China: List of Political Prisoners
Detained or Imprisoned as of October 7, 2009
(1,279 cases)

- This document, published by the Congressional-Executive Commission on China (CECC) concurrently with the publication of the Commission's 2009 Annual Report, contains information on political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned in China. Cases are listed according to the date of detention in descending order, placing the most recent detentions first. The PPD was created and is maintained by the CECC and is accessible and searchable by the public at ppd.cecc.gov.
- As of October 7, 2009, the PPD contained information on a total of 5,196 cases of political or religious imprisonment in China. Of those, 1,279 are cases of political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned, and 3,917 are cases of prisoners who are known or believed to have been released, executed, or to have escaped.
- The CECC notes that there are considerably more than 1,279 cases of current political and religious imprisonment in China. The CECC works on an ongoing basis to add cases of political and religious imprisonment to the PPD.
- An increase in the number of cases included on successive CECC prisoner lists indicates that new cases have been added to the PPD—but it does not indicate that all of the new cases are of detentions that took place since publication of the previous CECC prisoner list.

List does not include all Tibetan detentions on or after March 10, 2008, or Uyghur detentions on or after July 5, 2009.

Further details about the case, including the charges against Abdukadir Mahsum and his current whereabouts, are not known.
2009-00395	DET	association/speech	Han	Wang Chengming	枉成明					M	46	PSB?	2009/09/30	Sichuan (general location)		Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD), police in Luzhou city, Sichuan province, took rights defender Wang Chengming into custody on September 30, 2009. Wang, a signatory of Charter 08, has advocated for Liu Xiaobo's release, as well as for marginalized groups in China. In 2009, he established the "Chinese Vulnerable Groups Rights Defense Alliance" on the Internet. In addition, Wang has written a number of essays critical of the Chinese government's human rights violations. Wang's wife, Zhu Xiaofang, reportedly stated that she thought his detention was related to October 1, 2009 -- the 60th anniversary of the PRC.

According to CHRD, Chongqing rights defender and petitioner Zhong Shengniu was seized by Beijing authorities on September 25, 2009, and taken to a black jail along with Chongqing petitioner Bai Zhongmei. On September 27, officials from Zhong's place of residence, Qijiang city, Chongqing municipality arrived at the Beijing black jail to take Zhong back to Qijiang. Zhong reportedly said that the Qijiang authorities handed the black jail operators more than 10,000 yuan as "payment" for not reporting to relevant authorities the fact that Zhong was petitioning in Beijing. As of September 29, Zhong was being held at a farm in Qijiang, guarded by three individuals, who told him that he would not be released until after October 15. CHRD surmises that Zhong's detention is connected to the 60th anniversary of the founding of the PRC on October 1.

Authorities alleged they had "leaked" information on the case. Haji Memet, a relative of Shohret Tursun, had earlier been quoted by RFA as calling for an inquiry into Shohret Tursun's death. Abdusalam Nasir provided his cell phone to Shohret Tursun's father, who was interviewed by RFA about his son's death. Authorities are reportedly pursuing a third person connected to the case. Haji Memet and Abdusalam Nasir reportedly served 8- and 6-year prison sentences starting in 1997 for "splittism." Haji Memet and Abdusalam Nasir are believed to be held at the Huocheng county PSB detention center. Further details about their cases are not known.

According to Radio Free Asia, the whereabouts of Web site administrator Muhammetjan Abdulla have been unknown since police in Beijing took him away in mid-July, 2009. Muhammetjan Abdulla was a journalist in the Uyghur division of China National Radio and was also an administrator for the Web sites Uyghur Online and Selkin. In July, authorities placed the founder of Uyghur Online, Ilham Tohti, in home confinement after a Xinjiang official said the Web site contributed to incitement of rioting in Urumqi, Xinjiang, on July 5. After being released from home confinement, Ilham Tohti reported that the whereabouts of some other staff at Uyghur Online, including Muhammetjan Abdulla, were unknown. According to Ilham Tohti, Muhammetjan Abdulla's disappearance may be connected to a personal blog he maintained. Ilham Tohti surmised that someone may have posted an announcement on the blog calling people to demonstrate on July 5. Further details about Muhammetjan Abdulla's case are not known.

According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD) and the China Human Rights Lawyers Concern Group (CHRLCG), seven domestic security protection officers from the Beijing Public Security Bureau (PSB) took legal scholar and co-founder of Open Constitution Initiative (OCI) Xu Zhiyong into custody on July 29, 2009. On August 13, while Xu in custody at the Beijing No. 1 Detention Center, he was arrested for tax evasion. On August 14, Xu had his first meeting with lawyers Zhou Ze and Li Fangping. Xu's detention came shortly after authorities forced the closure of OCI (Gongmeng), a legal research and assistance organization that promoted rule of law and human rights, purportedly for alleged tax problems. On July 17, the Beijing Bureau of Civil Affairs raided the OCI office and declared it an "illegal" organization. Police have also taken OCI's chief financial officer, Zhuang Lu, into custody. Xu was released on bail on August 23, 2009.

Zhuang is the manager of finances at the Open Constitution Initiative (OCI) (also known as Gongmeng), which was shut down on July 17 purportedly for alleged tax problems. OCI is a prominent not-for-profit legal research and assistance organization, known for taking on "sensitive" cases and issues. Around the same time that Zhuang Lu was taken into custody, police also detained Xu Zhiyong, legal scholar and co-founder of OCI. As of August 18, Zhuang, like Xu, had reportedly been formally arrested for "tax evasion." Zhuang was released on bail from the Beijing No. 1 Detention Center on August 22, 2009.

Tashi Rabten, pen name Te'urang, studied at Northwest University for Nationalities, located in Lanzhou city, the capital of Gansu province, and was due to graduate in 2010. He was the editor of a literary magazine, Shar Dungri (Eastern Snow Mountain), which authorities had banned, and the author of a book, Written in Blood, that focused on issues such as democracy and the wave of Tibetan protests that began in March 2008. He had distributed about 400 of 1,000 copies of the book when authorities banned it. According to an RFA source, Tashi Rabten is held at the Aba prefecture detention center. Information about criminal charges against him, if any, is not available.

Yonten Gyatso, about 40 years old and a native of Dege county, Ganzi (Kardze) Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province, ran along the track in the Changdu sports stadium as he displayed and distributed leaflets calling on Tibetans to "protest for the cause of Tibet," according to an RFA source. The leaflets provided Yonten Gyatso's name. Tibetans who had gathered in the stadium cheered him on, and when "a convoy of police vehicles rushed to the scene with sirens blaring," a "melee" ensued and Yonten Gyatso escaped. Security officials detained him on July 21. No details are available about Yonten Gyatso's place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against him.

