STATEMENT

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

H.R. 764 – CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION AND

ENFORCEMENT (CAPE) ACT

FEBRUARY 1, 2000

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support of H.R. 764, the Child Abuse Prevention and Enforcement Act, a bill that I have cosponsored. This legislation helps in the fight against child abuse by providing state and local officials with greater flexibility with resources. When children are victimized by abuse and neglect, the physical and emotional scars can last a lifetime.

The problem of child abuse is wide-spread and tragic. In a report issued in April 1999 by the Department of Health and Human Services, there were one million documented cases of child abuse in 1997. This number only includes the number of children that are documented by public agencies.

Of the close to three million children who are reported abused or neglected, 52 percent suffered neglect, 24 percent suffered physical abuse, 12 percent suffered sexual abuse, 6 percent suffered emotional maltreatment and three percent suffered from medical neglect. Almost 40 percent of the children were under the age of six.

I am particularly concerned that 12 percent of the cases involve sexual abuse. Child sexual abuse is any sex act performed by an adult or an older child. This includes actual physical abuse such as touching a child's genital area or molestation, and it also includes sexual assault, self-exposure (flashing), voyeurism, and exposing children to pornography.

In Texas, there were more than 111,000 investigations of child abuse and neglect by the Child Protective Services in Texas. Of those cases, 7,650 were sexual abuse.

Sexual abuse is often committed by a family member. Incest is the most common form of child sexual abuse. However, anyone can commit sexual abuse against a child. It is often perpetrated by adults that have been entrusted with caring for a child—a family friend, babysitter, a teacher, day care worker, or even religious leaders. Even a child can commit sexual abuse against another child.

Sexual abuse against children is a harsh reality that is very common. At least one out of five adult women and one out of ten adult men report having been sexually abused as children. These cases may represent the untold stories of many children, now adults, who suffered in silence due to sexual abuse.

Now, we have mechanisms in place to investigate incidences of child abuse. However, in some cases, certain information about an alleged abuser's past may not be available. This bill remedies that situation by making criminal records for sexual abuse available.

Substance abuse, poverty and economic strains on the family are the most commonly cited problems exhibited by the families in which abuse is present. Domestic abuse and lack of parenting skills are also cited as factors.

This bill addresses the problem of child abuse by allowing state and local officials increased flexibility with respect to how it invests Byrne law enforcement grants in the area of child abuse, enabling such funds to be used for child abuse prevention.

Byrne law grants can be used for programs that improve the criminal and juvenile justice system's response to domestic and family violence, including child abuse. This bill clarifies that funds used for child abuse can be used specifically for enforcing child abuse and neglect programs.

This bill also doubles the amount that is earmarked under the Crime Victims Fund for victims of child abuse. The Crime Victims Fund consists of fines collected from persons convicted of federal crimes, asset forfeitures, forfeited appearance and bail bonds. Thus, the fund would increase from $10 million to $20 million for training child protective workers and support for court-appointed advocates.

Local law enforcement receives increased flexibility in how it invests grants for child abuse victims, specifically by providing access to criminal conviction records by child protective and child welfare workers. This would enable workers to determine if troubled children are victims of abuse.

State law enforcement would also have access to court child custody, visitation, protection, guardianships and stay away orders. Police could use this information to establish the validity of urgent complaints concerning children who may have been kidnapped by an abusive ex-spouse.

I renew my support for this legislation because I believe that we must enhance the services that are available to children in the abuse and neglect system. This legislation has a broad range of support and I am happy to lend my support to it as well. Thank you.

Gun Show Admission amendment

- ◆ This amendment prohibits a juvenile from being admitted to a gun show unless accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.
- ◆ Currently, juveniles are allowed in gun shows without supervision, and are exposed to the dangerous atmosphere without an adult.
- ◆ We do not allow children to enter R-rated movies without a parent or guardian present because of the nature of the content (violence, sexual situations, strong language).
- ◆ This same standard should be applied to a gun show, where a parent can make the decision whether the atmosphere is appropriate.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 503

“UNBORN VICTIMS OF VIOLENCE ACT OF 2001”

MARCH 27, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I am offering an amendment to H.R. 503, the “Unborn Victims of Violence Act of 2001,” that would replace the term “unborn children” where it appears in the appropriate places throughout the bill with “violence during pregnancy.” The result of my amendment is similar to that of the substitute, so that injury is not to the unborn child” but to the pregnant woman.

My amendment seeks to address what I believe is a veiled attempt to create a legal status for the unborn. While I sympathize with the mothers who have lost fetuses due to the intentional violent acts of others, I believe, however, that H.R. 503 would obscure the rights of women. My amendment would prevent this legislation from opening the door to future legislation by which a woman could be held civilly or criminally liable for fetal injuries caused by behavior during her pregnancy that might have potentially adverse effects on her fetus including failing to eat properly, using prescription, nonprescription and illegal drugs, being exposed to infectious disease, engaging in immoderate exercise or sexual intercourse or using general anesthetic or drugs to include rapid labor during delivery. My amendment would shelter women from living in constant fear that any accident or error in judgment could be deemed ‘unacceptable and become the basis for a criminal prosecution by the state.

A new status of “human-ness” extended to the unborn fetus of a pregnant woman creates a situation of constitutional uneasiness. While the proponents of this bill claim that the bill would not punish women who choose to terminate their pregnancies, this bill will give anti-abortion advocates a powerful tool against women's choice.

The state courts that have expressed an opinion on this issue have done so with the caveat that while Roe protects a woman's constitutional right to choose, it does not protect a third party's destruction of a fetus. This bill will create a slippery slope that will result in doctors being sued for performing abortions, especially if the procedure is controversial, such as partial birth abortion. Although this bill exempts abortion procedures as a crime against the fetus, the potential for increased civil liability is present. Thus, disenchanted husbands and relatives would be able to bring suit who exercises her right to choose.

Supporters of this bill should address the larger issue of domestic violence. For women who are the victims of violence by a husband or boyfriend, this bill does not address the abuse, but merely the result of that abuse.

I urge my Colleagues to vote in favor of my amendment. We do not need this bill to provide special status to unborn fetuses. A better alternative is to create a sentence enhancement for any intentional harm done to a pregnant woman. This bill is simply a clever way of creating a legal status to erode abortion rights.

Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 863

THE “CONSEQUENCES FOR JUVENILE OFFENDERS ACT” OF

MARCH 28, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I am offering an amendment to H.R. 863, the “Consequences for Juvenile Offenders Act of 2001” that we are marking up today.

My amendment would make HR 863, consistent with the current Juvenile Accountability Incentive Block Grants (JAIBC) program that authorizes the use of funds by juvenile courts and juvenile probation offices for additional activities that permit them to be more effective and efficient in holding juvenile offenders accountable and reducing recidivism.

According to both the Federal Bureau of Investigation's (FBI's) Uniform Crime Reports and victimization surveys, while overall violent crime decreased between 1985 and 1994, the number of juveniles arrested for serious crimes increased. In the same time period, juvenile courts experienced disproportionate increases in cases involving violent offenses and weapons. Cases involving crimes against persons were up 93 percent. Violent Crime Index offenses (a subset of person offenses) were up 98 percent, and weapons law violations were up 156 percent. Drug and public order offenses also saw large increases. In 1995, a drop in these disturbing trends was recorded, a trend that continued through 1996 and 1997. In addition, public attitudes continue to reflect heightened concerns about the rise in juvenile crime that began in the mid-1980's. These concerns are fueled by a number of criminologists who have predicted a coming generation of "superpredators" based on the decade-long growth in serious and violent juvenile crime arrests and the fact that, by the year 2005, the number of teens ages 14-17 will be 20 percent above the 1994 level.

Mr. Chairman, the JAIBG funds which my amendment reflects, are available to address 12 program purpose areas designed to promote greater accountability of juveniles in the juvenile justice system. Three of the twelve purpose areas focus on enhancing local prosecutors' abilities to address juvenile crime, such as funding to enable prosecutors to address drug, gang, and youth violence problems more effectively.

My amendment would assist prosecutors who are experiencing heavy caseloads in these crime categories by directing the establishment of comprehensive approaches to tackling these problems.

I urge the Chairman and my fellow colleagues to support this amendment.

Thank you.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

H.R. 476 – CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

SEPTEMBER 13, 2001

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to offer four amendments to this bill that would exempt certain persons from the criminal penalties of this bill. These amendments would exclude religious leaders, grandparents, and certain family members from the prohibitions of this bill. The other amendment would require that the Attorney General study the effects of this Act, including their effects on the incidence of illegal abortions and report the results of that study to Congress.

The first amendment would exempt religious leaders such as ministers, rabbis and priests from the penalty provisions in this bill. As members of the religious community, these people serve as trusted confidants for the entire community at large. As we are aware, many of us turn to religious leaders in times of crisis for spiritual guidance.

In a time of crisis, a member of the clergy is an important counselor. The advice and assistance of the clergy should not be compromised for fear of criminal sanctions. In its present form, this amendment would criminalize any efforts by religious leaders to assist a young women in her efforts to obtain an abortion.

In certain cases, we carve out an exception for religious leaders in testifying about secrets shared with them in confidence. We do not criminalize the right to confession, and we do not force religious leaders to divulge the information that is shared.

The discussions between a young woman and her spiritual advisor about obtaining abortion services should receive the same protection. If in the course of these discussions, the religious leader agrees to assist the young woman in seeking these services, those actions should not be criminal.

If we trust religious leaders to keep our most serious secrets and to provide counsel in times of trouble, then we should trust their efforts to help young women in making such a painful decision. The efforts by religious leaders to help by providing transport is not a crime. I ask that my Colleagues support this amendment.

The second and third amendments would provide an exception for grandparents, certain family members and foster parents for the prohibitions of this bill. We should not punish caring relatives for providing support to a scared young woman, nor should we punish those caring individuals who voluntarily take children into their home who lack parental support.

Grandparents play an important role in the lives of young people. Grandparents act as counselors for children who cannot speak with their parents. In many cases, grandparents act as parents to children who are abandoned or neglected by their own parents. The relationship between a child and a grandparent should be viewed as sacred as that between a parent and a child.

Aunts, uncles and first cousins also have a special relationship and provide important support to a scared young woman. An aunt or uncle can often be as close as a mother or father. In some cases, the aunt and uncle are godparents or surrogates for the actual parents.

First cousins are often close as siblings. Especially in the case of a young woman with no siblings of her own, the older first cousin is often a role model and close confidant.

In each of these cases, this bill would criminalize any efforts by a family member to assist a young woman in obtaining abortion services across state lines. We would put family members in the awkward position of turning away a desperate young grandchild, niece or cousin because of fear of criminal sanctions.

In kinship care situations, where the children are taken care of by other members of the family other than the parents, this bill is especially problematic. Sometimes the caretaker is not the legal guardian. For a young woman who lives with and is supported by her other members of her family other than a parent, this bill would punish any efforts by that person to assist. In other instances, the caretaker may be a foster parent, who may do his or her best to provide care and shelter to the child in crisis, but who may often have little actual authority over the foster child and may know little of the child's activities.

We must not allow the law to interfere with the personal and familial relationships by imposing sanctions on a relative.

I urge my Colleagues to support these amendments that exempt family members from these prohibitions. It is a dangerous precedent to start imposing restrictions on the relationships within a family.

Moreover, a study . . .

I would like to offer these amendments to this bill en bloc to exclude religious leaders and grandparents, aunts, uncles and first cousins from the penalty provisions of this bill. I urge your support. Thank you.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE MARKUP

MARCH 15, 2000

- ◆ Chairman Hyde, I stand in support of this Amendment to our original Amendment to H.R. 1304 because I believe that this legislation will alleviate the concerns some non-physicians still have with H.R. 1304.
- ◆ Because this legislation does not fully address the concerns of non-physicians and the amendment offered by myself along with Congressman Nadler and Frank attempt to rectify this situation.

- ◆ This amendment still attempts to protect non-physicians from being discriminated against in negotiations that may occur between the physicians and the health insurers.

- ◆ I continued to be approached by organizations like the Academy of Nurse Practitioners, The Texas Chiropractic Association and the American Chiropractic Association who are sincerely concerned about the negative effect this legislation will have on their ability to continually serve their patients.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE MARKUP

MARCH 15, 2000

- ◆ Chairman Hyde, I stand in support of H.R. 1304 because I believe that this legislation will truly help to alleviate the disadvantages independent health providers have with health insurers.

- ◆ However, this legislation does not fully address the concerns of non-physicians and the amendment offered by myself along with Congressman Nadler and Frank attempt to rectify this situation.

- ◆ This amendment attempts to protect non-physicians from being discriminated against in negotiations that may occur between the physicians and the health insurers.

- ◆ Rightfully so, non-physicians such as nurse practitioners, nurse midwives, physical therapists and chiropractors are concerned that if this law takes effect, then resulting negotiations will unfairly disadvantage them.

- ◆ Non-physicians fear that the physicians and health insurers will create contracts that specifically state that non-physicians will not be fully reimbursed for their services, as are physicians.

- ◆ I have been approached by organizations like the Academy of Nurse Practitioners and the American Chiropractic Association who are sincerely concerned about the negative effect this legislation will have on their ability to continually serve their patients.

- ◆ It is only fair that we not sanction such discriminatory practices between physicians and non-physicians.

- ◆ This amendment simply clarifies the existing language to remove possibility of this Congress unwittingly permitting discriminatory clauses within physician and health insurers contracts and I hope that you will support our amendment.

CO-PAYMENT ACT OF 1999

March 16, 2000

- Thank you Mr. Chairman for allowing me address this Committee today.
- I must admit I do appreciate the zeal with which Proponents of H.R. 1349 attempt to comply with both the letter and spirit of these two seminal Supreme Court cases.

- I understand that they contend that a health care copay will prevent inmates from abusing sick call requests, reduce costs and instill a sense of fiscal responsibility among inmates in how to prioritize their funds.
- However, I must confess that I am less optimistic that this measure as drafted can achieve the goals of its drafters.
- Given the meager funds in most inmates accounts, a fee for service will impede access to needed health care, particularly the all- important preventative care which sick call availability should be emphasizing to prevent the spread of infectious diseases and minor problems becoming major problems due to lack of early treatment.

- Yet, if we must access a fee, let us not deny health services to those unable to pay this fee out of their own account and not that of their family.
- We must remember that many are from low income families and rely on these families for funds to buy personal hygiene items like toothpaste and shampoo. This minor copay would compel impoverished inmates to forego medical needs in order to purchase these items.
- Furthermore, avoidance of minor medical problems can lead to dangerous health situations not only for the prisoners, but for the prison employees contractors as well.
- The prisoners are in jail in order to accept the consequences of their crime, not their families. Let us make this clarify this concept by passing this amendment.

- Thank you

AMENDMENT 3 TO H.R. 1349, FEDERAL PRISONER HEALTH CARE

CO-PAYMENT ACT OF 1999

March 16, 2000

- Mr. Chairman, thank you for the opportunity to address this Committee.
- As I have reiterated earlier, if this bill was created with the purpose not only of placing responsibility upon prisoners, but also to alleviate the cost burdens upon the prison health care center, let us make sure that that this bill does exactly that.

- The facts are this, a copay would set up a 2-tiered system of inmates who have funds for a copay and items for from the commissary and inmates who have to choose between the two. And such a system will not impact the abuse of sick call by inmates who can afford to pay the copay.
- Further, the administrative costs of assessing, collecting managing, distributing and accounting for copays per inmate sick call visit may very well exceed the amounts collected.
- If abuse of the prisoner health care is the problem, then it seems to me that the solution would be a properly administered sick call program whereby qualified lower level staff respond quickly to inmate complaints first and only referring on those warranting higher levels of attention. This would practically eliminate abuse and provide more efficient care for those who do need it.

- While the copay approach may produce short term reductions in medical care costs, I am uncertain whether these short term gains will prevent inadequate preventative care. Further, only time will tell if the copayment program as envisioned by H.R. 1349 will reduce the incidence of missed detection of serious, but curable health conditions.
- This is why I am offering this third amendment which requires a review of the fee assessment system after a year and not two years.
- We need to know immediately whether this program is actually effective in accomplishing its goals. If not, then my amendment requires that we reassess the usefulness of this legislation.

- I hope that this amendments will be seriously considered by this Committee as we continue the discussion on H.R. 1349.

- However, it is hypocritical for us as a nation to affirmatively exercise its power to restrain an individual's liberty, yet renders him unable to care for himself.
- This transgresses the substantive limits on state actions set by the Eight Amendment and the due process clause.
- This is why my first Amendment requires that at the very least, we obtain the consent of the prisoner whose account is being assessed a fee.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

AMENDMENT TO HR 3125, THE INTERNET GAMBLING

PROHIBITION ACT OF 1999

FULL COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

APRIL 6, 2000

- ◆ I want to thank Chairman Hyde for allowing me to offer an amendment to HR 3125, The Internet Gambling Act of 1999.
- ◆ Like many of you, I recognize that gambling over the Internet has truly become excessive. There are an incredible number of gambling websites, and Internet gambling is now a billion-a-year industry, growing every day.

- ◆ Regrettably, however, HR 3125 is a flawed approach to regulating Internet gambling. The scope and nature of the legislation simply encompasses too many entities that play no role in illegal gambling activities.

- ◆ I am particularly concerned that the bill imposes criminal liability on banks and credit card companies.

- ◆ The broad definition of “gambling business” contained in this bill extends to those entities which finance online gaming transactions.

- ◆ Because there is a financing component in every credit card transaction, credit card companies – and their shareholders – could be criminally liable for “operating a gambling business” under this bill.

- ◆ Criminal liability in HR 3125 certainly would extend to shareholders of public corporations. Because of the definition of “gambling business,” shareholders of public entities that engage in online gaming (or who merely assist in operations of a gaming site), are subject to criminal liability in the United States.

- ◆ This simple makes little sense. For these reasons, I am offering an amendment today that would limit the definition of a “gambling business” to those entities that directly participate in Internet gambling.

- ◆ The reason is straightforward and simple. The burden of proof to establish some criminality should be placed on law enforcement authorities to establish precisely which entities are directly participating in prohibited conduct.

- ◆ Without such a requirement, the bill would invite endless litigation involving entities or persons that have absolutely nothing to do with the gambling business this legislation truly seeks to address.

- ◆ I urge my colleagues to adopt this important modification to minimize confusion about the enforcement of this legislation.

METHAMPHETAMINE ANTI-PROLIFERATION ACT OF 1999

AMENDMENT #1 TO ELIMINATE THE INCREASE IN THE MINIMUM MANDATORY SENTENCING FOR AMPHETAMINES

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

MAY 24, 2000

- ◆ Thank you Chairman. I am offering the following Amendment along with Mr. Scott in order to rectify the problematic language included in H.R. 2987 that increases the mandatory minimum penalty of amphetamines, a lesser drug, to that of methamphetamines.

- ◆ This amendment strikes the mandatory minimum requirement in Section 102 that increases the penalty for amphetamine offenses and instead inserts language that the United States Sentencing Commission should promulgate rules according to the appropriateness of the offense.

- ◆ Although there may be some logic to treating amphetamines like methamphetamines, there may be differences in the potency level, which requires the penalty structure for amphetamine offenses to reflect this difference.

- ◆ By directing the Sentencing Commission to equate amphetamine penalties to that of methamphetamine penalties, we are circumventing the legal process and instead interjecting politics into the justice system.

- ◆ I do not know if the majority sees this as an opportunity to claim that the passage of such legislation would decrease the proliferation of violent crimes, in particular those committed with guns, but the truth of the matter is that we really do not have evidence that Methamphetamine or amphetamine user disproportionately commit violent crimes.

- ◆ The National Institute for Justice report of 5 major Western cities indicates that there is a misconception about violent behavior and Methamphetamine use.

- ◆ In fact only 16% of the subjects studied actually committed violent crimes.

- ◆ Thus, it would be more appropriate to direct the Commission to study this incidences of Methamphetamine and amphetamine use before imposing stiffer penalties that are ineffective.

- ◆ Consequently, instead of requiring specific offense level increases as does HR 2987, it is more appropriate to allow the Sentencing Commission to carry out its duties and impose penalties appropriate to the offense.

- ◆ HR 2987 attempts to usurp the role of the Sentencing Commission to promulgate sentencing guidelines.

- ◆ Mr. Scott's and my amendment would simply restores the role of the Sentencing Commission to do what it was commissioned for.

- ◆ The Commission already provides sentencing enhancements for environmental damages and the Commission would apply this enhancement to methamphetamine offenses just like any drug offenses.

- ◆ This environmental enhancement sentencing structure is specifically written into this amendment and I believe this along with the requirement of the Sentencing Commission to impose sentencing guidelines consistent with other relevant statutory directives and accounting for any aggravating or mitigating circumstances, will provide for appropriate penalties for methamphetamine and amphetamine use.

- ◆ However, the cost of incarceration ranges from $16,000 to $37,00 across the U.S. and averages $18,330 based on 1996 figures.

- ◆ Yet, the cost to build a prison cell is between $80,000 to $90,000.

AMENDMENT #1 TO ELIMINATE THE INCREASE IN THE

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

JULY 18, 2000

Thank you Chairman. I am offering the following Amendment along with Mr. Scott in order to rectify the problematic language included in H.R. 2987 that increases the mandatory minimum penalty of amphetamines, a lesser drug, to that of methamphetamines.

This amendment strikes the mandatory minimum requirement in Section 102 that increases the penalty for amphetamine offenses and instead inserts language that the United States Sentencing Commission should promulgate rules according to the appropriateness of the offense.

Although there may be some logic to treating amphetamines like methamphetamines, there may be differences in the potency level, which requires the penalty structure for amphetamine offenses to reflect this difference.

By directing the Sentencing Commission to equate amphetamine penalties to that of methamphetamine penalties, we are circumventing the legal process and instead interjecting politics into the justice system.

I do not know if the majority sees this as an opportunity to claim that the passage of such legislation would decrease the proliferance of violent crimes, in particular those committed with guns, but the truth of the matter is that we really do not have evidence that Methamphetamine or amphetamine user disproportionately commit violent crimes.

The National Institute for Justice report of 5 major Western cities indicates that there is a misconception about violent behavior and Methamphetamine use. In fact only 16% of the subjects studied actually committed violent crimes.

Thus, it would be more appropriate to direct the Commission to study this incidences of Methamphetamine and amphetamine use before imposing stiffer penalties that are ineffective.

Consequently, instead of requiring specific offense level increases as does HR 2987, it is more appropriate to allow the Sentencing Commission to carry out its duties and impose penalties appropriate to the offense.

HR 2987 attempts to usurp the role of the Sentencing Commission to promulgate sentencing guidelines.

The amendment offered by Mr. Scott and I would simply restore the role of the Sentencing Commission to do what it was commissioned for.

The Commission already provides sentencing enhancements for environmental damages and the Commission would apply this enhancement to methamphetamine offenses just like any drug offenses.

This environmental enhancement sentencing structure is specifically written into this amendment and I believe this along with the requirement of the Sentencing Commission to impose sentencing guidelines consistent with other relevant statutory directives and accounting for any aggravating or mitigating circumstances, will provide for appropriate penalties for methamphetamine and amphetamine use.

However, the cost of incarceration ranges from $16,000 to $37,00 across the U.S. and averages $18,330 based on 1996 figures. Yet, the cost to build a prison cell is between $80,000 to $90,000.

In contrast, residential substance abuse treatment programs cost an average of $14,600 per year and outpatient programs cost about $2,300 on average, nationwide.

It makes more sense to focus on prevention efforts and intervention programs than to simply increase the penalty for a lesser version of methamphetamine, one which we still know little about.

Thus, I urge my colleagues to support the passage of this amendment so that this bill will more appropriately reflect the procedures by which this justice system should conform.

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

JULY 18, 2000

Mr. Chairman, along with Mr. Barr, I offer the following amendment to HR 2987 so that we might maintain the Due Process protections guaranteed to all American citizens under the 4th Amendment.

Section 301 of this bill, the section that this amendment would strike, attempts to extend the exception imposed under the wiretap statute that allows electronic surveillance to be conducted without notice.

Under the 4th Amendment, notice is required for all physical searches like those that would be conducted for offenses under this bill.

Under 18 U.S.C. §3109, generally an officer, before conducting a search of a private dwelling, must first “knock and announce” his authority and purpose before entering.

The Supreme Court in Wilson v. Arkansas (1995) specifically held that this principle is an element of the reasonableness inquiry for evaluating searches and seizures under the 4th Amendment.

There are exceptions to this constitutional right, for example, electronic surveillance. Under the Federal Wiretapping Statute, officers are not required to adhere to the 4th Amendment notice requirement. This is because, the requirement must be waived since without secrecy, the wiretap would be useless.

Nonetheless, there are additional protections for wiretapping that serve to protect the American citizen from being abused by this law.

For instance, law enforcement officers must prove to the court that no other type of surveillance is reasonable expected to secure the evidence needed in this case. However, in this instance, there is no reason to expand this notice exception.

AMENDMENT #3 TO ELIMINATE THE ENHANCED PUNISHMENT

FOR TRAFFICKING IN LIST 1 CHEMICALS

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

JULY 18, 2000

- ◆ Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment in order to maintain the authority of the U.S. Sentencing Commission to draft appropriate sentencing guidelines.

- ◆ This amendment would strike Section 201 of Mr. McCollum's Amendment in the form of a Substitute. Section 201 is inappropriate because it attempts to enhance the punishment of List I chemicals to that of methamphetamines.

- ◆ List 1 chemicals, otherwise termed “precursors” are chemicals like ephedrine, and pseudoephedrine, which are used to create the controlled substance of methamphetamine.

- ◆ If we were to allow Section 201 to remain, persons found guilty of possessing 5 grams of a precursor like ephedrine would be held to the same standard as a person possessing the actual controlled substance of methamphetamine.

- ◆ The problem is that Section 201 purports that the loss is equivalent across the board for all conversions from the precursor to the controlled substance.

- ◆ For example, Section 201 maintains that when one converts a precursor like ephedrine to the controlled substance methamphetamine or amphetamine, the loss sustained is the same in all situations. However, this is simply not true.

- ◆ The loss sustained during the conversion depends upon the sophistication of the lab and other variable like the education of the person analyzing the conversion. In other words, there is not set standard for converting precursors to the controlled substance. Expert testimony is usually relied upon to determine the conversion ratio.

- ◆ Since the majority refused to hold any hearing on this bill, we are lacking this necessary component for determining the conversion of precursors to the controlled substance.

- ◆ Essentially, this directive could potentially sentence a person in possession of 5 grams of a precursor more severely than a person in possession of 4 grams of methamphetamine. This is simply not logical and the U.S. Sentencing Commission already has mechanisms to prevent this from occurring.

- ◆ Yet, if we allow Section 201 to remain, we would be condoning an injustice within the criminal system.

- ◆ Another problem with this Section that my amendment seeks to ameliorate is the attempt to single out methamphetamine precursors.

- ◆ Section 201 (b) attempts to increase the penalty of certain chemicals like ephedrine that are primarily used to create methamphetamine while Section 201 (c) allows for the Sentencing commission to “review and amend” its guidelines accordingly.

- ◆ This raises a proportionality concern that my amendment would rectify.

- ◆ By simply allowing the Sentencing Commission to review and amend its sentencing guidelines for the entire List I chemicals, my amendment would allow for all circumstances to be considered and not simply impose a blanket sanction that might not be appropriate for the crime.

- ◆ Thus, I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment so that we might ensure that all crimes are penalized accordingly.

FOR TRAFFICKING IN LIST 1 CHEMICALS

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

JULY 18, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment in order to maintain the authority of the U.S. Sentencing Commission to draft appropriate sentencing guidelines.

This amendment would strike Section 201 of Mr. McCollum's Amendment in the form of a Substitute. Section 201 is inappropriate because it attempts to enhance the punishment of List I chemicals to that of methamphetamines.

List 1 chemicals, otherwise termed “precursors” are chemicals like ephedrine, and pseudoephedrine, which are used to create the controlled substance of methamphetamine.

If we were to allow Section 201 to remain, persons found guilty of possessing 5 grams of a precursor like ephedrine would be held to the same standard as a person possessing the actual controlled substance of methamphetamine.

The problem is that Section 201 purports that the loss is equivalent across the board for all conversions from the precursor to the controlled substance.

For example, Section 201 maintains that when one converts a precursor like ephedrine to the controlled substance methamphetamine or amphetamine, the loss sustained is the same in all situations. However, this is simply not true.

The loss sustained during the conversion depends upon the sophistication of the lab and other variable like the education of the person analyzing the conversion. In other words, there is not set standard for converting precursors to the controlled substance. Expert testimony is usually relied upon to determine the conversion ratio.

Since the majority refused to hold any hearing on this bill, we are lacking this necessary component for determining the conversion of precursors to the controlled substance.

Essentially, this directive could potentially sentence a person in possession of 5grams of a precursor more severely than a person in possession of 4 grams of methamphetamine. This is simply not Yet, if we allow Section 201 to remain, we would be condoning an injustice within the criminal system.

Another problem with this Section that my amendment seeks to ameliorate is the attempt to single out methamphetamine precursors.

Section 201 (b) attempts to increase the penalty of certain chemicals like ephedrine that are primarily used to create methamphetamine while Section 201 (c) allows for the Sentencing commission to “review and amend” its guidelines accordingly.

This raises a proportionality concern that my amendment would rectify.

By simply allowing the Sentencing Commission to review and amend its sentencing guidelines for the entire List I chemicals, my amendment would allow for all circumstances to be considered and not simply impose a blanket sanction that might not be appropriate for the crime.

Thus, I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment so that we might ensure that all crimes are penalized accordingly.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 4108, "SECURE OUR SCHOOLS ACT"

FULL COMMITTEE MARKUP

May 24, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I support H.R. 4108, the "Secure Our Schools Act," however, because we have not had the privilege of hearing from experts on this bill, I agree with Mr. Scott that an amendment is needed to assure the accurate use of this grant money.

This amendment offered by Mr. Scott and myself simply requires that schools consult other experts on youth violence besides law enforcement officers when developing their comprehensive security plan for the grants under this bill. Such experts could include child psychologists or even experienced social workers.

