(B)(i) The Secretary shall dismiss a complaint filed under this subsection and shall not conduct an investigation otherwise required under subparagraph (A) unless the complainant makes a prima facie showing that any behavior described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection (a) was a contributing factor in the unfavorable personnel action alleged in the complaint.

(ii) Notwithstanding a finding by the Secretary that the complainant has made the showing required under clause (i), no investigation otherwise required under subparagraph (A) shall be conducted if the employer demonstrates, by clear and convincing evidence, that the employer would have taken the same unfavorable personnel action in the absence of that behavior.

(iii) The Secretary may determine that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred only if the complainant demonstrates that any behavior described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection (a) was a contributing factor in the unfavorable personnel action alleged in the complaint.

(iv) Relief may not be ordered under subparagraph (A) if the employer demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence that the employer would have taken the same unfavorable personnel action in the absence of that behavior.

(3)(A) Not later than 120 days after the date of conclusion of any hearing under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall issue a final order providing the relief prescribed by this paragraph or denying the complaint. At any time before issuance of a final order, a proceeding under this subsection may be terminated on the basis of a settlement agreement entered into by the Secretary, the complainant, and the person alleged to have committed the violation.

(B) If, in response to a complaint filed under paragraph (1), the Secretary determines that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred, the Secretary shall order the person who committed such violation—

(i) to take affirmative action to abate the violation;

(ii) to reinstate the complainant to his or her former position together with compensation (including back pay) and restore the terms, conditions, and privileges associated with his or her employment; and

(iii) to provide compensatory damages to the complainant. If such an order is issued under this paragraph, the Secretary, at the request of the complainant, shall assess against the person against whom the order is issued a sum equal to the aggregate amount of all costs and expenses (including attorneys' and expert witness fees) reasonably incurred, as determined by the Secretary, by the complainant for, or in connection with, the bringing of the complaint upon which the order was issued.

(C) If the Secretary finds that a complaint under paragraph (1) is frivolous or has been brought in bad faith, the Secretary may award to the prevailing employer a reasonable attorneys' fee, not exceeding $ 1,000, to be paid by the complainant.

(4) If the Secretary has not issued a final decision within 210 days after the filing of the complaint, or within 90 days after receiving a written determination, the complainant may bring an action at law or equity for de novo review in the appropriate district court of the United States with jurisdiction, which shall have jurisdiction over such an action without regard to the amount in controversy, and which action shall, at the request of either party to such action, be tried by the court with a jury. The proceedings shall be governed by the same legal burdens of proof specified in paragraph (2)(B). The court shall have jurisdiction to grant all relief necessary to make the employee whole, including injunctive relief and compensatory damages, including—

(A) reinstatement with the same seniority status that the employee would have had, but for the discharge or discrimination;

(B) the amount of back pay, with interest; and

(C) compensation for any special damages sustained as a result of the discharge or discrimination, including litigation costs, expert witness fees, and reasonable attorney's fees.

(5)(A) Unless the complainant brings an action under paragraph (4), any person adversely affected or aggrieved by a final order issued under paragraph (3) may obtain review of the order in the United States Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the violation, with respect to which the order was issued, allegedly occurred or the circuit in which the complainant resided on the date of such violation. The petition for review must be filed not later than 60 days after the date of the issuance of the final order of the Secretary. Review shall conform to chapter 7 of title 5, United States Code. The commencement of proceedings under this subparagraph shall not, unless ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the order.

(B) An order of the Secretary with respect to which review could have been obtained under subparagraph (A) shall not be subject to judicial review in any criminal or other civil proceeding.

(6) Whenever any person has failed to comply with an order issued under paragraph (3), the Secretary may file a civil action in the United States district court for the district in which the violation was found to occur, or in the United States district court for the District of Columbia, to enforce such order. In actions brought under this paragraph, the district courts shall have jurisdiction to grant all appropriate relief including, but not limited to, injunctive relief and compensatory damages.

(7)(A) A person on whose behalf an order was issued under paragraph (3) may commence a civil action against the person to whom such order was issued to require compliance with such order. The appropriate United States district court shall have jurisdiction, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, to enforce such order.

(B) The court, in issuing any final order under this paragraph, may award costs of litigation (including reasonable attorneys' and expert witness fees) to any party whenever the court determines such award is appropriate.

(c) Any nondiscretionary duty imposed by this section shall be enforceable in a mandamus proceeding brought under section 1361 of title 28, United States Code.

(d)(1) Except as provided under paragraph (3), the rights and remedies provided for in this section may not be waived by any agreement, policy, form, or condition of employment, including by any predispute arbitration agreement.

(2) Except as provided under paragraph (3), no predispute arbitration agreement shall be valid or enforceable if it requires arbitration of a dispute arising under this section.

(e) Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), an arbitration provision in a collective bargaining agreement shall be enforceable as to disputes arising under paragraph (a)(2) of this section unless the Agency determines by rule that such provision is inconsistent with the purposes of this Act.

(f) Any employer receiving covered funds shall post notice of the rights and remedies provided under this section.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this title, the Securities and Exchange Commission shall adopt a rule pursuant to its authority under section 211(a) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 making it unlawful under section 206(4) of that Act for an investment adviser registered under such Act to have custody of funds or securities of a client the value of which exceeds $10,000,000, unless—

(1) the funds and securities are maintained with a qualified custodian either in a separate account for each client under the client's name, or in accounts that contain only client funds and securities under the name of the investment adviser as agent or trustee for the client; and

(2) the qualified custodian does not directly or indirectly provide investment advice with respect to such funds or securities.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—The rule adopted under subsection (a) shall include such exceptions as the Commission determines in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors. Any exemption granted under this subsection shall ensure that at least once per year, a client described in subsection (a) shall receive a report from an independent entity with a fiduciary responsibility to the client to verify that the assets in the client's account are in accord with those stated on the client's account statement.

(c) NO LIMITS ON OTHER ACTIONS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit other actions the Securities and Exchange Commission may take under this Act to require the protection of client assets.

SEC. 7421. NOTICE TO MISSING SECURITY HOLDERS.

Section 17A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78q-1) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(g) DUE DILIGENCE FOR THE DELIVERY OF DIVIDENDS, INTEREST, AND OTHER VALUABLE PROPERTY RIGHTS.—

''(1) REVISION OF RULES REQUIRED.—The Commission shall revise its regulations in section 240.17Ad-17 of title 17, Code of Federal Regulations, as in effect on December 8, 1997, to extend the application of such section to brokers and dealers and to provide for the following:

''(A) A requirement that the paying agent provide a single written notification to each missing security holder that the missing security holder has been sent a check that has not yet been negotiated. The written notification may be sent along with a check or other mailing subsequently sent to the missing security holder but must be provided no later than 7 months after the sending of the not yet negotiated check.

''(B) An exclusion for paying agents from the notification requirements when the value of the not yet negotiated check is less than $25.

''(C) A provision clarifying that the requirements described in subparagraph (A) shall have no effect on State escheatment laws.

''(D) For purposes of such revised regulations—

''(i) a security holder shall be considered a 'missing security holder' if a check is sent to the security holder and the check is not negotiated before the earlier of the paying agent sending the next regularly scheduled check or the elapsing of 6 months after the sending of the not yet negotiated check; and

''(ii) the term 'paying agent' includes any issuer, transfer agent, broker, dealer, investment adviser, indenture trustee, custodian, or any other person that accepts payments from the issuer of a security and distributes the payments to the holders of the security.

''(2) RULEMAKING.—The Commission shall adopt such rules, regulations, and orders necessary to implement this subsection no later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this subsection. In proposing such rules, the Commission shall seek to minimize disruptions to current systems used by or on behalf of paying agents to process payment to account holders and avoid requiring multiple paying agents to send written notification to a missing security holder regarding the same not yet negotiated check.''.

SEC. 7422. SHORT SALE REFORMS.

(a) SHORT SALE DISCLOSURE.—Section 13(f) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m(f)) is amended by redesignating paragraphs (2), (3), (4), and (5) as paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (6), respectively, and inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

''(2)(A) Every institutional investment manager that effects a short sale of an equity security shall also file a report on a daily basis with the Commission in such form as the Commission, by rule, may prescribe. Such report shall include, as applicable, the name of the institution, the name of the institutional investment manager and the title, class, CUSIP number, number of shares or principal amount, aggregate fair market value of each security, and any additional information requested by the Commission. For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this subparagraph shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section. The information contained in reports of an institutional investment manager filed with the Commission pursuant to this section, shall be subject to the same non-disclosure and confidentiality protection provided under section 204(b)(8) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

''(B) The Commission shall prescribe rules providing for the public disclosure of the name of the issuer and the title, class, CUSIP number, aggregate amount of the number of short sales of each security, and any additional information determined by the Commission following the end of the reporting period. At a minimum, such public disclosure shall occur every month.''.

(b) SHORT SELLING ENFORCEMENT.—Section 9 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78i) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), and (i) as subsections (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), and (j), respectively; and

(2) inserting after subsection (c), the following new subsection:

''(d) TRANSACTIONS RELATING TO SHORT SALES OF SECURITIES.—It shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, by the use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce, or of any facility of any national securities exchange, or for any member of a national securities exchange to effect, alone or with one or more other persons, a manipulative short sale of any security. The Commission shall issue such other rules as are necessary or appropriate to ensure that the appropriate enforcement options and remedies are available for violations of this subsection in the public interest or for the protection of investors.''.

(c) INVESTOR NOTIFICATION.—Section 15 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78o) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (e), (f), (g), (h), and (i) as subsections (f), (g), (h), (i), and (j), respectively; and

(2) inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsection:

''(e) NOTICES TO CUSTOMERS REGARDING SECURITIES LENDING.—Every registered broker or dealer shall provide notice to its customers that they may elect not to allow their fully paid securities to be used in connection with short sales. If a broker or dealer uses a customer's securities in connection with short sales, the broker or dealer shall provide notice to its customer that the broker or dealer may receive compensation in connection with lending the customer's securities. The Commission, by rule, as it deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors, may prescribe the form, content, time, and manner of delivery of any notice required under this paragraph.''.

SEC. 7423. STREAMLINING OF SEC FILING PROCEDURES.

(a) APPROVAL PROCESS.—Section 19(b)(2) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78s(b)(2)) is amended to read as follows:

''(2) FILING PROCEDURES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Within thirty-five days of the date of publication of notice of the filing of a proposed rule change in accordance with paragraph (1) of this subsection, or within such longer period as the Commission may designate up to ninety days of such date if it finds such longer period to be appropriate and publishes its reasons for so finding or as to which the self-regulatory organization consents, the Commission shall—

''(i) by order approve such proposed rule change; or

''(ii) institute proceedings under subparagraph (B) to determine whether the proposed rule change should be disapproved.

''(B) PROCEEDINGS.—Proceedings to determine whether the proposed rule change should be disapproved shall include notice of the grounds for disapproval under consideration and opportunity for hearing and be concluded within 200 days from the date of receipt of a proper filing. At the conclusion of such proceedings the Commission, by order, shall approve or disapprove such proposed rule change. The Commission may extend the time for conclusion of such proceedings for up to 60 days if it finds good cause for such extension and publishes its reasons for so finding or for such longer period as to which the self-regulatory organization consents. The Commission shall approve a proposed rule change of a self-regulatory organization if it finds that such proposed rule change is consistent with the requirements of this title and the rules and regulations thereunder applicable to such organization. The Commission shall disapprove a proposed rule change of a self-regulatory organization if it does not make such finding. The Commission shall not approve any proposed rule change prior to the thirtieth day after the date of publication of notice of the filing thereof, unless the Commission finds good cause for so doing and publishes its reasons for so finding.''.

(b) RULES.—Not later than 12 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall issue rules implementing a disapproval process for filings submitted on or after the effective date of such rules.

(2) by adding at the end of such subsection the following:

''(2) INSPECTIONS OF AUDIT REPORT FOR BROKERS AND DEALERS.—

''(A) The Board may, by rule, conduct and require a program of inspection in accordance with paragraph (a)(1), on a basis to be determined by the Board, of registered public accounting firms that provide one or more audit reports for a broker or dealer. The Board, in establishing such a program, may allow for differentiation among classes of brokers and dealers, as appropriate.

''(B) If the Board determines to establish a program of inspection pursuant to subparagraph (A), the Board shall consider in establishing any inspection schedules whether differing schedules would be appropriate with respect to registered public accounting firms that issue audit reports only for one or more brokers or dealers that do not receive, handle, or hold customer securities or cash or are not a member of the Securities Investor Protection Corporation.

''(C) Any rules of the Board pursuant to this paragraph shall be subject to prior approval by the Commission pursuant to section 107(b) before the rules become effective, including an opportunity for public notice and comment.

''(D) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 102 of this Act, a public accounting firm shall not be required to register with the Board if the public accounting firm is exempt from the inspection program which may be established by the Board under subparagraph (a)(2)(A) of this section.

''(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 17 (e)(1)(A) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78q(e) (1) (A)) is amended by striking 'registered public accounting firm' and inserting 'independent public accounting firm or by a registered public accounting firm if registration is required under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 as amended.'.''.

(8) by redesignating section 112 (12 U.S.C. 2711) as section 110.

SEC. 10002. ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE FOR NEIGHBORHOOD STABILIZATION PROGRAM.

Using the authority made available under sections 101(a) and 115(a) of division A of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5211(a), 5225(a)), the Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development $1,000,000,000, and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall use such amounts for assistance to States and units of general local government for the redevelopment of abandoned and foreclosed homes, in accordance with the same provisions applicable under the second undesignated paragraph under the heading ''Community Planning and Development--Community Development Fund'' in title XII of division A of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–5; 123 Stat. 217) to amounts made available under such second undesignated paragraph, except as follows:

(1) Notwithstanding the matter of such second undesignated paragraph that precedes the first proviso, amounts made available by this section shall remain available until expended.

(2) The 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 15th provisos of such second undesignated paragraph shall not apply to amounts made available by this section.

(3) Amounts made available by this section shall be allocated based on a funding formula for such amounts established by the Secretary in accordance with section 2301(b) of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (42 U.S.C. 5301 note), except that—

(A) notwithstanding paragraph (2) of such section 2301(b), the formula shall be established not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act;

(B) the Secretary may not establish any minimum grant amount or size for grants to States;

(C) the Secretary may establish a minimum grant amount for direct allocations to units of general local government located within a State, which shall not exceed $1,000,000; and

(D) each State and local government receiving grant amounts shall establish procedures to create preferences for the development of affordable rental housing for properties assisted with amounts made available by this section.

(4) Paragraph (1) of section 2301(c) of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 shall not apply to amounts made available by this section.

(5) Section 2302 of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 shall not apply to amounts made available by this section.

(6) The fourth proviso from the end of such second undesignated paragraph shall be applied to amounts made available by this section by substituting ''2013'' for ''2012''.

(7) Notwithstanding section 2301(a) of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, the term ''State'' means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and other territory or possession of the United States for purposes of this section and title III of division B of such Act, as applied to amounts made available by this section.

(8)(A) None of the amounts made available by this section shall be distributed to—

(i) any organization which has been convicted for a violation under Federal law relating to an election for Federal office; or

(ii) any organization which employs applicable individuals.

(B) In this paragraph, the term ''applicable individual'' means an individual who—

(i) is—

(I) employed by the organization in a permanent or temporary capacity;

(II) contracted or retained by the organization; or

(III) acting on behalf of, or with the express or apparent authority of, the organization; and

(ii) has been convicted for a violation under Federal law relating to an election for Federal office.

(c) ADDITIONAL CONSUMER PROTECTION REGULATIONS IN RESPONSE TO STATE ACTION.—

(1) NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE REQUIRED.—The Agency shall issue a notice of proposed rulemaking whenever a majority of the States has enacted a resolution in support of the establishment or modification of a consumer protection regulation by the Agency.

(2) AGENCY CONSIDERATIONS REQUIRED FOR ISSUANCE OF FINAL REGULATION.—Before prescribing a final regulation based upon a notice issued pursuant to paragraph (1), the Agency shall take into account whether—

(A) the proposed regulation would afford greater protection to consumers than any existing regulation;

(B) the intended benefits of the proposed regulation for consumers would outweigh any increased costs or inconveniences for consumers, and would not discriminate unfairly against any category or class of consumers; and

(C) a Federal banking agency has advised that the proposed regulation is likely to present an unacceptable safety and soundness risk to insured depository institutions.

(3) EXPLANATION OF CONSIDERATIONS.—The Agency—

(A) shall include a discussion of the considerations required in subsection (b) in the Federal Register notice of a final regulation prescribed pursuant to this section; and

(B) whenever the Agency determines not to prescribe a final regulation, shall publish an explanation of such determination in the Federal Register, and provide a copy of such explanation to each State that enacted a resolution in support of the proposed regulation, the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate.

(4) RESERVATION OF AUTHORITY.—No provision of this section shall be construed as limiting or restricting the authority of the Agency to enhance consumer protection standards established pursuant to this title in response to its own motion or in response to a request by any other interested person.

(5) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—No provision of this section shall be construed as exempt the Agency from complying with subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code.

(6) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term ''consumer protection regulation'' means a regulation that the Agency is authorized to prescribe under this title, the enumerated consumer laws, or any law or authority transferred under subtitle F or H.

''(B) CONSULTATION.—When making case-by-case determination pursuant to this section that a State consumer financial law of another State has a substantively equivalent terms as one that the Comptroller is preempting, the Comptroller shall first consult with the Consumer Financial Protection Agency and shall take such Agency's views into account when making the determination.

''(4) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This Act does not occupy the field in any area of State law.

''(5) STANDARDS OF REVIEW.—

''(A) PREEMPTION.—A court reviewing any determinations made by the Comptroller regarding preemption of a State law by this Act shall assess the validity of such determinations depending upon the thoroughness evident in the agency's consideration, the validity of the agency's reasoning, the consistency with other valid determinations made by the agency, and other factors which the court finds persuasive and relevant to its decision.

''(B) SAVINGS CLAUSE.—Except as provided in subparagraph (A), nothing in this section shall affect the deference that a court may afford to the Comptroller in making determinations regarding the meaning or interpretation of title LXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States or other Federal laws.

''(6) COMPTROLLER DETERMINATION NOT DELEGABLE.—Any regulation, order or determination made by the Comptroller of the Currency under subsection (b)(1)(B) shall be made by the Comptroller and shall not be delegable to another officer or employee of the Comptroller of the Currency.

SEC. 1316. MUTUAL NATIONAL BANKS AND FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANIES AUTHORIZED.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter one of title LXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States (12 U.S.C. 21 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 5133 the following new sections:

''SEC. 5133A. MUTUAL NATIONAL BANKS.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding the section designated the 'Third' of section 5134, in order to provide mutual institutions for the deposit of funds, the extension of credit, and provision of other services, the Comptroller of the Currency may charter mutual national banks either de novo or through a conversion of any insured depository institution or any State mutual bank or credit union, subject to regulations prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency in accordance with this section. The powers conferred by this section are intended to provide for the creation and maintenance of mutual national banks as bodies corporate existing in perpetuity for the benefit of their depositors and the communities in which they operate.

''(b) REGULATIONS.—

''(1) REGULATIONS OF THE COMPTROLLER.—The Comptroller of the Currency is authorized to prescribe appropriate regulations for the organization, incorporation, examination, operation, and regulation of mutual national banks. Except to the extent that such existing regulations conflict with sections 5133A and 5133B, mutual national banks shall be subject to the regulations of the Director of the Office of Thrift Supervision governing corporate organization, governance, and conversion of mutual institutions, as in effect on the date of the enactment of the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, including parts 543, 544, 546, 563b, and 563c of chapter V of title 12, Code of Federal Regulations (as in effect on that date), for up to 3 years beginning on the date of the enactment of the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009.

''(2) APPLICABILITY OF CAPITAL STOCK REQUIREMENTS.—The Comptroller of the Currency shall prescribe regulations regarding the manner in which requirements of this title with respect to capital stock, and limitations imposed on national banks under this title based on capital stock, shall apply to mutual national banks.

''(c) CONVERSIONS.—

''(1) CONVERSION OF A MUTUAL DEPOSITORY TO A MUTUAL NATIONAL BANK.—Subject to such regulations as the Comptroller of the Currency may prescribe for the protection of depositors' rights and for any other purpose the Comptroller of the Currency may consider appropriate, any mutual depository may convert to a mutual national bank by filing with the Comptroller of the Currency a notice of its election to convert on a specified date that is not earlier than 30 days after the date on which the notice is filed, and the mutual depository shall be converted to a mutual national bank charter on the date specified in the notice.

''(2) CONVERSION TO STOCK NATIONAL BANK.—Subject to such regulations as the Comptroller of the Currency may prescribe for the protection of depositors' rights and for any other purpose the Comptroller of the Currency may consider appropriate, any national bank that is organized in the mutual form under subsection (a) may reorganize as a stock national bank.

''(3) CONVERSION TO STATE BANKS.—Any national mutual bank may convert to a State bank charter in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency and applicable State law.

''(d) TERMINATING MUTUALITY.—If a mutual national bank elects to terminate mutuality, it must do so by—

''(1) liquidating; or

''(2) converting to a national banking association operating in stock form.

''(e) STATUS AND RIGHTS OF MEMBERS.—

''(1) In general, the status of a member is primarily that of a depositor and secondarily that of a holder of a contingent right to participate in the equity of a mutual national bank upon a liquidation or conversion.

''(2) Each member of a mutual national bank shall have the following rights:

''(A) Such rights as may be agreed upon, by contract, between the member and the mutual national bank.

''(B) The right to vote for members of the board of directors of the mutual national bank.

''(C) The right to attend any meeting of members properly called by the board of directors of a mutual national bank.

''(D) In the event the board of directors, in its sole discretion, determines a conversion of a mutual national bank to a national banking association operating in stock form is in the best interests of the community in which the bank operates and the members approve the conversion through a special proxy, then the members as of a record date set by the board of directors shall have the first right to subscribe for and purchase stock in the converted bank.

''(E) In the event the board of directors, in its sole discretion, determines a liquidation of the mutual national bank is in the best interests of the community in which the bank operates and the members approve the liquidation, or if for any other reason the bank is liquidated by operation of law, then the members as of the date of liquidation shall have the right to have credited to their accounts, on a pro rata basis, any residual assets left after the liquidation of the mutual national bank.

''(3) In the consideration of all questions requiring action by the members of a national mutual bank, the bank may provide in its charter that each member shall be permitted (i) one vote per member, or (ii) to cast one vote for each $100, or fraction thereof, of the withdrawal value of the member's account, but not more than 1,000 votes per member.

''(f) PROXIES.—

''(1) A member may give, in writing or electronically, a perpetual proxy to a committee of the board of directors of a mutual depository, provided that the member may revoke such a proxy in writing or electronically, with such revocation to take effect after six business days.

''(2) Such proxies may be used to vote on any issue requiring approval of the members, including the conversion of a mutual depository into a mutual national bank and the reorganization of a mutual national bank into a Federal mutual bank holding company, except that, without a prior finding by the regulator of the mutual national bank that such action is needed to avoid loss to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's deposit insurance fund or to protect the stability of the United States financial system, such proxies may not be used to vote in favor of—

''(A) terminating mutuality for a mutual national bank or a Federal mutual bank holding company;

''(B) permitting the modification of a Federal mutual bank holding company; or

''(C) issuing mutual capital certificates (except when used to found a mutual national bank or a Federal mutual bank holding company de novo).

''(3) Proxies given by a member, in writing or electronically, to management of, or to a committee of the board of directors of, a mutual depository shall not be deemed to have been revoked solely because of, and shall continue to exist following, a conversion to a mutual national bank and any concurrent or subsequent reorganization to a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(g) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the following definitions shall apply:

''(1) INSURED DEPOSITORY INSTITUTION.—The term 'insured depository institution' has the same meaning as in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act.

''(2) MUTUAL NATIONAL BANK.—The term 'mutual national bank' means a national banking association that operates in mutual form and is chartered by the Comptroller of the Currency under this section.

''(3) MUTUAL DEPOSITORY.—The term 'mutual depository' means a depository institution that is organized in non-stock form, including a Federal non-stock depository and any form of non-stock depository provided for under State law, the deposits of which are insured by an instrumentality of the Federal Government.

''(4) MUTUALITY.—The term 'mutuality' means the quality of being an insured depository institution organized under a Federal or State law providing for the organization of non-stock depository institutions, or a holding company organized under a Federal or State law providing for the organization of non-stock entities that control one or more depository institutions.

''(5) MEMBER.—The term 'member' means each tax-liable depositor in a mutual depository's savings, demand, or other authorized depository accounts and each tax-liable depositor in such an account in a depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(6) TAX LIABLE DEPOSITOR.—The term 'tax liable depositor' means the single person responsible for paying any Federal taxes due on any interest paid on any deposits held within any savings, demand, or other authorized depository account or accounts with any mutual depository.

''(7) MEMBERSHIP RIGHTS.—The term 'membership rights' means the rights of each member under this section.

''(h) CONFORMING REFERENCES.—Unless otherwise provided by the Comptroller of the Currency—

''(1) any reference in any Federal law to a national bank operating in stock form, including a reference to the term 'national banking association', 'member bank', 'national bank', 'national association', 'bank', 'insured bank', 'insured depository institution', or 'depository institution', shall be deemed to refer also to a mutual national bank;

''(2) any reference in any Federal law to the term 'board of directors', 'director', or 'directors' of a national bank operating in stock form shall be deemed to refer also to the board of a mutual national bank; and

''(3) any terms in Federal law that may apply only to a national bank operating in stock form, including the terms 'stock', 'shares', 'shares of stock', 'capital stock', 'common stock', 'stock certificate', 'stock certificates', 'certificates representing shares of stock', 'stock dividend', 'transferable stock', 'each class of stock', 'cumulate such shares', 'par value', 'preferred stock' shall not apply to a mutual national bank, unless the Comptroller of the Currency determines that the context requires otherwise.

''SEC. 5133B. FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANIES.

''(a) REORGANIZATION OF MUTUAL NATIONAL BANK AS A HOLDING COMPANY.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to approval under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956, a mutual national bank may reorganize so as to become a Federal mutual bank holding company by submitting a reorganization plan to the appropriate bank holding company regulator.

''(2) PLAN APPROVAL.—Upon the approval of the reorganization plan by the appropriate bank holding company regulator and the issuance of the appropriate charters—

''(A) the substantial part of the mutual national bank's assets and liabilities, including all of the bank's insured liabilities, shall be transferred to a national banking association, a majority of the shares of voting stock of which is owned, directly or indirectly, by the mutual national bank that is to become a Federal mutual bank holding company; and

''(B) the mutual national bank shall become a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(b) DIRECTORS AND CERTAIN ACCOUNT HOLDERS' APPROVAL OF PLAN REQUIRED.—This subsection does not authorize a reorganization unless—

''(1) a majority of the mutual national bank's board of directors has approved the plan providing for such reorganization; and

''(2) a majority of members has approved the plan at a meeting held at the call of the directors under the procedures prescribed by the bank's charter and bylaws.

''(c) OWNERSHIP OF DEPOSITORY SUBSIDIARIES.—To avoid terminating mutuality, a Federal mutual bank holding company must own, directly or indirectly, a majority of the shares of voting stock of each of its depository subsidiaries.

''(d) NO TERMINATION OF MUTUALITY.—Neither a reorganization of a mutual depository nor a modification of a Federal mutual bank holding company shall cause a termination of mutuality.

''(e) RETENTION OF CAPITAL.—In connection with a transaction described in subsection (a), a mutual national bank may, subject to the approval of the appropriate bank holding company regulator, retain capital at the holding company level to the extent that the capital retained at the holding company level exceeds the amount of capital required for the national banking association chartered as a part of a transaction described in subsection (a) to meet all relevant capital standards established by the Comptroller of the Currency for national banking associations.

''(f) TERMINATING MUTUALITY.—If a Federal mutual bank holding company elects to terminate mutuality, it must do so by either liquidating or converting to a bank holding company operating in stock form.

''(g) MEMBERSHIP RIGHTS.—Holders of savings, demand, or other authorized depository accounts in a depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company shall have the same membership rights with respect to the Federal mutual bank holding company as those holders would have had if the depository subsidiary of the Federal mutual bank holding company had been a mutual national bank.

''(h) REGULATION.—A Federal mutual bank holding company shall be—

''(1) chartered by the appropriate bank holding company regulator and shall be subject to such regulations as the appropriate bank holding company regulator shall prescribe; and

''(2) regulated under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 on the same terms and subject to the same limitations as any other company that controls a bank.

''(i) CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT.—

''(1) PLEDGE OF STOCK OF NATIONAL BANK SUBSIDIARY.—This section shall not prohibit a Federal mutual bank holding company from pledging all or a portion of the stock of the national banking association chartered as part of a transaction described in subsection (a) to raise capital for such national banking association.

''(2) ISSUANCE OF NONVOTING SHARES.—This section shall not prohibit a national banking association chartered as part of a transaction described in subsection (a) from issuing any nonvoting shares or less than 50 percent of the voting shares of such bank to any person other than the Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(j) INSOLVENCY AND LIQUIDATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the appropriate bank holding company regulator may file a petition under chapter 7 of title 11, United States Code, with respect to a Federal mutual bank holding company upon—

''(A) the default of any national bank—

''(i) the stock of which is owned by the Federal mutual bank holding company; and

''(ii) that was chartered in a transaction described in subsection (a); or

''(B) a foreclosure on a pledge by the Federal mutual bank holding company described in subsection (i)(1).

''(2) DISTRIBUTION OF NET PROCEEDS.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), the net proceeds of any liquidation of any Federal mutual bank holding company under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to persons who hold membership interests in such Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(3) RECOVERY BY FDIC.—If the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation incurs a loss as a result of the default of any insured bank subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company that is liquidated under paragraph (1), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation shall succeed to the interests of the depositors of the bank as members in the Federal mutual bank holding company, to the extent of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's loss.

''(k) DEFINITIONS.—

''(1) FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANY.—The term 'Federal mutual bank holding company' means a holding company that is organized in mutual form and owns, directly or indirectly, a majority of the shares of voting stock of one or more depository subsidiaries of a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(2) DEPOSITORY SUBSIDIARY OF A FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANY.—The term 'depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company' means a depository institution organized in stock form that is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the majority of the shares of voting stock of which are owned by the Federal mutual bank holding company or its wholly owned subsidiaries and none of the shares of stock of which are pledged or otherwise subjected to lien except as permitted in subsection (i).

''(3) REORGANIZATION OF A MUTUAL DEPOSITORY.—The term 'reorganization of a mutual depository' means the conversion of a mutual depository into a depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(4) MODIFICATION OF A FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANY.—The term 'modification of a Federal mutual bank holding company' means either (A) the sale of shares of common or preferred stock in a depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company to any party other than the subsidiary's parent Federal mutual bank holding company or a wholly owned subsidiary of that parent, or (B) the voluntary grant of a lien on shares of common or preferred stock in a depository subsidiary of a Federal mutual bank holding company.

''(5) DEFAULT.—With respect to a national bank, the term 'default' means an adjudication or other official determination by any court of competent jurisdiction, the Comptroller of the Currency, or other public authority pursuant to which a conservator, receiver, or other legal custodian is appointed for the national bank.

''(l) CONFORMING REFERENCES.—Unless otherwise provided by the appropriate bank holding company regulator—

''(1) any reference in any Federal law to a bank holding company operating in stock form shall be deemed to refer also to a Federal mutual bank holding company;

''(2) any reference in any Federal law to the term 'board of directors', 'director', or 'directors' of a national bank operating in stock form shall be deemed to refer also to the board of a Federal mutual bank holding company; and

''(3) any terms in Federal law that may apply only to a national bank operating in stock form, including the terms 'stock', 'shares', 'shares of stock', 'capital stock', 'common stock', 'stock certificate', 'stock certificates', 'certificates representing shares of stock', 'stock dividend', 'transferable stock', 'each class of stock', 'cumulate such shares', 'par value', 'preferred stock' shall not apply to a Federal mutual bank holding company, unless the appropriate bank holding company regulator determines that the context requires otherwise.''.

(b) LIMITATION ON FEDERAL REGULATION OF STATE BANKS.—Except as otherwise provided in Federal law, the Comptroller of the Currency, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation may not adopt or enforce any regulation that contravenes the corporate governance rules prescribed by State law or regulation for State banks unless the Director, Board, or Corporation finds that the Federal regulation is necessary to assure the safety and soundness of the State banks.

(c) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter one of title LXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States (12 U.S.C. 21 et seq) is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5133 the following new items:

''5133A. Mutual national banks

''5133B. Federal mutual bank holding companies''

(d) APPROPRIATE FEDERAL BANKING AGENCY FOR FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANIES.—Section 3(q)(1) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(q)(2)) is amended by inserting after subparagraph (F) the following new subparagraph:

''(G) supervisory or regulatory proceedings arising from the authority given to the appropriate bank holding company regulator under section 5133B of the Revised Statutes of the United States.''.

(e) MUTUAL HOLDING COMPANY CONVERSION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any mutual holding company, including any form of mutual depository holding company provided for under State law, may convert to a Federal mutual bank holding company by filing with the appropriate bank holding company regulator a notice of its election to convert on a specified date that is not earlier than 30 days after the date on which the notice is filed, and the mutual holding company shall be converted to a Federal mutual holding company charter on the date specified in the notice.

(2) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, the following definitions shall apply:

(A) FEDERAL MUTUAL BANK HOLDING COMPANY.—The term ''Federal mutual bank holding company'' has the same meaning as in section 5133B of the Revised Statutes of the United States (as added by this section); and

(B) MUTUAL HOLDING COMPANY.—The term ''mutual holding company'' has the same meaning as in section 10(o)(10)(A) of the Home Owners Loan Act as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 1615. TREASURY STUDY.

(a) STUDY REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall carry out a study analyzing how the resolution authority provided under this subtitle should be funded. Such study shall consider the following factors:

(1) The consequences of any assessments on the overall recovery of the economy of the United States.

(2) Any immediate or continuing consequences of assessments on other aspects of the economy of the United States, including job creation, public and private investments, small business loans, and general credit availability.

(3) The consequences of any assessments on individual sectors of the financial services industry.

(4) The consequences of any assessments on the financial integrity on individual firms within each sector of the financial services industry.

(5) The appropriateness and effect of assessments on firms that are subject to separate assessments under existing State or Federal depositor, policyholder, or investor protection mechanisms and the consequences of any such assessments on these mechanisms themselves.

(6) The implications of assessments on all relevant stakeholders, including taxpayers, depositors, insurance policyholders, investors, counterparties, and creditors.

(7) Evaluation of the appropriate assessment base, including but not limited to factors such as assets and liabilities, assets under management, policyholder reserves, other reserves, statutory and regulatory capital requirements, trusteed assets, and deposits and inflationary factors.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than the end of the 6-month period beginning on the date of the enactment of this subtitle, the Secretary shall issue a report to the Congress containing all determinations and conclusions made by the Secretary in carrying out the study required under subsection (a).

(C) RETENTION OF CONSUMER ADVISORY COUNCIL.—

(i) RETENTION AND CONTINUATION.—Notwithstanding the transfer of functions under subparagraph (A), the Consumer Advisory Council established by the Board of Governors pursuant to section 703(b) of Public Law 90–321 (15 U.S.C. 1691b(b)) shall continue as an entity within the Federal Reserve System.

(ii) ADDITIONAL FUNCTIONS.—In addition to the functions performed by the Consumer Advisory Council as of the designated transfer date, the Consumer Advisory Council shall—

(I) submit to the Director (and make available to the public) an annual set of recommendations for consumer protection regulations and meet with the Director to discuss the annual recommendations;

(II) meet with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System at least once a year and provide oral or written representations concerning matters within the jurisdiction of the Board; and

(III) call for information and make recommendations in regard to consumer protection regulations.

(iii) RESPONSE TO RECOMMENDATIONS.—When the Chair of the Federal Reserve testifies before Congress, the Chair shall also testify about the recommendations of the Consumer Advisory Council under clause (ii)(II) and its recommendations for consumer protection regulations.

SEC. 4313. REVIEW, REPORT, AND PROGRAM WITH RESPECT TO EXCHANGE FACILITATORS.

(a) REVIEW.—The Director shall review all Federal laws and regulations relating to the protection of persons who utilize exchange facilitators.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the effective date of this subtitle, the Director shall submit to Congress a report describing—

(1) recommendations for legislation to ensure the appropriate protection of persons who utilize exchange facilitators;

(2) recommendations for updating the regulations of Federal departments and agencies to ensure the appropriate protection of such persons; and

(3) recommendations for Agency regulations to ensure the appropriate protection of such persons.

(c) PROGRAM.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the submission of the report under subsection (b), the Director shall establish and carry out a program, utilizing the authorities of the Agency, to protect persons who utilize exchange facilitators.

(d) EXCHANGE FACILITATOR DEFINED.—In this section, the term ''exchange facilitator'' means a person that—

(1) facilitates, for a fee, an exchange of like-kind property by entering into an agreement with a taxpayer by which the exchange facilitator acquires from the taxpayer the contractual rights to sell the taxpayer's relinquished property and transfers a replacement property to the taxpayer as a qualified intermediary (within the meaning of Treasury Regulations section 1.1031(k)–1(g)(4)) or enters into an agreement with the taxpayer to take title to a property as an exchange accommodation titleholder (within the meaning of Revenue Procedure 2000–37) or enters into an agreement with a taxpayer to act as a qualified trustee or qualified escrow holder (within the meaning of Treasury Regulations section 1.1031(k)–1(g)(3));

(2) maintains an office for the purpose of soliciting business as an exchange facilitator; or

(3) purports to be an exchange facilitator by advertising any of the services listed in paragraph (1) or soliciting clients in printed publications, direct mail, television or radio advertisements, telephone calls, facsimile transmissions, or other electronic communications directed to the general public for purposes of providing any such services.

(v) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—For purposes of clause (iv), the amount specified under this clause, in the case of a secured creditor, is the amount of up to 10 percent.

Page 318, after line 11, insert the following subparagraphs (and redesignate subparagraphs (B) through (E) as subparagraphs (J) through (M), respectively):

(B) PREFERENTIAL TRANSFERS.—The Corporation as receiver for any covered financial company may avoid a transfer of an interest of the covered financial company in property that—

(i) was made to or for the benefit of a creditor;

(ii) was made for or on account of an antecedent debt that was owed by the covered financial company before the transfer was made;

(iii) was made while the covered financial company was insolvent;

(iv) was made—

(I) on or within 90 days before the date on which the Corporation was appointed receiver; or

(II) between 90 days and one year before the date that the Corporation was appointed receiver, if such creditor at the time of the transfer was an insider, as that term is defined in section 101(31) of title 11, United States Code; and

(v) enables such creditor to receive more than such creditor would receive in the liquidation of the covered financial company if—

(I) the transfer had not been made; and

(II) such creditor received payment of such debt to the extent provided by the provisions of this subtitle.

(C) POST-RECEIVERSHIP TRANSACTIONS.—The Corporation as receiver for any covered financial company may avoid a transfer of property of the receivership that occurred after the Corporation was appointed receiver that was not authorized under this title.

(D) RIGHT OF RECOVERY.—To the extent that a transfer is avoided under subparagraphs (A), (B) or (C), the Corporation may recover, for the benefit of the covered financial company, the property transferred or, if a court so orders, the value of such property from—

(i) the initial transferee of such transfer or the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made; or

(ii) any immediate or mediate transferee of any such initial transferee.

(E) RIGHTS OF TRANSFEREE OR OBLIGEE.—The Corporation may not recover under subparagraph (D)(ii)—

(i) from a transferee that takes for value, including satisfaction or securing of a present or antecedent debt, in good faith, and without knowledge of the violability of the transfer avoided; or

(ii) any immediate or mediate good faith transferee of such transferee.

(F) DEFENSES.—A transferee or obligee from whom the Corporation seeks to recover a transfer or avoid an obligation under subparagraphs (A), (B) or (C) shall have the same affirmative defenses and rights to liens on the property transferred to the extent they would be available to a transferee or obligee from whom a trustee under title 11 seeks to recover a transfer under sections 547, 548, and 549 of title 11, United States Code.

(G) LIMITATIONS ON AVOIDING POWERS.—The rights of the Corporation under subparagraphs (A), (B) or (C) are restricted to the same extent as the rights of a trustee in bankruptcy under section 546(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(H) PRESUMPTION OF INSOLVENCY.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the covered financial company is presumed to have been insolvent on and during the 90 days immediately preceding the date on which the Corporation is appointed as receiver.

(I) RIGHTS UNDER THIS SUBSECTION.—The rights of the Corporation as receiver for a covered financial company under this subsection shall be superior to any rights of a trustee or any other party (other than any party which is a Federal agency of a Federal Home Loan Bank) under title 11, United States Code.

(3) OFFICE OF FINANCIAL PROTECTION FOR OLDER AMERICANS.—

(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—Before the end of the 180-day period beginning on the date of the enactment of this title, the Director shall establish within the Agency the Office of Financial Protection for Older Americans, whose functions shall include activities designed to facilitate the financial literacy of individuals who have attained the age of 62 years or more (in this paragraph, referred to as ''seniors'') on protection from unfair and deceptive practices and on current and future financial choices, including through the dissemination of materials to seniors on such topics.

(B) DIRECTOR.—The Office of Financial Protection for Older Americans shall be headed by a director.

(C) DUTIES.—Such unit shall perform the following duties:

(i) Develop goals for programs that provide seniors financial literacy and counseling, including programs that—

(I) help seniors recognize warning signs of unfair and deceptive practices, protect themselves from such practices;

(II) provide one-on-one financial counseling on issues including long-term savings and later-life economic security; and

(III) provide personal consumer credit advocacy to respond to consumer problems caused by unfair and deceptive practices.

(ii) Monitor certifications or designations of financial advisors who advise seniors and alert the Securities and Exchange Commission and State regulators of certifications or designations that are identified as unfair or deceptive.

(iii) Not later than 18 months after the date of the establishment of the Office of Financial Protection for Older Americans, submit to Congress and the Securities and Exchange Commission recommendations of the best practices for any legislative and regulatory—

(I) disseminating information regarding the legitimacy of certifications of financial advisers who advise seniors;

(II) methods in which a senior can identify the financial advisor most appropriate for the senior's needs; and

(III) methods in which a senior can verify a financial advisor's credentials.

(iv) Conduct research to identify best practices and effective methods, tools, technology and strategies to educate and counsel seniors about personal finance management with a focus on—

(I) protecting themselves from unfair and deceptive practices;

(II) long-term savings; and

(III) planning for retirement and long-term care.

(v) Coordinate consumer protection efforts of seniors with other Federal agencies and State regulators, as appropriate, to promote consistent, effective, and efficient enforcement.

(vi) Work with community organizations, non-profit organizations, and other entities that are involved with educating or assisting seniors (including the National Education and Resource Center on Women and Retirement Planning).

(a) EXCLUSION FOR MERCHANTS, RETAILERS, AND SELLERS OF NONFINANCIAL SERVICES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any provision of this title (other than paragraph (4)) and subject to paragraph (2), the Director and the Agency may not exercise any rulemaking, supervisory, enforcement or other authority, including authority to order assessments, under this title with respect to—

(A) credit extended directly by a merchant, retailer, or seller of nonfinancial goods or services to a consumer, in a case in which the good or service being provided is not itself a consumer financial product or service, exclusively for the purpose of enabling that consumer to purchase such goods or services directly from the merchant, retailer, or seller of financial services; or

(B) collection of debt, directly by the merchant, retailer, or seller of nonfinancial services, arising from such credit extended. In the application of this paragraph, the extension of credit and the collection of debt described in subparagraphs (A) and (B), respectively, shall not be considered a consumer financial product or service.

(2) EXCEPTIONS FOR EXISTING AUTHORITY.—The Director may exercise any rulemaking authority regarding an extension of credit described in paragraph (1)(A) or the collection of debt arising from such extension, as may be authorized by the enumerated consumer laws or any law or authority transferred under subtitle F or H.

(3) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—No provision of this title shall be construed as modifying, limiting, or superseding the authority of the Federal Trade Commission or any agency other than the Agency with respect to credit extended, or the collection of debt arising from such extension, directly by a merchant or retailer to a consumer exclusively for the purpose of enabling that consumer to purchase goods or services directly from the merchant or retailer.

(4) EXCLUSION NOT APPLICABLE TO CERTAIN CREDIT TRANSACTIONS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to—

(A) any credit transaction, including the collection of the debt arising from such extension, in which the merchant, retailer, or seller of nonfinancial services assigns, sells, or otherwise conveys such debt owed by the consumer to another person; or

(B) any credit transaction—

(i) in which the credit provided significantly exceeds the market value of the product or service provided, and

(ii) with respect to which the Director finds that the sale of the product or service is done as a subterfuge so as to evade or circumvent the provisions of this title.

