

Welcome to Washington, D.C.!

I am so honored to represent you in the United States House of Representatives. As I walk through the halls of our nation's Capitol and the many other historic buildings here in Washington, D.C., I am constantly reminded of God's presence, the deep faith of many of our country's founders and America's rich past of representative democracy.

The District of Columbia is comprised of citizens from all fifty states and all walks of life, coming together to discuss and forge legislation on matters that are important to our great country and its people.

I trust that your time here in Washington, D.C. will be exciting and memorable. If there is anything I can do to make your visit more enjoyable, please come by and visit my office at 307 Cannon House Office Building or call my staff at 202-225-5031.

God Bless,

TOURS AND ATTRACTIONS

Tours Booked Through Our Office:

THE WHITE HOUSE

Summary: For two hundred years, the White House has stood as a symbol of the Presidency, the United States government, and the American people. Its history, and the history of the nation's capital, began when President George Washington signed an Act of Congress in December of 1790 declaring that the federal government would reside in a district "not exceeding ten miles square...on the river Potomac." President Washington, together with city planner Pierre L'Enfant, chose the site for the new residence, which is now 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. President John Adams, our second President was the first to live in the completed White House.

Booking Tour: Please book your tour through our Congressional office by contacting Emily Penn at 202.225.503. The National Cathedral

Summary: The dream of a national cathedral dates back to the days of George Washington's presidency. That dream took an act of Congress but it soon became a reality. Construction for the cathedral started in 1907. In 1912, Bethlehem Chapel opened for services in the unfinished cathedral, construction was put on hold for a brief time then resumed after a brief time for World War I, during the time there was seizure of construction both Bodley and Vaughan (original architects) had died. Near the wars end, General John J. Pershing led fundraising efforts for the church after World War I. American architect Philip Hubert Frohman took over the design of the cathedral and was thenceforth designated the principal architect. In 1990 the completion of the west tower marked the end of 83 years of construction. Funding for the National Cathedral has come entirely from private sources. Memorable moments in the life of the Cathedral include President Theodore Roosevelt's 1907 speech, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr's last sermon, and President Ronald Reagan's State Funeral.

Jefferson Memorial

Summary: The Thomas Jefferson Memorial, modeled after the Pantheon of Rome, is America's foremost memorial to our third president. As an original adaptation of Neoclassical architecture, it is a key landmark in the monumental core of Washington, DC. The circular, colonnaded structure in the classic style was introduced to this country by Thomas Jefferson himself. The Memorial was dedicated in 1943, but the bronze statue spectators view today is not the original, rather the replacement of the plaster model. After World War II the restrictions on the use of metals were finally lifted and the "intended" metal could be used.

Booking Tour: There is no fee or reservations associated with the Thomas Jefferson Memorial.

Location: 12th Street and Independence Avenue, SW

Korean War Memorial

Summary: The Korean War Veterans Memorial was authorized by Public Law 99-572 on Oct. 28, 1986 "...to honor members of the United States Armed Forces who served in the Korean War, particularly those who were killed in action, are still missing inaction, or were held as prisoners of war." The law established an advisory board of 12 veterans appointed by the President to coordinate all aspects of the memorial's construction. There are 19 statues sculpted by Frank Gaylord of Barre, Vt., and cast by Tallix Foundries of Beacon, N.Y. They are approximately 7'3" tall, heroic scale and consist of 14 Army, 3 Marines, 1 Navy, 1 Air Force. They represent an ethnic cross section of America with 12 Caucasian, 3 African American, 2 Hispanic, 1 Oriental and 1

Indian.

The Lincoln Memorial

Summary: "In this temple, as in the hearts of the people for whom he saved the Union, the memory of Abraham Lincoln is enshrined forever." Beneath these words, the 16th President of the United States—the Great Emancipator and preserver of the nation during the Civil War—sits immortalized in marble. As an enduring symbol of freedom, the Lincoln Memorial attracts anyone who seeks inspiration and hope. The statue of Lincoln is 19 feet high and weighs 175 tons. The original plan was for the statue to be only ten feet high, but this was changed so that the figure of Lincoln would not be dwarfed by the size of the chamber. The north and south side chambers contain carved inscriptions of Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address and his Gettysburg Address. Congress approved the bill to construct this memorial in 1910. Construction began in 1914, and the memorial was opened to the public in 1922.

