Dear Chairman Smith, Ranking Member Conyers, Chairman Lungren and Ranking Member Brady:

We write to express our concern regarding recent actions taken by state legislatures across the nation to significantly change their states' election laws. These widespread changes have the potential to affect the upcoming 2012 elections, as well as the Constitutional rights of millions of Americans. We, therefore, request that your Committees hold hearings to assess the impact that these changes will have on states and voter rights.

As you know, the right to vote is guaranteed by the Constitution and a cornerstone of our democracy. We should be making it easier for Americans to vote, not harder. Over 30 states have enacted or attempted to enact laws that will create barriers to voting, among them: Florida's HB 1355, signed into law by Gov. Rick Scott, limiting access to the polls for minorities, seniors, and college students, as well as limiting early voting days and imposing new restrictive regulations on voter registration groups; Alabama requiring proof of citizenship and government-issued photo identification in order to vote and Texas imposing similar voter ID requirements; Maine eliminating same-day registration; and Wisconsin requiring voters to show a government photo identification card at a polling place before they can vote.

The Voting Rights Act is the primary tool used to protect voters from these kinds of political exploitations. Designed to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, the Act covers a vast range of activities that affect voters. According to the Supreme Court, determining whether a voting-related change is in violation of the Voting Rights Act is contingent upon whether the change "would lead to a retrogression in the position of racial minorities with respect to their effective exercise of the electoral franchise." Simply put, the aforementioned laws that have been enacted by states all across our nation seriously undermine the rights of voters.

Congress has the Constitutional authority to act to protect the rights of all voters. In the face of voter suppression laws being enacted across the nation, Congress must determine the extent of the problem and provide appropriate remedies. Despite years of progress, inequities and obstacles still remain. We must work together to strengthen our nation's democracy and ensure that the voting rights of all Americans are protected. Again, we respectfully request that the Committees hold a hearing to address this extremely important matter.

Thank you for your time and consideration. We respectfully ask that you keep us informed of our request. If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact us directly.

Sincerely,

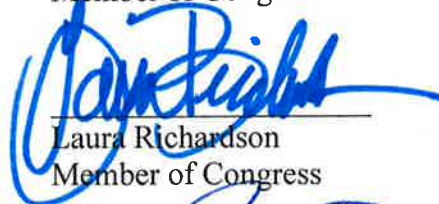

Alcee L. Hastings