SEC. 4818. AMENDMENTS TO TRUTH IN LENDING ACT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 128(e) of the Truth in Lending Act is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (3) and inserting the following new paragraph (3):

''(3) INSTITUTIONAL CERTIFICATION REQUIRED.—(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), before a creditor may issue any funds with respect to an extension of credit described in paragraph (1), the creditor shall obtain from the relevant institution of higher education such institution's certification—

''(i) of the enrollment status of the borrower;

''(ii) of the borrower's cost of attendance at the institution as determined by the institution under part F of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965;

''(iii) of the difference between the borrower's cost of attendance and the borrower's estimated financial assistance received under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and other assistance known to the institution, as applicable; and

''(iv) that the institution has—

''(I) informed the borrower—

''(aa) about the availability of, and the borrower's potential eligibility for, Federal financial assistance under this title, including disclosing the terms, conditions, and interest rates of Federal student loans;

''(bb) of the borrower's ability to select a private educational lender of the borrower's choice;

''(cc) about the impact of a proposed private education loan on the borrowers' potential eligibility for other financial assistance, including Federal financial assistance under the Higher Education Act of 1965; and

''(dd) about a borrower's right to accept or reject a private education loan within the 30-day period following a private educational lender's approval of a borrower's application and about a borrower's 3-day right to cancel altogether;

''(II) determined whether the borrower has applied for and exhausted the Federal financial assistance available to the borrower under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and informed the borrower accordingly; and

''(III) counseled the borrower on the borrower's financial aid options.

''(B) A creditor may issue funds with respect to an extension of credit described in paragraph (1) without obtaining from the relevant institution of higher education such institution's certification if such institution fails to provide such certification within 21 calendar days or 15 business days, whichever comes first, of the creditor's request for such certification.'';

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (9), (10), and (11) as paragraphs (10), (11), and (12), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (8) the following new paragraph (9):

''(9) PROVISION OF INFORMATION.—On or before the date a creditor issues any funds with respect to an extension of credit described in paragraph (1), the creditor shall notify the relevant institution of higher education, in writing, of the amount of the extension of credit and the student on whose behalf credit is extended. The form of such written notification shall be subject to the regulations of the Agency.''.

(b) REGULATIONS.—

(1) DEADLINE FOR REGULATIONS.—Not later than 365 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Agency shall issue regulations in final form to implement paragraphs (3) and (9) of section 128(e) of the Truth in Lending Act, as amended by subsection (a). Such regulations shall become effective not later than 6 months after their date of issuance.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The regulations in effect pursuant to section 128(e) of the Truth in Lending Act as of the date of the enactment of this Act shall remain in effect until the effective date of the regulations issued under paragraph (1).

(c) STUDY AND REPORT ON PRIVATE EDUCATION LOANS AND PRIVATE EDUCATIONAL LENDERS.—

(1) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director and the Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Commissioners of the Federal Trade Commission, and the Attorney General, shall submit a report to the Committee on Financial Services and the Committee on Education and Labor of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs and the Committee on Health Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate on private education loans (as that term is defined in section 140 of the Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. 1650)) and private educational lenders (as that term is defined in such section).

(2) CONTENT.—The report required by this subsection shall examine, at a minimum, the following:

(A) the growth and changes of the private education loan market in the United States;

(B) factors influencing such growth and changes;

(C) the extent to which students and parents of students rely on private education loans to finance postsecondary education and the private education loan indebtedness of borrowers,

(D) the characteristics of private education loan borrowers, including the types of institutions of higher education they attend, socioeconomic characteristics (including income and education levels, racial characteristics, geographical background, age, and gender), what other forms of financing borrowers use to pay for education, whether they exhaust their federal loan options before taking out a private loan, whether such borrowers are dependent or independent students (as determined under part F of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965) or parents of such students, whether such borrowers are students enrolled in a program leading to a certificate, license or credential other than a degree, an associates degree, a baccalaureate degree, or a graduate or professional degree and, if practicable, employment and repayment behaviors;

(E) the characteristics of private educational lenders, including whether such creditors are for-profit, non-profit, or institutions of higher education;

(F) the underwriting criteria used by private educational lenders, including the use of cohort default rate (as such term is defined in section 435(m) of the Higher Education Act of 1965);

(G) the terms, conditions, and pricing of private education loans;

(H) the consumer protections available to private education loan borrowers, including the effectiveness of existing disclosures and requirements and borrowers' awareness and understanding about terms and conditions of various financial products;

(I) whether federal regulators and the public have access to information sufficient to provide them with assurances that private education loans are provided in accord with the Nation's fair lending laws and that allows public officials to determine lenders' compliance with fair lending laws; and

(J) any statutory or legislative recommendations necessary to improve consumer protections for private education loan borrowers and to better enable federal regulators and the public to ascertain private educational lender compliance with fair lending laws.

(d) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the issuance of regulations under subsection (b)(1), the Consumer Financial Protection Agency and the Secretary of Education shall jointly submit to Congress a report on the compliance of institutions and private educational lenders with the amendments made by this section. The report shall include the degree to which specific institutions utilize certifications in effectively encouraging the exhaustion of Federal student loan eligibility and lowering student debt.

Subtitle K—Home Affordable Modification Program

SEC. 9911. HOME AFFORDABLE MODIFICATION PROGRAM GUIDELINES.

(a) NET PRESENT VALUE INPUT DATA.—The Secretary of the Treasury (in this section referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall revise the supplemental directives and other guidelines for the Home Affordable Modification Program of the Making Home Affordable initiative of the Secretary of the Treasury, authorized under the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (Public Law 110–343), to require each mortgage servicer participating in such program to provide each borrower under a mortgage whose request for a mortgage modification under the Program is denied with all borrower-related and mortgage-related input data used in any net present value (NPV) analyses performed in connection with the subject mortgage. Such input data shall be provided to the borrower at the time of such denial.

(b) WEB-BASED SITE FOR NPV CALCULATOR AND APPLICATION.—

(1) NPV CALCULATOR.—In carrying out the Home Affordable Modification Program, the Secretary shall establish and maintain a site on the World Wide Web that provides a calculator for net present value analyses of a mortgage, based on the Secretary's methodology for calculating such value, that mortgagors can use to enter information regarding their own mortgages and that provides a determination after entering such information regarding a mortgage of whether such mortgage would be accepted or rejected for modification under the Program, using such methodology.

(2) DISCLOSURE.—Such Web site shall also prominently disclose that each mortgage servicer participating in such Program may use a method for calculating net present value of a mortgage that is different than the method used by such calculator.

(3) APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall make a reasonable effort to include on such World Wide Web site a method for homeowners to apply for a mortgage modification under the Home Affordable Modification Program.

(c) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF NPV METHODOLOGY, COMPUTER MODEL, AND VARIABLES.—The Secretary shall make publicly available, including by posting on a World Wide Web site of the Secretary—

(1) the Secretary's methodology and computer model, including all formulae used in such computer model, used for calculating net present value of a mortgage that is used by the calculator established pursuant to subsection (b); and

(2) all variables used in such net present value analysis.

(c) REQUIREMENTS FOR LIABILITY.—Section 21D of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78u–4) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (c) through (f) as subsections (d) through (g), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following:

''(c) REQUIREMENTS FOR LIABILITY.—A purchaser of a security given a rating by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization shall have the right to recover for damages if the process of determining the credit rating was—

''(1) grossly negligent, based on the facts and circumstances at the time the rating was issued; and

''(2) a substantial factor in the economic loss suffered by the investor.

No action shall be maintained to enforce any liability created under this subsection unless brought within 2 years after the discovery of the facts constituting the violation and within 3 years after the initial issuance of the rating.''.

Strike section 1109 and insert the following new section:

SEC. 1109. EMERGENCY FINANCIAL STABILIZATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Upon the written determination of the Council that a liquidity event exists that could destabilize the financial system (which determination shall be made upon a vote of not less than two-thirds of the members of the Council then serving) and with the written consent of the Secretary of the Treasury (after certification by the President that an emergency exists), the Corporation may create a widely-available program designed to avoid or mitigate adverse effects on systemic economic conditions or financial stability by guaranteeing obligations of solvent insured depository institutions or solvent depository institution holding companies (including any affiliates thereof), if necessary to prevent systemic financial instability during times of severe economic distress, except that a guarantee of obligations under this section may not include provision of equity in any form.

(b) POLICIES AND PROCEDURES.—Prior to exercising any authority under this section, the Corporation shall establish policies and procedures governing the issuance of guarantees. The terms and conditions of any guarantees issued shall be established by the Corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Financial Stability Oversight Council. Such terms and conditions may include the Corporation requiring collateral as a condition of any such guarantee.

(c) CAP FOR GUARANTEED AMOUNT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In connection with any program established pursuant to subsection (a) and subject to paragraph (2), the Corporation may not have guaranteed debt outstanding at any time of more than $500,000,000,000 (as indexed to reflect growth in assets of insured depository institutions and depository institution holding companies as determined by the Corporation).

(2) ADDITIONAL DEBT GUARANTEE AUTHORITY.—If the Corporation, with the concurrence of the Council and the Secretary (in consultation with the President), determines that the Corporation must guarantee debt in excess of $500,000,000,000 (as indexed pursuant to paragraph (1)) to prevent systemic financial instability, the Corporation may transmit to the Congress a request for authority to guarantee debt in excess of $500,000,000,000 (as indexed pursuant to paragraph (1)). Such request shall be considered granted by Congress upon adoption of a joint resolution approving such request. Such joint resolution shall be considered in the Senate under expedited procedures.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES AND COST OF GUARANTEES.—A program established pursuant to this section shall require funding only for the purposes of paying administrative expenses and for paying a guarantee in the event that a guaranteed loan defaults.

(2) FEES AND OTHER CHARGES.—The Corporation shall charge fees or other charges to all participants in such program established pursuant to this section to offset projected losses and administrative expenses. To the extent that a program established pursuant to this section has expenses or losses, the program will be funded entirely through fees or other charges assessed on participants in such program.

(3) EXCESS FUNDS.—If at the conclusion of such program there are any excess funds collected from the fees associated with such program, the funds will be deposited into the Systemic Dissolution Fund established pursuant to section 1609(n).

(4) AUTHORITY OF CORPORATION.—For purposes of conducting a program established pursuant to this section, the Corporation—

(A) may borrow funds from the Secretary of the Treasury, which shall be repaid in full with interest through fees and charges paid by participants in accordance with paragraph (2), and there shall be available to the Corporation amounts in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, including for the payment of reasonable administrative expenses;

(B) may not borrow funds from the Deposit Insurance Fund established pursuant to section 11(a)(4) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act; and

(C) may not borrow funds from the Systemic Dissolution Fund established pursuant to section 1609(n).

(5) BACK-UP SPECIAL ASSESSMENT.—To the extent that the funds collected pursuant to paragraph (2) are insufficient to cover any losses or expenses (including monies borrowed pursuant to paragraph (4)) arising from a program established pursuant to this section, the Corporation shall impose a special assessment solely on participants in the program.

(e) PLAN FOR MAINTENANCE OR INCREASE OF LENDING.—In connection with any application or request to participate in such program authorized pursuant to this section, a solvent entity seeking to participate in such program shall be required to submit to the Corporation a plan detailing how the use of such guaranteed funds will facilitate the increase or maintenance of such solvent company's level of lending to consumers or small businesses.

(f) SUNSET OF CORPORATION'S AUTHORITY.—The Corporation's authority under subsections (a) and (d) and the authority to borrow funds from the Treasury under section 1609(o) shall expire on December 31, 2013.

(g) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of this section, a guarantee of deposits held by insured depository institutions shall not be treated as a debt guarantee program.

(h) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the following definitions apply:

(1) CORPORATION.—The term ''Corporation'' means the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

(2) DEPOSITORY INSTITUTION HOLDING COMPANY.—The term ''depository institution holding company'' has the meaning given the term in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813).

(3) INSURED DEPOSITORY INSTITUTION.—The term ''insured depository institution'' has the meaning given the term in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813).

(4) SOLVENT.—The term ''solvent'' means assets are more than the obligations to creditors.

Page 110, after line 7, insert the following new section (and redesignate the subsequent sections accordingly):

SEC. 1110. ADDITIONAL RELATED AMENDMENTS.

(a) FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT RELATED AMENDMENTS.—

(1) SUSPENSION OF PARALLEL FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT AUTHORITY.—Effective upon the date of the enactment of this section through December 31, 2013, the Corporation may not exercise its authority under section 13(c)(4)(G)(i) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1823(c)(4)(G)(i)) to establish any widely-available debt guarantee program for which section 1109 would provide authority.

(2) FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT AUTHORITY PRESERVED.—Effective December 31, 2013, the Corporation shall have the same authority pursuant to section 13(c)(4)(G)(i) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act as the Corporation had prior to the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) EFFECT OF DEFAULT ON AN FDIC GUARANTEE.—If an insured depository institution or depository institution holding company participating in a program under section 1109 or any participant in a debt guarantee program established pursuant to section 13(c)(4)(G)(i) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act defaults on any obligation guaranteed by the Corporation after the date of enactment of this Act, the Corporation may—

(1) appoint itself as receiver for the insured depository institution that defaults;

(2) with respect to any other participating company that is not an insured depository institution that defaults—

(A) require consideration of whether a determination shall be made as provided in section 1603 to resolve the company under subtitle G; and

(B) if the Corporation is not appointed receiver pursuant to subtitle G within 30 days of the date of default, require the company to file a petition for bankruptcy under section 301 of title 11, United States Code, or file a petition for bankruptcy against the company under section 303 of title 11, United States Code.

(c) AUTHORITY TO FILE INVOLUNTARY PETITION FOR BANKRUPTCY.—Section 303 of title 11, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(m) Notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b), an involuntary case may be commenced by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation against a depository institution holding company as defined in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813) or other company participating in a guarantee program established by the Corporation on the ground that the company has defaulted on a debt or obligation guaranteed by the Corporation.''.

(d) BANKRUPTCY PRIORITY FOR DEFAULTS ON DEBT GUARANTEED PURSUANT TO SECTION 1109.—Section 507(a)(9) of title 11, United States Code, is amended by inserting before the period at the end the following: ''and allowed unsecured claims based upon any debt to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation that arose prior to the commencement of the case under this title, as a result of the debtor's default on a guarantee provided by the Corporation pursuant to section 1109 of the Financial Stability Improvement Act of 2009 or the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, under a program established by the Corporation after the date of enactment of the Financial Stability Improvement Act of 2009''.

''(15) PERSON-TO-PERSON LENDING.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Any consumer loan, and any note representing a whole or fractional interest in any such loan, funded or sold through a person-to-person lending platform.

''(B) DEFINITIONS.— For purposes of this paragraph:

''(i) CONSUMER LOAN.—The term 'consumer loan' means a loan made to a natural person, the proceeds of which are intended primarily for personal, family, educational, household, or business use.

''(ii) PERSON-TO-PERSON LENDING PLATFORM.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—The term 'person-to-person lending platform' means an Internet website, the primary purpose of which is to provide a transaction platform for the funding or sale of individual consumer loans, or the sale of notes representing whole or fractional interests in individual consumer loans, by matching natural persons who wish to obtain such loans with persons who wish to fund them, or by matching persons who wish to sell such loans or notes with persons who wish to purchase them.

''(II) PROHIBITION ON MULTIPLE LOANS IN A SINGLE TRANSACTION.—The term 'person-to-person lending platform' does not include any platform on which multiple loans may be funded or sold in a single transaction, or on which a note representing an interest in multiple loans or other debt obligations may be sold.''.

(b) REGULATION BY THE AGENCY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Primary jurisdiction for the regulation of the lending activities of person-to-person lending and person-to-person lending platforms is hereby vested in the Agency.

(2) INTERIM REQUIREMENTS.—Until the Director issues and adopts disclosure requirements with respect to the sale of consumer loans, or notes representing whole or fractional interests therein, on person-to-person lending platforms, a person-to-person lending platform that registers the offer and sale of any such notes under the Securities Act of 1933 shall, with respect to such registered offer and sale, provide the disclosure required under the Securities Act of 1933 to be contained in the registration statement and prospectus and provide such disclosure required in any periodic reports required to be filed by such person-to-person lender pursuant to section 13 or section 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, the terms ''consumer loan'', ''person-to-person lending platform'', ''prospectus'', and ''registration statement'' shall have the meaning given such term under the Securities Act of 1933.

(c) RULEMAKING.—The Director may prescribe such regulations and issue such orders as the Director considers necessary or appropriate to implement the provisions of this section and to provide borrower protection, lender protection, consumer choice, and expanded consumer access to fair and reasonable credit choices.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Notwithstanding section 4310, this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this title.

Page 699, line 13, strike ''and''.

(vi) the nature, range, and size of variations between the credit scores sold to creditors and those sold to consumers by consumer reporting agencies that compile and maintain files on consumers on a nationwide basis (as defined in section 603(p) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act; 15 U.S.C. 1681a(p)), and whether such variations disadvantage consumers;

(3) CONSIDER AS UNFAIR CERTAIN PRACTICES WITH REGARD TO THE PROVISION OF CREDIT SCORES.—Subject to regulations prescribed by the Director, it shall be considered unfair for any consumer reporting agency that compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis (as defined in section 603(p) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act; 15 U.S.C. 1681a(p)) to make available for purchase by creditors any credit score for a consumer that is not also available for purchase by that consumer at the same price as other credit scores sold to consumers by such agency.

In section 4109(f) (as modified pursuant to the rule providing for the consideration of the bill and contained in the amendment designated MWB_05), strike paragraph (3) and insert the following:

(3) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), an attorney's activities related to assisting another person in preventing a foreclosure shall be subject to this title except to the extent such activities constitute, or are incidental to, the provision of legal services to a client of the attorney.

(l) EXCLUSION FOR ACTIVITIES RELATING TO CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.—

(1) The Director and the Agency may not exercise any rulemaking, supervisory, enforcement, or other authority, including authority to order assessments or penalties, over any activities related to the solicitation or making of voluntary contributions to or through a tax-exempt organization as recognized by the Internal Revenue Service, by any agent, volunteer or representative of such organizations to the extent the organization, agent, volunteer or representative thereof is soliciting or providing advice, information, education or instruction to donor(s) or potential donor(s) relating to a contribution to or through the organization.

(2) This exclusion shall not apply to other activities not described in the paragraph above and are financial activities as described in any subparagraph of section 4002(19), or otherwise subject to any of the enumerated consumer laws, or the authorities transferred under subtitle F or H.

In the last section title I of the bill (as added pursuant to the rule providing for the consideration of the bill and contained in the amendment designated ''TARP—001''), strike ''$22,059,000,000,'' and insert ''23,625,000,000''.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) and a Member opposed each will control 15 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I yield 30 seconds to my colleague from Massachusetts (Ms. TSONGAS).

Ms. TSONGAS. Madam Chair, I urge adoption of Mr. FRANK's amendment, which includes my amendments to guarantee that consumers have the same access to their credit scores that lenders now have.

I have heard from a number of my constituents, like Carla Welsh from Concord, Massachusetts, that ''it seems unthinkable to me that . . . consumers would be placed in the dark in regard to their creditworthiness.''

I'm proud to say that the manager's amendment levels the playing field for consumers. I urge my colleagues to support the manager's amendment and the underlying bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I will now yield 2½ minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MCCARTHY).

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. I would like to ask the gentleman from Massachusetts, the distinguished chairman, to engage in a short colloquy.

I would like to clarify how the analysis of systemic risk and assessment factors would be applied by the Financial Services Oversight Council and for dissolution fund assessments.

Is it the chairman's intention that the factors used for identifying companies subject to stricter standards should be applied in light of the more detailed and balanced risk matrix set out in the dissolution fund section of the bill?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. If the gentlewoman will yield, as the gentlewoman knows, there was a clerical glitch at the last minute so that we missed by a very narrow margin a submission time for the Rules Committee. And what I am glad to have the chance to do now is to agree with the gentlewoman, who has been working diligently on this, that this language will go if we have anything to say about it, as we will, into the conference report.

So the answer is yes.

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. I thank the chairman and look forward to working with him as the process moves forward.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, I rise to claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Alabama is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT).

Mr. BARTLETT. Madam Chair, it's not surprising that this legislation, like much of the legislation, might have an unintended consequence. And one of my constituents pointed out just such in this legislation.

I took the problem to the chairman, and he very graciously has fixed it in his manager's amendment.

I yield to him so that he can explain.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

We are trying here to prevent fraud in the various programs. In the subprime mortgage bill, which we are reenacting here, which the House voted on, we put in some very strict restrictions against people who had a pattern or a history of fraud. But the gentleman from Maryland pointed out quite correctly that it was overly rigid, that it excluded, in the case of someone he knew, someone who many, many years ago had been involved in an unrelated situation where culpability was uncertain, there was a criminal conviction, and what this does is to provide some needed flexibility for minor offenses that were long ago.

I thank the gentleman for calling it to our attention. We were pleased to be able to make this change.

Mr. BARTLETT. I want to thank the chairman very much for helping to solve this problem.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MILLER), who is an important author of much of this bill.

Mr. MILLER of North Carolina. I will include in my revised and extended remarks the verbatim colloquy on the point, but Mr. FRANK had asked that I simply explain one committee amendment offered by Mr. MOORE and by me and explain the revisions briefly here tonight on the floor.

The committee amendment and the revised amendment in the manager's amendment was originally a suggestion of Sheila Bair of the FDIC to get at one of the most infuriating episodes in the entire financial crisis. And the best example was the collapse and the rescue of AIG, which was not really about AIG but the counterparties to AIG. We have now heard that the counterparties, Morgan Stanley, Goldman Sachs, Societe Generale, Deutsche Bank, refused to take anything less than 100 cents on the dollar on what AIG owed them. According to the Special Inspector General for the TARP program's report, they did that in part because they had grabbed collateral for their debts in the last days of AIG's collapse so that they knew they could get paid in full even if AIG went into bankruptcy.

The FDIC believes it is better to take into resolution companies that are failing sooner rather than later so they don't arrive and find that every asset of the company has been pledged as collateral, which leads to a more expensive resolution, a less equitable resolution, and a resolution that inevitably is more disruptive of the economy.

It gets at two problems: One, the collateral grabs by taking a concept from bankruptcy, avoidable preference, where the company was insolvent and pledged collateral for existing debts in the last 90 days before the resolution, the FDIC can disregard it altogether, disregard the security altogether.

Then, second, the short-term collateralized lending without any market discipline, based entirely upon collateral, without any regard to the actual condition of the borrower of the company. The amendment gets at that by allowing some portion of that to be set aside, 10 percent to be disregarded, and then in limited circumstances, only short-term credit, 1 month or less, where the security is not a Treasury or other government-secured debt. It will impose some market discipline.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlelady from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO).

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, I would like to speak in opposition to the bill, but I would like to talk about the manager's amendment as well.

But before I get into the manager's amendment, I would like to reinforce my opposition to the bill in its entirety because of the permanent bailout fund that is created, the continuation of bailouts, the implied government guarantee in the financial marketplace, and the way that taxpayers are placed on the hook potentially for billions, if not trillions, of dollars to bail out failed nonbanks.

But specifically I would like to talk about the two parts of the manager's amendment that were added without specific discussion by the committee, to my knowledge, and it also goes to a larger point. We've labeled this bill TARP II. This goes back to TARP I and using TARP funds to fund things that the TARP money was not intended to go for. I voted against the TARP funding in the first place. And now in the manager's amendment we have another $4 billion in existing TARP funds going to unproven foreclosure relief programs; $3 billion to reinstate a 1975 program, the Emergency Homeowners' Relief Act, to provide emergency mortgage relief.

We just had a hearing in our committee this week on the Making Homes Affordable plan, the administration's plan, that in our opinion, I think, across the board in a bipartisan way is a bust. It has not met with much success, and it has murky, if uncertain, guidelines attached to it. So I think in this case strapping an unemployed homeowner with more debt is not the answer. Congress needs to support policies that create jobs and do not perpetuate any more bailouts.

The other part of this amendment adds another $1 billion for the Neighborhood Stabilization Program. This program is a costly bailout for lenders and speculators. This program also could have the unintended consequences of making foreclosure a more attractive option for lenders, thereby compounding the problem.

We've already committed in two separate times $6 billion to the Neighborhood Stabilization Program, and this adds another billion. I think we also need to consider that this program of the $4 billion allocated to it in 2008, only 25 percent of the funds are even out the door. What is adding another billion dollars going to do and when can those funds actually get out the door? And of the $1.9 billion allocated in January of 2009, not one dollar has made it through HUD's cumbersome bureaucracy.

I object to the fact that this was added onto the manager's amendment on a very complicated, thousand-page bill, but it also adds two additions on here that I believe were part of the reason that the bill has been held up through this week and part of the reason it was held up yesterday; it was to satisfy certain interests in this House, and I think we need to have them discussed in front of the whole committee and discussed in front of the whole House.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT), a major shaper of the best parts of this bill.

Mr. WATT. It is an inconvenient fact that the Constitution reserves certain rights to the States and allows the Federal Government to have certain rights. And it sometimes gets inconvenient for those people who profess to believe in States' rights that we have to accommodate them.

One of the most difficult parts of making the appropriate accommodation has been finding the right preemption of State law standards to put into this bill. I am deeply indebted to all of the members of the committee, particularly Ms. BEAN, who has been very active on this issue.

We worked out 10 different things on Federal preemption, some reserved to the States, some reserved to the Federal Government. And as I said at the very outset of the discussions about this, we knew we would find the right place to be on preemption if the consumer groups were unhappy and if the industry was unhappy. And we have succeeded in making both of them unhappy. And they are equally unhappy, so I think we have found the right balance on preemption.

That is about all I can say because I don't have time to go through the 10 things that we were able to agree on. Nobody is jumping up and down and threatening to shoot any of us, but I can tell you that everybody is kind of equally unhappy.

I appreciate the chairman giving me the opportunity to explain that. And I am sure nobody understands it, but that's okay.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, I recognize the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEUGEBAUER) for 3 minutes.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. There are a number of provisions in the manager's amendment that make this bill less bad. And really, we've come a long way from the bill that was originally introduced to the one that's on the floor now. We went through a very lengthy markup process. In many cases, sometimes during those markups we were able to make the bill better. In this manager's amendment, there are some changes that in fact do make this bill a little less egregious to me.

But the problem is, fundamentally, the bill still does what it originally started out to do, and that is to perpetuate bailouts in this country. One of the things that my colleagues and I have said from the very beginning is the American people are tired of bailouts. Unfortunately, this bill perpetuates bailouts in this country. We continue to reward bad behavior and punish good behavior, and this bill perpetuates that.

One of the things that also concerns me about this bill is that even with some improvements, it still becomes a job killer. For example, one of the provisions in this bill would give secured creditors a haircut. In other words, here is somebody that took collateral to make a loan, thought they were securitized, thought they were collateralized, and now at the end, arbitrarily they can be given a 20 percent haircut for their collateral. That is going to cause huge implications in the credit markets because these people, a small businessman, is going out to borrow money for his plant or equipment or other things, lenders making what they think are secured loans, and all of a sudden the lender finds himself at some point in time where their security is going to be shared with someone else.

The other piece of this is that this bill does something that I feel very strongly about, and that is, it limits the choices for consumers. I still believe that the American people are pretty smart people. I think it's their money, it's their credit, and they ought to have a lot more to say about the types of credit, the types of loans that they take out. They don't need the Federal Government telling them that this is the kind of loan we think is appropriate for you, this is the kind of student loan you should use to send your child to college, or this is the kind of car loan you should use. Or small businessman—this is the loan that we give small businesses, take it or leave it.

The other part of it is that this bill does something that I think is very egregious, and I think the American people ought to be outraged about. Here we are, Secretary Geithner gave the Democrats an early Christmas present. He said, you know what? That slush fund that we've got, we're going to keep it until next October. Man, a day doesn't go by and here we go, we're going to put our hand in the cookie jar here. In this bill, $4 billion out of the TARP money that was not represented to be used for these kinds of purposes, it was an emergency to stabilize the markets, but we're going to put our hand in the cookie jar and take $4 billion. By the way, it's $4 billion we didn't have to begin with; we had to go borrow that $4 billion.

Instead of taking the TARP money, the Treasury Secretary recently told us, he said, I think the financial markets are basically stabilized.

This is a bad bill, we should defeat it.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I now yield 2½ minutes to one of the strongest advocates of fairness and equity, and critics of lack of action to stop the foreclosure process, the gentlewoman from California, the Chair of the Housing Subcommittee, Ms. WATERS.

Ms. WATERS. Madam Chair, I rise in strong support of the manager's amendment to H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, and the underlying bill.

This bill will finally reform and rein in Wall Street and our financial system, triggered by greed and risk that caused this country to almost collapse. This bill addresses all of the elements of that collapse by allowing the government to wind down ''too big to fail'' institutions before their failure threatens the entire global economy, regulating risky over-the-counter derivatives, and requiring credit rating agencies to avoid the conflicts of interest that cause them to inflate the value of tax and assets.

Perhaps the most important part of this bill is the creation of a new Consumer Financial Protection Agency. This new agency's role will be to spot the next subprime crisis before it starts and prevent the next predatory product from stripping consumers of their homes and their wealth.

I would especially like to thank Financial Services Committee Chairman BARNEY FRANK for including a provision at the request of the members of the Congressional Black Caucus to use $3 billion in Troubled Asset Relief, TARP, dollars to provide low-interest loans to unemployed homeowners that are having difficulty making their mortgage payments. We also thank BARNEY FRANK for including another $1 billion to strengthen the Neighborhood Stabilization Program that will rehab foreclosed housing and also create jobs. This funding is needed because our current foreclosure prevention programs address the initial cause of our foreclosure crisis, subprime and predatory lending, and not the current cause, unemployment, which is at 10 percent nationally, and in minority communities 13 to 15 percent plus.

We know that these kinds of loans can work. Since 1983, Pennsylvania has run a very successful loan program—just ask Mr. CHAKA FATTAH—that has saved 42,700 unemployed homeowners from foreclosure.

Madam Chair, foreclosures and unemployment present a systemic risk to our economy. Therefore, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote ''yes'' on the manager's amendment and on H.R. 4173. This is a very important piece of legislation.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in strong opposition to the manager's amendment. I think the manager's amendment illustrates the contradictions between the statements we've heard from the other side and the actual substance of the legislation. I just want to point out three or four conflicts between what it says and what they say it says.

The changes in the majority's $150 billion permanent bailout fund actually contradict the will of the majority of the Financial Services Committee by undermining the orderly and expedient resolution of failed firms. The body will recall, members of the Financial Services Committee, that we adopted an amendment in the committee that eliminated the conservatorship authority and limited the receivership to 1 year. Chairman FRANK has basically said this is going to be a death panel; we're going to put these companies to death. And in committee, they were going to be given 1 year, but the manager's amendment comes back and extends the term limit for doing this to 3 years, 3 years in which these failed companies or counterparties or creditors won't be put to death, as the chairman said, but they will be subsidized out of this, I guess, $150 billion fund, or what could actually turn into another $50 billion if the Treasury asks the Congress to fund it with taxpayer money and adds an additional $50 billion.

This is another example of why we need the Republican substitute. Instead of picking which politically important firms we are going to let survive and which less connected firms we are going to let disappear and fail, in the Republican substitute, we utilize a fair, transparent, rules-based bankruptcy process to resolve and to liquidate these failed financial firms, not to keep them going at the expense of what could be billions of dollars. We think that the Republican alternative is the only real option for eliminating taxpayer bailouts.

The chairman of the Financial Services Committee is also fond of saying that this legislation puts an end to the too-big-to-fail policy, which led to the bailout of our GSEs, of AIG and of other financial firms. Despite this claim, the reality is quite different.

If you will look at page 45 of the manager's amendment, it specifically excludes Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac from the dissolution provisions of the underlying bill. In other words, if they fail, they are excluded. We don't wind them down. Why?

Well, these two companies were at the center of the subprime lending problems that caused the financial market meltdown. Taxpayers have already pumped more than $100 billion into these failed GSEs, and they are likely to lose $300 billion more. It is unconscionable that we are going to exempt these two firms—our GSEs—from this dissolution authority.

Finally, the last aspect I will mention—and this probably is as disturbing as anything—we are raiding this TARP program, rather than ending it, for another $4 billion. The manager's amendment diverts $4 billion from TARP to a number of other programs that the law was never intended to support. TARP was intended to be a temporary plan to restore the health of the credit markets and to protect the economy from systemic risk caused by the collapse of firms that the government, really, allowed to become too big to fail.

We heard promises all last fall that the money would go back to the taxpayers. Instead, now we are talking about surpluses. We are talking about money that hasn't been used. It is almost like this is a ''walking around'' fund, and we're just going to take money out of it and use it on this pet project or on that pet project or on this good idea or on that good idea. Here is the first of those things, and it is $4 billion. Again, we are not giving it back to the taxpayers, and those promises made last September are now being broken.

The President himself has said that he is extending TARP until October 10 of this year. What he is doing is turning it into a permanent bailout agency, into a kind of petty cash drawer for politically favored interests. Here we see the first one of those things—$4 billion. Part of it is $4 billion to help move this legislation across the finish line.

Let me close by saying we need to end TARP. That's the solution. We need to end it now. We need to require all repayments to go directly towards paying down the debt. That's the bottom line. End TARP right now. Require that all payments be used to pay down the debt. There is no surplus. There are only deficits and debts.

Madam Chair, I urge my colleagues to oppose this irresponsible breach of trust and this attack on our promises that we made last year.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. What is the time remaining on both sides, please, Madam Chair?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Massachusetts has 6½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Alabama has 2½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Alabama has the right to close.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. PERLMUTTER), who hasn't had enough floor time this week.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

The ranking member of the committee said that the Republican approach was to liquidate failed institutions. It is just the opposite, which is to let them linger and reorganize. That was the proposition made to us in Financial Services.

Madam Chair, my point here is to enter into a colloquy with the chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I had submitted an amount to exempt certain smaller banks and credit unions, which was not approved in the Rules Committee. It is my understanding that the legislation would give the new CFPA the authority to delegate the authority to conduct examinations and to enforce consumer protection provisions to the functional regulator for financial institutions that fall above the $10 billion asset threshold.

Would it be fair to say that the intent here is not to increase burdens on those institutions that have been good actors?

For example, if an institution has an onsite examination or audit team from their functional regulator, it would seem that adding a CFPA team to work with those already there would not be as big of a burden. However, if an institution's functional regulator has deemed that its consumer compliance record is strong and that the institution's regulator is doing an effective job, it would seem that subjecting them to CFPA examinations and enforcement would increase the regulatory burden on the institution.

Is this a situation where the chairman would envision the CFPA's delegating that authority back to the functional regulator under the authorities given in this legislation?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. If the gentleman would yield, with regard to the permanent audit team, they may be the largest institutions, and that is a somewhat separate question, but for those who don't have a permanent audit team, not only would it be better for the regulated entity, it would be better for the CFPA. As any agency, they will have limited resources. If you have a bank that has $13-, $14-, $17 billion in assets and has had a good record, as most of those banks have had in consumer affairs, it would be a great waste of regulatory resources to be doing that when they would have the option, instead, of simply sending a CFPA member to join the other team.

So, yes, I would hope that the CFPA would take full advantage of this authority with those banks.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I yield myself just 10 seconds to say that one of the Members whose business experience and general good judgment has been a very major asset for us is that of the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. BEAN). She has had a very significant and positive impact on this bill.

I will now yield her 2 minutes.

Ms. BEAN. I thank Chairman FRANK for yielding. I want to commend him and the committee for their hard work on this Financial Services regulatory reform bill we are considering today.

Madam Chair, Chairman FRANK's leadership and determination is the reason we are here on the verge of passing the most historic and comprehensive regulatory modernization of our financial system since the Great Depression.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the manager's amendment and in support for H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.

Included in the manager's amendment is compromise language I negotiated with the majority leader and with the administration to preserve the century-old precedent of national banks and Federal savings associations, which are chartered nationally, to operate, in some cases, under a uniform national set of rules.

The manager's amendment addresses key concerns many of my colleagues and I had with the underlying text, which included changes to existing law in preemption standard and judicial deference. The compromise allows for the national bank regulator to make case-by-case preemption determinations on an individual State's consumer financial laws and then apply that determination to categories of State consumer financial laws that have equivalent terms.

In addition, the amendment allows States to formally petition the CFPA to improve the Federal consumer protection standards. If a majority of States petition the CFPA by passing resolutions in their respective legislatures, they can require the CFPA to conduct rulemaking.

In regard to the underlying bill before us, I want to express my strong support. Reforming our financial system is vitally important to creating a functional and sustainable system that American families and businesses can count on.

Last September when we were at the precipice of financial collapse, we promised the American people that we would enact just such comprehensive reforms. This bill lives up to that promise. Passing it will reduce the severity of future downturns or the likelihood of the type of crisis and subsequent bailout that we experienced last year from everything happening again.

While there is much to be proud of, I want to emphasize the dissolution authority, which removes any implicit government guarantee or bailout.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield the gentlewoman an additional 15 seconds.

Ms. BEAN. This is the antibailout. That means when your company fails, you are fired. There will be consequences for your executives and your shareholders.

I urge my colleagues to support the manager's amendment and the underlying bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I will yield myself my remaining time.

How much is that?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Massachusetts has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I sympathize with the loss my Republican colleagues feel that we don't give a bailout for them, but this bill clearly repudiates it. First, they just today, as they did yesterday, made an issue out of the fact that we do include some bankruptcy, but their whole issue was bankruptcy. As the gentleman from Colorado said, there is nothing in their bill that prevents this from being extended ad infinitum under bankruptcy. Technically, we do have some time limitations, but that's part of bankruptcy.

Here is what we do say. If, in fact, the FDIC would decide with a failed institution to keep it going, it would do it without any funds. On page 397, there is established a separate fund to facilitate and provide for the orderly and complete dissolution of any failed financial company that poses a taxpayer threat.

Page 399, the fund shall be available to cover the costs incurred by the corporation as a receiver, repay such funds, cover the cost of systematic stabilization actions, not for the entity.

Then in 288, the corporation, such action—they shall only get involved if they think it's—they can only spend the money if it is necessary for the purpose of financial stability and not for the purpose of preserving the covered financial company. Yes, we are saying that in some cases, in a very complex institution, you may not be able to wipe it out in a year. That's what was pointed it to us. If you wiped it out prematurely, you may find yourself costing more money, not to the institution, in severance pay and other things for employees. This is very clear.

By the way, as to the permanence of this, the authority to borrow here is sunsetted in 2013. Yes, there will be a fund of assessment from private financial institutions. I know the Republicans do not want us to discommode the major financial institutions for this.

We levy on them for money that can be used. If a major institution fails, then the money can be used to manage that failure in a reasonable way. The biggest difference is that we try to stop the failure and they do nothing to try to stop it.

Mr. BACHUS. I yield myself the balance of the time.

The Acting CHAIR (Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland). The gentleman has 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. BACHUS. Let me say with AIG, the counterparties and creditors of the largest financial institutions were paid off dollar for dollar. I think we have all read that in the paper.

What this legislation does, it allows, in, quote, resolving this, it allows once again the creditors and the counterparties to be paid off. That is a bailout.

In AIG, it was a bailout of creditors and counterparties. That's what is provided for here.

I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING).

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Parliamentary inquiry.

The Acting CHAIR. Would the gentleman please state his inquiry.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Well, when a Member says he is reserving his time to close, is it permissible to split it? I just, for the future of the bill, want to know that. I had assumed the gentleman was closing, and I thought only one Member closes.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman still may yield.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Thank you, Madam Chair.

Mr. HENSARLING. Madam Chair, regardless of any particular inquiries, the inquiry the American people want to know is: Where are the jobs? Now, what we have seen from the Democrats, our friends on the other side of the aisle, is an attempt to spend our way into jobs, an attempt to borrow our way into jobs and now an attempt to bail out our way into jobs. And what is the result? The result is the highest unemployment rate in a generation, the first trillion dollar deficit in our Nation's history, and a tripling of the national debt in the next 10 years.

Bailouts do not work. The Democratic bill enshrines us as a bailout Nation. It still allows people to privatize their profits and socialize their losses.

Section 1609(n) of the underlying bill creates a permanent bailout fund. Now, maybe some aspect of it is sunset, but nowhere else do you find a permanent bailout fund is going to be sunset. I assume you create the bailout fund for bailouts. This is what will happen.

If the American people believe that we can bail out our way into more jobs and that somehow we will have less systemic risk, they ought to support it. If they are tired of the bailouts, they need to support the Republican bill that ends the bailout. Ultimately, under their plan, you will have more taxpayer bailouts.

Now, they told us, the Speaker told us, if we would pass TARP, that she would make sure the taxpayers were repaid. What do we have? We have another TARP grab here by the chairman of the committee for yet another taxpayer-funded foreclosure mitigation plan, when every single other taxpayer-funded foreclosure mitigation plan has failed. The only one that will work is a job. That's what we need—jobs, not bailouts.

Mr. MILLER of North Carolina. Madam Chair, I offer this statement for the RECORD to clarify the intent of the portion of this amendment regarding haircuts for secured creditors to help establish a clear legislative record for its implementation, and to clarify Mr. MOORE's and my intent regarding the extension of secured credit to systemically important financial institutions under the dissolution section of the legislation.

It is our intent to bring a degree of responsibility to the extension of collateralized credit to covered entities that may fail and fall within the resolution process this legislation creates. However we understand the importance of secured credit to a vital financial system and want to be clear on exactly what is and what is not covered by this amendment.

Only secured credit with terms of 30 days or shorter will be subject to the discretionary authority provided in the provisions of this section. FDIC's authority to apply up to a 10 percent haircut on secured credit positions is discretionary, but it may be applied only in the context of qualified financial contracts and then only if and when unsecured creditors and shareholders are wiped out. Further the authority does not apply to security interests in securities or debt issued, secured, or guaranteed by the Treasury, a federal agency, the Federal Reserve, or a Government Sponsored Enterprise.

Further this amendment makes clear that insured depository institutions, credit unions, and GSEs are not within the definition of a ''financial company'' for purposes of Subtitle G of this legislation. These institutions have a resolution process that is already firmly established in law.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I offer this statement to indicate that I agree with the interpretation of the Gentleman from North Carolina regarding his interpretation of the secured creditor haircut portion of the Manager's Amendment. Apparently, there are some people who feel that, even with the improvements to this provision in the Manager's Amendment, there are some who might interpret this incorrectly, and I would agree with the Gentleman that very explicit language reaffirming this interpretation could usefully be added at conference time.

Ms. FUDGE. Madam Chair, today this Congress and President Obama are taking critical steps in bringing our economy back from the brink of disaster. Reforming our financial system is one major part of restoring our economy's health.

I rise in support of an amendment Chairman BARNEY FRANK and I have offered requiring credit rating agencies to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Credit rating agencies provide a valuable service by issuing opinions on the creditworthiness of a company or debt. Investors and creditors rely on these ratings to determine if their investment and contractual decisions are sound. However, credit agencies' registration and oversight is entirely voluntary.

Why should agencies as important as credit rating agencies be permitted to opt out of regulatory oversight? There is no valid reason. Large, established rating agencies should not be able to avoid regulation designed to protect the financial system, consumers, investors, and taxpayers. Under our provision, for the first time, the Securities and Exchange Commission will have an office dedicated to broad oversight of credit rating agencies.

Registering these entities will provide greater accountability and transparency. This amendment will truly enhance oversight of credit rating agencies and protect investors, and I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment.

I commend Chairman FRANK for his tireless efforts to protect the American economy and taxpayers.

Mr. WAXMAN. Madam Chair, I want to commend Chairman FRANK for his diligent work on the issue of financial reform. He has listened to members, and the manager's amendment and the bill before us today contain several provisions that were drafted in negotiation and cooperation with the Energy and Commerce Committee. In particular, the Manager's amendment makes a number of technical changes that are essential to preserving the intent of the legislation with regard to Federal Trade Commission (FTC) enforcement of consumer laws.

While I am pleased that these technical changes were included, I want to note my concerns with a few of its provisions.

First, the amendment creates new definitions for ''unfair,'' ''deceptive,'' and ''abusive'' that I believe could restrict the ability of the new Consumer Financial Products Agency (CFPA) to protect consumers. This new definition of both ''unfair'' and ''deceptive'' would require CFPA to abide by 30 year-old Federal Trade Commission policy statements that are not even legally binding on FTC. Perhaps the intent of this new language is to have CFPA use the same definitional terms used by FTC, but this language does not achieve that goal. Instead, it could slow rulemaking and limit the flexibility of the new agency.

The new definition of ''abusive'' is similarly problematic. CFPA's authority to pursue abusive practices helps ensure that the agency can address payday lending and other practices that can result in pyramiding debt for low income families. Under the new definition of ''abusive,'' however, CFPA would be required to prove that a practice has an impact on the entire country's financial system, a restriction that could prevent the new agency from issuing important and long overdue rules.

Second, I am concerned about new language that exempts some activities of consumer reporting agencies, known as CRAs, from CFPA oversight. I believe that these changes could split enforcement of the Fair Credit Reporting Act in a problematic manner and may lead to holes in regulation, oversight, and enforcement.

Third, the exclusion for auto dealers included in the bill and modified in this amendment is inappropriate. A key mission of CFPA is to protect consumers as they secure credit and finance purchases. For many Americans, the car is the second largest purchase they will ever make. In a hearing this March, the Subcommittee on Commerce, Trade, and Consumer Protection heard about numerous abuses in the used and subprime car market. Witnesses testified about excessive dealership mark-ups that are hidden from consumers, financing deals that consumers are forced to renegotiate days or even weeks after they drive off the car lot, and hidden fees that can be added to loan amounts.