Fujian Province	According to CHRD and Radio Free Asia, rights defender Wu Huaying was detained on July 1, 2009, in Fuqing city, Fujian province. Wu, Fan Yanqiong, You Jingyou, and others were detained in connection with their Internet postings of information in the case of Yan Xiaoling, a young woman who died in 2008 under mysterious circumstances following an alleged sexual assault. Fan allegedly posted an essay titled "Yan Xiaoling, Compared to Deng Yujiao, 10,000 Times More Tragic," and Wu and You allegedly reposted the essay. The writings alleged official misconduct in covering up criminal activities in Yan's death. The three were initially detained on suspicion of defamation but on July 31 authorities in Fuzhou city, Fujian, arrested them and changed the crime to "making false charges," which carries a heavier sentence. Officials initially claimed the case involved state secrets and denied the three access to their lawyers. Wu is reportedly held at the Fuzhou No. 2 Detention Center.

He reportedly was in possession of a cloth "painted with the colors of the Tibetan flag," and a banner with which to wrap himself upon which he had written slogans calling for Tibetan independence, the Dalai Lama's long life, and for "China" to leave Tibet. First he ran toward a public market area and shouted slogans similar to those on the banner. Then, as he walked toward the Changdu PSB office, police detained him. Students from the same school went to the police station to demand their classmate's release and threatened to protest. Police refused their demand. Lobsang Nyandrag is held at the Changdu detention center. Information is not available about criminal charges, if any, against him.

(general location)		Fujian Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, authorities in Fujian province detained human rights activist Fan Yanqiong on June 26, 2009, after she posted articles online accusing local authorities of cover-ups and misconduct in the death of Yan Xiaoling, a 25-year old woman from Minqing county, Fujian. Fan's articles alleged that Yan was raped and murdered by men connected with county officials and that authorities were neglecting to criminally investigate the case due to these connections. On June 28, police in Fuzhou city, Fujian, detained Chen Huanhui, a petitioner who helped Fan post the articles, and his wife Xue Yun. Authorities detained Chen on suspicion of "libel". Fan is being held at the Fuzhou City Mawei District Detention Center. Police did not present a warrant for Fan's detention. On June 29, they confiscated two computers, bank deposit books, and 300 copies of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and Declaration on Human Rights Defenders from Fan's home.

According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders and Radio Free Asia, authorities in Chongqing municipality detained Chen Yang in Chongqing on June 3, 2009. Chen and his friends reportedly had discussed wearing white and lighting candles on June 4 to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the Tiananmen protests. Chen had also signed Charter 08, a document released in December 2008 calling for improved human rights and political reform. The police sent to detain Chen claimed they were inspecting individuals with household registrations (hukous) outside of Chongqing. Chen's hukou is for Jiangsu province. When authorities did not produce documents supporting their actions, Chen refused to leave his residence. On June 19, the Chongqing People's Government Reeducation through Labor Management Committee sentenced Chen to one year of RTL for "obstructing official business." Chen is currently being held at the Jiangbei District Renhe RTL Center in Chongqing.

2009-00248	DET	speech/6489		Wu Gaoxing	吴高兴					M		PSB	2009/05/30	Zhejiang (general location)		Zhejiang Province	According to Human Rights in China and Chinese Human Rights Defenders, police in Taizhou city, Zhejiang province, took freelance writer Wu Gaoxing from his home and seized his computer on May 30, 2009. Wu's detention came about an hour after an open letter he and five others signed was made public and days before the 20th anniversary of the 1989 Tiananmen protests. The letter, addressed to President Hu Jintao and other Chinese leaders, sought economic redress for those imprisoned in the protests. In 1989, officials sentenced Wu, then a teacher, to two years in prison for leading student protests in Zhejiang. The open letter said ex-prisoners had no regular jobs, pensions, or medical insurance. Wu had also joined thousands of Chinese citizens in signing Charter 08, a document calling for human rights and political reforms. The charges against Wu are not known and police reportedly provided no documents for Wu's detention. CHRD reported on June 11 that Wu was still detained in Zhejiang.

Authorities said that Luo publicly attacked the Communist Party and Chinese government in his poems. Starting in early 2009, Shaoguan authorities questioned Luo about two poems that were aired on the overseas New Tang Dynasty television station and Luo's participation in Charter 08, a document released in December 2008 that called for political reform in China. Shaoguan domestic security officers reportedly secretly apprehended Luo while he was vacationing in Chengdu city, Sichuan province on May 20, 2009. He had also been planning commemorations of the 20th anniversary of the Tiananmen protests. Luo previously served three years of RTL from 2001 to 2004 for "opposing the Party and socialism." He is being held at the Shaoguan RTL Center.

Sichuan Province	The Chengdu Intermediate People's Court in Sichuan province conducted the trial of writer and environmental activist Tan Zuoren on August 12, 2009, on the charge of inciting subversion of state power. The conduct of the trial reportedly was marred by official abuses and procedural violations. The court reportedly rejected requests by Tan's lawyers to call three witnesses, and did not allow reporters into the court. The indictment charged Tan with a number of offenses, including distorting the Party's handling of the 1989 Tiananmen protests, contacting a 1989 student leader now in the United States, and giving interviews to foreign media after the May 2008 Sichuan earthquake that harmed the image of the Party and government. Following the earthquake, Tan had been active in calling for the government to investigate the cause of the large number of school collapses. He began his own investigation and had published preliminary results before his detention in March 2009.

Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD), public security officers in Chengdu detained rights activist Zeng Rongkang on March 20, 2009, for allegedly "gathering crowds to disturb social order." His detention related to a February 23, 2009 protest at the Chengdu Intermediate People's Court, in which many aggrieved citizens demonstrated demanding justice. According to CHRD, Zeng is highly regarded among Chengdu petitioners and has engaged in citizens' rights defense (weiquan) work for a long time. At least four other individuals -- Huang Xiaomin, Xing Qingxian, Lu Dachun and Yan Wenhan -- were arrested for "disturbing social order" following the February 23 protest. CHRD further reported that the police told Zeng that they considered him the primary culprit in the February 23 protest and would therefore deal with him harshly. Authorities formally arrested Zeng on April 1, 2009, and he is currently being held at the Chengdu Municipal Detention Center.

