Defense Contracts Awarded to Connecticut

JOINT STRIKE FIGHTER

Thanks to a bipartisan effort championed by Congressman Larson, Pratt & Whitney became the sole provider of aircraft engines for the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter. This will have a tremendous effect on the long term health of Connecticut's economy, as it guarantees a future for not only the hardworking Machinists who work at Pratt & Whitney, but the thousands of men and women who make up our state's manufacturing supply chain. Thousands of Connecticut jobs are expected to be created and sustained due to Congressman Larson's work on the F-35 program.

This year in Connecticut the F-35 program supports more than 8,300 good paying jobs generating an annual economic impact of over $630 million. These numbers will grow exponentially as the program expands to full production. If it weren't for Congressman Larson's efforts, nearly half of the F-35 engine business would have occurred outside of the state and, in some instances, outside of the country by a competitor of Pratt & Whitney.

The Joint Strike Fighter program in total will spend $90 billion over 30 years around the country with over 25% of those funds coming to Connecticut for F-135 engines.

AIR REFUELING TANKER

After more than a decade, Pratt & Whitney – in partnership with Boeing - won the contract to build the Air Force's new fleet of air refueling tankers. This next generation tanker replaces aging tankers which were last manufactured in 1960.

Congressman Larson, along with the entire Connecticut delegation, led the charge on this issue after the Bush Administration improperly awarded the contract to a foreign competitor who had planned to produce a significant portion of the aircraft overseas. Their efforts led to a reevaluation of the cost and competitiveness of the Boeing/Pratt and Whitney bid, which proved that the Pratt product was the best choice for the United States Air Force. The contract was subsequently awarded to both Boeing and Pratt and Whitney.

In 2012 the Tanker program supports 6,200 jobs in Connecticut, generating more than $343 million in annual economic activity in the state. This program is in its early stages and will generate significantly more jobs and economic activity as it continues over the next 30 years.

C-17

In 2012 Pratt & Whitney and Hamilton Sundstrand's work on the C-17 created over $780 million in economic impact for Connecticut.

VIRGINIA CLASS SUBMARINES

In 2012 the Connecticut submarine industrial base received approximately $686,738,013 in purchase order awards which provided highly skilled, high-wage manufacturing jobs producing specialized components and materials. Statewide there are 695 suppliers that make up our submarine industrial base with 167 of them located in Connecticut's First Congressional District. These 167 suppliers received $345 million in purchase order awards which employed thousands of people here in Connecticut.

2012 TOTAL

Over this past year $2.4 billion has come to Connecticut to employ tens of thousands of people working in our defense industrial base. As the Joint Strike Fighter and KC-46 refueling tanker programs ramp up production these numbers will increase year by year. Totaling over $120 billion dollars headed to Connecticut over the next 30 years.