There is a clear federal government role in strengthening consumer protection in the car financing area. The CFPA should have full authority to prescribe rules and enforce against fraud in this area. In addition to my general concerns about the exclusion, I am further concerned that the exclusion is so broad that it would allow virtually any activities by auto dealers to be excluded from oversight and enforcement by CFPA. Under this provision, an auto dealer could open a payday loan operation, develop financial fraud scams, or form other businesses under the umbrella of the dealership and remain entirely outside of CFPA's reach. If this provision becomes law, I expect that the Energy and Commerce Committee will ask the Federal Trade Commission to take a close look at the practices of auto dealers and to issue rules and conduct enforcement as necessary.

Fourth, I remain concerned about the number of exclusions in the legislation and am troubled to find more in the Manager's amendment. For example, I believe that the exclusion for non-profit fundraising, while well-intentioned, would be ripe for abuse. As Chairman of the Oversight Committee, I held two hearings on abuses by fundraisers for veterans' charities. We found questionable charities and telemarketers who abused the public trust and took money from unsuspecting people. We found for-profit mailers and fundraisers creating charities in order to create work for themselves. A broad exclusion from CFPA authority could allow these fraudulent organizations to proliferate.

Fifth, language in the Manager's amendment would add additional burdens to CFPA's rulemaking. We want CFPA to be strong and nimble. Yet, under this provision, CFPA would not be allowed to issue a ''one-size-fits-all regulation of nonbank products.'' Instead, it would be allowed only to issue ''product specific rules.'' This sounds innocuous and these terms are not defined but I anticipate that they could tie up any rulemaking proceedings. For example, if CFPA were to issue a rule governing disclosures for loans, some could argue that this provision would require the agency to issue separate, duplicative rules for each type of entity making loans. This provision could slow CFPA from prescribing important consumer protection rules that apply uniformly to all nondepository institutions.

Mr. Chair, again, I want to thank Chairman FRANK for working with me, and I look forward to continuing to work on this legislation. I am hopeful that, together, we can work through these issues as this bill moves through the legislative process.

Ms. WATERS. Madam Chair, I rise in strong support of the Manager's Amendment to H.R. 4173, the ''Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009'' and the underlying bill.

This bill will reform Wall Street and our financial system by ensuring that another financial collapse never happens again. The bill addresses all of the elements of that collapse by allowing the government to wind down ''too big to fail'' institutions before their failure threatens the entire global economy, regulating risky over-the-counter derivatives, and requiring credit rating agencies to avoid the conflicts of interest that caused them to inflate the value of toxic assets.

Perhaps the most important part of this bill is the creation a new Consumer Financial Protection Agency. This new agency's role will be to spot the next subprime crisis before it starts, and prevent the next predatory product from stripping consumers of their homes and their wealth.

I would especially like to thank Financial Services Committee Chairman BARNEY FRANK for including a provision, at the request of the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC), to use $3 billion in Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) dollars to provide low-interest loans to unemployed homeowners that are having difficulty making their mortgage payments.

This funding is needed because our current foreclosure prevention programs address the initial cause of our foreclosure crisis—subprime and predatory lending—and not the current cause, unemployment, which is at 10 percent nationally.

We know that these kinds of loans can work. Since 1983, Pennsylvania has run a very successful loan program that has saved 42,700 unemployed homeowners from foreclosure.

Madam Chair, foreclosures and unemployment present a systemic risk to our economy. Therefore, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote ''yes'' on the Manager's Amendment and on H.R. 4173.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. SESSIONS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk, amendment No. 2.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam Chair, since 2002, Congress has significantly built upon the budget, the payroll, and the authorities of the Securities and Exchange Commission to provide proper investor and consumer protections. Among the SEC's many responsibilities is handling regulatory disputes, which they were engaged in on a day-to-day basis.

The bill we are considering today once again increases the Securities and Exchange Commission budget by doubling their multibillion dollar budget, by doubling their multibillion dollar budget. My Democratic colleagues claim that the additional monies will provide additional protection for consumers and investors. However, instead of allowing the Securities and Exchange Commission to use these new resources assigned in this legislation to enhance enforcement, my friends on the other side of the aisle, in this bill, assign new private rights of actions to allow trial lawyers to run wild with enforcement capacities.

Madam Chair, I know that my friends, the Democrats, want both bigger government and an open house for trial lawyers. If they double the SEC's budget to ensure the necessary protections, then why would they also open this up to trial lawyers as well?

For these reasons, I have introduced amendment No. 2, which strikes the provisions creating a new private right of action against credit rating agencies. Despite the fact that the SEC is already handling regulatory disputes with no backlog, this new provision allows trial lawyers to take regulatory enforcement into their own hands in the form of frivolous, unnecessary lawsuits. When it comes to a case of fraud, investors already have the right to sue credit rating agencies.

This provision is completely unnecessary, and I encourage all of my colleagues to support my amendment to allow the SEC to do their job.

I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman, my friend from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT) to control.

□ 1810

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I thank the Chair. How much time do we have?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman has 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I'll yield myself 2 minutes.

The American public has stated, and I said so on the floor the other night, that it's looking for Congress to do three things: first, make sure that we have no more bailouts; secondly, make sure that whatever legislation we do does not create anymore impediments to job creation; and thirdly, let's make sure that we don't lead to a bigger, more expensive, more expansive government.

Well, we have seen over the past several days now that the legislation before us would do the wrong thing on each point. It'll create more bailouts. It will hurt job creation. And it will create larger government. Now, to the underlying portion of this bill here dealing with credit rating agencies, we all know that it was bipartisan action taken by this Congress back in 2006 when we passed the bipartisan Credit Rating Agency Reform Act. And what did that do? That formalized the registration process of credit rating agencies to become nationally recognized statistical rating organizations.

What are we about to do here? Throw that out the window before it's fully implemented, before we fully have had the opportunity to see it roll out and be played out as Congress intended it to in a bipartisan manner. We're about to throw that out. To what end?

Well, as the gentleman from Texas just pointed out, to the end that you will allow for less competition in the CRAs, credit rating agencies, with, furthermore, unintended consequences that will be detrimental to the market and investors. What does that mean to people back at home? That means that it will be harder for them to make the evaluations that are necessary for the industry. That means it will be harder for credit to be obtained in the marketplaces, and what that means for businesses, of course, harder for them to get the credit they need to expand and create jobs.

This amendment here is necessary to counter all the aspects of this bill so that we can work hard to make sure that we create jobs in this country, make sure that businesses that need credit can get the credit they need, make sure that businesses that need to be able and want to expand are able to expand.

This amendment is a positive amendment. I support this amendment.

I reserve my time.

Mr. SHERMAN. Madam Chair, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHERMAN. I now yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KANJORSKI), the Chair of the relevant subcommittee, for 1 minute.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

During the argument, my good friend, the ranking member of my subcommittee from New Jersey, made a point. Now I understand why we're at loggerheads here. His comment was that we were enacting this piece of legislation to prevent any further bailouts. I only want to call your attention to the promise I made to the American people that we have no more financial crises. The bailouts follow the crises. We won't have to have bailouts if we don't have crises.

And if we had responsible activity by rating agencies we wouldn't have had the tremendous failure last year of so many securitized operations that our friends around the world and most of the American people felt they were outright cheated by the American government, because there were agencies out there that had gave them 3-plus ratings to securities that didn't deserve it.

Now, what we're doing here is saying a simple thing. You want to make those bad ratings? You don't want to follow the decorum of your own plans? If you want to put at risk investors, you will suffer the consequences and pay for your gross negligence. This is an integral part of this amendment and absolutely essential.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I still reserve.

Mr. SHERMAN. Does the gentleman from New Jersey have only one more speaker? Then at this point I'll yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO).

Mr. CAPUANO. Ladies and gentlemen, this amendment is actually quite simple. As Mr. KANJORSKI said, it's absolutely essential to this bill. Without this particular amendment, credit rating agencies will not be held accountable for anything they do. Simply put, the SEC has failed to do anything, and any limited action is limited by the First Amendment. They have got a decision in the courts of law that their provisions, that their expenditures have been protected by the First Amendment. You cannot sue them.

All this does—and it's a very high standard—it holds them to the same standards—and we'll read it—the same standards with respect to knowledge and recklessness as everybody else. If they know what they're saying is bad, or they know it is wrong, they should be held accountable. If they are reckless by not looking at an accounting report, they should be held accountable. That's all this does. It's actually a pretty high standard. I would actually like it a little lower because I have a lot of trial attorneys that need the work.

But more importantly, what Mr. KANJORSKI said is 100 percent right. All this does is protect the American economy, a minor little thing. And we have to go back many, many years. Tell me the last time a credit rating agency was held accountable for giving a AAA rating to a piece of junk. Enron, junk bonds, credit default swaps, credit default options squared; they're never held accountable. All this says is they have to actually look at the books, they have to use anything they know, and they cannot be reckless about it. That's all it says.

It doesn't say they're held accountable if they're wrong, nor should they be. A legitimate error is fine. All this says is they have to be held accountable to the American public when they basically don't do their job.

Mr. SHERMAN. I reserve the right to close.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I believe that it's our right to close. It's our amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California has the right to close.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Then I will yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) my remaining time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam Chairman, my friends who are arguing on behalf of trial lawyers usually argue on behalf of government, and now we're hearing about how government's really not empowered and really not going to do their job. But, at the same time, we look at a lower standard in this bill where we take it from knowingly or recklessly or grossly negligent to just gross negligence, a lower standard. This lower standard is there to help the trial lawyers. Trial lawyers do not build value in this country. They diminish the value.

We need to give the SEC the authority, the responsibility. We're already giving them the money. The SEC will double in size of the amount of money that they get as a result of this bill. We're empowering the SEC to do their job. We should not lower the standard and then allow the trial bar to come after what should be an enforcement action. An enforcement action is what this statute should be all about with the credit rating agencies.

I'll support my amendment.

Mr. SHERMAN. First, let's set the record straight. Republicans are coming to this floor calling this a bailout bill. They're quoting my statement that the original draft of the bill was TARP on steroids. The fact is this bill now reins in executive branch bailout authority, and the Republican substitute is the thing to vote for if you want to be a bailout nation.

Second, I want to thank the Chair of the committee for including my revisions of section 1109 in the manager's amendment. Now as to this amendment. The bill's language is designed to hold credit rating agencies accountable. These are the agencies that gave AAA to Alt-A; that is to say, they gave the highest ratings to bad mortgage bonds, and nothing did more to put us in this recession than the trillions of dollars that investors bet on these bad mortgages, only to see the whole thing unwind.

Now we provide that they will be held accountable. The SEC has taken no enforcement action. All of the incentives in the present system push in the wrong direction. The way a credit rating agency gets business is to get a reputation for being a liberal grader, so that one issuer after another will hire them to give the high rating to their bad bonds. It's like the umpire being selected by the home team. Instead, we need to put pressure on the other side and say that if you are grossly negligent in assigning a high rating to bad bonds that hurt investors and also hurt the entire economy, you will be held accountable.

Now is the time to change the system, to make sure that the economic pressures on credit rating agencies are not all on the side of a liberal rating. We need to make it clear to credit rating agencies if you give AAA to Alt-A, you'll pay.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. PETERSON

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 3 offered by Mr. PETERSON:

Page 481, strike line 8 and all that follows through page 665, line 6, and insert the following:

TITLE III—DERIVATIVE MARKETS TRANSPARENCY AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

SEC. 3001. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009''.

SEC. 3002. REVIEW OF REGULATORY AUTHORITY.

(a) CONSULTATION.—

(1) CFTC.—Before commencing any rulemaking or issuing an order regarding swaps, swap dealers, major swap participants, swap repositories, persons associated with a swap dealer or major swap participant, eligible contract participants, or swap execution facilities pursuant to subtitle A, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall consult with the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Prudential Regulators.

(2) SEC.—Before commencing any rulemaking or issuing an order regarding security-based swaps, security-based swap dealers, major security-based swap participants, security-based swap repositories, persons associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, eligible contract participants with regard to security-based swaps, or swap execution facilities pursuant to subtitle B, the Securities and Exchange Commission shall consult with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Prudential Regulators.

(3) In developing and promulgating rules or orders pursuant to this subsection, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission shall consider each other's views and the views of the Prudential Regulators.

(4) In adopting a rule or order described in paragraph (1) or (2), the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission shall treat functionally or economically similar products or entities similarly.

(5) Paragraph (4) shall not be construed to require the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or the Securities Exchange Commission to adopt a rule or order that treats functionally or economically similar products or entities identically.

(b) LIMITATION.—

(1) CFTC.—Nothing in this title, unless specifically provided, shall be construed to confer jurisdiction on the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to issue a rule, regulation, or order providing for oversight or regulation of—

(A) security-based swaps; or

(B) with regard to their activities or functions concerning security-based swaps—

(i) security-based swap dealers;

(ii) major security-based swap participants;

(iii) security-based swap repositories;

(iv) persons associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant;

(v) eligible contract participants with respect to security-based swaps; or

(vi) swap execution facilities.

(2) SEC.—Nothing in this title, unless specifically provided, shall be construed to confer jurisdiction on the Securities and Exchange Commission to issue a rule, regulation, or order providing for oversight or regulation of—

(A) swaps; or

(B) with regard to their activities or functions concerning swaps—

(i) swap dealers;

(ii) major swap participants;

(iii) swap repositories;

(iv) persons associated with a swap dealer or major swap participant;

(v) eligible contract participants with respect to swaps; or

(vi) swap execution facilities.

(c) OBJECTION TO COMMISSION REGULATION.—

(1) FILING OF PETITION FOR REVIEW.—If either Commission referred to in this section believes that a final rule, regulation, or order of the other such Commission conflicts with subsection (a)(4) or (b), then the complaining Commission may obtain review thereof in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit by filing in the court, not later than 60 days after the date of publication of the final rule, regulation, or order, a written petition requesting that the rule, regulation, or order be set aside. Any such proceeding shall be expedited by the Court of Appeals.

(2) TRANSMITTAL OF PETITION AND RECORD.—A copy of a petition described in paragraph (1) shall be transmitted not later than 1 business day after filing by the complaining Commission to the Secretary of the responding Commission. On receipt of the petition, the responding Commission shall file with the court a copy of the rule, regulation, or order under review and any documents referred to therein, and any other materials prescribed by the court.

(3) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—The court, giving deference to the views of neither Commission, shall determine to affirm or set aside a rule, regulation, or order of the responding Commission under this subsection, based on the determination of the court, as to whether the rule, regulation, or order is in conflict with subsection (a)(4) or (b), as applicable.

(4) JUDICIAL STAY.—The filing of a petition by the complaining Commission pursuant to paragraph (1) shall operate as a stay of the rule, regulation, or order, until the date on which the determination of the court is final (including any appeal of the determination).

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms ''Prudential Regulators'', ''swap'', ''swap dealer'', ''major swap participant'', ''swap repository'', ''person associated with a swap dealer or major swap participant'', ''eligible contract participant'', ''swap execution facility'', ''security-based swap'', ''security-based swap dealer'', ''major security-based swap participant'', ''security-based swap repository'', and ''person associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant'' shall have the meanings provided, respectively, in the Commodity Exchange Act, including any modification of the meanings under section 3101(b) of this Act.

(e)(1) Notwithstanding subsections (b) and (c), the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities Exchange Commission shall jointly adopt rules to—

(A) define the terms ''security-based swap agreement'' in section 3(a)(76) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and ''swap'' in section 1a(35)(A)(v) of the Commodity Exchange Act;

(B) require the maintenance of records of all activities related to transactions defined in subparagraph (A) that are not cleared; and

(C) make available to the Securities and Exchange Commission information relating to transactions defined in subparagraph (A) that are uncleared.

(2) In the event that the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities Exchange Commission fail to jointly prescribe rules pursuant to paragraph (1) in a timely manner, at the request of either Commission, the Financial Services Oversight Council shall resolve the dispute—

(A) within a reasonable time after receiving the request;

(B) after consideration of relevant information provided by each Commission; and

(C) by agreeing with one of the Commissions regarding the entirety of the matter or by determining a compromise position.

SEC. 3003. INTERNATIONAL HARMONIZATION.

(a) In order to promote effective and consistent global regulation of contracts of sale of swaps and security-based swaps, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Prudential Regulators (as defined in section 1a(42) of the Commodity Exchange Act), as appropriate, shall consult and coordinate with foreign regulatory authorities on the establishment of consistent international standards with respect to the regulation of contracts of sale of swaps and security-based swaps, and may agree to such information-sharing arrangements as may be deemed to be necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors, swap counterparties, and security-based swap counterparties.

(b) In order to promote effective and consistent global regulation of contracts of sale of a commodity for future delivery, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall consult and coordinate with foreign regulatory authorities on the establishment of consistent international standards with respect to the regulation of contracts of sale of a commodity for future delivery, and may agree to such information-sharing arrangements as may be deemed necessary or appropriate in the public interest for the protection users of contracts of sale of a commodity for future delivery.

SEC. 3004. PROHIBITION AGAINST GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No provision of this title shall be construed to authorize Federal assistance to support clearing operations or liquidation of a derivatives clearing organization described in the Commodity Exchange Act or a clearing agency described in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, except where explicitly authorized by an Act of Congress.

(b) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of this section, the term ''Federal assistance'' means the use of public funds for the purposes of—

(1) making loans to, or purchasing any debt obligation of, a derivatives clearing organization, a clearing agency, or a subsidiary of either;

(2) purchasing assets of a derivatives clearing organization, a clearing agency, or a subsidiary of either;

(3) assuming or guaranteeing the obligations of a derivatives clearing organization, a clearing agency, or a subsidiary of either; or

(4) acquiring any type of equity interest or security of a derivatives clearing organization, a clearing agency, or a subsidiary of either.

SEC. 3005. STUDIES.

(a) STUDY ON EFFECTS OF POSITION LIMITS ON TRADING ON EXCHANGES IN THE UNITED STATES.—

(1) STUDY.—The Commodity Futures Trading Commission, in consultation with each entity that is a designated contract market under the Commodity Exchange Act, shall conduct a study of the effects (if any) of the position limits imposed pursuant to the other provisions of this titleon excessive speculation and on the movement of transactions from exchanges in the United States to trading venues outside the United States.

(2) REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.—Within 12 months after the imposition of position limits pursuant to the other provisions of this title, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, in consultation with each entity that is a designated contract market under the Commodity Exchange Act, shall submit to the Congress a report on the matters described in paragraph (1).

(3) Within 30 legislative days after the submission to the Congress of the report described in paragraph (2), the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives shall hold a hearing examining the findings of the report.

(4) In addition to the study required in paragraph (1), the Chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall prepare and submit to the Congress biennial reports on the growth or decline of the derivatives markets in the United States and abroad, which shall include assessments of the causes of any such growth or decline, the effectiveness of regulatory regimes in managing systemic risk, a comparison of the costs of compliance at the time of the report for market participants subject to regulation by the United States with the costs of compliance in December 2008 for the market participants, and the quality of the available data. In preparing the report, the Chairman shall solicit the views of, consult with, and address the concerns raised by, market participants, regulators, legislators, and other interested parties.

(b) STUDY ON FEASIBILITY OF REQUIRING USE OF STANDARDIZED ALGORITHMIC DESCRIPTIONS FOR FINANCIAL DERIVATIVES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall conduct a joint study of the feasibility of requiring the derivatives industry to adopt standardized computer-readable algorithmic descriptions which may be used to describe complex and standardized financial derivatives.

(2) GOALS.—The algorithmic descriptions defined in the study shall be designed to facilitate computerized analysis of individual derivative contracts and to calculate net exposures to complex derivatives. The algorithmic descriptions shall be optimized for simultaneous use by:

(A) commercial users and traders of derivatives;

(B) derivative clearing houses, exchanges and electronic trading platforms;

(C) trade repositories and regulator investigations of market activities; and

(D) systemic risk regulators.

The study will also examine the extent to which the algorithmic description, together with standardized and extensible legal definitions, may serve as the binding legal definition of derivative contracts. The study will examine the logistics of possible implementations of standardized algorithmic descriptions for derivatives contracts. The study shall be limited to electronic formats for exchange of derivative contract descriptions and will not contemplate disclosure of proprietary valuation models.

(3) INTERNATIONAL COORDINATION.—In conducting the study, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall coordinate the study with international financial institutions and regulators as appropriate and practical.

(4) REPORT.—Within 8 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall jointly submit to the Committees on Agriculture and on Financial Services of the House of Representatives and the Committees on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry and on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate a written report which contains the results of the study required by paragraphs (1) through (3).

(c) STUDY OF DESIRABILITY AND FEASIBILITY OF ESTABLISHING SINGLE REGULATOR FOR ALL TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING FINANCIAL DERIVATIVES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Treasury, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and the Securities and Exchange Commission shall conduct a joint study of the desirability and feasibility of establishing, by January 1, 2012, a single regulator for all transactions involving financial derivatives.

(2) REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.—Not later than December 1, 2010, Secretary of the Treasury, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and the Securities and Exchange Commission shall jointly submit to the Committees on Agriculture and on Financial Services of the House of Representatives and the Committees on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry and on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate a written report that contains the results of the study required by paragraph (1).

SEC. 3006. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR CHANGES TO INSOLVENCY LAWS.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and the Prudential Regulators (as defined in section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended by section 3111 of this Act) shall transmit to Congress recommendations for legislative changes to the Federal insolvency laws—

(1) in order to enhance the legal certainty with respect to swap participants clearing non-proprietary swap positions with a swap clearinghouse, including—

(A) customer rights to recover margin deposits or custodial property held at or through an insolvent swap clearinghouse, or clearing participant; and

(B) the enforceability of clearing rules relating to the portability of customer swap positions (and associated margin) upon the insolvency of a clearing participant;

(2) to clarify and harmonize the insolvency law framework applicable to entities that are both commodity brokers (as defined in section 101(6) of title 11, United States Code) and registered brokers or dealers (as defined in section 3(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a))); and

(3) to facilitate the portfolio margining of securities and commodity futures and options positions held through entities that are both futures commission merchants (as defined in section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act) and registered brokers or dealers (as defined in section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a))).

SEC. 3007. ABUSIVE SWAPS.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission may, by rule or order, jointly collect information as may be necessary concerning the markets for any types of swap (as defined in section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act) or security-based swap (as defined in section 1a(38) of such Act) and jointly issue a report with respect to any types of swaps or security-based swaps which the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission find are detrimental to the stability of a financial market or of participants in a financial market.

SEC. 3008. AUTHORITY TO PROHIBIT PARTICIPATION IN SWAP ACTIVITIES.

If the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or the Securities and Exchange Commission determines that the regulation of swaps or security-based swaps markets in a foreign country undermines the stability of the United States financial system, either Commission, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, may prohibit an entity domiciled in that country from participating in the United States in any swap or security-based swap activities.

SEC. 3009. MEMORANDUM.

(a)(1) The Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission shall, not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this section, negotiate a memorandum of understanding to establish procedures for—

(A) applying their respective authorities in a manner so as to ensure effective and efficient regulation in the public interest,

(B) resolving conflicts concerning overlapping jurisdiction between the two agencies, and

(C) avoiding, to the extent possible, conflicting or duplicative regulation.

(2) Such memorandum and any subsequent amendments to the memorandum shall be promptly submitted to the appropriate committees of Congress.

(b) The Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission shall, not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this section, negotiate a memorandum of understanding to share information that may be requested where either Commission is conducting an investigation into potential manipulation, fraud, or market power abuse in markets subject to such Commission's regulation or oversight. Shared information shall remain subject to the same restrictions on disclosure applicable to the Commission initially holding the information.

Subtitle A—Regulation of Swap Markets

SEC. 3101. DEFINITIONS.

(a) AMENDMENTS TO DEFINITIONS IN THE COMMODITY EXCHANGE ACT.—Section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (12)(A)—

(A) in clause (vii)(III), by striking ''$25,000,000'' and inserting ''$50,000,000''; and

(B) in clause (xi), by striking ''total assets in an amount'' and inserting ''amounts invested on a discretionary basis'';

(2) in paragraph (29)—

(A) in subparagraph (D), by striking ''and'';

(B) by redesignating subparagraph (E) as subparagraph (G); and

(C) by inserting after subparagraph (D) the following:

''(E) a swap execution facility registered under section 5h;

''(F) a swap repository; and''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(35) SWAP.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the term 'swap' means any agreement, contract, or transaction that—

''(i) is a put, call, cap, floor, collar, or similar option of any kind for the purchase or sale of, or based on the value of, 1 or more interest or other rates, currencies, commodities, securities, instruments of indebtedness, indices, quantitative measures, or other financial or economic interests or property of any kind;

''(ii) provides for any purchase, sale, payment, or delivery (other than a dividend on an equity security) that is dependent on the occurrence, non-occurrence, or the extent of the occurrence of an event or contingency associated with a potential financial, economic, or commercial consequence;

''(iii) provides on an executory basis for the exchange, on a fixed or contingent basis, of 1 or more payments based on the value or level of 1 or more interest or other rates, currencies, commodities, securities, instruments of indebtedness, indices, quantitative measures, or other financial or economic interests or property of any kind, or any interest therein or based on the value thereof, and that transfers, as between the parties to the transaction, in whole or in part, the financial risk associated with a future change in any such value or level without also conveying a current or future direct or indirect ownership interest in an asset (including any enterprise or investment pool) or liability that incorporates the financial risk so transferred, and includes any agreement, contract, or transaction commonly known as an interest rate swap, a rate floor, rate cap, rate collar, cross-currency rate swap, basis swap, currency swap, total return swap, equity index swap, equity swap, debt index swap, debt swap, credit spread, credit default swap, credit swap, weather swap, energy swap, metal swap, agricultural swap, emissions swap, or commodity swap;

''(iv) is, or in the future becomes, commonly known to the trade as a swap;

''(v) meets the definition of 'swap agreement' as defined in section 206A of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act of which a material term of which is based on the price, yield, value, or volatility of any security or any group or index of securities, or any interest therein; or

''(vi) is any combination or permutation of, or option on, any agreement, contract, or transaction described in any of clauses (i) through (v).

''(B) EXCLUSIONS.—The term 'swap' does not include—

''(i) any contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery (or any option on such a contract) or security futures product traded on or subject to the rules of any board of trade designated as a contract market under section 5 or 5f;

''(ii) any sale of a nonfinancial commodity or security for deferred shipment or delivery, so long as the transaction is intended to be physically settled;

''(iii) any put, call, straddle, option, or privilege on any security, certificate of deposit, or group or index of securities, including any interest therein or based on the value thereof, that is subject to the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.) and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.);

''(iv) any put, call, straddle, option, or privilege relating to foreign currency entered into on a national securities exchange registered pursuant to section 6(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78f(a));

''(v) any agreement, contract, or transaction providing for the purchase or sale of 1 or more securities on a fixed basis that is subject to the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.) and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq);

''(vi) any agreement, contract, or transaction providing for the purchase or sale of 1 or more securities on a contingent basis that is subject to the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq) and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.), unless the agreement, contract, or transaction predicates the purchase or sale on the occurrence of a bona fide contingency that might reasonably be expected to affect or be affected by the creditworthiness of a party other than a party to the agreement, contract, or transaction;

''(vii) any note, bond, or evidence of indebtedness that is a security as defined in section 2(a)(1) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77b(a)(1));

''(viii) any agreement, contract, or transaction that is—

''(I) based on a security; and

''(II) entered into directly or through an underwriter (as defined in section 2(a)(11) of the Securities Act of 1933) (15 U.S.C. 77b(a)(11)) by the issuer of the security for the purposes of raising capital, unless the agreement, contract, or transaction is entered into to manage a risk associated with capital-raising;

''(ix) any foreign exchange forward;

''(x) any foreign exchange swap;

''(xi) any agreement, contract, or transaction a counterparty of which is a Federal Reserve bank, the United States government or an agency of the United States government that is expressly backed by the full faith and credit of the United States; and

''(xii) any security-based swap.

''(C) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION REGARDING MASTER AGREEMENTS.—The term 'swap' shall be construed to include a master agreement that provides for an agreement, contract, or transaction that is a swap pursuant to subparagraph (A), together with all supplements to any such master agreement, without regard to whether the master agreement contains an agreement, contract, or transaction that is not a swap pursuant to subparagraph (A), except that the master agreement shall be considered to be a swap only with respect to each agreement, contract, or transaction under the master agreement that is a swap pursuant to subparagraph (A).

''(D) FOREIGN EXCHANGE SWAPS AND FORWARDS EXCEPTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding clauses (ix) and (x) of subparagraph (B), foreign exchange swaps and foreign exchange forwards shall be considered swaps under this paragraph if the Commission makes a determination that either foreign exchange swaps or foreign exchange forwards or both should be regulated as swaps under this Act and the Secretary concurs with such determination.

''(ii) SCOPE OF AUTHORITY.—

''(I) The Commission and the Secretary shall jointly determine which of the authorities under this Act regarding swaps the Commission shall exercise over foreign exchange swaps and foreign exchange forwards. Such authorities shall subsequently be exercised solely by the Commission. The Commission and the Secretary may jointly amend any previously made determination under this subclause.

''(II) Notwithstanding clause (i), the Commission and the Secretary of the Treasury may determine that either foreign exchange swaps or foreign exchange forwards or both should not be regulated as swaps under this Act if such determination is jointly made.

''(iii) REPORTING.—Notwithstanding clauses (ix) and (x) of subparagraph (B) and subparagraph (D)(ii), all foreign exchange swaps and foreign exchange forwards shall be reported to either a swap repository, or, if there is no swap repository that would accept such swaps or forwards, to the Commission pursuant to section 4r within such time period as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe.

''(iv) SECRETARY.—For purposes of this subparagraph only, the term 'Secretary' means the Secretary of the Treasury.

''(36) BOARD.—The term 'Board' means the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

''(37) SECURITY-BASED SWAP.—The term 'security-based swap' has the same meaning as in section 3(a)(68) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934.

''(38) SWAP DEALER.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'swap dealer' means any person who—

''(i) holds itself out as a dealer in swaps;

''(ii) makes a market in swaps;

''(iii) regularly engages in the purchase of swaps and their resale to customers in the ordinary course of a business; or

''(iv) engages in any activity causing the person to be commonly known in the trade as a dealer or market maker in swaps.

''(B) A person may be designated a swap dealer for a single type or single class or category of swap and considered not a swap dealer for other types, classes, or categories of swaps.

''(C) DE MINIMUS EXCEPTION.—The Commission shall make a determination to exempt from designation as a swap dealer an entity that engages in a de minimus amount of swap dealing in connection with transactions with or on the behalf of its customers.

''(39) MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'major swap participant' means any person who is not a swap dealer, and—

''(i) maintains a substantial net position in outstanding swaps, excluding positions held primarily for hedging, reducing or otherwise mitigating its commercial risk, including operating and balance sheet risk; or

''(ii) whose outstanding swaps create substantial net counterparty exposure among the aggregate of its counterparties that could expose those counterparties to significant credit losses.

''(B) DEFINITION OF SUBSTANTIAL NET POSTION.—The Commission shall define by rule or regulation the terms 'substantial net position', 'substantial net counterparty exposure', and 'significant credit losses' at thresholds that the Commission determines prudent for the effective monitoring, management and oversight of entities which are systemically important or can significantly impact the financial system through counterparty credit risk. In setting the definitions, the Commission shall consider the person's relative position in uncleared as opposed to cleared swaps.

''(C) A person may be designated a major swap participant for 1 or more individual types of swaps without being classified as a major swap participant for all classes of swaps.

''(40) MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The term 'major security-based swap participant' has the same meaning as in section 3(a)(67) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

''(41) APPROPRIATE FEDERAL BANKING AGENCY.—The term 'appropriate Federal banking agency' has the same meaning as in section 3(q) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(q)).

''(42) PRUDENTIAL REGULATOR.—The term 'Prudential Regulator' means—

''(A) the Board in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer, or major security-based swap participant that is—

''(i) a State-chartered bank that is a member of the Federal Reserve System; or

''(ii) a State-chartered branch or agency of a foreign bank;

''(B) the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer, or major security-based swap participant that is—

''(i) a national bank; or

''(ii) a federally chartered branch or agency of a foreign bank; and

''(C) the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer, or major security-based swap participant that is a State-chartered bank that is not a member of the Federal Reserve System.

''(43) SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALER.—The term 'security-based swap dealer' has the same meaning as in section 3(a)(71) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

''(44) FOREIGN EXCHANGE FORWARD.—The term 'foreign exchange forward' means a transaction that solely involves the exchange of 2 different currencies on a specific future date at a fixed rate agreed at the inception of the contract.

''(45) FOREIGN EXCHANGE SWAP.—The term 'foreign exchange swap' means a transaction that solely involves the exchange of 2 different currencies on a specific date at a fixed rate agreed at the inception of the contract, and a reverse exchange of the same 2 currencies at a date further in the future and at a fixed rate agreed at the inception of the contract.

''(46) PERSON ASSOCIATED WITH A SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALER OR MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The term 'person associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant' or 'associated person of a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant' has the same meaning as in section 3(a)(70) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

''(47) PERSON ASSOCIATED WITH A SWAP DEALER OR MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The term 'person associated with a swap dealer or major swap participant' or 'associated person of a swap dealer or major swap participant' means any partner, officer, director, or branch manager of a swap dealer or major swap participant (or any person occupying a similar status or performing similar functions), any person directly or indirectly controlling, controlled by, or under common control with a swap dealer or major swap participant, or any employee of a swap dealer or major swap participant, except that any person associated with a swap dealer or major swap participant whose functions are solely clerical or ministerial shall not be included in the meaning of the term other than for purposes of section 4s(b)(6).

''(48) SWAP REPOSITORY.—The term 'swap repository' means any person that collects, calculates, prepares or maintains information or records with respect to transactions or positions in or the terms and conditions of swaps entered into by third parties.

''(49) SWAP EXECUTION FACILITY.—The term 'swap execution facility' means a person or entity that facilitates the execution or trading of swaps between two persons through any means of interstate commerce, but which is not a designated contract market, including any electronic trade execution or voice brokerage facility.

''(50) DERIVATIVE.—The term 'derivative' means—

''(A) a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery; or

''(B) a swap.''.

(b) AUTHORITY TO FURTHER DEFINE TERMS.—The Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall adopt a rule further defining the terms ''swap'', ''swap dealer'', ''major swap participant'', and ''eligible contract participant'' for the purpose of including transactions and entities that have been structured to evade this title.

(c) EXEMPTIONS.—Section 4(c) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 4(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following: ''The Commission shall not have the authority to grant exemptions from the provisions of sections 3101(a), 3101(c), 3104, 3105, 3106, 3107, 3109, 3110, 3113, 3115, 3120, and 3121 of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, except as expressly authorized under the provisions of that Act. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission may exempt from any provision of the Commodity Exchange Act, pursuant to this subsection, an agreement, contract, or transaction that is entered into pursuant to a tariff approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, if the Commodity Futures Trading Commission determines that the exemption would be consistent with the public interest, and shall consider and not unreasonably deny any request made by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for such an exemption.''.

SEC. 3102. JURISDICTION.

(a) EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION.—Section 2(a)(1) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 2(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) in the 1st sentence of subparagraph (A)—

(A) by striking ''(c) through (i)'' and inserting ''(c) and (f)'';

(B) by inserting ''swaps, or'' before ''contracts of sale'';

(C) by striking ''derivatives transaction execution facility'' and inserting ''swap execution facility''; and

(D) by striking ''5a'' and inserting ''5h''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(G)(i) Nothing in this paragraph shall limit the jurisdiction conferred on the Securities and Exchange Commission by the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009 with regard to security-based swap agreements as defined pursuant to section 3002(e) of such Act, and security-based swaps.

''(ii) In addition to the authority of the Securities Exchange Commission described in clause (i), nothing in this subparagraph shall limit or affect any statutory authority of the Commission with respect to an agreement, contract, or transaction described in clause (i).

''(H)(i) Nothing in this Act shall limit or affect any statutory authority of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission with respect to an agreement, contract, or transaction that is—

''(I) not executed, traded, or cleared on a registered entity or trading facility; and

''(II) entered into pursuant to a tariff or rate schedule approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

''(ii) In addition to the authority of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission described in clause (i), nothing in this subparagraph shall limit or affect any statutory authority of the Commission with respect to an agreement, contract, or transaction described in clause (i).''.

(b) ADDITIONS.—Section 2(c)(2)(A) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2(c)(2)(A)) is amended—

(1) in clause (i) by striking ''or'' at the end;

(2) by redesignating clause (ii) as clause (iii); and

(3) by inserting after clause (i) the following:

''(ii) a swap; or''.

(c) Section 12(e) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 16(e)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(B), by inserting ''or (3)'' after ''paragraph (2)'';

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking subparagraphs (A) and (B) and inserting the following:

''(A) a swap; and

''(B) an agreement, contract, or transaction that is excluded from this Act under section 2(c) or 2(f) of this Act or title IV of the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 or exempted under section 4(c) of this Act (regardless of whether any such agreement, contract, or transaction is otherwise subject to this Act).''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(3) A swap may not be regulated as an insurance contract under State law.

''(4) The provisions of this Act relating to swaps that were enacted by the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, including any rule or regulation thereunder, shall not apply to activities outside the United States unless those activities—

''(A) have a direct and significant connection with activities in or effect on United States commerce; or

''(B) contravene such rules or regulations as the Commission may prescribe as necessary or appropriate to prevent the evasion of any provision of this Act that was enacted by the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.''.

(d) Nothing in the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009 or the amendments to the Commodity Exchange Act made by such Act shall limit or affect any statutory enforcement authority of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission pursuant to Section 222 of the Federal Power Act and Section 4A of the Natural Gas Act that existed prior to the date of enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.

SEC. 3103. CLEARING AND EXECUTION TRANSPARENCY.

(a) CLEARING AND EXECUTION TRANSPARENCY REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) Section 2 of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 2) is amended by striking subsections (d), (e), (g), and (h).

(2)(A) Prior to the final effective dates in this title, a person may petition the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to remain subject to paragraphs (3) through (7) of section 2(h) of the Commodity Exchange Act.

(B) The Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall consider any petition submitted under subparagraph (A) in a prompt manner and may allow a person to continue operating subject to paragraphs (3) through (7) of section 2(h) of the Commodity Exchange Act for up to one year after the effective date of this subtitle.

(3) Section 2 of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2) is further amended by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

''(d) SWAPS.—Nothing in this Act (other than subsections (a)(1)(A), (a)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(ii), (e), (f), (j), and (k), sections 4a, 4b, 4b-1, 4c(a), 4c(b), 4o, 4r, 4s, 4t, 5, 5b, 5c, 5h, 6(c), 6(d), 6c, 6d, 8, 8a, 9, 12(e)(2), 12(f), 13(a), 13(b), 21, and 22(a)(4) and such other provisions of this Act as are applicable by their terms to registered entities and Commission registrants) governs or applies to a swap.

''(e) LIMITATION ON PARTICIPATION.—It shall be unlawful for any person, other than an eligible contract participant, to enter into a swap unless the swap is entered into on or subject to the rules of a board of trade designated as a contract market under section 5.''.

(4) Section 2 of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2) is further amended by inserting after subsection (i) the following:

''(j) CLEARING REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—

''(A) STANDARD FOR CLEARING.—A swap shall be submitted for clearing if a derivatives clearing organization that is registered under this Act will accept the swap for clearing, and the Commission has determined under paragraph (2)(B)(ii) that the swap is required to be cleared.

''(B) OPEN ACCESS.—The rules of a derivatives clearing organization described in subparagraph (A) shall—

''(i) prescribe that all swaps submitted to the derivatives clearing organization with the same terms and conditions are economically equivalent within the derivatives clearing organization and may be offset with each other within the derivatives clearing organization; and

''(ii) provide for non-discriminatory clearing of a swap executed bilaterally or on or through the rules of an unaffiliated designated contract market or swap execution facility.

''(2) COMMISSION REVIEW.—

''(A) COMMISSION-INITIATED REVIEW.—

''(i) The Commission shall review each swap, or any group, category, type or class of swaps to make a determination as to whether the swap or group, category, type, or class of swaps should be required to be cleared.

''(ii) The Commission shall provide at least a 30-day public comment period regarding any determination made under clause (i).

''(B) SWAP SUBMISSIONS.—

''(i) A derivatives clearing organization shall submit to the Commission each swap, or any group, category, type or class of swaps that it plans to accept for clearing, and provide notice to its members (in a manner to be determined by the Commission) of the submission.

''(ii) The Commission shall—

''(I) make available to the public any submission received under clause (i);

''(II) review each submission made under clause (i), and determine whether the swap, or group, category, type, or class of swaps described in the submission is required to be cleared; and

''(III) provide at least a 30-day public comment period regarding its determination as to whether the clearing requirement under paragraph (1)(A) shall apply to the submission.

''(C) DEADLINE.—The Commission shall make its determination under subparagraph (B)(ii) not later than 90 days after receiving a submission made under subparagraph (B)(i), unless the submitting derivatives clearing organization agrees to an extension for the time limitation established under this subparagraph.

''(D) DETERMINATION.—

''(i) In reviewing a submission made under subparagraph (B), the Commission shall review whether the submission is consistent with section 5b(c)(2),

''(ii) In reviewing a swap, group of swaps, or class of swaps pursuant to subparagraph (A) or a submission made under subparagraph (B), the Commission shall take into account the following factors:

''(I) The existence of significant outstanding notional exposures, trading liquidity and adequate pricing data.

''(II) The availability of rule framework, capacity, operational expertise and resources, and credit support infrastructure to clear the contract on terms that are consistent with the material terms and trading conventions on which the contract is then traded.

''(III) The effect on the mitigation of systemic risk, taking into account the size of the market for such contract and the resources of the derivatives clearing organization available to clear the contract.

''(IV) The effect on competition, including appropriate fees and charges applied to clearing.

''(V) The existence of reasonable legal certainty in the event of the insolvency of the relevant derivatives clearing organization or 1 or more of its clearing members with regard to the treatment of customer and swap counterparty positions, funds, and property.

''(iii) In making a determination under subparagraph (B)(ii) that the clearing requirement shall apply, the Commission may require such terms and conditions to the requirement as the Commission determines to be appropriate.

''(E) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules for a derivatives clearing organization's submission for review, pursuant to this paragraph, of a swap, or a group, category, type or class of swaps, that it seeks to accept for clearing.

''(3) STAY OF CLEARING REQUIREMENT.—

''(A) After a determination pursuant to paragraph (2)(B), the Commission, on application of a counterparty to a swap or on its own initiative, may stay the clearing requirement of paragraph (1) until the Commission completes a review of the terms of the swap (or the group, category, type or class of swaps) and the clearing arrangement.

''(B) DEADLINE.—The Commission shall complete a review undertaken pursuant to subparagraph (A) not later than 90 days after issuance of the stay, unless the derivatives clearing organization that clears the swap, or group, category, type or class of swaps, agrees to an extension of the time limitation established under this subparagraph.

''(C) DETERMINATION.—Upon completion of the review undertaken pursuant to subparagraph (A), the Commission may—

''(i) determine, unconditionally or subject to such terms and conditions as the Commission determines to be appropriate, that the swap, or group, category, type or class of swaps, must be cleared pursuant to this subsection if it finds that such clearing is consistent with paragraph (2)(D); or

''(ii) determine that the clearing requirement of paragraph (1) shall not apply to the swap, or group, category, type or class of swaps.

''(D) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules for reviewing, pursuant to this paragraph, a derivatives clearing organization's clearing of a swap, or a group, category, type or class of swaps, that it has accepted for clearing.

''(4) PREVENTION OF EVASION.—The Commission may prescribe rules under this subsection, or issue interpretations of the rules, as necessary to prevent evasions of this subsection.

''(5) REQUIRED REPORTING.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—All swaps that are not accepted for clearing by any derivatives clearing organization shall be reported either to a swap repository described in section 21 or, if there is no repository that would accept the swap, to the Commission pursuant to section 4r within such time period as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe. Counterparties to a swap may agree which counterparty will report the swap as required by this paragraph.

''(B) SWAP DEALER DESIGNATION.—With regard to swaps where only 1 counterparty is a swap dealer, the swap dealer shall report the swap as required by this paragraph.

''(6) REPORTING TRANSITION RULES.—Rules adopted by the Commission under this section shall provide for the reporting of data, as follows:

''(A) Swaps entered into before the date of the enactment of this subsection shall be reported to a registered swap repository or the Commission no later than 180 days after the effective date of this subsection; and

''(B) Swaps entered into on or after such date of enactment shall be reported to a registered swap repository or the Commission no later than the later of—

''(i) 90 days after such effective date; or

''(ii) such other time after entering into the swap as the Commission may prescribe by rule or regulation.

''(7) CLEARING TRANSITION RULES.—

''(A) Swaps entered into before the date of the enactment of this subsection are exempt from the clearing requirements of this subsection if reported pursuant to paragraph (6)(A).

''(B) Swaps entered into before application of the clearing requirement pursuant to this subsection are exempt from the clearing requirements of this subsection if reported pursuant to paragraph (6)(B).