Sichuan Province	According to a March 15, 2009, Radio Free Asia (RFA) report, on March 11-12 and March 14-15, Tibetan "youths" staged small, peaceful political protests in the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province. Security forces maintained a "massive" security presence at the time due to a series of sensitive dates (e.g. March 10 and March 28). On March 11, three teenage females, two of whom RFA identified as Choetso (age 16) and Tsering Wangmo (17), scattered leaflets and shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence and the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet. Approximately 50 security officials detained the three girls and took them away in a van. Two young Tibetan males, Sonam and Dawa Tsering, staged similar protests in the Ganzi county seat on March 12 and March 14 respectively. The RFA report implied, but did not state, that the boys were detained. Information is not available about the juvenile protesters' place of detention or whether their families have access to them.

On March 2, the domestic security protection unit of the Jinniu District Public Security Bureau in Chengdu formally detained Xing on suspicion of disturbing public order. His detention may be related to information he gave to foreign media regarding recent clashes between police and Chengdu residents. One involved a resident resisting a forced demolition; the other involved a protest over court rulings in which residents chained themselves together. In 2003, Xing was fired from a railroad company after joining with workers to seek overtime pay. He has provided legal advice to workers and recently joined a volunteer group in Chengdu called Rights Defense in Action. He is currently being held at the Chengdu PSB Detention Center in Pixian County.

After interrogation authorities criminally detained Huang. Huang had served as a judge at the Tumuxiuke Court, within the Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps, and had earlier been in the army in Qinghai province. While in the army, Huang had been involved in nuclear testing. A 2007 government notice mandated that dismissed soldiers who were involved in such activity be given medical tests and benefits for resulting damage to their health. In 2008, Huang led 17 army veterans to the Bureau of Civil Affairs and complained that this notice had not been implemented locally. The bureau recognized that the notice was applicable to Huang's group, but they have so far received no testing or benefits. Huang is currently being held at Tumuxiuke Detention Center in Bachu county, Kashgar municipality.

On April 12, 2007, the same court had sentenced Hou to 3 years in prison (suspended for 4 years) on the same charges for petitioning in Beijing. Hou continued petitioning while serving the period of suspension and left Changsha 6 times without reporting to the PSB. At the request of the Furong PSB, the Furong District People's Court established a council to reexamine the case and rescinded Hou's suspension. Because Hou had served 11 months and 16 days in prison prior to the 2007 sentence, her new sentence expires on February 9, 2011.

Mao Hengfeng is a long-term petitioner who first spoke out against government abuses in 1988, when she sued her employer after being fired for refusing to have an abortion. Between 1990 and 2004, Mao was repeatedly committed to psychiatric institutes for launching appeals against the government. From April 2004 to September 12, 2005, Mao served reeducation through labor. She was placed under house arrest from February 13 to March 29, 2006 after joining a nationwide hunger strike. On May 24, Shanghai authorities detained her for allegedly violating house arrest rules, charged her on June 30, and convicted her of "intentional destruction of property" on January 12, 2007, for breaking a lamp in the hostel where she was being held. Mao served her 2.5-year sentence at the Shanghai Women's Prison and was released in November 2008. Mao was reportedly beaten and stripped naked. Shanghai police placed Mao under administrative detention on January 12, 2009 for "shouting slogans in public."

Region	According to a November 17, 2008, International Campaign for Tibet (ICT) report, on October 31 PAP officers detained 81 year-old Paljor Norbu in Lhasa, the capital of the Tibet Autonomous Region. Paljor Norbu headed a family-run business located in Lhasa's Barkor neighborhood that for generations has printed Buddhist texts for monasteries, according to the report. PSB officials closed down the business after Paljor Norbu's detention and removed a substantial number of wooden printing blocks. (Seizing the printing blocks may suggest that authorities suspected him printing banned religious texts.) Police had not informed Paljor Norbu's family of his location as of ICT's report date. An ICT source reported that Paljor Norbu has been imprisoned previously and that he already may have been sentenced to imprisonment. It is unlikely, however, that a case would proceed from detention to sentencing by a court in less than three weeks. The CECC has no record of Paljor Norbu's prior imprisonment.

According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, Wang Lianxi served 18 years in Beijing No. 2 Prison for setting fire to military vehicles during the Tiananmen protests in June 1989. His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment (and then reduced again), reportedly because of mental disabilities. While Wang was in prison, his parents passed away, his wife divorced him, and his home was demolished. Upon his release from prison in July 2007, Wang was alone, with nowhere to go. His original neighborhood committee arranged for his lodging at several different locations and provided him with a meager stipend to buy food and daily necessities. On July 3, 2008, however, Wang was swept up in the pre-Olympics "clean-up" of "undesirables" in Beijing and held involuntarily in the Xiaocheng Xiang hospital. On October 10, 2008, he was transferred to the Beijing Ping'an Psychiatric Hospital, where he remains in confinement against his will.

Zhou, a U.S. permanent resident, was secretly held in Shenzhen for at least 6 months, apparently at two locations--Shenzhen No. 1 Detention Center and Yantian District Detention Center. Sometime during April or May of 2009, authorities transferred Zhou to Suining city, Sichuan province. On May 8, Zhou's family in Suining was informed that he had been arrested under suspicion of fraud. Some activists have reported that Zhou's arrest is likely linked to the upcoming 20th anniversary of the Tiananmen protests. Zhou was imprisoned for 2 years after June 4, 1989 for his role in the protests. In exile in the U.S. since 1993, Zhou served a 3-year RTL sentence after his first attempt to re-enter China in 1998. The Pan-Blue Alliance is an Internet-based coalition founded in 2005 to support Sun Yat-sen's principles and democracy in China. Wei was reportedly initially placed under 15-day administration detention for disturbing public order, then later criminally detained on suspicion of inciting subversion. On August 26, 2008, the Hangzhou RTL Committee sentenced Wei to 21 months reeducation through labor for "gambling and soliciting prostitutes." CHRDL reported that the charge related to a card-playing incident in 2004, for which Wei paid a fine. Boxun reported that Wei's detention may be linked to his attendance at the trial of Lu Gengsong, a freelance writer sentenced to four years in February 2008, and Wei's publication of an essay about the trial.

