the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. HENSARLING, from the Committee on Financial Services, submitted the following

R E P O R T

together with

MINORITY VIEWS

[To accompany H.R. 4545]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Financial Services, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 4545) to amend the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council Act of 1978 to improve the examination of depository institutions, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Introduced by Representative Tipton on December 4, 2017, the “Financial Institutions Examination Fairness and Reform Act” amends the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council Act of 1978 to establish deadlines within which regulatory agencies must hold exit interviews and issue final examination reports to financial institutions. The bill would also provide supervised financial institutions the right to have material supervisory determinations reviewed by a newly created Independent Examination Review Director within the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council (FFIEC).

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Currently, federal law mandates a process to appeal regulatory determinations including examination results. In 1994, to promote fairness and transparency in examinations, Congress directed the federal regulators of financial institutions to establish an “independent intra-agency appellate process” by which an institution could seek review of certain regulatory determinations, including (1) examination ratings, (2) adequacy of loan loss reserves, and (3) classifications of loans significant to the institution.¹ Collectively, these determinations are known as “material supervisory determinations.” Each federal financial regulator has instituted its own unique process for appeals of material supervisory determinations.

The Committee has heard testimony that the intra-agency review to appeal material supervisory determinations provides financial institutions with limited opportunities to challenge, that the appeals process is not impartial, and that to either appeal or oppose examination findings incurs retaliation from regulators.

In a letter of support for H.R. 4545 dated December 6, 2017, the American Bankers Association wrote:

H.R. 4545 establishes clear standards by giving supervised financial institutions the right to have material supervisory determinations reviewed by an independent Examination Review Director to ensure the consistency of all examinations. The legislation would also ensure that financial institutions receive timely examination reports that include full documentation of the information the regulators used to make their determinations; would create an expedited process for banks to appeal examination decisions; and would impose safeguards to ensure institutions do not improperly use the review process.

This legislation takes a major step toward a more balanced and transparent approach regarding regulators’ decision-making during the examination process.

On December 12, 2017, the Independent Community Bankers Association wrote in support of H.R. 4545, stating:

H.R. 4545 would create an Office of Independent Examination Review within the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council (FFIEC) and give financial institutions a right to an expedited, independent review of a material supervisory determination before the Office’s Director . . .

. . . Taking the appeals process out of the examining agencies is a positive step. While not completely independent of the agencies the FFIEC is composed of each banking agency we expect that this level of separation between the appeals process and the agencies will provide a measure of distance and insulation.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATES

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following is the cost estimate provided by the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, February 12, 2018.

Hon. JEB HENSARLING,
Chairman, Committee on Financial Services, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Stephen Rabent.

Sincerely,

KEITH HALL,
Director.

Enclosure.

H.R. 4545—Financial Institutions Examination Fairness and Reform Act

Summary: H.R. 4545 would establish the Office of Independent Examination Review within the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council (FFIEC). The new office would investigate complaints from financial institutions about examinations, regularly review the quality of examinations, and adjudicate appeals of determinations made within examinations.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4545 would increase net direct spending by $82 million and reduce revenues by $41 million over the 2018–2027 period. In total, CBO estimates, enacting H.R. 4545 would increase budget deficits by $123 million over the 2018–2027 period. Implementing H.R. 4545 would not affect spending subject to appropriation.

Because enacting the bill would affect direct spending and revenues, pay-as-you-go procedures apply.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4545 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits by more than $2.5 billion in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 4545 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA). If financial regulators increase fees to offset some of the costs of implementing the bill, H.R. 4545 would increase the cost of an existing mandate on private entities required to pay those fees. Using information from the affected agencies, CBO estimates that the incremental cost of the mandate would fall well below the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($156 million in 2017, adjusted annually for inflation).

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary effect of H.R. 4545 is shown in the following table. The costs of the legislation fall within budget function 370 (commerce and housing credit).

Basis of estimate: For this estimate, CBO assumes that H.R. 4545 will be enacted near the end of fiscal year 2018. Estimated spending is based on historical patterns for similar regulatory activities.

Background

The FFIEC was established to promote uniformity in supervision of financial institutions. Generally, the majority of its operating costs are borne by four financial regulatory agencies: the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA), and the Federal Reserve System. Some costs currently are covered by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Of the regulators, the OCC, the FDIC, and the NCUA collect fees to offset operating costs. Because of lags between the time costs are incurred by some of the financial regulators and when additional fees would be imposed, not all additional costs resulting from the bill would be recovered within the next 10 years. Costs borne by the CFPB are recorded in the budget as direct spending because the agency has permanent authority to spend amounts transferred from the Federal Reserve. Finally, costs incurred by the Federal Reserve would reduce remittances to the Treasury (which are recorded as revenues).

Currently, the FFIEC is supported by 16 people who are employed by the regulatory agencies but assigned to the council.

Office of Independent Examination Review

CBO expects that establishing the new office would require a significant increase in the council's staff. Using information from the FFIEC, CBO estimates that an additional 60 staff positions would be needed to meet the bill's requirements to investigate and resolve appeals and to review examination procedures. Under H.R. 4545, the costs of the office would be covered by the OCC, the NCUA, the FDIC, the CFPB, and the Federal Reserve. CBO expects that it would take several years to reach the new staffing level and that the costs would be spread evenly among the five regulatory agencies.