''(8) EXCEPTIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The requirements of paragraph (1) shall not apply to a swap if one of the counterparties to the swap—

''(i) is not a swap dealer or major swap participant;

''(ii) is using swaps to hedge or mitigate commercial risk, including operating or balance sheet risk; and

''(iii) notifies the Commission, in a manner set forth by the Commission, how it generally meets its financial obligations associated with entering into non-cleared swaps.

''(B) ABUSE OF EXCEPTION.—The Commission may prescribe rules under this subsection, or issue interpretations of the rules, as necessary to prevent abuse of the exemption in subparagraph (A) by swap dealers and major swap participants.

''(C) OPTION TO CLEAR.—The application of the clearing exception in subparagraph (A) is solely at the discretion of the counterparty to the swap that meets the conditions of clauses (i) through (iii) of subparagraph (A).

''(k) EXECUTION TRANSPARENCY.—

''(1) REQUIREMENT.—A swap that is subject to the clearing requirement of subsection (j) shall not be traded except on or through a board of trade designated as a contract market under section 5, or on or through a swap execution facility registered under section 5h, that makes the swap available for trading.

''(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The requirement of paragraph (1) shall not apply to a swap if no designated contract market or swap execution facility makes the swap available for trading.

''(3) AGRICULTURAL SWAPS.—No person shall offer to enter into, enter into or confirm the execution of, any swap in an agricultural commodity (as defined by the Commission) that is subject to paragraphs (1) and (2) except pursuant to a rule or regulation of the Commission allowing the swap under such terms and conditions as the Commission shall prescribe.

''(4) REQUIRED REPORTING.—If the exception of paragraph (2) applies and there is no facility that makes the swap available to trade, the counterparties shall comply with any recordkeeping and transaction reporting requirements that may be prescribed by the Commission with respect to swaps subject to the requirements of paragraph (1).

''(5) EXCHANGE TRADING.—In adopting rules and regulations, the Commission shall endeavor to eliminate unnecessary impediments to the trading on boards of trade designated as contract markets under section 5 of contracts, agreements, or transactions that would be security-based swaps but for the trading of such contracts, agreements or transactions on such a designated contract market.''.

(b) DERIVATIVES CLEARING ORGANIZATIONS.—

(1) Subsections (a) and (b) of section 5b of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-1) are amended to read as follows:

''(a) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall be unlawful for any entity, unless registered with the Commission, directly or indirectly to make use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce to perform the functions of a derivatives clearing organization described in section 1a(10) of this Act with respect to—

''(A) a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery (or option on such a contract) or option on a commodity, in each case unless the contract or option is—

''(i) excluded from this Act by section 2(a)(1)(C)(i), 2(c), or 2(f); or

''(ii) a security futures product cleared by a clearing agency registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.); or

''(B) a swap.

''(2) EXISTING BANKS AND CLEARING AGENCIES.—A bank or a clearing agency registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 required to be registered as a derivatives clearing organization under this section is deemed to be registered under this section to the extent that the bank cleared swaps, as defined in this Act, as a multilateral clearing organization or the clearing agency cleared swaps, as defined in this Act, before the enactment of this subsection. A bank to which this paragraph applies may, by the vote of the shareholders owning not less than 51 percent of the voting interests of the bank, be converted into a State corporation, partnership, limited liability company, or other similar legal form pursuant to a plan of conversion, if the conversion is not in contravention of applicable State law.

''(b) VOLUNTARY REGISTRATION.—A person that clears agreements, contracts, or transactions that are not required to be cleared under this Act may register with the Commission as a derivatives clearing organization.''.

(2) Section 5b of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-1) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(g) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing persons that are registered as derivatives clearing organizations for swaps under this subsection.

''(h) EXEMPTIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a derivatives clearing organization from registration under this section for the clearing of swaps if the Commission finds that the derivatives clearing organization is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation on a consolidated basis by a Prudential Regulator or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country.

''(2) A person that is required to be registered as a derivatives clearing organization under this section, whose principal business is clearing securities and options on securities and which is a clearing agency registered with the Securities Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.), shall be unconditionally exempt from registration under this section solely for the purpose of clearing swaps, unless the Commission finds that the clearing agency is not subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

''(i) DESIGNATION OF COMPLIANCE OFFICER.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each derivatives clearing organization shall designate an individual to serve as a compliance officer.

''(2) DUTIES.—The compliance officer—

''(A) shall report directly to the board or to the senior officer of the derivatives clearing organization; and

''(B) shall—

''(i) review compliance with the core principles in section 5b(c)(2).

''(ii) in consultation with the board of the derivatives clearing organization, a body performing a function similar to that of a board, or the senior officer of the derivatives clearing organization, resolve any conflicts of interest that may arise;

''(iii) be responsible for administering the policies and procedures required to be established pursuant to this section; and

''(iv) ensure compliance with this Act and the rules and regulations issued under this Act; and

''(C) shall establish procedures for remediation of non-compliance issues found during compliance office reviews, lookbacks, internal or external audit findings, self-reported errors, or through validated complaints. The procedures shall establish the handling, management response, remediation, re-testing, and closing of non-compliant issues.

''(3) ANNUAL REPORTS REQUIRED.—The compliance officer shall annually prepare and sign a report on the compliance of the derivatives clearing organization with this Act and the policies and procedures of the derivatives clearing organization, including the code of ethics and conflict of interest policies of the derivatives clearing organization, in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commission. The compliance report shall accompany the financial reports of the derivatives clearing organization that are required to be furnished to the Commission pursuant to this section and shall include a certification that, under penalty of law, the report is accurate and complete.''.

(3) Section 5b(c)(2) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-1(c)(2)) is amended to read as follows:

''(2) CORE PRINCIPLES FOR DERIVATIVES CLEARING ORGANIZATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—To be registered and to maintain registration as a derivatives clearing organization, a derivatives clearing organization shall comply with the core principles specified in this paragraph and any requirement that the Commission may impose by rule or regulation pursuant to section 8a(5). Except where the Commission determines otherwise by rule or regulation, a derivatives clearing organization shall have reasonable discretion in establishing the manner in which the organization complies with the core principles.

''(B) FINANCIAL RESOURCES.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall have adequate financial, operational, and managerial resources to discharge the responsibilities of the organization.

''(ii) The financial resources of the derivatives clearing organization shall at a minimum exceed the total amount that would—

''(I) enable the organization to meet the financial obligations of the organization to the members of, and participants in, the organization, notwithstanding a default by the member or participant creating the largest financial exposure for the organization in extreme but plausible market conditions; and

''(II) enable the organization to cover the operating costs of the organization for a period of 1 year, calculated on a rolling basis.

''(C) PARTICIPANT AND PRODUCT ELIGIBILITY.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall establish—

''(I) appropriate admission and continuing eligibility standards (including sufficient financial resources and operational capacity to meet obligations arising from participation in the organization) for members of and participants in the organization; and

''(II) appropriate standards for determining eligibility of agreements, contracts, or transactions submitted to the organization for clearing.

''(ii) The derivatives clearing organization shall have procedures in place to verify that participation and membership requirements are met on an ongoing basis.

''(iii) The participation and membership requirements of the derivatives clearing organization shall be objective, publicly disclosed, and permit fair and open access.

''(D) RISK MANAGEMENT.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall have the ability to manage the risks associated with discharging the responsibilities of a derivatives clearing organization through the use of appropriate tools and procedures.

''(ii) The derivatives clearing organization shall measure the credit exposures of the organization to the members of, and participants in, the organization at least once each business day and shall monitor the exposures throughout the business day.

''(iii) Through margin requirements and other risk control mechanisms, a derivatives clearing organization shall limit the exposures of the organization to potential losses from defaults by the members of, and participants in, the organization so that the operations of the organization would not be disrupted and non-defaulting members or participants would not be exposed to losses that they cannot anticipate or control.

''(iv) Margin required from all members and participants shall be sufficient to cover potential exposures in normal market conditions.

''(v) The models and parameters used in setting margin requirements shall be risk-based and reviewed regularly.

''(E) SETTLEMENT PROCEDURES.—The derivatives clearing organization shall—

''(i) complete money settlements on a timely basis, and not less than once each business day;

''(ii) employ money settlement arrangements that eliminate or strictly limit the exposure of the organization to settlement bank risks, such as credit and liquidity risks from the use of banks to effect money settlements;

''(iii) ensure money settlements are final when effected;

''(iv) maintain an accurate record of the flow of funds associated with each money settlement;

''(v) have the ability to comply with the terms and conditions of any permitted netting or offset arrangements with other clearing organizations; and

''(vi) for physical settlements, establish rules that clearly state the obligations of the organization with respect to physical deliveries, including how risks from these obligations shall be identified and managed.

''(F) TREATMENT OF FUNDS.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall have standards and procedures designed to protect and ensure the safety of member and participant funds and assets.

''(ii) The derivatives clearing organization shall hold member and participant funds and assets in a manner whereby risk of loss or of delay in the access of the organization to the assets and funds is minimized.

''(iii) Assets and funds invested by the derivatives clearing organization shall be held in instruments with minimal credit, market, and liquidity risks.

''(G) DEFAULT RULES AND PROCEDURES.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall have rules and procedures designed to allow for the efficient, fair, and safe management of events when members or participants become insolvent or otherwise default on their obligations to the organization.

''(ii) The default procedures of the derivatives clearing organization shall be clearly stated, and they shall ensure that the organization can take timely action to contain losses and liquidity pressures and to continue meeting the obligations of the organization.

''(iii) The default procedures shall be publicly available.

''(H) RULE ENFORCEMENT.—The derivatives clearing organization shall—

''(i) maintain adequate arrangements and resources for the effective monitoring and enforcement of compliance with rules of the organization and for resolution of disputes; and

''(ii) have the authority and ability to discipline, limit, suspend, or terminate the activities of a member or participant for violations of rules of the organization.

''(I) SYSTEM SAFEGUARDS.—The derivatives clearing organization shall—

''(i) establish and maintain a program of risk analysis and oversight to identify and minimize sources of operational risk through the development of appropriate controls and procedures, and the development of automated systems, that are reliable, secure, and have adequate scalable capacity;

''(ii) establish and maintain emergency procedures, backup facilities, and a plan for disaster recovery that allows for the timely recovery and resumption of operations and the fulfillment of the responsibilities and obligations of the organization; and

''(iii) periodically conduct tests to verify that backup resources are sufficient to ensure continued order processing and trade matching, price reporting, market surveillance, and maintenance of a comprehensive and accurate audit trail.

''(J) REPORTING.—The derivatives clearing organization shall provide to the Commission all information necessary for the Commission to conduct oversight of the organization.

''(K) RECORDKEEPING.—The derivatives clearing organization shall maintain records of all activities related to the business of the organization as a derivatives clearing organization in a form and manner acceptable to the Commission for a period of 5 years.

''(L) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall provide market participants with sufficient information to identify and evaluate accurately the risks and costs associated with using the services of the organization.

''(ii) The derivatives clearing organization shall make information concerning the rules and operating procedures governing the clearing and settlement systems (including default procedures) of the organization available to market participants.

''(iii) The derivatives clearing organization shall disclose publicly and to the Commission information concerning—

''(I) the terms and conditions of contracts, agreements, and transactions cleared and settled by the organization;

''(II) clearing and other fees that the organization charges the members of, and participants in, the organization;

''(III) the margin-setting methodology and the size and composition of the financial resource package of the organization;

''(IV) other information relevant to participation in the settlement and clearing activities of the organization; and

''(V) daily settlement prices, volume, and open interest for all contracts settled or cleared by the organization.

''(M) INFORMATION-SHARING.—The derivatives clearing organization shall—

''(i) enter into and abide by the terms of all appropriate and applicable domestic and international information-sharing agreements; and

''(ii) use relevant information obtained from the agreements in carrying out the risk management program of the organization.

''(N) ANTITRUST CONSIDERATIONS.—The derivatives clearing organization shall avoid—

''(i) adopting any rule or taking any action that results in any unreasonable restraint of trade; or

''(ii) imposing any material anticompetitive burden.

''(O) GOVERNANCE FITNESS STANDARDS.—

''(i) The derivatives clearing organization shall establish governance arrangements that are transparent in order to fulfill public interest requirements and to support the objectives of the owners of, and participants in, the organization.

''(ii) The derivatives clearing organization shall establish and enforce appropriate fitness standards for the directors, members of any disciplinary committee, and members of the organization, and any other persons with direct access to the settlement or clearing activities of the organization, including any parties affiliated with any of the persons described in this subparagraph.

''(P) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The derivatives clearing organization shall establish and enforce rules to minimize conflicts of interest in the decision-making process of the organization and establish a process for resolving the conflicts of interest.

''(Q) COMPOSITION OF THE BOARDS.—The derivatives clearing organization shall ensure that the composition of the governing board or committee includes market participants.

''(R) LEGAL RISK.—The derivatives clearing organization shall have a well founded, transparent, and enforceable legal framework for each aspect of its activities.''.

(4) Section 5b of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-1) is further amended by adding after subsection (i), as added by this section, the following:

''(j) REPORTING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A derivatives clearing organization that clears swaps shall provide to the Commission all information determined by the Commission to be necessary to perform the responsibilities of the Commission under this Act. The Commission shall adopt data collection and maintenance requirements for swaps cleared by derivatives clearing organizations that are comparable to the corresponding requirements for swaps accepted by swap repositories and swaps traded on swap execution facilities. The Commission shall share the information, upon request, with the Board, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the appropriate Federal banking agencies, the Financial Services Oversight Council, and the Department of Justice or other persons the Commission deems appropriate, including foreign financial supervisors (including foreign futures authorities), foreign central banks, and foreign ministries that comply with the provisions of section 8.

''(2) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—A derivatives clearing organization that clears swaps shall provide to the Commission, or its designee, such information as is required by, and in a form and at a frequency to be determined by, the Commission, in order to comply with the public reporting requirements contained in section 8(j).

''(3) A derivatives clearing organization shall keep any such books and records relating to swaps defined in section 1a(35)(A)(v) open to inspection and examination by the Securities and Exchange Commission.''.

(5) Section 8(e) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 12(e)) is amended in the last sentence by inserting ''central bank and ministries'' after ''department'' each place it appears.

(c) LEGAL CERTAINTY FOR IDENTIFIED BANKING PRODUCTS.—

(1) REPEAL.—Sections 402(d), 404, 407, 408(b), and 408(c)(2) of the Legal Certainty for Bank Products Act of 2000 (7 U.S.C. 27(d), 27b, 27e, 27f(b), and 27f(c)(2)) are repealed.

(2) LEGAL CERTAINTY.—Section 403 of the Legal Certainty for Bank Products Act of 2000 (7 U.S.C. 27a) is amended to read as follows:

''SEC. 403. EXCLUSION OF IDENTIFIED BANKING PRODUCT.

''(a) EXCLUSION.—Except as provided in subsection (b) or (c)—

''(1) the Commodity Exchange Act shall not apply to, and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall not exercise regulatory authority under such Act with respect to, an identified banking product; and

''(2) the definitions of 'security-based swap' in section 3(a)(68) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and 'security-based swap agreement' in section 3(a)(76) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 do not include any identified banking product.

''(b) EXCEPTION.—An appropriate Federal banking agency may except an identified banking product of a bank under its regulatory jurisdiction from the exclusions in subsection (a) if the agency determines, in consultation with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission, that the product—

''(1) would meet the definition of swap in section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(35)) or security-based swap in section 3(a)(68) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934; and

''(2) has become known to the trade as a swap or security-based swap, or otherwise has been structured as an identified banking product for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.), the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.), or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.).

''(c) EXCEPTION.—The exclusions in subsection (a) shall not apply to an identified banking product that—

''(1) is a product of a bank that is not under the regulatory jurisdiction of an appropriate Federal banking agency;

''(2) meets the definition of swap in section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act or security-based swap in section 3(a)(68) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934; and

''(3) has become known to the trade as a swap or security-based swap, or otherwise has been structured as an identified banking product for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.), the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.), or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.).''.

SEC. 3104. PUBLIC REPORTING OF AGGREGATE SWAP DATA.

Section 8 of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 12) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(j) PUBLIC REPORTING OF AGGREGATE SWAP DATA.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission, or a person designated by the Commission pursuant to paragraph (2), shall make available to the public, in a manner that does not disclose the business transactions and market positions of any person, aggregate data on swap trading volumes and positions from the sources set forth in paragraph (3).

''(2) DESIGNEE OF THE COMMISSION.—The Commission may designate a derivatives clearing organization or a swap repository to carry out the public reporting described in paragraph (1).

''(3) SOURCES OF INFORMATION.—The sources of the information to be publicly reported as described in paragraph (1) are—

''(A) derivatives clearing organizations pursuant to section 5b(j)(2);

''(B) swap repositories pursuant to section 21(c)(3); and

''(C) reports received by the Commission pursuant to section 4r.''.

SEC. 3105. SWAP REPOSITORIES.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 20 the following:

''SEC. 21. SWAP REPOSITORIES.

''(a) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall be unlawful for any person, unless registered with the Commission, directly or indirectly to make use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce to perform the functions of a swap repository.

''(2) INSPECTION AND EXAMINATION.—Registered swap repositories shall be subject to inspection and examination by any representative of the Commission.

''(b) STANDARD SETTING.—

''(1) DATA IDENTIFICATION.—The Commission shall prescribe standards that specify the data elements for each swap that shall be collected and maintained by each registered swap repository.

''(2) DATA COLLECTION AND MAINTENANCE.—The Commission shall prescribe data collection and data maintenance standards for swap repositories.

''(3) COMPARABILITY.—The standards prescribed by the Commission under this subsection shall be comparable to the data standards imposed by the Commission on derivatives clearing organizations that clear swaps.

''(c) DUTIES.—A swap repository shall—

''(1) accept data prescribed by the Commission for each swap under subsection (b);

''(2) maintain the data in such form and manner and for such period as may be required by the Commission;

''(3) provide to the Commission, or its designee, such information as is required by, and in a form and at a frequency to be determined by, the Commission, in order to comply with the public reporting requirements contained in section 8(j); and

''(4) make available, on a confidential basis pursuant to section 8, all data obtained by the swap repository, including individual counterparty trade and position data, to the Commission, the appropriate Federal banking agencies, the Financial Services Oversight Council, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Department of Justice or to other persons the Commission deems appropriate, including foreign financial supervisors (including foreign futures authorities), foreign central banks, and foreign ministries.

''(d) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing persons that are registered under this section, including rules that specify the data elements that shall be collected and maintained.

''(e) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a swap repository from the requirements of this section if the Commission finds that the swap repository is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation on a consolidated basis by the Securities and Exchange Commission, a Prudential Regulator or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country.''.

SEC. 3106. REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 4q the following:

''SEC. 4r. REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING FOR CERTAIN SWAPS.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—Any person who enters into a swap and—

''(1) did not have the swap cleared in accordance with section 2(j)(1); and

''(2) did not have data regarding the swap accepted by a swap repository in accordance with rules (including timeframes) adopted by the Commission under section 21, shall meet the requirements in subsection (b).

''(b) REPORTS.—Any person described in subsection (a) shall—

''(1) make such reports in such form and manner and for such period as the Commission shall prescribe by rule or regulation regarding the swaps held by the person; and

''(2) keep books and records pertaining to the swaps held by the person in such form and manner and for such period as may be required by the Commission, which books and records shall be open to inspection by any representative of the Commission, an appropriate Federal banking agency, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Financial Services Oversight Council, and the Department of Justice.

''(c) IDENTICAL DATA.—In adopting rules under this section, the Commission shall require persons described in subsection (a) to report the same or a more comprehensive set of data than the Commission requires swap repositories to collect under section 21.''.

SEC. 3107. REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 4r (as added by section 3106) the following:

''SEC. 4s. REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.

''(a) REGISTRATION.—

''(1) It shall be unlawful for any person to act as a swap dealer unless the person is registered as a swap dealer with the Commission.

''(2) It shall be unlawful for any person to act as a major swap participant unless the person is registered as a major swap participant with the Commission.

''(b) REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A person shall register as a swap dealer or major swap participant by filing a registration application with the Commission.

''(2) CONTENTS.—The application shall be made in such form and manner as prescribed by the Commission, giving any information and facts as the Commission may deem necessary concerning the business in which the applicant is or will be engaged. The person, when registered as a swap dealer or major swap participant, shall continue to report and furnish to the Commission such information pertaining to the person's business as the Commission may require.

''(3) EXPIRATION.—Each registration shall expire at such time as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe.

''(4) RULES.—Except as provided in subsections (c), (d) and (e), the Commission may prescribe rules applicable to swap dealers and major swap participants, including rules that limit the activities of swap dealers and major swap participants. Except with regard to subsection (d)(1)(A), the Commission may provide conditional or unconditional exemptions from some or all of the rules or requirements prescribed under this section for swap dealers and major swap participants.

''(5) TRANSITION.—Rules adopted under this section shall provide for the registration of swap dealers and major swap participants no later than 1 year after the effective date of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.

''(6) STATUTORY DISQUALIFICATION.—Except to the extent otherwise specifically provided by rule, regulation, or order, it shall be unlawful for a swap dealer or a major swap participant to permit any person associated with a swap dealer or a major swap participant who is subject to a statutory disqualification to effect or be involved in effecting swaps on behalf of the swap dealer or major swap participant, if the swap dealer or major swap participant knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of the statutory disqualification.

''(c) RULES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this section, the Commission shall adopt rules for persons that are registered as swap dealers or major swap participants under this section.

''(2) EXCEPTION FOR PRUDENTIAL REQUIREMENTS.—The Commission shall not prescribe rules imposing prudential requirements on swap dealers or major swap participants for which there is a Prudential Regulator. This provision shall not be construed as limiting the authority of the Commission to prescribe appropriate business conduct, reporting, and recordkeeping requirements to protect investors.

''(d) CAPITAL AND MARGIN REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—

''(A) BANK SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant for which there is a Prudential Regulator shall meet such minimum capital requirements and minimum initial and variation margin requirements as the Prudential Regulators shall by rule or regulation jointly prescribe that:

''(i) help ensure the safety and soundness of the swap dealer or major swap participant; and

''(ii) are appropriate for the risk associated with the non-cleared swaps held as a swap dealer or major swap participant.

''(B) NON-BANK SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant for which there is not a Prudential Regulator shall meet such minimum capital requirements and minimum initial and variation margin requirements as the Commission shall by rule or regulation prescribe that—

''(i) help ensure the safety and soundness of the swap dealer or major swap participant; and

''(ii) are appropriate for the risk associated with the non-cleared swaps held as a swap dealer or major swap participant.

''(2) RULES.—

''(A) BANK SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Prudential Regulators, in consultation with the Commission, shall jointly adopt rules imposing capital and margin requirements under this subsection for swap dealers and major swap participants, with respect to their activities as a swap dealer or major swap participant for which there is a Prudential Regulator

''(B) NON-BANK SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules imposing capital and margin requirements under this subsection for swap dealers and major swap participants for which there is no Prudential Regulator.

''(3) AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this section shall limit the authority of the Commission to set capital requirements for a registered futures commission merchant or introducing broker in accordance with section 4f.

''(e) REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant—

''(A) shall make such reports as are prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation regarding the transactions and positions and financial condition of the person;

''(B) for which—

''(i) there is a Prudential Regulator, shall keep books and records of all activities related to its business as a swap dealer or major swap participant in such form and manner and for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation;

''(ii) there is no Prudential Regulator, shall keep books and records in such form and manner and for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation;

''(C) shall keep the books and records open to inspection and examination by any representative of the Commissionl and

''(D) shall keep any such books and records relating to swaps defined in section 1a(35)(A)(v) open to inspection and examination by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

''(2) RULES.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing reporting and recordkeeping for swap dealers and major swap participants.

''(f) DAILY TRADING RECORDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant shall maintain daily trading records of its swaps and all related records (including related cash or forward transactions) and recorded communications including but not limited to electronic mail, instant messages, and recordings of telephone calls, for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation.

''(2) INFORMATION REQUIREMENTS.—The daily trading records shall include such information as the Commission shall prescribe by rule or regulation.

''(3) CUSTOMER RECORDS.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant shall maintain daily trading records for each customer or counterparty in such manner and form as to be identifiable with each swap transaction.

''(4) AUDIT TRAIL.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant shall maintain a complete audit trail for conducting comprehensive and accurate trade reconstructions.

''(5) RULES.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing daily trading records for swap dealers and major swap participants.

''(g) BUSINESS CONDUCT STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant shall conform with business conduct standards as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation addressing—

''(A) fraud, manipulation, and other abusive practices involving swaps (including swaps that are offered but not entered into);

''(B) diligent supervision of its business as a swap dealer;

''(C) adherence to all applicable position limits; and

''(D) such other matters as the Commission shall determine to be necessary or appropriate.

''(2) BUSINESS CONDUCT REQUIREMENTS.—Business conduct requirements adopted by the Commission shall—

''(A) establish the standard of care for a swap dealer or major swap participant to verify that any counterparty meets the eligibility standards for an eligible contract participant;

''(B) require disclosure by the swap dealer or major swap participant to any counterparty to the transaction (other than a swap dealer or major swap participant) of—

''(i) information about the material risks and characteristics of the swap;

''(ii) for cleared swaps, upon the request of the counterparty, the daily mark from the appropriate derivatives clearing organization, and for non-cleared swaps, upon request of the counterparty, the daily mark of the swap dealer or major swap participant; and

''(iii) any other material incentives or conflicts of interest that the swap dealer or major swap participant may have in connection with the swap; and

''(C) establish such other standards and requirements as the Commission may determine are necessary or appropriate in the public interest, for the protection of investors, or otherwise in furtherance of the purposes of this Act.

''(3) RULES.—The Commission shall prescribe rules under this subsection governing business conduct standards for swap dealers and major swap participants no later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.

''(h) DOCUMENTATION STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant shall conform with standards, as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation, addressing timely and accurate confirmation, processing, netting, documentation, and valuation of all swaps.

''(2) RULES.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing the standards described in paragraph (1) for swap dealers and major swap participants.

''(i) DEALER RESPONSIBILITIES.—Each registered swap dealer and major swap participant at all times shall comply with the following requirements:

''(1) MONITORING OF TRADING.—The swap dealer or major swap participant shall monitor its trading in swaps to prevent violations of applicable position limits.

''(2) DISCLOSURE OF GENERAL INFORMATION.—The swap dealer or major swap participant shall disclose to the Commission or to the Prudential Regulator for the swap dealer or major swap participant, as applicable, information concerning—

''(A) terms and conditions of its swaps;

''(B) swap trading operations, mechanisms, and practices;

''(C) financial integrity protections relating to swaps; and

''(D) other information relevant to its trading in swaps.

''(3) ABILITY TO OBTAIN INFORMATION.—The swap dealer or major swap participant shall—

''(A) establish and enforce internal systems and procedures to obtain any necessary information to perform any of the functions described in this section; and

''(B) provide the information to the Commission or to the Prudential Regulator for the swap dealer or major swap participant, as applicable, upon request.

''(4) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The swap dealer and major swap participant shall implement conflict-of-interest systems and procedures that—

''(A) establish structural and institutional safeguards to assure that the activities of any person within the firm relating to research or analysis of the price or market for any commodity are separated by appropriate informational partitions within the firm from the review, pressure, or oversight of those whose involvement in trading or clearing activities might potentially bias their judgment or supervision; and

''(B) address such other issues as the Commission determines appropriate.

''(5) ANTITRUST CONSIDERATIONS.—The swap dealer or major swap participant shall avoid—

''(A) adopting any processes or taking any actions that result in any unreasonable restraints of trade; or

''(B) imposing any material anticompetitive burden on trading.''.

SEC. 3108. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.

Section 4d of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 6d) is amended by—

(1) redesignating subsection (c) as subsection (d); and

(2) inserting after subsection (b) the following:

''(c) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The Commission shall require that futures commission merchants and introducing brokers implement conflict-of-interest systems and procedures that—

''(1) establish structural and institutional safeguards to assure that the activities of any person within the firm relating to research or analysis of the price or market for any commodity are separated by appropriate informational partitions within the firm from the review, pressure, or oversight of those whose involvement in trading or clearing activities might potentially bias their judgment or supervision; and

''(2) address such other issues as the Commission determines appropriate.''.

SEC. 3109. SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 5g the following:

''SEC. 5h. SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.

''(a) REGISTRATION.—A person may not operate a swap execution facility unless the facility is registered under this section or is registered with the Commission as a designated contract market under section 5 or a swap execution facility under section 5.

''(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR TRADING.—

''(1) A swap execution facility that is registered under subsection (a) may make available for trading any swap.

''(2) RULES FOR TRADING THROUGH THE FACILITY.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules to allow a swap to be traded through the facilities of a designated contract market or a swap execution facility. Such rules shall permit an intermediary, acting as principal or agent, to enter into or execute a swap, notwithstanding section 2(k), if the swap is executed, reported, recorded, or confirmed in accordance with the rules of the designated contract market or swap execution facility.

''(3) AGRICULTURAL SWAPS.—A swap execution facility may not list for trading or confirm the execution of any swap in an agricultural commodity (as defined by the Commission) except pursuant to a rule or regulation of the Commission allowing the swap under such terms and conditions as the Commission shall prescribe.

''(c) TRADING BY CONTRACT MARKETS.—A board of trade that operates a contract market shall, to the extent that the board of trade also operates a swap execution facility and uses the same electronic trade execution system for trading on the contract market and the swap execution facility, identify whether the electronic trading is taking place on the contract market or the swap execution facility.

''(d) CORE PRINCIPLES FOR SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—To be registered as, and to maintain its registration as, a swap execution facility, the facility shall comply with the core principles specified in this subsection and any requirement that the Commission may impose by rule or regulation pursuant to section 8a(5). Except where the Commission determines otherwise by rule or regulation, the facility shall have reasonable discretion in establishing the manner in which it complies with these core principles.

''(2) COMPLIANCE WITH RULES.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) monitor and enforce compliance with any of the rules of the facility, including the terms and conditions of the swaps traded on or through the facility and any limitations on access to the facility; and

''(B) establish and enforce trading and participation rules that will deter abuses and have the capacity to detect, investigate, and enforce those rules, including means to—

''(i) provide market participants with impartial access to the market; and

''(ii) capture information that may be used in establishing whether rule violations have occurred.

''(3) SWAPS NOT READILY SUSCEPTIBLE TO MANIPULATION.—The swap execution facility shall permit trading only in swaps that are not readily susceptible to manipulation.

''(4) MONITORING OF TRADING.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules or terms and conditions defining, or specifications detailing, trading procedures to be used in entering and executing orders traded on or through its facilities; and

''(B) monitor trading in swaps to prevent manipulation, price distortion, and disruptions of the delivery or cash settlement process through surveillance, compliance, and disciplinary practices and procedures, including methods for conducting real-time monitoring of trading and comprehensive and accurate trade reconstructions.

''(5) ABILITY TO OBTAIN INFORMATION.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules that will allow the facility to obtain any necessary information to perform any of the functions described in this section;

''(B) provide the information to the Commission upon request; and

''(C) have the capacity to carry out such international information-sharing agreements as the Commission may require.

''(6) POSITION LIMITS OR ACCOUNTABILITY.—

''(A) To reduce the potential threat of market manipulation or congestion, especially during trading in the delivery month, a swap execution facility that is a trading facility shall adopt for each of its contracts made available for trading on the trading facility, where necessary and appropriate, position limitations or position accountability for speculators who establish positions in the contract.

''(B) For any contract of a swap execution facility that is subject to a position limitation established by the Commission pursuant to section 4a(a), the swap execution facility—

''(i) may set a position limitation at a level that is lower than the Commission limitation; and

''(ii) shall monitor positions established on or through the swap execution facility for compliance with the limit set by the Commission and the limit, if any, set by the swap execution facility.

''(7) FINANCIAL INTEGRITY OF TRANSACTIONS.—The swap execution facility shall establish and enforce rules and procedures for ensuring the financial integrity of swaps entered on or through its facilities, including the clearance and settlement of the swaps pursuant to section 2(j)(1).

''(8) EMERGENCY AUTHORITY.—The swap execution facility shall adopt rules to provide for the exercise of emergency authority, in consultation or cooperation with the Commission, where necessary and appropriate, including the authority to liquidate or transfer open positions in any swap or to suspend or curtail trading in a swap.

''(9) TIMELY PUBLICATION OF TRADING INFORMATION.—The swap execution facility shall make public timely information on price, trading volume, and other trading data on swaps to the extent prescribed by the Commission. The Commission shall evaluate the impact of public disclosure on market liquidity in the relevant market, and shall seek to avoid public disclosure of information in a manner that would significantly reduce market liquidity. The Commission shall not disclose information related to the internal business decisions of particular market participants.

''(10) RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING.—The swap execution facility shall maintain records of all activities related to the business of the facility, including a complete audit trail, in a form and manner acceptable to the Commission for a period of 5 years, and report to the Commission all information determined by the Commission to be necessary or appropriate for the Commission to perform its responsibilities under this Act in a form and manner acceptable to the Commission. The swap execution facility shall keep any such records relating to swaps defined in section 1a(35)(A)(v) open to inspection and examination by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Commission shall adopt data collection and reporting requirements for swap execution facilities that are comparable to corresponding requirements for derivatives clearing organizations and swap repositories.

''(11) ANTITRUST CONSIDERATIONS.—The swap execution facility shall avoid—

''(A) adopting any rules or taking any actions that result in any unreasonable restraints of trade; or

''(B) imposing any material anticompetitive burden on trading on the swap execution facility.

''(12) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules to minimize conflicts of interest in its decision-making process; and

''(B) establish a process for resolving the conflicts of interest.

''(13) FINANCIAL RESOURCES.—

''(A) The swap execution facility shall have adequate financial, operational, and managerial resources to discharge its responsibilities.

''(B) The financial resources of the swap execution facility shall be considered adequate if their value exceeds the total amount that would enable the facility to cover its operating costs for a period of 1 year, calculated on a rolling basis.

''(14) SYSTEM SAFEGUARDS.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and maintain a program of risk analysis and oversight to identify and minimize sources of operational risk, through the development of appropriate controls and procedures, and the development of automated systems, that are reliable, secure, and have adequate scalable capacity;

''(B) establish and maintain emergency procedures, backup facilities, and a plan for disaster recovery that allow for the timely recovery and resumption of operations and the fulfillment of the swap execution facility's responsibilities and obligation; and

''(C) periodically conduct tests to verify that backup resources are sufficient to ensure continued order processing and trade matching, price reporting, market surveillance, and maintenance of a comprehensive and accurate audit trail.

''(15) DESIGNATION OF COMPLIANCE OFFICER.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Each swap execution facility shall designate an individual to serve as a compliance officer.

''(B) DUTIES.—The compliance officer—

''(i) shall report directly to the board or to the senior officer of the facility;

''(ii) shall—

''(I) review compliance with the core principles in this subsection;

''(II) in consultation with the board of the facility, a body performing a function similar to that of a board, or the senior officer of the facility, resolve any conflicts of interest that may arise;

''(III) be responsible for administering the policies and procedures required to be established pursuant to this section; and

''(IV) ensure compliance with this Act and the rules and regulations issued under this Act, including rules prescribed by the Commission pursuant to this section; and

''(iii) shall establish procedures for remediation of non-compliance issues found during compliance office reviews, lookbacks, internal or external audit findings, self-reported errors, or through validated complaints, and for the handling, management response, remediation, re-testing, and closing of non-compliant issues.

''(C) ANNUAL REPORTS REQUIRED.—The compliance officer shall annually prepare and sign a report on the compliance of the facility with this Act and its policies and procedures, including its code of ethics and conflict of interest policies, in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commission. The compliance report shall accompany the financial reports of the facility that are required to be furnished to the Commission pursuant to this section and shall include a certification that, under penalty of law, the report is accurate and complete.

''(e) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a swap execution facility from registration under this section if the Commission finds that the facility is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation on a consolidated basis by the Securities and Exchange Commission, a Prudential Regulator or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country.

''(f) RULES.—No later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall prescribe rules governing the regulation of swap execution facilities under this section.''.

SEC. 3110. DERIVATIVES TRANSACTION EXECUTION FACILITIES AND EXEMPT BOARDS OF TRADE.

(a) Sections 5a and 5d of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) are repealed.

(b)(1) Prior to the final effective dates in this title, a person may petition the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to remain subject to the provisions of section 5d of the Commodity Exchange Act, as such provisions existed prior to the effective date of this subtitle.

(2) The Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall consider any petition submitted under paragraph (1) in a prompt manner and may allow a person to continue operating subject to the provisions of section 5d of the Commodity Exchange Act for up to 1 year after the effective date of this subtitle.

SEC. 3111. DESIGNATED CONTRACT MARKETS.

(a) Section 5(d) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)) is amended by striking paragraphs (1) and (2) and inserting the following:

''(1) IN GENERAL.—To be designated as, and to maintain the designation of a board of trade as a contract market, the board of trade shall comply with the core principles specified in this subsection and any requirement that the Commission may impose by rule or regulation pursuant to section 8a(5). Except where the Commission determines otherwise by rule or regulation, the board of trade shall have reasonable discretion in establishing the manner in which it complies with the core principles.

''(2) COMPLIANCE WITH RULES.—

''(A) The board of trade shall monitor and enforce compliance with the rules of the contract market, including access requirements, the terms and conditions of any contracts to be traded on the contract market and the contract market's abusive trade practice prohibitions.

''(B) The board of trade shall have the capacity to detect, investigate, and apply appropriate sanctions to, any person or entity that violates the rules.

''(C) The rules shall provide the board of trade with the ability and authority to obtain any necessary information to perform any of the functions described in this subsection, including the capacity to carry out such international information-sharing agreements as the Commission may require.''.

(b) Section 5(d) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)) is amended by striking paragraphs (4) and (5) and inserting the following:

''(4) PREVENTION OF MARKET DISRUPTION.—The board of trade shall have the capacity and responsibility to prevent manipulation, price distortion, and disruptions of the delivery or cash-settlement process through market surveillance, compliance, and enforcement practices and procedures, including methods for conducting real-time monitoring of trading and comprehensive and accurate trade reconstructions.

''(5) POSITION LIMITATIONS OR ACCOUNTABILITY.—

''(A) To reduce the potential threat of market manipulation or congestion, especially during trading in the delivery month, the board of trade shall adopt for each of its contracts, where necessary and appropriate, position limitations or position accountability for speculators.

''(B) For any contract that is subject to a position limitation established by the Commission pursuant to section 4a(a), the board of trade shall set its position limitation at a level no higher than the Commission-established limitation.''.

(c) Section 5(d) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)) is amended by striking paragraph (7) and inserting the following:

''(7) AVAILABILITY OF GENERAL INFORMATION.—The board of trade shall make available to market authorities, market participants, and the public accurate information concerning—

''(A) the terms and conditions of the contracts of the contract market; and

''(B) the rules, regulations and mechanisms for executing transactions on or through the facilities of the contract market, and the rules and specifications describing the operation of the board of trade's electronic matching platform or other trade execution facility.''.

(d) Section 5(d) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)) is amended by striking paragraph (9) and inserting the following:

''(9) EXECUTION OF TRANSACTIONS.—

''(A) The board of trade shall provide a competitive, open, and efficient market and mechanism for executing transactions that protects the price discovery process of trading in the board of trade's centralized market.

''(B) The rules may authorize, for bona fide business purposes—

''(i) transfer trades or office trades;

''(ii) an exchange of—

''(I) futures in connection with a cash commodity transaction;

''(II) futures for cash commodities; or

''(III) futures for swaps; or

''(iii) A futures commission merchant, acting as principal or agent, to enter into or confirm the execution of a contract for the purchase or sale of a commodity for future delivery if the contract is reported, recorded, or cleared in accordance with the rules of the contract market or a derivatives clearing organization.''.

(e) Section 5(d)(17) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)(17)) is amended by adding at the end the following: ''The board of trade shall keep any such records relating to swaps defined in section 1a(35)(A)(v) open to inspection and examination by the Securities and Exchange Commission.''.

(f) Section 5(d) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7(d)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(19) FINANCIAL RESOURCES.—The board of trade shall have adequate financial, operational, and managerial resources to discharge the responsibilities of a contract market. For the financial resources of a board of trade to be considered adequate, their value shall exceed the total amount that would enable the contract market to cover its operating costs for a period of 1 year, calculated on a rolling basis.

''(20) SYSTEM SAFEGUARDS.—The board of trade shall—

''(A) establish and maintain a program of risk analysis and oversight to identify and minimize sources of operational risk through the development of appropriate controls and procedures, and the development of automated systems, that are reliable, secure, and give adequate scalable capacity;

''(B) establish and maintain emergency procedures, backup facilities, and a plan for disaster recovery that allow for the timely recovery and resumption of operations and the fulfillment of the board of trade's responsibilities and obligations; and

''(C) periodically conduct tests to verify that back-up resources are sufficient to ensure continued order processing and trade matching, price reporting, market surveillance, and maintenance of a comprehensive and accurate audit trail.

''(21) DIVERSITY OF BOARDS OF DIRECTORS.—The board of trade, if a publicly traded company, shall endeavor to recruit individuals to serve on the board of directors and the other decision-making bodies (as determined by the Commission) of the board of trade from among, and to have the composition of the bodies reflect, a broad and culturally diverse pool of qualified candidates.

''(22) DISCIPLINARY PROCEDURES.—The board of trade shall establish and enforce disciplinary procedures that authorize the board of trade to discipline, suspend, or expel members or market participants that violate the rules of the board of trade, or similar methods for performing the same functions, including delegation of the functions to third parties.''.

(g) Section 5 of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7) is amended by striking subsection (b).

SEC. 3112. MARGIN.

(a) Section 8a(7)(C) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 12a(7)(C)) is amended by striking '', excepting the setting of levels of margin''.

(b) Section 8a(7) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 12a(7)) is amended by redesignating subparagraphs (D) through (F) as subparagraphs (E) through (G), respectively, and inserting after subparagraph (C) the following:

''(D) margin requirements, provided that such rules, regulations, or orders shall—

''(i) be limited to protecting the financial integrity of the derivatives clearing organization;

''(ii) be designed for risk management purposes in order to protect the financial integrity of transactions; and

''(iii) not set specific margin amounts.''.

SEC. 3113. POSITION LIMITS.

(a) Section 4a(a) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 6a(a)) is amended by—

(1) inserting ''(1)'' after ''(a)'';

(2) striking ''on electronic trading facilities with respect to a significant price discovery contract'' in the first sentence and inserting ''swaps that perform or affect a significant price discovery function with respect to registered entities'';

(3) inserting '', including any group or class of traders,'' in the second sentence after ''held by any person'';

(4) striking ''on an electronic trading facility with respect to a significant price discovery contract,'' in the second sentence and inserting ''swaps that perform or affect a significant price discovery function with respect to registered entities,''; and

(5) inserting at the end the following:

''(2)(A) In accordance with the standards set forth in paragraph (1) of this subsection and consistent with the good faith exception cited in subsection (b)(2), with respect to physical commodities other than excluded commodities as defined by the Commission, the Commission shall by rule, regulation, or order establish limits on the amount of positions, as appropriate, other than bona fide hedge positions, that may be held by any person with respect to contracts of sale for future delivery or with respect to options on the contracts or commodities traded on or subject to the rules of a designated contract market.

''(B)(i) For exempt commodities, the limits shall be established within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this paragraph.

''(ii) For agricultural commodities, the limits shall be established within 270 days after the date of the enactment of this paragraph.

''(C) In establishing the limits, the Commission shall strive to ensure that trading on foreign boards of trade in the same commodity will be subject to comparable limits and that any limits to be imposed by the Commission will not cause price discovery in the commodity to shift to trading on the foreign boards of trade.

''(3) In establishing the limits required in paragraph (2), the Commission, as appropriate, shall set limits—

''(A) on the number of positions that may be held by any person for the spot month, each other month, and the aggregate number of positions that may be held by any person for all months; and

''(B) to the maximum extent practicable, in its discretion—

''(i) to diminish, eliminate, or prevent excessive speculation as described under this section;

''(ii) to deter and prevent market manipulation, squeezes, and corners;

''(iii) to ensure sufficient market liquidity for bona fide hedgers; and

''(iv) to ensure that the price discovery function of the underlying market is not disrupted.

''(4)(A) Not later than 150 days after the establishment of position limits pursuant to paragraph (2), and biannually thereafter, the Commission shall hold 2 public hearings, 1 for agriculture commodities and 1 for energy commodities as such terms are defined by the Commission, in order to receive recommendations regarding the position limits to be established in paragraph (2).

''(B) Each public hearing held pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall, at a minimum providing there is sufficient interest, receive recommendations from—

''(i) 7 predominantly commercial short hedgers of the actual physical commodity for future delivery;

''(ii) 7 predominantly commercial long hedgers of the actual physical commodity for future delivery;

''(iii) 4 non-commercial participants in markets for commodities for future delivery; and

''(iv) each designated contract market upon which a contract in the commodity for future delivery is traded.

''(C) Within 60 days after each public hearing held pursuant to subparagraph (A), the Commission shall publish in the Federal Register its response to the recommendations regarding position limits heard at the hearing.