I believe it is important we balance the consequences of new security measures with the benefits of adding these new measures. We do not want scare children to the point that they are constantly being suspected of wrongdoing, so we must be cautious of our eagerness to outfit all schools with such devices like metal detectors.

That is why I support a requirement of this bill that the school seeking money under this grant program certify that it consulted other experts like child psychologists who are experts on youth violence. This, along with the provision already in H.R. 4108 that the plan submitted by the applying school be individualized for their particular circumstance, will help assure the proper use of the grant money.

Throughout my tenure in public service, I have been a staunch advocate of increased mental health services for our youth. As the recent New York Time Study on rampage killings reports, mental health services can help prevent future outbreaks of violence among our youth and save students and their parents from the torture of another school shooting.

As I stated earlier, we are still faced with 12-year olds planning school shootings and 7 and 13-year olds walking into their respective schools with pistols.

This bill, H.R. 4108 is definitely a step in the right direction and I believe that this amendment will only help clarify the scope of this bill. I urge my fellow colleagues to support this clarification amendment.

Thank you.

During the recent markup in the Judiciary Committee, I voted to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act, however, along with the other Democrats on the Committee, we tried to make the reauthorization bill more comprehensive. I offered the following amendments:

Supreme Court Fix

This amendment is tailored specifically to address the recent Supreme Court decision that invalidated the civil remedy section of the Violence Against Women Act.

This amendment would make liable to the victim any person who commits a crime of violence motivated by gender. Additionally, this amendment attempts to better clarify circumstances under which a victim can file a private action against their assailant by explicitly delineating which activities affect interstate commerce.

Underserved Populations

I feel strongly that particular populations need added protections as a result of their marginalized place in society, which makes it more difficult for them to access information and services that offer assistance and protection to battered women. Sections of these populations are recognized as under served in VAWA's Reauthorization Act.

However, in the latest markup three undeserved groups lost under served protection; alienage, sexual orientation, and religion. The bill leaves room to expand under served populations beyond those specifically stated, reading, "... and any other population determined to be under served by the State planning process in consultation with the Attorney General".

VERA

The Victims' Employment Rights Act (VERA) to H.R. 1248 would prohibit employers from discriminating against battered women, sexual assault survivors and stalking survivors on account of their status or experience as victims of domestic violence. Additionally, this amendment would provide a tax credit to those employers who implement workplace safety programs to combat violence against women.

Battered women suffer from lost productivity due to illness, inability to concentrate and frequent absenteeism. Battering has been cited as the most frequent reason why women are treated in emergency rooms, with medical costs for victims reportedly reaching over $100 million annually. The Victims Employment Rights Act that would and tax incentives for employers that would encourage large and small businesses to train their employees to recognize the special needs of victims of domestic violence.

With regard to sex discrimination laws, it most be noted that these laws do not provide adequate recourse for victims of battering, rape or stalking because oftentimes, these laws do not address whether firing someone because she was a sexual assault victim is a form of sex discrimination. Thus, the Victims Employment Rights Act with the included Workplace Violence Against Women Tax Credit Act would provide the much-needed rights to victims of domestic violence.

Child Abuse Accountability Act

The Child Abuse Accountability Act would insure that child abuse orders are also included in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act. This amendment would clarify that child abuse orders like domestic relations orders are properly respected within ERISA so that the young victims of domestic violence are also assured the financial stability they deserve. Simply, it would make sure that the phrase "child abuse orders" is added to the appropriate places in ERISA where "domestic relations orders" are listed so that any outstanding monetary payments resulting from child abuse orders are also respected.

Children who witness violence at home often display emotional and behavioral disturbances. Child abuse is 15 times more likely to occur in families where domestic violence is present. These pension benefits, however small, may provide the necessary money for the mother or father to help their children escape the cycle of abuse that often results in abusive family relationships.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 1248 TO INCLUDE THE VICTIMS

EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS ACT

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY MARKUP

June 26, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment, the Victims' Employment Rights Act (VERA) to H.R. 1248 in order to prohibit employers from discriminating against battered women, sexual assault survivors and stalking survivors on account of their status or experience as victims of domestic violence. Additionally, this amendment would provide a tax credit to those employers who implement workplace safety programs to combat violence against women.

I would also like to thank the Ranking Member, Mr. Conyers for including this Act in his more comprehensive VAWA reauthorization bill, H.R. 357, of which I am a co-sponsor.

VERA is needed because economic security is critical to a woman's ability to leave battering relationships and to survive the crimes of rape and sexual assault.

Oftentimes, battered women are fired, demoted, or unwillingly transferred when their employers learn that they have been in a battering relationship.

Victims often risk jeopardizing their jobs when they ask their employers to make minor accommodations to their schedules in order to go to court to obtain a protective order or even a simple change in her telephone number so that her batterer cannot harass her at the job.

This Congress even reported during its enactment of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 that “almost 50 percent of rape victims lost their jobs or are forced to quit in the aftermath of the crime.” Moreover, studies show that between 24 and 30 percent of battered women surveyed had lost their job due at least in part to domestic violence.

We must also recognize that businesses lose up to $100 million a year in lost wages, sick leave and absenteeism and it is estimated that 25 percent of these workplace problems are due to domestic violence.

Battered women suffer from lost productivity due to illness, inability to concentrate and frequent absenteeism. Indeed, battering has been cited as the most frequent reason why women are treated in emergency rooms, with medical costs for victims reportedly reaching over $100 million annually. This is why it is necessary to include provisions like the Victims Employment

Rights Act that would and tax incentives for employers that would encourage large and small businesses to train their employees to recognize the special needs of victims of domestic violence.

This amendment is an excellent method to encourage employers to implement workplace safety programs that would train employees to on how to address domestic violence situations in a similar fashion that employees are trained to address sexual harassment in the workplace.

With regard to sex discrimination laws, it most be noted that these laws do not provide adequate recourse for victims of battering, rape or stalking because oftentimes, these laws do not address whether firing someone because she was a sexual assault victim is a form of sex discrimination. Thus, it is up to amendments like the Victims Employment Rights Act with the included Workplace Violence Against Women Tax Credit to provide the much-needed rights to victims of domestic violence.

I encourage employers to come forward and to support victims of domestic abuse by offering flexible leaves of absence and by ensuring strict enforcement of restraining orders against batterers in the workplace. Organizations like the New York City Coalition Against Domestic Violence have even published a model personal safety plan and a guide for management policies that make it easy for employers to implement workplace safety programs.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment that will serve as a beacon of light for victims of domestic violence in the workplace as they struggle to overcome their traumatic circumstances and successfully regain control over their lives. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 1248 TO ADD THE CHILD ABUSE

ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY MARKUP

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment, the Child Abuse Accountability Act to assure that child abuse orders are also included in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

This amendment is fairly simplistic. Essentially, it would clarify that child abuse orders like domestic relations orders are properly respected within ERISA so that the young victims of domestic violence are also assured the financial stability they deserve.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is necessary because violence against women not only destroys families and takes the lives of women, but it also destroys the children within the family and traumatizes them as they witness the abuse.

Children who witness violence at home often display emotional and behavioral disturbances. Child abuse is 15 times more likely to occur in families where domestic violence is present.

It is well documented that children who witness violence in the home grow up to repeat the same patterns as adults and men who have witnessed their parents' domestic violence are three times as likely to abuse their own wives. The National Institute for Justice reports that being abused as a child increases the likelihood of arrest as a juvenile by 53% and as an adult by 38%.

By including child abuse order in ERISA, we can help alleviate some of the economic hardships that many victims face after finally escaping their violent relationships. Children of domestic violence have as much if not more health needs that other children raised in more stable environments.

These pension benefits, however small, may provide the necessary money for the mother or father to help their children escape the cycle of abuse that often results in abusive family relationships.

In support of this argument, it should be noted that already forty-two states and the District of Columbia are increasingly recognizing that domestic violence should be considered a factor in custody decisions. This begs the question as to why do we not also provide the additional financial protection for these young victims that adult victims may receive through the ERISA statute.

Mr. Chairman, I realize that this is a fairly technical amendment, however, I truly believe that if we are going to debate the various provisions needed in H.R. 1248, the Violence Against Women Act, that we make sure that all of the victims of domestic violence are considered. That means that the children must not be left out of this most important bill. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO ADD A CIVIL REMEDY TO H.R. 1248

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY MARKUP

JUNE 27, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment along with my colleagues Mr. Conyers and Ms. Baldwin. This amendment is tailored specifically to address the recent Supreme Court decision that invalidated the civil remedy section of the Violence Against Women Act.

This amendment would make liable to the victim any person who commits a crime of violence motivated by gender. Additionally, this amendment attempts to better clarify circumstances under which a victim can file a private action against their assailant by explicitly delineating which activities affect interstate commerce.

This amendment would provide the Attorney General with the discretionary authority to prosecute any State employees or agents that have discriminated in the investigation or prosecution of any gender-based crime.

Mr. Chairman, gender-motivated violence affects all persons, male and female, thus this amendment should be viewed as an important protection for the civil rights of all persons in this nation. Nonetheless, the sad fact remains that over 90% of all persons affected by gender-motivated violence are women and that nearly one in every three adult women experiences at least one physical assault by a partner during adulthood.

The Violence Against Women Act has definitely made a difference in the rate of gender-motivated violence in just the few number of years it has been implemented. From 1993 to 1997, the rate of intimate partner violence decreased from 9.8 to 7.5 per 1000 women.

Yet, victims of gender-motivated violence are affected in other ways that this amendment attempts to address. The loss of wages from job absences that occur as a result of court appearances and various other legal problems is not addressed in the prosecution of their assailants. That is why we must enact the civil remedy portion of this amendment to assure adequate remedy to all victims.

In the arguments presented by the National Network to End Domestic Violence to the Supreme Court in the U.S. v. Morrison decision, one victim of domestic violence stated, “ I missed a lot of time from work. I was late. I called in sick a lot. When I was at work it was hard to concentrate. How can you concentrate on your job when you know you're going to get beaten when you get home.”

Furthermore, it is estimated that the total cost of domestic violence to the American economy may be between five and ten billion dollars annually as a result from lost productivity, employee absences, and health care expenditures. In other studies used by domestic violence organizations, it is documented that domestic abuse results in hundred of thousands of lost work days each year, and harassment, stalking, and excessive telephone calls at work can result in low performance evaluations.

As the studies show, domestic violence is a national tragedy that substantially affects the national economy. Moreover, I think it is particularly important to note that another reason for the need of this amendment is the lack of prosecution in sexual assault cases on the state and local level.

This amendment I am offering with Mr. Conyers and Ms. Baldwin offers an alternative remedy for the victims of sexual assault. Unfortunately, there is a tendency in this society to blame victims of rape and other forms of gender-motivated violence rather than the perpetrators of the crime.

The recent horrific episode in New York's Central Park during the Puerto Rican Day Parade is evidence of this nation's propensity to blame the victims and not the assailants. If the police officers, which are supposed to protect all person - male and female - do not even respond to the numerous pleas of women who have recently been sexually assaulted, then this speaks volumes of this nation's attitudes towards victims of sexual assault in general.

Myths abound surrounding sexual assault – the same type that victims of domestic violence are still struggling against, but fortunately at a lesser degree. As the National Network to End

Domestic Violence indicates, the lack of prosecution, particularly in dating violence cases and on college campuses is alarming.

If we are not going to address this dilemma in the criminal courts, then we must allow the victims to pursue their assailants in the civil courts. Access to the court system should not be limited according to one's gender or the type of crime committed. Victims of sexual assault are no less victims than are victims of a robbery or any other attack.

Victims of domestic and gender-motivated violence may have little, if no, control in criminal proceedings leaving them powerless in the courts; therefore, it is imperative that this amendment be adopted to provide adequate protections to the victims of gender-motivated violence.

I encourage my colleagues to vote for this much needed amendment. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 1248 ADDRESSING UNDERSERVED

POPULATIONS

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY

JUNE 21, 2000

Thank you Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment along with my colleagues Mr. Conyers and Mr. Scott so that that we might discuss this very important topic. The injustice that is evident in the VAWA's Reauthorization Act must be heard and is not able to be quietly dismissed.

I feel strongly that particular populations need added protections as a result of their marginalized place in society, which makes it more difficult for them to access information and services that offer assistance and protection to battered women. Sections of these populations are recognized as under served in VAWA's Reauthorization Act.

However, in the latest markup three undeserved groups lost under served protection; alienage, sexual orientation, and religion. The bill leaves room to expand under served populations beyond those specifically stated, reading, "... and any other population determined to be under served by the State planning process in consultation with the Attorney General".

Unfortunately, the groups involved in state level planning have little experience working with populations that are isolated from traditional services by culture, language, immigration status, religion, or sexual orientation. It is important that the federal legislation recognize the special needs of the under served groups by urging states to pay special attention to these groups needs.

What I have seen particularly strong is the case that includes alienage status as a group listed in the under served definition. When the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996 passed Congress limited access to welfare benefits for immigrants. In doing so programs with immigrant restrictions that were necessary to protect life and safety were exempted from the program.

The PRWORA directed the Attorney General to issue a list of programs that were to be open to all persons regardless of immigration status. On August 30, 1996, the U.S. Attorney General issued an order which guaranteed that there would be no immigration restrictions on access to domestic violence programs, shelters, counseling, intervention, and other outreach programs.

As a matter of federal law, shelters and other domestic violence service providers are required under the U.S. Attorney General's directives to provide services to protect the lives and safety of all battered women, even those who are undocumented immigrants.

I pursue diligently the ideal that regardless of documentation battered immigrant women will be able to seek the services that will help them escape a life of domestic violence. Their ability to seek help should not be hindered by their immigration status.

The VAWA Reauthorization Act as reported out of subcommittee does not reach far enough. Immigrant women are caught in a bitter triangle of immigration, family, and welfare laws that do not reflect their needs and life experiences, leaving them vulnerable to exploitation at home and in the work force with few options for redress.

This triangle of issues can pose barriers that make it particularly important that the term “alienage status” be included in the under served population definition to offer the explicit protection these women need and deserve. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 1349 TO REQUIRE PRISONERS BE GIVEN

ACTUAL NOTICE OF CO-PAYMENT REQUIREMENT

JULY 18, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment to require that prisoners be given actual notice of the health services co-payment requirement assessed under H.R. 1349.

I understand the sentiment of the proponents of this measure. The U.S. Supreme Court case of Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97 (1976) enunciated the principle that the government has an obligation to provide Medicare to prisoners and this principle has been upheld in subsequent cases. In DeShaney v. Winnebago County DSS, 489 U.S. 189 (1989) the court stated:

However, it is hypocritical for us as a nation to affirmatively exercise its power to restrain an individual's liberty, yet renders him unable to care for himself.

This transgresses the substantive limits on state actions set by the Eighth Amendment and the due process clause.

This is why my first Amendment requires that at the very least, we obtain assure that each prisoner is afforded "actual notice" of the co-payment requirement and of their right to comment on the proposed regulation.

In the Subcommittee markup, I originally offered an amendment requiring that each prisoner consent to the fee they are assessed.

I did so because this bill attempts to force inmates to pay a fee for health care services without their consent. Yet, I still fail to see any reason why we cannot obtain consent from the prisoner. If the prisoner refuses, then that places the responsibility upon the prisoner to care for himself when needed. Is this not what this bill is supposed to accomplish – increased responsibility upon the prisoner.

Another issue that must be addressed is the meager funds in most inmates accounts, of which a fee for service could potentially impede access to needed health care, particularly the all-important preventative care which is premised upon preventing the spread of infectious diseases and minor problems from becoming major problems due to lack of early treatment.

If we must access a fee, let us not deny health services to those unable to pay this fee out of their own account and not that of their family.

We must remember that many are from low income families and rely on these families for funds to buy personal hygiene items like toothpaste and shampoo. This minor copay would compel impoverished inmates to forego medical needs in order to purchase these items.

Furthermore, avoidance of minor medical problems can lead to dangerous health situations not only for the prisoners, but for the prison employees contractors as well. The prisoners are in jail in order to accept the consequences of their crime, not their families.

This is why I feel that my amendment will effectively address this concern that prisoners are being assessed a fee for health services without their consent.

By insuring that all prisoners are afforded actual notice of their right to comment on the proposed regulations this will help alleviate the problems I have with the “no consent” requirement of this bill.

Furthermore, I have also included terminology in this amendment to address the concern that the Bureau of Prisons will be flooded with needless paperwork as a result of this notice requirement.

It is my intent that by providing Federal prisoner advocacy groups with this notice requirement, that any prisoner who does wish to comment on the proposed regulation will do so via the prison advocacy group. This way the prison advocacy groups can hopefully regulate the flow of potential comments on the proposed regulation.

I ask my colleagues to support this amendment if they are truly concerned about enforcing responsibility upon prisoners in the federal system.

Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 2987

TO ADD A NATIONAL AWARENESS CAMPAIGN

JULY 24, 2000

Mr. Chairman I offer this Amendment to Mr. McCollum's Amendment to H.R. 2987, the Methamphetamine Anti-Proliferation Act in order to better clarify the type of National Awareness Campaign necessary under this bill.

Currently, this bill offers a limited description of a type of media campaign that should be offered under this bill, however, my bill would insert language not only allowing for the creation of a National Awareness Campaign to educate individuals about the dangers of methamphetamine, amphetamines and other related drugs, but also a time line by which this campaign should be enacted along with a specific definition of the intended population for which this national campaign would be targeted.

My amendment would require the Secretary of Health and Human Services in consultation with the Attorney General to develop a plan within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and to establish an advisory committee to make recommendations to the Secretary regarding this plan on a periodic basis.

Whether or not one agrees or disagrees with this bill, I feel that it is necessary to at least ensure that a substantive Awareness program is enacted to help educate our youth about the dangers of methamphetamines, amphetamines and other related drugs.

With the use of Methamphetamine related drugs on the rise, our children, now more than ever need to understand that these drugs are not harmless hallucinogenic.

My main purpose for offering this amendment is simply to make sure that the implementation of an awareness campaign does not become mired in bureaucratic backlog and to ensure that the campaign is continually updated to respond to the changing habits of our nation's youth.

I hope that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle will respond accordingly by supporting this amendment re-defining the parameters of a National Awareness Campaign. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 2987 TO ADD GHB TO LISTED DRUGS

CONSIDERED IN THE GRANT PROGRAM

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY

JULY 25, 2000

Mr. Chairman, this is a friendly amendment to H.R. 2987 to add Gamma Hydroxybutric Acid, commonly referred to as GHB, a well known date-rape drug, to the drugs mentioned in Section 404 that adds Section 506 to provide Grants for Club Drug Abuse Prevention.

Although I am aware that the grant program states that other related drugs may also be considered when funding school-based and community prevention programs, I believe that it is necessary to specifically mention one of the commonly know date-rape drugs that is known to be responsible for at least 40 deaths around the country and is on the rise in the rave scene for its alleged hallucinogenic effects.

GHB is also widely abused by bodybuilders who abuse GHB for an anabolic agent or as a sleep aid.

Mr. Chairman, as this committee is aware, my bill H.R. 2130, the “Hillary J. Farias and Samantha Reid Date-Rape Drug Prohibition Act of 2000,” put GHB on Schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act and has already been signed into law. I am proud of this accomplishment, but I want to make certain that GHB and other date-rape drugs are included in the equation when grant funding is distributed to school-based and community programs.

This amendment is not intended to impede the intent of this bill, simply to better clarify the parameters of the prevention programs that can be established under this bill and to provide school-based and community programs with additional resources for combating the rise in methamphetamine and other related drugs among youth today.

Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 4292, THE “BORN ALIVE INFANTS PROTECTION ACT” TO PROTECT PARENTAL RIGHTS

FULL COMMITTEE JUDICIARY

JULY 25, 2000

Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment to address this bill’s possible encroachment upon parental rights.

Specifically, this amendment states that “Nothing in this Act shall abridge the right of a parent in determining appropriate medical care. For the purposes of this Act, appropriate medical care occurs within the standard of care practiced by physicians in the United States.”

As stated by my colleague Mr. Watt and the witnesses at the hearing, I am truly concerned that this bill would prohibit parents from exercising their rights to decide what is in the best interest of their newborn, the mother and the family.

If enacted, this bill could interfere with the rights of parents to make highly personal and private decisions about medical treatment in difficult situations, such as whether heroic efforts or compassionate care are appropriate when a fetus has no chance of survival.

This bill could also risk overriding the professional judgment and expertise of neonatologists, who may feel that they should take extraordinary measures to preserve fetal life against the wishes of parents.

I must again refer to the hearing last week when Mathew Hile gave his testimony regarding the unintended, but nevertheless practical effects of implementing such legislation.

His daughter Amelia was born prematurely, not as a result of an abortion. Amelia was not expected to survive because of brain stem abnormalities.

Mr. Hile and his wife met numerous times with physicians to discuss how to proceed, whether to put young Amelia on a ventilator or to let her live out her days naturally and not prolong her suffering.

Unlike the stories that proponents of this bill would have you to believe, Amelia's parents took great care in deciding what to do. They loved their daughter. They read to Amelia, played music, talked to her, held her, fed her. Nevertheless, Amelia's suffering continued and her parents as well.

Mr. Hile testified that because of the “born alive “ statute in their state of Missouri, the doctors had to continue to perform “heroic measures” to prolong the suffering of their daughter, in turn prolonging their agony as well.

I cannot imagine that anyone here would support exacerbating the agony of parents suffering through the death of their newborn child.

This is a choice that must be left to those most involved, the physicians and the families who care deeply about their children.

Providing “comfort care” versus “heroic measures” to sustain a newborn is not an easy decision and should not be made by politicians separated from the reality of this heartwrenching situation.

I urge my colleagues to accept this amendment to ensure that parents maintain the rights to make the informed decisions necessary for their child.

Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO HR 1924, THE “FEDERAL AGENCY COMPLIANCE ACT”

2141 RAYBURN HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING

SEPTEMBER 20, 2000

Thank you Mr. Chairman and Ranking Member Conyers for allowing me to offer an amendment to HR 1293, The “Federal Agency Compliance Act.” Unfortunately, the legislation as currently drafted would have an adverse impact on many Americans that would turn back the clock on the dynamic enforcement of civil rights laws by a number of federal agencies that utilize the American judicial system.

I have opposed this legislation before and I will do so again because of the serious concerns related to the enforcement of civil rights, environmental, and labor laws as outlined by this legislation. We cannot jeopardize the accomplishments related to the enforcement of our core civil rights laws that our federal agencies have reached through “relitigation” of circuit court decisions that are seen as vindicating a wrong, not adding an extra level of judicial review.

Mr. Chairman, I am offering an amendment to the legislation before us today to respond to this concern. My amendment makes clear that HR 1924 will not apply “with respect to proceeding in courts involving the enforcement of Federal civil rights laws.” We must be careful, Mr. Chairman, that we do not inadvertently hamper, by some legislative modification the legitimate efforts, the enforcement activities of the federal agencies that utilize the development of case law to enforce basic individual rights.

The bill, if passed as written, would require federal executive agencies to adhere to existing precedents of the U.S. Court of Appeals with respect to the interpretation and application of the statute, rule, program, or policy within that particular court. Civil rights cases, by nature, challenge judges at every level of our judicial system to properly scrutinize those constitutional or statutory protections that all Americans revere. That is a sensitive matter to all Americans, which is not addressed by the measure. These are precisely the type or nature of precedents that are subject to differing interpretations because judges reasonably interpret a point of law or principle from totally opposite viewpoints.

Many members of this committee have previously warned that such a measure would reduce the discretionary authority of every federal agency to decide when to challenge circuit court decisions, not merely the agencies that have abused that discretion. A similar measure to the bill under consideration was passed in 1997 yet was never acted upon by the Senate.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly reaffirm my concern that this legislation before the Committee would have an adverse impact on civil rights enforcement. The Department of Justice (its Civil Rights Division) and the Civil Rights Divisions of various federal agencies (such as the Department of Health and Human Services) would be my primary concern in the categorical objection to the language in HR 1924. The limitation on these agencies' ability to appeal misguided circuit court decisions to the Supreme Court (i.e. autonomy of relitigation) in addition to their ability to create novel and ingenious ways of protecting the rights of citizens, is a sacred craft that should only be regulated with the highest level of scrutiny.

Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to pass this amendment to make sure that our civil rights laws are not jeopardized by HR 1924.

Thank you.

Summary of Lofgren/Jackson Lee/Barr Amendment to HR 5018, Statutory Exclusion for Stored E-Mail Amendment

The amendment restores to the Canady manager's amendment the statutory exclusion rule for stored e-mails. The provision would make illegal seizures of the content of stored e-mails subject to the statutory exclusion rule. If the government uses electronic wiretaps subject to the exclusionary rule because the wiretap is considered the most invasive type of search, the same statutory exclusion rule should apply to stored e-mail. People's reasonable privacy interests in their communications should not be lessened simply because they are having a conversation over e-mail, rather than over the telephone.

JACKSON LEE -LOFGREN AMENDMENT TO HR 5018, THE “ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATIONS PRIVACY ACT OF 2000”

2141 RAYBURN HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING

SEPTEMBER 25, 2000

I want to Thank Chairman Hyde and Ranking Member Conyers for allowing me offer an amendment to HR 5018, the “Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 2000.”

This amendment addresses important privacy concerns as we reshape our laws surrounding communications on the Internet. In fact, this amendment includes one of the major substantive protections that must be restored with the legislation before us.

Mr. Chairman, the bill that was reported out of the Subcommittee included a provision that would make illegal seizures of the content of stored e-mails subject to the statutory exclusion rule. But the manager's amendment strips out this important provision – which was one of the core reforms of HR 5018. This amendment would restore the statutory exclusion rule for stored e-mails.

In the 1960's, Congress determined that for illegally obtained wiretaps, a statutory exclusion was appropriate, which is stricter than the 4th Amendment balancing test for suppression of evidence, because a wiretap is the most invasive type of search. With a wiretap, the government can listen in on a person's conversations, as they are taking place.

There is agreement---among the Department of Justice, the privacy community, and across party lines—that for electronic wiretaps, where there is a real-time interception of content, the statutory exclusionary rule should be applied. We strongly support this provision, because it brings the wiretap statute up to date in the Internet age.

But the same statutory exclusion rule should apply to so-called “stored e-mail.” Stored e-mail is merely a technical term for e-mail that resides in the Internet Service Provider (“ISP”) because the e-mail is being delivered to the recipient, or because the ISP has made a backup copy of it. In other words, stored e-mail is “stored” simply by virtue of the way the Internet works. E-mail has to go through an ISP to get to its destination. There is no way around to ignore that kind of problem, Mr. Speaker.

Now, imagine what would happen if we left the current language alone. If the manager’s amendment is accepted without change and a person’s e-mail is being electronically tapped, the statutory suppression rule applies. But if law enforcement waits one fraction of a second, for the e-mail to be sent, the government can get that same e-mail from the ISP, without the penalty of statutory suppression, if that search is illegal. This makes no sense, and it is a distinction that cannot be defended.

It would be tantamount to saying that the government can capture my phone conversations at the telephone company, before they reach the person I called, the statutory suppression should not apply in that case.

But Mr. Chairman, we do not say this about telephone conversations. And we should not say them about electronic communications, either. People's reasonable privacy interest in their communications should not be diminished simply because they're have a "conversation" over e-mail, rather than over the phone wires.

The truth is that with either stored e-mail or an electric wiretap, the government can obtain the content of my e-mail. The penalty should apply when this content is obtained illegally.

Mr. Chairman, a number of my colleagues from across the aisle are concerned about the privacy invasions that were restored through the manager's amendment. This is a reasonable common sense amendment that strikes an important balance for all those who seek to improve access and use of information on the Internet. Let us ensure some minimum privacy protections. Thank you.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

JUNE 12, 2001

- H.R. 2120 empowers the Attorney General to monitor and to potentially regulate companies that are found to be monopolies and who use or are likely to use that power to engage in “exclusionary or anti-competitive conduct.”

- As legislators, it is our duty to monitor this process closely. We must seek to increase consumer choice, protections, and access to services for all Americans, particularly those in rural and traditionally underserved areas. We must also seek to protect the millions of jobs in the Telecommunications industry across the Nation.
- H.R. 2120 seeks to monitor behavior that stifles competition. But as members of Congress, we would be remiss in our duties if we failed to monitor this process closely ourselves, particularly at this delicate juncture in this industry where universal service is crucial to the quality of lives for all Americans.
- My amendment requires the Attorney General to annually report to Congress as to which Bell operating companies have filed applications with the Attorney General pursuant to H.R. 2120, what services were at issue, and whether such application was approved and why.

- This Report will serve as the basis of Congress' understanding of how the deployment of telecommunications services is developing, and will help Congress in its role to make appropriate changes where they are needed.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

JUNE 12, 2001

- This amendment relates to the Provision in H.R. 2120 that applies to carriers constituting two-percent of the market.
- H.R. 2120 targets greater than two-percent carriers, those with large market shares, because of their potential for monopolization and anti competitive behavior, while exempting those carriers constituting two-percent or less of the market.

- Doing so unfairly and arbitrarily targets and discriminates against larger carriers, subjecting them to strict scrutiny and regulation simply because of their size. This is wrong because it fails to recognize the positive contribution, both in terms of jobs and innovation, which these larger companies offer Americans.
- My amendment tries to strike a balance between the important need to police the field against those who would try to use their size and market positions to stifle competition, with the need to apply such standards fairly and evenly across the entire market.
- If our goal is truly to protect consumers, stimulate innovation, and increase the deployment of services that increase the quality of life for all Americans, we must tread lightly so as not to unfairly challenge those sectors of the industry that is and has been committed to these important goals.

AMENDMENT TO HR 2215, THE “21ST CENTURY DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE APPROPRIATIONS AUTHORIZATION”

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

2141 RAYBURN HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING

JUNE 20, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to offer an amendment to H.R. 2215, “the 21st Century Department of Justice Appropriations Authorization.” I believe Members of this Committee will find it useful to adopt this non-controversial but desperately important amendment relating to funding for civil rights enforcement.

The Committee had the opportunity to recently discuss some funding matters with Attorney General John Ashcroft. In fact, we discussed a number of civil rights matters with the Attorney General.