Based on the average cost for each employee of $225,000, CBO estimates that establishing the office would cost $192 million over the 2018–2027 period to supply the FFIEC with additional people and to cover other operating expenses. That amount reflects some savings to the regulators because a portion of the complaints they receive under current law would instead be handled by FFIEC. CBO estimates that 80 percent of the net cost, or $154 million, would be spread equally among the FDIC, the OCC, the NCUA and the CFPB—increasing gross direct spending by that amount.

Three of those regulators collect fees to offset operating costs. CBO estimates that over the 10-year period, additional fees collected from financial institutions would total about $76 million. On net, CBO estimates, enacting H.R. 4545 would increase direct spending by $78 million over the 2018–2027 period.

The remaining 20 percent of the costs would be charged to the Federal Reserve (see “The Federal Reserve” below).

Other administrative costs

H.R. 4545 also would establish deadlines for the federal banking regulators to complete examination reports. Using information from those agencies, CBO estimates that they would need to hire additional staff to meet the deadlines established in the bill, at an estimated net cost of about $4 million over the 2018–2027 period. That cost accounts for anticipated increases in fee collections during the period.

The Federal Reserve

Because the Federal Reserve remits its profits to the Treasury, increasing the costs of operating the Federal Reserve reduces federal revenues. CBO estimates that the portion of the costs to establish the Office of Independent Examination Review that would be allocated to the Federal Reserve, combined with additional administrative costs to meet deadlines established under the bill, would average about $4 million per year over the 2018–2027 period. CBO estimates that revenues would decline by $42 million over the next 10 years under H.R. 4545.

Pay-As-You-Go considerations: The Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 establishes budget-reporting and enforcement procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or revenues. The net changes in outlays and revenues that are subject to those pay-as-you-go procedures are shown in the following table.

Increase in long-term direct spending and deficits: CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4545 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits by more than $2.5 billion in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

Mandates: H.R. 4545 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA.

If financial regulators increased fees to offset some of the costs of implementing the new activities of the FFIEC, the bill would increase the cost of an existing mandate on private entities required to pay those fees. Using information from the affected agencies, CBO estimates that the incremental cost of the mandate would amount to no more than $25 million over the 2018–2022 period and would fall well below the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($156 million in 2017, adjusted annually for inflation).

The rules required by this clause shall provide that charter conversion by an insured credit union shall be subject to regulation that is no more or less restrictive than that applicable to charter conversions by other financial institutions.

(ii) OVERSIGHT OF MEMBER VOTE.—The member vote concerning charter conversion under this paragraph shall be administered by the Administration, and shall be verified by the Federal or State regulatory agency that would have jurisdiction over the institution after the conversion. (ii) PERIOD FOR FILING.—A motion may be filed under clause (i) at any time during the 10-year period described in subparagraph (A) with regard to the person on whose behalf such motion is made.

(3) PENALTY.—Whoever knowingly violates paragraph (1) or (2) shall be fined not more than $1,000,000 for each day such prohibition is violated or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

(e)(1) The Board shall promulgate rules establishing minimum standards with which each insured credit union must comply with respect to the installation, maintenance, and operation of security devices and procedures, reasonable in cost, to discourage robberies, burglaries, and larcenies and to assist in the identification and apprehension of persons who commit such acts.

(2) The rules shall establish the time limits within which insured credit unions shall comply with the standards and shall require the submission of periodic reports with respect to the installation, maintenance, and operation of security devices and procedures.

(3) An insured credit union which violates a rule promulgated pursuant to this subsection shall be subject to a civil penalty which shall not exceed $100 for each day of the violation.

Except as provided in paragraph (2), an insured credit union may pay dividends on share draft accounts and may permit the owners of such share draft accounts to make withdrawals by negotiable or transferable instruments or other orders for the purpose of making transfers to third parties.

(2) Paragraph (1) shall apply only with respect to share draft accounts in which the entire beneficial interest is held by one or more individuals or members or by an organization which is operated primarily for religious, philanthropic, charitable, educational, or other similar purposes and which is not operated for profit, and with respect to deposits of public funds by an officer, employee, or agent of the United States, any State, county, municipality, or political subdivision thereof, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam, any territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

(g)(1) If the applicable rate prescribed in this subsection exceeds the rate an insured credit union would be permitted to charge in the absence of this subsection, such credit union may, notwithstanding any State constitution or statute which is hereby preempted for the purposes of this subsection, take, receive, reserve, and charge on any loan, interest at a rate of not more than 1 per centum in excess of the discount rate on ninety-day commercial paper in effect at the Federal Reserve bank in the Federal Reserve district where such insured credit union is located or at the rate allowed by the laws of the State, territory, or district where such credit union is located, whichever may be greater.