Du Daobin	杜导斌					M		chg/tri/sent	2008/07/21	Wuhan (general location)	3	Hubei Province	According to China Daily and Radio Free Asia, the Xiaogan Intermediate People's Court in Hubei province sentenced essayist Du Daobin to three years in prison on June 11, 2004, for inciting subversion. The sentence was suspended for four years. The court found that Du wrote and posted 26 articles on the Internet to incite subversion, and had accepted fund from overseas organizations. Du appealed, and the Hubei High People's Court upheld the sentence on August 4, 2004. Under Chinese law, the period of a suspended sentence starts from the date the judgment is made final. Du's wife said the suspended sentence was set to expire on August 3, 2008. On July 21, 2008, police in Yingcheng city, Hubei, detained Du, saying he violated the terms of his suspended sentence by publishing more than 100 articles overseas, leaving his home, and receiving visitors without prior approval. BBC reported that the Xiaogan court reinstated Du's original sentence. Du is serving his sentence at the Wuhan Prison.

On July 18, Huang was arrested for illegal possession of state secrets. He had visited the Sichuan earthquake zone and wrote about collapsed schools and posted parents' appeals on his Web site, 64tianwang. In February 2009, the Wuhou District People's Court in Sichuan postponed Huang's trial after it violated criminal procedure law by giving only one day's notice of the trial date. The court held his closed trial on August 5. Authorities reportedly kidnapped a person to prevent him from testifying on Huang's behalf. Huang suffers from numerous medical conditions, but authorities reportedly have refused to treat him. The conditions include two tumors in Huang's abdomen, hepatitis B, an irregular heartbeat, and two lumps in his left breast.

Monks Loyang and Tenzin Ngodrub of Tsitsang Monastery chanted slogans calling for the Dalai Lama's long life and return to Tibet, and the release of all political prisoners. The monks also called for the release of Phurbu Tsering, whom Tibetans regard as a reincarnated teacher (trulku) associated with Kardze Gepheling Monastery. According to an RFA report, on May 18 or 19 officials detained Phurbu Tsering, also the head and founder of Pangri Nunnery, possibly for refusing to cooperate with patriotic education instructors. According to a December 2008 RFA report, the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced Tenzin Ngodrub to three years' imprisonment. Information is not available about the criminal charge, sentence date, and place of imprisonment.

Sichuan Province	Based on TCHRD and ICT reports, on May 14, 2008, at least 50 Pangri Nunnery nuns (Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province) staged a protest march to local government offices. The nuns were angered by patriotic education campaigns and demands to denounce the Dalai Lama. They shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence, the Dalai Lama's return, and his long life. PSB and PAP detained the nuns en route, beating some. On May 18, officials detained Phurbu Tsering Rinpoche, a Tibetan reincarnated teacher who founded and headed the nunnery. He may have refused to cooperate with patriotic education instructors, RFA reported. On April 21, 2009, the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court put Phurbu Tsering on trial for illegal weapons possession, AP reported. His lawyer, Li Fangping, said that Phurbu Tsering denied the charges and claimed that he was framed. A pistol and cartridges allegedly found under Phurbu Tsering's bed were not sourced or checked for finger prints, Li said.

The court cited four essays Zhang posted on the alliance's Web site that it said attacked socialism and the people's democratic dictatorship. The essays had been posted on "reactionary" overseas Web sites and had been read or commented on by more than 2,500 people. The court also cited Zhang saying he published the essays because he believed China should transform politically and have a multi-party system. The court did not provide any evidence that Zhang advocated violence. In his defense, Zhang claimed he was exercising his right to free speech. Officials detained Zhang on May 16, 2008, and formally arrested him on June 20. PAP and PSB officials blocked them at a bridge on the town's outskirts. Nuns Dorje Khadro, Pema Lhamo, and Tagdron breached the security barrier and at approximately 9:00 AM began to protest and shout slogans near the county government offices. Security officials beat and detained the nuns. The TGiE reported that Gaden Choeling nuns Yeshe Choetso, Gyalga Lhamo, Deyang, and Choetso staged another protest near the government offices at 4:00 PM the same day. Security officials detained them. In January 2009 the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced Pema Lhamo to 3 years in prison, TCHRD reported in February. Officials may have transferred her to a prison near Chengdu city. Details are not available about the charges and legal proceedings against Pema Lhamo.

A large number of People's Armed Police and public security officials blocked the nuns at a bridge on town's outskirts and prevented them from proceeding farther. TCHRD reported that nuns Dorje Khadro, Pema Lhamo, and Tagdron breached the security barrier and at approximately 9:00 AM they began to protest and shout slogans near the county government offices. Security officials beat and detained them. The Tibetan government-in-exile reported that Gaden Choeling nuns Yeshe Choetso (or Yiga), Gyalga Lhamo, Deyang, and Choetso staged another protest near the government offices at 4:00 PM the same day. Security officials detained them. No information is available about the nuns' place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against them.

Authorities alleged that Chen "spread rumors" regarding a proposed chemical plant near Chengdu. Chen's formal arrest came on June 13. Days before he was detained, Chen published an article on a foreign Web site saying construction of the plant should be halted for environmental reasons. According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, on November 5, the Chengdu Intermediate People's Court tried Chen for "inciting splittism." On November 21, the court sentenced Chen to three years for "inciting subversion," citing online articles he wrote supporting the Tibetan protesters but making no mention of his role in protesting the chemical plant. Chen is serving his sentence at the Chuangzhong Prison in Nanchong city, Sichuan.

Chen and others sought to organize an independent union to represent 12,000 unemployed oil field workers. In February 2008, the group submitted a document to the local state-run union seeking advice. Police later questioned him and kept him under surveillance. In early April, Chen authorized the CRLW to publish the document, which was reported on by foreign media. After his detention, Chen was charged with leaking state secrets in interviews with foreign media. Two other representatives were detained for 10 days on the same charge. Chen's charge was later changed to inciting a disturbance and disrupting public order. On May 6, the Songyuan RTL Committee sentenced Chen to 18 months reeducation through labor. He is currently held at the Baicheng City RTL Center in Jilin.

Sichuan Province	Based on an August 2008 Tibetan government-in-exile (TGiE) report and background information in March 2008 Radio Free Asia (RFA) and TGiE reports, security officials in Yajiang (Nyagchukha) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province, detained six Othog Monastery monks who staged a peaceful protest in support of a group of Sera Monastery monks who protested in central Lhasa on March 10 and were detained that day. According to the March RFA and TGiE reports, there was protest activity in the Othog on March 15. The Othog monks are Lobsang Jamphel (age 46), Lobsang Jamphel (age 36), Lobsang Jamyang, Lobsang Jampa, Gyaltsen Norbu, and Thongga. No information is available about the monks' date of detention (likely to have been soon after their protest), their place of detention, or criminal charges, if any, against them. Othog (or Thegchen Jangchub Choeling Monastery) was established by Tenzin Deleg, a Tibetan teacher detained in 2002 and currently serving a sentence to life imprisonment.