''(5) SIGNIFICANT PRICE DISCOVERY FUNCTION.—In making a determination whether a swap performs or affects a significant price discovery function with respect to regulated markets, the Commission shall consider, as appropriate:

''(A) PRICE LINKAGE.—The extent to which the swap uses or otherwise relies on a daily or final settlement price, or other major price parameter, of another contract traded on a regulated market based upon the same underlying commodity, to value a position, transfer or convert a position, financially settle a position, or close out a position;

''(B) ARBITRAGE.—The extent to which the price for the swap is sufficiently related to the price of another contract traded on a regulated market based upon the same underlying commodity so as to permit market participants to effectively arbitrage between the markets by simultaneously maintaining positions or executing trades in the swaps on a frequent and recurring basis;

''(C) MATERIAL PRICE REFERENCE.—The extent to which, on a frequent and recurring basis, bids, offers, or transactions in a contract traded on a regulated market are directly based on, or are determined by referencing, the price generated by the swap;

''(D) MATERIAL LIQUIDITY.—The extent to which the volume of swaps being traded in the commodity is sufficient to have a material effect on another contract traded on a regulated market; and

''(E) OTHER MATERIAL FACTORS.—Such other material factors as the Commission specifies by rule or regulation as relevant to determine whether a swap serves a significant price discovery function with respect to a regulated market.

''(6) ECONOMICALLY EQUIVALENT CONTRACTS.—

''(A) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Commission shall establish limits on the amount of positions, including aggregate position limits, as appropriate, other than bona fide hedge positions, that may be held by any person with respect to swaps that are economically equivalent to contracts of sale for future delivery or to options on the contracts or commodities traded on or subject to the rules of a designated contract market subject to paragraph (2).

''(B) In establishing limits pursuant to subparagraph (A), the Commission shall—

''(i) develop the limits concurrently with limits established under paragraph (2), and the limits shall have similar requirements as under paragraph (3)(B); and

''(ii) establish the limits simultaneously with limits established under paragraph (2).

''(7) AGGREGATE POSITION LIMITS.—The Commission shall, by rule or regulation, establish limits (including related hedge exemption provisions) on the aggregate number or amount of positions in contracts based upon the same underlying commodity (as defined by the Commission) that may be held by any person, including any group or class of traders, for each month across—

''(A) contracts listed by designated contract markets;

''(B) with respect to an agreement contract, or transaction that settles against any price (including the daily or final settlement price) of 1 or more contracts listed for trading on a registered entity, contracts traded on a foreign board of trade that provides members or other participants located in the United States with direct access to its electronic trading and order matching system; and

''(C) swap contracts that perform or affect a significant price discovery function with respect to regulated entities.

''(8) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission, by rule, regulation, or order, may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, any person or class of persons, any swap or class of swaps, any contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery or class of such contracts, any option or class of options, or any transaction or class of transactions from any requirement it may establish under this section with respect to position limits.''.

(b) Section 4a(b) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 6a(b)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ''or derivatives transaction execution facility or facilities or electronic trading facility'' and inserting ''or swap execution facility or facilities''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking ''or derivatives transaction execution facility or facilities or electronic trading facility'' and inserting ''or swap execution facility''.

(c) Section 4a(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting ''(1)'' after ''(c)''; and

(2) by adding after and below the end the following:

''(2) For the purposes of implementation of subsection (a)(2) for contracts of sale for future delivery or options on the contracts or commodities, the Commission shall define what constitutes a bona fide hedging transaction or position as a transaction or position that—

''(A)(i) represents a substitute for transactions made or to be made or positions taken or to be taken at a later time in a physical marketing channel;

''(ii) is economically appropriate to the reduction of risks in the conduct and management of a commercial enterprise; and

''(iii) arises from the potential change in the value of—

''(I) assets that a person owns, produces, manufactures, processes, or merchandises or anticipates owning, producing, manufacturing, processing, or merchandising;

''(II) liabilities that a person owns or anticipates incurring; or

''(III) services that a person provides, purchases, or anticipates providing or purchasing; or

''(B) reduces risks attendant to a position resulting from a swap that—

''(i) was executed opposite a counterparty for which the transaction would qualify as a bona fide hedging transaction pursuant to subparagraph (A); or

''(ii) meets the requirements of subparagraph (A).''.

(d) This section shall become effective on the date of its enactment.

SEC. 3114. ENHANCED AUTHORITY OVER REGISTERED ENTITIES.

(a) Section 5c(a) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 7a–2(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ''5a(d) and 5b(c)(2)'' and inserting ''5b(c)(2) and 5h(e)''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking ''shall not'' and inserting ''may''.

(b) Section 5c(b) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-2(b)) is amended in each of paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) by inserting ''or swap execution facility'' after ''contract market'' each place it appears.

(c) Section 5c(c)(1) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a-2(c)(1)) is amended—

(1) by inserting ''(A)'' after ''IN GENERAL.—''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(B) The new rule or rule amendment shall become effective, pursuant to the registered entity's certification and notice of such certification to its members (in a manner to be determined by the Commission), 10 business days after the Commission's receipt of the certification (or such shorter period determined by the Commission by rule or regulation) unless the Commission notifies the registered entity within such time that it is staying the certification because there exist novel or complex issues that require additional time to analyze, an inadequate explanation by the submitting registered entity, or a potential inconsistency with this Act (including regulations under this Act).

''(C)(i) A notification by the Commission pursuant to subparagraph (B) shall stay the certification of the new contract or instrument or clearing of the new contract or instrument, new rule or new amendment for up to an additional 90 days from the date of the notification.

''(ii) The Commission shall provide at least a 30-day public comment period, within the 90-day period in which the stay is in effect described in clause (i), whenever it reviews a rule or rule amendment pursuant to a notification by the Commission under this paragraph.''.

(d) Section 5c(d) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 7a–2(d)) is repealed.

SEC. 3115. FOREIGN BOARDS OF TRADE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 4 of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 6) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(e) FOREIGN BOARDS OF TRADE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission may not permit a foreign board of trade to provide to the members of the foreign board of trade or other participants located in the United States direct access to the electronic trading and order-matching system of the foreign board of trade with respect to an agreement, contract, or transaction that settles against any price (including the daily or final settlement price) of 1 or more contracts listed for trading on a registered entity, unless the Commission determines that—

''(A) the foreign board of trade makes public daily trading information regarding the agreement, contract, or transaction that is comparable to the daily trading information published by the registered entity for the 1 or more contracts against which the agreement, contract, or transaction traded on the foreign board of trade settles; and

''(B) the foreign board of trade (or the foreign futures authority that oversees the foreign board of trade)—

''(i) adopts position limits (including related hedge exemption provisions) for the agreement, contract, or transaction that are comparable, taking into consideration the relative sizes of the respective markets, to the position limits (including related hedge exemption provisions) adopted by the registered entity for the 1 or more contracts against which the agreement, contract, or transaction traded on the foreign board of trade settles;

''(ii) has the authority to require or direct market participants to limit, reduce, or liquidate any position the foreign board of trade (or the foreign futures authority that oversees the foreign board of trade) determines to be necessary to prevent or reduce the threat of price manipulation, excessive speculation as described in section 4a, price distortion, or disruption of delivery or the cash settlement process;

''(iii) agrees to promptly notify the Commission, with regard to the agreement, contract, or transaction that settles against any price (including the daily or final settlement price) of 1 or more contracts listed for trading on a registered entity, of any change regarding—

''(I) the information that the foreign board of trade will make publicly available;

''(II) the position limits that the foreign board of trade or foreign futures authority will adopt and enforce;

''(III) the position reductions required to prevent manipulation, excessive speculation as described in section 4a, price distortion, or disruption of delivery or the cash settlement process; and

''(IV) any other area of interest expressed by the Commission to the foreign board of trade or foreign futures authority;

''(iv) provides information to the Commission regarding large trader positions in the agreement, contract, or transaction that is comparable to the large trader position information collected by the Commission for the 1 or more contracts against which the agreement, contract, or transaction traded on the foreign board of trade settles; and

''(v) provides the Commission with information necessary to publish reports on aggregate trader positions for the agreement, contract, or transaction traded on the foreign board of trade that are comparable to the reports on aggregate trader positions for the 1 or more contracts against which the agreement, contract, or transaction traded on the foreign board of trade settles.

''(2) EXISTING FOREIGN BOARDS OF TRADE.—Paragraph (1) shall not be effective with respect to any foreign board of trade to which the Commission has granted direct access permission before the date of the enactment of this subsection until the date that is 180 days after such date of enactment.

''(3) PERSONS LOCATED IN THE UNITED STATES.—''.

(b) LIABILITY OF REGISTERED PERSONS TRADING ON A FOREIGN BOARD OF TRADE.—

(1) Section 4(a) of such Act (7. U.S.C. 6(a)) is amended by inserting ''or by subsection (f)'' after ''Unless exempted by the Commission pursuant to subsection (c)''; and

(2) Section 4 of such Act (7 U.S.C 6) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

''(f)(1) A person registered with the Commission, or exempt from registration by the Commission, under this Act may not be found to have violated subsection (a) with respect to a transaction in, or in connection with, a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery if the person—

''(A) has reason to believe that the transaction and the contract is made on or subject to the rules of a foreign board of trade that is—

''(i) legally organized under the laws of a foreign country;

''(ii) authorized to act as a board of trade by a foreign futures authority; and

''(iii) subject to regulation by the foreign futures authority; and

''(B) has not been determined by the Commission to be operating in violation of subsection (a).

''(2) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as implying or creating any presumption that a board of trade, exchange, or market is located outside the United States, or its territories or possessions, for purposes of subsection (a).''.

(c) CONTRACT ENFORCEMENT FOR FOREIGN FUTURES CONTRACTS.—Section 22(a) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 25(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(5) CONTRACT ENFORCEMENT FOR FOREIGN FUTURES CONTRACTS.—A contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery traded or executed on or through the facilities of a board of trade, exchange, or market located outside the United States for purposes of section 4(a) shall not be void, voidable, or unenforceable, and a party to such a contract shall not be entitled to rescind or recover any payment made with respect to the contract, based on the failure of the foreign board of trade to comply with any provision of this Act.''.

SEC. 3116. LEGAL CERTAINTY FOR SWAPS.

Section 22(a)(4) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 25(a)(4)) is amended to read as follows:

''(4) CONTRACT ENFORCEMENT BETWEEN ELIGIBLE COUNTERPARTIES.—

''(A) A hybrid instrument sold to any investor shall not be void, voidable, or unenforceable, and a party to such a hybrid instrument shall not be entitled to rescind, or recover any payment made with respect to, such a hybrid instrument under this section or any other provision of Federal or State law, based solely on the failure of the hybrid instrument to comply with the terms or conditions of section 2(f) or regulations of the Commission; and

''(B) An agreement, contract, or transaction between eligible contract participants or persons reasonably believed to be eligible contract participants shall not be void, voidable, or unenforceable, and a party thereto shall not be entitled to rescind, or recover any payment made with respect to, such an agreement, contract, or transaction under this section or any other provision of Federal or State law, based solely on the failure of the agreement, contract, or transaction to meet the definition of a swap set forth in section 1a, be traded in the manner set forth in section 2(k)(1), or be cleared pursuant to 2(j)(1) or regulations of the Commission pursuant thereto.''.

SEC. 3117. FDICIA AMENDMENTS.

Sections 408 and 409 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 (12 U.S.C. 4421 and 4422) are repealed.

SEC. 3118. ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.

(a) The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 4b the following:

''SEC. 4b–1. ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.

''(a) CFTC.—Except as provided in subsection (b), the Commission shall have exclusive authority to enforce the provisions of subtitle A of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009 with respect to any person.

''(b) PRUDENTIAL REGULATORS.—The Prudential Regulators shall have exclusive authority to enforce the provisions of section 4s(d) and other prudential requirements of this Act with respect to banks, and branches or agencies of foreign banks that are swap dealers or major swap participants.

''(c) REFERRAL.—(1) If the Prudential Regulator for a swap dealer or major swap participant has cause to believe that the swap dealer or major swap participant may have engaged in conduct that constitutes a violation of the nonprudential requirements of section 4s or rules adopted by the Commission thereunder, that Prudential Regulator may recommend in writing to the Commission that the Commission initiate an enforcement proceeding as authorized under this Act. The recommendation shall be accompanied by a written explanation of the concerns giving rise to the recommendation.

''(2) If the Commission has cause to believe that a swap dealer or major swap participant that has a Prudential Regulator may have engaged in conduct that constitutes a violation of the prudential requirements of section 4s or rules adopted thereunder, the Commission may recommend in writing to the Prudential Regulator that the Prudential Regulator initiate an enforcement proceeding as authorized under this Act. The recommendation shall be accompanied by a written explanation of the concerns given rise to the recommendation.''.

''(3) DISRUPTIVE PRACTICES.—It shall be unlawful for any person to engage in any trading or practice on or subject to the rules of a registered entity that—

''(A) violates bids and offers (intentionally bidding at a price higher than the lowest offer, or offering at a price lower than the highest bid);

''(B) is, is of the character of, or is commonly known to the trade as 'marking the close' (bidding or offering during or near the market's closing period with the intent to influence the settlement price);

''(C) is, is of the character of, or is commonly known to the trade as 'spoofing' (bidding or offering with the intent to cancel the bid or offer before execution); or

''(D) constitutes uneconomic trading (trading that has no legitimate economic purpose but for the effect on price).

''(4) The Commission may make and promulgate such rules and regulations as, in the judgment of the Commission, are reasonably necessary to prohibit any other trading practice that is disruptive of fair and equitable trading.''.

(2) The amendment made by paragraph (1) shall become effective upon enactment.

SEC. 3119. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) Section 4b(a)(2) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 6b(a)(2)) is amended by striking ''or other agreement, contract, or transaction subject to paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5a(g),'' and inserting ''or swap,''.

(b) Section 4b(b) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 6b(b)) is amended by striking ''or other agreement, contract or transaction subject to paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5a(g),'' and inserting ''or swap,''.

(c) Section 4c(a) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 6c(a)) is amended by inserting ''or swap'' before ''if the transaction is used or may be used''.

(d) Section 9(a)(2) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 13(a)(2)) is amended by inserting ''or of any swap,'' before ''or to corner''.

(e) Section 9(a)(4) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 13(a)(4)) is amended by inserting ''swap repository,'' before ''or futures association''.

(f) Section 9(e)(1) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 13(e)(1)) is amended by inserting ''swap repository,'' before ''or registered futures association'' and by inserting '', or swaps,'' before ''on the basis''.

(g) Section 8(b) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1818(b)) is amended by redesignating paragraphs (6) through (10) as paragraphs (7) through (11), respectively, and inserting after paragraph (5) the following:

''(6) This section shall apply to any swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant, derivatives clearing organization, swap repository, security-based swap repository, or swap execution facility, whether or not it is an insured depository institution, for which the Board, the Corporation, or the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency is the appropriate Federal banking agency or Prudential Regulator for purposes of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.''.

SEC. 3120. RETAIL COMMODITY TRANSACTIONS.

(a) Section 2(c) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 2(c)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ''(other than section 5a (to the extent provided in section 5a(g)), 5b, 5d, or 12(e)(2)(B))'' and inserting ''(other than section 5b or 12(e)(2)(B))''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting after subparagraph (C) the following:

''(D) RETAIL COMMODITY TRANSACTIONS.—

''(i) This subparagraph shall apply to, and the Commission shall have jurisdiction over, any agreement, contract, or transaction in any commodity that is—

''(I) entered into with, or offered to (even if not entered into with), a person that is not an eligible contract participant or eligible commercial entity; and

''(II) entered into, or offered (even if not entered into), on a leveraged or margined basis, or financed by the offeror, the counterparty, or a person acting in concert with the offeror or counterparty on a similar basis.

''(ii) Clause (i) shall not apply to—

''(I) an agreement, contract, or transaction described in paragraph (1) or subparagraphs (A), (B), or (C), including any agreement, contract, or transaction specifically excluded from subparagraph (A), (B), or (C);

''(II) any security;

''(III) a contract of sale that—

''(aa) results in actual delivery within 28 days or such other longer period as the Commission may determine by rule or regulation based upon the typical commercial practice in cash or spot markets for the commodity involved; or

''(bb) creates an enforceable obligation to deliver between a seller and a buyer that have the ability to deliver and accept delivery, respectively, in connection with their line of business.

''(IV) an agreement, contract, or transaction that is listed on a national securities exchange registered under section 6(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78f(a)); or

''(V) an identified banking product, as defined in section 402(b) of the Legal Certainty for Bank Products Act of 2000 (7 U.S.C. 27(b)).

''(iii) Sections 4(a), 4(b) and 4b shall apply to any agreement, contract or transaction described in clause (i), that is not excluded from clause (i) by clause (ii), as if the agreement, contract, or transaction were a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery.

''(iv) This subparagraph shall not be construed to limit any jurisdiction that the Commission may otherwise have under any other provision of this Act over an agreement, contract, or transaction that is a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery;

''(v) This subparagraph shall not be construed to limit any jurisdiction that the Commission or the Securities and Exchange Commission may otherwise have under any other provisions of this Act with respect to security futures products and persons effecting transactions in security futures products;

''(vi) For the purposes of this subparagraph, an agricultural producer, packer, or handler shall be considered an eligible commercial entity for any agreement, contract, or transaction for a commodity in connection with its line of business.''.

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective on the date of the enactment of this section.

SEC. 3121. LARGE SWAP TRADER REPORTING.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 4s (as added by section 3107 of this Act) the following:

''SEC. 4t. LARGE SWAP TRADER REPORTING.

''(a) It shall be unlawful for any person to enter into any swap that performs or affects a significant price discovery function with respect to registered entities if—

''(1) the person directly or indirectly enters into such swaps during any 1 day in an amount equal to or in excess of such amount as shall be fixed from time to time by the Commission; and

''(2) such person directly or indirectly has or obtains a position in such swaps equal to or in excess of such amount as shall be fixed from time to time by the Commission, unless the person files or causes to be filed with the properly designated officer of the Commission such reports regarding any transactions or positions described in paragraphs (1) and (2) as the Commission may by rule or regulation require and unless, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Commission, the person keeps books and records of all such swaps and any transactions and positions in any related commodity traded on or subject to the rules of any board of trade, and of cash or spot transactions in, inventories of, and purchase and sale commitments of, such a commodity.

''(b) The books and records shall show complete details concerning all transactions and positions as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe.

''(c) The books and records shall be open at all times to inspection and examination by any representative of the Commission.

''(d) For the purpose of this subsection, the swaps, futures and cash or spot transactions and positions of any person shall include the transactions and positions of any persons directly or indirectly controlled by the person.

''(e) In making a determination whether a swap performs or affects a significant price discovery function with respect to regulated markets, the Commission shall consider the factors set forth in section 4a(a)(3).''.

SEC. 3122. SEGREGATION OF ASSETS HELD AS COLLATERAL IN SWAP TRANSACTIONS.

The Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) is further amended by inserting after section 4t the following:

''SEC. 4u. SEGREGATION OF ASSETS HELD AS COLLATERAL IN OVER-THE-COUNTER SWAP TRANSACTIONS.

''(a) SEGREGATION.—At the request of a swap counterparty who provides funds or other property to a swap dealer initial margin or collateral to secure the obligations of the counterparty under a swap between the counterparty and the swap dealer that is not submitted for clearing to a derivatives clearing organization, the swap dealer shall segregate the funds or other property for the benefit of the counterparty, and maintain the initial margin or collateral in an account which is carried by an independent third-party custodian and designated as a segregated account for the counterparty, in accordance with such rules and regulations as the Commission or Prudential Regulator may prescribe. If a swap counterparty is a swap dealer or major swap participant who owns more than 20 percent of, or has more than 50 percent representation on the board of directors of a custodian, the custodian shall not be considered independent from the swap counterparties for purposes of the preceding sentence. This subsection shall not be interpreted to preclude commercial arrangements regarding the investment of the segregated funds or other property and the related allocation of gains and losses resulting from any such investment.

''(b) FURTHER AUDIT REPORTING.—If a swap dealer does not segregate funds pursuant to the request of a swap counterparty in accordance with subsection (a), the swap dealer shall report to its counterparty on a quarterly basis that its procedures relating to margin and collateral requirements are in compliance with the agreement of the counterparties.''.

SEC. 3123. OTHER AUTHORITY.

Unless otherwise provided by its terms, this subtitle does not divest any appropriate Federal banking agency, the Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, or other Federal or State agency, of any authority derived from any other applicable law.

SEC. 3124. ANTITRUST.

Nothing in the amendments made by this subtitle shall be construed to modify, impair, or supersede the operation of any of the antitrust laws. For purposes of this subtitle, the term ''antitrust laws'' has the same meaning given the term in subsection (a) of the first section of the Clayton Act, except that the term includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act to the extent that such section 5 applies to unfair methods of competition.

SEC. 3125. REVIEW OF PRIOR ACTIONS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Commodity Exchange Act, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission shall review, as appropriate, all regulations, rules, exemptions, exclusions, guidance, no action letters, orders, other actions taken by or on behalf of the Commission, and any action taken pursuant to the Commodity Exchange Act by an exchange, self-regulatory organization, or any other registered entity, that are currently in effect, to ensure that such prior actions are in compliance with the provisions of this title.

SEC. 3126. EXPEDITED PROCESS.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission may use emergency and expedited procedures (including any administrative or other procedure as appropriate) to carry out this title if, in its discretion, it deems it necessary to do so.

SEC. 3127. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) Unless otherwise provided, the provisions of this subtitle shall become effective the later of 270 days after the date of the enactment of this subtitle or, to the extent a provision of this subtitle requires rulemaking, no less than 60 days after publication of a final rule or regulation implementing such provision of this subtitle.

(b) Subsection (a) shall not preclude the Commodity Futures Trading Commission from any rulemaking required or directed under this subtitle to implement the provisions of this subtitle.

Subtitle B—Regulation of Security-Based Swap Markets

SEC. 3201. DEFINITIONS UNDER THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—Section 3(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (5)(A) and (B), by inserting ''(but not security-based swaps, other than security-based swaps with or for persons that are not eligible contract participants)'' after the word ''securities'' in each place it appears;

(2) in paragraph (10), by inserting ''security-based swap,'' after ''security future,'';

(3) in paragraph (13), by adding at the end the following: ''For security-based swaps, such terms include the execution, termination (prior to its scheduled maturity date), assignment, exchange, or similar transfer or conveyance of, or extinguishing of rights or obligations under, a security-based swap, as the context may require.'';

(4) in paragraph (14), by adding at the end the following: ''For security-based swaps, such terms include the execution, termination (prior to its scheduled maturity date), assignment, exchange, or similar transfer or conveyance of, or extinguishing of rights or obligations under, a security-based swap, as the context may require.'';

(5) in paragraph (39)—

(A) by striking ''or government securities dealer'' and adding ''government securities dealer, security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant'' in its place in subparagraph (B)(i)(I);

(B) by adding ''security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant,'' after ''government securities dealer,'' in subparagraph (B)(i)(II);

(C) by striking ''or government securities dealer'' and adding ''government securities dealer, security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant'' in its place in subparagraph (C); and

(D) by adding ''security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant,'' after ''government securities dealer,'' in subparagraph (D); and

(6) by adding at the end the following:

''(65) ELIGIBLE CONTRACT PARTICIPANT.—The term 'eligible contract participant' has the same meaning as in section 1a(12) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(12)).

''(66) MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The term 'major swap participant' has the same meaning as in section 1a(39) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(39)).

''(67) MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'major security-based swap participant' means any person who is not a security-based swap dealer, and—

''(i) maintains a substantial net position in outstanding security-based swaps, excluding positions held primarily for hedging, reducing or otherwise mitigating its commercial risk, including operating and balance sheet risk; or

''(ii) whose outstanding security-based swaps create substantial net counterparty exposure among the aggregate of its counterparties that could expose those counterparties to significant credit losses.

''(B) DEFINITION OF 'SUBSTANTIAL NET POSITION'.—The Commission shall define by rule or regulation the terms 'substantial net position', 'substantial net counterparty exposure', and 'significant credit losses' at thresholds that the Commission determines prudent for the effective monitoring, management and oversight of entities which are systemically important or can significantly impact the financial system through counterparty credit risk. In setting the definitions, the Commission shall consider the person's relative position in uncleared as opposed to cleared swaps.

''(C) A person may be designated a major security-based swap participant for 1 or more individual types of security-based swaps without being classified as a major security-based swap participant for all classes of security-based swaps.

''(68) SECURITY-BASED SWAP.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the term 'security-based swap' means any agreement, contract, or transaction that would be a swap under section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act, and that—

''(i) is priumarily based on an index that is a narrow-based security index, including any interest therein or based on the value thereof;

''(ii) is primarily based on a single security or loan, including any interest therein or based on the value thereof; or

''(iii) is primarily based on the occurrence, non-occurrence, or extent of the occurrence of an event relating to a single issuer of a security or the issuers of securities in a narrow-based security index, provided that such event must directly affect the financial statements, financial condition, or financial obligations of the issuer.

''(B) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION REGARDING MASTER AGREEMENTS.—The term 'security-based swap' shall be construed to include a master agreement that provides for an agreement, contract, or transaction that is a security-based swap pursuant to subparagraph (A), together with all supplements to any such master agreement, without regard to whether the master agreement contains an agreement, contract, or transaction that is not a security-based swap pursuant to subparagraph (A), except that the master agreement shall be considered to be a security-based swap only with respect to each agreement, contract, or transaction under the master agreement that is a security-based swap pursuant to subparagraph (A).

''(C) EXCLUSION.—The term 'security-based swap' does not include any agreement, contract, or transaction that meets the definition of a security-based swap only because it references, is based upon, or settles through the transfer, delivery, or receipt of an exempted security under section 3(a)(12) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 as in effect on the date of enactment of the Futures Trading Act of 1982 (other than any municipal security as defined in section 3(a)(29) as in effect on the date of enactment of the Futures Trading Act of 1982), unless such agreement, contract, or transaction is of the character of, or is commonly known in the trade as, a put, call, or other option.

''(69) SWAP.—The term 'swap' has the same meaning as in section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(35)).

''(70) PERSON ASSOCIATED WITH A SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALER OR MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The term 'person associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant' or 'associated person of a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant' means any partner, officer, director, or branch manager of such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant (or any person occupying a similar status or performing similar functions), any person directly or indirectly controlling, controlled by, or under common control with such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, or any employee of such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, except that any person associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant whose functions are solely clerical or ministerial shall not be included in the meaning of such term other than for purposes of section 15F(e)(2).

''(71) SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALER.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'security-based swap dealer' means any person that—''(i) holds itself out as a dealer in security-based swaps;

''(ii) makes a market in security-based swaps;

''(iii) regularly engages in the purchase of security-based swaps and their resale to customers in the ordinary course of a business; or

''(iv) engages in any activity causing it to be commonly known in the trade as a dealer or market maker in security-based swaps.

''(B) DESIGNATION BY TYPE OR CLASS.—A person may be designated a security-based swap dealer for a single type or single class or category of security-based swap and considered not a security-based swap dealer for other types, classes, or categories of security-based swaps.

''(C) DE MINIMUS EXCEPTION.—The Commission shall make a determination to exempt from designation as a security-based swap dealer an entity that engages in a de minimus amount of security-based swap dealing in connection with transactions with or on the behalf of its customers.

''(72) APPROPRIATE FEDERAL BANKING AGENCY.—The term 'appropriate Federal banking agency' has the same meaning as in section 3(q) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(q)).

''(73) BOARD.—The term 'Board' means the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

''(74) PRUDENTIAL REGULATOR.—The term 'Prudential Regulator' means—

''(A) the Board in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant that is—

''(i) a State-chartered bank that is a member of the Federal Reserve System; or

''(ii) a State-chartered branch or agency of a foreign bank;

''(B) the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant that is—

''(i) a national bank; or

''(ii) a federally chartered branch or agency of a foreign bank; and

''(C) the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in the case of a swap dealer, major swap participant, security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant that is a state-chartered bank that is not a member of the Federal Reserve System.

''(75) SWAP DEALER.—The term 'swap dealer' has the same meaning as in section 1a(38) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(38)).

''(76) SECURITY-BASED SWAP AGREEMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of sections 10, 16, 20, and 21A of this Act, and section 17 of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77q), the term 'security-based swap agreement' means a swap agreement as defined in section 206A of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 78c note) of which a material term is based on the price, yield, value, or volatility of any security or any group or index of securities, or any interest therein.

''(B) EXCLUSIONS.—The term 'security-based swap agreement' does not include any security-based swap.

''(76) SECURITY-BASED SWAP REPOSITORY.—The term 'security-based swap repository' means any person that collects, calculates, prepares or maintains information or records with respect to transactions or positions in, or the terms and conditions of, security-based swaps entered into by third parties.

''(77) SWAP EXECUTION FACILITY.—The term 'swap execution facility' means a person or entity that facilitates the execution or trading of security-based swaps between two persons through any means of interstate commerce, but which is not a national securities exchange, including any electronic trade execution or voice brokerage facility.''.''''.

(b) AUTHORITY TO FURTHER DEFINE TERMS.—The Securities and Exchange Commission may adopt a rule further defining the terms ''security-based swap'', ''security-based swap dealer'', ''major security-based swap participant'', and ''eligible contract participant'' with regard to security-based swaps (as such terms are defined in the amendments made by subsection (a)) for the purpose of including transactions and entities that have been structured to evade this title.

SEC. 3202. REPEAL OF PROHIBITION ON REGULATION OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

(a) REPEAL OF LAW.—Section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 78c note) is repealed.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933.—

(1) Section 2A(b) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77b–1) is amended by striking

''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)'' each place that such term appears.

(2) Section 17 of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77q) is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)—

(i) by inserting ''(including security-based swaps)'' after ''securities''; and

(ii) by striking ''206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act'' and inserting ''3(a)(76) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934''; and

(B) in subsection (d), by striking ''206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act'' and inserting ''3(a)(76) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934''.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended as follows:

(1) Section 3A (15 U.S.C. 78c–1) is amended by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)'' each place that the term appears.

(2) Section 9(a) (15 U.S.C. 78i(a)) is amended by striking paragraphs (2) through (5) and inserting:

''(2) To effect, alone or with one or more other persons, a series of transactions in any security registered on a national securities exchange or in connection with any security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security creating actual or apparent active trading in such security, or raising or depressing the price of such security, for the purpose of inducing the purchase or sale of such security by others.

''(3) If a dealer, broker, security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant or other person selling or offering for sale or purchasing or offering to purchase the security, or a security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security, to induce the purchase or sale of any security registered on a national securities exchange or any security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security by the circulation or dissemination in the ordinary course of business of information to the effect that the price of any such security will or is likely to rise or fall because of market operations of any one or more persons conducted for the purpose of raising or depressing the price of such security.

''(4) If a dealer, broker, security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant or other person selling or offering for sale or purchasing or offering to purchase the security, or a security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security, to make, regarding any security registered on a national securities exchange or any security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security, for the purpose of inducing the purchase or sale of such security or such security-based swap or security-based swap agreement, any statement which was at the time and in the light of the circumstances under which it was made, false or misleading with respect to any material fact, and which he knew or had reasonable ground to believe was so false or misleading.

''(5) For a consideration, received directly or indirectly from a dealer, broker, security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant or other person selling or offering for sale or purchasing or offering to purchase the security, or a security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security, to induce the purchase of any security registered on a national securities exchange or any security-based swap or security-based swap agreement with respect to such security by the circulation or dissemination of information to the effect that the price of any such security will or is likely to rise or fall because of the market operations of any one or more persons conducted for the purpose of raising or depressing the price of such security.''.

(3) Section 9(i) (15 U.S.C. 78i(i)) is amended by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)'';

(4) Section 10 (15 U.S.C. 78j) is amended by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)'' each place that the term appears.

(5) Section 15(c)(1) is amended—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking '', or any security-based swap agreement (as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act),''; and

(B) in subparagraphs (B) and (C), by striking ''agreement (as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)'' in each place that the term appears.

(6) Section 15(i) (15 U.S.C. 78o(i), as added by section 303(f) of the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–554; 114 Stat. 2763A–455) is amended by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)''.

(7) Section 16 (15 U.S.C. 78p) is amended—

(9) Section 21A (15 U.S.C. 78u–1) is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)(1), by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)''; and

(B) in subsection (g), by striking ''(as defined in section 206B of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)''.

SEC. 3203. AMENDMENTS TO THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.

(a) CLEARING FOR SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended by adding the following section after section 3A:

''SEC. 3B. CLEARING FOR SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—

''(1) STANDARD FOR CLEARING.—A security-based swap shall be submitted for clearing if a clearing agency that is registered under this Act will accept the security-based swap for clearing, and the Commission has determined under paragraph (2)(B)(ii) of subsection (b) that the security-based swap is required to be cleared.

''(2) OPEN ACCESS.—The rules of a clearing agency described in paragraph (1) shall—

''(A) prescribe that all security-based swaps submitted to the clearing agency with the same terms and conditions are economically equivalent within the clearing agency and may be offset with each other within the clearing agency; and

''(B) provide for non-discriminatory clearing of a security-based swap executed bilaterally or on or through the rules of an unaffiliated national securities exchange or swap execution facility.

''(b) COMMISSION REVIEW.—

''(1) COMMISSION-INITIATED REVIEW.—

''(A) The Commission shall review each security-based swap, or any group, category, type or class of security-based swaps to make a determination that such security-based swap, or group, category, type or class of security-based swaps should be required to be cleared.

''(B) The Commission shall provide at least a 30-day public comment period regarding any determination under subparagraph (A).

''(2) SWAP SUBMISSIONS.—

''(A) A clearing agency shall submit to the Commission each security-based swap, or any group, category, type or class of security-based swaps that it plans to accept for clearing and provide notice to its members (in a manner to be determined by the Commission) of such submission.

''(B) The Commission shall—

''(i) make available to the public any submission received under subparagraph (A);

''(ii) review each submission made under subparagraph (A), and determine whether the security-based swap, or group, category, type, or class of security-based swaps, described in the submission is required to be cleared; and

''(iii) provide at least a 30-day public comment period regarding its determination whether the clearing requirement under subsection (a)(1) shall apply to the submission.

''(3) DEADLINE.—The Commission shall make its determination under paragraph (2)(B) not later than 90 days after receiving a submission made under paragraph (2)(A), unless the submitting clearing agency agrees to an extension for the time limitation established under this paragraph.

''(4) DETERMINATION.—

''(A) In reviewing a submission made under paragraph (2), the Commission shall review whether the submission is consistent with section 5b(c)(2).

''(B) In reviewing a security-based swap, group of security-based swaps or class of security-based swaps pursuant to paragraph (1) or a submission made under paragraph (2), the Commission shall take into account the following factors:

''(i) The existence of significant outstanding notional exposures, trading liquidity and adequate pricing data.

''(ii) The availability of rule framework, capacity, operational expertise and resources, and credit support infrastructure to clear the contract on terms that are consistent with the material terms and trading conventions on which the contract is then traded.

''(iii) The effect on the mitigation of systemic risk, taking into account the size of the market for such contract and the resources of the clearing agency available to clear the contract.

''(iv) The effect on competition, including appropriate fees and charges applied to clearing.

''(v) The existence of reasonable legal certainty in the event of the insolvency of the relevant clearing agency or 1 or more of its clearing members with regard to the treatment of customer and security-based swap counterparty positions, funds, and property.

''(C) In making a determination under paragraph (2)(B) that the clearing requirement shall apply, the Commission may require such terms and conditions to the requirement as the Commission determines to be appropriate.

''(5) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules for a clearing agency's submission for review, pursuant to this subsection, of a security-based swap, or a group, category, type or class of security-based swaps, that it seeks to accept for clearing.

''(c) STAY OF CLEARING REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) After an determination pursuant to subsection (b)(2), the Commission, on application of a counterparty to a security-based swap or on its own initiative, may stay the clearing requirement of subsection (a)(1) until the Commission completes a review of the terms of the security-based swap (or the group, category, type or class of security-based swaps) and the clearing arrangement.

''(2) DEADLINE.—The Commission shall complete a review undertaken pursuant to paragraph (1) not later than 90 days after issuance of the stay, unless the clearing agency that clears the security-based swap, or group, category, type or class of security-based swaps, agrees to an extension of the time limitation established under this paragraph.

''(3) DETERMINATION.—Upon completion of the review undertaken pursuant to paragraph (1), the Commission may—

''(A) determine, unconditionally or subject to such terms and conditions as the Commission determines to be appropriate, that the security-based swap, or group, category, type or class of security-based swaps, must be cleared pursuant to this subsection if it finds that such clearing is consistent with subsection (b)(4); or

''(B) determine that the clearing requirement of subsection (a)(1) shall not apply to the security-based swap, or group, category, type or class of security-based swaps.

''(4) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules for reviewing, pursuant to this subsection, a clearing agency's clearing of a security-based swap, or a group, category, type or class of security-based swaps, that it has accepted for clearing.

''(d) PREVENTION OF EVASION.—The Commission may prescribe rules under this subsection, or issue interpretations of the rules, as necessary to prevent evasions of this section.

''(e) REQUIRED REPORTING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—All security-based swaps that are not accepted for clearing by any clearing agency shall be reported either to a security-based swap repository described in subsection 13(n) or, if there is no security-based swap repository that would accept the security-based swap, to the Commission pursuant to section 13A within such time period as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe. Counterparties to a security-based swap may agree which counterparty will report the security-based swap as required by this paragraph.

''(2) SWAP DEALER DESIGNATION.—With regard to security-based swaps where only 1 counterparty is a security-based swap dealer, the security-based swap dealer shall report the security-based swap as required by this subsection.

''(f) REPORTING TRANSITION RULES.—Rules adopted by the Commission under this section shall provide for the reporting of data, as follows:

''(1) Security-based swaps entered into before the date of the enactment of this section shall be reported to a registered security-based swap repository or the Commission no later than 180 days after the effective date of this section; and

''(2) Security-based swaps entered into on or after such date of enactment shall be reported to a registered security-based swap repository or the Commission no later than the later of—

''(A) 90 days after such effective date; or

''(B) such other time after entering into the security-based swap as the Commission may prescribe by rule or regulation.

''(g) CLEARING TRANSITION RULES.—

''(1) Security-based swaps entered into before the date of the enactment of this section are exempt from the clearing requirements of this subsection if reported pursuant to subsection (f)(1).

''(2) Security-based swaps entered into before application of the clearing requirement pursuant to this section are exempt from the clearing requirements of this section if reported pursuant to subsection (f)(2).

''(h) EXCEPTIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The requirements of subsection (a)(1) shall not apply to a security-based swap if one of the counterparties to the security-based swap—

''(A) is not a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant; and

''(B) is using security-based swaps to hedge or mitigate commercial risk, including operating or balance sheet risk; and

''(C) notifies the Commission, in a manner set forth by the Commission, how it generally meets its financial obligations associated with entering into non-cleared security-based swaps.

''(2) ABUSE OF EXCEPTION.—The Commission may prescribe rules under this subsection, or issue interpretations of the rules, as necessary to prevent abuse of the exemption in paragraph (1) by security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants.

''(3) OPTION TO CLEAR.—The application of the clearing exception in paragraph (1) is solely at the discretion the counterparty to the swap that meets the conditions of subparagraphs (A) through (C) of paragraph (1).''.

(b) CLEARING AGENCY REQUIREMENTS.—Section 17A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78q) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

''(g) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT.—It shall be unlawful for a clearing agency, unless registered with the Commission, directly or indirectly to make use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce to perform the functions of a clearing agency with respect to a swap.

''(h) VOLUNTARY REGISTRATION.—A person that clears agreements, contracts, or transactions that are not required to be cleared under this Act may register with the Commission as a clearing agency.

''(i) EXISTING BANKS AND DERIVATIVES CLEARING ORGANIZATIONS.—A bank or a derivatives clearing organization registered with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission under the Commodity Exchange Act required to be a registered as a clearing agency under this title, solely because it clears security-based swaps, is deemed to be a registered clearing agency under this title solely for the purpose of clearing security-based swaps to the extent that the bank cleared security-based swaps, as defined in this Act, as a multilateral clearing organization or the derivatives clearing organization cleared security-based swaps, as defined in this title pursuant to an exemption from registration as a clearing agency, before the enactment of this section. A bank or derivative clearing organization to which this subsection applies shall continue to comply with the requirements in section 17A(b)(3) of this title. A bank to which this subsection applies may, by the vote of the shareholders owning not less than 51 percent of the voting interests of such bank, be converted into a State corporation, partnership, limited liability company, or other similar legal form pursuant to a plan of conversion, if the conversion is not in contravention of applicable State law.

''(j) REPORTING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A clearing agency that clears security-based swaps shall provide to the Commission all information determined by the Commission to be necessary to perform its responsibilities under this Act. The Commission shall adopt data collection and maintenance requirements for security-based swaps cleared by clearing agencies that are comparable to the corresponding requirements for security-based swaps accepted by security-based swap repositories and security-based swaps traded on swap execution facilities. Subject to section 24, the Commission shall share such information, upon request, with the Board, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the appropriate Federal banking agencies, the Financial Services Oversight Council, and the Department of Justice or to other persons the Commission deems appropriate, including foreign financial supervisors (including foreign futures authorities), foreign central banks, and foreign ministries.

''(2) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—A clearing agency that clears security-based swaps shall provide to the Commission, or its designee, such information as is required by, and in a form and at a frequency to be determined by, the Commission, in order to comply with the public reporting requirements contained in section 13.

''(k) DESIGNATION OF COMPLIANCE OFFICER.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each clearing agency that clears security-based swaps shall designate an individual to serve as a compliance officer.

''(2) DUTIES.—The compliance officer shall—

''(A) report directly to the board or to the senior officer of the clearing agency;

''(B) in consultation with the board of the clearing agency, a body performing a function similar to that of a board, or the senior officer of the clearing agency, resolve any conflicts of interest that may arise;

''(C) be responsible for administering the policies and procedures required to be established pursuant to this section;

''(D) ensure compliance with securities laws and the rules and regulations issued thereunder, including rules prescribed by the Commission pursuant to this section; and

''(E) establish procedures for remediation of non-compliance issues found during compliance office reviews, lookbacks, internal or external audit findings, self-reported errors, or through validated complaints. Procedures will establish the handling, management response, remediation, re-testing, and closing of non-compliant issues.

''(3) ANNUAL REPORTS REQUIRED.—The compliance officer shall annually prepare and sign a report on the compliance of the clearing agency with the securities laws and its policies and procedures, including its code of ethics and conflict of interest policies, in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commission. Such compliance report shall accompany the financial reports of the clearing agency that are required to be furnished to the Commission pursuant to this section and shall include a certification that, under penalty of law, the report is accurate and complete.

''(l) STANDARDS FOR CLEARING AGENCIES CLEARING SWAP TRANSACTIONS.—To be registered and to maintain registration as a clearing agency that clears swap transactions, a clearing agency shall comply with such standards as the Commission may establish by rule. In establishing any such standards, and in the exercise of its oversight of such a clearing agency pursuant to this title, the Commission may conform such standards or oversight to reflect evolving United States and international standards. Except where the Commission determines otherwise by rule or regulation, a clearing agency shall have reasonable discretion in establishing the manner in which it complies with any such standards.

''(m) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing persons that are registered as clearing agencies for security-based swaps under this Act.

''(n) EXEMPTIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a clearing agency from registration under this section for the clearing of security-based swaps if the Commission finds that such clearing agency is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation on a consolidated basis by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, a Prudential Regulator, or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country or if necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the purpose of this Act.

''(2) A person that is required to be registered as clearing agency under this section, whose principal business is clearing commodity futures and options on commodity futures transactions and which is a derivatives clearing organization registered with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission under the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1, et seq.), shall be unconditionally exempt from registration under this section solely for the purpose of clearing security-based swaps, unless the Commission finds that such derivatives clearing organization is not subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.''.

(c) EXECUTION OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 5 the following:

''SEC. 5A. EXECUTION OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

''(a) EXECUTION TRANSPARENCY.—

''(1) REQUIREMENT.—A security-based swap that is subject to the clearing requirement of section 3B shall not be traded except on or through a national securities exchange or on or through an swap execution facility registered under section 5h, that makes the security-based swap available for trading.

''(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The requirement of paragraph (1) shall not apply to a security-based swap if no national securities exchange or swap execution facility makes the security-based swap available for trading.

''(3) REQUIRED REPORTING.—If the exception of paragraph (2) applies and there is no national securities exchange or swap execution facility that makes the security-based swap available to trade, the counterparties shall comply with any recordkeeping and transaction reporting requirements as may be prescribed by the Commission with respect to security-based swaps subject to the requirements of paragraph (1).

''(b) EXCHANGE TRADING.—In adopting rules and regulations, the Commission shall endeavor to eliminate unnecessary impediments to the trading on national securities exchanges of contracts, agreements, or transactions that would be swaps but for the trading of such contracts, agreements or transactions on such a national securities exchange.''.

(d) SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended by adding after section 3B (as added by subsection (a)) the following:

''SEC. 3C. SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.