My amendment simply states that the Civil Rights Division should receive no less than $102 million from the FY 2002 budget. While this is only the beginning of the process, I believe it is important that we enunciate and establish our basic core funding priorities regarding spending for the Civil Rights Division.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge my colleagues to adopt this very simple amendment that simply establishes an actual number in terms of millions that both sides of the aisle are already aware of. The American people surely expect their representatives to resolve these basic matters before we begin on possibly more controversial matters that will be entertained by this committee regarding the DOJ budget.

As we all know, the civil rights agencies must have adequate resources at the Department. It is necessary that we make sure that we establish a firm commitment about funding for the Civil Rights Division. If we really intend to do something about eliminating the odious practice of racial profiling or enacting meaningful election reform, the Civil Rights Division must have the funding it needs. Additionally, the Attorney General must ensure that other civil rights and environmental prosecutions are vigorously enforced.

Mr. Chairman, I look forward to working with you and Ranking Member Conyers on the Department of Justice budget for the next fiscal year. I urge my colleagues to support my amendment.

Thank you.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

MARKUP OF H R 7

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

STATEMENT

JUNE 28, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to speak on behalf of the Scott-Conyers-Nadler-Jackson Lee amendment to H.R. 7. This amendment would apply charitable choice rules to federal grant programs but prevents those rules from overriding state and local contracting requirements that may apply to grants.

HR 7 preempts state and local contracting requirements that relate to religious organizations. Supporters of HR 7 argue that it would override state and local nondiscrimination employment laws if those laws are contrary to “sincerely held religious beliefs” and have also argued it would override state and local contracting requirements with respect to contracting with diverse providers.

However, I am troubled by the implications of this bill, which would permit religious organizations that sponsor federal programs to discriminate on the basis of religion in their employment when using taxpayer dollars.

The Watts-Hall bill actually worsens the most onerous part of the Charitable Choice scheme – religious discrimination against employees and applicants applying for positions in government-funded programs. It would greatly expand the scope of this discrimination by allowing any religious group to engage in discrimination as opposed to just those which elect an exemption under Title VII. Under Title VII, religious groups can discriminate in employment based on religious affiliation, as well as characteristics the religious group might find relevant, including sexual orientation, marital status or pregnancy status.

Moreover, courts have broadly interpreted the Title VII exemption that allows religious organizations to discriminate in private employment for religious purposes. Hence, the bill will extend these exemptions to publicly funded religious groups, government-subsidized employment discrimination would take place. This is wrong, and it is intolerable.

It also contains a clause that would specifically authorize discrimination based on an employer's "religious practices" – such as not hiring unmarried, pregnant women. The bill would also allow this "religious practices" discrimination to trump other Federal laws and protections. Taxpayer dollars should never be used to discriminate against someone. It is both unconstitutional and morally wrong. The Watts-Hall bill tries to obfuscate this issue by listing other civil rights laws that would apply to the religious institution – but it cannot hide the fact that this bill constitutes a huge step backwards on civil rights protections in our country.

This amendment will strike the employment discrimination provisions of HR 7, which are contained in subsection (e) of Title II of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Thank you.

STATEMENT

JUNE 28, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I wish to address yet another troubling provision of HR 7.

Currently, this bill allows privately funded employees or volunteers to engage in proselytization, sectarian instruction or worship during the provision of government funded services. While HR 7 supposedly says that “no funds” should be expended for sectarian worship, instruction or proselytizing, it fails to include meaningful safeguards against proselytization of beneficiaries while they are participating in a publicly funded program.

Claims by supporters of this legislation that proselytization will not occur are dubious. In fact, in the same speech in which President Bush claimed that no tax dollars will be spent on worship, he emphasized the importance of religion in social services, celebrating a Baptist church program that moves troubled teens into Bible studies. The president said, "America can be saved, one heart, one soul, one conscience at a time." This religious language is hardly reassuring to those who support the First Amendment principle of church-state separation.

Government subsidized social services should fund viable, secular alternatives, and not leave this burden to the client. Many of the recipients of these social services should not be forced to deal with potentially coercive religious experiences through government funded services. Their lives are stressed enough without also facing burden of having to resist religious instruction or conversion attempts.

If religious organizations wish to provide social services using public funds, they ought to be able to do so on condition that they meet the same standards of accountability that all organizations must meet. Furthermore, they must not engage in any religious practice that could make clients feel coerced.

It is our obligation to protect those in need, and this amendment will help us do so. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment. Thank you.

Mr. Chairman, I speak again in support of an amendment to HR 7. This amendment would apply charitable choice rules to federal grant programs but prevents those rules from overriding state and local contracting requirements that may apply to grants.

HR 7 preempts state and local contracting requirements that relate to religious organizations. Supporters of HR 7 argue that it would override state and local nondiscrimination employment laws if those laws are contrary to “sincerely held religious beliefs” and have also argued it would override state en local contracting requirements with respect to contracting with diverse providers.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 1552,

THE INTERNET NONDISCRIMINATION ACT

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

OCTOBER 10, 2001

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support my amendment seeking to maintain the grandfather clause permitting states that already impose Internet access taxes, to continue to do so.

H.R. 1552 seeks to extend the current internet tax moratorium, prohibiting states or political subdivisions from imposing taxes on transaction conducted over the Internet, through 2006. Presently, ten states including Texas have taxes on Internet access charges. These states should be allowed to continue this practice. To this end, I do not support any such extension where it bars states from collecting much needed tax revenue.

My amendment to this bill would maintain the grandfather clause of those states that already impose taxes for Internet access. With respect to these states, there is simply no reason to change the law at this time. My amendment will allow states to maintain the ability to generate vital tax revenues that fund essential state programs for the public.

Many states across our nation already rely on these crucial revenue streams. According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, Information Technologies industries presently account for 35 percent of real U.S. economic growth, while Internet retail sales continue to rise. In the first quarter of 2001, e-commerce retail sales reached nearly $7 billion, and are projected to reach $35 to $40 billion by year's end. Businesses are developing online sales outlets and expanding their use of networked systems to reach out to consumers in an increasingly digital marketplace. And in my home state of Texas, we are at the forefront of this revolution, where Richardson's Telecom Corridor has the nation's highest concentration of telecommunications firms - more than 350 within a two-square-mile area. Indeed, the crucial revenues from these sectors cannot be underestimated.

In this time of uncertainty, we must secure and strengthen what's been proven to work. The states currently under the grandfather clause should be allowed to continue to raise revenues as they always have. My amendment secures this. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. Thank you.

NOVEMBER 15, 2001

Thank you Mr. Chairman.

The bill before us, HR 3044, provides for the forfeiture of vessels used to violate defense safety regulations regarding navigable waters. This bill provides increased penalties, including civil forfeiture, for willful violations of Department of Defense regulations used to protect designated waters. Forfeitures include any boat, ship, or other vessel, including gear or any other property used in connection with the commission of any act prohibited under law.

The bill also provides for jurisdiction of any district court of the United States upon a forfeiture application issued by the Attorney General

TALKING POINTS
CONGRESSWOMAN JACKSON LEE'S
AMENDMENT TO H.R. 3275

- I support prompt ratification and implementation of the International Conventions for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings and the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism.
- However, I am concerned that H.R. 3275 includes controversial changes to U.S. domestic law that go well beyond those changes required to bring our laws into conformity with the requirements of those agreements.
- Specifically, we must avoid the redundancy of ancillary provisions relating to the death penalty, wiretapping, money laundering, and RICO predicates. These stipulations, which were included in the Anti-Terrorist Bill, have already been passed into law on October 26, 2001. Therefore, to include the same provisions in H.R. 3275 would be redundant and would serve no purpose. As a matter of fact, Mr. Chertoff of the Department of Justice stated yesterday that these provisions are not required in order to implement the treaties.

- To this end, I join my colleagues, Mr. Scott and Mr. Delahunt in their opposition to certain ancillary provisions of this bill in relation to treaty approval.
- I would also like to introduce an amendment myself.
- My amendment simply strikes Sections 103(e) and 203(d) of the bill which unnecessarily provide RICO predicates in the bill.
- While I fully support the efforts of our law enforcement professionals in light of the recent attacks against this Nation, I am concerned that prosecutors should be limited in the extent to which they can cast the widest possible net, often to the great detriment of those who were not initially target by Congress when the legislation was enacted.
- I urge my colleague to support my amendment.

MARKUP OF HR 1022, THE COMMUNITY RECOGNITION ACT OF 2001

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Thank you Mr. Chairman.

I support HR 1022, which simply authorizes the chief elected official of a locality, in the event of the death of a present or former official of that locality, to proclaim that the national flag shall be flown at half staff. This bill amends Title 4, United States Code, ensuring that the important rules of etiquette for flying the flag of the United States do not preclude the flying of flags at half mast when ordered by city and local officials.

The section currently gives such explicit authority only to the President or, for certain purposes, the Governor of the state. This language is unnecessary and technically confusing because the subsection also reads in part that the flag may be flown at half staff “in accordance with recognized customs or practices not inconsistent with law.”

The U.S. Supreme Court has, on two occasions, held that display of the flag, or the burning of the flag, are forms of expression protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution. As such, laws that mandate appropriate flag etiquette are unenforceable. This bill simply clarifies that there should be no such interference in such instances.

H.R. 3288, THE FAIRNESS IN ANTITRUST IN NATIONAL SPORTS

(FANS) ACT OF 2001

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

DECEMBER 6, 2001

Thank you Chairman Sensenbrenner and Ranking Member Conyers for this important hearing on H.R. 3288, The Fairness in Antitrust in National Sports (FANS) Act of 2001. This hearing will ensure that we continue to address the important issues effecting the great sport of baseball.

I would also like to thank our panel of distinguished witnesses for their appearing here today: Major League Baseball Commissioner Bud Selig; Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura; Minnesota Twins President Jerry Bell, and MLB Players Association Counsel Steven Fehr.

The issue of antitrust in baseball is a complex one. The thousands of jobs and large amount of money at stake require Congress to take a fair and reasoned approach to this important issue. I hope that we will do that today.

The legislation before us today, H.R. 3288 and S. 1704, the identical Senate counterpart, would address the baseball antitrust issue by amending the relevant antitrust law (the Clayton Act) by making it applicable to the elimination or relocation of major league baseball franchises in the same manner that the antitrust laws are applied to the elimination or relocation of a franchise in any other professional sports business affecting interstate commerce.

I believe that this legislation was introduced with good intentions to address many of the serious problems that exist within the sport. Some of these include: skyrocketing salaries – some of which reach into the hundreds of millions of dollars; revenue sharing among the teams; and elimination or relocation of teams. But Congress must fully analyze the weight of caselaw and other precedent before rushing to legislate what has and is today, a fragile economic balance that exists within this great industry. As such, maintaining the stability of the industry must be one of our primary concerns as we proceed.

In the 1922 case of Federal Baseball v. National League, the Supreme Court held that baseball is not subject to federal antitrust laws because it is a “sport” and thus, does not constitute “interstate commerce”. 259 U.S. 200 (1922). Opponents of this position have argued that the $3 billion annual revenue that baseball generates over the last eight decades constitute “interstate commerce” in the truest meaning of the phrase.

Through the years, the baseball antitrust exemption was upheld by the Court because it enables franchises in communities of varying sizes and with different market conditions to compete against each other. The Supreme Court upheld this exemption in the case of Flood v. Kuhn brought in 1972 by the great baseball player Curt Flood. 407 U.S. 258 (1972). Importantly, Justice Blackmun writing for the Court, opined: “what the Court said in Federal Baseball in 1972: the remedy, if any is indicated, is for congressional, and not judicial, action.” Id. at 285.

However, the Curt Flood Act (S. 53), signed into law by President Clinton in 1998, suggested that Congress’ position that the federal antitrust laws do apply to the employment of professional baseball player contracts to the same extent as other professional athletes.

The legislation honors the late Curt Flood, whose reputation as a player was matched only by his courage off the field as he refused a trade from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies. His stand pursuing an antitrust suit against a number of Major League Baseball entities set a precedent that led to the signing of the Curt Flood Act which effectively limited baseball's special judicially created antitrust exemption by expressly applying the antitrust laws to certain conduct of Major League Baseball.

Conversely, supporters of the antitrust exemption point to the 1993 United States District Court for Eastern Pennsylvania case of Piazza v. Major League Baseball which held that “the exemption created by (the case of) Federal Baseball is limited to baseball’s ‘reserve system’ only. 831 F. Supp. 420, 421 (E.D. Pa. 1993).

Importantly, although this opinion alone does not outweigh the precedential value of the Federal case, the combination of the persuasive weight of the Curt Flood Act and the holding in Piazza lends weight to the argument that antitrust laws apply to baseball as they do to other sports.

It is important to recognize that today, Major League Baseball is facing serious financial challenges, losing $511 million this year where 83% of the clubs will incur losses. To this end, the ability for Major League Baseball to select its own cities and to control its own internal operations may be an important factor in promoting the longevity and stability of Major League Baseball throughout the entire sport. As such, we must seriously consider and probe the need for this legislation at this time.

Recently, many Members of Congress and countless Americans were shocked by the announced decision by Major League Baseball to eliminate two teams, possibly by December 15th, 2001. Supporters of this legislation correctly illuminate the risk of economic losses and the losses of jobs to local economies once served by these teams. Supporters also note that the bill would only apply in such instances as this, involving the elimination or relocation of major baseball franchises and would allow the antitrust exemption to remain for other matters.

However, we must consider the serious and potentially adverse effects of this bill on an already unstable industry. Importantly, these relocations or eliminations of teams from our Nation's cities may be a difficult but necessary and instrumental fix to ensure the long-term stability of the game. So while these moves may have a temporary destabilizing effect, the long-term benefit to the game, to our economy and to our Nation may be misunderstood.

These are difficult issues deserving of our utmost attention. I look forward to the insight and recommendations of all of our panelists so that we may ensure that the great sport of baseball remains stable and vibrant for many years to come.

Thank you.

MARKUP OF H.R. 3288, THE FAIRNESS IN ANTITRUST IN

NATIONAL SPORTS (FANS) ACT OF 2001

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

FEBRUARY 13, 2002

Thank you Chairman Sensenbrenner and Ranking Member Conyers for this markup on H.R. 3288, The Fairness in Antitrust in National Sports (FANS) Act of 2001.

The issue of antitrust in baseball is a complex one. The thousands of jobs and large amount of money at stake require Congress to take a fair and reasoned approach to this important issue. I hope that we will do that today, so that we may preserve what is truly great about this sport.

The legislation before us today, H.R. 3288 addresses the baseball antitrust issue by amending the relevant antitrust law (the Clayton Act) by making it applicable to the elimination or relocation of major league baseball franchises in the same manner that the antitrust laws are applied to the elimination or relocation of a franchise in any other professional sports business affecting interstate commerce.

I believe that this legislation was introduced with good intentions to address many of the serious problems that exist within the sport. Some of these include: skyrocketing salaries – some of which reach into the hundreds of millions of dollars; revenue sharing among the teams; and elimination or relocation of teams. I was glad when this Committee took the time last December to analyze the caselaw and precedent. What we discovered is that the fragile economic balance that exists within this great industry may easily be disturbed.

The anti-trust exemption that baseball enjoys is unprecedented across all strata of professional sports. In the 1922 case of Federal Baseball v. National League, the Supreme Court held that baseball is not subject to federal antitrust laws because it is a “sport” and thus, does not constitute “interstate commerce”. 259 U.S. 200 (1922). Today, it is patently clear that baseball. Which has been called the “great American sport,” and the $3 billion annual revenue that baseball generates over the last eight decades certainly does constitute “interstate commerce.”

Given these findings, the issue of why baseball has continued to enjoy this exemption is notable.

Through the years, the exemption was upheld by the Court because it actually facilitated the perseverance of the sport by enabling franchises in communities of varying sizes and with different market conditions to compete against each other.

The Supreme Court upheld this exemption in the case of Flood v. Kuhn brought in 1972 by the great baseball player Curt Flood. 407 U.S. 258 (1972). Importantly, Justice Blackmun writing for the Court, opined: “what the Court said in Federal Baseball in 1972: the remedy, if any is indicated, is for congressional, and not judicial, action.” Id. at 285.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

H.R. 2146, AMENDMENT TO THE “TWO STRIKES AND YOU’RE OUT CHILD PROTECTION ACT”

HOUSE SUBCOMMITTEE ON CRIME

AUGUST 2, 2001

Again, Chairman Smith and Ranking Member Scott, I thank you for holding the hearing on HR 2146, the “TWO STRIKES AND YOU’RE OUT CHILD PROTECTION ACT”.

I have already expressed my objection to the mandatory minimum provision of the legislation.

However, recognizing that this legislation may continue to move forward, I am offering an amendment that will at the very least, be a step toward reducing the number of sex offenses committed against our children.

My amendment will require that the National Institute of Justice study and report to Congress on the availability and effectiveness of treatment for incarcerated and non-incarcerated perpetrators of sex offenses against children, while also analyzing the effectiveness of probation and parole supervision in reducing the rates of recidivism of these sex offenders.

These crimes are a great threat to our children, and to our society at large. Statistics indicate that on a given day, there are well over 200,000 offenders convicted of rape or sexual assault under the care, custody or control of corrections agencies. In any one year, there are over one million such offenders in prison.

More startling, however, is the fact that nearly 80% of the victims of sexual offenders are children 17 or younger.

These statistics are truly startling. Yet, the Bureau of Justice Statistics has reported that as of 1998, only 2.9% of all inmates in state prisons were enrolled in programs for sex offenders – that is less than 30% of the sex offenders who receive any type of treatment. As a result, recidivism rates are dangerously high.

The National Institute of Justice reports that research has failed to identify those offenders who are likely to re-offend, or to determine effective treatments for sex offenders. Although many believe that sex offenders are the hardest type of criminal to rehabilitate and are the most likely to re-offend, no evidence supports either belief.

In 1994, Congress enacted the Jacob Wetterling Crimes Against Children and Sexually Violent Offender Registration Act, which requires that perpetrators of violent sex offenses and crimes against minors register with local law enforcement. In 1996, Megan's Law and the Lychner Act were passed; these laws require community notification and interstate tracking.

In these ways, we attempted to protect children and others from violent criminals. However, we must also ensure that when these offenders are released into our communities, they are equipped with tools that they need so they are less likely than ever to attempt to commit another heinous act.

To this end we must evaluate the availability and effectiveness of treatments and post-release programs. Some studies have been conducted, but they do not comprehensively address the issue, nor do they provide up-to-date information. For example, in March of this year, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention issued a review of the professional literature from the past ten years on juveniles who have sexually offended, including references to treatment, its approaches and its efficacy. The National Institute of Justice issued in January 1997 a study on managing adult sex offenders in communities through probation, parole and other forms of community supervision. These studies are valuable tools, but they must be more comprehensive, and we must keep them updated.

My amendment is an effort to protect our children by compelling a thorough evaluation of alternatives to incarceration and treatment in order to rehabilitate those capable of such progress.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. Thank you.

BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT TO H.R. 9

“Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, and Coretta Scott King Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006”

MAY 10, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Amendment Jackso 248.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment makes it an automatic, or per se, violation of the Voting Rights Act for a covered jurisdiction – like my home state of Texas -- to redistrict its legislative or congressional districts in the mid-decade, after those districts had already been redrawn in that decade and either enacted into state law or approved by a federal court.

Before I explain my amendment, let me express my appreciation to the Chairman and Ranking Member for their genuinely bipartisan cooperation in shepherding this historic and vital legislation to this point.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 is no ordinary piece of legislation. For millions of Americans, and many of us on this Committee, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 is a sacred treasure, earned by the sweat and toil and tears and blood of ordinary Americans who showed the world it was possible to accomplish extraordinary things.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended, which we will vote to reauthorize today was enacted to remedy a history of discrimination in certain areas of the country. Presented with a record of systematic defiance by certain States and jurisdictions that could not be overcome by litigation, this Congress -- led by President Lyndon Johnson, from my own home state of Texas -- took the steps necessary to stop it. It is instructive to recall the words of President Johnson when he proposed the Voting Rights Act to the Congress in 1965:

"Rarely are we met with a challenge.....to the values and the purposes and the meaning of our beloved Nation. The issue of equal rights for American Negroes is such as an issue.....the command of the Constitution is plain. It is wrong -- deadly wrong -- to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country."

The Voting Rights Act of 1965, represents our country and this Congress at its best because it matches our words to deeds, our actions to our values. And, as is usually the case, when America acts consistent with its highest values, success follows.

Without exaggeration, the Voting Rights Act has been one of the most effective civil rights laws passed by Congress. In 1964, there were only approximately 300 African-Americans in public office, including just three in Congress. Few, if any, black elected officials were elected anywhere in the South. Today there are more than 9,100 black elected officials, including 43 members of Congress, the largest number ever. The act has opened the political process for many of the approximately 6,000 Latino public officials that have been elected and appointed nationwide, including 263 at the state or federal level, 27 of whom serve in Congress. Native Americans, Asians and others who have historically encountered harsh barriers to full political participation also have benefited greatly.

Mr. Chairman, I hail from the great State of Texas, the Lone Star State. A state that, sadly, had one of the most egregious records of voting discrimination against racial and language minorities. Texas is one of the Voting Rights Act's "covered jurisdictions." In all of its history, I am only one of three African-American woman from Texas to serve in the Congress of the United States, and one of only two to sit on this famed Committee. I hold the seat once held by the late Barbara Jordan, who won her seat thanks to the Voting Rights Act. From her perch on this committee, Barbara Jordan once said:

I believe hyperbole would not be fictional and would not overstate the solemnity that I feel right now. My faith in the Constitution is whole, it is complete, it is total.

I sit here today an heir of the Civil Rights Movement, a beneficiary of the Voting Rights Act. My faith in the Constitution and the Voting Rights Act too is whole, it is complete, it is total. I would be breaking faith with those who risked all and gave all to secure for my generation the right to vote if I did not do all I can to strengthen the Voting Rights Act so that it will forever keep open doors that shut out so many for so long.

That is why I am proud to offer my amendment. It is a simple amendment. It is easy to understand. It is obviously the right thing to do. My amendment declares that it is an automatic, or per se, violation of the Voting Rights Act for a covered jurisdiction to redistrict its legislative or congressional districts in the mid-decade, after those districts had already been redrawn in that decade and either enacted into state law or approved by a federal court.

Now, there are some who might claim that such redistricting should be permitted because it is simply part of the rough and tumble of political combat waged by Republicans and Democrats. But remember the African proverb: “when the bull elephants fight, the ground get trampled on.” And guess what is the ground being ‘trampled on’ when these bull elephants fight in a covered jurisdiction like Texas? It is the voting rights of African-Americans, Hispanics, and other racial and language minorities!

There is simply no good reason for a state with a documented history of discrimination against minorities in voting to redraw its legislative or congressional districts more than once in a decade. It is too risky. It should not ever be tolerated. I ask all members to support my amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you.

“Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, and Coretta Scott King Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006”

MAY 10, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Amendment Jackso 247.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment provides that a violation of the Voting Rights Act shall be rebuttably presumed whenever a covered jurisdiction -- like my home state of Texas -- redistricts its legislative or congressional districts in the mid-decade, after those districts have already been redrawn in that decade and either enacted into state law or approved by a federal court.

Before I explain my amendment, let me express my appreciation to the Chairman and Ranking Member for their genuinely bipartisan cooperation in shepherding this historic and vital legislation to this point.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 is no ordinary piece of legislation. For millions of Americans, and many of us on this Committee, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 is a sacred treasure, earned by the sweat and toil and tears and blood of ordinary Americans who showed the world it was possible to accomplish extraordinary things.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended, which we will vote to reauthorize today was enacted to remedy a history of discrimination in certain areas of the country. Presented with a record of systematic defiance by certain States and jurisdictions that could not be overcome by litigation, this Congress -- led by President Lyndon Johnson, from my own home state of Texas -- took the steps necessary to stop it. It is instructive to recall the words of President Johnson when he proposed the Voting Rights Act to the Congress in 1965:

"Rarely are we met with a challenge.....to the values and the purposes and the meaning of our beloved Nation. The issue of equal rights for American Negroes is such as an issue.....the command of the Constitution is plain. It is wrong -- deadly wrong -- to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country."

The Voting Rights Act of 1965, represents our country and this Congress at its best because it matches our words to deeds, our actions to our values. And, as is usually the case, when America acts consistent with its highest values, success follows.

Without exaggeration, the Voting Rights Act has been one of the most effective civil rights laws passed by Congress. In 1964, there were only approximately 300 African-Americans in public office, including just three in Congress. Few, if any, black elected officials were elected anywhere in the South. Today there are more than 9,100 black elected officials, including 43 members of Congress, the largest number ever. The act has opened the political process for many of the approximately 6,000 Latino public officials that have been elected and appointed nationwide, including 263 at the state or federal level, 27 of whom serve in Congress. Native Americans, Asians and others who have historically encountered harsh barriers to full political participation also have benefited greatly.

Mr. Chairman, I hail from the great State of Texas, the Lone Star State. A state that, sadly, had one of the most egregious records of voting discrimination against racial and language minorities. Texas is one of the Voting Rights Act's "covered jurisdictions." In all of its history, I am only one of three African-American woman from Texas to serve in the Congress of the United States, and one of only two to sit on this famed Committee. I hold the seat once held by the late Barbara Jordan, who won her seat thanks to the Voting Rights Act. From her perch on this committee, Barbara Jordan once said:

I believe hyperbole would not be fictional and would not overstate the solemnity that I feel right now. My faith in the Constitution is whole, it is complete, it is total.

I sit here today an heir of the Civil Rights Movement, a beneficiary of the Voting Rights Act. My faith in the Constitution and the Voting Rights Act too is whole, it is complete, it is total. I would be breaking faith with those who risked all and gave all to secure for my generation the right to vote if I did not do all I can to strengthen the Voting Rights Act so that it will forever keep open doors that shut out so many for so long.

That is why I am proud to offer my amendment. It is a simple amendment. It is easy to understand. It is obviously the right thing to do. My amendment declares that a violation of the Voting Rights Acts shall be rebuttably presumed whenever a covered jurisdiction redistricts its legislative or congressional districts in the mid-decade, after those districts have already been redrawn in that decade and either enacted into state law or approved by a federal court.

Now, there are some who might claim that such redistricting should be permitted because it is simply part of the rough and tumble of political combat waged by Republicans and Democrats. But remember the African proverb: “when the bull elephants fight, the ground get trampled on.” And guess what is the ground being ‘trampled on’ when these bull elephants fight in a covered jurisdiction like Texas? It is the voting rights of African-Americans, Hispanics, and other racial and language minorities!

There is simply no good reason for a state with a documented history of discrimination against minorities in voting to redraw its legislative or congressional districts more than once in a decade. It is too risky. It should not ever be tolerated. I ask all members to support my amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you.

“Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, and Coretta Scott King Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006”

MAY 10, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Amendment Jackso 249.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment requires that preclearance petitions to the Attorney General be reviewed in the first instance by career professionals in the Voting Rights Section of the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice. It further requires that in any case where career professionals recommend against granting preclearance, the Attorney General is bound by that determination unless he receives and relies upon a written recommendation from a high-ranking, Senate-confirmed Department of Justice official.

Before I explain my amendment, let me express my appreciation to the Chairman and Ranking Member for their genuinely bipartisan cooperation in shepherding this historic and vital legislation to this point.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 is no ordinary piece of legislation. My amendment minimizes the opportunity for political mischief to infect the preclearance review process by requiring that a reversal of a determination made by impartial, careers professionals be documented in a writing prepared by a high-ranking, Senate-confirmed department official, answerable to the Congress rather than obscure, faceless Schedule C political appointees.

There is simply no good reason to play politics with the right to vote. It should not ever be tolerated. I ask all members to support my amendment.

STATEMENT

BEFORE THE

MARK-UP: H.R. 2389, THE "PLEDGE PROTECTION ACT

JUNE 7, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. Mr. Chairman, my amendment is very simple, it leaves the door open to acknowledge a very sacred and well-believed amendment of the Constitution. My amendment seeks to protect that amendment and that is the first amendment, that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

Now, many of us have risen to this floor and wanted to make sure that all who heard us knew that we stood with the Pledge of Allegiance as it is now written. And we have recited it all of our lives and accepted the language ``under God."

That acceptance by me as an individual or my colleagues does not, in any way, give comfort to those who because of their religious faith have chosen to express.

Let me tell of a girl called Hazel who sat along side of me in my elementary school classroom. As we rose every morning to pledge allegiance to the United States of America, little Hazel sat in her seat. She was not a terrorist. She was not a radical from the left. She was not one trying to overthrow the United States of America. She was practicing her faith as her mommy and her daddy asked her to do.

It was a lonely place. Most of us looked at Hazel long and hard every day. But we were grateful that there was a teacher and a Constitution that respected Hazel's right to freedom of religion.

This law as it is presently written now says to the American people, you cannot practice your faith and you can not seek the cases by going into the courthouse, the appellate courts and the Supreme Court of the United States of America.

It is well known that the courts are given to us on the basis of judicial review. It is also well-known that many times this body has risen because they have decided that there is some kind of frivolous idea or something that we disagree with, and there have been thoughts about limiting the courts. Many times legislators have sometimes been tempted to yank controversial matters from the court's jurisdiction, as The Washington Post has reported, but cooler heads have prevailed.

We would hope that cooler heads will prevail now. Whether the Pledge violates the first amendment separation from church and State is a legal question. Congress has no business obstructing the courts from answering it. Is it not a shame that under Marbury versus Madison, we now want to egregiously rip away the rights of petitioners in the United States to go into the court.

Is it an outrage that we would strip away the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States.

Let me just say one other thing, Mr. Chairman. Let me correct one who decides to offer my history to this body. For I live in my skin and I cannot change it. And I came to this Nation as a slave. And it may have been those who fought in the Civil War that opened the doors, but let me tell you that Jim Crow rose his ugly legal head, and for 50 years or more into the 20th century, Jim Crow's ugly laws kept me as a second class citizen. I could not vote. I could not go into accommodations. I could not go to schools that closed their doors.