Migmar Dondrub distributed CD-ROMs and leaflets prepared by Wangdu that incited "splitting the nation" and a "Tibetan people's uprising." The court "verified" that the "the Dalai Clique" told Wangdu to establish the group, the report said. Prior to and after the March 14 Lhasa protests and rioting, the men allegedly "collected intelligence touching upon the security and interests of the state," which Wangdu sent to "the Dalai clique." The court convicted Wangdu and Migmar Dondrub of "espionage" (Criminal Law, Art. 110) and Phuntsog Dorje and Tsewang Dorje of "illegally sending intelligence abroad" (Art. 111). Details about their place of imprisonment are unavailable. Tsewang Dorje's sentence is 8 years.

Officials formally arrested him on April 26 for "inciting splittism," a crime under Article 103 of China's Criminal Law. The Diqing Intermediate People's Court convicted him on October 27 and sentenced him to 3 years in prison. The verdict said that on March 16-18 (after Tibetan protests started on March 10) Gonpo Tserang "used the Internet and a mobile telephone to send inflammatory email and text messages that distorted the facts and true situation regarding social stability" to persons outside China. The Yunnan High People's Court rejected his appeal on January 5, 2009. Gonpo Tserang is from Ruo'ergai county in Aba T&QAP, Sichuan province, an area where Tibetans staged a number of protests following March 10, 2008.

Police detained filmmaker Dondrub Wangchen on March 26 in Tongde county, Hainan TAP, Qinghai, and his assistant Jigme Gyatso (a Labrang Tashikhyil monk) on March 23, possibly in Linxia Hui Auto. Pref., Gansu province. The men filmed 108 Tibetans, most of whom chose to speak on camera without concealing their identities. The film left China before police detained the men. The documentary, featuring 20 of the Tibetans, debuted in August 2008. According to a Phayul report, on October 15 officials released Jigme Gyatso from a Linxia city detention center where he was tortured. TCHRD reported that security officials returned him to detention on March 10, 2009.

Qinghai Province	According to Tibetan Centre for Human Rights and Democracy and Tibetan government-in-exile reports, on March 22, 2008, several hundred Tibetans staged a peaceful protest in Jianza (Chentsa) county, Huangnan (Malho) Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Qinghai province. The protestors displayed a banned Tibetan flag, images of the Dalai Lama and Gedun Choekyi Nyima (the Panchen Lama identified by the Dalai Lama), and shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence, the release of the Panchen Lama, and the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet. Prominent Tibetan Buddhist leaders persuaded the protestors to disperse near the county government headquarters before security forces took action against them. On March 23, security officials detained four Tibetans in connection with the protest, including farmers Sherab, Tabo (or Kardru), and Gonpo (or Kopa Tseten). No information is available about their place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against them.

According to TCHRD, TibetInfoNet, China Digital Times, and the TGIE, protests took place in Xiahe on March 14 and 15, when Labrang Tashikhyil Monastery monks led protest marches joined by ordinary Tibetans. Protestors marched toward county government offices and shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence and the Dalai Lama's long life until security forces fired weapons into the air and tear gas to disperse the demonstrators (TCHRD). Authorities detained protestors during the two-week period after the incident. Xinhua reported rioting during protests on March 14-19 in six Gannan counties, including Xiahe. Details are not available about Rintang's protest activity, his place of detention, and charges, if any, against him.

Sichuan Province	Based on a TCHRD prisoner list and a TCHRD report, on March 20, 2008, 2 days after a peaceful political protest, security officials detained at least 4 monks of Achog (Amchog) Monastery, located in Amchog township, Hongyuan (Marthang) county, Aba (Ngaba) Tibetan and Qiang Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province. The list described the detained monks as "youths:" Jamyang Toetin, Jamyang Tsondul (or Tsondru), Lhundrub Yonten, and Lhundrub Phuntsog. On March 18, "scores" of Achog Monastery monks joined by Tibetan laypersons formed a group of more than 100 persons and marched to the township government offices. The protesters replaced a Chinese flag with a Tibetan flag and shouted slogans calling for the Dalai Lama's return and Tibetan freedom. After PSB officials failed to disperse the protesters, PAP troops arrived and "quelled" the protest. No information is available about whether officials released the four monks, their place of detention, or criminal charges, if any, against them.

According to China Aid Association (CAA), public security officials detained Shi Weihai, a Protestant house church leader and owner of a Christian bookstore, and the Beijing Municipal People's Procuratorate formally authorized his arrest on March 19, 2008. Authorities accused him of illegally printing and distributing Bibles. Shi was detained on November 28, 2007 on a similar charge, but due to "insufficient evidence" authorities released Shi on bail on January 4, 2008. On June 10, 2009, the Beijing Haidian District People's Court sentenced Shi to three years in prison and fined him 150,000 yuan (US$21,960) for operating a business illegally. Public security officials have reportedly pressured Shi's family to refrain from appealing his sentence. Shi is diabetic, and CAA reported that Shi has had bouts of poor health while in detention. Authorities have denied his lawyers' requests for medical parole.

(Xinduqiao)	3	Sichuan Province	According to a December 2008 Radio Free Asia (RFA) report, on an unspecified date security officials detained four Tibetans, Pema Deshe, Tashi Palden, Goga, and Zangpo, for taking part in a March 18, 2008, political protest demonstration in the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province. The detentions may have taken place on the day of the protest. According to a March 2008 TCHRD report, security personnel opened fire on the protesters, resulting in Tibetan fatalities and injuries. Officials held the men in Ganzi county for 3 months then transferred them to a detention center in Xinlong (Nyagrong) county for six months, RFA said. Authorities beat the men severely in both counties. RFA reported that the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced the men to 3 years in prison (date and charge unknown). Relatives believe the men are held in a prison in Kangding (Dartsedo) county, or in a more distant prison.

2008-00331	DET	ethnic/religion	Tibetan	Adrel				Tibetan Buddhist	trulku	M		PSB	2008/03/16	Sershul PSB Det. Ctr?		Sichuan Province	According to TCHRD and China Digital Times (CDT) reports, security officials in Shiqu (Sershul) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province, detained a total of nine monks of Dza Bonpo Monastery (or Oenpo, Onpo), on March 16, 18, and 31, 2008. Officials detained Adrel Rinpoche (a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher, or trulku) on March 16 and Trinley Namgyal on March 18 after (according to a Phayul report) People's Armed Police surrounded and sealed off the monastery. The PAP action followed a March 10 protest in Lhasa that included several Dza Bonpo monks who were studying at Sera Monastery. On March 31 (April 1, according to CDT) officials detained herdsman Yiga and seven Dza Bonpo monks (Lobsang Dondrub, Lobsang Yangphel, Sonam Nyima, Thubten Tsering, Sopal, Paldor, and Wudor) for protesting against the demands of a patriotic education team to denounce the Dalai Lama. No information is available about the detainees' place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against them.