''(a) REGISTRATION.—No person may operate a facility for the trading of security-based swaps unless the facility is registered as a swap execution facility under this section.

''(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR TRADING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A swap execution facility that is registered under subsection (a) may list for trading any security-based swap.

''(2) RULES FOR TRADING THROUGH THE FACILITY.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules to allow a security-based swap to be traded through the facilities of an exchange or a swap execution facility. Such rules shall permit an intermediary, acting as principal or agent, to enter into or execute a security-based swap, notwithstanding section 3B(b), if the security-based swap is reported, recorded, or confirmed in accordance with the rules of the exchange or swap execution facility.

''(c) TRADING BY EXCHANGES.—An exchange shall, to the extent that the exchange also operates a swap execution facility and uses the same electronic trade execution system for trading on the exchange and the swap execution facility, identify whether the electronic trading is taking place on the exchange or the swap execution facility.

''(d) CORE PRINCIPLES FOR SWAP EXECUTION FACILITIES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—To be registered as, and to maintain its registration as, a swap execution facility, the facility shall comply with the core principles specified in this subsection and any requirement that the Commission may impose by rule or regulation pursuant to section 8a(5). Except where the Commission determines otherwise by rule or regulation, the facility shall have reasonable discretion in establishing the manner in which it complies with these core principles.

''(2) COMPLIANCE WITH RULES.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) monitor and enforce compliance with any of the rules of the facility, including the terms and conditions of the swaps traded on or through the facility and any limitations on access to the facility; and

''(B) establish and enforce trading and participation rules that will deter abuses and have the capacity to detect, investigate, and enforce those rules, including means to—

''(i) provide market participants with impartial access to the market; and

''(ii) capture information that may be used in establishing whether rule violations have occurred.

''(3) SECURITY-BASED SWAPS NOT READILY SUSCEPTIBLE TO MANIPULATION.—The swap execution facility shall permit trading only in security-based swaps that are not readily susceptible to manipulation.

''(4) MONITORING OF TRADING.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules or terms and conditions defining, or specifications detailing, trading procedures to be used in entering and executing orders traded on or through its facilities; and

''(B) monitor trading in swaps to prevent manipulation, price distortion, and disruptions of the delivery or cash settlement process through surveillance, compliance, and disciplinary practices and procedures, including methods for conducting real-time monitoring of trading and comprehensive and accurate trade reconstructions.

''(5) ABILITY TO OBTAIN INFORMATION.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules that will allow the facility to obtain any necessary information to perform any of the functions described in this section;

''(B) provide the information to the Commission upon request; and

''(C) have the capacity to carry out such international information-sharing agreements as the Commission may require.

''(6) FINANCIAL INTEGRITY OF TRANSACTIONS.—The swap execution facility shall establish and enforce rules and procedures for ensuring the financial integrity of security-based swaps entered on or through its facilities, including the clearance and settlement of the security-based swaps pursuant to section 3B.

''(7) EMERGENCY AUTHORITY.—The swap execution facility shall adopt rules to provide for the exercise of emergency authority, in consultation or cooperation with the Commission, where necessary and appropriate, including the authority to suspend or curtail trading in a security-based swap.

''(8) TIMELY PUBLICATION OF TRADING INFORMATION.—The swap execution facility shall make public timely information on price, trading volume, and other trading data to the extent prescribed by the Commission. The Commission shall evaluate the impact of public disclosure on market liquidity in the relevant market, and shall seek to avoid public disclosure of information in a manner that would significantly reduce market liquidity. The Commission shall not disclose information related to the internal business decisions of particular market participants.

''(9) RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING.—The swap execution facility shall maintain records of all activities related to the business of the facility, including a complete audit trail, in a form and manner acceptable to the Commission for a period of 5 years, and report to the Commission all information determined by the Commission to be necessary or appropriate for the Commission to perform its responsibilities under this Act in a form and manner acceptable to the Commission. The Commission shall adopt data collection and reporting requirements for swap execution facilities that are comparable to corresponding requirements for clearing agencies and security-based swap repositories.

''(10) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and enforce rules to minimize conflicts of interest in its decision-making process; and

''(B) establish a process for resolving the conflicts of interest.

''(11) FINANCIAL RESOURCES.—The swap execution facility shall have adequate financial, operational, and managerial resources to discharge its responsibilities. Such financial resources shall be considered adequate if their value exceeds the total amount that would enable the facility to cover its operating costs for a period of one year, calculated on a rolling basis.

''(12) SYSTEM SAFEGUARDS.—The swap execution facility shall—

''(A) establish and maintain a program of risk analysis and oversight to identify and minimize sources of operational risk, through the development of appropriate controls and procedures, and the development of automated systems, that are reliable, secure, and have adequate scalable capacity;

''(B) establish and maintain emergency procedures, backup facilities, and a plan for disaster recovery that allow for the timely recovery and resumption of operations and the fulfillment of the swap execution facility's responsibilities and obligation; and

''(C) periodically conduct tests to verify that backup resources are sufficient to ensure continued order processing and trade matching, price reporting, market surveillance, and maintenance of a comprehensive and accurate audit trail.

''(13) DESIGNATION OF COMPLIANCE OFFICER.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Each swap execution facility shall designate an individual to serve as a compliance officer.

''(B) DUTIES.—The compliance officer—

''(i) shall report directly to the board or to the senior officer of the facility; and

''(ii) shall—

''(I) review compliance with the core principles in section 3B(e).

''(II) in consultation with the board of the facility, a body performing a function similar to that of a board, or the senior officer of the facility, resolve any conflicts of interest that may arise;

''(III) be responsible for administering the policies and procedures required to be established pursuant to this section; and

''(IV) ensure compliance with securities laws and the rules and regulations issued thereunder, including rules prescribed by the Commission pursuant to this section; and

''(iii) shall establish procedures for remediation of non-compliance issues found during compliance office reviews, lookbacks, internal or external audit findings, self-reported errors, or through validated complaints and to establish the handling, management response, remediation, re-testing, and closing of non-compliant issues.

''(C) ANNUAL REPORTS REQUIRED.—The compliance officer shall annually prepare and sign a report on the compliance of the facility with the securities laws and its policies and procedures, including its code of ethics and conflict of interest policies, in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commission. Such compliance report shall accompany the financial reports of the facility that are required to be furnished to the Commission pursuant to this section and shall include a certification that, under penalty of law, the report is accurate and complete.

''(e) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a swap execution facility from registration under this section if the Commission finds that such organization is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision and regulation on a consolidated basis by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, a Prudential Regulator or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country or if necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the purpose of this Act.

''(f) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall prescribe rules governing the regulation of swap execution facilities under this section.''.

(e) SEGREGATION OF ASSETS HELD AS COLLATERAL IN SWAP TRANSACTIONS.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is further amended by adding after section 3C (as added by subsection (b) the following:

''SEC. 3D. SEGREGATION OF ASSETS HELD AS COLLATERAL IN SECURITY-BASED SWAP TRANSACTIONS.

''(a) OVER-THE-COUNTER SWAPS.—At the request of a counterparty to a security-based swap who provides funds or other property to a security-based swap dealer as initial margin or collateral to secure the obligations of the counterparty under a security-based swap between the counterparty and the security-based swap dealer that is not submitted for clearing to a derivatives clearing agency, the security-based swap dealer shall segregate the funds or other property for the benefit of the counterparty, and maintain the funds or other property in an account which is carried by a third-party custodian and designated as a segregated account for the counterparty, in accordance with such rules and regulations as the Commission or Prudential Regulator may prescribe. If a security-based swap counterparty is a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant who owns more than 20 percent of, or has more than 50 percent representation on the board of directors of a custodian, the custodian shall not be considered independent from the security-based swap counterparties for purposes of the preceding sentence. This subsection shall not be interpreted to preclude commercial arrangements regarding the investment of the segregated funds or other property and the related allocation of gains and losses resulting from any such investment.

''(b) FURTHER AUDIT REPORTING.—If a security-based swap dealer does not segregate funds pursuant to the request of a security-based swap counterparty in accordance with subsection (a), the security-based swap dealer shall report to its counterparty on a quarterly basis that its procedures relating to margin and collateral requirements are in compliance with the agreement of the counterparties.''.

(f) TRADING IN SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—Section 6 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78f) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(l) It shall be unlawful for any person to effect a transaction in a security-based swap with or for a person that is not an eligible contract participant unless such transaction is effected on a national securities exchange registered pursuant to subsection (b).''.

(g) ADDITIONS OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS TO CERTAIN ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS.—Paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 9(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78i(b)(1)–(3)) are amended to read as follows:

''(1) any transaction in connection with any security whereby any party to such transaction acquires (A) any put, call, straddle, or other option or privilege of buying the security from or selling the security to another without being bound to do so; (B) any security futures product on the security; or (C) any security-based swap involving the security or the issuer of the security; or

''(2) any transaction in connection with any security with relation to which he has, directly or indirectly, any interest in any (A) such put, call, straddle, option, or privilege; (B) such security futures product; or (C) such security-based swap; or

''(3) any transaction in any security for the account of any person who he has reason to believe has, and who actually has, directly or indirectly, any interest in any (A) such put, call, straddle, option, or privilege; (B) such security futures product with relation to such security; or (C) any security-based swap involving such security or the issuer of such security.''.

''(i) It shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, by the use of any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce or of the mails, or of any facility of any national securities exchange, to effect any transaction in, or to induce or attempt to induce the purchase or sale of, any security-based swap, in connection with which such person engages in any fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative act or practice, makes any fictitious quotation, or engages in any transaction, practice, or course of business which operates as a fraud or deceit upon any person. The Commission shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, by rules and regulations define, and prescribe means reasonably designed to prevent, such transactions, acts, practices, and courses of business as are fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative, and such quotations as are fictitious.''.

(i) POSITION LIMITS AND POSITION ACCOUNTABILITY FOR SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 is amended by inserting after section 10A (15 U.S.C. 78j–1) the following new section:

''SEC. 10B. POSITION LIMITS AND POSITION ACCOUNTABILITY FOR SECURITY-BASED SWAPS AND LARGE TRADER REPORTING.

''(a) POSITION LIMITS.—As a means reasonably designed to prevent fraud and manipulation, the Commission may, by rule or regulation, as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors, establish limits (including related hedge exemption provisions) on the size of positions in any security-based swap that may be held by any person. In establishing such limits, the Commission may require any person to aggregate positions in—

''(1) any security-based swap and any security or loan or group or index of securities or loans on which such security-based swap is based, which such security-based swap references, or to which such security-based swap is related as described in section 3(a)(68), and any other instrument relating to such security or loan or group or index of securities or loans; or

''(2) any security-based swap and (A) any security or group or index of securities, the price, yield, value, or volatility of which, or of which any interest therein, is the basis for a material term of such security-based swap as described in section 3(a)(76) and (B) any security-based swap and any other instrument relating to the same security or group or index of securities.

''(b) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission, by rule, regulation, or order, may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person or class of persons, any security-based swap or class of security-based swaps, or any transaction or class of transactions from any requirement it may establish under this section with respect to position limits.

''(c) SRO RULES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—As a means reasonably designed to prevent fraud or manipulation, the Commission, by rule, regulation, or order, as necessary or appropriate in the public interest, for the protection of investors, or otherwise in furtherance of the purposes of this title, may direct a self-regulatory organization—

''(A) to adopt rules regarding the size of positions in any security-based swap that may be held by—

''(i) any member of such self-regulatory organization; or

''(ii) any person for whom a member of such self-regulatory organization effects transactions in such security-based swap; and

''(B) to adopt rules reasonably designed to ensure compliance with requirements prescribed by the Commission under subsection (c)(1)(A).

''(2) REQUIREMENT TO AGGREGATE POSITIONS.—In establishing such limits, the self-regulatory organization may require such member or person to aggregate positions in—

''(A) any security-based swap and any security or loan or group or index of securities or loans on which such security-based swap is based, which such security-based swap references, or to which such security-based swap is related as described in section 3(a)(68), and any other instrument relating to such security or loan or group or index of securities or loans; or

''(B)(i) any security-based swap; and

''(ii) any security-based swap and any other instrument relating to the same security or group or index of securities.

''(d) LARGE TRADER REPORTING.—The Commission, by rule or regulation, may require any person that effects transactions for such person's own account or the account of others in any securities-based swap or uncleared security-based swap agreement and any security or loan or group or index of securities or loans as set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a) under this section to report such information as the Commission may prescribe regarding any position or positions in any security-based swap or uncleared security-based swap agreement and any security or loan or group or index of securities or loans and any other instrument relating to such security or loan or group or index of securities or loans as set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a) under this section.''.

(j) PUBLIC REPORTING AND REPOSITORIES FOR SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—Section 13 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(m) PUBLIC REPORTING OF AGGREGATE SECURITY-BASED SWAP DATA.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission, or a person designated by the Commission pursuant to paragraph (2), shall make available to the public, in a manner that does not disclose the business transactions and market positions of any person, aggregate data on security-based swap trading volumes and positions from the sources set forth in paragraph (3).

''(2) DESIGNEE OF THE COMMISSION.—The Commission may designate a clearing agency or a security-based swap repository to carry out the public reporting described in paragraph (1).

''(3) SOURCES OF INFORMATION.—The sources of the information to be publicly reported as described in paragraph (1) are—

''(A) clearing agencies pursuant to section 3A;

''(B) security-based swap repositories pursuant to subsection (n); and

''(C) reports received by the Commission pursuant to section 13A.

''(n) SECURITY-BASED SWAP REPOSITORIES.—

''(1) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—It shall be unlawful for a security-based swap repository, unless registered with the Commission, directly or indirectly to make use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce to perform the functions of a security-based swap repository.

''(B) INSPECTION AND EXAMINATION.—Registered security-based swap repositories shall be subject to inspection and examination by any representatives of the Commission.

''(2) STANDARD SETTING.—

''(A) DATA IDENTIFICATION.—The Commission shall prescribe standards that specify the data elements for each security-based swap that shall be collected and maintained by each security-based swap repository.

''(B) DATA COLLECTION AND MAINTENANCE.—The Commission shall prescribe data collection and data maintenance standards for security-based swap repositories.

''(C) COMPARABILITY.—The standards prescribed by the Commission under this subsection shall be comparable to the data standards imposed by the Commission on clearing agencies that clear security-based swaps.

''(3) DUTIES.—A security-based swap repository shall—

''(A) accept data prescribed by the Commission for each security-based swap under this paragraph (2);

''(B) maintain such data in such form and manner and for such period as may be required by the Commission;

''(C) provide to the Commission, or its designee, such information as is required by, and in a form and at a frequency to be determined by, the Commission, in order to comply with the public reporting requirements contained in subsection (m); and

''(D) make available, on a confidential basis, all data obtained by the security-based swap repository, including individual counterparty trade and position data, to the Commission, the appropriate Federal banking agencies, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Financial Services Oversight Council, and the Department of Justice or to other persons the Commission deems appropriate, including foreign financial supervisors (including foreign futures authorities), foreign central banks, and foreign ministries.

''(4) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing persons that are registered under this section, including rules that specify the data elements that shall be collected and maintained.

''(5) EXEMPTIONS.—The Commission may exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, a security-based swap repository from the requirements of this section if the Commission finds that such security-based swap repository is subject to comparable, comprehensive supervision or regulation on a consolidated basis by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, a Prudential Regulator or the appropriate governmental authorities in the organization's home country or if necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the purpose of this Act.''.

SEC. 3204. REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANTS.

The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 15E (15 U.S.C. 78o–7) the following:

''SEC. 15F. REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANTS.

''(a) REGISTRATION.—

''(1) It shall be unlawful for any person to act as a security-based swap dealer unless such person is registered as a security-based swap dealer with the Commission.

''(2) It shall be unlawful for any person to act as a major security-based swap participant unless such person is registered as a major security-based swap participant with the Commission.

''(b) REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A person shall register as a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant by filing a registration application with the Commission.

''(2) CONTENTS.—The application shall be made in such form and manner as prescribed by the Commission, giving any information and facts as the Commission may deem necessary concerning the business in which the applicant is or will be engaged. Such person, when registered as a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, shall continue to report and furnish to the Commission such information pertaining to such person's business as the Commission may require.

''(3) EXPIRATION.—Each registration shall expire at such time as the Commission may by rule or regulation prescribe.

''(4) RULES.—Except as provided in subsections (c) and (d), the Commission may prescribe rules applicable to security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants, including rules that limit the activities of security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants. Except as provided in subsection (d)(1)(A), the Commission may provide conditional or unconditional exemptions from some or all of the rules or requirements prescribed under this section for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants.

''(5) TRANSITION.—Rules adopted under this section shall provide for the registration of security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants no later than 1 year after the effective date of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.

''(c) RULES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules for persons that are registered as security-based swap dealers or major security-based swap participants under this Act.

''(2) EXCEPTION FOR PRUDENTIAL REQUIREMENTS.—The Commission shall not prescribe rules imposing prudential requirements on security-based swap dealers or major security-based swap participants for which there is a Prudential Regulator. This provision shall not be construed as limiting the authority of the Commission to prescribe appropriate business conduct, reporting, and recordkeeping requirements to protect investors.

''(d) CAPITAL AND MARGIN REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—

''(A) BANK SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant for which there is a Prudential Regulator shall meet such minimum capital requirements and minimum initial and variation margin requirements as the Prudential Regulators shall by rule or regulation jointly prescribe that—

''(i) help ensure the safety and soundness of the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant; and

''(ii) are appropriate for the risk associated with the non-cleared swaps held as a swap dealer or major swap participant.

''(B) NON-BANK SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant for which there is not a Prudential Regulator shall meet such minimum capital requirements and minimum initial and variation margin requirements as the Commission shall by rule or regulation prescribe that—

''(i) help ensure the safety and soundness of the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant; and

''(ii) are appropriate for the risk associated with the non-cleared swaps held as the swap dealer or major swap participant.

''(2) RULES.—

''(A) BANK SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Prudential Regulators, in consultation with the Commission, shall jointly adopt rules imposing capital and margin requirements under this subsection for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants, with respect to their activities as a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant for which there is a Prudential Regulator.

''(B) NON-BANK SECURITY-BASED SWAP DEALERS AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANTS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules imposing capital and margin requirements under this subsection for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants for which there is no Prudential Regulator.

''(3) AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this section shall limit the authority of the Commission to set capital requirements for a broker or dealer registered in accordance with section 15 of this Act.

''(e) REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant—

''(A) shall make such reports as are prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation regarding the transactions and positions and financial condition of such person;

''(B) for which—

''(i) there is a Prudential Regulator shall keep books and records of all activities related to its business as a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant in such form and manner and for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation;

''(ii) there is no Prudential Regulator shall keep books and records in such form and manner and for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation; and

''(C) shall keep such books and records open to inspection and examination by any representative of the Commission.

''(2) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing reporting and recordkeeping for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants.

''(f) DAILY TRADING RECORDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant shall maintain daily trading records of its security-based swaps and all related records (including related transactions) and recorded communications including but not limited to electronic mail, instant messages, and recordings of telephone calls, for such period as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation.

''(2) INFORMATION REQUIREMENTS.—The daily trading records shall include such information as the Commission shall prescribe by rule or regulation.

''(3) CUSTOMER RECORDS.—Each registered security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant shall maintain daily trading records for each customer or counterparty in such manner and form as to be identifiable with each security-based swap transaction.

''(4) AUDIT TRAIL.—Each registered security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant shall maintain a complete audit trail for conducting comprehensive and accurate trade reconstructions.

''(5) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission shall adopt rules governing daily trading records for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants.

''(g) BUSINESS CONDUCT STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant shall conform with business conduct standards as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation addressing—

''(A) fraud, manipulation, and other abusive practices involving security-based swaps (including security-based swaps that are offered but not entered into);

''(B) diligent supervision of its business as a security-based swap dealer;

''(C) adherence to all applicable position limits; and

''(D) such other matters as the Commission shall determine to be necessary or appropriate.

''(2) BUSINESS CONDUCT REQUIREMENTS.—Business conduct requirements adopted by the Commission shall—

''(A) establish the standard of care for a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant to verify that any security-based swap counterparty meets the eligibility standards for an eligible contract participant;

''(B) require disclosure by the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant to any counterparty to the security-based swap (other than a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant) of:

''(i) information about the material risks and characteristics of the security-based swap;

''(ii) for cleared security-based swaps, upon the request of the counterparty, the daily mark from the appropriate clearing agency, and for non-cleared security-based swaps, upon request of the counterparty, the daily mark of the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant; and

''(iii) any other material incentives or conflicts of interest that the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant may have in connection with the security-based swap; and

''(C) establish such other standards and requirements as the Commission may determine are necessary or appropriate in the public interest, for the protection of investors, or otherwise in furtherance of the purposes of this title.

''(3) RULES.—The Commission shall prescribe rules under this subsection governing business conduct standards for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.

''(h) DOCUMENTATION STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant shall conform with standards, as may be prescribed by the Commission by rule or regulation, addressing timely and accurate confirmation, processing, netting, documentation, and valuation of all security-based swaps.

''(2) RULES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, the Commission and the appropriate Federal banking agencies, shall adopt rules governing the standards described in paragraph (1) for security-based swap dealers and major security-based swap participants.

''(i) DEALER RESPONSIBILITIES.—Each registered security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant at all times shall comply with the following requirements:

''(1) MONITORING OF TRADING.—The security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant shall monitor its trading in security-based swaps to prevent violations of applicable position limits.

''(2) DISCLOSURE OF GENERAL INFORMATION.—The security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant shall disclose to the Commission or to the Prudential Regulator for such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, as applicable, information concerning—

''(A) terms and conditions of its security-based swaps;

''(B) security-based swap trading operations, mechanisms, and practices;

''(C) financial integrity protections relating to security-based swaps; and

''(D) other information relevant to its trading in security-based swaps.

''(3) ABILITY TO OBTAIN INFORMATION.—The security-based swap dealer or major swap security-based participant shall—

''(A) establish and enforce internal systems and procedures to obtain any necessary information to perform any of the functions described in this section; and

''(B) provide the information to the Commission or to the Prudential Regulator for such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, as applicable, upon request.

''(4) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—The security-based swap dealer and major security-based swap participant shall implement conflict-of-interest systems and procedures that—

''(A) establish structural and institutional safeguards to assure that the activities of any person within the firm relating to research or analysis of the price or market for any security are separated by appropriate informational partitions within the firm from the review, pressure, or oversight of those whose involvement in trading or clearing activities might potentially bias their judgment or supervision; and

''(B) address such other issues as the Commission determines appropriate.

''(j) STATUTORY DISQUALIFICATION.—Except to the extent otherwise specifically provided by rule, regulation, or order of the Commission, it shall be unlawful for a security-based swap dealer or a major security-based swap participant to permit any person associated with a security-based swap dealer or a major security-based swap participant who is subject to a statutory disqualification to effect or be involved in effecting security-based swaps on behalf of such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, if such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such statutory disqualification.

''(k) ENFORCEMENT AND ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING AUTHORITY.—

''(1) PRIMARY ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.—

''(A) SEC.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Commission shall have exclusive authority to enforce the amendments made by subtitle B of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009 with respect to any person.

''(B) PRUDENTIAL REGULATORS.—The Prudential Regulators shall have exclusive authority to enforce the provisions of section 15F(d) and other prudential requirements of this Act with respect to banks, and branches or agencies of foreign banks that are security-based swap dealers or major security-based swap participants.

''(C) REFERRAL.—

''(i) VIOLATIONS OF NONPRUDENTIAL REQUIREMENTS.—If the Prudential Regulator for a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant has cause to believe that such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant may have engaged in conduct that constitutes a violation of the nonprudential requirements of section 15F or rules adopted by the Commission thereunder, that Prudential Regulator may recommend in writing to the Commission that the Commission initiate an enforcement proceeding as authorized under this Act. The recommendation shall be accompanied by a written explanation of the concerns giving rise to the recommendation.

''(ii) VIOLATIONS OF PRUDENTIAL REQUIREMENTS.—If the Commission has cause to believe that a securities-based swap dealer or major securities-based swap participant that has a Prudential Regulator may have engaged in conduct that constitute a violation of the prudential requirements of section 15F(e) or rules adopted thereunder, the Commission may recommend in writing to the Prudential Regulator that the Prudential Regulator initiate an enforcement proceeding as authorized under this Act. The recommendation shall be accompanied by a written explanation of the concerns giving rise to the recommendation.

''(2) CENSURE, DENIAL, SUSPENSION; NOTICE AND HEARING.—The Commission, by order, shall censure, place limitations on the activities, functions, or operations of, or revoke the registration of any security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant that has registered with the Commission pursuant to subsection (b) if it finds, on the record after notice and opportunity for hearing, that such censure, placing of limitations, or revocation is in the public interest and that such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, or any person associated with such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant effecting or involved in effecting transactions in security-based swaps on behalf of such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, whether prior or subsequent to becoming so associated—

''(A) has committed or omitted any act, or is subject to an order or finding, enumerated in subparagraph (A), (D), or (E) of paragraph (4) of section 15(b);

''(B) has been convicted of any offense specified in subparagraph (B) of such paragraph (4) within 10 years of the commencement of the proceedings under this subsection;

''(C) is enjoined from any action, conduct, or practice specified in subparagraph (C) of such paragraph (4);

''(D) is subject to an order or a final order specified in subparagraph (F) or (H), respectively, of such paragraph (4); or

''(E) has been found by a foreign financial regulatory authority to have committed or omitted any act, or violated any foreign statute or regulation, enumerated in subparagraph (G) of such paragraph (4).

''(3) ASSOCIATED PERSONS.—With respect to any person who is associated, who is seeking to become associated, or, at the time of the alleged misconduct, who was associated or was seeking to become associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant for the purpose of effecting or being involved in effecting security-based swaps on behalf of such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, the Commission, by order, shall censure, place limitations on the activities or functions of such person, or suspend for a period not exceeding 12 months, or bar such person from being associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant, if the Commission finds, on the record after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that such censure, placing of limitations, suspension, or bar is in the public interest and that such person—

''(A) has committed or omitted any act, or is subject to an order or finding, enumerated in subparagraph (A), (D), or (E) of paragraph (4) of section 15(b);

''(B) has been convicted of any offense specified in subparagraph (B) of such paragraph (4) within 10 years of the commencement of the proceedings under this subsection;

''(C) is enjoined from any action, conduct, or practice specified in subparagraph (C) of such paragraph (4);

''(D) is subject to an order or a final order specified in subparagraph (F) or (H), respectively, of such paragraph (4); or

''(E) has been found by a foreign financial regulatory authority to have committed or omitted any act, or violated any foreign statute or regulation, enumerated in subparagraph (G) of such paragraph (4).

''(4) UNLAWFUL CONDUCT.—It shall be unlawful—

''(A) for any person as to whom an order under paragraph (3) is in effect, without the consent of the Commission, willfully to become, or to be, associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant in contravention of such order; or

''(B) for any security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant to permit such a person, without the consent of the Commission, to become or remain a person associated with the security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant in contravention of such order, if such security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such order.''.

SEC. 3205. REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING.

(a) The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a, et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 13 the following section:

''SEC. 13A. REPORTING AND RECORDKEEPING FOR CERTAIN SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—Any person who enters into a security-based swap and—

''(1) did not clear the security-based swap in accordance with section 3A; and

''(2) did not have data regarding the security-based swap accepted by a security-based swap repository in accordance with rules adopted by the Commission under section 13(n), shall meet the requirements in subsection (b).

''(b) REPORTS.—Any person described in subsection (a) shall—

''(1) make such reports in such form and manner and for such period as the Commission shall prescribe by rule or regulation regarding the security-based swaps held by the person; and

''(2) keep books and records pertaining to the security-based swaps held by the person in such form and manner and for such period as may be required by the Commission, which books and records shall be open to inspection by any representative of the Commission, an appropriate Federal banking agency, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Financial Services Oversight Council, and the Department of Justice.

''(c) IDENTICAL DATA.—In adopting rules under this section, the Commission shall require persons described in subsection (a) to report the same or more comprehensive data than the Commission requires security-based swap repositories to collect under subsection (n).''.

(b) BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP REPORTING.—

(1) Section 13(d)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m(d)(1)) is amended by inserting ''or otherwise becomes or is deemed to become a beneficial owner of any of the foregoing upon the purchase or sale of a security-based swap or other derivative instrument that the Commission may define by rule, and'' after ''Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act,''; and

(2) Section 13(g)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m(g)(1)) is amended by inserting ''or otherwise becomes or is deemed to become a beneficial owner of any security of a class described in subsection (d)(1) upon the purchase or sale of a security-based swap or other derivative instrument that the Commission may define by rule'' after ''subsection (d)(1) of this section''.

(c) REPORTS BY INSTITUTIONAL INVESTMENT MANAGERS.—Section 13(f)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m(f)(1)) is amended by inserting ''or otherwise becomes or is deemed to become a beneficial owner of any security of a class described in subsection (d)(1) upon the purchase or sale of a security-based swap or other derivative instrument that the Commission may define by rule,'' after ''subsection (d)(1) of this section''.

(d) ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING AUTHORITY.—Section 15(b)(4) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78o(b)(4)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (C), by adding ''security-based swap dealer, major security-based swap participant,'' after ''government securities dealer,''; and

(2) in subparagraph (F), by adding '', or security-based swap dealer, or a major security-based swap participant'' after ''or dealer''.

(e) DERIVATIVES BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP.—Section 13 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78m) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(o) BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP.—For purposes of this section and section 16, a person shall be deemed to acquire beneficial ownership of an equity security based on the purchase or sale of a security-based swap or other derivative instrument only to the extent that the Commission, by rule, determines after consultation with the Prudential Regulators and the Secretary of the Treasury, that the purchase or sale of the security-based swap or other derivative instrument, or class of security-based swaps or other derivative instruments, provides incidents of ownership comparable to direct ownership of the equity security, and that it is necessary to achieve the purposes of this section that the purchase or sale of the security-based swaps or instrument, or class of security-based swap or instruments, be deemed the acquisition of beneficial ownership of the equity security.''.

SEC. 3206. STATE GAMING AND BUCKET SHOP LAWS.

Section 28(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78bb(a)) is amended to read as follows:

''(a) Except as provided in subsection (f), the rights and remedies provided by this title shall be in addition to any and all other rights and remedies that may exist at law or in equity; but no person permitted to maintain a suit for damages under the provisions of this title shall recover, through satisfaction of judgment in one or more actions, a total amount in excess of his actual damages on account of the act complained of. Except as otherwise specifically provided in this title, nothing in this title shall affect the jurisdiction of the securities commission (or any agency or officer performing like functions) of any State over any security or any person insofar as it does not conflict with the provisions of this title or the rules and regulations thereunder. No State law which prohibits or regulates the making or promoting of wagering or gaming contracts, or the operation of 'bucket shops' or other similar or related activities, shall invalidate (1) any put, call, straddle, option, privilege, or other security subject to this title (except any security that has a pari-mutuel payout or otherwise is determined by the Commission, acting by rule, regulation, or order, to be appropriately subject to such laws), or apply to any activity which is incidental or related to the offer, purchase, sale, exercise, settlement, or closeout of any such security, (2) any security-based swap between eligible contract participants, or (3) any security-based swap effected on a national securities exchange registered pursuant to section 6(b). No provision of State law regarding the offer, sale, or distribution of securities shall apply to any transaction in a security-based swap or a security futures product, except that this sentence shall not be construed as limiting any State antifraud law of general applicability. A security-based swap may not be regulated as an insurance contract under State law.''.

SEC. 3207. AMENDMENTS TO THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933; TREATMENT OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—Section 2(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77b(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting ''security-based swap,'' after ''security future,'';

(2) in paragraph (3) by adding at the end the following: ''Any offer or sale of a security-based swap by or on behalf of the issuer of the securities upon which such security-based swap is based or is referenced, an affiliate of the issuer, or an underwriter, shall constitute a contract for sale of, sale of, offer for sale, or offer to sell such securities.''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(17) The terms 'swap' and 'security-based swap' have the same meanings as provided in sections 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(35)) and section 3(a)(68) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

''(18) The terms 'purchase' or 'sale' of a security-based swap shall be deemed to mean the execution, termination (prior to its scheduled maturity date), assignment, exchange, or similar transfer or conveyance of, or extinguishing of rights or obligations under, a security-based swap, as the context may require.''.

(b) EXEMPTION FROM REGISTRATION.—Section 3(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(15) Any security-based swap, as defined in section 2(a)(17) that is not otherwise a security as defined in section 2(a)(1) and that satisfies such conditions as established by rule or regulation by the Commission consistent with the provisions of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009. The Commission shall promulgate rules implementing this exemption.''.

(c) REGISTRATION OF SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—Section 5 of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77e) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 3 or section 4, unless a registration statement meeting the requirements of subsection (a) of section 10 is in effect as to a security-based swap, it shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to make use of any means or instruments of transportation or communication in interstate commerce or of the mails to offer to sell, offer to buy or purchase or sell a security-based swap to any person who is not an eligible contract participant as defined in section 1a(12) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a(12)).''.

SEC. 3208. OTHER AUTHORITY.

Unless otherwise provided by its terms, this subtitle does not divest any appropriate Federal banking agency, the Commission, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, or other Federal or State agency, of any authority derived from any other applicable law.

SEC. 3209. JURISDICTION.

(a) Section 36 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78mm) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(c) DERIVATIVES.—The Commission shall not grant exemptions from the security-based swap provisions of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009, except as expressly authorized under the provisions of that Act.''.

(b) Section 30 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(c) No provision of this Act that was added by the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009 or any rule or regulation thereunder shall apply to any person insofar as such person transacts a business in security-based swaps without the jurisdiction of the United States unless he transacts such business in contravention of such rules and regulations as the Commission may prescribe as necessary or appropriate to prevent the evasion of any provision of this Act that was added by the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009. This subsection shall not be construed to limit the jurisdiction of the Commission under any provision of this Act as in effect prior to enactment of the Derivative Markets Transparency and Accountability Act of 2009.''.

SEC. 3210. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) Unless otherwise provided, the provisions of this subtitle shall become effective the later of 270 days after the date of the enactment of this subtitle or, to the extent a provision of this subtitle requires rulemaking, no less than 60 days after publication of a final rule or regulation implementing such provision of this subtitle.

(b) Subsection (a) shall not preclude the Securities Exchange Commission from any rulemaking required to implement the provisions of this subtitle.

Subtitle C—Improved Financial and Commodity Markets Oversight and Accountability

SEC. 3301. ELEVATION OF CERTAIN INSPECTORS GENERAL TO APPOINTMENT PURSUANT TO SECTION 3 OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL ACT OF 1978.

(a) INCLUSION IN CERTAIN DEFINITIONS.—Section 12 of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ''or the Federal Cochairpersons of the Commissions established under section 15301 of title 40, United States Code;'' and inserting ''the Federal Cochairpersons of the Commissions established under section 15301 of title 40, United States Code; the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; the Chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission; the Chairman of the National Credit Union Administration; the Director of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation; the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission; or the Director of the Consumer Financial Protection Agency;''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking ''or the Commissions established under section 15301 of title 40, United States Code,'' and inserting ''the Commissions established under section 15301 of title 40, United States Code, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the National Credit Union Administration, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, the Securities and Exchange Commission, or the Director of the Consumer Financial Protection Agency,''.

(b) EXCLUSION FROM DEFINITION OF DESIGNATED FEDERAL ENTITY.—Section 8G(a)(2) of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended—

(1) by striking ''the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System,'';

(2) by striking ''the Commodity Futures Trading Commission,'';

(3) by striking ''the National Credit Union Administration,''; and

(4) by striking ''the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, the Securities and Exchange Commission,''.

SEC. 3302. CONTINUATION OF PROVISIONS RELATING TO PERSONNEL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended by inserting after section 8L the following:

''SEC. 8M. SPECIAL PROVISIONS CONCERNING CERTAIN ESTABLISHMENTS.

''(a) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term 'covered establishment' means the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the National Credit Union Administration, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

''(b) PROVISIONS RELATING TO ALL COVERED ESTABLISHMENTS.—

''(1) PROVISIONS RELATING TO INSPECTORS GENERAL.—In the case of the Inspector General of a covered establishment, subsections (b) and (c) of section 4 of the Inspector General Reform Act of 2008 (Public Law 110–409) shall apply in the same manner as if such covered establishment were a designated Federal entity under section 8G. An Inspector General who is subject to the preceding sentence shall not be subject to section 3(e).

''(2) PROVISIONS RELATING TO OTHER PERSONNEL.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (7) and (8) of section 6(a), the Inspector General of a covered establishment may select, appoint, and employ such officers and employees as may be necessary for carrying out the functions, powers, and duties of the Office of Inspector General of such establishment and to obtain the temporary or intermittent services of experts or consultants or an organization of experts or consultants, subject to the applicable laws and regulations that govern such selections, appointments, and employment, and the obtaining of such services, within such establishment.

''(c) PROVISION RELATING TO THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.—The provisions of subsection (a) of section 8D (other than the provisions of subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (E) of paragraph (1) of such subsection (a)) shall apply to the Inspector General of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in the same manner as such provisions apply to the Inspector General of the Department of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Treasury, respectively.''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Paragraph (3) of section 8G(g) of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is repealed.

SEC. 3303. CORRECTIVE RESPONSES BY HEADS OF CERTAIN ESTABLISHMENTS TO DEFICIENCIES IDENTIFIED BY INSPECTORS GENERAL.

The Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Chairman of the National Credit Union Administration, the Director of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, and the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission shall each—

(1) take action to address deficiencies identified by a report or investigation of the Inspector General of the establishment concerned; or

(2) certify to both Houses of Congress that no action is necessary or appropriate in connection with a deficiency described in paragraph (1).

SEC. 3304. EFFECTIVE DATE; TRANSITION RULE.

(a) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This subtitle and the amendments made by this subtitle shall take effect 30 days after the date of the enactment of this subtitle.

(b) TRANSITION RULE.—An individual serving as Inspector General of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the National Credit Union Administration, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, or the Securities and Exchange Commission on the effective date of this subtitle pursuant to an appointment made under section

8G of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.)—

(1) may continue so serving until the President makes an appointment under section 3(a) of such Act with respect to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the National Credit Union Administration, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, or the Securities and Exchange Commission, as the case may be, consistent with the amendments made by section 301; and

(2) shall, while serving under paragraph (1), remain subject to the provisions of section 8G of such Act which, immediately before the effective date of this subtitle, applied with respect to the Inspector General of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the National Credit Union Administration, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, or the Securities and Exchange Commission, as the case may be, and suffer no reduction in pay.

Page 694, beginning on line 19, strike ''a designated Federal entity'' and insert ''an establishment''.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964 the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON) and a Member opposed each will control 15 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise today in support of the Peterson-Frank amendment to H.R. 4173, The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009.

Madam Chair, while much of the attention of this financial reform package is focused on the mortgage and credit crisis of last year, this amendment is the product of years of public debate about the regulation of derivatives markets in the United States.

It began with the price volatility we saw in energy futures markets, first with natural gas, then for crude oil. We examined in our committee the influx of new kinds of traders in these markets, like hedge funds and index funds. We looked at the relationship between what was occurring on the regulated markets and the even larger unregulated, over-the-counter market. More aptly, this probably should have been called the under-the-counter market because trillions of dollars in transactions affecting commodity prices were being conducted out of sight and out of reach of market regulators.

Last year, the House of Representatives responded, approving bipartisan legislation to give the Commodity Futures Trading Commission greater authority over these ''dark markets'' in an attempt to restore the price discovery and hedging utility of unregulated markets. Unfortunately, it was only after the House passed this bill that we learned the real consequences of what can happen in unregulated markets with the near collapse of our financial system.

As Warren Buffett correctly pointed out in his 2003 annual letter to shareholders, the large amount of credit risk concentrated in the hands of the relatively few meant that ''the troubles of one could quickly infect the others.'' Last year's collapse proved him right.

Madam Chair, the House Agriculture Committee acted very early on this year to get a handle on these swaps and minimize the very real systemic risk to the economy that they posed. A key part of that legislation was a requirement that swap contracts be cleared.

The clearing requirement has served the futures market well for decades. It increases transparency and effectively manages risk, not just for the public, but for all participants in the market.

Equally important, Madam Chair, our committee said that exemptions to the clearing requirement should be available because not every swap is appropriate for clearing and not every market participant should have to bear the burdens of clearing.

These two key principles of required clearing and exemptions are carried over from that previous work from our committee and are expanded upon in the Peterson-Frank amendment.

Madam Chair, our target for greater regulation and oversight is not the end user but their swap dealer or major swap participant counterparty. End users did not get a bailout of billions of dollars. End users are not responsible for what happened in the markets last year.

Under this amendment, swaps will be centrally cleared if a clearinghouse will accept the transaction and when regulators determine clearing is necessary. Cleared, listed swaps must be traded on an exchange or registered swap execution facility. And all swap trades must be reported, with counterparties adhering to recordkeeping and reporting requirements.

This amendment will hold swap dealers like large financial institutions accountable to new standards for capital, margin, business conduct and other requirements to reduce their ability to again place our financial system in such dire straits.

In addition, Madam Chair, this amendment contains many strong provisions regarding market transparency and makes progress solving some of the jurisdictional issues that have plagued financial regulation in the past. The amendment strengthens confidence in trader position limits on physically deliverable commodities as a way to prevent excessive speculation trading. And it will call for international harmonization by requiring foreign boards of trade to share trading data and adopt speculative position limits on contracts that trade U.S. commodities similar to U.S.-regulated exchanges.

Madam Chair, we have come a long way to get here. The situation I described earlier with AIG might make you wonder if we could have ever allowed such a reckless trading environment to have existed and that those involved would have learned their lesson. But believe it or not, the big banks on Wall Street don't think that they did anything wrong. In fact, they'd like to keep doing what they've been doing. They already got their bailout, and they wouldn't mind topping it off by avoiding any new regulation or oversight. To me, that is an unacceptable outcome.

I urge my colleagues to approve the Peterson-Frank amendment to finally bring real accountability and oversight to the over-the-counter derivatives market.

Could I ask how much time I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman has 11½ minutes remaining.

Mr. PETERSON. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield myself 2 minutes.

Madam Chair, if there is anything that the last few months have taught us, it is the American people telling us that we don't need more government to overreach in big government solutions when targeted reforms are more appropriate and effective.

When thinking about how to draft a legislative response to the recent financial crisis in regards to this issue of derivatives, we must ask ourselves one seminal question: What are we actually trying to resolve here. The vast majority of the OTC derivative marketplace had absolutely nothing to do with the crisis. It provides critically important risk management tools for virtually all large companies and many small- and medium-sized companies as well.

When you think about the AIG situation, even the problem there with the derivatives had much more to do with the extremely bad bets on the housing market along with failed prudential regulators who were supposed to be overseeing them than they had anything specifically to do with the derivatives themselves.

So quite honestly, Madam Chair, we don't think it's appropriate to set up a truly cumbersome and Byzantine dual regulatory regime that would require the CFTC and the SEC, two entities that have not shown the ability to cooperate in the past, that they have two very different missions and reasons for being to approach very different marketplaces and derivatives and to do so now in the same manner.

The Democrats' underlying bill sets these two entities up to perform as prudential regulators, setting capital requirements, margins, and other prudential requirements when they were never envisioned to play this role. When you think about this, also, the SEC has failed miserably as a prudential regulator when it tried to do the consolidated regulator for investment banks.

The proposal contains in the underlying bill an overly broad definition, new capital and margin requirements and broad authority for regulators to determine which transactions are standardized and subject to mandatory clearing and exchange trading.

These are unnecessary government burdens that could impair the usefulness of derivatives as an innovative risk management tool, thereby increasing the exposure to the marketplace and the participants in them, which all gets to the last point.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I will yield myself 15 more seconds to make the final point.

All of these points in the underlying bill will lead to one thing: a loss of credit and therefore a loss of jobs in America today and in the future as well. The American people have spoken loud and strong: Do not pass any legislation that is going to create hardships for the creation of jobs in this country, and this underlying legislation with its language on derivatives would do just that.

With that, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS).

□ 1830

Mr. LUCAS. I thank the gentleman.

Madam Chairwoman, I rise in support of the Peterson-Frank amendment. It represents a year-long attempt to balance the needs for stronger regulation and a need to manage legitimate financial risk.

Under this amendment, end users will not be regulated as though they were a major financial house residing on Wall Street. They are not systematically risky, they did not cause the financial collapse, and they should not be regulated as if they did.

Not all concerns, however, have been resolved. And I would have preferred language that would have made clear only those that can cause a significant, adverse impact on the U.S. financial system to be regulated as major swap participants.

For that purpose, I am supporting Congressman MURPHY's amendment that we will see shortly to cure that deficiency.

Similarly, I don't understand why market makers that only deal in cleared products need to have additional capital and margin requirements imposed on them by the Federal Government.

Instead, this amendment allows the appropriate financial regulator to more closely monitor the markets and those that may accumulate or generate too much risk for a healthy and robust financial system. It then gives the regulators the appropriate tools to reduce the risk before it can negatively affect our economy.