Location: Lincoln Memorial Circle SW

Vietnam Veterans Memorial

Summary: The two black triangular granite walls of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial are sunk into the ground at an angle of 125 degrees. Each wall is 250ft long. Both walls start at a height of 8 inches and meet at their highest point, 10ft high. Inscribed in the wall are the names of more than 58,000 men and women who gave their life in the Vietnam War or who are still missing in action. The names are in chronological order, rather than alphabetized to help individualize the names. If the names were in alphabetical order, then a loved one would be lost in a sea common last names, and it would depersonalize that individual. Although it may take longer to locate and find the name in chronological order, the process is worth it to a family member or a friend. Heroes are identified by a diamond beside the name which indicates those who died, while a cross indicates those missing in action and a body is identified, when the cross is circled.

FDR Memorial

Summary: This is a memorial not only to FDR, but also to the era he represents. The memorial traces twelve years of American History through a sequence of four outdoor rooms—each room is devoted to one of FDR's terms of office. Sculptures inspired by photographs depict the 32nd President: A 10-foot statue shows him in a wheeled chair; a bas-relief depicts him riding in a car during his first inaugural. During the depths of the Great Depression, Roosevelt spoke directly to the people. "I pledge you, I pledge myself," he said in his 1932 acceptance speech, "to a new deal for the American people." Four years later, he proclaimed that "this generation of Americans has a rendezvous with destiny." Throughout his Presidency, 1933 - 1945, he addressed America by radio in what came to be known as fireside chats. Each idea, each phrase was underscored by courage and optimism that inspired no less in the people he served.

Smithsonian Institute: The Man Who Started It All...

In 1826, James Smithson, a British scientist, drew up his last will and testament, naming his nephew as beneficiary. Smithson stipulated that, should the nephew die without heirs (as he would in 1835), the estate should go “to the United States of America, to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men.” The motives behind Smithson's bequest remain mysterious. He never traveled to the United States and seems to have had no correspondence with anyone here. Some have suggested that his bequest was motivated in part by revenge against the rigidities of British society, which had denied Smithson, who was illegitimate, the right to use his father's name. Others have suggested it reflected his interest in the Enlightenment ideals of democracy and universal education.

Smithson died in 1829, and six years later, President Andrew Jackson announced the bequest to Congress. On July 1, 1836, Congress accepted the legacy bequeathed to the nation and pledged the faith of the United States to the charitable trust. In September 1838, Smithson's legacy, which amounted to more than 100,000 gold sovereigns, was delivered to the mint at Philadelphia. Recoined in U.S. currency, the gift amounted to more than $500,000

After eight years of sometimes heated debate, an Act of Congress signed by President James K. Polk on Aug. 10, 1846, established the Smithsonian Institution as a trust to be administered by a Board of Regents and a Secretary of the Smithsonian.

American History Museum

Summary: After a two-year, $85 million renovation, the museum's daylight-filled center atrium has become a new public square, a gathering space for performance and entertainment, capturing the spirit and vitality of a Main Street USA. The museum's state-of-the-art "Star-Spangled Banner" gallery showcases the flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the lyrics of our national anthem. The new artifact walls, glass-fronted cases that line the first and second-floor center corridors, contain hundreds of storied artifacts from the museum's three-million-item collection. In the galleries and exhibition halls, visitors will find the top hat that President Lincoln wore the night he was assassinated at Ford's Theatre, the portable desk that Thomas Jefferson used to write the Declaration of Independence, the Ruby Slippers worn by Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz and hundreds of other cherished items that together tell the nation's story.

Old Ebbitt Grill

Old Ebbitt Grill is just steps from The White House and museums in downtown Washington. Established in 1856, it was a favorite of Presidents Grant, Cleveland, Harding and Theodore Roosevelt and is still a popular meeting spot for political insiders, journalists, celebrities and theater-goers. Its Beaux-Arts facade, mahogany and velvet booths and bars set in marble, brass and beveled glass are Washington at its finest, and The Oyster Bar at Old Ebbitt is D.C.'s most famous.

Georgia Brown's

Georgia Brown's food is to be slowly savored. They serve traditional fried green tomatoes, Perleau straight from Charleston, and fried chicken to compete with your Grandmama's. Proper desserts like homemade ice cream will cause you to swing your feet childlike while your spoon clatters getting every last bite.

Georgia Brown's offers a tailored side of the South. Sunday brunches are spiced with live jazz, power lunches are for talking politics, and the evening meal is savored. So eat up, but put your napkin in your lap.