Authorities reportedly accused him of inciting and supporting the protests. No information is available about his place of detention. Ngawang Namgyal, a former monk of Drepung Monastery, previously served 2 years and 11 months of a 3-year sentence following detention on March 6, 1988. Authorities accused him of instigating a boycott by Drepung monks of a religious ceremony the previous day. Chinese officials reportedly organized the ceremony to show that conditions in Lhasa were "normal" following protests in Lhasa in September and October 1987. Ngawang Namgyal's brother is Ngawang Phuljung, a Drepung monk sentenced to 19 years' imprisonment in 1989 for "founding a counterrevolutionary clique," "inflammatory agitation," and "seriously undermining state security." Ngawang Phuljung was released six months early on October 18, 2007.

Migmar Dondrub distributed CD-ROMs and leaflets prepared by Wangdu that incited "splitting the nation" and a "Tibetan people's uprising." The court "verified" that the "the Dalai Clique" told Wangdu to establish the group, the report said. Prior to and after the March 14 Lhasa protests and rioting, the men allegedly "collected intelligence touching upon the security and interests of the state," which Wangdu sent to "the Dalai clique." The court convicted Wangdu and Migmar Dondrub of "espionage" (Criminal Law, Art. 110) and Phuntsog Dorje and Tsewang Dorje of "illegally sending intelligence abroad" (Art. 111). Details about their place of imprisonment are unavailable. Migmar Dondrub's sentence is 14 years.

Shijiazhuang native Chen, age 43, claims that local police have protected the person responsible for the 2004 death of his father. Chen has petitioned in Beijing several times and has subsequently been detained for brief periods several times. Official documents obtained by Boxun provide evidence that the Shijiazhuang RTL Management Committee sentenced Chen to 18 months' reeducation through labor (RTL) for "disturbing social order." Chen's appeal at a March 25 hearing was rejected, and his family was informed of the sentence on June 4, 2008. He is serving his sentence at the Shijiazhuang RTL Camp.

In April, it was reported that authorities had sentenced Zheng to two years reeducation through labor, although the sentence date and reasons for it are not known. She had been collecting signatures for the release of activist Hu Jia and on February 18 authorities prevented her from traveling to Beijing to express support for Hu and other political prisoners. Police have kept her husband under surveillance and warned her family not to speak about the case. Zheng has been detained numerous times in the past, and served two years from 2004 to 2006 after petitioning in Beijing and planning a march in Tiananmen Square. She was reportedly tortured in prison and suffered reduced vision as a result. She is serving her sentence at the Tianjin City Dagang District Women's RTL Center and is reportedly going blind.

Police claiming to be conducting a routine check of household registration knocked on Zeng's door. When he opened the door, they searched the apartment and confiscated computers and Falun Gong documents. The Rongcheng District People's Court tried Zeng on February 26, 2008, and sentenced him on March 24 to 5-years in prison. The written judgment claimed that Zeng produced Falun Gong materials. Zeng previously served 2-years of reeducation through labor from 2000 to 2002 for organizing Falun Gong practitioners to travel to Beijing to appeal to central authorities. After 2002, authorities detained him several times during sensitive periods. His last known place of detention was Jieyang. No information is available about his current place of imprisonment.

Guangdong Province	Civil Rights & Livelihood (CRL) reported that Shenzhen domestic security protection officers took away Xiao Qingshan, a labor activist based in Dongguan, Guangdong province, on May 14, 2009, when he was protesting to commemorate the June 4th. Earlier, the CRL reported on Xiao's disappearance on his way from Jiangxi to Beijing on March 1. Authorities reportedly attempted to block Xiao's travel to Beijing for petitioning. According to Boxun, the Dongguan Public Security Bureau placed Xiao under detention in the Dayou Detention Center in the town of Dayou, Dongguan, on October 13, 2007, for his activities to collect wages on behalf of migrant workers. Authorities reportedly beat Xiao before sending him to the detention center. During Xiao's detention, wardens reportedly forced him to work in a factory, including at night. Xiao's request to see a doctor for a stomachache after drinking unclean water was denied. Authorities released Xiao after he completed the 10-day detention.

The monk asserted that Tibetans do not have freedom of religion or else they would be able to display images of the Dalai Lama in homes and monasteries. He said that despite government claims of economic development, local Tibetan nomads face problems making a living. He expressed concern about cases of detention of Tibetan protestors in Litang, including Ronggyal Adrag, and shouted a slogan calling for the Dalai Lama's long life. Security officials detained him at the end of the session. TCHRD reported in July 2009 that on or about July 3, 2009, the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced Jamyang Tenzin to three years in prison. Region	According to Radio Free Asia (RFA) reports, security officials in Dingri county, in Shigatse (Rikaze) prefecture, TAR, detained Penpa, a local businessman, in early December 2006. A source told RFA that police searched Penpa's residence and confiscated audio recordings of the Dalai Lama conducting a Buddhist teaching in India. The source told RFA that police also confiscated sheep and goats that Penpa "saved from the butchers," or that were old or sick animals that other Tibetans gave to Penpa so that he could care for them. Buddhists believe that saving animals from slaughter or suffering creates spiritual benefits. Local Tibetans believe that Penpa saved and cared for the animals in an effort to create spiritual benefits that he believed could help the Dalai Lama live a long life, according to an RFA source. A Shigatse court sentenced Penpa in February to three years' imprisonment on an unknown charge, according to RFA. Authorities transferred him to Nyari Prison, near Shigatse city.

Yuan Weijing	袁伟静				teacher, English	F	30	PSB-house?	2006/11/28	Shandong (general location)		Shandong Province	Yuan Weijing, wife of imprisoned legal advocate Chen Guangcheng and mother of two small children, has been placed under surveillance in her home village of Dongshigu, in Linyi city, Shandong province, since August 2005. The Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CRD) reports that Yuan and her husband were targeted by authorities after assisting in a lawsuit that challenged government abuses in Linyi. Their first report documented the extensive use of violence by local officials in implementing population planning policies, and was published in June 2005. According to CRD and Radio Free Asia, local police took her in for questioning and issued an order authorizing her house arrest on November 28, 2006, one day after her husband's retrial for "intentional destruction of property" and "gathering people to disturb traffic order." The order accuses Yuan of the same two crimes. Authorities lifted the order on May 27, 2007, but reportedly continue to monitor her movement and interactions.