Racism was here in this country and it was not until Brown versus Topeka Board of Education that the Supreme Court allowed me the opportunity to be free in this Nation.

I dare anyone to challenge that history. Slavery may have ended in its name, but it did not end in its practice. And it was the courts of the United States, the Federal courts that gave me this freedom.

The Jackson-Lee amendment provides for an exception to the bill's preclusion for that involves allegations of coerced or mandatory recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance, including coercion in violation of the first amendment.

Closing the doors of the Federal courthouse doors to claimants will actually amount to a coercion of individuals to recite the pledge and its ``under God" reference in violation of West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnette.

In Barnette, the Supreme Court struck down a West Virginia law that mandated schoolchildren to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. Under the West Virginia law, religious minorities faced expulsion from school and could be subject to prosecution and fined, if convicted of violating the statute's provisions. In striking down that statute, Justice Jackson wrote for the Court:

To believe in patriotism will not flourish if patriotic ceremonies are voluntary and spontaneous instead of a compulsory routine is to make an unflattering estimate of the appeal of our institutions to free minds . . . If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high, or petty can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein.

This legislation would strip the parents of those children of the right to go to court and defend their children's religious liberty. If this legislation is passed schools could expel children for acting according to the dictates of their faith and Congress will have slammed the courthouse door shut in their faces. When I was a child, I always wondered why when the rest of the class recited the Pledge of Allegiance, she always sat quietly. Today, I understand that it was because she was of the 7th Day Adventist faith and therefore reciting the ``under God" provision would force her to frustrate her religious faith. If H.R. 2389 were law back then, the school administrators could have forced her to say the pledge and she would have no recourse in the Federal courts.

The Jackson-Lee amendment protects religious minorities.

Recently, a panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit held that a Pennsylvania law requiring recitation of the pledge, even when it provided a religious exception, violated the Constitution because it violated the free speech of the students.

In Circle School v. Pappert, the court found that:

It may be useful to note our belief that most citizens of the United States willingly recite the Pledge of Allegiance and proudly sing the national anthem. But the rights embodied in the Constitution, particularly the first Amendment, protect the minority--those persons who march to their own drummers. It is they who need the protection afforded by the Constitution and it is the responsibility of federal judges to ensure that protection.

Again, under H.R. 2389, such a coercive speech case could never reach the Federal courts.

Article III of the U.S. Constitution vests "the Judicial Power of the United States . . . in one supreme court." The laundry list of areas which the Federal courts have the power to hear and decide under section 2 of article III, establishes the doctrine of the "separation of powers." For over 50 years, the Federal courts have played a central role in the interpretation and enforcement of civil rights laws. Bills which prevent the courts from exercising their article III functions only mask discrimination. We cannot allow bad legislation such as this to pass in the House. In the 1970s, some Members of Congress unsuccessfully sought to strip the courts of jurisdiction to hear desegregation efforts such as busing, which would have perpetuated racial inequality.

H.R. 2389, as drafted, insulates the Pledge of Allegiance as set forth in section 4 of title 4 of the United States Code from constitutional challenge in the Federal court.

However, the statute and the pledge are subject to change by future legislative bodies. This means that if some future Congress decides to insert some religiously offensive or discriminatory language in the pledge, the matter would be immune to constitutional challenge in the Federal courts.

I ask that my colleagues to protect the religious minorities -- vote to protect judicial review -- vote to protect separation of powers--vote to protect access to the Federal courts. I yield back the remainder of my time.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

BEFORE THE

IN SUPPORT OF JACKSON LEE MINIMUM-WAGE AMENDMENT

MARK-UP: H.R. 1956, THE "BUSINESS ACTIVITY TAX SIMPLIFICATION
ACT OF 2005 (REP. BOB GOODLATTE)

JUNE 28, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and I thank the ranking member for holding this markup and allowing me the opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment is simple. My amendment is fair. My amendment strikes the golden mean in that produces substantial benefits to those fortunate enough to be on the good side of the digital divide and able to reap the wonderful benefits of the Internet, including tax-free online shopping, and to those living on the margins of life, down in the shadows, where hard-working but hard-luck Americans struggle to realize the American Dream on $5.15 an hour.

H.R. 1956 creates a bright-line physical nexus requirement to permit states to collect net income taxes or other business activity taxes (BATs) on multistate enterprises, like internet retailers such as Amazon and eBay. That, of course, is a big boon to internet shoppers and electronic commerce. My amendment helps bridge the economic divide that would otherwise be exacerbated by H.R. 1956 by limiting the tax-free benefits that would flow from its enactment to those persons and commercial entities that pay their employees a living wage of at least $7.25 per hour. It should be noted that at $7.25 per hour, an employee may be living but (s)he is hardly living large.

Mr. Chairman, did you know that today's minimum wage of $5.15 today is the equivalent of only $4.23 in 1995, which is even lower than the $4.25 minimum wage level before the 1996-97 increase? It is scandalous, Mr. Chairman, that a person can work full-time, 40 hours per week, for 52 weeks, earning the minimum wage would gross just $10,700, which is well below the poverty line.

A minimum wage increase would raise the wages of millions of workers:

- An estimated 7.3 million workers (5.8% of the workforce) would receive an increase in their hourly wage rate if the minimum wage were raised from $5.15 to $7.25 by June 2007.
- Due to "spillover effects," the 8.2 million workers (6.5% of the workforce) earning up to a dollar above the minimum would also be likely to benefit from an increase.

Raising the minimum wage will benefit working families:

- The earnings of minimum wage workers are crucial to their families' well-being. Evidence from the 1996-97 minimum wage increase shows that the average minimum wage worker brings home more than half (54%) of his or her family's weekly earnings.
- An estimated 760,000 single mothers with children under 18 would benefit from a minimum wage increase to $7.25 by June 2007.
- Single mothers would benefit disproportionately from an increase — single mothers are 10.4% of workers affected by an increase, but they make up only 5.3% of the overall workforce. Approximately 1.8 million parents with children under 18 would benefit.

Contrary to popular myths and urban legends, adults make up the largest share of workers who would benefit from a minimum wage increase:

- 72% of workers whose wages would be raised by a minimum wage increase to $7.25 by June 2007 are adults (age 20 or older).

- Close to half (43.9%) of workers who would benefit from a minimum wage increase work full time and another third (34.5%) work between 20 and 34 hours per week.

Minimum wage increases benefit disadvantaged workers and women are the largest group of beneficiaries from a minimum wage increase:

- 60.6% of workers who would benefit from an increase to $7.25 by 2007 are women.
- An estimated 7.3% of working women would benefit directly from that increase in the minimum wage.

A disproportionate share of minorities would benefit from a minimum wage increase:

- African Americans represent 11.1% of the total workforce, but are 15.3% of workers affected by an increase.
- Similarly, 13.4% of the total workforce is Hispanic, but Hispanics are 19.7% of workers affected by an increase.

The benefits of the increase disproportionately help those working households at the bottom of the income scale:

- Although households in the bottom 20% received only 5.1% of national income, 38.1% of the benefits of a minimum wage increase to $7.25 would go to these workers.
- The majority of the benefits (58.5%) of an increase would go to families with working, prime-aged adults in the bottom 40% of the income distribution.

Among families with children and a low-wage worker affected by a minimum wage increase to $7.25, the affected worker contributes, on average, half of the family's earnings. Thirty-six percent of such workers actually contribute 100% of their family's earnings.

A minimum wage increase would help reverse the trend of declining real wages for low-wage workers. Between 1979 and 1989, the minimum wage lost 31% of its real value. By contrast, between 1989 and 1997 (the year of the most recent increase), the minimum wage was raised four times and recovered about one-third of the value it lost in the 1980s.

Income inequality has been increasing, in part, because of the declining real value of the minimum wage. Today, the minimum wage is 33% of the average hourly wage of American workers, the lowest level since 1949. A minimum wage increase is part of a broad strategy to end poverty. As welfare reform forces more poor families to rely on their earnings from low-paying jobs, a minimum wage increase is likely to have a greater impact on reducing poverty.

Mr. Chairman, the opponents of the minimum wage often claim that increasing the wage will cost jobs and harm the economy. Of course, Mr. Chairman there is no credible to support such claims. In fact, a 1998 EPI study failed to find any systematic, significant job loss associated with the 1996-97 minimum wage increase. The truth is that following the most recent increase in the minimum wage in 1996-97, the low-wage labor market performed better than it had in decades. And after the minimum wage was increased, the country went on to enjoy the most sustained period of economic prosperity in history. We had historic low levels of unemployment rates, increased average hourly wages, increased family income, and decreased poverty rates. Studies have shown that the best performing small businesses are located in states with the highest minimum wages. Between 1998 and 2004, the job growth for small businesses in states with a minimum wage higher than the federal level was 6.2 percent compared to a 4.1 percent growth in states where the federal level prevailed.

So much for the discredited notion that raising the minimum wage harms the economy. It does not. But it increases the purchasing power of those who most need the money, which is far more than can be said of the unseemly slavish devotion to cutting taxes for multimillionaires. My amendment will reduce taxes on millionaires and give the lowest-paid but hardest working employees a raise. It is the classic win-win situation. I urge all members to support my amendment.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the balance of my time.

BEFORE THE

IN SUPPORT OF JACKSON LEE MINIMUM-WAGE AMENDMENT

MARK-UP: H.R. 1956, THE "BUSINESS ACTIVITY TAX SIMPLIFICATION ACT OF 2005 (REP. BOB GOODLATTE)

JUNE 28, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word and seek recognition to respond to the point of order.

Not only is my amendment germane, it is entirely consistent with the well established precedence of this Committee.

My amendment does not change the nature of the bill. On at least six occasions in the recent past, this Committee has considered amendments that have been drafted in a fashion similar to the one that I offer today.

For example, during the course of our debate on HR 420, the Lawsuit Abuse Reduction Act; HR 554, the Personal Responsibility in Food Consumption Act; HR 3509, the Workplace Goods Job Growth and Competitiveness Act; and S 256, the bankruptcy bill - Members not only deemed it appropriate, but in fact necessary to limit the benefits afforded in the text of each of the aforementioned underlying bills on the condition that certain requirements were satisfied.

Now, this is not to say that on each of those past occasions every amendment offered was ultimately accepted. In some instances they were defeated. But, for the most part, each was carefully debated and eventually subject to a vote.

To now say that this amendment is not germane turns the test for germaneness entirely on its head. First of all, HR 1956 falls exclusively within our Committee's jurisdiction. Second, the scope of the bill places limits on the imposition or collection of business activity taxes resulting from the activities of certain companies that affect interstate commerce. Third, section 3(d) of the bill makes plainly clear that these limits are not without exception. And, finally, all my amendment does is seek to expand the bill's current list of exceptions so as to include companies that fail to pay its employees adequate wages.

If, as it has been suggested, that one of the primary purposes behind the introduction of this bill is to assist those companies that will help contribute towards a vibrant economy - then it is hard to understand how Members of this body can summarily dismiss this substance and goals of my amendment. Hardworking Americans and the countless number of middle class families that I represent everyday deserve more.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

STATEMENT ON AMENDMENT TO HR 4772, #318

JULY 12, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson 318. I thank the Chairman and the Ranking Member. I appreciate the opportunity to explain my amendment.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment simply reaffirms current and long-standing judicial practice of requiring a party to have exhausted its administrative remedies before seeking judicial relief. An agency order is not "final," Mr. Chairman, if the party still has administrative remedies, such as appeals and petitions, available.

In this sense, Mr. Chairman, my amendment is “conservative.” My amendment reflects “traditional values” of judicial restraint.

In its 1985, 7-1 opinion in Williamson County Regional Planning Commission v. Hamilton Bank of Johnson City, the Supreme Court held that a takings claim is not ripe for federal court review if: (1) the property owner had not obtained a “final decision” from the appellate administrative agency, and (2) the property owner had not first filed the claim in state court to challenge the government action.¹ Importantly, the Court held that these requirements inhere in the nature of the Takings Clause of the Constitution. The Court found that the plaintiff needed to avail himself of the state’s and locality’s procedures in order to evaluate essential components of the takings claim – the economic impact of the regulation and whether the claimant was denied just compensation.

This rule is “compelled by the very nature of the inquiry required by the Just Compensation [Takings] Clause” because the factors applied in deciding a takings claim “simply cannot be evaluated until the administrative agency has arrived at a final definitive position regarding how it will apply the regulations at issue to the particular land in question.” This Supreme Court authority indicates that H.R. 4772 unconstitutionally attempts to circumvent these constitutionally mandated ripeness requirements through a statutory mechanism.²

Significantly, the Supreme Court reaffirmed this principle in 1999. In 1999, in Del Monte Dunes, the Court stated, “A federal court ... cannot entertain a takings claim under § 1983 unless or until the complaining landowner has been denied an adequate post deprivation remedy. H.R. 4772 would therefore appear to make cases prematurely – and unconstitutionally – “ripe” for review, even if the claimant had not pursued available State remedies.

I encourage my colleagues to support my amendment. Thank you. I yield back the remainder of my time.

STATEMENT ON AMENDMENT TO HR 4772, #319

JULY 12, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson 319. I thank the Chairman and the Ranking Member. I appreciate the opportunity to explain my amendment.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment simply reaffirms current and long-standing judicial practice of permitting a federal court to certify a question of state law to the highest state court, which after all is the court most knowledgeable about the interpretation of state law. The bill before us seeks to restrict the ability of a federal court to certify a question of state law to the state courts only in cases where the state law is “patently unclear.”

There has never been a requirement that the state law be “patently unclear,” whatever that means. Moreover, this restriction also evinces an unwarranted distrust of the impartiality or competence of state courts. As a former state court judge, I find this suggestion ludicrous. I urge adoption of my amendment.

Thank you. I yield back the remainder of my time.

JULY 12, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson 320. I thank the Chairman and the Ranking Member. I appreciate the opportunity to explain my amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I believe in truth in advertising. That is why my amendment simply amends the short title of H.R. 4772 to read:

“Congressional Encouragement of Judicial Activism and Disregard for States Rights Act of 2005.”

This is a fitting title for a bill that encourages parties to file suit in federal court before exhausting their administrative remedies, even though there are adequate state remedies, and seeks to restrict the authority of federal courts to certify questions of state law to state courts.

I encourage my colleagues to support my amendment. Thank you. I yield back the remainder of my time.

BEFORE THE

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT TO H.R. 5092

“Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, and Explosives (BATFE) Modernization and Reform Act of 2006”

JULY 26, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment maintains the ability of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (BATF) to put corrupt gun dealers out of business, and thus help reduce the carnage taking place in many of the nation's major urban centers, by striking §4 of the bill.

H.R. 5092 was introduced by Chairman Coble and the Ranking Member, Mr. Scott as a bipartisan attempt to address enforcement issues raised during ATF oversight hearings conducted by the Subcommittee. Specifically, those hearings focused on ATF's Richmond gun show enforcement program and generally on ATF's licensing and revocation authority over federal Firearms Licensees.

The bill addresses a number of issues relating to ATF's enforcement authority, including authorization of civil penalties (e.g. fines and suspensions); creation of independent Administrative law Judges to hear enforcement cases; definition of serious and non-serious violations; DOJ Inspector General investigation of ATF gun show enforcement program; limitation on ATF authorities; clarification of several enforcement regulations; and, most significantly for purposes of my amendment, modification of the requisite intent for violations.

The bill provides in Sec. 4, entitled “Definition of Willfully,” that “willfully” is defined as:

“intentionally, purposely, and with the intent to act in violation of a known legal duty.”

My concern with this provision of the bill is that it defines “willfully” to impose a much higher standard of proof upon law enforcement officials than currently. There does not appear to be any compelling reason for increasing the government’s evidentiary burden at this time. My amendment simply restores the definition of willfulness to its well-settled meaning: that defendant knew his conduct was unlawful; not that he knew of the specific statute he is accused of violating or had the specific intent to violate that precise provision.

Mr. Chairman, changing the evidentiary standards governing elements of penal offenses should be done sparingly and with the utmost care. This is particularly true where, as here, we do not have the benefit of the considered views of thoughtful criminal law scholars, experienced prosecutors and police officers with front-line experience, or the Department of Justice.

The redefinition of “willfully” contained in the bill illustrates my concern. As I noted, the bill defines willfully as “intentionally, purposely, and with the intent to act in violation of a known legal duty.” This definition, however, has been repeatedly rejected by the federal courts. Bryan v. U.S., 524 U.S. 184 (1998); U.S. v. Andrade, 135 F.3d 104 (1st Cir. 1998); U.S. v. Allah, 130 F.3d 33 (2^d Cir. 1997); U.S. v. Collins, 957 F.2d 72 (2^d. 1992).

In the Bryan case, the defendant was convicted of willfully dealing in firearms without a federal license. Specifically, the defendant did not have a federal firearms license; he used “so-called “straw purchasers” in Ohio to acquired pistols he could not have bought himself; that he knew the straw purchasers made false statements when purchasing the guns; that defendant assured the straw purchasers that he would file off the serial numbers; and that defendant resold the guns on Brooklyn street corners known for drug dealing. Despite this conduct, defendant claimed that he could not be convicted under the federal firearms laws unless the government proved he knew of the federal licensing requirement.

The Supreme Court rejected this claim, stating:

“the willfulness requirement . . . does not carve out an exception to the traditional rule that ignorance of the law is no excuse; knowledge that the conduct is unlawful is all that is required.” 524 U.S. at 193.

Similarly, in another case, U.S. v. Collins, the Second Circuit rejected the argument that “willfully” requires proof that defendant had specific knowledge of the federal firearms license requirements, stating:

[T]he element of willfulness not contained in §922(a)(1) was meant to be read broadly to require only that the government prove that defendant’s conduct was knowing and purposeful and that the defendant intended to commit an act which the law forbids.” 957 F.2d at 76.

According to the court, the government was not required to prove more than just the defendant's general knowledge that he or she is violating the law." Id. at 75.

Other courts have reached similar conclusions and I list them in my statement. The point, Mr. Chairman, is that the federal firearms license statute is and has been an important tool for law enforcement to crack down on the illegal trafficking in firearms and the wanton violence this conduct exacerbates. I do not believe that a compelling case has been made on this record to take this tool away from law enforcement. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to accept my amendment.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #1 TO H.R. 6054

“MILITARY COMMISSIONS ACT OF 2006”

SEPTEMBER 20, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is labeled 6054-3. I offer this amendment on behalf of myself and Mr. Nadler and I thank the Ranking Member for his support.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment improves H.R. 6054, the Military Commissions Act of 2006 by striking Section 6 (b) from the bill.

It is clear to us, Mr. Chairman that Section 6 of the bill would redefine Common Article 3 of the Geneva Conventions to equate it to the standards set forth in the Detainee Treatment Act and would render those rights judicially unenforceable. This interpretation and application violates the core principles of the Geneva Conventions and poses a grave threat to American service-members, now and in, heaven forbid, future wars. This is not just our view, Mr. Chairman. It is also the view expressed powerfully and eloquently, by Gen. John Vesey, former Chair of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; former Secretary of State Colin Powell; former prisoner of war Senator John McCain; former Navy Secretary and Senate Armed Services Committee Chair, John Warner; former Air Force JAG officer Senator Lindsay Graham; and scores of retired flag officers of the United States armed services.

With respect to the interpretation and judicial enforceability of Common Article 3, Mr. Chairman, the real question to be decided is not whether terrorists are bad, but whether American will remain good and true to its ideals and values.

Common Article 3 of the Geneva Conventions provides the minimum standards for humane treatment and fair justice that apply to anyone captured in armed conflict. These standards were specifically designed to ensure that those who fall outside the other, more extensive, protections of the Conventions are treated in accordance with the values of civilized nations. The framers of the Conventions, including the American representatives, in particular wanted to ensure that Common Article 3 would apply in situations where a state party to the treaty, like the United States, fights an adversary that is not a party, including irregular forces like al Qaeda. The United States military has abided by the basic requirements of Common Article 3 in every conflict since the Conventions were adopted. In every case, the military applied the Geneva Conventions -- including, at a minimum, Common Article 3 -- even to enemies that systematically violated the Conventions themselves.

As Gen. Powell and Gen. Vesey make clear, the reason the United States military has abided by this standard in its own conduct is simple: that same standard protects American servicemen and women when they engage in conflicts covered by Common Article 3. Preserving the integrity of this standard has become increasingly important in recent years when America's adversaries often are not nation-states. In 1997, Congress acted to further this goal by criminalizing violations of Common Article 3 in the War Crimes Act, enabling the United States to hold accountable those who abuse captured personnel, no matter the nature of the armed conflict.

If any agency of the U.S. government is excused from compliance with these standards, or if the United States redefines what Common Article 3 requires, we should not be blind to the fact that our enemies will take note of our double-standard should they take U.S. prisoners captive. If degradation, humiliation, physical and mental brutalization of prisoners is decriminalized or considered permissible under a restrictive interpretation of Common Article 3, we will forfeit our moral authority and all credible objections should such barbaric practices be inflicted upon American prisoners.

This is a real, not theoretical, concern. The United States military has personnel deployed right now in theaters where Common Article 3 is the only source of legal protection should they be captured. If we allow that standard to be eroded, we put their safety at greater risk.

Mr. Chairman, section 6 of the bill creates real interpretive problems because it replaces the fixed and clear terms of Common Article 3 with a flexible, sliding scale that might allow certain coercive interrogation techniques under some circumstances, while forbidding them under others. Replacing an absolute standard – Common Article 3 -- with a relative one will only create confusion. And it makes matters worse – and worse for America – if the protections of Common Article 3 are put beyond the reach of the federal courts. A federal court should always be permitted to consider whether the United States has acted in accordance with the minimum standards set forth in Common Article 3 of the Geneva Convention. Up to now, America has never shied away from that scrutiny because it has always complied with this international benchmark of humane treatment.

Finally, it should be noted that should we take this step, the rest of the world will see us as having renounced the clear strictures of the Geneva Conventions for a mere temporary advantage. Our enemies would be encouraged to interpret the Conventions in their own way as well, placing American soldiers at risk. This is unnecessary. Our armed forces have trained to Common Article 3. They can live within its requirements and win the war on terror decisively and honorably. And we will honor them by placing our confidence in their ability to win this victory without sinking to the level of our enemies.

I urge all Members to support the amendment. I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT TO H.R. 3509
THE "WORKPLACE GOODS JOBS GROWTH AND COMPETITIVENESS ACT"

JULY 19, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. I thank the Chairman and Ranking Member for allowing me to explain my amendment to H.R. 3509.

My amendment is simple. It simply bars the statute of repose from being asserted as a defense to a civil action for damages against a manufacturer or seller that does not pay its employees minimum wage of at $7.25 per hour. It should be noted that at $7.25 per hour, an employee may be living but (s)he is hardly living large.

Mr. Chairman, without this amendment I cannot support the bill. I believe that there is no expiration date for responsibility for injury or damages from the durable good provided by the company. All of the arguments in favor of the bill—reducing the number of frivolous lawsuits, limiting unending litigation, and lowering insurance rates -- benefit the manufacturers directly and consumers indirectly, if at all.

Moreover, I think it scandalous that the bill preempts more liberal statutes of repose that states have enacted to protect their workers. My home state of Texas, for instance, currently protects manufacturers after 15 years from the date of sale (Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code §16.012). It is contradictory and redundant to take this action.

My amendment is germane. Indeed, this committee has a long history of considering and approving carve-out amendments to legislation. When we marked up the class action bill, we offered amendments to carve out the Benedict Arnold Corporations. When we marked up the product liability bill, we offered amendments to exclude foreign corporations. Four months ago, when we marked up the volunteer liability bill, Ms. Waters offered an amendment that was accepted which excluded companies that did not provide notice of foreign off shoring – that was a carve out.

We should be focusing our efforts on protecting those who may be injured or dealt an injustice by a larger organization, rather than restricting a consumer's ability to hold the manufacturer of their purchased product accountable.

Consider Mr. Don Rhea, an injured worker from my own state of Texas, and a refinery worker. Mr. Rhea was trying to repair a cracked valve on a steam pump when the pump's cracked valve cover drenched him in hot oil. Rhea suffered burns to over 30 percent of his body. However, the National Transit Pump and Machine Company, which had manufactured the defective pump over twenty years ago, is presumably safe from civil action. The fault is clear, and yet Mr. Rhea would not have any legal recourse. It is simply unjust.

However, the amendment that I am proposing does not change the nature of the bill. It simply limits the scope of the bill to those manufacturers of durable goods who take exceptional care to minimize the likelihood that their products will be manufactured in a defective manner. My amendment achieves this purpose by recognizing that employers who compensate their employees adequately are likely to attract and retain employees who are competent and conscientious. Similarly, employers who manufacture their durable goods in the United States and sell them to Americans are also more likely to ensure that such products are manufactured with a high degree of workmanship and care.

Mr. Chairman, did you know that today's minimum wage of $5.15 today is the equivalent of only $4.23 in 1995, which is even lower than the $4.25 minimum wage level before the 1996-97 increase? It is scandalous, Mr. Chairman, that a person can work full-time, 40 hours per week, for 52 weeks, earning the minimum wage would gross just $10,700, which is well below the poverty line.

A minimum wage increase would raise the wages of millions of workers:

- An estimated 7.3 million workers (5.8% of the workforce) would receive an increase in their hourly wage rate if the minimum wage were raised from $5.15 to $7.25 by June 2007.
- Due to "spillover effects," the 8.2 million workers (6.5% of the workforce) earning up to a dollar above the minimum would also be likely to benefit from an increase.

Raising the minimum wage will benefit working families:

- The earnings of minimum wage workers are crucial to their families' well-being. Evidence from the 1996-97 minimum wage increase shows that the average minimum wage worker brings home more than half (54%) of his or her family's weekly earnings.

- An estimated 760,000 single mothers with children under 18 would benefit from a minimum wage increase to $7.25 by June 2007.
- Single mothers would benefit disproportionately from an increase — single mothers are 10.4% of workers affected by an increase, but they make up only 5.3% of the overall workforce. Approximately 1.8 million parents with children under 18 would benefit.

Contrary to popular myths and urban legends, adults make up the largest share of workers who would benefit from a minimum wage increase:

- 72% of workers whose wages would be raised by a minimum wage increase to $7.25 by June 2007 are adults (age 20 or older).
- Close to half (43.9%) of workers who would benefit from a minimum wage increase work full time and another third (34.5%) work between 20 and 34 hours per week.

Minimum wage increases benefit disadvantaged workers and women are the largest group of beneficiaries from a minimum wage increase:

- 60.6% of workers who would benefit from an increase to $7.25 by 2007 are women.

- An estimated 7.3% of working women would benefit directly from that increase in the minimum wage.

A disproportionate share of minorities would benefit from a minimum wage increase:

- African Americans represent 11.1% of the total workforce, but are 15.3% of workers affected by an increase.
- Similarly, 13.4% of the total workforce is Hispanic, but Hispanics are 19.7% of workers affected by an increase.

The benefits of the increase disproportionately help those working households at the bottom of the income scale:

- Although households in the bottom 20% received only 5.1% of national income, 38.1% of the benefits of a minimum wage increase to $7.25 would go to these workers.
- The majority of the benefits (58.5%) of an increase would go to families with working, prime-aged adults in the bottom 40% of the income distribution.

Among families with children and a low-wage worker affected by a minimum wage increase to $7.25, the affected worker contributes, on average, half of the family's earnings. Thirty-six percent of such workers actually contribute 100% of their family's earnings.

A minimum wage increase would help reverse the trend of declining real wages for low-wage workers. Between 1979 and 1989, the minimum wage lost 31% of its real value. By contrast, between 1989 and 1997 (the year of the most recent increase), the minimum wage was raised four times and recovered about one-third of the value it lost in the 1980s.

Income inequality has been increasing, in part, because of the declining real value of the minimum wage. Today, the minimum wage is 33% of the average hourly wage of American workers, the lowest level since 1949. A minimum wage increase is part of a broad strategy to end poverty. As welfare reform forces more poor families to rely on their earnings from low-paying jobs, a minimum wage increase is likely to have a greater impact on reducing poverty.

Mr. Chairman, the opponents of the minimum wage often claim that increasing the wage will cost jobs and harm the economy. Of course, Mr. Chairman there is no credible to support such claims. In fact, a 1998 EPI study failed to find any systematic, significant job loss associated with the 1996-97 minimum wage increase.

The truth is that following the most recent increase in the minimum wage in 1996-97, the low-wage labor market performed better than it had in decades. And after the minimum wage was increased, the country went on to enjoy the most sustained period of economic prosperity in history. We had historic low levels of unemployment rates, increased average hourly wages, increased family income, and decreased poverty rates.

Studies have shown that the best performing small businesses are located in states with the highest minimum wages. Between 1998 and 2004, the job growth for small businesses in states with a minimum wage higher than the federal level was 6.2 percent compared to a 4.1 percent growth in states where the federal level prevailed.

So much for the discredited notion that raising the minimum wage harms the economy. It does not. But it increases the purchasing power of those who most need the money, which is far more than can be said of the unseemly slavish devotion to cutting taxes for multimillionaires. My amendment will increase the jobs growth in the workplace goods sector while at the same give the lowest-paid but hardest working employees a raise. It is the classic win-win situation. I urge all members of the Committee to accept my amendment.

Thank you Mr. Chairman. I yield back the balance of my time.

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #3 TO H.R. 5825

“Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act of 2006”

SEPTEMBER 20, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is labeled AMD3_001. My amendment reiterates that FISA is the exclusive procedure and authority for wiretapping Americans to gather foreign intelligence.

In the absence of the reaffirmation of this critically important principle, H.R. 5825 would have the unacceptable consequence of rewarding the President's refusal to follow FISA by exempting him from following these procedures. The effect of this would be to allow any president to make up his own "rules" for wiretapping Americans and secretly implementing those rules unless and until a court finds such rules unconstitutional. This would make tangible President Nixon's 1977 claim to David Frost that "when the president does it that means that it is not illegal." By flirting with the misguided and dangerous idea of inherent presidential power to wiretap, H.R. 5825 would resurrect the very provision in the criminal code that President Nixon relied upon in his warrantless wiretaps of countless Americans based on their political views.

