U.S. House of Representatives

Dear Rep. Moore,

As a diverse coalition of immigration, faith, labor, human rights and community organizations serving and advocating on behalf of immigrant victims of domestic violence, human trafficking, sexual assault, dating violence, and stalking we write to express our grave concerns and opposition to H.R. 4970, the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2012 (VAWA) (H.R. 4970, Adams, R-FL), as introduced, as it severely undermines protections available to vulnerable immigrant victims of violence and places victims at further risk of harm.

Enacted in 1994 and reauthorized twice in 2000 and 2005, VAWA has a long history of uniting lawmakers with the common purpose of protecting survivors of domestic violence. When VAWA was first conceived, Congress recognized that the noncitizen status of battered immigrants can make them particularly vulnerable to crimes of domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence, and stalking. The abusers of undocumented immigrants often exploit the victims' immigration status, leaving the victim afraid to seek services or report the abuse to law enforcement and making them fearful of assisting with the investigation and prosecution of these crimes. Congress sought to address this through the enactment of provisions in VAWA that enhance safety for victims and their children and provide an important tool for law enforcement to investigate and prosecute crimes.

H.R. 4970 not only leaves out important improvements to VAWA's protections for immigrant survivors that were included in S. 1925, the widely supported bipartisan Senate bill, but it also seeks amendments that dramatically undercut existing protections for immigrant survivors in VAWA.

The changes proposed in H.R. 4970 to VAWA's current protections for immigrant survivors create obstacles for immigrant victims seeking to report crimes, increase the danger to immigrant victims by eliminating important confidentiality protections, undermine current anti-fraud protections, and roll back years of progress and commitment on the part of Congress to protect vulnerable immigrant victims.

On Tuesday, when H.R. 4970 is marked up in the Judiciary Committee, we urge you to ensure VAWA is kept free of all other unrelated immigration measures. VAWA should not be used as a vehicle to pass immigration policy measures that are not germane to VAWA's purpose. VAWA, including the immigration provisions, has always been focused on protecting victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking and trafficking; this should not change.

Each year the lives of hundreds of women, children, and others who fall victim to domestic violence, human trafficking, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking are made safer by important programs the law created. On their behalf and on behalf of all others who will depend upon VAWA in years to come, we ask for your vigilance in preserving VAWA's central purpose.

Because of the serious concerns outlined above, we call on all members of Congress to oppose H.R. 4970.