I have other concerns about this amendment. I am sure we would all do things differently if we could. This amendment isn't perfect, but it is a marked improvement over other legislative efforts either proposed or considered. This amendment is worthy of our support.

Now I will also admit, unfortunately, all of the hard work that went into the creation of this amendment may very well be overwhelmed by the massive overreach of the rest of the bill, but we should vote for and support this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. As a reminder from the Chair, the gentleman from Minnesota has 10½ minutes remaining.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I'm now pleased to recognize the gentleman from Iowa, the chairman of the General Farm Commodities and Risk Management Subcommittee that deals with this issue and is a leader on this issue for us on the Agriculture Committee, Mr. BOSWELL, for 3 minutes.

(Mr. BOSWELL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOSWELL. I first have to say on opening to Mr. GARRETT, my friend across the aisle, you often say that we don't need more government. Well, maybe so, if under the previous administration and our friends, that you would have done the job that we have to try to do cleanup on now.

I would like to personally thank Chairman PETERSON for his leadership in bringing oversight to the over-the-counter derivatives markets.

For too long, regulators did not have the tools necessary to police these markets. As a consequence, large financial institutions like Bear Stearns, Lehman Brothers, and AIG got into trouble before anyone knew it. Had these provisions been in place, the government would not have had to spend billions to rescue AIG to prevent its collapse from sending shock waves throughout the financial system.

The compromise which the Agriculture and Financial Services Committees reached will bring greater transparency and oversight to the over-the-counter derivatives markets. We must provide necessary oversight of these markets without hindering legitimate consumers from operating within them.

This compromise strikes a careful balance that protects the use of derivatives by so-called ''end users'' who utilize these markets to hedge the cost of their operations. Whether dealing with grain, energy, steel, or financing, American companies use derivatives to lock in prices to effectively plan for the future.

When the Agriculture Committee first considered the regulation of over-the-counter derivatives markets, I offered an amendment to require mandatory clearing. And I'm pleased to see that this compromise, which the chairman will be offering today, maintains this concept.

Clearing exposes and mutualizes the counterparty credit risk which, up until now, has been hidden behind closed doors. While every derivative does not need to be cleared, the compromise will ensure that regulators look at all derivatives to identify what classes should require clearance.

The notional value of the over-the-counter derivatives markets ranges from $400 to $600 trillion. To allow something this massive that impacts every American to continue to operate unregulated is simply not acceptable. This legislation will strike a good balance of consumer protection without obstructing individuals and companies from conducting their business and managing their risk.

I urge support for this amendment.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield myself 3 minutes.

I appreciate the underlying amendment that we're discussing here right now. Let me just point out that the Republicans have submitted a substitute to address this overall issue. Republicans, however, have done so in a targeted approach addressing actual problems, and it's really the more sensible approach to the whole derivative reform issue.

The centerpiece of the Republican alternative is something also found in the chairman's bill, which is a trade repository where all OTC trades would be required to be reported to. The repository then will provide valuable transparency, something we are all trying to achieve, to the entire OTC marketplace and will give the regulators the ability to analyze the appropriate data for their purposes as well as provide aggregated data to the broader marketplace.

We don't set up a Byzantine regulatory regime over the many market participants. While we don't do that because we don't preassume, without any relevant supporting data, that these entities needed to be micromanaged in this manner, we do require that the regulators review the data and regularly report back to Congress if an entity who is not already regulated by a prudential regulator, whether they should be more heavily regulated due to its size or its scope or its activities in the OTC marketplace.

So the Republican substitute does not have broad requirements for mandatory clearing, but it does codify the commitments that the private sector has already made. And they have done so working responsibly and cooperatively with the appropriate regulators, and they do so to engage in an ever more and greater amounts of central clearing now and into the future as well.

But when you think about it, these changes all take time. And they need to be done in a responsible manner. If you were going to force central clearing through some sort of central counterparties and have adequate counterparties for risk they are unfamiliar with, it could exacerbate the systemic risk.

So central clearing should be opened up over time to as many participants as possible, again, in a responsible manner so as not to do more harm than good, which is what we are all trying to achieve at the end of the day with the amendments and otherwise.

We also require margin requirements between dealers and major market participants, and that would address a major issue with the AIG-related problems that I discussed earlier.

In regards to the capital requirements, prudential regulators—look at them for a moment. Prudential regulators are really required by our substitute to take the swap activities of supervised entities into account when setting capital requirements for those entities. Let me step back for a minute and say that again.

What you're basically saying here in the AIG situation is what we should have had occur there is prudential regulators should have been looking at those swap requirements when they set the capital requirements over at AIG or other like situations. But again, it is not appropriate to set these bank-like cap requirements on nonfinancial entities, so our Republican substitute would not do so.

Finally, we generally agree with the overall chairman's regard to segregating——

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield myself 30 additional seconds.

Finally, we agree with the chairman in regards to segregating margin for OTC swaps, although we exempt various margining for segregation requirements based on input from both the buy and the sell side.

Margins should be treated as such, especially if a dealer's counterparty wishes it to be so, and should not be commingled with the dealer's funds. Many of the problems associated with the Lehman bankruptcy, I am told and I understand, are related to this very issue. And so requiring margin segregation, we believe, would be an appropriate response to that issue and that problem and would solve it for the future.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I'm pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. BEAN).

Ms. BEAN. I want to thank Chairmen FRANK and PETERSON of both committees and the committees for their diligent efforts on derivatives reform and appreciate the conciliatory and open nature in which we have worked on this piece of legislation.

I have the honor to serve as the vice Chair of the New Dem Coalition and co-Chair of the New Dem Financial Services Task Force, and derivatives reform is an area where New Dems have worked diligently with both committees of jurisdiction.

I want to specifically recognize the hard work of MIKE MCMAHON, who drafted the New Dem derivatives bill in July, and recognize JIM HIMES and SCOTT MURPHY, whose private sector experience and perspective was so constructive. The New Dems, our caucus and our country, have benefited greatly from their thoughtful and knowledgeable insights.

Lacking and lagging regulation of OTC derivatives was a major contributing factor to last year's crisis, including the highly leveraged credit default swaps at AIG that prompted government intervention. For the first time, we are going to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives market, which is a multitrillion dollar unregulated market.

This amendment brings necessary transparency by requiring that all derivatives will be exchanged, traded, cleared, or reported, and it gives regulators the tools they need to effectively oversee this industry.

This amendment and underlying bill attempts to strike the right balance that will bring transparency and accountability to the derivatives market while preserving the ability of end user businesses to legitimately hedge their risk in order to protect their businesses.

We are taking an important step today in moving forward with strong regulatory reform legislation that will better protect our financial system, our economy, and the American taxpayers.

To my colleague across the aisle who suggested that the underlying bill would create a loss of credit or jobs, I would question whether he's been paying attention to the loss of jobs and credit following the financial crisis last year.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this amendment and the underlying bill.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. HIMES).

Mr. HIMES. I thank Chairman PETERSON for his leadership on the bill and Chairman FRANK for his good work on this terribly important work that we now do to try to restore a sense of faith and trust in the financial system, which American companies and families rely on for the credit that allows them to create jobs and offer employment.

One of the least understood portions of this bill, Madam Chair, but one of the most important is the work that has been done on derivatives, instruments that allow our farmers to get rid of the risk of future soybean prices if they don't want to bear those risks, that allow our exporters to get rid of currency risk that they don't want to bear, but instruments that, despite the comments of my good friend from New Jersey, were very, very much at the core of the financial meltdown that we have seen and are now living through.

My friend seems to forget three letters: AIG. He forgets that that great enemy of American capitalism, that wild-eyed critic of markets, Warren Buffett, called credit default swaps ''weapons of financial mass destruction.'' And in reviewing some of these, he said these must have been contracts that were devised by madmen. This is Warren Buffett.

The Democratic amendment would do several market-friendly things. One, it would say that these contracts will trade in the light of day, that they will clear in clearinghouses. This is an idea that is thousands of years old, Economics 101. Markets are healthier if we know who is selling what to whom and for what price, if we can see who is taking on what risk, something that if the market had known in the AIG experience, we might have been saved the awful spectacle of taxpayer dollars being injected into private companies. The Democratic amendment says it will trade in the light of day. That is not a radical, heavy-handed, Byzantine, or cumbersome idea; it's plain good market economics.

The Democratic amendment would say that if you take big bets, we're going to make sure you've got the capital to make good on those bets. Again not a terribly radical idea. But if you are going to insure somebody, we will make sure you've got the capital to make good on the insurance that you have sold.

Lastly and importantly, a derivative contract always involves somebody getting rid of risk, that farmer, that company. We protect those end users and say you will not be subject to regulation. But the people who buy that risk, the financial entities that brought us to this place, will be subject to oversight.

So, my colleagues, this is a good, smart, market-friendly amendment, and I urge its passage and support.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, our committee has spent a lot of time on this, and I want to thank all the Members for the many, many hours that they put in working on this, also the members of the banking committee. I also want to especially thank my ranking member, Mr. LUCAS, and his staff, Kevin Kramp, Bill O'Conner, and Josh Mathis, for engaging with us in a cooperative process to bring this together.

I want to thank Chairman FRANK and his staff, Peter Roberson and Luranne Stewart, for working with us in a spirit of compromise that allowed us to reach an agreement in a relatively short amount of time. And I want to thank Ranking Member BACHUS and his staff, Kevin Edgar and Jason Spence, who, despite their concerns with the legislation, were willing to thoughtfully contribute to our discussions. So we appreciate that.

Finally, I want to thank my own staff, Andy Baker, Rebekah Solem, Matt Forbes, and Clark Ogilvie, for their hard work and long hours to bring this amendment to fruition.

This is a good amendment and I encourage Members to adopt it.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I yield myself 30 seconds.

I rise once again to point out that the underlying legislation was misdirected by setting up a Byzantine process and addressed a problem that really was not the underlying cause of the financial situation we have today.

I will also point out before I yield to the ranking member that the amendment that's before us today, it does one thing that's better than the underlying bill, which is to say that there should not be a margin requirement on end users, which is better in the sense that they will not have to post those, which will maybe address the issue of overall job creation in the future.

But I will close on this point: The underlying bill is still problematical to the larger issue of saying that if you create a system like this and address a problem of the OTC market in such a Byzantine manner and create additional burdens on it than are unnecessary, we will create fewer jobs in the future.

Madam Chair, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS), the ranking member.

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chair, although I'm not opposed to the amendment as such, I am opposed to what the underlying bill does.

Chairman PETERSON and I think most on our side have a disagreement with that underlying regulation. Unfortunately, the amendment is a step in the right direction, but we feel like even with the amendment substituting the original language that we still have our objections, and it's those objections I wish to speak on. Although we don't, or at least I don't personally, plan to oppose the amendment itself, as the gentleman from Oklahoma said, we do believe that it is some improvement.

But the regulation of the derivatives market created in the underlying legislation we think creates unnecessarily burdensome requirements on thousands of American companies that have used derivatives to manage price fluctuations and hedge against business risk, and they've done that successfully and safely.

The underlying legislation, even with this amendment in it, is going to empower our government regulators to institute what appears to be a fairly complex and sweeping new regulatory regime to govern, as I said, a sector of the marketplace that has functioned well and I think helped most American companies and has not contributed to the financial crisis but actually helped moderate it. And I think the derivatives market has allowed companies in many cases to insulate themselves from uncertain market conditions.

Several in the majority have alluded to the failure of Lehman Brothers as a reason for the needed reform of the over-the-counter derivatives market. And we do propose some reform, and I'm going to discuss those in a minute. The gentleman from New Jersey also discussed them. So there are some points on which we do agree with Chairman PETERSON and even Chairman FRANK.

But Lehman, I don't believe, can be used as an excuse to inject the government into a derivatives market that is used primarily by thousands of small and medium size and even large companies to hedge against business risk, and as I've said, have done that safely.

The reality is that Lehman's portfolio, including its derivatives positions, without any government assistance was unwound with relative ease. It was unwound. The real problem with Lehman's derivative business was the lack of segregation of collateral, a problem that is addressed by our Republican substitute.

The comprehensive Republican substitute we plan to offer provides a commonsense approach to oversight of the over-the-counter derivatives marketplace without what we consider an excessive overreach by the Federal Government and its regulators into the capital market, a theme that, unfortunately, we think is being repeated many times in this legislation.

The substitute promotes strong transparency of over-the-counter derivatives activities conducted by all market participants. It also addresses the two derivative problems identified by the majority and the administration, and that was AIG and Lehman. The isolated behavior of these two large corporations and a few others like them was, as I said, an isolated behavior, and that type of behavior would be detected under the Republican substitute, the trading activity and positions they took.

The Republican substitute also holds dealers accountable to improve operational inefficiencies with the over-the-counter derivatives marketplace, provides vital transactional information to regulators on a real-time basis, and ensures the Treasury Department cannot become a de facto regulator. Additionally, our substitute does not punish those Main Street end users of derivatives.

Finally, in conclusion, our substitute addresses another need in the derivative marketplace, which is to provide timely and accurate information to market participants and regulators in order to ensure market transparency.

Madam Chair, we have to curb abuses of the past and promote responsible approaches to oversee the use of over-the-counter derivatives. We all agree on that. However, we believe the underlying bill, even with this amendment, is fundamentally the wrong approach and is a very expensive way to address the problem.

So I urge my colleagues, even though we don't oppose this amendment, to oppose the underlying legislation. And this is just one more reason, and that is that we increase the cost of any end user of derivatives. As we said last night, John Deere said it would cost them about $1 billion. Cargill said that they probably wouldn't complete a new facility in Kansas City if we impose these costs.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman's time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. PETERSON

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. PETERSON:

At the end of title III, insert the following new section:

SEC. _____. AUTHORITY OF THE COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION TO DEFINE "COMMERCIAL RISK", "OPERATING RISK", AND "BALANCE SHEET RISK".

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a), as amended by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(51) COMMERCIAL RISK; OPERATING RISK; BALANCE SHEET RISK.—The terms 'commercial risk', 'operating risk', and 'balance sheet risk' shall have such meanings as the Commission may prescribe.''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment puts forth a process where we can obtain some clarity regarding limited exception to clearing requirements. Specifically, it requires the CFTC to define the terms ''commercial risk,'' ''operating risk,'' and ''balance sheet risk,'' which are used in the statute to define what types of risk a company may hedge and remain eligible for limited exception to clearing.

I understand how some could be concerned that balance sheet risk could be interpreted more broadly to encompass financial risk, but not commercial risk. That is why I introduced this amendment directing the regulator to define these terms.

By providing for the agency to define these terms, the burden will be placed upon them to ensure the companies seeking the limited exception to the clearing requirement do not abuse that exception. And if we think the CFTC gets it wrong, between the Agriculture Committee and the Agriculture appropriations subcommittee, we have lots of opportunities to haul them up here and show them the error of their ways.

This amendment is supported by the Commodity Markets Oversight Coalition and many other groups. I urge my colleagues to adopt the amendment.

Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I rise to claim time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate the work of the chairman with regard to clarifying some of the definitions here. I think this goes to the overall issue of the complexity of the issues that are before the House tonight on this matter and on the broader matter of the derivative regulations that we are discussing with the previous amendment and this amendment as well. It goes to the point that I raised just a moment ago in my previous remarks, that if we are going to try to answer to the American public to the three most important questions that they are asking of Congress—no more bailouts, no more legislation that destroys jobs, and no more expansive, larger and spending government—we have to look to what we're doing in the derivative area as well.

In the derivative area that we see in the underlying legislation, what we have done is create a Byzantine piece of regulation combining the two, working with two entities that have never worked together in the past before, setting in the underlying legislation margin requirements that potentially end users—although I recognize the previous amendment just addressed that point—margin requirements on them which basically, at the end of the day, if we think about it in basically simple terms, means it will be more costly in this country to do business. It will be more difficult for entities to hedge their risk. And if businesses can't hedge their risk, the other fundamental purpose of this legislation that we hear from the other side to end the idea of systemic risk will be thwarted as well.

So think about that. We will be thwarting one of the basic functions that they say is the underlying legislation to end systemic risk because we cause hardship on companies to hedge their risk on the one end, and not addressing one of the major problems this country is faced with today, high unemployment. We must do a better job than that.

As I stated before, Republicans have offered a better solution to all of those issues. We have offered a solution with regard to the bailouts, to end taxpayer-funded bailouts. We have offered a solution to end the prospects of less jobs in this country. And we offered a solution respectively to the whole derivative market, as I set forth before. The centerpiece of that solution is something that was actually found in the chairman's bill, and that was the repository idea. We can get all the transparency that we need right now through a trade repository where the OTC trades are reported. We can get the accountability and the transparency that the American public looks for as well through the initiatives that are in the Republican substitute. But we can do so in a manner, therefore, that will not impose additional risk or cumbersomeness or a Byzantine structure, and therefore not affect the hedging abilities or the cost of doing business of companies in this country. We can do so in a manner that will not hurt the creation of jobs.

When you think about it, we will have probably discussed three different areas, three different titles of this bill that actually will be hurting jobs. What are they? We haven't talked about the first one too much, CFPA, the Consumer Financial Products Agency. It has already been documented that that will cost literally a million jobs. The wind-down authority, we have already talked about that previously, that will also cost jobs. And here, if you do not handle the derivative situation correctly, that potentially can cause job loss in this country as well. We suggest that the Republican substitute should be considered in this area as in other areas as well.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time and commend the gentleman for his work on the underlying amendment that we have here before us today.

□ 1900

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished chairman of the Financial Services Committee, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, working with the chairman of the Agriculture Committee has been very constructive, and we have enjoyed that working relationship, and I am very proud that our committees have avoided the kind of jurisdictional disputes that too often plague this place.

We have a couple of issues here: One, should there be an end user exemption, et cetera? Two, whether you agree or not, it certainly shouldn't be one that could be manipulated. So this is to make sure that this is there.

Finally, I do want to respond to the gentleman from New Jersey. Apparently, they discovered that jobs are being lost. In fact, the reason that jobs are being lost now and were being lost at an even greater rate last year is the economic disaster that came from a lack of regulation. So the argument that by putting in place regulations that will prevent the enormous economic disaster, which officially began with the recession in 2007, will somehow cause job loss is bizarre-o-world. Job loss was brought about by the lack of regulation, which we are trying to correct.

It is true that the Republican position is: Leave business alone. Let them continue to do whatever they think is right. Don't have any regulation.

That's how we got into this mess.

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chair, I have no further speakers, so I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I yield myself 1½ minutes, the balance of my time.

The American public, quite honestly, if they watch what goes on tonight and have watched in the days before and after, really are not looking for anyone to be pointing fingers of blame at this administration or at the last administration. This should not be a partisan issue. The other side always wants to point back several years to the Bush administration.

We could point back that it was the Democrat majority for 2007, 2008 and now 2009 that has been running this House and that, during that time, we have seen the catastrophe in the financial markets, and that it was during their tenure that we saw the catastrophe of unemployment soaring through the roof. Yet pointing fingers at the Democrats and at the fact that they have done the job that they have done and that we have seen the results of their legislation over the last 3 years will not solve the problem.

What we need to do, however, is pass legislation that will end the pattern of elimination of jobs, that will end the pattern of the bailout mentality, that will end the pattern of expansive government. That's why we come here tonight to offer Republican solutions to a lot of these things, and it's why we ask the majority party to consider some of those proposals as we go forward.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MR. LYNCH

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. LYNCH. Good evening, Madam Chair. I believe I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 5 offered by Mr. LYNCH:

At the end of title III, insert the following new section:

SEC. _____. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST IN CLEARING ORGANIZATIONS.

(a) COMMODITY EXCHANGE ACT.—

(1) DEFINITION OF RESTRICTED OWNER.—Section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a) (as amended by the preceding provisions of this Act) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

''(51) RESTRICTED OWNER.—The term 'restricted owner' means any swap dealer, security-based swap dealer, major swap participant, or major security-based swap participant, that is an identified financial holding company as defined in Section 1000(b)(5) of the Financial Stability Improvement Act of 2009, or a person associated with a swap dealer or a major swap participant that is an identified financial holding company, or a person associated with a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant that is an identified financial holding company.''.

(2) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—

(A) Subparagraph (P) of section 5b(c)(2) of the Commodity Exchange Act (as added by the preceding provisions of this Act) is amended by adding at the end of such subparagraph the following: ''The rules of the derivatives clearing organization that clears swaps shall provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the organization or in persons with a controlling interest in the organization, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. The rules of the derivatives clearing organization shall provide that a majority of the directors of the organization shall not be associated with a restricted owner. This subparagraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational derivatives clearing organization acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this subparagraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this subparagraph.''.

(B) Section 4s(g)(1) of the Commodity Exchange Act (as added by the preceding provisions of this Act) is amended—

(i) by striking ''and'' at the end of subparagraph (C); and

(ii) by redesignating subparagraph (D) as subparagraph (E) and insert after subparagraph (C) the following:

''(D) the prevention of self-dealing, by limiting the extent to which such a swap dealer or major swap participant may conduct business with a derivatives clearing organization, a board of trade, or an alternative swap execution facility that clears or trades swaps and in which such a swap dealer or major swap participant has a material debt or equity investment; and''.

(C) Paragraph (12) of section 5h(d) of the Commodity Exchange Act (as added by the preceding provisions of this Act) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

''(C) The rules of the swap execution facility shall provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the facility or in persons with a controlling interest in the facility, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. This subparagraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational swap execution facility acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this subparagraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this subparagraph.

''(D) The rules of the swap execution facility shall provide that a majority of the directors of the facility shall not be associated with a restricted owner.''.

(D) Section 5(d) of the Commodity Exchange Act (as amended by the preceding provisions of this Act) is further amended by striking paragraph (15) and inserting the following:

''(15) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—

''(A) The board of trade shall establish and enforce rules to minimize conflicts of interest in the decisionmaking process of the contract market, and establish a process for resolving any such conflicts of interest.

''(B) The rules of a board of trade that trades swaps shall provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the board of trade or in persons with a controlling interest in the board of trade, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. This paragraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational board of trade acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this paragraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this paragraph.

''(C) The rules of a board of trade that trades swaps shall provide that a majority of the directors of the board of trade shall not be associated with a restricted owner.''.

(b) SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—

(1) DEFINITION OF RESTRICTED OWNER.—Section 3(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)) (as amended by the preceding provisions of this Act) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

''(78) RESTRICTED OWNER.—The term 'restricted owner' has the same meaning as in section 1a(51) of the Commodity Exchange Act.''.

(2) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—

(A) Paragraph (10) of section 3C(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as added by the preceding provisions of this Act) is amended by adding after subparagraph (B) the following:

''The rules of the swap execution facility shall provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the facility or in persons with a controlling interest in the facility, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. The rules of the swap execution facility shall provide that a majority of the directors of the facility shall not be associated with a restricted owner. This paragraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational swap execution facility acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this paragraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this paragraph.''.

(B) Section 15F(g)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as added by the preceding provisions of this Act) is amended—

(i) in subparagraph (C), strike ''and''; and

(ii) insert after subparagraph (C) the following (and redesignate the succeeding subparagraph accordingly):

''(D) the prevention of self-dealing by limiting the extent to which a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant may conduct business with a clearing agency, an exchange, or an alternative swap execution facility that clears or trades security-based swaps and in which such a dealer or participant has a material debt or equity investment; and''.

(C) Section 6(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78f(b)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

''(10) The rules of the exchange minimize conflicts of interest in its decision-making process and establish a process for resolving such conflicts of interest.

''(11) The rules of an exchange that trades security-based swaps provide that a majority of the directors of the exchange shall not be associated with a restricted owner.

''(12) The rules of an exchange that trades security-based swaps provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the exchange or in persons with a controlling interest in the exchange, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. This paragraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational exchange acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this paragraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this paragraph.''.

''(J) The rules of a clearing agency that clears security-based swaps shall provide that a restricted owner shall not be permitted directly or indirectly to acquire beneficial ownership of interests in the agency or in persons with a controlling interest in the agency, to the extent that such an acquisition would result in restricted owners being entitled to vote, cause the voting of, or cause the withholding of votes of, more than 20 percent of the votes entitled to be cast on any matter by the holders of the ownership interests. This subparagraph shall not be construed to require divestiture of any interest of a restricted owner in an established and operational clearing agency acquired prior to January 1, 2010, provided that acquisitions by such restricted owner after such date shall be subject to this subparagraph. The Commission may determine whether any acquisition by a restricted owner during any interim period prior to the date of the enactment of this Act has been made for the purpose of avoiding the effect of this subparagraph.

''(K) The rules of the clearing agency shall provide that a majority of the directors of the agency shall not be associated with a restricted owner.''.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. LYNCH. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, firstly, I would like to thank Chairman FRANK, Chairman PETERSON and also Chairman WAXMAN for their great work on this bill, and I want to thank those three chairmen for supporting this amendment.

My amendment addresses a fundamental problem in the derivatives industry, and it seeks to close a gap in the underlying legislation.

Madam Chair, what many Members of Congress and the public don't realize is that the U.S. derivatives market is about $605 trillion, which is more than five times the value of the stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

More important than simply the scale of the derivatives industry is the fact that, according to the Comptroller of the Currency, a total of 97 percent of the derivatives trading in this country is controlled by just five banks. So it's a near monopoly. Four of those five banks were top recipients. During their recent financial meltdown, these same banks engaged in very risky behavior involving complex derivatives, which endangered the entire financial system. They had to be bailed out by the taxpayers. As a result of all of these banks—Citigroup, Bank of America, Goldman Sachs, JPMorgan, and Morgan Stanley—as well as major swap participants, such as AIG, they received $200 billion in taxpayer money.

The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act attempts to prevent that from happening again. The bill would require over-the-counter trading to be conducted through clearinghouses, which are set up to police derivatives trading and to make sure there is sufficient protection from the reckless behavior that these ''too big to fail'' banks have engaged in. Clearinghouses are a good idea. Think of them as financial police stations. That's the function they are intended to serve. Some describe them as a blast wall that will prevent the failure of a derivatives deal from impacting the real economy.

However, the problem is—and in my view, this is a huge problem with the bill—the bill would allow these same big banks to purchase the clearinghouses that are being created to police the big banks in their derivatives trading. The big banks would be allowed to own and control the clearinghouses and to set the rules for how their own derivatives deals are handled.

My amendment would prevent those big banks and major swap participants, like AIG, from taking over the police station—these new clearinghouses. It would do so by limiting to a 20 percent voting stake the ownership interest in those banks and the governance of the clearing and trading facilities. Essentially, by providing entry to the market, it would introduce competing commercial interests to bring competition and transparency to the derivatives industry and to keep those banks honest.

At this time, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I rise and seek to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCMAHON).

Mr. MCMAHON. I thank the gentleman from New Jersey.

Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to this amendment and in support of the underlying legislation. I commend the work of Chairman FRANK, of Chairman PETERSON, and of all involved, and I commend also the work of the gentleman from Massachusetts, who is a great friend and colleague, although I disagree with him on this amendment.

This legislation is trying to minimize systemic risk, but the amendment will increase it, so I speak in opposition to it.

By limiting to 20 percent the total combined, collective ownership of clearinghouses, exchanges and execution facilities, it will limit what facilities can ultimately clear trades. Less choice. Not more choice.

The way to deal with concerns about conflicts of interest are through changes in governance, not through restricting ownership and investments. By concentrating the derivative trading market share in the hands of a very few inevitably large institutions, we are more likely to be creating systemic risk than we are to be mitigating it. Virtually all clearinghouses and exchanges are jointly owned, in which their vast majority of investors are swap participants.

The underlying bill grants regulators the strongest authority to police the markets and to enforce capital standards. Support the strong standards in this bill. Support the regulations and transparency in this bill. Oppose this business grab through legislative fiat.

The amendment is strongly opposed by the New York Stock Exchange, by the Depository Trust and Clearing Corporation, by LCH Clearnet, and by almost every single exchange and clearinghouse. It will cost jobs in New York in my district.

This bill should be about improving transparency and enforcement, and about bringing fair and prudent regulation to the derivatives market while minimizing systemic risk. Instead, the proponents of this amendment are using the legislative process to promote one marketplace over the others, and it will cost jobs and capital formation from other exchanges.

We are here today to reform American financial services and our regulatory structure, not to drive companies out of business, costing American exchanges jobs and money. The amendment will give an unfair advantage to one exchange, and it just isn't practical.

I urge my colleagues to vote ''no'' on this amendment.

Mr. LYNCH. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to the chairman of the Financial Services Committee, my friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I disagree with the premise that the large financial investment houses and large financial institutions have earned the degree of trust that our voting against this amendment would require.

We were fairly careful, and there were many who were critical because we were too willing to separate out end users, legitimate end users, and not sweep them all in; but for that to be justified, there has to be integrity in the administration of the process. That is what the last amendment by the gentleman of Minnesota did, and that is what this amendment does.

If you let people who have a financial interest in there not being clearing be in charge of clearing, it would take an extraordinarily selfless group of people not to give in to temptation.

□ 1910

While people on Wall Street have been giving varying descriptions, some good and some bad, no one has yet compared any of them to Mother Teresa. The fact is that if you reject this amendment, you are giving people who have an incentive to make these things not work well control over them.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. At this time I would like to yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE).

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I thank my friend from New Jersey for his leadership on this issue and trying to bring focus to really the underlying nature of this bill, which is the underlying nature of this amendment as well, and that is that government knows best how to define what the market ought to look like and not the market. Madam Chair, as you well know, that's one of the things that got us into these significant problems in the first place.

I know that there is one group that supports this. There are all sorts of folks who don't support this, the people who know about the issue of trading in this area. The ABA Securities Association, one of the largest securities associations, opposes this amendment because they believe that it would significantly limit competition and undermine the ultimate goal that all of us ought to have, and that is to make certain that the market is, in fact, able to work for more individuals across this land. More choices, not fewer choices.

New York Stock Exchange, Euronext, Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association, on and on and on, folks who, in fact, oppose this amendment because they believe strongly that it will decrease the choices available to the American people.

Over-the-counter trades, hundreds of trillions of dollars literally in trades, will be markedly limited again, decreasing the ability of the American people to have the choices available to them.

What this amendment does, Madam Chair, is what really what the underlying bill does. It says government knows best, that we ought to limit the ability of creative thinking and jobs to be formed out there across this land, because government knows best. We are going to limit the choices available to the American people.

Vote ''no'' on the Lynch amendment.

Mr. LYNCH. The gentleman should perhaps read the amendment. This does not interpose government into the clearinghouses.

Ironically, this is very light regulation. The people who are against this amendment are the five banks, the five big banks. They are the ones that are against this.

What this does, instead of inserting the government in here, what we are doing is allowing competitive commercial interests to balance out, rather than allow these five banks. These five banks control 97 percent of the market here; 97 percent. And the gentleman is complaining that it might reduce competition? It's a monopoly now. We are trying to break it open and allow more companies in and lower the costs of operating.

Look, this is a pretty simple issue. The ''too big to fail'' banks caused huge damage to the taxpayer, the way they operated this derivatives market.

We are creating a clearinghouse. They are trying to buy the clearinghouse.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I presume I am to close?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman has the right to close. The gentleman has 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I thank the Chair.

The gentleman from Massachusetts says the government is not interposing or getting involved here. Of course they are, and that's what the whole fundamental purpose of the underlying bill is, is to set up this whole Byzantine arrangement of new regulations specifically in this area. Yes, I have read the amendment; and, yes, I recall it coming through committee and the problems that were raised there. When you centralize risk and clearing entities, as made mandatory by the underlying bill, it's important that we ensure that there is some independence in the clearinghouses from the dealers who play such a large role, like he says. But that's why in committee I offered an amendment that would have required that the majority of the directors of the derivatives of the clearing organization must not be associated with swap dealers. This goes much further than what's already on the books right now.

The SEC has a current policy of limiting a position of 20 percent ownership of a single broker dealer in an existing exchange. This amendment goes way farther than that, saying that that 20 percent applies in the aggregate. Yes, I read the amendment.

You have to remember that dealers are among the most likely sources of investment capital to establish these new clearinghouses. If you are going to come up tonight now with a really overly restrictive limit on ownership, as we have in this amendment, you are going to have potentially some negative consequences. Some of those will be in competition.

At the end of the day, what will you have? The amendment could very well exacerbate risk by forcing more derivative transactions that are out there, and who knows how many will be out there after this legislation passes, to fewer and to fewer and to fewer clearinghouses, basically concentrating risk and doing the opposite of what the American public wants, to avoid risk burdens and additional bailouts.

Ms. WATERS. Madam Chair, I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts. H.R. 4173 is designed to address the lack of regulation in the over-the-counter derivatives market that allowed AIG to write billions of dollars in risky credit default swaps. H.R. 4173 fixes this by subjecting over-the-counter derivatives to a comprehensive regulatory structure and requiring derivatives to be traded through clearinghouses.

However, the derivatives market is currently dominated by a handful of large institutions. And these institutions will simply buy the clearinghouses to make sure that they once again control this market. If this happens, these institutions will be in the conflicted position of ''clearing'' their own derivative deals. The result will be more AIGs. Mr. LYNCH's amendment would prevent this by preventing any institution from controlling more than 20 percent of a clearinghouse.

If we don't close this loophole, the over-the-counter derivatives market will continue to be unregulated. Therefore, I strongly urge a ''yes'' vote on this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCMAHON. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 6 OFFERED BY MR. MURPHY OF NEW YORK

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 6 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. Madam Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 offered by Mr. MURPHY of New York:

At the end of title III, insert the following new section:

SEC. _____. DEFINITIONS OF MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT AND MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.

(a) MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—Section 1a(39) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended to read as follows:

''(39) MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'major swap participant' means any person who is not a swap dealer, and—

''(i) maintains a substantial net position in outstanding swaps, excluding positions held primarily for hedging, reducing or otherwise mitigating its commercial risk; or

''(ii) whose outstanding swaps create substantial net counterparty exposure that could have serious adverse effects on the financial stability of the United States banking system or financial markets.

''(B) DEFINITION OF SUBSTANTIAL NET POSITION.—The Commission shall define by rule or regulation the term 'substantial net position' at a threshold that the Commission determines prudent for the effective monitoring, management, and oversight of entities which are systemically important or can significantly impact the financial system. In setting the definitions, the Commission shall consider the person's relative position in uncleared as opposed to cleared swaps.

''(C) A person may be designated a major swap participant for 1 or more individual types of swaps without being classified as a major swap participant for all classes of swaps.''.

(b) MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—Section 3(a)(67) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended to read as follows:

''(67) MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'major security-based swap participant' means any person who is not a security-based swap dealer, and—

''(i) maintains a substantial net position in outstanding security-based swaps, excluding positions held primarily for hedging, reducing or otherwise mitigating its commercial risk; or

''(ii) whose outstanding security-based swaps create substantial net counterparty exposure that could have serious adverse effects on the financial stability of the United States banking system or financial markets.

''(B) DEFINITION OF SUBSTANTIAL NET POSITION.—The Commission shall define by rule or regulation the term 'substantial net position' at a threshold that the Commission determines prudent for the effective monitoring, management, and oversight of entities which are systemically important or can significantly impact the financial system. In setting the definitions, the Commission shall consider the person's relative position in uncleared as opposed to cleared security-based swaps.

''(C) A person may be designated a major security-based swap participant for 1 or more individual types of security-based swaps without being classified as a major security-based swap participant for all classes of security-based swaps.''.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) MAJOR SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The amendment made by subsection (a)(1) shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

(2) MAJOR SECURITY-BASED SWAP PARTICIPANT.—The amendment made by subsection (a)(2) shall take effect as if included in subtitle B.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MURPHY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. I yield myself 1 minute.

This amendment would substitute the definition of a major swap participant that is in the current draft back to the language that was in the draft that came out of the Agriculture Committee.

Chairman PETERSON and Ranking Member LUCAS worked with the whole committee to develop the definition that was used in the Ag Committee, and it's different from the version that is on the floor now in two ways: It's more restrictive in terms of allowing financial companies to be exempt from being classified as a major swap participant. So more companies would be held to a higher regulatory standard. And it is a little bit less restrictive with respect to manufacturing companies being classified as a major swap participant. I think that's very important because we want people who are systemically risky to be held to a higher standard of accountability, but we don't want to capture our manufacturing companies, the kind that are represented by the National Association of Manufacturers, the kind that are supporting this amendment, to be captured in that regulation.

We want them to be able to do their business and use derivatives to hedge their actual risk. That's why there was such broad bipartisan support for this when it was in the Agriculture Committee, and that's why we want to support it now.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I rise to take the time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. The gentleman from New Jersey has fairly laid this out. Here is the difference: We have agreed that end users should have an exemption from these requirements, but there is an exemption to the exemption.

If an end user is engaged in an activity that can cause financial problems, then we want them not to be exempt from regulation, but here is the difference. The bill that is in there now, and it differs from the Agriculture bill, says if the end user is causing financial losses and problems at a particular counterparty, then you should not have the exemption.

The alternative is to say no, let's not step in if this or that or many counterparties are in problems until it could become a systemic risk. We don't want to wait for systemic risk. I don't want to wait until people are at the edge of the cliff to start to pull them back.

It is clear to many of us that a lack of regulation of derivatives was the problem. I support an end user exemption. But when an end user is employing that exemption in a way that puts counterparties at risk, I don't want to have to wait until a cataclysm impends. I would like there to be the ability to step in and stop it at that point.

For the end user, it is very simple. They can avoid this regulation by being careful about what they do with the counterparties. This does not take it away; it simply says to the end user, please be careful and use some prudence before you engage in a transaction with a counterparty who will be at risk and could begin the kind of chain that we hope would not happen.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. Madam Chairman, I'd like to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCMAHON).

Mr. MCMAHON. Madam Chairwoman, I urge all of you to support the Murphy-McMahon-Kratovil amendment, which would protect end users and to be sure we better regulate the big investors as major swap participants.

Although the regulation of derivatives is complex, the issue is extremely important to the proper functioning of our capital markets and to almost every business in America, and we need to get this right.

Because derivatives are financial instruments that help all of us, they help keep our energy costs low and stable, if they're overregulated, it will cost my constituents back home more money for their electricity. They help insurance companies keep premiums low. They help companies complete construction projects on time and under budget. And despite the negative press and lack of understanding of the derivatives market, for the most part, the market works well. We cannot throw the baby out with the bathwater.

We must work to protect the end users, good American businesses that are just trying to manage their cash flows and hedge against uncertain risks beyond their control in a cost-effective manner. To do otherwise would cripple American industries and jobs in this country.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chairman, I have only one more speaker, and I have the right to close, so I reserve.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. KRATOVIL).

Mr. KRATOVIL. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the Murphy-McMahon-Kratovil amendment to H.R. 4173.

As we improve stability and transparency in the derivatives market and attempt to address the true underlying issues causing the financial crisis, we must also ensure that we are not limiting the ability of responsible companies to access the over-the-counter derivatives they need to keep their businesses up and running.

These derivatives are not just used by the larger broker and dealer banks who do, in fact, present a systemic threat to the market, but also by smaller companies who use them to manage the risk associated with running an effective business. The fact of the matter is the legislation needs to distinguish between the two.

Without this amendment, H.R. 4173 could subject some end users to burdensome costs and penalties that were primarily aimed at companies whose activities do, in fact, present a real risk to the stability of the financial system. Our amendment clarifies that end users do not pose a systemic risk and should not be designated as ''major swap participants'' and incur the unintended costs.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chairman, I apologize to the body. I do have an additional speaker, so I now yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).

Mr. PETERSON. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment, and I do so reluctantly because what the gentleman from New York is trying to accomplish is simply restore one piece of the bill to the way that it came out of the House Agriculture Committee.

Defining the term ''major swap participant'' has been one of the most significant challenges since Treasury first coined the term in its own derivatives reform proposal last August. We were trying to define it in ways that would generally exempt end users while ensuring we are capturing the financial players to whom we believe the new rules and regulations should apply.

We often heard from some in the end user community who wanted an absolute, guaranteed exemption that they never would be considered a major swap participant. We wouldn't do that because we don't know what the future will bring and because one of these end users could, one day, get so large with regard to their swap activity so as to have an impact on the financial system.

So, through painstaking work, we crafted the definition that is now in the Peterson-Frank amendment. Now, most end users feel that definition is adequate because they are supporting that amendment, but they would be more comfortable with the definition we had in the Ag Committee reported bill. I believe the new definition we crafted accomplishes our goal of protecting end users.

And so while I thank the gentleman for his appreciation for our work product in the Agriculture Committee, I most reluctantly oppose this amendment.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. Madam Chairman, I'd like to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS).

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the Murphy amendment which would, indeed, insert into the bill the House Agriculture Committee passed definition of ''major swap participant'' and ''major security-based swap participant.''

Like the definition of the same term in the Frank-Peterson amendment, the definition in this amendment excludes those positions held primarily for hedging, reducing, or otherwise mitigating commercial risk. Unlike the Peterson-Frank amendment, this definition in this amendment focuses the regulation on swap positions that could have a serious adverse effect on the financial stability of the United States banking system or financial markets.

In other words, Mr. MURPHY's definition focuses on the big boys, the big guys, those market participants that the regulatory enhancements in this bill are aimed at. It excludes the commercial users that are using over-the-counter markets to risk management, not to try and create wealth.

Once again, though, I have to note, the good effect of this amendment may well be lost in the massive overreach of the entire bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Now I am going to close. I reserve.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. In closing, I just want to say that I think that what we have here is an amendment that will take us back to the commonsense solution that we found on a bipartisan basis in the Ag Committee. It's a solution that does get at the root of the problem.

We've got large financial institutions who need to have additional accountability and regulation. That's what we're trying to do with our major swap participants. But it carves out our manufacturers and our energy companies that use derivatives to hedge their risk. That's why we've got support for this amendment from the American Wind Energy Association, the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Rural Electric Cooperatives.

Our businesses that are using derivatives to hedge risks need not be subjected to the same rules and requirements as the large guys and the dealers. We need to make sure our end users are protected so they can use derivatives successfully to hedge their risk and stabilize their business. That's what's going to protect jobs. That's what we need to get our economy moving. That's why people need to support this amendment.

I yield back my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chairman, how much time have I remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I'm afraid my friend from New York has greatly overstated the case. There is no debate here—there is elsewhere—about whether or not there should be an end user exemption.

As he knows, our bill gives an end user exemption. The gentleman from Minnesota and I worked hard to do that, and we are not trying to take it away. In fact, both versions of this say that an end user exemption can be forfeited for certain economic circumstances.

So the question is not whether there should be an end user exemption. Yes, there should be. It is what should trigger that not to be there. The amendment says a systemic risk. We say, given the volatility of this instrument, derivatives, given the uncertainty, that waits too long to say no. That allows caution to be absent for too long a time. We should not wait until the car's about to go over the cliff to test the brakes. We say let's stop a good ways back. And it's entirely within the control of the end user.

What this says is, if you are an end user, do not impose on your counterparty the likelihood of significant loss, because a loss here and a loss there and a loss in another place cumulates to a problem. And if they say, well, it's too hard to tell, that's exactly our point. Don't make it hard to tell. Know who you're dealing with. Don't engage in transactions with counterparties when you aren't in a position to gauge their financial responsibility. Don't use the exemption you have from our regulation that applies to the financial speculators to engage in imprudent transactions, not just imprudent for you, but imprudent for the other guy, because what we've learned is it is important these are mutual events, and that's precisely the issue. Yes, there should be an end user exemption, but end users who disregard prudence and engage in transactions with people who don't have the money to back that up are potentially inflicting a harm on the system.

Now, the proponents of the amendment agree that we should take away that exemption if the system is harmed, but they wait too late to avert disaster.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman's time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. MURPHY).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 7 OFFERED BY MR. FRANK OF MASSACHUSETTS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 7 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I offer amendment No. 7.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 7 offered by Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts:

At the end of title III, add the following new section:

SEC. _____. AUTHORITY TO SET MARGIN OR COLLATERAL REQUIREMENT FOR SWAPS AND SECURITY-BASED SWAPS INVOLVING END USERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b):

(1) PRUDENTIAL REGULATORS.—A Prudential Regulator may impose a margin or collateral requirement with respect to a swap or security-based swap a counterparty to which is an end user which is a bank or bank holding company subject to regulation by the Prudential Regulator.

(2) COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION.—The Commodity Futures Trading Commission may impose a margin or collateral requirement with respect to a swap a counterparty to which is an end user (other than an end user described in paragraph (1)), and the other counterparty to which is a swap dealer or major swap participant for which there is no Prudential Regulator.

(3) SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION.—The Securities and Exchange Commission may impose a margin or collateral requirement with respect to a security-based swap a counterparty to which is an end user (other than an end user described in paragraph (1)), and the other counterparty to which is a security-based swap dealer or major security-based swap participant for which there is no Prudential Regulator.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Any margin or collateral requirement imposed under subsection (a) with respect to a transaction shall be commensurate with the risk involved in the transaction, and allow for the use of non-cash collateral.

(c) LIMITATION ON APPLICABILITY.—This section shall not apply to a swap or security-based swap entered into before the end of the 90-day period that begins with the effective date of this section.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) END USER.—The term ''end user'' means a person who is not a swap dealer, security-based swap dealer, major swap participant, or major security-based swap participant.