Chen Qian	陈签					M	56	chg?/tri?/sent?	2006/11/09	Guangdong (general location)		Guangdong Province	According to Citizens Rights Net and the Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders, Chen Qian was targeted by the government for his activism on behalf of villagers in Shanwei city, Guangdong province, where local officials reportedly authorized paramilitary police to fire on a crowd of land protestors in December 2005. Chen, a villager of Dongzhou, had his land requisitioned by a village committee, but received no compensation in exchange. Officials from the Honghaiwan Public Security Bureau took him into custody on November 9, 2006, as he was hanging an anti-corruption banner in public. Xinhua said that he had been held for assaulting a village committee official. Chen's detention sparked a clash between villagers and police on November 10, and resulted in the hostage-taking of eight officials. Authorities refused to negotiate, instead announcing on November 16 that they had sentenced Chen to prison. The government's charge, length of Chen's sentence, and prison location are unknown.

Ctr.	4	Zhejiang Province	On August 16, 2007, the Hangzhou Municipal Intermediate People's Court in Zhejiang province sentenced Internet essayist and China Democracy Party (CDP) member Chen Shuqing to four years for "inciting subversion of state power," a crime under Article 105, Paragraph 2, of the Criminal Law. According to Minsheng Guanacha, the Zhejiang Provincial High People's Court affirmed the original ruling on appeal on October 29 in a closed hearing. Chen's sentence stems from his online criticism of the Chinese government. Hangzhou police detained Chen on September 14, 2006 and arrested him on October 17. In December, police submitted Chen's case to the procuratorate and on March 2, 2007 the procuratorate remanded the case for supplementary investigation. Article 138 of the Criminal Procedure Law requires that such decision be made within a month and a half after the police submit the case. Chen was being held at the Hangzhou PSB Detention Center, but expected to be moved to a prison in January.

Radio Free Asia and the Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders reported he took part in a long-standing campaign to demand compensation from the government and oppose continued construction. The official government account said that in early December 2005, he and over 100 others seized control of a local wind farm at the behest of fellow villagers Huang Xijun, Huang Xirang, and Lin Hanru. Paramilitary police fired into the crowd on December 6 and detained him shortly thereafter. Over a dozen detainees were tried on May 22, 2006, and sentenced on May 24 for illegally manufacturing explosives, illegal assembly, and disturbing public order. Some detainees received suspended sentences and have since been released on probation. Huang's sentence is unknown.

Lu Jianhua	陆建华					M	45		2005/04/dd	Yancheng Prison	20	Hebei Province	According to the Information Centre for Human Rights and Democracy and Radio Free Asia, the Beijing No. 2 Intermediate People's Court sentenced Chinese Academy of Social Sciences researcher Lu Jianhua to 20 years in prison for "leaking state secrets." Lu's closed trial was held on August 16, 2006. He was represented by a court-appointed lawyer after his request to hire his own counsel was denied. Lu was detained in April 2005 in Beijing. Lu's case was connected to the case of Ching Cheong, a Hong Kong journalist for the Singapore Straits Times. Chinese authorities released Ching in February 2008 after he served almost two years of a five-year sentence for passing state secrets to a Taiwan foundation. Lu allegedly provided Ching with copies of President Hu Jintao's internal speeches. Both reportedly conducted research on China's policy towards Taiwan. According to a Dui Hua report based on official Chinese information, Lu is currently imprisoned at Yancheng Prison in Hebei province.

According to Human Rights in China (HRIC) and a court decision dated December 21, 2005, the Chongqing No. 1 Intermediate People's Court sentenced Xu Wanping to 12 years in prison for joining the banned China Democracy Party (CDP), assisting with CDP organizational activities, and distributing articles on the Internet that criticized the leadership of the Communist Party. The court convicted Xu of subversion of state power. HRIC reports that Chinese authorities detained Xu on March 30, 2005, and formally charged him on May 24. They denied Xu access to his family and legal counsel during his detention, failed to open Xu's trial to the public, and refused to provide a copy of Xu's indictment. Xu previously served eight years in prison for his participation in the Tiananmen democracy protests, and was sentenced in 1998 to three years of reeducation through labor for disturbing public order. His sentence was reduced by one year in August 2008, according to Dui Hua.

Region	According to Radio Free Asia and Dui Hua, Xinjiang authorities detained Nurmemet Yasin on November 29, 2004, after the Kashgar Literature Journal published his story "Wild Pigeon" in late 2004. The story tells of a caged bird who commits suicide rather than live without freedom. Authorities apparently read the story as an allegorical criticism of Chinese policy in Xinjiang. Authorities accused Yasin of "inciting racial hatred or discrimination," and on February 2, 2005, the Bachu (Maralweshi) County People's Court sentenced Yasin to 10 years' imprisonment for "inciting splittism," a crime under Article 103 of the Criminal Law. On July 14, 2005, the same court sentenced Korash Huseyin, editor of the Kashgar Literature Journal, to three years' imprisonment for "dereliction of duty" for publishing Yasin's story. The Kashgar Intermediate People's Court upheld Yasin's sentence on appeal on March 17, 2005. Yasin is currently held at Xinjiang No. 1 Prison.
2004-05482	DET	speech	Han	Shi Tao	师涛				journalist, newspaper	M	36	chg/tri/ser-nt	2004/11/24	Deshan Prison	10	Hunan Province	The Changsha Intermediate People's Court in Hunan province sentenced poet and journalist Shi Tao to 10 years' imprisonment on April 27, 2005, for disclosing state secrets to foreigners, a crime under Article 111 of the Criminal Law. The court found that Shi, then editorial director of Contemporary Trade News in Hunan, was informed at an editorial meeting about a secret Communist Party and government order. Reporters Without Borders said the order warned journalists about reporting during the 15th anniversary of the Tiananmen democracy protests. Shi e-mailed his notes about the order to the U.S.-based online newspaper "Democracy Forum." The Hunan High People's Court rejected Shi's appeal on June 2, 2005. Shi's conviction was based in part on evidence provided by Yahoo!'s China office. In November 2007, Yahoo! agreed to pay his family's legal expenses. Shi was detained on November 24, 2004, and arrested on December 14. He is currently serving his sentence in Deshan Prison in Hunan.

