NOTES ON THE PRIVACY ACT

The Privacy Act, which was enacted in 1974, provides that no agency of the Federal government shall release any information from a person's files without the express written consent of the individual whose records are involved. This law, therefore, prohibits unauthorized disclosure. It is essential that the individual's personal signature on a letter requesting assistance be submitted. This form, once signed and returned, will enable me to write an agency and make an inquiry on your behalf. Please include Social Security, Veterans or pertinent file numbers. If you have additional comments regarding your case, feel free to include them on the back of this page.