The legislative history of FISA provides an important rebuttal to the Administration's claims regarding inherent authority to ignore federal law: "[E]ven if the president has the inherent authority in the absence of legislation to authorize warrantless electronic surveillance for foreign intelligence purposes, Congress has the power to regulate the conduct of such surveillance by legislating a reasonable procedure, which then becomes the exclusive means by which such surveillance may be conducted.” H.R. Rep. No. 95-1283, pt. 1, at 24 (1978).

By eliminating the exclusivity of these procedures, Congress will be destroying one of the pillars of FISA that has helped to protect the civil liberties of hundreds of millions of Americans from unilateral spying by the executive branch. To paraphrase the Supreme Court, our Fourth Amendment freedoms cannot properly be guaranteed if electronic surveillance may be conducted solely within the discretion of the president. See United States v. United States District Court, 407 U.S. 297 (1972).

Without my amendment, Mr. Chairman, H.R. 5825 would undo the Congress’ manifest intent in passing FISA, which “was designed . . . to curb the practice by which the Executive Branch may conduct warrantless electronic surveillance on its own unilateral determination that national security justifies it.” (See S. Rep. No. 95-604(I), at 7, 1978 U.S.C.C.A.N. 3904, 3908). By eliminating the requirement that the president follow FISA and get a court order to search based on evidence an American is conspiring with a foreign agent, H.R. 5825 would place our rights at the secret will of the president – any president. My amendment, on the other hand, will leave the rights of the American within the protection of the independent federal judiciary.

Mr. Chairman, it is more than a truism that real security for the American people comes not from deferring to the President but from preserving the separation of powers and adhering to the rule of law. My amendment does precisely that and is for this reason worthy of support.

I urge all Members to support the amendment. I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you.

MARK-UP: H.R. 4997

AMENDMENT TO THE PHYSICIANS FOR UNDERSERVED AREAS ACT

SEPTEMBER 27, 2006

Foreign doctors who want to receive medical training in the United States on J visas are required to leave the country afterwards. They must return to their countries for two years before they can receive a visa to work in the United States as physicians. In 1994, Congress established a waiver of this requirement. The waiver applies to doctors who will commit to practicing medicine for no less than three years in a geographic area designated by the Secretary of Health and Human Services as having a shortage of health care professionals.

The waiver program has been successful for more than a decade. It permits each state to obtain waivers permitting up to 30 of these physicians to work in medically underserved areas. It is not a permanent program. It sunsetted June 1, 2006. The Physicians for Underserved Areas Act, H.R. 4997, would reinstate the program and make it permanent.

The amendment that Rep. Hostettler and I are offering would provide for a two-year extension instead of making the program permanent. Rep. Hostettler has agreed to work with me next year on devising a way to redistribute unused visa waivers.

A distribution problem was revealed by a study that Rep. Hostettler and I asked the General Accountability Office (GAO) to conduct. According to the GAO study, the system of providing up to 30 waivers per state is not working well. A substantial percentage of the states do not need 30 waivers a year. There were 664 unused waivers in FY2005. Other states need more than 30 waivers a year for their medically underserved areas.

The states that reported needing more than 30 waivers only want between 5 and 50 more physicians. Their needs can be met by redistributing some of the unused waivers, but this must be done carefully. Some states expressed concern to GAO about redistributing unused waivers. They are afraid that physicians would wait and apply to the more popular states that would be receiving the redistributed waivers. This problem has to be resolved before we can move forward with the development of a redistribution plan.

I urge you to vote for the amendment to H.R. 4997 that would provide for a two-year extension and give us time for consideration of modifications in the program. Thank you.

STATEMENT

BEFORE THE

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #1 TO H.R. 5825

“Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act of 2006”

SEPTEMBER 20, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is labeled JACKSO_357. My amendment addresses the Administration's concern that authority to conduct warrantless surveillance and searches for 15 days conferred upon the President by FISA that is triggered by a congressional declaration of war is not a viable tool to fight terrorism because in the modern age, Congress rarely votes a formal declaration of war. My amendment addresses that concern by amending striking sections 7 and 8 of H.R. 5825 and substituting language amending Section 111 of FISA to provide the President authority to conduct surveillance and searches without a warrant for 15 days following either: (1) a declaration of war; or (2) “an authorization for the use of military force” (AUMF) within the meaning of Section 2(c)(2) of the War Powers Act.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment strikes the golden mean between providing the President the emergency tools needed to respond to an act of war against our country, while at the same time protecting all Americans from the dangerous and secret exercise of unchecked and unreviewable power to surveil and search any person deemed by the President to pose a threat to the country.

Mr. Chairman, it is worth remembering while armies fight battles, it is nations that go to war. And the Constitution is neither silent nor coy as to where the power to take a nation to war rests: it is vested in the Congress of the United States, not the President.

The power to conduct secret, warrantless surveillance and searches in response to an act of war or a terrorist attack fundamentally is a war power. That is why the acquisition and exercise of that power properly must flow from a congressional declaration of war or authorization to use military force in response to an act of war.

My amendment keeps faith with the Founding Fathers and honors the Constitution that every member of Congress, and each of our brave troops who risk their lives to keep us free, take an oath to uphold.

In contrast to my amendment, section 7 and 8 of H.R. 5825 strike the wrong balance. Simply put, H.R. 5825 goes dangerously far afield by authorizing the President to conduct warrantless surveillance and searches for 60 days after “an armed attack against the territory of the United States,” (Section 7), and for 45 days after a “terrorist attack against the United States” (Section 8). Moreover, this new surveillance power would extend to U.S. soil, regardless of any nexus to the actual event that triggered the exercise of emergency surveillance authority.

Mr. Chairman, the phrases “armed attack against the territory of the United States” and “terrorist attack against the United States” are so broad that they can be triggered by nearly any act of violence directed against the interests of the United States, including:

- Last week’s bombing of the U.S. embassy in Syria. If H.R. 5825 were in effect today, we could have a warrant-free environment in the United States right now.
- An attack on U.S. armed forces abroad, including any attack on soldiers in Iraq or Afghanistan, which according to press reports, is a daily occurrence.

Mr. Chairman, we do not need to surrender the liberties of the American people in order to protect the security of the American people. As the Framers understood so well when they devised our magnificent Constitution, we can have both liberty and security. All we need is wisdom and good counsel, what the Greeks called “euboule” (“U-BO-LAY”). The amendment I offer is good news for Americans and bad news for its enemies and terrorists.

I urge all Members to support the amendment. I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you.

BEFORE THE

IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #2 TO H.R. 5825

“Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act of 2006”

SEPTEMBER 20, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is labeled JACKSO_358. My amendment requires that reports on the use of FISA surveillance also be submitted to the Members of this Committee and to the Senate Judiciary Committee in addition to the House and Senate Intelligence committees. The amendment also requires the Attorney General to timely notify and provide these committees with copies of the procedures developed to minimize the collection and dissemination of non-public information pertaining to U.S. persons under FISA.

In short, this important amendment preserves the jurisdiction of this Committee over FISA activities.

For too long, this Committee has been kept in the dark by the Administration about the use of FISA surveillance. For instance, several years ago, the Administration told the Members of this Committee that we could not review documents it had sent to the Intelligence Committee, essentially deeming the Judiciary Committee unwilling or unable to handle classified materials.

Mr. Chairman, under current law and this bill, only the members of the House and Senate Intelligence Committees would be informed of the government's use of FISA electronic surveillance authorities. Mr. Chairman, I know I speak for most members of this Committee on both sides of the aisle when I say that simply is not good enough.

Accordingly, this amendment requires that reports on the use of FISA surveillance also be submitted to the Members of this Committee, which, after all, knows a thing or two about the 4th Amendment and striking the proper balance between liberty and security.

Mr. Chairman, the Attorney General is required, under current law, to adopt procedures to minimize the collection and dissemination of non-public information pertaining to U.S. persons under FISA. It goes without saying that it is important that the Government not collect and disseminate more private information pertaining to American citizens than is absolutely necessary. But who can say for sure that the Government is complying with that mandate when the procedures it employs to minimize collection and dissemination of private information is not subject to oversight by this Committee.

This amendment cures this weakness by requiring the Attorney General to submit to this Committee a copy of the minimization procedures employed and appropriate security measures developed to achieve this objective.

I urge all members to support this amendment.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF H.R. 1704
"SECOND CHANCE ACT OF 2006"

JULY 13, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. Mr. Chairman, I thank you and I applaud my colleagues for their efforts in moving this bill forward. The provisions in this bill will help reduce recidivism rates among juvenile and adult offenders, as well as helping states and local authorities enforce the law and reduce crime in our communities.

The amendment that I am introducing is intended to clarify the position and coordination between the Department of Justice and the Department of Health and Human Services regarding the children of incarcerated parents. My amendment states:

“In consultation with the Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Justice shall develop an inter-agency memorandum of understanding for state departments of corrections and child protective agencies, outlining essential services that, provided in collaboration, ensure compliance with legal requirements to provide reasonable efforts to facilitate reunification of children in foster care and their incarcerated parents. While ensuring child safety and well-being, the memorandum of understanding shall identify and recommend policies, procedures and programs addressing:

1. Maintenance of the parent-child bond;
2. Parental self-improvement; and
3. Parental involvement in planning for the future and well-being of children.”

Mr. Chairman, incarceration can have an extremely disruptive effect on a family, not to mention a particularly negative impact on children. Punitive action on criminals is lawful of course, but the secondary effects of an absent parent can be unnecessarily damaging for the children. It is important to consider the welfare of the children in order to restrict any pattern of criminal behavior or delinquency.

Specifically, my amendment requires an inter-agency memorandum of understanding on the need for child safety, parental self-improvement, maintenance of the parent-child bond, and involvement of the parent in planning for the future and well-being of the children.

Over the past decade, incarceration rates have exploded, and the number of children with an incarcerated parent has increased dramatically. Many of these families are vulnerable to the policies of both the criminal justice and child welfare systems, which have failed to coordinate their efforts to better serve these families.

For example, when children are removed from the home and put in foster care, usually a permanency hearing is held 12 months afterward. For children with incarcerated parents, particularly in situations where the crime was related to illicit drugs, the standard “compelling reason” for familial ties is more difficult to argue, even though the validity of the argument is the same. In these situations, it may not be in the best interest of the state, family or child to return the child to the family, but the circumstances must be considered appropriately.

Federal guidance is needed to help inform states and their public welfare and justice agencies on how to effectively address these issues while concurrently enforcing the law and reducing crime. The ultimate goal is to foster healthy families and prevent recidivism. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I yield back the remainder of my time.

SEC. 1. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds as follows:

1. That United States Attorneys are “inferior officers” and therefore are subject to the Constitution’s discretionary appointment provisions authorizing the Congress to vest the appointment power in the President alone or the judiciary.
2. Vesting the authority in the United States Attorney General to appoint an interim United States Attorney to serve an indefinite term undermines the confirmation process of the United States Senate and removes a legislative check on executive power.
3. Vesting residual power to appoint an interim United States Attorney in the federal district court in which the vacancy occurs constitutes an important judicial check on executive power.

Renumber the remaining sections sequentially.

MARKUP: H.R. 580

"PROVIDING FOR 120-DAY LIMIT ON U.S.
ATTORNEY INTERIM APPOINTMENTS"

MARCH 15, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I strongly support H.R. 580, which amends chapter 35 of title 28 of the United States Code to restore the 120-day limit on the term of a United States Attorney appointed on an interim basis by the Attorney General. The shocking disclosures of the past 10 days provides all the justification needed to adopt this salutary measure promptly and by an overwhelming margin.

United States Attorneys are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Each United States Attorney so appointed is authorized to serve a four-year term but is subject to removal by the President without cause. The Senate's advise and consent process formally checks the power of the President by requiring the United States Attorney nominee to go through a confirmation process. In addition, Senators also play a particularly influential informal role in the nomination of United States Attorneys. Typically, a President, prior to appointing a new United States Attorney, consults with the Senators from the state where the vacancy exists if they are members of the President's political party. The President usually accepts the nominee recommended by the Senator or other official. This tradition, called "Senatorial courtesy," serves as an informal check on the President's appointment power.

Since the Civil War, the judiciary has been empowered to fill vacancies in the office of the United States Attorney. In 1966, that authority was codified at 28 U.S.C. §546. When a United States Attorney position became vacant, the district court in the district where the vacancy occurred named a temporary replacement to serve until the vacancy was filled. In 1986, in response to a request by the Attorney General that its office be vested with authority to appoint interim United States Attorneys, Congress amend the statute to add former section 546(d).

Pursuant to this authority, the Attorney General was authorized to appoint an interim United States Attorney for 120 days and, if the Senate did not confirm a new United States Attorney within such period, the district court was then authorized to appoint an interim United States Attorney to serve until a permanent replacement was confirmed. By having the district court play a role in the selection of an interim United States Attorney, former section 546(d) allowed the judicial branch to act as a check on executive power. In practice, if a vacancy was expected, the Attorney General would solicit the opinion of the chief judge of the relevant district regarding possible temporary appointments.

Twenty years later, section 546 was amended again in the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005. This legislation amended section 546(c) to provide that “[a] person appointed as United States attorney under this section may serve until the qualification of a United States Attorney for such district appointed by the President” under 28 U.S.C. §541. The extent of the legislative history of this provision is one sentence appearing in the conference report accompanying the Act: “Section 502 [effecting the amendments to section 546] is a new section and addresses an inconsistency in the appointment process of United States Attorneys.”

Although the legislative purpose is unclear, the practical effect is not. The Act amended section 546 in two critical respects. First, it effectively removed district court judges from the interim appointment process and vested the Attorney General with the sole power to appoint interim United States Attorneys. Second, the Act eliminated the 120-day limit on the term of an interim United States Attorney appointed by the Attorney General. As a result, judicial input in the interim appointment process was eliminated. Even more problematic, it created a possible loophole that permit United States Attorneys appointed on an interim basis to serve indefinitely without ever being subjected to Senate confirmation process, which is plainly a result not contemplated by the Framers.

Mr. Chairman, excluding changes in Administration, it is rare for a United States Attorney to not complete his or her four-year term of appointment. According to the Congressional Research Service, only 54 United States Attorneys between 1981 and 2006 did not complete their four-year terms. Of these, 30 obtained other public sector positions or sought elective office, 15 entered or returned to private practice, and one died. Of the remaining eight United States Attorneys, two were apparently dismissed by the President, and three apparently resigned after news reports indicated they had engaged in questionable personal actions.

Mr. Chairman, in the past few months disturbing stories appeared in the news media reporting that several United States Attorneys had been asked to resign by the Justice Department. It has now been confirmed that at least seven United States Attorneys were asked to resign on December 7, 2006. An eighth United States Attorney was subsequently asked to resign. They include the following:

- H.E. Cummins, III, U.S. Attorney (E.D. Ark.);
- John McKay, U.S. Attorney (W.D. Wash.);
- David Iglesias, U.S. Attorney (D. N.M.);
- Paul K. Charlton, U.S. Attorney (D. Ariz.);
- Carol Lam, U.S. Attorney (S.D. Calif.);
- Daniel Bogden, U.S. Attorney (D. Nev.);
- Kevin Ryan, (N.D. Calif.); and
- Margaret Chiara, (W.D. Mich.).

On March 6, 2007, the Subcommittee on Commercial and Administrative Law held a hearing entitled, "H.R. 580, Restoring Checks and Balances in the Confirmation Process of United States Attorneys." Witnesses at the hearing included six of the eight former United States Attorneys and William Moschella, Principal Associate Deputy Attorney General, among other witnesses.

Six of the six former United States Attorneys testified at the hearing and each testified that he or she was not told in advance why he or she was being asked to resign. Upon further inquiry, however, Messrs. Charlton and Bogden were advised by the then Acting Assistant Attorney General William Mercer that they were terminated essentially to make way for other Republicans to enhance their credential and pad their resumes. In addition, Messrs. Iglesias and McKay testified about inappropriate inquiries they received from Members of Congress concerning pending investigation, which they surmised may have led to their forced resignations.

Mr. Chairman, the USA PATRIOT ACT Reauthorization provision on interim U.S. Attorneys should be repealed for two reasons. First, Members of Congress did not get an opportunity to vet or debate the provision that is current law. Rather the Republican leadership of the 109th Congress slipped the provision into the Conference Report at the request of the Department of Justice. Not even Senate Judiciary Chairman Arlen Specter, whose chief of staff was responsible for inserting the provision, knew about its existence.

Second, it is now clear that the manifest intention of the proponents of the provision was to allow interim appointees to serve indefinitely and to circumvent Senate confirmation. We know now, for example, that in a September 13, 2006 e-mail to former White House Counsel, Harriet Miers, Attorney General Chief of Staff, Kyle Sampson wrote:

“I strongly recommend that, as a matter of Administration policy, we utilize the new statutory provisions that authorize the Attorney General to make U.S. Attorney appointments.”

Mr. Sampson further said that by using the new provision, DOJ could “give far less deference to home-State Senators and thereby get (1) our preferred person appointed and (2) do it far faster and more efficiently, at less political cost to the White House.”

Regarding the interim appointment of Tim Griffin at the request of Karl Rove and Harriet Miers, Mr. Sampson wrote to Monica Goodling, Senior Counsel to the White House and Liaison to the White House on December 19, 2006 the following:

“I think we should gum this to death: ask the Senators to give Tim a chance, meet with him, give him some time in office to see how he performs, etc. If they ultimately say, ‘no never’ (and the longer we can forestall that, the better), then we can tell them we’ll look for other candidates, and otherwise run out the clock. All of this should be done in ‘good faith,’ of course.”

Finally, we now know that after gaining this increased authority to appoint interim U.S. Attorneys indefinitely, the Administration has exploited the provision to fire U.S. Attorneys for political reasons. A mass purge of this sort is unprecedented in recent history. The Department of Justice and the White House coordinated this purge. According to an Administration “hit list” released on Tuesday, U.S. Attorneys were targets for the purge based on their rankings. The ranking relied in large part on whether the U.S. Attorney “exhibit[ed] loyalty to the President and Attorney General.”

Mr. Chairman, until exposed by this unfortunate episode, United States Attorneys were expected to, and in fact did exercise, wide discretion in the use of resources to further the priorities of their districts. Largely a result of its origins as a distinct prosecutorial branch of the federal government, the office of the United States Attorney traditionally operated with an unusual level of independence from the Justice Department in a broad range of daily activities. That practice served the nation well for more than 200 years. The practice that has been in place for less than two years has served the nation poorly. It needs to end. That is why I will vote to report H.R. 580 favorably to the House and I urge all members to do likewise.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield the remainder of my time.

“SECURING AIRCRAFT COCKPITS AGAINST LASERS ACT OF 2007”

MAY 2, 2007

I have an amendment at the desk. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 1615, the “Securing Aircraft Cockpits Against Lasers Act of 2007.” My amendment improves the bill by limiting its scope so that it fulfills its intended purposes, which is to protect aircraft crew, and through them passengers, by prohibiting the aiming of the beam of a laser pointer at an aircraft, or the flight path of such an aircraft. My amendment clarifies that the significant penal provisions in the bill are directed at conduct that is harmful to the aircraft or crew. Specifically, my amendment adds an important and useful qualification to the bill's definition of a "laser pointer." As amended the term 'laser pointer' means:

1. any device designed or used to amplify electromagnetic radiation by stimulated emission that emits a beam designed to be used by the operator as a pointer or highlighter to indicate, mark, or identify a specific position, place, item, or object; and
2. is capable of inflicting serious bodily injury if aimed at an airplane cockpit from a minimum distance of 500 yards."

This amendment will achieve the sponsors' objectives of protecting the safety of airline crew and passengers while at the same time observing the rule of construction that penal statutes should be narrowly drafted and construed to cover only the evil sought to be prohibited.

Mr. Chairman, I believe my amendment will assuage the concern a number of members have regarding the wisdom of the bill in its current form. For this reason, I urge the adoption of my amendment.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

“LOBBYING TRANSPARENCY ACT OF 2007”

MAY 17, 2007

I have an amendment at the desk. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 2317, the “Lobbying Transparency Act of 2007.” My amendment improves the bill by amending section 2(a) of the bill to require that the statement which a covered registered lobbyist must provide to the recipient also shall include a notification that the recipient has the right to respond to the statement to challenge and correct any information included before the registered lobbyist files the report with the Clerk of the House or Secretary of the Senate.

My amendment will reduce the likelihood that the recipient will be unduly prejudiced by the disclosure of inaccurate information by giving the recipient notice and opportunity to identify, and the lobbyist the opportunity to correct, inaccurate information regarding bundled contributions.

In sum, my amendment will help ensure that the salutary objectives of the legislation are achieved without reaping the unintended consequence of prejudicing a recipient – whether he or she be an office holder or candidate for federal office – by the disclosure of inaccurate or incomplete information.

I urge all members to support my amendment. Thank you.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #1 TO

“NO OIL PRODUCING AND EXPORTING CARTELS ACT OF 2007”

MAY 17, 2007

I have an amendment at the desk. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 2264, the “No Oil Producing and Exporting Cartels Act of 2007.”

The intent of H.R. 2264 is to extend the Sherman Act to international state actors in the petroleum production business. Among other things, the legislation authorizes the U.S. Attorney General to bring antitrust actions against federal district court.

My amendment improves the bill by adding a new section which authorizes state attorney generals to bring such actions as well. Just like in the tobacco litigation, state attorney generals are more likely than the federal attorney general to bring these types of law suits to protect the consumer.

I urge all members to support my amendment. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO ANS TO H.R. 923
OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

On page 1, insert the following section:

Sec. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds as follows:

1. From Reconstruction through the modern Civil Rights Movement, heinous and depraved acts of violence were committed against persons belonging to a racial group that was innocent, vulnerable, and politically powerless, and also against those persons who risked life and limb to help them secure the rights promised in the Declaration of Independence and made real in the Constitution. Many of these crimes remain unsolved and no one held has ever been held accountable.
2. Examples of unsolved cases include the 1968 "Orangeburg Massacre" at South Carolina State University where state police shot and killed three student protesters; the 1967 shooting death of Carrie Brumfield, whose body was found on a rural Louisiana road; the 1957 murder of Willie Joe Sanford, whose body was fished out of a creek in Hawkinsville, Ga.; the 1946 killing of a black couple, including a pregnant woman, who was pulled out of a car in Monroe, Ga., and dragged down a wagon trail before being shot in front of 200 people.
3. These unsolved crimes represent a continuing stain on our nation's honor and mock its commitment to equal justice under law. Solving these cases is part of the unfinished work of America. As President Kennedy said when he addressed the nation on June 11, 1963, "this Nation, for all its hopes and all its boasts, will not be fully free until all its citizens are free."

Renumber the remaining sections sequentially.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF
AMENDMENT #1 TO H.R. 923
"EMMETT TILL UNSOLVED CIVIL RIGHTS CRIMES ACT OF 2007"

JUNE 13, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson Lee Amendment No. 1. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 923, the "Emmett Till Unsolved Civil Rights Crimes Act of 2007," which I am proud to co-sponsor and strongly support.

My amendment simply adds a section containing Congressional findings of fact that help explain to the nation and the world why the Congress was compelled to enact this vitally important legislation. We enact this legislation not because of who the perpetrators of these unsolved criminal violations of civil rights statutes are, but who we are, and who their victims were.

Mr. Chairman, over the past half century, the United States has made tremendous progress in overcoming the badges and vestiges of slavery. But this progress has been purchased at great cost.

From Reconstruction through the modern Civil Rights Movement, heinous and depraved acts of violence were committed against persons belonging to a racial group that was innocent, vulnerable, and politically powerless, and also against those persons who risked life and limb to help them secure the rights promised in the Declaration of Independence and made real in the Constitution. Many of these crimes remain unsolved and no one held has ever been held accountable.

Examples of unsolved cases include the 1968 "Orangeburg Massacre" at South Carolina State University where state police shot and killed three student protesters; the 1967 shooting death of Carrie Brumfield, whose body was found on a rural Louisiana road; the 1957 murder of Willie Joe Sanford, whose body was fished out of a creek in Hawkinsville, Ga.; the 1946 killing of a black couple, including a pregnant woman, who was pulled out of a car in Monroe, Ga., and dragged down a wagon trail before being shot in front of 200 people.

These unsolved crimes represent a continuing stain on our nation's honor and mock its commitment to equal justice under law. Solving these cases is part of the unfinished work of America. As President Kennedy said 44 years ago, when he addressed the nation on June 11, 1963: "this Nation, for all its hopes and all its boasts, will not be fully free until all its citizens are free."

Dedicating the resources in the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation needed to bring closure to the unresolved civil rights crimes is an important and useful measure to ensure justice to the victims and help bind the wounds to the nation caused by these terrible crimes.

H.R. 923 is intended to help bring justice to those whom justice has been delayed for more than two generations. In doing so, this legislation will help this Nation fulfill its hopes and justify its boast that in America all persons live in freedom.

I urge the adoption of my amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

AMENDMENT #2 TO H.R. 923
"EMMETT TILL UNSOLVED CIVIL RIGHTS CRIMES
ACT OF 2007"

JUNE 13, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson Lee Amendment No. 2. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 923, the "Emmett Till Unsolved Civil Rights Crimes Act of 2007," which I am proud to co-sponsor and strongly support.

My amendment simply increases the appropriations annually authorized by the bill for the Community Relations Service of the Department of Justice by $500,000 to $2,000,000.

I strongly believe that this funding source also be available to assist the families of victims in coping with the loss of a loved one through counseling and other support services, financial and otherwise. Such assistance must be available to the victim's families because in many cases the testimony of a family member may indispensable to government investigators and prosecutors.

I am particularly mindful that the witnesses testifying at yesterday's hearing affirmed their belief that the government's ability successfully to investigate and solve criminal civil right violations would be greatly enhanced were assistance and support available to the victims' families.

Mr. Chairman, 44 years ago yesterday, Medgar Evers was murdered in Jackson, Mississippi; justice would not be done in his case for more than twenty years. But that day was foretold because the evening before the death of Medgar Evers, on June 11, 1963, President John F. Kennedy addressed the nation from the Oval Office on the state of race relations and civil rights in America. In his historic speech to the nation President Kennedy said:

"We are confronted primarily with a moral issue. It is as old as the scriptures and is as clear as the American Constitution.

"One hundred years of delay have passed since President Lincoln freed the slaves, yet their heirs, their grandsons, are not fully free. They are not yet freed from the bonds of injustice. They are not yet freed from social and economic oppression. And this Nation, for all its hopes and all its boasts, will not be fully free until all its citizens are free."

H.R. 923 is intended to help bring justice to those whom justice has been delayed for more than two generations. In doing so, this legislation will help this Nation fulfill its hopes and justify its boast that in America all persons live in freedom.

I urge the adoption of my amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

AMENDMENT #3 TO H.R. 923
"EMMETT TILL UNSOLVED CIVIL RIGHTS CRIMES
ACT OF 2007"

JUNE 13, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is Jackson Lee Amendment No. 3. I thank the Chairman for this opportunity to explain my amendment to H.R. 923, the "Emmett Till Unsolved Civil Rights Crimes Act of 2007," which I am proud to co-sponsor and strongly support.

My amendment simply makes explicit that the Deputy Chief responsible for the investigation and prosecution of pre-1970 violations of criminal civil rights statutes has the authority and the resources to discharge the important duties of that position. My amendment simply provides that in designating the Deputy Chief required by this legislation, the Attorney General also delegate to the Deputy Chief authority over the necessary personnel and budgetary resources.

H.R. 923 seeks help bring justice to those whom justice has been delayed for more than two generations. In doing so, this legislation intended to help this Nation fulfill its hopes and justify its boast that in America all persons live in freedom. The Deputy Chief, therefore, has an awesome responsibility. If we are to expect positive results, it is incumbent upon us to provide the Deputy Chief the resources and authority needed to be successful.

As Winston Churchill said to President Roosevelt during the dark days of 1940:

“Give us the tools and we will finish the job!”

I urge the adoption of my amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

JACKSON LEE AMENDMENT
TO H.R. 3773

“RESPONSIBLE ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE THAT IS OVERSEEN, REVIEWED, AND EFFECTIVE ACT OF 2007”

OCTOBER 10, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. It is designated the Jackson Lee Amendment. I thank the Chairman for the opportunity to explain the amendment to H.R. 3773, on which I proudly join you as an original co-sponsor.

The Jackson Lee Amendment makes a constructive contribution to this important legislation that already is superior to the misnamed “Protect America Act” by orders of magnitude. It does this simply by laying down a clear, objective criterion for the Administration to follow and the FISA court to enforce in preventing reverse targeting. “Reverse targeting,” a concept well known to members of this Committee but not so well understood by those less steeped in the arcana of electronic surveillance, is the practice where the government targets foreigners without a warrant while its actual purpose is to collect information on certain U.S. persons. As you know, Mr. Chairman, one of the major concerns that libertarians and classical conservatives, as well as progressives and civil liberties organizations, have with the PAA is that the understandable temptation of national security agencies to engage in reverse targeting may be difficult to resist in the absence of strong safeguards in the PAA to prevent it.

My amendment reduces even further any such temptation to resort to reverse targeting by requiring the Administration to obtain a regular, individualized FISA warrant whenever the “real” target of the surveillance is a person in the United States.

The amendment achieves this objective by requiring the Administration to obtain a regular FISA warrant whenever a “significant purpose of an acquisition is to acquire the communications of a specific person reasonably believed to be located in the United States.” The current language in the bill provides that a warrant be obtained only when the Government “seeks to conduct electronic surveillance” of a person reasonably believed to be located in the United States.

It is far from clear how the operative language “seeks to” is to be interpreted. In contrast, the language used in our amendment, “significant purpose,” is a term of art that has long been a staple of FISA jurisprudence and thus is well known and readily applied by the agencies, legal practitioners, and the FISA Court. Thus, the Jackson Lee Amendment provides a clearer, more objective, criterion for the Administration to follow and the FISA court to enforce to prevent the practice of reverse targeting without a warrant, which all of us can agree should not be permitted.