(2) If the rate prescribed in paragraph (1) exceeds the rate such credit union would be permitted to charge in the absence of this subsection, and such State fixed rate is thereby preempted by the rate described in paragraph (1), the taking, receiving, reserving, or charging a greater rate than is allowed by paragraph (1), when knowingly done, shall be deemed a forfeiture of the entire interest which the loan carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. If such greater rate of interest has been paid, the person who paid it may recover, in a civil action commenced in a court of appropriate jurisdiction not later than two years after the date of such payment, an amount equal to twice the amount of interest paid from the credit union taking or receiving such interest.

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board may authorize a merger or consolidation of an insured credit union which is insolvent or is in danger of insolvency with any other insured credit union or may authorize an insured credit union to purchase any of the assets of, or assume any of the liabilities of, any other insured credit union which is insolvent or in danger of insolvency if the Board is satisfied that—

- (1) an emergency requiring expeditious action exists with respect to such other insured credit union;
- (2) other alternatives are not reasonably available; and
- (3) the public interest would best be served by approval of such merger, consolidation, purchase, or assumption.

(i)(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of State law, the Board may authorize an institution whose deposits or accounts are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to purchase any of the assets of or assume any of the liabilities of an insured credit union which is insolvent or in danger of insolvency, except that prior to exercising this authority the Board must attempt to effect the merger or consolidation of an insured credit union which is insolvent or in danger of insolvency with another insured credit union, as provided in subsection (h).

(2) For purposes of the authority contained in paragraph (1), insured accounts of the credit union may upon consummation of the purchase and assumption be converted to insured deposits or other comparable accounts in the acquiring institution, and the Board and the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund shall be absolved of any liability to the credit union's members with respect to those accounts.

(j) PRIVILEGES NOT AFFECTED BY DISCLOSURE TO BANKING AGENCY OR SUPERVISOR.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The submission by any person of any information to the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection, the Administration, any State credit union supervisor, or foreign banking authority for any purpose in the course of any supervisory or regulatory process of such Board, supervisor, or authority shall not be construed as waiving, destroying, or otherwise affecting any privilege such person may claim with respect to such information under Federal or State law as to any person or entity other than such Board, supervisor, or authority.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—No provision of paragraph (1) may be construed as implying or establishing that—

(A) any person waives any privilege applicable to information that is submitted or transferred under any circumstance to which paragraph (1) does not apply; or

(B) any person would waive any privilege applicable to any information by submitting the information to the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection, the Administration, any State credit union supervisor, or foreign banking authority, but for this subsection.

MINORITY VIEWS

H.R. 4545 would enable any bank, regardless of size, to appeal and postpone material supervisory determinations by the bank's regulator, which include adverse determinations such as a downgrade of a bank's rating for capital, asset quality, management, earnings, liquidity, and sensitivity to market risks (CAMELS); significant deficiencies in the institution's Bank Secrecy Act/Anti-Money Laundering (BSA/AML) program; findings related to violations of various regulations; or a downgrade of a bank's Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) rating. The bill would create a new Office of Independent Examination Review within the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council ("FFIEC") and allow depository institutions that receive such a determination to be able to appeal the determination to the review office. This bill would make it more likely that megabanks would be able to escape or delay accountability for egregious violations of federal laws protecting consumers and the economy.

Although proponents of this bill contend that it will provide regulatory relief to community banks and small lenders, the bill is not tailored for that goal. Rather, H.R. 4545 would allow any bank, as well as any nonbank under the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's ("Consumer Bureau") supervisory authority, to appeal negative supervisory determinations made in the examination process. While targeted improvements to the exam process could be considered for the smallest banks, allowing megabanks, as this bill would do, to challenge any negative supervisory action taken against them is completely inappropriate, particularly given the light-touch oversight these large banks have been given. Even when receiving large enforcement penalties, with fines sometimes reaching billions of dollars, megabanks often view these fines as just a cost of doing business. Time and again, megabanks are fined for the same or similar offense without major consequence. Relatedly, in November 2017, the Government Accountability Office ("GAO") released a report that found the Federal Reserve needs to strengthen internal controls to more effectively mitigate the risks of regulatory capture and threats to supervisory independence across their large bank supervisory program.¹ Congress should not advance a measure that exacerbates this issue. We believe it would be inappropriate to enable megabanks to circumvent longstanding, deliberative regulatory due processes by asking an independent office to repeal adverse supervisory determinations issued by the prudential regulators tasked with overseeing these entities.

Furthermore, the independent review office created by this legislation is not responsible for the safety and soundness of the banking system as the prudential regulators are. For example, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“FDIC”) is charged with protecting the financial state of the Deposit Insurance Fund (“DIF”), but the review office’s decision in support of a bank’s appeal may result in a bank taking more risk, which could have a material impact on the soundness of the DIF.

What’s more, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office (“CBO”) estimated that the bill would increase budget deficits by $123 million over a ten-year window.

Many of the concerns identified here would be largely mitigated if H.R. 4545 was limited to small, community depository institutions. Democrats unanimously supported an amendment to limit the bill to community financial institutions with less than $10 billion in assets;² however, Committee Republicans rejected this approach, allowing megabanks like Wells Fargo to benefit from the bill.

For these reasons, we strongly oppose H.R. 4545.