According to Human Rights Watch, farmers rights advocate Li Guozhu was detained in Beijing on November 12, 2004. Li, a former officer in the Heilongjiang prison management bureau, works as a volunteer with a grassroots advocacy group in Beijing (Sanchun Dadi) and had recently been researching ethnic violence in Zhongmo county, Henan province. HRW reports that after investigating the unrest, Li offered assistance to victims and sent information and photographs to foreign journalists. According to the Taipei Times, Li reported a much higher death toll from the unrest than that reported by official Chinese sources. Li has also recently been involved in helping farmers in Heilongjiang petition the government on land disputes. According to the HRW report, Li was detained in Beijing. No further information about his current status is available.

The organization members included Li Jianfeng, Lin Chan, Lin Shuncheng, Lin Shunhan, Zhan Gongzhen, Zheng Xiaohua, and Huang Xiangwei. They applied for a registration in 2000, but it was denied. In January 2001, they were accused of forming an illegal labor union and of downloading materials from the Internet and compiling them into a book entitled "Labor Unions." The defendants were also accused of stockpiling firearms and training members to shoot out the windows of the office of the court's chief judge. But no evidence to substantiate the latter charges was made public. They were tried on subversion charges in October 30, 2003. According to Dui Hua, Lin Shun'an was sentenced to eight years in prison.

He was sentenced to 10 years in prison on May 30, 2002 by Dazhou Intermediate People's Court. He was first detained in December 2000 when he led a march of China Democracy Party members, carrying signs demanding the unconditional release of the leaders of a steel workers protest that had occurred in November 2000. In early 2004, a reporter from the Epoch Times conducted a telephone interview with Deng Yongliang to discuss Wang Sen's condition. According to Epoch Times, he has diabetes, and his weight has declined from 140 pounds to 90 pounds. Along with Hu Mingjun, Wang was transferred to a different prison in order to avoid interaction with a planned United Nations Human Rights Commission visit in March 2004. He is currently held in Chuanzhong prison.

Li was accused of downloading 500 articles from overseas Web sites, printing and compiling them into 10 volumes, and contacting "reactionaries" overseas. Reporters Without Borders described the articles as "pro-democracy" texts. Li was detained on April 14, 2001, formally arrested on April 22, and tried in May. The International Press Institute said that Li "took part in dissidents' signature-collecting activities and appealing on behalf of sentenced dissidents." He is serving his sentence in Linxia Prison in Gansu.

Su Zhimin	苏志民			Catholic (unreg. church)	bishop	M	65	PSB?	1997/10/08	Hebei (general location)		Hebei Province	According to the Cardinal Kung Foundation, James Su Zhimin was arrested in March 1996 while, with Francis An Shuxin, he led a procession of Catholics to a Marian shrine near the village of Donglu in Hebei. The bishop (unregistered) of Baoding, Hebei, Su escaped the following month, went into hiding, and wrote an open protest letter to the National People's Congress. He was captured on October 8, 1997. Though Su has been the object of frequent American and international inquiry, the Chinese government has provided no information about him, and indeed claims that it has not taken any "coercive measures" against him. On November 15, 2003, the then 71-year-old Su was sighted at a hospital in Baoding, where, under heavy guard, he was undergoing an eye operation and treatment for a heart ailment. Since then he has disappeared again. His case has been connected with that of An Shuxin, his auxiliary bishop.

Officials formally arrested Dawa Tsering on October 12, and indicted him on March 18, 1998 on the charge of splittism (but not on a charge of causing an explosion). He confessed to putting up the posters and setting off the explosion, which did not cause serious damage. The Lhasa Intermediate People's Court sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment for splittism on September 4, 1998. According to a TCHRD report, Chamdo native Dawa Tsering left his job and joined others in Lhasa to spread information about Tibetan history and independence. He claimed full responsibility before the court in order to lessen punishment for another detainee. He is believed to be serving his sentence in Qushui Prison.

Based on information from official Chinese sources in the Dui Hua Official Registry and from unofficial reports, Chinese security officials detained Chen Yong, a worker and resident of Tangshan city in Hebei province, in June 1989. Chen allegedly attacked a security official during the 1989 pro-democracy demonstrations. Authorities charged Chen with "counterrevolutionary assault," a crime eliminated by the 1997 revision to the Criminal Law. The Beijing Intermediate People's Court sentenced Chen on December 8, 1989, to life imprisonment, which was subsequently reduced to a fixed-term sentence of unknown length on appeal. On June 1, 2009, Human Rights in China reported that, as of May 2009, Chen was imprisoned in Qincheng Prison in Beijing. Available information about the prisoner's alleged activity is inadequate to determine the level of violence, if any, involved. Charges of "counterrevolutionary" crime always entail a political component that can hinder objective assessment.

Region	Lobsang Tenzin, a Tibet University student, joined a political protest in Lhasa on March 5, 1988, and was one of five Tibetans charged in the death of a police officer who fell from a window during the incident. In January 1989, he was sentenced to death with a 2-year reprieve for pre-meditated murder. In January 1991, his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and in April 1993 to a fixed term of 20 years. In March 1991, he and another prisoner attempted to hand a letter on human rights to U.S. Ambassador James Lilley when he visited Drapchi Prison. Both prisoners were beaten, put into isolation cells, and then transferred to Pome Prison, where Lobsang Tenzin's health was very poor. According to a co-defendant who fled to India after his release from prison, the men were repeatedly beaten and tortured. Lobsang Tenzin was moved to Qushui Prison, near Lhasa, in July 2005. His sentence will end on April 26, 2013. This record includes data from Dui Hua and Tibet Information Network.

Lin Youping	林佑平				bus. staff, shop ass't	M		chg/tri/sent-app	1983/mm/dd	Fuzhou (general location)	20	Fujian Province	According to the Committee to Protect Journalists, Dui Hua, and Reporters Without Borders, store employee and journalist Lin Youping is currently serving a life sentence in Fuzhou city, Fujian province, after being charged with counterrevolutionary propaganda and incitement, a crime eliminated by the 1997 revision to the Criminal Law. In September 1982, Lin along with fellow journalists Chen Renjie and Chen Biling, published a document entitled Freedom Report (Ziyou Bao) and distributed 300 copies in Fuzhou. In July 1983, authorities arrested the three men and accused them of working with spies in Taiwan and publishing counterrevolutionary material. Chen Biling was sentenced to death and executed. Authorities sentenced Chen Renjie to life in prison. The Fuzhou Intermediate People's Court sentenced Lin to death in August 1983 but granted him a two-year reprieve, according to Dui Hua. The Fujian High People's Court rejected Lin's appeal in August 1983.