I hasten to add, Mr. Chairman, that neither the bill nor our amendment requires the Government to obtain a FISA order for every overseas target on the off chance that they might pick up a call into or from the United States. Rather, the bill requires, as our amendment makes clear, a FISA order only where there is a particular, known person in the United States at the other end of the foreign target's calls in whom the Government has a significant interest such that a significant purpose of the surveillance has become to acquire that person's communications.

This will usually happen over time and the Government will have the time to get an order while continuing its surveillance. And it is the national security interest to require it to obtain an order at that point, so that it can lawfully acquire all of the target person's communications rather than continuing to listen to only some of them.

In short, my amendment gives the Government precisely what Director of National Intelligence McConnell asked for when he testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee:

It is very important to me; it is very important to members of this Committee. We should be required -- we should be required in all cases to have a warrant anytime there is surveillance of a US [sic] person located in the United States."

For these reasons, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

NADLER AMENDMENT
TO H.R. 3773

“RESPONSIBLE ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE THAT IS OVERSEEN, REVIEWED, AND EFFECTIVE ACT OF 2007”

OCTOBER 10, 2007

Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word and speak in favor of the amendment offered by Mr. Nadler. As Mr. Nadler amply demonstrated, this amendment makes a constructive contribution to this important legislation that already is superior to the misnamed “Protect America Act.”

As Mr. Nadler indicated, under the RESTORE Act, the Administration is required to submit to the FISA court three sets of procedures/guidelines, none of which were required under the PAA:

1. Procedures to ensure that the targets of surveillance are located outside the United States
2. Minimization procedures to regulate dissemination of information about U.S. persons collected
3. Guidelines to ensure that the government obtains an individualized FISA warrant when the target is located in the United States.

As drafted, the RESTORE Act gives the FISA court the option to assess compliance with #2 and #3 at the time of the original application and at any time during the life of the application.

The Nadler Amendment improves the bill in three ways. First, it requires the FISA court to conduct this assessment of compliance (“shall” is substituted for the current permissive draft language “may”). Second, the amendment expands the scope of the assessment to include all three of the procedures/guidelines described above, not just #2 and #3. Finally, the amendment removes the limitations on the actions the FISA court can take in conducting this assessment (the current draft limits this assessment to reviews of specific government actions – this amendment would delete that limitation).

The bottom line, Mr. Chairman, is that the Nadler Amendment recognizes the indispensable function of the FISA Court and empowers it to act as an Article III court is expected to do under our Constitution. Not as a rubber-stamp for the Administration or a bottleneck to protect terrorists but as the validator of the lawful exercise of executive power on the one hand, and the guardian of individual rights and liberties on the other.

For these reasons, I urge the adoption of this amendment.
Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield back the remainder of my time.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Cocaine base (commonly known as “crack cocaine”) is made by dissolving cocaine hydrochloride in a solution of sodium bicarbonate (or a similar agent) and water.

(2) The physiological and psychotropic effects of cocaine are similar regardless of its form.

(3) One of the principal objectives of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986, which established different mandatory minimum penalties for crack cocaine, was to target Federal law enforcement and prosecutorial resources on serious and major drug traffickers.

(4) In 1986, Congress linked mandatory minimum penalties to different drug quantities, which were intended to serve as proxies for identifying offenders who were “serious” traffickers (managers of retail drug trafficking) and “major” traffickers (manufacturers or the kingpins who headed drug organizations).

(5) Although drug purity and individual tolerance vary, making it difficult to state with specificity the individual dose of each form of cocaine, while 5 grams of crack cocaine generally equals 10 to 50 individual doses (or enough for a heavy user to consume in one weekend) and 500 grams of crack cocaine generally equals 100 to 500 individual doses.

(6) In part because Congress believed that crack cocaine had unique properties that made it instantly addictive, the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986 established an enormous disparity (a 100 to 1 ratio) in the quantities of forms of cocaine that trigger 5- and 10-year mandatory minimum sentences. This disparity permeates the Sentencing Guidelines.

(7) As a result, it takes 100 times more certain forms of cocaine than crack cocaine to trigger the 5- and 10-year mandatory minimum sentences. While it takes 500 grams of certain forms of cocaine to trigger the 5-year mandatory minimum sentence, it takes just 5 grams of crack cocaine to trigger that sentence.

(8) Most of the assumptions on which the current penalty structure was based have turned out to be unfounded.

(9) Studies comparing usage of various forms of cocaine have shown that there is little difference between the forms of the drug and fundamentally undermine the current quantity-based sentencing disparity. More specifically, the studies have shown the following:

(A) All forms of cocaine cause identical effects. Epidemiological data show that smoking a drug delivers it to the brain more rapidly, which increases likelihood of addiction. All forms of the drug are addictive, however, and the treatment protocol for the drug is the same regardless of the form of the drug the patient has used.

(B) Violence committed by crack users is relatively rare. Almost all crack-related violence is systemic violence that occurs within the drug distribution process. Sentencing enhancements are better suited to punish associated violence, which are separate, pre-existing crimes in and of themselves.

(C) The negative effects of prenatal exposure to crack cocaine were vastly overstated.

(D) Although Congress in the mid-1980s was understandably concerned that the low-cost and potency of crack cocaine would fuel an epidemic of use by minors, the epidemic of crack cocaine use by young people never materialized to the extent feared. Furthermore, sentencing data suggest that young people do not play a major role in crack cocaine trafficking at the Federal level.

(E) The current 100 to 1 penalty structure undermines various congressional objectives set forth in the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986. Data collected by the United States Sentencing Commission show that Federal resources have been targeted at offenders who are subject to the mandatory minimum sentences, which sweep in low-level crack cocaine users and dealers.

(10) In 1988, Congress set a mandatory minimum sentence for mere possession of crack cocaine, the only controlled substance for which there is a mandatory minimum sentence for simple possession for a first-time offender.

(11) As a result of the low-level drug quantities that trigger lengthy mandatory minimum penalties for crack cocaine, the concentration of lower level Federal offenders is particularly pronounced among crack cocaine offenders, more than half of whom were street level dealers in 2005.

(12) The Departments of Justice, Treasury, and Homeland Security are the agencies with the greatest capacity to investigate, prosecute, and dismantle the highest level of drug trafficking organizations, but investigations and prosecutions of low-level offenders divert Federal personnel and resources from the prosecution of the highest-level traffickers, for which such agencies are best suited.

(13) The unwarranted sentencing disparity not only overstates the relative harmfulness of the various forms of the drug and diverts Federal resources from high-level drug traffickers, but it also disproportionately affects poor and ethnic minority populations.

AMENDMENT TO THE TITLE OF H.R. 1425
OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Amend the title so as to read: “A bill to establish commissions to review the facts and circumstances surrounding injustices suffered by European Americans, European Latin Americans, African Americans, Native Americans, Latino Americans, and Jewish refugees during World War II, and the impact of those actions by the United States, and to recommend appropriate remedies, and for other purposes.”.

AMENDMENT TO THE AMENDMENT IN THE

Page 2, insert the following after line 22 and redesignate the succeeding paragraphs accordingly:

1 (6) Over 2.5 million African-American men reg-
2 istered for the draft, and black women also volun-
3 teered in large numbers. When the war began in Eu-
4 rope in 1937, there were only about 5,000 black en-5 listed men and fewer than a dozen black officers in 6 the regular army. Before the war ended in 1945,
7 more than a million black men and about 4,000
8 black women had served in the armed forces.

9 (7) African Americans played an integral role in 10 World War II from the very beginning. On Sunday
11 morning December 7, 1941, Japan attacked Amer-12 ican forces stationed at Pearl Harbor and other U.S.
13 military facilities on Oahu in the Hawaiian Islands.
14 A black mess attendant aboard the USS West Vir-15 ginia, Dorie Miller, was among those later cited for 16 distinction during the battle. In the heat of battle, 17 he pulled his wounded captain to safety. Although he 18 had never fired a machine gun before, Miller shot

1 down as many as four attacking planes, for which he
2 later received the Navy Cross for heroism.

3 (8) African American valor during World War
4 II is exemplified by the success of the 99th Pursuit
5 Squadron, the first black combat unit in the Army
6 Air Corps, established in Tuskegee, Alabama. More
7 than 600 black pilots trained for this highly deco-
8 rated unit. They completed more than 500 missions 9 in the first year of America's involvement in the 10 war. Over 80 were decorated with the Distinguished 11 Flying Cross for combat over France, Germany, 12 North Africa, and Eastern Europe.

13 (9) While serving in the Army, Army Air
14 Forces, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, Afri-
15 can Americans experienced discrimination at the 16 hands of the Armed Services in which they served.
17 Throughout World War II, African Americans were 18 restricted from serving in units with other soldiers.
19 While African, Native, and Latino American soldiers 20 commanded African Americans, African American
21 officers were barred from commanding African, Na-22 tive, and Latino American troops. Further, African 23 American servicemen fighting in World War II com-24 plained that the enemies of the United States got 25 treated better than the African-American soldiers.

1 (10) Even as African Americans participated in 2 the war abroad, at home, African American civilian 3 and soldier alike suffered the most brutal form of 4 bias, abuse, discrimination. In 1941, 100 African 5 American officers were arrested for protesting the 6 whites-only policy of the officer's club at Freeman
7 Field in Indiana. In 1943 William Hastie, aide to 8 the U.S. Secretary of War, resigned his office to 9 protest racial discrimination in the armed forces.

10 (11) By 1940 American factories were hiring 11 new workers for war production, finally relieving the 12 depression's stubborn unemployment. But African 13 Americans continued to be denied employment based 14 upon race. Even worse, the war years saw the con-15 tinued practice of African American lynching by 16 mobs throughout the United States.

17 (12) Despite these challenges, African American 18 men and women fully engaged in the war effort were 19 determined to pursue a "Double V Campaign," vic-20 tory over fascism abroad and victory over racism at 21 home.

22 (13) Similar experiences of valor and discrimi-23 nation were encountered by Native Americans and 24 Latino Americans.

Amendment to H.R. 966, the “Lawsuit Abuse Reduction Act”

TALKING POINTS

Chairman, I would like to offer an amendment to H.R. 966, the “Lawsuit Abuse Reduction Act.” This bill would change the sanctions for a violation of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP) 11 to a cost-shifting sanction payable to the opposing party, a former version of the Rule in effect from 1983 until 1993. That cost-shifting provision was eliminated by the courts because it encouraged satellite litigation – while the underlying purpose of Rule 11 was to discourage frivolous litigation.

My amendment would restore the sanctions currently available under Rule 11, which provide the correct balance in punishing unwarranted conduct without encouraging unnecessary litigation. My amendment would strike the language in H.R. 966 that makes monetary sanctions mandatory, and replaces it with language that restores discretion in sanctioning to the court.

- This amendment would allow judges the discretion to determine the type of sanctions. It is a compromise amendment that restores some judicial discretion back into the Rule 11 process.

- Under the current rule, judges determine both whether or not sanctions are in order and what type of sanctions are appropriate.

- H.R. 966 removes all judicial discretion from this process—it makes sanctions mandatory and requires that they consist of “an order to pay the reasonable expenses incurred” by the other party.

- This amendment would restore the balance found in the current version of Rule 11, which gives the court discretion to determine an appropriate sanction. Currently, under FRCP 11(c)(4), “The sanction may include nonmonetary directives; an order to pay a penalty into court; or, if imposed on motion and warranted for effective deterrence, an order directing payment to the movant of part or all of the reasonable attorney's fees and other expenses directly resulting from the violation.”

- That version was adopted by the courts after a ten year failed experiment of the mandatory sanction rule found in H.R. 966.
- One of the key changes to Rule 11 in 1993 was to replace the mandate that sanctions must be imposed if a violation of the rule is found with a grant of discretion to federal judges to decide when to impose sanctions, and to what extent. By eliminating the mandatory fee-shifting provision, the 1993 Rule discouraged satellite litigation and encouraged parties to move forward with the merits of the case.
- Under the prior Rule 11 that was in effect for a 10 year-period until the courts repealed it, mandatory fee-shifting was used to discourage plaintiffs from bringing meritorious claims using novel legal theories in civil rights and employment rights cases.

- H.R. 966's would reinstate this mandatory fee shifting rule and thus would also reinstate the chilling effect on plaintiff's claims, especially since an individual plaintiff taking on corporate interests cannot afford the risk of being saddled with the corporation's fees and costs.
- This amendment would preserve the current version of the Rule and restore the correct balance between punishing unwarranted conduct and deterring unnecessary litigation.
- The old rule disproportionately affected plaintiffs, especially plaintiffs in civil rights cases. Sanctions were more often imposed against plaintiffs than defendants and more often imposed against plaintiffs in certain kinds of cases, primarily in civil rights and certain kinds of discrimination cases.

- A leading study on this issue showed that although civil rights cases made up 11.4% of federal cases filed, 22.7% of the cases in which sanctions had been imposed were civil rights cases.

- Under current FRCP Rule 11, sanctions are available to deter uncivil conduct. The imposition of mandatory fees and costs shifts the purpose of the Rule from deterrence to compensation, encouraging parties to always file Rule 11 motions in the hopes of gaining additional compensation.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 704, THE "SECURITY AND FAIRNESS ENHANCEMENT FOR AMERICA ACT"

TALKING POINTS

- Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer an amendment to H.R. 704, a bill which seeks to completely eliminate the Diversity Visas Program. My amendment requires the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the Department of State (DOS) to make recommendations on the elimination of fraud in the Diversity Visa Program.
- This Amendment would strike section 2 of H.R. 704 and replace it with a requirement that the Secretary of DHS, in consultation with the Secretary of DOS, report back to the Committees on Judiciary of the House and Senate within 180 days of the date of enactment their recommendations for the elimination of fraud in the Diversity Visa Program.

- According to the Government Accountability Office (GAO), the Diversity Visa Program has proven successful in diversifying the U.S. immigrant pool.¹
 - Well over half a million immigrants from countries with low rates of admission to the United States have become lawful permanent residents through the Program.²
 - The majority of Diversity immigrants are from Africa and Europe – two regions with low-levels of admission under family or employment based immigrant visas.³

- In Fiscal Year 2011 alone, there were 12.1 million qualified applicants to the Diversity Immigrant Visa

¹ U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), Border Security: Fraud Risks Complicate State's Ability to Manage Diversity Visa Program, 07-1174, 12-14 (September 2007).

Program – a program which has available only 55,000 visas each year.⁴

- To qualify for a Diversity Visa, applicants must not only originate in an eligible country, but also...
 - ...demonstrate that they either hold the equivalent of a U.S. high school education⁵ or have two years of work experience in an occupation requiring two years of training or experience within the five-year period immediately prior to the application.⁶
 - Further, applicants must be otherwise admissible to the United States; Diversity Visa applicants, like other visa applicants, are subject to grounds of visa

⁴ See Diversity Visa Lottery Fiscal Year 2011 Results at http://travel.state.gov/visa/immigrants/types/types_5073.html, last visited April 3, 2011 (“Applicants registered for the DV-2011 program were selected at random from over 12.1 million qualified entries (16.5 million with derivatives) received during the 60-day application period that ran from noon on October 2, 2009, until noon, November 30, 2009.”).

⁵ “High school education or its equivalent” means successful completion of either a 12-year course of elementary and secondary study in the United States or elementary and secondary education comparable to 12 years of education in the United States.

⁶ The Department of Labor establishes eligible occupations, available at <http://www.online.onetcenter.org> ineligibility, including medical, terrorism, and criminal bars.

- Those accepted in the Program undergo stringent background checks.

- Despite the Diversity Visa Program's proven success in diversifying lawful immigration to the United States, the Majority says it supports H.R. 704 because the Program is allegedly wrought with fraud, both on and by applicants.

- Yet, this proposed legislation seeks a complete elimination of the Diversity Visa Program without first attempting to tackle that purported fraud in any meaningful way in order to preserve this valuable avenue for diverse, lawful immigration.

- My friends on the other side of the aisle have said that they are in support of, and put a premium on, lawful immigration to the United States. If that assertion is true, and they truly care about legal immigrants, now is not the time to be eliminating one of the few programs which provides an option for lawful immigration to the United States. If there are flaws in the Program, we should be undertaking steps to identify and address them in a meaningful way – not simply eliminating the program entirely.
- This Amendment would strike section 2 of H.R. 704 and replace it with a requirement that the Secretary of DHS, in consultation with the Secretary of DOS, report back to the Committees on Judiciary of the House and Senate within 180 days of the date of enactment their recommendations for the elimination of fraud in the Diversity Visa Program.

- My amendment is a very reasonable response to the concerns of fraud that the Majority has lifted with regard to this program. Acceptance of my amendment sends the message that we value legal avenues of immigration, and want to preserve what few options exists while we examine other ways to improve our system of immigration.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

MOROCCO: ANSWERING THE CALL FOR REFORM AND PROTECTION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 2011

TALKING POINTS

- Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer an amendment to H.R. 963, the “See Something, Say Something Act” which seeks to guarantee immunity from civil suits to individuals who report suspicious actions or behavior of others, provided the report is made in good faith. The bill also provides immunity to law enforcement officers and official personnel who act on such reports.

- My amendment addresses concerns associated with possibility of racial profiling. It prohibits law enforcement officers and agencies from utilizing race, ethnicity or religion as an indicator of suspicious actions or malicious intent without credible grounds. I offer this amendment to address the possibility of existing public bias on the basis of ethnic or religious grounds, and the influence that may have over law enforcement.
- I am concerned about the motivation behind the bill, and its connection to a 2006 incident that garnered national attention and invoked debate about racial profiling and security. On November 20, 2006, six imams were removed from a US Airways flight as a result of complaints from other travelers.

- The concerns raised by the imam's fellow passengers included prayer before boarding the flight, the seats the plaintiffs had been assigned and their need for seatbelt extensions.
- After being removed from the aircraft and interrogated, law enforcement officials concluded the imams did not harbor malicious intent, nor plan to engage in acts of terrorism. However, US Airways still refused them service on alternate flights.
- The consequent lawsuit brought by the imams under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Minnesota Human Rights Act and state tort claims, cited racism and religious discrimination as the reason for their removal from the plane.

- Some of my friends across the aisle were outraged that the complaining passengers and reporting employees were named as defendants in the suit, but we must also consider the position of the plaintiffs who were singled out and accused of being a threat solely because of their religious beliefs. I am unwilling to ignore the fact that his bill creates circumstances that come dangerously close to infringing upon the first amendment.
- The “See Something, Say Something Act” grants immunity from civil liability to the reporting of “covered activity”, and defines such activity as any suspicious occurrence an individual may be engaging or preparing to engage in. This definition is extremely ambiguous and vulnerable to any existing ethnic bias or religious intolerance the reporting individual may possess. This definition fails to distinguish legitimately threatening behavior from action that can be perceived as such, like photographing a landmark or even speaking Arabic.

- I offer this amendment as a safeguard for those who receive no consideration in this legislation – those innocent and innocuous individuals who may be accused of suspicious behavior and threatening national security as a result of fear-based accusations based on their ethnic or religious look.
- My Republican colleagues will point to past instances of citizen tips preventing potential attacks and dangers. They will justify this legislation by citing the attempted attack on Times Square in 2010, when a street vendor reported suspicious amounts of smoke coming from a van and reported it. They will cite the Texas resident who was reported purchasing large amounts of explosive chemicals, and the man attempting to detonate a bomb hidden in his underwear, or the electronic store clerk who reported being asked to copy a jihadist video.

- No one would argue these actions would raise suspicion in most, because they are legitimate examples of engaging in threatening behavior, and as a member of the Committee on Homeland Security, I understand how important credible tips can be in helping law enforcement protect our homeland. However, this legislation does nothing to separate credible threats from mere instances of racial profiling.
- Furthermore, in most cases, tipsters give information under a veil of anonymity and would not even be known in order to subject to legal action. Moreover, a tip from a civilian is nothing more than random information until it is acted on by law enforcement. It is up to the discretion of the law enforcement officers to determine whether or not there is any merit to tips they receive, once again, removing liability from civilian tipsters.

- I do not seek to legislate how individuals think or feel; my amendment only prohibits law enforcement officers from making decisions based on race or religion alone, in order to protect innocent Americans from being targeted because of their religion.

Passed on the Floor

SENSE OF CONGRESS -It is the sense of Congress that the patent system should promote industries to continue to develop new technologies that spur growth and create jobs across the country while protecting the rights of small business concerns, including minority-owned businesses, woman-owned businesses, and inventors from predatory behavior that could result in stifling American innovation.

AMENDMENTS THAT WERE OFFERED ON THE FLOOR

Amendment 143 – The term ‘small business concern’ shall include minority-owned business and women-owned business. (Page 99, line 20 insert after period)

Amendment 144 – PRO BONO- The small business concerns (as defined in section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632), including small business concerns that are minority-owned or women-owned. (Page 139, line 18)

Amendment 145 – PRO BONO - As part of a pro bono program the Director shall conduct an outreach program that targets small business concerns that are minority-owned or woman-owned. (Page 139, line 18)

Amendment 147- SENSE OF CONGRESS - It is the sense of Congress that the patent system should promote industries to continue to develop new technologies that spur growth and create jobs across the country while protecting the rights of small business concerns, including minority-owned businesses, woman-owned businesses, and inventors from predatory behavior that could result in stifling American innovation.

Amendment 148 –SENSE OF CONGRESS - It is the sense of Congress that fairness, equal access, and inclusivity must be ensured in the patent system with respect to inventors that are minority-owned businesses, woman-owned businesses, or small business concerns (as defined in section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632)), because the genius of the United States does not lie solely in the minds of large inventors.

Amendment 149 – ORPHAN DRUG – A patent the Director determines is for a drug designated as a drug for a rare disease or condition under section 526 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360bb) amends it from 20 years to a 22 years.

TALKING POINTS FOR AMERICAN INVENTS ACT

H.R. 1249, “America Invents Act.” As a Senior member of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Intellectual Property, Competition and the Internet, I am proud to support this legislation because in many ways the current patent system is flawed, outdated, and in need of modernization.

The Judiciary Committee labored long and hard to produce legislation that reforms the American patent system so that it continues to foster innovation and be the jet fuel of the American economy and remains the envy of the world. The final legislation incorporates amendments that I offered during the full committee markup as it recognizes the importance of converting from a first-inventor-to-use system to a first-inventor-to file will promote the progress of science by securing for a limited time to inventors the exclusive rights to their discoveries and provide inventors with greater certainty regarding the scope of protections granted by these exclusive rights. Further, this new system will harmonize the United States patent registration system with similar systems used by nearly all other countries with whom the United States conducts trade. This legislation will continue to ensure that the United States is at the helm of innovation.

Our Nation's Founders recognized the integral role the patent system would play in the growth of our nation. Within our Constitution, they explicitly granted Congress with the power to issue patents. The Founders were supporting a fundamental part of the American dream which is to live in a free land where ideas can be shared thereby leading to the individual ingenuity, invention, and innovation.

Article I, Section 8, clause 8 of the Constitution confers upon the Congress the power:

“To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries.”

In order to fulfill the Constitution's mandate, we must examine the patent system periodically. American Invents Act represents the first comprehensive review of the patent system in more than a generation. It is right and good and necessary that the Congress now reexamine the patent system to determine whether there may be flaws in its operation that may hamper innovation, including the problems described as decreased patent quality, prevalence of subjective elements in patent practice, patent abuse, and lack of meaningful alternatives to the patent litigation process.

We must always be mindful of the importance of ensuring that small companies have the same opportunities to innovate and have their inventions patented and that the laws will continue to protect their valuable intellectual property.

The role of venture capital is very important in the patent debate, as is preserving the collaboration that now occurs between small firms and universities. We must ensure that whatever improvements we make to the patent laws are not done so at the expense of innovators and to innovation. The legislation before us, while not perfect, does a surprisingly good job at striking the right balance.

From small towns to big cities are country is filled with talent and genius. As it stands, the United States has four times as many patent applications filed here per year than in Europe. The United States Patent and Trademark office must have the tools to meet this demand. Failing to change the patent system as we know it will deny the men and women from around our nation fair and equal access to a streamlined and effective patent system. The current system has a backlog of hundreds of thousands of patent, nearly 700,000 applications are waiting to be reviewed. The USPTO is currently reviewing applications from 2007/2008. This has caused inventors and business creators to wait on average three years prior to receiving a determination on whether or not their patents are valid.

Without that determination it is nearly impossible for a small business to receive the necessary venture capital. Between 1997 through 2010

- That's a three year waiting period for struggling small businesses; this is a three year gap filled with financial uncertainty which leads to a three year delay in job creation.
- As only 4 out of ten applications, or 42 percent, of patent applications are approved. It is vital to have approval prior to attaining financing because there is a 58 percent chance that a patent will not be approved. Given our current economic environment a three year backlog is too long for any individual to wait to build a business which will create new jobs, especially at a time when jobs are sourly needed by many right now. Patent reform is the key to economic change that could lead to untapped job growth.

- Since the creation of the USPTO in 1790 it has issued 7,752,677 patents and many of those patents have resulted in the creation of new jobs.
- In 2010, 121,179 patents granted by the USPTO originated in the United States of those granted 8,027 went to applicants in Texas. Imagine how many jobs could be created if there were not a 700,000 patent application backlog.
- Our current system is outdated and the backlog makes it evident that our system is in serious need of change. Patent reform must reflect the major advances in our society over the last 50 years. Since the last major patent reform how we live has been transformed by a variety of inventions such as the home computer, ATM, video games, cellular phones and life saving technologies like the artificial heart. All of which have been invented since any major reform of our patent system

Patent reform is a complex issue but one thing is clear the innovation ecosystem we create and sustain today will produce tomorrow's technological breakthroughs. That ecosystem is comprised of many different operating models. It is for that reason that we evaluated competing patent reform proposals thoroughly to ensure that sweeping changes in one part of the system do not result in unintended consequences to other important parts.

Let me discuss briefly some of the more significant features of this legislation, which I will urge all members to support.

Section 3: Right of the First Inventor to File

H.R. 1249 converts the U.S. patent system from a first-to-invent system to a first-inventor-to file system. The U.S. is alone in granting priority to the first inventor as opposed to the first inventor to file a patent. H.R. 1249 will inject needed clarity and certainty into the system. While cognizant of the enormity of the change that a "first inventor to file" system may have on many small inventors and universities, a study regarding first-to-file will be conducted by the Small Business Administration and the United States Patent Office to identify any negative impact this change may have on these inventors.

Section 5: Formula for Calculating Fair and Equitable Remedies

Section 5 of the bill provides useful clarification to courts and juries designed to ensure inventors are compensated fairly, while not discouraging innovation with arbitrary or excessive damage awards. While preserving the right of patent owners to receive appropriate damages, the bill provides a formula to ensure that the patent owner be rewarded for the actual value of the patented invention.

Computing damages in patent cases is an exceedingly complex task. The complexity stems not from the unwillingness of competing interests to find common ground but from the interactive effects of patent litigation reform on the royalty negotiation process and the future of innovation.

To illustrate, consider this frequently cited hypothetical. A new turbine blade for a jet engine is invented which enables the plane to achieve a 40% increase in gas mileage. What is fair compensation for the holder of the patent? Damages could fairly be based on the number of turbine blades used, the number of jet engines employing those turbine blades, or on a percentage of the savings of the cost of jet fuel used, or the number of miles flown by aircraft using engines employing the turbine blades, or even, if the higher efficiency of aircraft using the turbine blades was the basis for the market demand for the jet, the jet itself.

The original version of the bill was susceptible to a reasonable interpretation that apportionment would be required in all cases. But as marked up and amended, apportionment is only one of the several methods a court can use in awarding damages, including the use of the current approach established in Georgia-Pacific v. United States Plywood Corp., 318 F.Supp. 116 (S.D.N.Y. 1970), which provides that reasonable royalty damages are ascertained by looking to what the infringer would have paid, and what the patent owner would have accepted, for a license, had one been negotiated at the time the infringement began.

Moreover, apportionment no longer applies to damages based on lost profits. Another change allows plaintiff to recover the enhanced value of previously known elements where their combination in the invention adds value or functionality to the prior art. This is a very important and helpful compromise on the issue of patent case damages. We must keep in mind that important innovations come from universities, medical centers, and smaller companies that develop commercial applications from their basic research. These innovators must rely upon the licensing process to monetize their ideas and inventions. Thus, it is very important that we take care not to harm this incubator of tomorrow's technological breakthroughs. The bill before us strikes the proper balance.

In addition, it should also be pointed out that included in the bill is another of my amendments adopted during the full committee markup requiring the PTO Director to conduct a study on the effectiveness and efficiency of the amendments to section 5 of the bill, and submit to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report on the results of the study. The report must include any recommendations the Director may have on amendments to the law and any other recommendations the Director may have with respect to the right of the inventor to obtain damages for patent infringement. The study must be done not later than the end of the 7-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and at the end of every 7-year period after the date of the first study. In adopting this amendment, the Judiciary Committee reported that:

[T]he amendments in section 5 of the bill will have many positive effects on the patent system, but that the changes are sufficiently significant to require periodic monitoring. By examining the effects of these changes on a regular basis, and by paying attention to such feedback as may be obtained through these studies, Congress can ensure that any unforeseen negative consequences that may arise can be dealt with through future legislation or other mechanisms.

Willful Infringement and Prior Use Rights

The legislation also contains certain limitations on willful infringement. A court may only find willful infringement if the patent owner shows, by clear and convincing evidence, that (1) the infringer, after receiving detailed written notice from the patentee, performed the acts of infringement, (2) the infringer intentionally copied the patented invention with knowledge that it was patented, or (3) after having been found by a court to have infringed a patent, the infringer engaged in conduct that again infringed on the same patent. An allegation of willfulness is subject to a “good faith” defense. HR 1908 also expands the “prior user rights” defense to infringement, where an earlier inventor began using a product or process (although unpatented) before another obtained a patent for it.

Post-Grant Procedures and Other Quality Enhancements

Another beneficial feature of H.R. 1908 is that it cures the principal deficiencies of re-examination procedures and creates a new, post-grant review that provides an effective and efficient system for considering challenges to the validity of patents. Addressing concerns that one seeking to cancel a patent could abuse a post-grant review procedure, the bill establishes a single opportunity for challenge that must be initiated within 12 months of the patent being granted. It also requires the PTO Director to prescribe rules for abuse of discovery or improper use of the proceeding, limits the types of prior art which may be considered, and prohibits a party from reasserting claims in court that it raised in post-grant review.

