to support service coordinators and congregate housing services. Current residents of Section 202 projects and projects in the construction pipeline will not be affected by the elimination of new construction funds in 2011.

Past studies of the Section 202 program have highlighted construction delays, cost overruns, and lengthy development times. The average size of new Section 202 projects has also decreased, and some new projects lack the economies of scale needed to cost effectively provide community spaces and supportive services. To address these concerns, the Administration will redesign the Section 202 program by (1) allowing project sponsors to build larger projects with greater economies of scale, (2) reducing regulatory barriers to allow sponsors to leverage other sources of funding, (3) improving service provision by encouraging partnerships with programs of the Department of Health and Human Services, and (4) changing application requirements to provide more preferences for the extremely frail elderly, who are in the greatest need of supportive housing.

The Housing for Persons with Disabilities (Section 811) program provides capital advance grants and operating subsidies to non-profit sponsors to construct multifamily housing for very low-income people with disabilities. The Budget provides $90 million to fully fund anticipated contract renewal and amendment costs and fund construction amendments and awards.

The Budget also proposes to shift fiscal responsibility of the Section 811 Mainstream Vouchers program to the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance program. The Mainstream Vouchers Program under Section 811 provides tenant-based rental assistance for people with disabilities. The Budget proposes shifting the $113.6 million required to renew nearly 15,000 Mainstream Vouchers from the Section 811 account to the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance account. This one-time shift will allow the Department to consolidate its voucher programs and achieve administrative savings.

The Administration continues to seek reforms to make this program more efficient and effective, such as legislative reforms which encourage project sponsors to leverage other sources of funding, provide supportive housing in community-based settings in keeping with the Olmstead decision, and lead to more efficient use of capital advance awards.

The Housing Counseling Assistance Program provides comprehensive housing counseling services to eligible homeowners and tenants through grants to non-profit intermediaries, state governmental entities, and other agencies with local to national presences. Eligible counseling activities include pre- and post-purchase education, personal financial management, reverse mortgage product education, foreclosure prevention/mitigation, and rental counseling. The Housing Counseling Assistance Program supports the delivery of a wide variety of housing counseling services to homebuyers, homeowners, low- to moderate-income renters, and elderly citizens including the Administration's current foreclosure mitigation efforts. The primary objectives of the Housing Counseling program are to expand homeownership opportunities, improve access to affordable housing, prevent foreclosure, increase financial literacy, and aid in HUD's commitment to bridging the minority homeownership gap. Additionally, the program supports a significant number of individuals with FHA-insured loans, which helps maintain the financial soundness of the FHA insurance funds.

The 2011 Budget includes $88 million for this program, continuing the increase appropriated in 2010.

The objective of the Energy Innovation Fund is to provide support for promising local initiatives that can be replicated across the nation and to stimulate and enhance private investment in cost-saving energy efficiency retrofits of existing housing, through improved use of FHA single family and multifamily mortgage products.

In the single-family housing sector, FHA's Energy Efficient Mortgage (EEM) in its current form has had little traction in the marketplace, with no more than 1,000 such mortgages insured each year. The Energy Innovation Fund is being used to develop an EEM Innovation pilot program which will extend the benefits of the existing FHA EEM and Title I Energy Efficient Property Improvement loan programs to more homeowners. In developing the EEM Innovation HUD is considering several options for financial incentives. HUD also may use a portion of the Energy Innovation Fund to finance the cost of energy audits, to the extent that this expense may be a barrier to some borrowers securing an EEM. HUD is also exploring a federal partnership with national home energy rating organizations to streamline energy audit procedures, and with an emerging home performance remodeling industry to ensure quality installation of recommended energy conservation measures.

HUD is developing a Multifamily Energy Pilot (MEP), which may include financial incentives for borrowers in the following FHA Multifamily programs: Mortgage Insurance for Supplemental Loans for Multifamily Projects, Section 241(a); Mortgage Insurance for Purchase or Refinancing of Existing Multifamily Rental Housing, Section 223(f); and Mortgage Insurance for Rental and Cooperative Housing, Sections 221(d)(3) and 221(d)(4). The MEP program will target property owners and developers seeking energy efficiency improvements in multifamily rehabilitation projects.

No new funds are requested for 2011 as it is anticipated that the 2010 appropriations of $50 million will fund significant pilot program activity through 2011.

The Other Assisted Housing Account contains the programs listed below:

Rent supplement.—Rent supplement assistance payments will continue to be made on behalf of qualified low-income tenants in approximately 13,368 units as of September 30, 2009 that have not converted to Section 8.

Section 235.—The Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 (P.L. 98-181) authorized a restructured Section 235 (Homeownership Assistance) program that provided homeowners a 10-year interest reduction subsidy on their mortgages.

Section 236.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Section 236 Rental Housing Assistance Program, which subsidizes the monthly mortgage payment that an owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. This interest subsidy reduces rents for lower income tenants.

This account includes funding necessary to amend Rent Supplement and Rental Assistance Payment (RAP) contracts in state-aided multifamily housing projects to address cost increases beyond the maximum annual payment limitation previously established for the affected contracts. As some of these rental assistance contracts are terminated due to prepayments or other reasons, remaining balances are recovered. The account includes language to cancel the amounts recovered from projects where rental assistance has been terminated.

The Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere Program, funded from 1992-1995, provided affordable homeownership opportunities for low-income families. Units were converted to homeownership from public and Indian housing properties in HOPE I, from FHA-insured and Government-held multifamily properties in HOPE II, and from Government-owned or -held single family properties in HOPE III. HOPE Grants were used for property acquisition, rehabilitation, mortgage subsidies, security measures, and technical assistance. In addition, grants have been devoted to counseling and training of residents, and other activities intended to help them become economically self-sufficient homeowners. This schedule reflects the expenditure of prior year balances.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public with respect to purchase or leases of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 100 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. The fee receipts are permanently appropriated and have helped finance a portion of the direct administrative expenses incurred in program operations.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund into which rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in Section 236 subsidized projects would be deposited.

The Housing and Community Development Amendment of 1978 authorized the Secretary, subject to approval in appropriation acts, to transfer excess rent collections received after 1978 to the Troubled Projects Operating Subsidy program, renamed the Flexible Subsidy Fund. Prior to that time, collections were used for paying tax and utility increases in Section 236 projects. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1980 amended the 1978 Act by authorizing the transfer of excess rent collections regardless of when collected. The Budget proposes appropriation language in the general provisions at the end of this budget chapter to eliminate the mandatory transfer of excess resources from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund to the Flexible Subsidy Fund. These excess resources cannot be spent under existing law in either account, making the transfer unnecessary.

The Flexible Subsidy Fund assisted financially troubled subsidized projects under certain FHA authorities. The subsidies were intended to prevent potential losses to the FHA fund resulting from project insolvency and to preserve these projects as a viable source of housing for low and moderate-income tenants. Priority was given to projects with Federal insurance-in-force and then to those with mortgages that had been assigned to the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The budget proposes appropriation language in the general provisions at the end of this budget chapter to eliminate the transfer of excess rental income from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund to the Flexible Subsidy Fund. These excess funds cannot be spent under law in either account, making the transfer unnecessary. The excess funds will be withdrawn.

The HOPE for Homeowners (H4H) program was created by the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Act) to help those at risk of default and foreclosure refinance into more affordable, sustainable loans. The principal obligation of all mortgages insured under the H4H program may not exceed $300 billion. Under the H4H Program, eligible homeowners may refinance their current mortgage loans into a new mortgage insured by FHA.

The Helping Families Save Their Homes Act of 2009 amends the National Housing Act, providing for key changes in the H4H program. These changes are effective for endorsements on or after January 1, 2010. These amendments include more underwriting flexibility and lower premia and appreciation sharing assessments. As a result of these changes, H4H will experience a higher level of program volume with $14 billion in loans projected for both 2010 and 2011.

The program is effective from October 1, 2008 to September 30, 2011.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the administrative expenses for this program, as well as the subsidy costs, associated with the loan guarantees committed. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis. Under the Act, the Department of the Treasury is authorized to issue HOPE Bonds, up to the aggregate insurance amount, to finance the subsidy amounts necessary for loan guarantees, as well as for the net costs to the Federal Government of the program, including administrative costs.

The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) provides mortgage insurance to encourage lenders to make credit available to borrowers for which the conventional market does not adequately serve. These include first-time homebuyers, minorities, lower-income families, and residents of underserved areas (central cities and rural areas).

In 2011, FHA is requesting an aggregate limitation of $400 billion on loan guarantees for the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) Fund.

The Budget includes several policy changes to focus FHA's credit enhancement on prudent risks and improve the financial health of the MMI Fund with premia increases. The Budget proposes a statutory revision to allow FHA more flexibility in setting annual premia subject to a specific cap. The Budget also incorporates changes to underwriting criteria that will improve risk management, including raising the minimum credit score required for borrower approval. Including the effects of these changes, the Budget projects a total of $5.8 billion of negative subsidy receipts in 2011.

The Budget requests $250 million in credit subsidy for the Home Equity Conversion Program (HECM) along with a contingency appropriation to meet all program demand, even if demand exceeds projections. The Budget projects insurance of $223 billion in single family forward mortgages and $30 billion in HECMs with an additional $148 billion in commitment limitation available in case these amounts are exceeded during execution.

The Budget requests a total of $207 million for administrative expenses. This increase of $18 million will allow FHA to implement improved risk management systems.

As of 2009, new loans for the Condominium, the Section 203(k) rehabilitation, and Home Equity Conversion programs are in the MMI Fund in order to consolidate single family programs in one fund; previously these loans were made under the General and Special Risk Insurance Funds. Those single family loans made prior to 2009 will remain under the General and Special Risk Insurance Funds.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs, if any, associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and thereafter. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals.

The 2011 direct loan limitation of $50 million in the MMI Fund would permit the Department to use Purchase Money Mortgages (PMMs) to help finance the sale of acquired single family properties. HUD would extend credit for these single family homes to community non-profit organizations or local government entities, which would be expected to sell the properties to low- and moderate-income buyers. The use of PMMs provides a tool for State and local non-profit organizations to use in revitalizing communities, and creates enhanced homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families.

FHA-MUTUAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE CAPITAL RESERVE
ACCOUNT—Continued

In 2002, a Capital Reserve account was established for the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Financial reserves, including securities, of the MMI Fund were transferred from the liquidating account to the Capital Reserve account. In 2003, this mandatory account started earning interest on Treasury investments, collecting negative subsidy and downward re-estimates from the Financing account, and paying upward re-estimates to the Program account. The Liquidating account now only reflects cash-flows related to pre-1992 books of business.
