Dear Friend,

As you may know, the Supreme Court recently heard arguments regarding the constitutionality of President Obama's health care law. At issue are key Constitutional questions, including whether Congress has the power to force Americans to buy health insurance. I believe that this clearly exceeds Congress's authority, as it marks the first time that Americans have been required to purchase something, simply because they are Americans. We will not learn the Court's verdict until this summer, but I'm interested in your thoughts on this important issue. Please share your thoughts by taking the survey below.