Venue and Jurisdiction

Finally, the bill also addresses changes to venue, to address extensive forum shopping and provides for interlocutory appeals to help clarify the claims of the inventions early in the litigation process. H.R. 1908 would restore balance to this statute by allowing cases to be brought in a variety of locales – including where the defendant is incorporated or has its principal place of business or has committed a substantial portion of the acts of infringement and has a physical facility controlled by the defendant. H.R. 1908 makes patent reform litigation more efficient by providing the Federal Circuit jurisdiction over interlocutory decisions, known as “Markman” orders, in which the district court construes the claims of a patent as a matter of law.

SMALL BUSINESS FACTS

- Several studies, including those by the National Academy of Sciences and the Federal Trade Commission, recommended reform of the patent system to address what they thought were deficiencies in how patents are currently issued.
- The U.S Department of Commerce defines small businesses as businesses which employ less than 500 employees. According to the Department of Commerce in 2006 there were 6 million small employers representing around 99.7% of the nation's employers and 50.2% of its private-sector employment. In 2002 the percentage of women who owned their business was 28 % while black owned was around 5%. Between 2007 and 2008 the percent change for black females who were self employed went down 2.5 % while the number for men went down 1.5%.

- There were 386,422 small employers in Texas in 2006, accounting for 98.7% of the state's employers and 46.8% of its private-sector employment. Since small businesses make up such a large portion of our employer network, it is important to understand how they will be impacted as a result of patent reform.
- In 2009, there were about 468,000 small women-owned small businesses compared to over 1 million owned by men
- The number of small employers in Texas was 386,422 in 2006, accounting for 98.7% of the state's employers and 46.8% of its private-sector employment,
- 88,000 small business owners are black, 77,000 are Asian, 319,000 are Hispanic, 16,000 are Native Americans

Creativity and technological change are the engines for our economic growth. In our current economic climate, patents spur innovation and lay the foundation for future growth, by assuring inventors that they will receive the rewards for their effort.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #1

BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON HOMELAND SECURITY

MARK-UP HEARING: "NATIONAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT REFORM AND ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2006"
H.R. 5351

MAY 17, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment, which I intend to withdraw and ask be incorporated into the language of the Committee Report. My amendment amends Section 508 of the base text to require that the membership of the National Advisory Council on Emergency Management be expanded to include representatives of "minority populations and survivors of prior incidents of national significance."

The basis for this amendment is straightforward and uncontroversial. One of the principle purposes of the National Advisory Council on Emergency Management is to assist the Secretary in ensuring that adequate plans and policies are in place to enable a swift and effective response to an incident of national significance. The effectiveness of any such response, however, will be evaluated in the final analysis by a single criteria: did it put the lives and safety of the people first? I am reminded of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey's famous speech to the 1948 Democratic Convention, in which he said: "People. People are the issue of the 20th Century." Putting people first is still the issue in this, the 21st century. And there is no better way to ensure that the Advisory Committee for Emergency Management never forgets its raison d'être than to require that its membership include at least one representative of a population that has been too often forgotten and one representative of a group of persons who survived the very type of disaster or terrorist attack the Council exists to help the Secretary prevent or mitigate. The GAO agrees with me. I put this question of citizens representation on the Advisory Committee directly to Dr. Jenkins, who testified before this committee last week. He responded as follows:

Dr. Jenkins: "I think it is useful to have citizen input generally, [not just on the Advisory Council.] . . . They have a better sense of what the considerations are."

This amendment is common sense. This amendment is easy to comprehend. I think this amendment is very necessary.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT #2

REFORM AND ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2006"
H.R. 5351

MAY 17, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment, which I intend to withdraw and ask be incorporated into the language of the Committee Report. My amendment amends Section 521 of the base text to require that the Assistant Secretary for Grants and Planning develop Developing clear and consistent guidelines under which grants shall be awarded, with consideration given as appropriate, to minorities and economically disadvantaged applicants.”

The basis for this amendment is straightforward and uncontroversial. After an incident of national significance the survivors are the most likely to be in need economic opportunity. Survivors, many of whom will belong to minority groups given the location of the most probable venues for terrorist attacks and natural disasters, have the greatest stake in swift, responsive, and cost-effective recovery operations. Survivors have a pre-existing knowledge of the affected area and strong interest in restoring the affected area to the status quo ante.

This amendment is common sense. This amendment is easy to comprehend. I think this amendment is very necessary.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

“Homeland Security Science and Technology Enhancement Act”

“including at historically black colleges or universities that receive assistance under part B of title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 106 et seq), hispanic-serving institutions (as that term is defined in section 502 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1101a), and tribally controlled colleges or universities (as that term is defined in section 2 of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1801)

General Talking Points
Rep. Sheila Jackson Lee Amendment

- This amendment will require the Department to report on the number of employees at TSA who are working on the Security Sensitive Material Permit (SSMP) program required by this bill, the cost of administering the program, and the names of any contractors involved.
- Every day we read new press reports about cost overruns at the Department, or how businesses with political connections have acquired lucrative government contracts.
- The Transportation Worker Identification Card program, for example, a credential program related to the SSMP Program created by this bill, has faced many long delays and cost-overruns because of problems with contractors.
- I want to ensure we know exactly who is involved in administering this SSMP program, and how much it is costing us.
- The Gentlelady's amendment ensures we will have that information, and I appreciate her offering it.

Some universities, hospitals, and other entities hold licenses issued by the NRC and these research activities would be exempt. But universities and hospitals frequently also possess significant quantities of dangerous non-nuclear chemicals, which would be subject to regulation under the Act.]

APRIL 26, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment amends page 73 of the Amendment in the Nature of a Substitute (ANS) to require that any individual appointed as the Homeland Security Undersecretary for Policy possess, “by education and experience, demonstrated knowledge, ability, and skill in the fields of policy and strategic planning, international relations, and business management.

My amendment is uncontroversial. My amendment is common sense. My amendment is easy to comprehend. But my amendment is necessary.

[I understand that the majority accepts this amendment if the requirement for expertise in international relations and business management is dropped. At the appropriate time, I intend to ask unanimous consent to accommodate this request].

The devastation and wreckage wrought by Hurricane Katrina last summer is powerful testimony to the damage that can be done to our country by natural disasters and terrorist attacks. Hurricane Katrina also showed us how unimagined human suffering can be exacerbated when leaders fail to prepare adequately or simply do not measure up to the requirements of their job. We simply can no longer afford to entrust the safety of our people and the security of our nation to those who are unqualified to do the job entrusted to them.

My amendment minimizes the likelihood that the wrong person will not be appointed to the critically important post of Under Secretary for Policy. The amendment simply says that when it comes to Homeland Security planning, the senior agency officer responsible for that function is qualified, by demonstrated knowledge, ability, and skill to perform this mission critical function.

I say to all of my colleagues: the people who send us here to represent them place their confidence in us and the Executive Branch. They are entitled to expect that we will repay their confidence with competence in policy planning and execution. My amendment is an important step in that direction. I urge all members of the Committee to support it.

Thank you. I yield the balance of my time.

APRIL 26, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment amends page 80 of the Amendment in the Nature of a Substitute (ANS) to require that any individual appointed as the Homeland Security Director of Domestic Nuclear Detection possess, “substantial accomplishment in the fields of domestic nuclear and radiological detection.”

Let me say again that like my Policy Undersecretary amendment, this amendment is uncontroversial. This amendment is common sense. This amendment is easy to comprehend. But this amendment is necessary.

The devastation and wreckage wrought by Hurricane Katrina last summer is powerful testimony to the damage that can be done to our country by natural disasters and terrorist attacks. APRIL 26, 2006

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my amendment. My amendment amends page 23 of the Amendment in the Nature of a Substitute (ANS) by removing the restriction on the use of funds received through the Port Security Grant Program to pay for the salaries, benefits, overtime compensation, and other costs of additional security personnel for State and local agencies for activities required by the Area Maritime Transportation Security Plan.

We can all agree that it is in the nation's interest to ensure that the security our ports, particularly the largest ports, like the Port of Houston which I represent, is continuously upgraded with the aim of making them invulnerable to a catastrophic attack from those who would do America harm. The Port Security Grant Program is a big step in the right direction and I applaud the Chairman and Ranking Member for their bipartisan cooperation in bringing this program to fruition.

The problem my amendment corrects is that in drafting the ANS we did not fully appreciate the significant additional personal costs associated with the operation of a Port Security Program. To preserve the integrity of security related program activities and to protect the valuable and expensive equipment involved, it is necessary, of course, for port operators to take prudent measures to safeguard their program related activities and equipment.

This necessitates the expenditure of funds to retain the services of competent, experienced security personnel. Because such services do not come cheap, this additional expense can be, and very often is, considerable. My amendment provides much needed financial relief while at the same times enables the nation to benefit from their participation in the port security program.

I note that the American Association of Port Authorities (AAPA) supports my amendment. I have in my hand a letter from the AAPA, dated April 24, 2006, addressed to the Chairman and Ranking Member, in which the association's president and CEO states:

AAPA supports the inclusion of personnel costs as an expense that can be recovered under the program. This was provided in the original Maritime Transportation Security Act of 2002. Personnel costs are a large unfunded mandate for many public ports.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the letter from the AAPA to the Chairman and Ranking member be made part of the record.

I urge all members of the Committee to support the amendment. I yield back the balance of my time.

Thank you.

H.R. 1858, the National Mathematics and Science Partnership Act
H.R. 100, the National Science and Education Act.

SJL had three amendments accepted in the Democratic en bloc amendment.

Title II – National Science, Mathematics, Engineering, and Technology Education Digital Library.

- Specifies that the National Digital Library contain information about and links to materials generated by conferences related to the improvement of K-12 science and math education. [new JACKSON LEE provision]
- Authorized at $20M per year for 5 years.

Title III – Strategic Education Research Program.

Subtitle A – Centers

- Establishes 4 multidisciplinary centers for research on learning and educational improvement. The goal is to form collaborations among cognitive scientists, education researchers and education practitioners to improve classroom instruction in science and math. Each center is to be focused on a specific education problem; the solicitation for the program must specify the problem areas to be addressed (defined by NSF in consultation with the NAS).
- Requires that research center awards focus on research and development of educational practices designed to improve the academic performance of a broad range of students, including those from underrepresented groups. [new JACKSON LEE provision]

Title IV – Robert Noyce Scholarship Program

- Requires NSF to collect relevant statistical and demographic data on scholarship recipients and information on the locations at which scholarship recipients carry out their teaching requirement. A report to Congress is required by year 7 of the program assessing its impact on drawing math and science students into teaching careers, including students from underrepresented groups. [new JACKSON LEE provision]

The language of these amendments referring to underrepresented groups', has been defined in previous hearings to mean minorities and women. The language of the amendment does not explicitly state that due to concerns of opposition by Republican members of the committee.

These amendments will ensure that the benefits generated by this legislation, should it become law would reach African American and Hispanic communities and that there is adequate documentation of those who benefit from the programs generated to ensure broad participation of these minority groups.

Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee Amendment to H.R. 2460, “Comprehensive Energy Research and Technology Act of 2001”

Jackson Lee Proposed Bill/Amendment

This is an amendment to establish at the Department of Energy a research, development, and demonstration program for the secondary use of transportation batteries. This legislation would create a program at the Department of Energy to focus on research, development and demonstration programs for the secondary use of batteries where the original use of such batteries was in transportation applications. The funding for this project will be $15 million dollars for a 3-year period.

This program will seek out new applications for energy generation using battery technology that was initially developed for transportation purposes. In other words, would a car battery supply enough power to run a computer should a power failure occur. The program would also look at how the science behind transportation batteries might be merged with other technology for practical everyday use in commercial or home settings.

Batteries are an excellent source of power because they can be stored for long periods of time prior to being used, they are portable, and they can be recharged or at a reasonable cost replaced.

FOCUS:

- 1) The program goal is to demonstrate the use of batteries previously used in transportation applications in secondary applications, including utility and commercial power storage and power quality.
- 2) The program will be structured to evaluate the performance, including longevity, costs, and evaluation of the necessary supporting infrastructure, including disposal and reuse of batteries once used in transportation applications.
- 3) This program would coordinate with secondary battery use programs at national laboratories and industry.

- 1) Within 6 months of the enactment of this Act the Secretary of Energy will solicit proposals to demonstrate batteries and associated equipment supporting infrastructure in geographic locations throughout the United States.

Requirements: The proposer must provide 50 percent of the costs associated with the proposal.

The proposal must contain a description of the project, including the batteries to be used in the project, the proposed locations and applications for the batteries.

The number of batteries to be demonstrated, and the type characteristics, and estimated life-cycle costs of the batteries.

The number of batteries to be demonstrated, and the type, characteristics, and estimated life-cycle costs of the batteries when compared to other energy storage devices.

The proposal should also describe what type of equipment will be demonstrated and the type of supporting infrastructure to the demonstrated.

Page 3 Section 1(c) SELECTION OF PROPOSALS:

Within 90 days after the closing date for proposals to be submitted the Secretary of Energy must select at least 5 proposals to receive financial assistance under this section.

No one project selected should receive more than 25% of the funds authorized.

CRITERION FOR SELECTION:

The ability of the proposer to acquire the batteries and associated equipment and to successfully manage and conduct the demonstration project, including the reporting requirements of this Act.

The geographic and climatic diversity of the projects selected.

The long term technical and competitive viability of the batteries to be used in the project and of the original manufacturer of such batteries.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 2275 “Voting Technology Standards Act of 2001”

Section 3 VOTING TECHNOLOGY STANDARDS (3) TERMS—page 3
(E) line 7 after “term,” add not to exceed 3 terms.

This would limit the number of terms members of the commission could serve. Each term is for 6 years this amendment would limit the total time served by anyone on the commission other than the Director of NIST.

Section 4 LABORATORY ACCREDITATION line 19 after “tories” insert “an effort must be made to include one minority owned laboratory,”

Section 5 INFORMATION DISSEMINATION (3) line 9 insert after “available”, which should include the Internet,

This amendment would ensure that information regarding voting equipment standards would also be made available over the Internet.

Section 6 RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM page 7 (3) line
3 insert after disabilities and varying levels of literacy

This part of the Amendment would make sure that voting technology standards take into consideration literacy issues that may affect the ability of voters to have their true intent recorded. This would look at language issues and level of reading skill of voters.

Insert section (7) after 10 years of this act being enforce that a report be prepared that list the number of states in voluntary compliance and an assessment of the impact of the act on accuracy in vote tabulation.

This part of the amendment would create a report that would provide insight into how many states were in voluntary compliance with the standards outlined by the commission as well as to determine the effect of the standards on voting in national elections. In 10 years there would have been two national elections to provide information for the study.

STATEMENT

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

ON DOE/NASA AMENDMENT TO H.R. 238, THE ENERGY

BILL OF 2003

APRIL 2, 2003

Thank you Mr. Chairman,

I would first like to commend you for your work and bipartisan spirit in this Congress and the last Congress in shaping the Research and Development portions of this Energy Bill. The underlying bill and your en bloc amendment today, will ensure that the Energy needs of America continue to be met in a changing world. You and Ranking Member Hall deserve much credit for that, and I am pleased to have been a part of the process.

I am particularly pleased to see that three amendments that I offered in the last Congress have been incorporated into the underlying bill. Ensuring that our nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities receive their fair share of research funding, will allow us to harvest their great expertise and skills. It will also ensure that the next generation of leaders in the critical field of energy production and utilization will reflect the diversity of our great nation. Second, my provision for the secondary use of batteries will also help keep our environment clean and improve the efficiency of energy use in the future.

Third, I am gratified to see that language offered by my colleague from Houston Nick Lampson and me has been preserved, requiring the Secretary of the Interior to report to the Congress as to the oil and natural gas reserves in waters off the coast of Louisiana and Texas. No matter how we decide to manage our resources in the future, it is important that we take stock and are informed about our options.

Mr. Chairman, I thank you for working in an open-minded bipartisan way and supporting those amendments. Similarly, I hope that you give your support to my amendment today, which I believe could serve as a catalyst to address two issues that have dominated much of our discussion over the past months: 1) the need to pursue alternative energy sources, and 2) the need to stimulate our nation's industrial sector to lead in that pursuit.

I come from Houston, Texas, what has been called the energy capital of the world, and I appreciate that oil and fossil fuels deserve much credit for driving our economy and prosperity over the past centuries. I know that coal, oil, and natural gas will continue to play a large role over the next century at meeting our energy needs.

However, we all know that fossil fuels are not the wave of the new millennium. Our children, especially in the inner cities like in my District of Houston, have an epidemic of asthma from breathing smog and polluted air. We are overly dependent on foreign sources of oil, bought from people that we would prefer not be reliant on. No matter how safe we try to be, shipping and pumping oil will occasionally lead to spills and leaks that have tremendous detrimental effects on the environment.

But there is great hope on the horizon. New technologies are emerging rapidly to harvest the power of the sun, the wind, and of water to drive progress in the new millennium. Hydrogen holds great promise for becoming a fuel of the future to power our cars and trucks and even household devices with fuel cells. If we know that such technologies will be the way of the future—it is just smart policy to do all we can to stimulate the transition to go as efficiently and expeditiously as possible. We must also ensure that once the transition occurs, that it is American companies that are on the cutting edge of technology—leading and enjoying a good proportion of market share.

Unfortunately, that is not what has been happening so far. The Japanese have been a step ahead of the U.S. on producing hybrid and hydrogen fuel cell cars. Solar power is coming along fairly well, but cost-effective engineering is still progressing too slowly. The Dutch have become the world leaders in wind power generation. I am proud to note that Shell Oil in my District has recognized that the times are changing, and has formed Shell Hydrogen to start taking the lead in hydrogen fuel technology—but more must be done.

The federal government role should be to make investments to stimulate these industries and to leverage investments out of the private sector to encourage them to take the lead on energy issues. NASA is one agency that has already been successful at this, but I feel they can do even more. For example, NASA has been using hydrogen fuels in rockets for decades. They may have expertise and data from past or future work that could be of value to industry. NASA also has great experience in research and development of solar cells.

Another example is that a windmill is basically an airplane built backward. It has a propeller and a turbine. Many of the materials and the aerodynamics are the same. There is no reason that the U.S. the leader in aviation technology should be lagging behind in wind power generation, especially when our civil aviation industry is struggling with few new orders, and a decreased market share. I would love to see Boeing put their engineers to work designing and building the next generation of wind turbines. NASA's aeronautics division may provide them with some guidance and stimulation.

My amendment will require the Department of Energy to enter into discussions with the NASA Administrator, which will enable DOE to tap into the vast expertise in energy gained from past and future research—in order to find technologies that could bolster the existing commercial applications programs at the DOE.

I would like ask unanimous consent to enter into the record a news release from NIST dated March 5, 2003, titled, “Six Federal Agencies to Help Open the ‘GATE’ to Enhanced Manufacturing R&D.” It describes that six agencies, including NIST, DOE, NASA, and the Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy, have launched an effort to improve the exchange of information about their technical programs and to collaborate, in order to “enhance payoffs from federal investments.” I applaud that effort.

Unfortunately, they have limited their initial priority areas of focus to intelligence in manufacturing and nanotechnology.

Energy security is absolutely vital to our nation’s long-term survival, and the well-being of our environment. My amendment will build on the existing agreement between the six agencies, by broadening their focus to include DOE/NASA interactions meant to stimulate progress in development of alternative and renewable energy sources.

It will have minimal cost, but could yield great benefits. Mr. Chairman, I hope that you will support this smart-policy piece of legislation.

I would also like to add my support to the excellent amendments being offered today by my Democratic Colleagues. Our energy needs are complex. We need to be approaching energy policy from multiple directions, with diverse input, in a bipartisan fashion, in order to develop creative strategies for fueling the economy of the future in the sensitive global environment. This committee has done a good job of doing that in the past, and I hope we will continue to do so today.

Thank you.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON T.A. AMENDMENT (.066) TO H.R. 766
MAY 1, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

This amendment will help to ensure that federal investments in nanotechnology yield optimal results for the American public and the American economy. It will do this facilitating the flow of information and technology from the federal government and research scientist, down to the State level and to the private sector.

During the recent nanotechnology hearing here in the Science Committee, a Board Member of the NanoBusiness Alliance made the suggestion that we need to support technology clusters in order to fuel growth of the nanotechnology industry. I am pleased to say that my home state of Texas, as well as California, and New York already have statewide efforts in place to improve the efficiency of nanotech development. Several other states have recently announced their formation of statewide initiatives in nanotechnology. Obviously, this is an industry of the future. But it doesn't make sense for every state to have to re-invent the wheel when it comes to setting up such nanotech-initiatives.

My amendment will require the Technology Administration at the Department of Commerce to work with states with existing nanotechnology initiatives, and with states that wish to develop such initiatives. They would sponsor a series of seminars on developing nanotechnology hubs and State-led nanotechnology initiatives. These events would bring together researchers, government officials, corporations, industry leaders, start-ups, and other interested parties, who will drive the nanotech-industrial revolution.

The Technology Administration already has considerable expertise in promoting state-led technology development efforts such as this, and promoting technology efforts generally. Currently TA has the Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Technology that supports innovation and technology-promoting partnerships between state and local governments, institutions of higher education, non-profits, and the private sector. That program has been very effective. So, this new project should be successful as well.

As the program progresses, the TA will also maintain an electronic archive of best practices for promoting and developing nanotechnology hubs and State-led initiatives. The archive will help states stimulate growth in this emerging industry, and help propel the United States into a continuing dominant role in nanotechnology research and in developing products and technology to improve human existence.

This amendment will ensure that federal investments yield maximal payoffs. I hope you will support it.

Thank you.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON MINORITY INSTITUTIONS AMENDMENT (.062)
TO H.R. 766

Mr. Chairman,

I am pleased to offer this amendment with my colleague from Oregon, Mr. Wu. I also appreciate the cooperation of you and your staff on development of this amendment.

Nanotechnology will yield great opportunities for America and American industry. Nanotechnology may well dominate our research institutions in a few decades. It is critical that as we kick off this exciting initiative, that we ensure that all institutions with great skills and expertise, that could enable the nano-revolution, are brought to the table. This nation has a rich and diverse system of institutions of higher learning. This Jackson Lee/Wu amendment makes sure that we tap into all the resources that that system has to offer by stating that activities in the new program will include, to the maximum extent practicable, diverse institutions, including Historically Black Colleges and Universities and those serving large proportions of Hispanics, Native Americans, Asian-Pacific Americans, or other underrepresented populations.

This amendment will have other benefits as well. It will ensure that the next generation of leaders in this important emerging field, represent the diverse views and experiences of the American population. This is especially critical in a field such as nanotechnology, with such great potential for impacting our society and culture.

I am pleased that institutions like Texas Southern University, a fine Historically Black University in my district, has already taken a lead on many key issues in their College of Science and Technology. But we must ensure that such programs continue to flourish and produce results.

Again, I thank you for working with me and Mr. Wu on this amendment.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON NANOTECH-DIVIDE AMENDMENT (.063)

MAY 1, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

We live in society where the rift between the haves and the have-nots is becoming increasingly troubling. While we have some of the richest people in the world, we have others who are struggling to make ends meet: without health insurance, living in dilapidated homes, with poor access to good nutritious food or prescription medications.

We are now also seeing that the have-nots are finding themselves on the wrong end of a “technological divide.” As the internet, and other technology, are making many of our lives so much easier and more productive, change has not reached all of our communities. Too many, especially in inner cities like my district, or in rural areas are missing out on the tech revolution.

These people are already fighting to keep up and compete in school, or in the workforce, and the technological divide makes that fight even harder. I do not want advances in nanotechnology to further exacerbate the divide. It seems possible that nanotechnology could bring about spectacular advances in healthcare, or communication—things that we cannot yet even dream of. It would be inappropriate if federal tax dollars, from hard working Americans at all levels of the socio-economic spectrum, ultimately only helped the upper crust.

I am pleased that the underlying bill includes provisions to provide for research into the societal and ethical concerns related to nanotechnology. That research will address many of the concerns I have.

This amendment further helps to ensure that nanotechnology advances bring about real improvements in quality of life for all the American people, not just the select few. It is a small wording change that makes a profound statement of commitment to the well-being of all Americans.

I hope you will support it. Thank you.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
PUBLIC HEALTH AMENDMENT (.065) TO H.R. 1578
MAY 1, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

I would first like to commend my colleague from Colorado, Mr. Udall, for his diligent work on the subject of climate change. The whole world is concerned about the potentially devastating effects of climate change, but it seems the U.S. Congress is lagging behind. Mr. Udall has taken the lead on this critical issue, and the result, H.R. 1578 is an excellent bill. It would lay the groundwork for the next round of climate change research, and ensure that policy-makers and the American people get the answers they need and deserve.

My amendment broadens the scope of and enhances one of the key provisions in this bill. Section 107 provides for a global ‘vulnerability assessment,’ analyzing the vulnerability of different geographic regions to global change, in terms of implications for international assistance, population displacement, and national security.

Changes in climate or human development, could result in huge impacts on communities, and in fact entire cultures. Populations may be forced to migrate great distances to find hospitable land, and the underlying bill provides for research into issues that may arise. But as people move, as temperatures change, as rainfall changes, people could also become subjected to all sorts of different challenges from bacteria, viruses, food shortages, or contaminated water supplies stemming from increased population density.

My amendment adds public health to the list of subjects to be covered by the vulnerability assessment. Having data on public health risks for various regions of the world subject to global change could save countless lives.

This is a logical addition to that assessment. I hope you will support it. Thank you.

STATEMENT

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

ON ABRUPT CHANGE AMENDMENT (.067) TO H.R. 1578

MAY 1, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

Usually when we think of climate change we think of greenhouse gasses that are gradually building up in our atmosphere and slowly causing rises in temperatures, or causing mild yearly increases in the severity of storms. Obviously, that gradual rate of change used to lead some to question whether global warming was a real phenomenon at all. Now we know that the problem is real and we now have developed extremely accurate devices from measuring change, and estimating changes that have occurred in the past.

However, one unexpected finding of global change research, is that sometimes profound changes can occur—very rapidly. Studying weather and weather systems has become one of the classic examples of a “chaotic” or “nonlinear” system. This means that as the input into the system—such as greenhouse gas—rises slowly, in a linear fashion—that climate change can be erratic and come about much faster than one would expect from the rise in greenhouse gas concentration. This is a classic characteristic of complex systems like weather.

It is thought that such nonlinear effects, have led to “abrupt” changes in climate in the history of our planet. Abrupt change is defined as geophysical or biological change that occurs so rapidly or unexpectedly that human or natural systems may have difficulty in adapting to it. Abrupt changes are thought to have caused mass extinctions. It is also thought that such things could happen again. As we are sitting around arguing if the temperature has actually risen a half of a degree this year, we could start getting reports of catastrophe in some vulnerable areas.

One frightening possibility is in Western Europe, where much England, France, and Germany and the nations to the North, are at a similar latitude to Siberia. Whereas Siberia is known for its brutal winters, Europe is known to be more temperate due to the effects of the Gulf Stream. However, some models have predicted that there may be a threshold level of global warming that could cause, all of a sudden, for the Gulf Stream to become unstable, and to just stop, and turn what we know as Western Europe into another Siberian tundra.

We must get a handle on these kinds of issues. My amendment would add an abrupt global change research component to this bill, and require that results from that research get incorporated into developing geophysical models.

It will complement well this already excellent bill. I hope you will support it. Thank you.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

ON ACQUATIC INVASIVE SPECIES ACT AMENDMENT

JUNE 4, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

This is a good bill, and I commend you and Ranking Member Hall for your hard work. This bill will definitely bring protection to our nation's waterways, like in Galveston Bay and the Port of Houston. This amendment simply makes sure that we get the most we can out of our federal research investment, by ensuring that the Act harnesses the power of the diverse pool of excellent colleges and universities in the United States.

All of our major colleges and universities have dual purposes—producing data—and producing the intellectual leaders of tomorrow. As written, this Act will enable our nation’s research facilities to produce scientific data which will guide better policy and procedures and products, that will make our waterways cleaner, clearer for traffic, and more hospitable to the fish and wildlife that are supposed to be there. As an added benefit, much of that research will be done by graduate students and post-doctoral fellows, who will then become the leaders in oceanographic and biological research in the future.

My amendment also has a dual purpose. In the section of the bill establishing the competitive grant program, it adds that the program will include Historically Black Colleges and Universities, those serving large proportions of Hispanics, Native Americans, Asian-Pacific Americans, and other populations underrepresented in the sciences. It will ensure that the research programs we create take advantage of the excellent expertise and experience of these institutions. This will make the science better. Furthermore, it will make it more likely that the future leaders in this exciting field reflect the diversity of this great nation, so that all Americans can benefit from the way we spend their tax dollars.

This amendment will make sure that these great institutions and the young people in them, are included and not excluded from the program we establish here. Mr. Chairman, I understand that my staff has been working with yours on this amendment. I hope you and my colleagues will support it.

Thank you.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
AMENDMENT TO FAA R&D AUTHORIZATION BILL

Mr. Chairman,

My amendment will require the FAA to conduct a research study that could improve safety in U.S. airspace.

Right now, FAA rules require that U.S. commercial airline pilots retire at the age of 60. The reasoning is that as people get older, their mental and physical faculties decay to a level that they pose a safety risk in flight. However, these are the most experienced pilots in the fleet. By FAA rules, they have a comprehensive medical exam twice per year. They have regular tests on state-of-the-art computer flight simulators to make sure their skills are sharp. However, regardless of their experience level, or safety record, or health status—they are forced to give up their careers at the age of 60.

At a time when people are talking of raising the retirement age to 67, when we have brain surgeons and even Presidents serving well into their 70s, pilots are forced to quit on their 60th birthdays. 50 nations around the world have changed their Age 60 rules, or have never had one. When airlines from those countries fly into U.S. airspace, their foreign pilots over the age of 60 are allowed to carry American passengers and fly over our cities.

