Fees Charged for Asylum Applications by States Parties to the 1951 Refugee Convention

by the Staff of the Global Legal Research Directorate

SUMMARY This report surveys laws related to asylum granting procedures in 147 countries that are States Parties to the 1951 U.N. Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees and/or its 1967 Protocol. It identifies fees charged to applicants in connection with an application for asylum. According to the research findings, the vast majority of countries do not charge a fee for applying for asylum. Some countries require the payment of fees for obtaining the relevant temporary or permanent protection visa (Australia, Canada, Fiji, New Zealand), although waivers or exemptions may apply. Other countries may charge more indirect fees, such as reimbursement of costs for food and accommodation in detention facilities (Czech Republic, Hungary), issuance of identification documents (Iran), translation of documents (Liechtenstein), a mandatory health examination (Russia), or reexamination of the petition (Switzerland). For some countries, no definite answer could be provided because no legislation or other relevant information was located; for such countries the chart indicates “no information located” in the second column. In some instances, implementing legislation was located but no information regarding fees was found; for these countries the chart indicates “no fee located” in the second column. Countries that are States Parties to the 1967 Protocol only are identified by an asterisk.
