Mr. OBERSTAR, from the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, submitted the following

R E P O R T

[To accompany H. Res. 410]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, to whom was referred the resolution (H. Res. 410) recognizing the numerous contributions of the recreational boating community and the boating industry to the continuing prosperity and affluence of the United States, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the resolution be agreed to.

PURPOSE OF THE LEGISLATION

House Resolution 410 recognizes the contributions of the recreational boating community and the boating industry to the continuing prosperity and affluence of the United States.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

Recreational boating is a central part of the tourism and recreation industry in the United States. However, as the United States continues to experience rising unemployment rates concomitant with the decline in the U.S. economy, the recreational boating industry is experiencing significant declines in new sales. Total expenditures on recreational boating-related services are also declining.

According to the National Marine Manufacturers Association (NMMA), the total manufacturing levels in the “recreational marine sector” have declined by at least 40 percent, and that, as of March 2009, individual boat sales had declined by nearly 30 percent year over year. According to NMMA, these conditions have resulted in a nearly 30 percent drop in total employment in the marine industry.

Similarly, there have been extensive declines in production volumes at multiple recreational boat manufacturers, which have forced firms to reduce their employment levels and even close production facilities.

Given the challenges facing the recreational boating industry, H. Res. 410 is intended to recognize the contributions the industry and the boating community have made—and will continue to make—to the U.S. economy. The resolution will also bring attention to the challenges that this industry—like so many U.S. manufacturing industries—is facing in the current economic climate.

SUMMARY OF THE LEGISLATION

H. Res. 410 recognizes the contributions of the recreational boating industry and the boating community to the United States. This resolution also acknowledges that the 59 million individuals who boat generate more than $33 billion for the U.S. economy, and provide jobs for 337,000 Americans. This resolution recognizes that the 1,400 active boat builders in the United States use materials and services from all 50 states.

Recreational boating activities provide opportunities for families to be together and have a beneficial effect on scholastic performance and physical fitness of those who participate.

Finally, H. Res. 410 urges the President to issue a proclamation declaring July 1, 2009, as National Boating Day.