The scientific basis of the Age 60 rule is weak. My amendment will require the FAA to conduct a research study to determine if those foreign pilots between the ages of 60 and 65 pose a risk to American lives or property. If they do not, the FAA should determine if American pilots should be given the same right to fly and work in America as foreign pilots, by extending their mandatory retirement age to 65.

Nothing in my amendment implies or suggests that pilots who do not pass medical tests, or skills tests, or any other kind of test, cannot be grounded by the FAA. It just requires that the FAA looks into whether pilots become unsafe simply due to their age.

Many groups have supported the idea of changing the Age 60 Rule: the Southwest Airlines Pilot Association as well as the corporation's president Herbert Kelleher, the AARP, and the Organization of Black Pilots (OPAP).

Ironically, I think the Age 60 rule may well deny Americans the safest, most experienced pilots in the nation. Experienced pilots are known to manage complex situations better. Obviously, the Age 60 rule is age discrimination. The question is, "Is that age discrimination necessary to protect the safety of the American people?”

That is the question that this amendment will answer. Foreign pilots over the age of 60 are the perfect test subjects for a research study at the FAA. If they are unsafe, then they should not be flying in our airspace. If they are safe, then other Committees in this body may need to rethink our regulations of American pilots.

I urge my colleagues to support it.

The scientific basis of the Age 60 rule is weak. My amendment will require the FAA to conduct a research study to determine if those foreign pilots between the ages of 60 and 65 pose a risk to American lives or property. The results of that study will be transmitted to Congress in nine months. If those foreign experienced pilots are a risk, we in Congress will need to address that in order to secure our skies. If they are not, the FAA should determine if American pilots should be given the same right to fly and work in America as foreign pilots, by extending their mandatory retirement age to 65.

That is the question that this amendment will answer. The FAA should have ample data already on international accidents and incursions, and on the pilots associated with them. Foreign pilots over the age of 60 are the perfect test subjects for a study of age-related safety issues. If they are unsafe, then they should not be flying in our airspace. If they are safe, then other Committees in this body may need to rethink our regulations of American pilots.

Mr. Chairman, I thank you and your staff for working with my staff to find agreeable language for this amendment. I urge my colleagues to support it as well.

Thank you.

OPENING STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON NASA WORKFORCE BILL
JULY 22, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

I appreciate your commitment to improving NASA, and to America's mission in space in general. I am pleased that we are focusing on the challenges that face NASA, and looking for creative strategies for rejuvenating the aging workforce. However, I associate myself with the remarks of Democratic Ranking Member Hall and Mr. Gordon on the issue of the timing of this markup. Soon we will receive a detailed report from Admiral Gehmen and the Columbia Accident Investigation Board, that will give us not only technical information about what brought down the shuttle, but also comprehensive recommendations for improving the hierarchical structure and communications and management at NASA—in order to improve safety.

Instead of waiting for that report, and learning from it, so that we can put safety first—we are jumping the gun and putting bonuses and “flexibility” above safety. I will offer an amendment later that addresses this safety issue and ensures that we get our priorities back in order.

I wish we could have heard Admiral Gehman’s recommendations before deciding whether to give the Administrator the option of redesigning the workforce. I hope we can work toward rejuvenating the NASA workforce in a way that will enhance safety, in a bipartisan fashion once the CAIB issues its report and hearings here in the Science Committee begin in a couple of months.

Thank you.

STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON MURED AMENDMENT TO NASA WORKFORCE BILL
JULY 22, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

As we look to rejuvenating and restructuring the NASA workforce, I hope we keep in mind an issue that we have all acknowledged and worked to correct in the past: the scarcity of minority employees at NASA, especially in senior management positions.

To address this problem, the Minority University Research and Education Division (MURED) was formed in 1990. The Division was initially placed in NASA's Office of Equal Opportunity, and its Minority University Research and Education Program (MUREP) has been very successful at combating the vast disparity in funding between majority and minority-serving institutions. Funding minority serving institutions ensures that the NASA Administrator will have an excellent pool of diverse candidates to form the NASA workforce of the future.

Recently, MURED, the division, has been eliminated, and MUREP, the research grant program, has been transferred to NASA's Office of Education. I will not today go into the issue of whether the transfer to Education was appropriate. I am pleased to hear that MUREP in its new home, is slated to receive good funding. However, I am concerned that losing Division status, may in the long-run cause this vital and successful program to lose its high profile, and perhaps, its funding in the future.

This amendment will require that the Minority University Research and Education initiative is reinstated with its Division status. Ensuring that future NASA Administrators have a diverse pool of well-qualified workforce candidates to choose from is a critical component of workforce flexibility.

I hope you can support this amendment.

Thank you.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON MINORITY INSTITUTIONS AMENDMENT TO THE
ALGAL BLOOMS RESEARCH ACT

Mr. Chairman,

It is critical that as we kick off this important research initiative, we ensure that all institutions with great skills and expertise are brought to the table. This nation has a rich and diverse system of institutions of higher learning. This amendment makes sure that we tap into all the resources that that system has to offer by stating that activities in the new program will include, to the maximum extent practicable, diverse institutions, including Historically Black Colleges and Universities and those serving large proportions of Hispanics, Native Americans, Asian-Pacific Americans, or other underrepresented populations.

This amendment will have other benefits as well. It will ensure that the next generation of leaders and educators in this field, is as diverse as this great nation.

There has long been a disparity between funding of large universities and smaller institutions, such as HBCUs and other minority serving colleges. This amendment will ensure that our federal research programs are as inclusive as possible, and not exclusive of people and programs that need and deserve support.

I hope you can support it.

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

ON MINORITY INSTITUTIONS AMENDMENT TO THE

EARTHQUAKES RESEARCH ACT

JULY 22, 2003

Mr. Chairman,

I am nothing if not steadfast.

This amendment is very similar to the one I offered in the Algal Blooms bill earlier, and to those I have introduced on several research bills in the past. It ensures that as we design exciting and important research grant programs, that we take advantage of the diverse range of American institutes of higher learning, and include Historically Black Colleges and Universities and those serving large proportions of Hispanics, Native Americans, Asian-Pacific Americans, or other underrepresented populations.

These amendments help harvest the great potential of those institutions, and ensure that the scientific and academic leaders of tomorrow will be culturally and intellectually diverse.

I thank you, and all of my colleagues here on the Science Committee, for consistently supporting these amendments, and confirming the notion that federal dollars should be used to the benefit of all of the American people.

I hope you can support this one as well.

MORATORIUM ON VOLUNTARY SEPARATION INCENTIVE PAYMENTS at NASA.-None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for voluntary separation incentive payments as provided for in subchapter II of chapter 35 of title 5, United States Code unless the Administrator has first certified to the Congress that no skills related to the safety of the Space Shuttle or the International Space Station or to the conduct of independent safety oversight in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would be lost thereby.

Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee will be offering two amendments to the VA/HUD Appropriations bill on the House Floor today. They are modeled after Congressman Ralph Hall's provisions, blocked in the NASA Flexibility markup on Tuesday.

Both amendments will ensure that NASA does not put management flexibility before crew and spacecraft safety.

One prohibits the use of funds for "buyouts" (financial incentives to encourage retirement) until the Administrator assures Congress that the loss of that employee will not compromise the safety of future space shuttle missions or the International Space Station.

The other prohibits the use of funds for planning or actually contracting out NASA duties to the private sector, until the Columbia Accident Investigation Board issues its report, and the Administrator has responded appropriately.

ON VOLUNTARY SEPARATION AMENDMENT TO VA/HUD

APPROPRIATIONS BILL

JULY 25, 2003

Mr. Speaker,

I have always been a staunch supporter of NASA and its manned and unmanned space exploration missions. However, the Columbia disaster and the loss of seven of my neighbors from Johnson Space Center outside of Houston has opened our eyes to some deep seeded problems at NASA that need to be addressed. NASA needs a new culture of safety and a renewed commitment to the well-being of their spacecraft and crew. I am troubled by the fact that on Tuesday of this week, the Chairman of the Science Committee pushed through legislation, urged by the NASA Administrator, that will give the NASA Administrator unprecedented flexibility to reorganize the NASA workforce. The bill was about bonuses, and buyouts, designations, and transfers. The bill was rushed through, over protests from the minority, despite the fact that Admiral Gehman and the Columbia Accident Investigation Board, will be giving us a detailed report next month regarding the cause of the Columbia-7 disaster, and the technical and workforce changes necessary to prevent further losses.

It was only after hard work and pressure from us Democrats, with great leadership from my colleague from Texas, Ranking Member Hall, and my colleague from Tennessee Space Subcommittee Ranking Member Gordon, that some common sense safety provisions were added to that workforce bill. But again, safety seemed to be an afterthought, rather than a top priority in NASA policy.

Two more excellent safety provisions offered by Mr. Hall were blocked by the majority in the Science Committee, and I am concerned that due to long delays in putting forth a NASA re-authorization bill, these provisions might not be able to be put into place in time to prevent loss of lives, or the loss of multi-billion dollar spacecraft, so I hope my colleagues can support their insertion here.

My first amendment will prohibit any funds from being used for “buyouts”-- financial incentives to encourage retirement—until the Administrator assures Congress that the loss of that employee will not compromise the safety of future shuttle missions or the International Space Station.

This amendment will help ensure that we do not put management “flexibility” before safety. I am concerned by reports that NASA may not have given high enough priority to safety and quality assurance in the past. We will learn more about that from the Gehman report later, however, I understand that in some cases there is only a single safety expert responsible for a given project subsection.

Therefore, I am worried that if we give the Administrator flexibility offer to encourage experienced people to retire—we could lose critical knowledge and expertise, and compromise missions in the future.

This amendment will not let that happen. It is a smart and unobtrusive provision. I hope my colleagues can support it.

FLOOR STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
ON OUTSOURCING AMENDMENT TO VA/HUD
APPROPRIATIONS BILL
JULY 25, 2003

Mr. Speaker,

My second amendment prohibits the use of funds for planning or actually contracting out NASA duties to the private sector, until the Columbia Accident Investigation Board issues its report, and the Administrator has responded appropriately.

As I said earlier, Admiral Gehman and the Columbia Accident Investigation Board are slated to issue their report in about one month. They will have extensive requirements and recommendations as to how to safely get our manned space mission back on track. Admiral Gehman has already informed us that only half of his report will be restricted to technical changes needed. The rest will be about management.

There is absolutely no reason to make significant changes in the structure of NASA, its duties, or its workforce, before we hear that report, and respond as necessary. NASA engineers and scientists and program managers have tremendous institutional knowledge and experience. We should not outsource their jobs to the private sector until we are sure that doing so would be prudent.

Again, NASA needs a change of culture. Safety needs to become the priority, not an afterthought. I hope my colleagues can support this amendment.

ON AMENDMENT TO H.R. 912 THE PETE CONRAD ASTRONOMY AWARDS ACT
FEBRUARY 4, 2004

Mr. Chairman,

Again, I strongly support the Pete Conrad Astronomy Act, and commend Chairman Rohrabacher for his leadership in encouraging space exploration. This amendment will simply open up the Pete Conrad Awards to nonimmigrant students.

If we want to reward and encourage the valuable work of amateur astronomers, why should we limit those who qualify for the awards? Young people come from around the world to study at our great colleges and universities. They are often some of the best and brightest from their home countries. They pay high tuitions as international students. They often bring money into our communities. Many study the sciences and math and work hard in our labs, and make big contributions in their fields. I can imagine that such young people might also be the kind of folks that might be of service as amateur astronomers.

We invite these fine young people to our country. They may not be Americans, but they are part of the American community. If they rise to the challenges put before them, I feel they too deserve to be rewarded. I hope you will support this amendment.

Jackson Lee amendment to H.R. 912:

Strike Sec 3(e)(1) and insert:

(e) GUIDELINES.- (1) No individual may receive an award under this Act who at the time the discovery or contribution is not a citizen, a lawful permanent resident of the United States, or a nonimmigrant student under section 101(a)(15)(F).

Rep. Jackson Lee amendment to HR 912

Strike section (e)(1) and insert:

(1) No individual may receive an award under this Act who at the time of the discovery or contribution is not a citizen, a lawful permanent resident of the United States, or a nonimmigrant student under 8 U.S.C. section 1101(a)(15)(F).

Rep. Jackson Lee's request for report language for H.R. 912:

To foster collaborations that lift up all students, a legal foreign student under 8 U.S.C. section 1101(a)(15)(F), or with a "J" exchange visa, will be eligible to receive an award if that student made a significant contribution to a group discovery being awarded, if that group contains a U.S. citizen or legal permanent resident.

Explanation of the Amendment to H.R. 3970 on Community Assistance Grants

This amendment authorizes EPA to establish a grant program to support voluntary partnerships between community groups and local industrial facilities to identify green chemistry and pollution prevention opportunities. Successful partnerships would lead to reduced use and emission of toxic chemicals in the community, better relations between communities and their local industrial facilities, and cost savings for the facility.

The Michigan Source Reduction Initiative undertaken by Dow Chemical, the Natural Resources Defense Council, community activists from Midland, and regional environmental groups led to reduction of chemical releases and waste for the Midland community and cost savings for Dow. The initial pilot project Dow participated in at their La Porte, TX facility demonstrated the value of this type of cooperative project.

This amendment would provide support for voluntary efforts undertaken by people interested in working cooperatively to achieve a cleaner community environment. We know of many confrontations between industrial facilities and community groups that generate a great deal of ill will and result in years of legal battles before environmental benefits are achieved. The process pioneered by Dow and NRDC demonstrates that another approach is possible.

One of the barriers to this type of cooperative effort is the lack of technical expertise available to community groups. The Department of Defense and EPA have similar programs authorized to support community groups involved with Superfund site cleanups and issues related to military bases.

The grant program created by this amendment would enable community groups to obtain technical assistance to work cooperatively with their partner facility. Grants would only be awarded to groups that have established a partnership with a local industrial facility. Grants are capped at $100,000 for any single project (they could run for 2 years or more) and the applicants are required to provide a 20 percent match of federal funds – a condition similar to that in the Superfund technical assistance grants.

We should support and facilitate cooperative efforts to achieve environmental protection and environmental benefits. I urge support for this amendment.

INDUSTRY-COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP AMENDMENT TO

H.R. 3970 THE GREEN CHEMISTRY BILL

MARCH 31, 2004

I have an amendment at the desk.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

This amendment authorizes the EPA to establish a grant program to support voluntary partnerships between community groups and industrial facilities to encourage green chemistry and pollution prevention measures. Successful partnerships would lead to reduced use and emission of toxic chemicals in the community, better relations between communities and their local industrial facilities, and cost savings for the facility. The amendment is modeled after programs that have proven successful in Michigan and Texas.

The initial pilot project took place at Dow Chemical's facility in La Porte, TX. It demonstrated the value of this type of cooperative engagement. The approach was expanded and improved in Michigan, in the "Michigan Source Reduction Initiative." The initiative undertaken by Dow Chemical, the Natural Resources Defense Council, community activists from Midland, and regional environmental groups led to reduction of chemical releases and waste for the Midland community and to a cost savings for Dow.

This amendment would provide support for voluntary efforts undertaken by people interested in working cooperatively to achieve a cleaner community environment. We know of many confrontations between industrial facilities and community groups that generate a great deal of ill will and result in years of legal battles before environmental benefits are achieved. The process pioneered by Dow and NRDC demonstrates that another approach is possible.

One of the barriers to this type of cooperative effort is the lack of technical expertise available to community groups. The Department of Defense and EPA have similar programs authorized to support community groups involved with Superfund site cleanups and issues related to military bases.

The grant program created by this amendment would enable community groups to obtain technical assistance to work cooperatively with their partner facility. Grants would only be awarded to groups that have established a partnership with a local industrial facility. Grants are capped at $100,000 for any single project (they could run for 2 years or more) and the applicants are required to provide a 20 percent match of federal funds – a condition similar to that in the Superfund technical assistance grants.

We should support and facilitate cooperative efforts to achieve environmental protection and environmental benefits. This amendment is a natural extension of the Green Chemistry Act. I urge support for this amendment.

Explanation of Amendment to H.R. 3970 Strike “From sums otherwise authorized”

This amendment is a truth in advertising amendment. H.R. 3970 purports to be a bill to strengthen federal planning and coordination of green chemistry research and development and to that end authorizes appropriations at four agencies.

In each case, the funding authority is couched in language that specifies the amounts provided are from “sums otherwise authorized to be appropriated”. That is, the bill does not authorize any new money, but carves the amounts from existing statutory authorizations. This formulation makes some sense for the National Science Foundation, which has a generous authorization of appropriations in place for each year covered by H.R. 3970.

However, for the other three agencies in the bill, no current authorization of appropriations has been passed into law. While legislation has been moved in the House for the Department of Energy, no general authorization bills are currently on the Committee’s agenda for NIST or EPA. And final enactment for the DOE authorization appears doubtful.

As a result, H.R. 3970 does not actually provide a funding authorization for three of the four agencies in the bill. It is worse than being silent on funding, because then it would be effectively a “such sums as may be necessary” authorization. Under the current language, no funds are authorized until, and unless, a subsequent authorization is enacted.

This amendment simply strikes the phrase “from sums otherwise authorized to be appropriated” for DOE, NIST and EPA. The effect of the amendment is to authorize actual funding for the three agencies to carry out their parts of the green chemistry program.

If the green chemistry program established by H.R. 3970 is worthy of support, it should be given an actual authorization of appropriations. Otherwise it is simply window dressing.

I urge adoption of the amendment.

OPENING STATEMENT
CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE
SCIENCE MARKUP ON “GREEN CHEMISTRY” BILL
MARCH 31, 2004

Mr. Chairman,

I rise in support of this bill that will encourage “green chemistry” and define the federal investment in that important subject. I commend my colleague from Georgia, Dr. Gingrey for authoring a bill that may help focus some of our attention on the need to encourage our schools, and labs, and industries to work toward protecting and preserving our environment. However, I wish that we had had more time to study the bill, to solicit opinions from our constituents and academics, and to work together to improve and enhance the bill. However, I think it is an important subject, so I feel if we work together today in the bipartisan spirit that the Science Committee is known for, we can send an excellent bill to the Floor of the House.

I assume that everyone in this room is “for” green chemistry. It only makes sense that if there are two ways to do something—a harmful way and a non-harmful way—we would all want to choose the non-harmful way. And assuming we agree that it is a responsibility of the federal government to stimulate research and investment in areas that could have a beneficial impact on our nation, I believe we would all agree that we should focus some of the nation’s research energies on green chemistry.

The main question is: how much of our resources should be allocated to program? This is an especially tough question in a budget environment like the one we have today. Massive tax cuts for the rich

The President's latest budget has slashed dozens of research and education programs. I have been very pleased with the bold leadership of the Chairman and Ranking Member of this Science Committee, pointing out that under-investing in science and technology is a grave error. It could jeopardize our position at the front of the world economy, and cost us jobs galore. I feel we need to find money to make investments in growth industries, and green chemistry certainly qualifies.

I am concerned, however, that the bill we are discussing, although well-intentioned, may not make the necessary improvement of investment in the field. Because the bill only draw from funds that have been previously authorized, existing programs will have to be cannibalized, or simply renamed to fit the "green chemistry" label. As important as green chemistry is, I would hate to see it come at the expense of programs at NIST or DOE that we have been fighting for for years. Some of the programs that are to be incorporated into the green chemistry initiative have not even been re-authorized in years, further confusing the matter of funding.

Again, I am a firm supporter of green chemistry. It holds great promise for allowing our economy and standard of living to grow, while protecting our environment. However, hope that we can work together to ensure that it is funded appropriately.

Also, I will be offering an amendment later that will encourage volunteer industry-community partnerships that will lead to reduced use and emission of toxic chemicals in the community, better relations between communities and their local industrial facilities, and cost savings for the facility. The amendment is modeled after programs that have proven successful in Michigan and Texas.

I hope you will support these amendments. Thank you.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 3970 THE GREEN CHEMISTRY BILL
STRIKING “FROM SUMS OTHERWISE AUTHORIZED”
MARCH 31, 2004

Mr. Chairman,

This amendment fixes a technical problem in the bill to ensure that our intention to promote green chemistry will actually get funded as intended. H.R. 3970 purports to be a bill to strengthen federal planning and coordination of green chemistry research and development and to that end authorizes appropriations at four agencies.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 3970 THE GREEN CHEMISTRY BILL
STRIKING “FROM SUMS OTHERWISE AUTHORIZED”
APRIL 1, 2004

Mr. Chairman,

I have an amendment at the desk. This amendment serves the exact same purpose as the amendment I introduced yesterday, that did not get voted on because of the confusion before we recessed. I am surprised that you could not have just called for a vote on my amendment as it was written yesterday. But I have changed a couple of words to satisfy the needs of the Committee. However, the purpose and principle remain unchanged.

This amendment fixes a technical problem in the bill to ensure that our intention to promote green chemistry will actually get funded as intended. H.R. 3970 purports to be a bill to strengthen federal planning and coordination of green chemistry research and development and to that end authorizes appropriations at four agencies.

Under the current language, no funds are authorized until, and unless, a subsequent authorization is enacted. It seems inappropriate for an authorizing committee to be calling for appropriation of unauthorized funds.

This amendment simply strikes the phrase "from sums otherwise authorized to be appropriated" for DOE, NIST and EPA. The effect of the amendment is to authorize actual funding for the three agencies to carry out their parts of the green chemistry program.

If the green chemistry program established by H.R. 3970 is worthy of support, it should be given an actual authorization of appropriations. Otherwise it is simply window dressing.

I urge adoption of the amendment.

STATEMENT

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

ON JACKSON LEE AMENDMENT TO MANUFACTURING

TECHNOLOGY COMPETITIVENESS ACT OF 2004

JUNE 16, 2004

Mr. Chairman,

My amendment will ensure that already-tight funding of the vital Manufacturing Extension Partnership (MEP) program is not wasted on an unnecessary “re-competition” process. I ask unanimous consent to enter a letter into the record from the US Department of Commerce

CFO to Chairman Judd Gregg of the Senate Appropriations Committee. It explains the Administration plan to force all MEP centers to re-compete for funding. It seems that section 5 of the bill before us today is meant to enforce that bad re-competition idea by putting MEP programs on probation if they have not received a positive evaluation, and then making them re-compete for funding or get closed. Perhaps that sounds smart at first glance, but the fact is that MEP grants are already awarded on a highly-competitive basis, and ongoing funding is already subject to continual review.

Currently, P.L. 100-418 (passed in August 23, 1988) requires each Center to be evaluated during the third and sixth years and every two year thereafter by a panel of experts. Moreover, Section 290.8 (Reviews of Centers), Part 290, Title 15 of the Code of Federal Regulations mandates the conduct of periodic year reviews of Centers by a Merit Review Panel.

NIST has established specific guidelines, “The MEP Periodic Panel Reviews: Purpose and Overview.” The purpose of this NIST review is to: 1) Ensure Program Accountability, 2) Promote Continuous Improvement; and 3) Contribute to Intra-MEP System Knowledge Sharing. The guidelines go as far to state, “The results of the review process should provide NIST MEP with information needed to help with the decision as to whether to continue Federal funding for the reviewed Center.” In the case of a negative review, there may be another Follow-up Review that would be in addition to any regularly scheduled Panel or Annual Review.

Given the rigor of the current review process, I’m not certain what this section is trying to fix. This Committee has held no hearings on the MEP Center review process, nor has any Member brought this issue up with the Administration representatives during any hearings we have had. I would note that as recently as our budget hearing which included Phil Bond Undersecretary for Technology, who has responsibility for MEP, not one Member questioned Undersecretary Bond about the MEP review process or perceived problems with it.

This section fixes a problem that doesn't exist. The obvious question is "why is it there?" It seems that it is simply enabling the long-term goal of the Administration to scale back this program, and ultimately to zero-it-out. When our economy is struggling to get back on track, and so many American workers remain either unemployed or underemployed, this is the wrong time to cut a program so valuable for stimulating productivity in our small businesses and industries.

The Department of Commerce's recent suggestion that all centers throughout the country face re-competition will destroy an effective national infrastructure that has taken 14 years to build and will reduce services to manufacturers.

Officials from the MEP center in Texas have explained that having to re-compete will cause them to halt services for 45-60 days so that their small over-burdened staff can evaluate needs and complete applications. If we start to tinker with this successful program, manufacturers and MEP Centers will be reluctant to initiate projects for fear that Centers may not exist to complete projects. This break in productivity will waste taxpayer dollars and serve no one.

MEP is widely recognized for its effectiveness and efficiency. It has been recognized by the National Academy of Public Administration, was a finalist for Harvard University's Innovations in American Government award, and fared well in OMB's PART analysis.

The people of Texas have seen the benefits of the MEP program. Just one example is Garrett Metal Detectors of Garland, Texas, manufacturers of security and hobby metal detectors. There was tremendous demand for metal detectors after the 9/11 attacks, but their small business couldn't compete in the world market. So, they came to the Texas Manufacturing Assistance Center (TMAC). Following a tour of Garrett's manufacturing facilities, TMAC identified major improvement strategies for the Company's production assembly. The Garrett/TMAC team significantly improved product flow and implemented Lean Manufacturing techniques. Overall production increased 35% between 2001 and 2003, as they reduced required floor space by 33%. This extra efficiency enabled them to become a leader in the field and to increase their work force by one-third. And we are all safer for it—all for a very small initial federal investment of less than $17,000.

I understand that the Administration wants to re-compete the Centers and that they have felt the MEP system needs to be reformed. However, no outside group supports the Administration's "reforms". The Administration has advocated terminating the MEP for three years. Touting their support for the MEP, the FY05 budget request would cut MEP funding by two-thirds which in essence guts the nation-wide MEP system. This Committee has maintained a position that the MEP required sufficient funding to maintain the existing network of MEP Centers. That will require $106 million.

The provisions in Chairman Ehlers bill are not fixing any known problem with the MEP review process. Indeed they could be interpreted as supporting the Administration's attempts to re-structure the MEP network and in order to justify cutting the program's funding.

This language should be stricken from the bill and we should specifically state that funds should not be wasted on a needless re-compete. I hope you will support this amendment.

Amendment to H.R. 3598 by Ms. Jackson Lee Manufacturing Center Evaluation

Amendment Description

The underlying bill allows a general re-competition of all MEP centers should the appropriated level fall below $106 million in any fiscal year. Ms. Jackson Lee's amendment would strike the Department's authority to re-compete all the MEP centers.

Amendment Justification

- Currently, P.L. 100-418 (August 23, 1988) requires each Center to be evaluated during the third and sixth years and every two years thereafter by a panel of experts. Moreover, Section 290.8 (Reviews of Centers), Part 290, Title 15 of the Code of Federal Regulations mandates periodic reviews of Centers by a Merit Review Panel.
- NIST has established specific guidelines, "The MEP Periodic Panel Reviews: Purpose and Overview". The purposes of this NIST review are to: 1) ensure program accountability, 2) promote continuous improvement; and 3) contribute to intra-MEP system knowledge sharing. The guidelines state, "The results of the review process should provide MEP with information needed to help with the decision as to whether to continue Federal funding for the reviewed Center." In the case of a negative review, there may be a follow-up Review in addition to any scheduled Panel or Annual Review.
- Given the rigor of the current review process, I'm not certain what this language is trying to fix.
- The Science Committee held no hearings on the MEP Center review process, nor has any Member brought this issue up with Administration witnesses during any Committee hearings. In the recent Science Committee hearing with Commerce Undersecretary Phil Bond, no Member questioned Bond about the MEP review process or perceived problems with it.

- Despite the rigor of the current review process, the Administration wants to re-compete the Centers and contends that the MEP program needs to be reformed. The Administration's recommendations have been strongly discounted by outside groups; no outside group supports them.
- One must view the Administration's desire to re-compete Centers with some skepticism, given that this Administration has advocated terminating the MEP for three years. The FY05 budget request would cut MEP funding by two-thirds, which in essence would gut the nation-wide MEP system.
- In summary, the provisions in H.R. 3598 do not fix any known problem with the MEP review process. I would interpret them as supporting the Administration's attempts to re-structure the MEP network in order to justify cutting the program's funding.
- This language should be stricken from the bill. We should not be making changes to a successful program without the necessary oversight which identifies a known problem and then attempts to address this problem.

ON ENERGY BILL MARKUP

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 610
“ENERGY RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, DEMONSTRATION, AND COMMERCIAL APPLICATION ACT OF 2005”

FEBRUARY 10, 2005

Chairman Boehlert, Ranking Member Gordon,

Today, I offer an amendment to H.R. 610 – the Energy Research, Development, Demonstration, and Commercial Application Act of 2005 – as part of the En Bloc amendments presented by Mrs. Biggert.

My amendment requires the Secretary of Energy to arrange for an assessment of how well the current voluntary consensus standards related to buildings reflect the latest technologies for the design, construction, operation, repair, and renovation of high performance buildings. Included in this assessment are recommendations on how to accelerate the development and promulgation of voluntary consensus standards for high performance buildings. Based on this assessment, the Secretary is required to provide technical assistance and grants to support standards development organizations in the revision of existing standards to reflect current knowledge of high performance buildings and the issuance of new standards dealing with issues unaddressed in the existing building standards.

Voluntary Consensus Standards (VCS) serve as the foundation of the United States’ standardization system and its distinctive infrastructure. These standards are developed by a wide range of stakeholders – including consumer and labor interests, organizations, industry, and government at all levels and all jurisdictions, whether federal, state or local. VCS effectively and efficiently provide technical guidance on the production and operation of a wide array of materials, products, and services across a multitude of industry sectors without burdensome government intervention.

For nearly 100 years, the voluntary consensus standards system has helped to create a standards development community consisting of diverse private and public sector interests. The robust working partnerships that now exist among all nationally interested parties have led to the development of tens of thousands of voluntary consensus standards for the United States, the effective representation of U.S. needs and viewpoints in regional and international standards-setting activities, and the minimization or elimination of overlap and duplication in standards-setting activities.

I believe that the amendment that I offer today will help to catalyze the development of future building codes and construction practices that will lead to buildings which are not only more energy efficient and economical to operate, but which also incorporate the appropriate homeland security technologies and resistance to natural disasters such as earthquakes, floods, and hurricanes.
