The Honorable Martha N. Johnson
Administrator
United States General Services Administration
1800 F Street NW
Washington, DC 20405

Dear Madam Administrator:

I am writing to request information and a briefing regarding public relations contracts awarded by the General Services Administration.

In 2009, the federal government awarded nearly $1.3 billion in public relations and advertising contracts.¹ When used appropriately, public relations contracts may help federal agencies educate the public about health risks, emergency planning, or similar topics. However, federal law prohibits hiring “publicity experts” and spending appropriated funds on “publicity and propaganda” unless specifically authorized by Congress.² This restriction has been interpreted to mean that agencies cannot engage in purely partisan communications, covert propaganda, or “self-aggrandizement” or “puffery.”³

I recently learned of a contract award which raises concerns about GSA’s use of public relations and advertising contracts. In 2010, the General Services Administration spent nearly $235,000 on a contract for “environmental communications consultant services” awarded to Jane Mobley Associates, Inc. According to the Statement of Work for the contract:

A media probe and reports of multiple government agency investigations into potential health risks in the GSA-controlled Bannister Federal Complex [located in Kansas City] have created an impending crisis event for the government. ... The Bannister Federal Complex requires communications support to assist in proactively developing and implementing a communication plan for reaching multiple audiences with a variety of messages. ... Objective: Bring neutral third party expertise to help the government address issues arising from environmental and related concerns in order to continue to meet GSA's mission while regaining and sustaining maximum public trust.

It is unclear whether this contract would constitute illegal propaganda or "puffery." However, I am concerned whether spending money on these services is in the best interests of the taxpayer. I am particularly concerned about GSA's decision to spend such a significant amount of money to develop a strategy to counter potentially adverse findings of government agency investigations.

To further the Subcommittee's understanding of GSA's management of public relations and advertising contracts, I request that you provide the following information and documents for fiscal years 2005–2010:

- (1) A list of all contracts (including task orders) awarded by GSA for public relations, advertising, or similar services, including all contracts for "crisis communications." Please include with your response a table containing the contract number, the name of the contractor, the scope of the contract, a brief description of the work performed, and the name of the organization requesting the contract;
- (2) A list of all contracts (including task orders) awarded through the GSA Federal Schedules for public relations, advertising, or similar services, including all contracts for "crisis communications." Please include with your response a table containing the contract number, the name of the agency, the name of the contractor, the scope of the contract, and a brief description of the work performed; and
- (3) The complete contract file for all contracts awarded to Jane Mobley Associates.

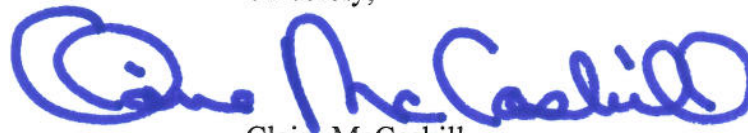

I also request that you provide a briefing for Subcommittee staff on these issues, including information regarding the number, salary levels, and responsibilities of GSA's Office of Communications and Marketing. I request that you provide the information and briefing on or before December 3, 2010.

The jurisdiction of the Subcommittee on Contracting Oversight is set forth in Senate Rule XXV clause 1(k); Senate Resolution 445 section 101 (108th Congress); and Senate Resolution 73 (111th Congress). An attachment to this letter provides additional information about how to respond to the Subcommittee's request.

Please have your staff contact Margaret Daum at (202) 228-3862 with any questions. Please send any official correspondence relating to this request to kelsey_stroud@hsgac.senate.gov.