(2) OTHER TERMS.—The other terms shall have the meanings given the terms in section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) PRUDENTIAL REGULATORS.—Subsection (a)(1) shall take effect—

(A) with respect to swaps, as if included in subtitle A; and

(B) with respect to security-based swaps, as if included in subtitle B.

(2) COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION.—Subsection (a)(2) shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

(3) SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION.—Subsection (a)(3) shall take effect as if included in subtitle B.

The Acting CLERK. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, this amendment was something that was requested very much by the regulators who administer this approach, and it would allow them, but not mandate, that margin or collateral requirements be set.

Once again, we have accepted here an exemption for end users over the objection of many who think we have gone too far. But we are dealing here with an inexact science, and we would have the regulators be able—under this amendment, not required, but able—to set margin requirements. It would allow them to be set, margin or collateral requirements, in noncash. That's very important. It would not require people who are using this to hedge commercial risks to sell things to come up with the cash. And if, in fact, they were doing this in a prudent way and they posted noncash collateral, there would be no great problem because this noncash collateral could be still used for its other purposes.

So the question is should we say that the regulators, the CFTC and the SEC, should be denied what they have asked for, which is the right to impose the margin or collateral requirements in those cases of lighter regulation where they think this is important to avoid the kind of imbalances we had before.

The purpose is, of course, to prevent again the situation where one party or the other makes commitments it is unable to live up to. And this is a requirement—this is an empowerment of the regulators to act where they think there's a problem to prevent this from happening.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I claim time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minute.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield myself 1 minute.

This probably is the most critical amendment that we will consider today that addresses the derivative portion of the legislation to the chairman's question of whether we should say ''yes'' or ''no'' to the claim for more power to these entities.

I would say we should tell them ''no,'' and the reason is because neither the administration nor the majority nor the chairman has provided any substantial evidence whatsoever of any specific OTC derivatives, how they cause a financial crisis.

Derivatives are something that the companies use to try to hedge the risk. Clearly, we must make sure there's transparency and accountability—and I have already spoken about that—and we can do so in a way, however, that will not hamper their ability to control costs, not to manage risks, compete in the global marketplace. This would all hurt that.

And when you talk about the end users in this and what they're doing, remember it was the end users, large and small, the public and private American businesses, they, they were the victims, not the cause, of the financial crisis.

Derivative dealers and their customers, the end users, they're in the best position to determine what are the appropriate margin requirements, not giving more authority to the SEC or the CFTC or any other financial regulators.

I reserve my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I will yield myself 1 minute to say I'll accept the way the gentleman from New Jersey put it. Should we give the regulators more power? That is the constant theme dividing us.

We look, many of us, at what happened over the past 15 years and say there was too little regulatory action, partly because some regulators who had the power wouldn't use it, like Mr. Greenspan at the Federal Reserve and some in the SEC, but partly because there was not sufficient regulatory powers. This is discretionary with the CFTC and SEC.

Every trade has to be margined. It does say that to assume that no trade has to be margined is a mistake, and it is, therefore, a discretionary grant of authority to the regulators.

And yes, if you think that what we should do is to continue a relatively wholly unregulated regime, and if you distrust the notion of regulation to the point where you would not give them discretionary authority—again, they have no authority under this to take away the end user exemption. We have decided that regulators, CFTC, the current incumbent, didn't like that. We have accepted the legitimacy of the end user exemption. But to say that never should there be a margin requirement we think is a grave error, and that's why I support this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I now yield 2 minutes to the gentleman who also distrusts regulations as we have seen and the SEC and their handling of the SEC situation and the OTS and the regulation of the AIG situation, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS).

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Chairman, the end users of derivatives are the ones that utilize these derivatives. And these weren't large, national companies. They were small businesses. They set the collateral requirements. They set the margin requirements, and they did so safely. They didn't cause the financial meltdown. They were the victims of that meltdown. And they established those collateral requirements and the margins. They did so in an appropriate way. In fact, you know, what the chairman said, the SEC and the CFTC ought to do this. You know, actually, they didn't act in a very responsible manner leading up to this meltdown last September.

Let me simply say this: Requiring greater margin and capital requirements on companies that never got in trouble leads to fewer jobs. It's going to lead to greater volatility in food and energy prices, and a loss of capital investments.

I'm just going to give you two pieces of testimony before our committee.

Steve Holmes of Deere and Company said, ''We have a number of contracts that extend well into the future. If these existing contracts are not permitted an exemption from clearing and collateral requirements, we would have to terminate the transactions at a significant cost.'' That would cost John Deere workers their jobs.

John Hixson of Cargill, Inc., said, ''For us, we've estimated it (collateral requirements) would cost approximately $1 billion depending on market conditions—an additional amount of money we'd have to borrow. We've built a brand new oil seed facility. Our largest in the U.S. is in Kansas City. So we have to choose: whether you put the money in margin, or do you continue and build that plant? That's the type of thing we'd have to decide,'' marginal requirements or jobs.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Again, the question is whether we should decide now that there will never be such a requirement. As to it costing a lot of money, the amendment specifically says that they should be allowed to use noncash collateral. That means they could pledge certain of their own assets, which could mean no cost.

It also says that the regulators shall impose the requirements commensurate with the risk involved in the transaction. Once again, we give incentives here for people to minimize risk, and I think that's the appropriate market approach.

We are, as I said, mandating these to be imposed. We are allowing them to be a noncash collateral, and we said they should be commensurate with risk.

The opposition argument is never. There will never be such a thing. There are no imprudent end users. There is no need ever to have them. The failure of trades in an individual case can be a problem for an individual company. They can cumulate. And that is the question: Do we say that we are willing to go forward with this issue with no power in any regulator to say that particular trades are being conducted in an imprudent fashion?

Because if they are conducted in an imprudent fashion, there is no power here because any margin requirement must be commensurate with risk. We have stricken the notion. The gentleman from Minnesota raised that point. There was at some point some language that we had that said it had to be greater than zero. We said, no, it does not have to be greater than zero, it is commensurate with risk.

And that is the issue. We are being asked to say we have complete confidence that there will never be the kind of imprudent trades that could begin to cause trouble in the system, and therefore, we will deny the regulators the power even to consider this.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Minnesota is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. PETERSON. I thank the gentleman.

I rise in opposition to this amendment. This issue of authority for regulators to set margin requirements for end users was one issue that we could not agree upon during our negotiations, so I think it's appropriate that we resolve it here.

First, I want to remind Members that in the underlying Peterson-Frank amendment that we've adopted with regard to swap dealers and major swap participants and their security-based swap counterparties, regulators will have full authority to set margin requirements appropriate for the uncleared swaps that they hold. So that authority will be in place with regard to the banks.

Because swap dealers and major swap participants are so heavily involved in the swap market and are interconnected with potentially hundreds of different counterparties, we believe it's important that we regulate their margins for the protection of their end-user customers and the financial system as a whole.

However, I don't think that we need the regulators putting margin requirements on end users in order to protect the swap dealers and major swap participants. I think they can look out for themselves.

The so-called end user community of energy companies, manufacturers and on and on, did not, as has been said, cause the problem. They are concerned about potential impact of this amendment, and so I urge my colleagues to oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. STUPAK

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 8 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 8 offered by Mr. STUPAK:

At the end of title III, insert the following new section:

SEC. _____. ADDITIONAL RULES REGARDING EXECUTION AND CLEARING OF SWAPS AND SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.

(a) SWAPS.—Section 2(j)(7) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 2), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by striking ''and where both counterparties are either swap dealers or major swap participants, such counterparties'' and inserting '', the parties''; and

(2) by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D) and inserting after subparagraph (B) the following:

''(C) CERTAIN SWAPS NOT REQUIRED TO BE CLEARED.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A swap that qualifies for the exception of paragraph (8)(A)(i) shall not be executed, except on or through a swap execution facility registered with the Commission.

''(ii) ADDITIONAL EXCEPTIONS.—Clause (i) shall not apply to a swap if no swap execution facility makes the swap available to trade or execute.

''(iii) RULE OF INTERPRETATION.—This subparagraph shall not be interpreted to require any swap to be cleared.''.

(b) SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—Section 5A(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ''section 3B and where both counterparties are either swap dealers or major swap participants, such counterparties'' and inserting ''section 3B(a)(1), the parties''; and

(2) by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (4) and inserting after paragraph (2) the following:

''(3) CERTAIN SECURITY-BASED SWAPS NOT REQUIRED TO BE CLEARED.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A security-based swap that qualifies for the exception of section 3B(h)(1)(A) shall not be executed except on a swap execution facility registered with the Commission.

''(B) ADDITIONAL EXCEPTIONS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a security-based swap if no swap execution facility makes the security-based swap available to trade or execute.

''(C) RULE OF INTERPRETATION.—This paragraph shall not be interpreted to require any security-based swap to be cleared.''.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) SWAPS.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

(2) SECURITY-BASED SWAPS.—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall take effect as if included in subtitle B.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, Chairman FRANK and Chairman PETERSON have provided the framework for regulation of the swaps markets in H.R. 4173, but I believe Congress can improve this bill by requiring additional transparency. We could pass the most comprehensive and thorough regulation of the financial sector imaginable, but it would be meaningless if we continue to leave loopholes in place to evade regulation. As we saw in the oil markets of 2008, leaving loopholes in place for speculators costs consumers more of their hard-earned money.

Swaps are financial contracts that allow a company to lock in prices on everything from currency to oil to pork bellies. In 2008, roughly $80 trillion was traded on regulated exchanges worldwide. And as astonishing as that figure is, it pales in comparison to the more than $600 trillion traded over-the-counter, or in unregulated dark markets. This is seven-and-a-half times what was traded on regulated markets. To put that into perspective, the total gross domestic product of the United States is $14.4 trillion or 41 times smaller than the unregulated swaps market. These unregulated markets create a systemic risk across the financial system and helped bring Lehman Brothers, Bear Stearns and AIG into bankruptcy and our economy to the verge of disaster.

The best way to address this problem is to require Wall Street financial houses to post collateral and clear their swaps contracts on regulated exchanges. If we can't guarantee that Wall Street will post collateral, have some skin in the game, we should at least require that these trades be made in the open, transparent markets.

My amendment establishes a simple requirement: Swaps by end dealers that could clear will remain exempt from clearing because one of the parties in that contract is a bona fide hedger. However, the swaps still should be reported on an exchange. Much of the concern over the dark swaps markets is the lack of information that ensure a competitive, transparent market. By adopting this amendment, the marketplace will become more open, and end users and other important swap users can accurately determine fair prices.

Nothing, and let me repeat, nothing in this amendment requires a new clearing requirement. It's all about transparency and nothing more. Our amendment specifically includes a provision stating that the amendment ''shall not be interpreted as requiring any swap to be cleared.''

CFPC Chairman Gary Gensler originally proposed the concept for required reporting on specific swaps, and supports our amendment that requires transparency in swaps markets. I would like to submit his letter of support in the RECORD.

As Chairman Gensler told the House Energy and Commerce Committee last week, ''Economists have for decades recognized transparency benefits the marketplace'' and that ''lack of regulation in these markets has created significant information deficits.''

There are a number of groups who support this legislation and this amendment, including Americans for Financial Reform, which includes United Food and Commercial Workers, AFL–CIO, a number of groups.

Without our amendment, a significant portion of the swaps market will remain in the dark, and unscrupulous traders will remain out of reach of regulators.

I urge Members to adopt this amendment and bring these swap contracts out of the dark markets.

U.S. COMMODITY FUTURES
TRADING COMMISSION,
Washington, DC, December 10, 2009.

Hon. BART STUPAK,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.
Hon. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMEN STUPAK AND VAN HOLLEN: I am writing in support of your amendment to H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, which would require transparency in swaps contracts by requiring all standardized non-cleared swaps be executed on a registered swap execution facility. This requirement would apply only to those contracts listed for trading while still fully allowing hedgers to enter into customized transactions off-exchange. In addition, the amendment explicitly states that it ''shall not be interpreted to require any swap to be cleared.'' Your amendment would be an important addition to a very strong bill.

In the past few months, Congress has taken historic steps to bring comprehensive regulation to the over-the-counter derivatives markets. H.R. 4173 fully regulates swap dealers and requires that all standardized trades between these Wall Street swap dealers be brought into clearinghouses and transparent trading facilities. Your amendment strengthens the bill by broadening the transparency requirement to include all standardized derivatives transactions. Under H.R. 4173, while big Wall Street banks would be subject to the requirement when trading with each other, those same Wall Street banks would be exempt when trading with many of their customers. Your amendment would close this exemption and increase the amount of information available to the public and market participants.

Economists have for decades recognized that market transparency benefits the public by lowering costs. If derivatives users knew what others were paying to enter into similar contracts, they would receive better pricing on their transactions. A municipality could better decide whether or not to hedge an interest rate risk based upon the reported pricing from the broader market. As a nation, we do not stand for this lack of transparency in other markets. For example, one would not purchase 100 shares of his or her favorite stock without knowing the last price at which those shares sold. Similarly, one would not buy an apple at the supermarket if the price was kept private. Transparency in the over-the-counter derivatives marketplace would shift the information advantage from Wall Street to the businesses, municipalities and nonprofit organizations that you represent in Congress. This would lower the cost of hedging and thus the costs to customers and promote economic growth in every sector of the economy.

Your amendment accomplishes the critical goal of promoting transparency without imposing any additional costs on business as it does not require these end-user trades to be cleared by central counterparties. Your amendment separates mandatory trading on transparent trading venues from a central clearing requirement that would require businesses to post margin. The two should not be confused. Transparency can be required while leaving the clearing decision up to the parties involved in particular transactions.

I commend you for your efforts to bring greater transparency to the currently opaque over-the-counter derivatives marketplace.

Sincerely,

GARY GENSLER,
Chairman.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

This amendment is just another solution in search of a problem. What risk is this amendment looking to eliminate? Both the House Agriculture Committee passed language and the Peterson-Frank amendment, which this seeks to amend, recognize that there are swaps that need not go through the cost and formality of the executed on an exchange or swap execution facility.

As long as the regulator can see the swap and has the appropriate tools to mitigate risk to the U.S. financial system, what more does the exchange execution require add?

This amendment requires unique agreements of no consequence to anyone but the parties involved to be regulated as if it were a credit default swap transacted between systemically risky counterparties. These swaps serve no price discovery function, they aren't conducted between systemically risky parties, and most are unique for an exchange or SEF to appropriately rate the risk.

Forcing these swaps to be executed on an exchange or SEF will only artificially increase the cost of managing risk or discourage legitimate risk management activity altogether. Neither should be the purpose of this legislation.

I urge the defeat of the amendment and reserve the balance of my time, Madam Chairman.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the co-author of this amendment, Mr. VAN HOLLEN from Maryland, who is a champion on this issue.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Madam Chair, I'm very pleased to join with my colleague, Mr. STUPAK, in offering this amendment. I want to commend Chairman FRANK and Chairman PETERSON for bringing a strong bill to the floor.

It's time to finally hold Wall Street and the big banks accountable and never allow them again to hold the American economy hostage and leave the American taxpayer holding the bag. We cannot ask the taxpayers to pay for bad bets made by Wall Street bankers.

This amendment strengthens what is already a good bill. And as my colleague, Mr. STUPAK, has said, what it calls for is simply greater transparency in transactions. Transparency in the over-the-counter derivatives market will shift the information advantage to a small group of Wall Street bankers to businesses, municipalities, nonprofit organizations and to the taxpayer. Why are we afraid of a little sunshine? That is what this amendment is about.

I want to read to the Members a letter that we received, Mr. STUPAK and I, from Gary Gensler, the chairman of the CFTC, and it was addressed to us. It says, ''Your amendment accomplishes the critical goal of promoting transparency without imposing any additional costs on business as it does not require these end-user trades to be cleared by central counterparties.''

I want to emphasize that point because there are certain trades obviously in this legislation that do need to be cleared through central counterparties and clearinghouses. But this is for the remainder. We are saying what is left over should at least be transparent. We should know about it. The taxpayer should know about it. People who want to look at the market and make decisions should know about it.

He goes on to say, ''Your amendment separates mandatory trading on transparent trading venues from a central clearing requirement that would require businesses to post margin. The two should not be confused.''

□ 1950

This does not require anyone to put up a margin. We're saying these transactions have to be transparent.

Finally, he makes the point that ''transparency can be required while leaving the clearing decision up to the parties involved in particular transactions.''

Let's vote for transparency. Let's vote for sunshine. Let's vote for this amendment.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chair, I yield 2 minutes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON), the chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

Mr. PETERSON. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to this amendment, and I do so reluctantly because I know the concept of what the gentleman is trying to accomplish has been endorsed by CFTC Chairman Gensler.

First, let me explain what's already in the Peterson-Frank amendment. If clearing mandate applies to a swap or class of swaps, then the swap dealers and major swap participants not only have to clear such trades but also have to execute them on or through a futures or securities exchange or a swap execution facility. Now, banks hate this because it will expose their trades among themselves to the light of day. It will provide greater price transparency and will narrow their spreads and cost them money, all to the benefit of the end user. For the end users, we provide an exemption from the clearing mandate and, consequently, from the execution mandate.

Mr. STUPAK's amendment would preserve the clearing exemption but impose an execution mandate on end users, the idea being that the more swaps that can go through a swap execution facility, the greater price transparency you receive, the better deal an end user can make.

In theory, this all makes sense; however, the end user community doesn't buy it. They question whether the price information that will come out of the swap execution facility will actually be beneficial to them, and they also know that there will be costs to bear because the facilities won't perform this service for nothing. End users don't know whether the benefits will outweigh the costs. I have a real problem telling people that are in the business what's good for them when they don't believe it.

So I have here a letter from various groups who like the Peterson-Frank approach. Among them are the American Gas Association, the Public Gas Association, Public Power Association, Wind Energy, Edison Electric, Electric Power Supply Association, Independent Petroleum Association, Natural Gas Supply Association, NRECA, the Chamber of Commerce, 3M, Cargill, John Deere, Caterpillar, Medtronic, Zimmer, Ecolab, and others.

So I ask my colleagues to oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 9 OFFERED BY MR. STUPAK

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 9 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mr. STUPAK:

At the end of title III, insert the following new sections:

SEC. _____. AUTHORITY TO BAN ABUSIVE SWAPS.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission may jointly, by rule or order, prohibit transactions in any swap (as defined in section 1a(35) of the Commodity Exchange Act) or security-based swap (as defined in section 1a(38) of such Act) which the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities Exchange Commission find would be detrimental to the stability of a financial market or of participants in a financial market.

SEC. _____. ELIMINATION OF CONSIDERATION OF BALANCE SHEET RISK IN DETERMINING THE COMMERICAL RISK OF BONA FIDE HEDGING END USERS.

(a) Section 1a(39)(A)(i) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended by striking ''and balance sheet''.

(b) Section 2(j)(8)(A)(ii) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 2), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended by striking ''or balance sheet''.

(c) Section 3(a)(67)(A)(i) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)), as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended by striking ''and balance sheet''.

(d) Section 3B(h)(1)(B) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as added by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended by striking ''and balance sheet''.

(e)(1) The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

(2) The amendments made by subsections (c) and (d) shall take effect as if included in subtitle B.

SEC. _____. LEGAL CERTAINTY OF CERTAIN SWAP CONTRACTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 22(a) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 25(a)), as amended by the preceding provisions of this Act, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (4)(A), by inserting '', and entered into before the effective date of this paragraph,'' after ''investor'';

(2) in paragraph (4)(B), by inserting '', and entered into before the effective date of this paragraph,'' after ''between eligible contract participants''; and

(3) in paragraph (5), by inserting '', and entered into before the effective date of this paragraph,'' after ''United States''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect as if included in subtitle A.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, this amendment was crafted with the help of Representatives DELAURO, LARSON, and VAN HOLLEN. We worked and reached an agreement with Chairman FRANK and Chairman PETERSON to enhance regulation of the over-the-counter derivatives market. I want to thank my colleagues and both chairmen for their work.

Our amendment provides additional assurances that the swaps market will be policed and prevents speculative financial companies from evading regulations or otherwise ignoring the law. Under this amendment, the CFTC and the SEC will be granted authority to prohibit swap transactions that pose a risk to the financial marketplace. Certain swaps, such as naked credit default swaps, are pure speculative bets that a company will fail and should be banned. As we learned in 2008, credit default swaps and other swap transactions pose a systemic risk to our economy and accelerated the economic collapse.

This amendment also narrows the definition of determining which companies are and are not bona fide hedging end users. Commercial companies that use commodities and securities to lock in prices and hedge the risk of their products, such as airlines, trucking companies, and electric utilities, did not create the current financial crisis. H.R. 4173 reflects this reality, but its exception for clearing swaps on an exchange is written so broadly that financial speculators and private pools of capital can be treated as bona fide hedgers.

To maintain strong standards for financial companies, we must ensure illegal swap transactions do not remain a valid contract in a court of law. Our amendment prevents a company that enters into a swap contract to remain liable for payment under the swap contract if the counterparty has acted illegally in creating, executing, or reporting the swap.

This amendment is the result of hard work between Chairman FRANK, Chairman PETERSON, and my colleagues and me to reach an agreement. This amendment will preserve the ability of bona fide end users to hedge commercial risk with strong standards for Wall Street financial companies.

I urge adoption of this amendment.

DECEMBER 8, 2009.

Re support H.R. 4173, ''Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009''.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: The undersigned organizations strongly urge you to support H.R. 4173, the ''Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009,'' when it comes to the House floor this week. We write individually and also on behalf of Americans for Financial Reform, a coalition of more than 200 national, state and local consumer, labor, retiree, investor, community, business and civil rights organizations who are campaigning for real reform in our nation's financial system.

The need for this legislation could not be more obvious. Years of deregulation have produced a financial system that is a threat to our economy. Rampant abuses in consumer lending practices, combined with a casino mentality on Wall Street and the willful blindness of federal regulators, have plunged our economy into its worst economic crisis since the Great Depression—and it is clear that Wall Street has not learned its lessons. While H.R. 4173 needs to be strengthened, it contains vital reforms for our country and must be passed.

A number of amendments will be offered which will fundamentally affect the shape of this legislation. In order to ensure meaningful financial reform, we strongly urge you to:

Oppose the Minnick amendment to eliminate a new Consumer Financial Protection Agency (CFPA) from the bill. It would leave enforcement of consumer protection and civil rights laws in the hands of the same existing regulatory bodies that resoundingly failed to use them.

Support the Stupak/DeLauro/Larson/Van Hollen amendment on derivatives. Regulators must have the authority to ban abusive derivatives instruments rather than simply reporting them to Congress, transactions which violate the law should be considered invalid, and loopholes which leave too many trades to continue in the shadows must be closed.

At the same time, we believe that as the legislative process moves forward, H.R. 4173 must be improved in important respects including:

The bill provides systemic regulatory authority to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve without reforming the Federal Reserve System to remove the banks themselves from a role in overseeing the Federal Reserve's regulatory staff. We need a fully public systemic risk regulator, either in the form of a separate agency as detailed in Chairman Dodd's proposal, or a reformed Federal Reserve.

The proposed CFPA needs to have jurisdiction over the Community Reinvestment Act (CRA), as it does in Chairman Dodd's proposal. The CRA is vital to fighting discriminatory, deceptive, and unsustainable lending practices in minority communities. But as is the case with other consumer protection and civil rights laws, CRA enforcement in recent years has been extremely weak, allowing a wide range of under-regulated, non-bank—and often predatory—lenders to fill the void.

The legislation should also be changed to give the SEC authority to make the exemption from registration under the 1940 Act for private investment funds contingent upon such funds fulfilling requirements established by the SEC.

Despite the need for these improvements, passage of H.R. 4173 would represent dramatic progress towards a financial system that works for all Americans. By voting for it, you will send an important message to the American public that you intend to change the way that Wall Street works for the better.

Thank you for your consideration of our views. If you have any questions, please contact Rob Randhava, Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, and Lisa Donner, Americans for Financial Reform.

Sincerely,

AMERICANS FOR FINANCIAL REFORM.

DECEMBER 10, 2009.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
U.S. Capitol Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: The undersigned members of the Commodity Markets Oversight Coalition would like to extend its gratitude to Representative Collin Peterson of Minnesota, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and members of his committee, for the hard work and efforts necessary to bring the over-the-counter (OTC) derivatives legislation, which is a part of H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, to the House floor this week.

Both Chairman Peterson and House Financial Services Chairman Barney Frank and the members of their committees are to be commended on their efforts towards meaningful reform of the commodities futures/swaps markets. As members of Congress are well aware, our coalition has since early 2007 advocated for legislation to bring about greater transparency, oversight and accountability in these markets and to empower federal regulators with the authority and resources to protect against fraud, manipulation and excessive speculation.

In light of this, we urge your support for the following floor amendments to H.R. 4173 that will help to strengthen this legislation:

No. 47 (Rep. Stupak)—Would require transparency in swaps contracts by requiring all non-cleared swaps be executed on a registered swap execution facility.

No. 48 (Reps. Stupak, DeLauro, Larson, Van Hollen)—Would give the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission the authority to ban abusive swaps, amends any proposed commercial risk definition to disregard balance sheet risk, and maintains any illegal swap entered into after enactment of this Act will not be valid.

No. 114 (Rep. Peterson)—Would provide for the CFTC to define the terms ''commercial risk,'' ''operating risk,'' and ''balance sheet risk'' for purposes of the Commodity Exchange Act.

No. 115 (Reps. Peterson and Frank)—Would provide for position limits for physical commodities, clearing of over-the counter transactions, increased transparency, reporting, and recordkeeping, and transparency of offshore trading. It also addresses jurisdictional issues in the context of swaps by providing for CFTC jurisdiction over swaps and SEC jurisdiction over swaps that are primarily based on securities (or narrow-based security indexes). These two agencies are required to consult with each other and with banking regulators before regulating.

No. 135 (Rep. Lynch)—Prohibits swaps dealers from controlling more than 20% of an exchange. Provides rules toward the equitable governance of clearing houses and swap exchange facilities.

We are hopeful you will send the Senate strong, pragmatic legislation that will bring light to opaque, unregulated or under-regulated markets and market activity, close the door on potential fraud and manipulation, and give federal regulators the tools they need to prevent financial speculation from driving food and energy prices.

Such action is essential to rebuilding confidence in these markets as price discovery and risk management tools for bona-fide physical hedgers, to reducing systemic risk and market volatility, and helping to prevent further destabilization of our nation's economic recovery.

Sincerely,

Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chair, I yield myself 2½ minutes.

This amendment strikes the term ''balance sheet'' risk from the definition of major swap participant, the result of which prevents corporations from hedging pension of funds costs.

Pension funds are a liability on a corporation's balance sheet. That liability carries risk and that risk needs to be managed. If corporations can't manage pension fund risk, their employees will realize smaller benefits or fewer employees will enjoy pension benefits altogether. Some companies may be forced to join the ranks of employers who have terminated company-based retirement plans.

Another part of the amendment allows a party to a swap to walk away from a swap for failure to comply with the clearing requirement or the execution transparency requirement created in this title. It sounds like a good idea, but let's take a closer look.

The only time a party to a swap will want to walk away from a transaction is when they're losing money. This provision will encourage a swap participant to call his or her attorney when the deal goes sour to find a way to walk away from the liability created by the transaction. This contractual uncertainty will push companies away from risk mitigation, leading to higher operating costs and higher prices to consumers. In addition, this amendment is not needed to punish a counterparty for lack of compliance. If there's noncompliance with the clearing or execution transparency requirements, the CFTC can stop and catch the malefactors.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO), the co-author of this amendment.

Ms. DELAURO. I am pleased to join Mr. STUPAK, Mr. VAN HOLLEN, and Mr. LARSON in support of this amendment.

The amendment does three things: It grants the CFTC and the SEC the authority to prohibit specific swaps, including the abuse of naked credit default swaps that distorted the derivatives market. It narrows the bona fide end user exemption in the bill to prevent loopholes that might allow major financial players to evade the requirements of this bill while ensuring that legitimate end users still have access to this financial tool. It ensures that no illegal swap transaction will remain a valid contract in a court of law. We should not countenance predatory behavior in any way, and we should make sure market players are not financially benefiting from the abusive and corrupt practices that helped to initiate this debilitating recession.

With credit default swaps, companies took bets that others would fail without facing any risk themselves in the case of default. Other institutions took those bets even though they could not pay out if the unthinkable happened. It was a casino culture where traders played with taxpayers' dollars and made sure they won either way, always at the expense of regular people.

And when the defaults started to mount up, the whole house of cards came tumbling down.

Why did the credit default swaps, once just a financial tool to hedge risk, become the province of rampant and reckless speculation? Because they remained unregulated. The bill before us is a good step toward repairing this oversight and regulating markets, but we need to do more. Taken together, the changes in this amendment will strengthen regulation over these once useful financial tools and will help ensure that the entire Nation does not get taken for another ride on account of bad behavior in the derivatives market.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Speaker, I would note to my colleagues that I have one remaining speaker, and I would turn to him to close when the time is appropriate.

Mr. STUPAK. I yield the balance of my time to the co-author of this amendment, Mr. VAN HOLLEN.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. I want to thank my colleague, Mr. STUPAK. I am pleased to join with him and Ms. DELAURO and Mr. LARSON in offering this amendment.

I think we should make one thing clear: We all know that, when used properly within an appropriate regulatory framework, derivatives can be valuable tools for hedging commercial risk and provide important consumer benefits. That being said, we have learned all too painfully over the last year that derivatives used improperly and outside of an appropriate regulatory framework can become what Warren Buffett has described as ''financial weapons of mass destruction.'' When that speculation is permitted to spin out of control on unregulated dark markets, it can create a magnitude of systemic risk sufficient to threaten the entire economy. That's what we saw with AIG and others.

This amendment that we are offering today will provide important additional oversight to that market by giving regulators the explicit authority to ban abusive swaps, prevent abuse of the end user exemption, and ensure that victims of illegal transactions cannot be held liable for payment to their predatory counterparties in a court of law.

I urge adoption of the amendment and thank Chairmen FRANK and PETERSON for their support of this amendment.

Mr. LUCAS. Madam Chair, I yield my remaining time to close to my colleague and friend, the chairman of the Agriculture Committee, Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota.

Mr. PETERSON. I thank the gentleman.

I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I do so reluctantly because I know the sponsors of this amendment are sincere in their attempt to address potential problems that they fear could arise with the underlying bill. But I have to say that we have looked at these issues in great depth in the committee, and it is not that we haven't considered them.

In the first issue, banning of financial products, our concern there is that we believe that if we ban these products, they will simply move overseas and outside of our ability to regulate them. And if they are dangerous products and if they are something that shouldn't be done, I don't know if it makes any sense if we are just going to transfer that over to a foreign country. Our committee went to Europe. We recognize that most of the companies that do business in the United States also do business in Europe, and that is how we came down on that issue.

Another provision strikes the term ''balance sheet risk.'' We had considerable discussion about this. We think we have got the right terminology to get at the issue that some of the end users had. They felt that without that term, they might limit some of their transactions. And for those of us in agriculture, these things are very important to us because we are actually hedging physical risk. That is why I introduced an amendment directing the regulators to define the terms in explicit terms so that we would be clear about this. But as I said during that debate, the Agriculture Committee will definitely haul them up and straighten them out if they don't get the right answer to that.

Finally, the amendment limits the applicability of legal certainty of swaps. This amendment asks the question why illegal swaps should be enforceable. The answer is that otherwise you will encourage illegal behavior. If a swap dealer or an end user finds itself in a money-losing swap, it would be easy to engage in some illegal behavior to negate the swap and escape its financial liability.

The standard of illegality is not very high. You wouldn't have to commit fraud to invalidate a swap; you just don't have to follow the regulations. So do we really want businesses making the calculation between the costs associated with paying a fine to regulators for failing to dot the i's or cross the t's versus the costs associated with honoring their swap obligation? If the end user is harmed by the fraudulent action of its swap counterparty, the CFTC has the tools to seek restitution for the end user from the counterparty. Ending legal certainty causes more problems than it solves, in our opinion.

I know the sponsors of this amendment have good intentions, but I think that the amendment goes a little too far to address problems that it seeks to correct, and I would urge my colleagues to oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 10 OFFERED BY MS. MATSUI

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 10 printed in House Report 111–370.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 10 offered by Ms. MATSUI:

Page 465, after line 2, insert the following new subtitle:

Subtitle L—Making Home Affordable Program

SEC. 9911. PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION.

(a) REVISIONS TO PROGRAM GUIDELINES.—The Secretary of the Treasury (in this section referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall revise the guidelines for the Home Affordable Modification Program of the Making Home Affordable initiative of the Secretary of the Treasury, authorized under the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (Public Law 110–343), to provide that the data being collected by the Secretary from each mortgage servicer and lender participating in the Program is made public in accordance with subsection (b).

(b) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—Data shall be made available according to the following guidelines:

(1) Not more than 14 days after each monthly deadline for submission of data by mortgage servicers and lenders participating in the Program, reports shall be made publicly available by means of a World Wide Web site of the Secretary, and by submitting a report to the Congress, that shall includes the following information:

(A) The number of requests for mortgage modifications under the Program that the servicer or lender has received.

(B) The number of requests for mortgage modifications under the Program that the servicer or lender has processed.

(C) The number of requests for mortgage modifications under the Program that the servicer or lender has approved.

(D) The number of requests for mortgage modifications under the Program that the servicer or lender has denied.

(2) Not more than 60 days after each monthly deadline for submission of data by mortgage servicers and lenders participating in the Program, the Secretary shall make data tables available to the public at the individual record level. The Secretary shall issue regulations prescribing—

(A) the procedures for disclosing such data to the public; and

(B) such deletions as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate to protect any privacy interest of any mortgage modification applicant, including the deletion or alteration of the applicant's name and identification number.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, I rise today to offer an amendment, along with Representatives KATHY CASTOR and BETTY SUTTON, that calls on the mortgage industry to help place more responsible homeowners into more affordable terms under the Making Home Affordable program.

Sadly, after more than 2 years since the beginning of the foreclosure crisis, much needs to be done to help Americans facing the threat of foreclosure. Leading economists expect another uptick in foreclosures, estimating nearly 5 million homeowners could face foreclosure over the next 2 years.

Madam Chair, my home district of Sacramento has been devastated by this crisis. I have been to foreclosure workshops over and over again. I have seen the hardships and the looks of desperation. The Making Home Affordable Housing program offers a host of financial incentives to the mortgage industry to help homeowners modify their loans to more affordable terms. It is expected to help nearly 4 million homeowners. Unfortunately, to date, the mortgage industry has yet to demonstrate its commitment to help homeowners. In fact, since the inception of the program nearly 1 year ago, the mortgage industry has placed only 31,000 homeowners into a permanent, affordable loan modification.

Madam Chair, no one here is looking for a bailout, but families need honest assistance. The amendment my colleagues and I are offering today requires mortgage industry participants in the Making Home Affordable program to report basic information on a monthly basis.

Under the amendment, mortgage industry participants would have to report the number of loan modification requests received, the number being processed, the number that have been approved, and the number that have been denied. It would also make that information available to the public through the Treasury Department's Web site.

Madam Chair, it is clear that greater transparency is needed to ensure that all parties are working toward the common goal of helping homeowners. I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, pursuant to section 4 of House Resolution 964, I request that amendment No. 11 be considered out of order. If I may elaborate, it is for the purpose of en blocing some amendments.

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, I rise to claim time in opposition, although I am not entirely opposed to the gentlelady's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from West Virginia is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, the gentlelady's amendment deals with the Making Home Affordable program, which has been in effect for most of 2009. I think it is important to note that the Department of the Treasury is already collecting some of this data. But I would like to take this opportunity to express my continued concern, as the gentlelady expressed hers, with the loan modification programs in general.

Earlier this week, the House Financial Services Committee held a hearing in which there was bipartisan frustration with these programs. Rolled out under heralded proclamations that they would help 7 million to 9 million struggling homeowners, to date the loan modifications have helped only a fraction of that.

I have serious concerns that the administration has overpromised on these programs and has unfairly raised borrowers' expectations. Furthermore, we have learned that many of the trial modifications are not being processed with complete documentation. Lack of documentation was one of the main contributors to the foreclosure problem in the first place.

JPMorgan Chase recently disclosed that in November close to 25 percent of their trial modifications failed to make the first payment, and that nearly 50 percent of the borrowers failed to make all three of the first three payments. Furthermore, the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston cites that 30 to 45 percent of borrowers who receive modifications end up in default within 6 months.

Clearly, we need more transparency in this program. We also need to find a way to make the goals of the program work to help those who are having difficulty—who are suffering from unemployment or from the real estate collapse in their areas or who are unable to meet their obligations. All of us hear from constituents every single day who are struggling, but this program, Making Home Affordable, obviously has great lapses and great challenges.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to my colleague on the Energy and Commerce Committee, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. CASTOR).

Ms. CASTOR of Florida. I thank my colleague from California (Ms. MATSUI).

I rise in support of the Matsui amendment.

Madam Chair, all across America, families are doing everything right. They are paying their mortgages. They want to stay in their homes, but loan servicers and the banks have been slow to respond to reasonable requests for modifications.

Like many Democratic Members, I've held a number of foreclosure prevention workshops. What I hear from families is that these banks and the lenders and the servicers will not answer the phones to complete a modification and that, once they get the paperwork, they are not completing these modifications as they should.

Now, while President Obama's Making Home Affordable program has been positive in Florida and while we have over 83,000 modifications underway, we do not have the information necessary to tell where it is working, who it is working for, and which banks and servicers are not helping. So this amendment gets tough on those lenders and servicers.

It says that they have to demonstrate that they are following through with their responsibilities to modify mortgages for qualified families. It will keep the lenders honest by requiring up-to-date information about modifications, and that information will be made public. No more excuses for these lenders and servicers that have not been holding up their end of the bargain for America's families.

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to my other colleague on the Energy and Commerce Committee, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. SUTTON).

Ms. SUTTON. Madam Chair, I rise today, along with my colleagues Representative MATSUI and Representative CASTOR, in support of the Matsui amendment.

Before Wall Street collapsed, before anyone ever heard of ''credit default swaps'' and before AIG became a four letter word, homeowners across this country—and especially in Ohio—were already hurting. Responsible Americans were sold mortgages with indecipherable terms, with smoke-and-mirror provisions and with ''gotcha'' fees. Some lost their jobs and were unable to make payments, and some homeowners are still suffering. Last month, one in every 417 homes in this country received a foreclosure filing. The Making Home Affordable program has helped some homeowners but not enough, and it is time we saw some numbers.

This amendment requires Treasury to post on their Web site important data on mortgage servicer and lender participation in the program so we can hold mortgage servicers and lenders accountable, and so we can ask them ''why.'' Why are you not helping homeowners out of this mess that you created?

This is an important step toward helping Americans stay in their homes. I urge a ''yes'' vote.

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, I yield 2 minutes to my colleague on the Financial Services Committee, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING).

Mr. HENSARLING. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Madam Chair, I could not agree more with the speakers whom I heard or with the intention of the gentlewoman who offered the amendment that we certainly need greater transparency in these taxpayer-funded housing programs.

I would also like to see that we include, maybe, HOPE for Homeowners, for which $300 billion has been authorized, but on the last date that it's available, which is dating back to July, only 1,000 applications and 50 loans closed. Yet $300 billion was authorized.

In the HAMP program, there was $75 billion of taxpayer money for 650,000, apparently, temporary loan modifications on a program that was supposed to help 4 million homeowners.

HARP, the Home Affordable Refinance Program, was supposedly going to help 4 to 5 million, and instead, there were only 116,000 loans.

Now let's look at what those who actually own the loans have done. There have been 4.7 million workouts that have happened in the competitive marketplace without any interference by government with no taxpayer money expended.

I mean, Madam Chair, this is the kind of transparency that we need. All of these taxpayer-funded foreclosure mitigation programs of this administration and of this Congress have been absolute abject failures. The only loan modification program, foreclosure mitigation program, that is going to work is a job, and we know what the record of this administration and of this Congress is: the highest unemployment rate in a generation and a double-digit unemployment rate.

Until you get rid of the looming storm clouds of Obamanomics, the debt, the spending, and the bailouts, you won't get the jobs. If you don't get the jobs, people can't keep their homes. So I am happy that we will shine a little bit more transparency into this.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, how much time do I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. Both sides have 1 minute remaining.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Chair, I yield the balance of my time to the chairman of the Financial Services Committee, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I support the amendment, but I do have to comment on this job issue.

Once again, it is clear that January 21, 2009, saw a mass disease outbreak—prolonged, profound Republican amnesia. The gentleman from Texas says, under this administration, we've lost jobs. Yes. The Obama recovery from the Bush recession has been slower than we had hoped, but it has begun.

According to the official National Bureau of Economic Research, the Bush recession began in 2007. Large job losses happened under the Bush administration and as a continuation of the Bush policies. We have finally begun to slow down the job loss.

The notion that it is because our economic recovery plan was passed that job loss has continued is, of course, economic illiteracy of the highest sort. The problem is that you do not immediately turn things around. Most economic analysts agree that the economic recovery program has slowed down the rate of job loss, and we have begun to turn it around.

When the gentleman from Texas and other Republicans blame Obama for the Bush mistakes, it's not going to be allowed to go unrebutted.

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Chair, I would like to say facts are facts. We are, unfortunately, suffering some of the highest unemployment in a generation. These are real people who are losing real jobs, and we want to help them in their housing issues. I support the gentlewoman's amendment.

I would like to say that, in our hearing, we learned that the servicers and the banks were having some lapses, but we found also that the borrowers were having some lapses as well in terms of providing full documentation, in terms of responding to the lenders and to the servicers.

So I would encourage the gentlewoman, as we move through this process, to maybe expand the transparency of the information so that we can see the full program not just from the servicer's side or from the bank's side but also from the borrower's side, too, and see where their lapses may be as well.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI).

The amendment was agreed to.

□ 2020

AMENDMENT NO. 12 OFFERED BY MR. KANJORSKI

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 12 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 12 offered by Mr. KANJORSKI:

Page 11, in the item relating to section 7606, strike ''Exemption for Nonaccelerated Filers'' and insert ''Study on methods to reduce the burden of compliance on small companies''.

Page 1221, line 19, strike "EXEMPTION FOR NONACCELERATED FILERS" and insert ''STUDY ON METHODS TO REDUCE THE BURDEN OF COMPLIANCE ON SMALL COMPANIES''.

Page 1222, on line 3, strike ''(b) STUDY.—'' and adjust the indentation appropriately.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KANJORSKI) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the son of one of the original authors of the Sarbanes-Oxley bill, Representative SARBANES of Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I strongly support the Kanjorski-Frank-Sarbanes-Cohen amendment to the bill. This would restore critical investor protections for those who invest in publicly traded companies. And what are those? Number one, that the management establish internal controls with respect to the financial operations of the company; and, number two, that they get an outside audit to validate the soundness of those controls.

Now, those who oppose this say that the smaller publicly traded companies can't handle the burden of compliance. The costs have come way down, particularly because the SEC has been careful to work with these smaller companies to make sure that that burden is not too heavy.

The fact of the matter is that if you are an investor, it doesn't matter to you whether you are investing in a smaller company or a larger company. What you want to know is that that company is not cooking the books.

If we don't pass this amendment, then almost half of the publicly traded companies in this country will be exempt from these basic transparency requirements. That's why I urge support of it.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I yield myself 2 minutes.

I would like to begin by commending my colleague from South Jersey, Congressman JOHN ADLER, for his hard work on this very important issue. As all of our colleagues know in New Jersey and around the country, our Nation is in tough economic times right now and these tough times are compounded if you are a small business. And the last thing we need to do is put more burdens on them by imposing costly regulations.

I think we all agree that our Nation's small businesses are not the cause of our current financial situation, but they are the ones who are going to get us out of it. The language in the bill that would permanently exempt small businesses with a market capitalization of $75 million or less from section 404(b) of Sarbanes-Oxley was added during committee consideration by myself and Mr. ADLER and was adopted by a broad bipartisan vote, with the backing of the White House as well.

Unlike some would like to have you believe, this exemption does not exempt institutions from all auditing requirements. As the Independent Community Bankers Association notes in a letter on this matter, they say, ''The regulatory burden will be in addition to their other annual auditing fees, their regular safety and soundness and compliance examinations conducted by the banking agencies, and complying with other numerous Federal and State banking laws and regulations. It will also be in addition to complying with Sarbanes-Oxley section 404(a) which requires management to render an opinion concerning an issuer's internal controls.''

Basically all that means is there is a plethora of other regulations providing for transparency for these companies.

Let me give you a quick example about one company in my district, and that is Dewey Electronics. They are located in Oakland, New Jersey, a small company, 35 employees, capitalized $3.6 million, hardly a company that's going to cause panic in this country if they fail. The CEO, the CFO and other management, they are all located in the same hallway, in the same building. There is constant communication between all the board of directors. They are a perfect example of a small business in which the government should not force new and now highly expensive regulatory requirements in order to have them check off some boxes on some form.

Think about it. The hundreds of thousands of dollars that it will cost them to comply with section 404(b) would be much better spent in developing new and more efficient generators, which is what the company does to support our troops overseas to be used on the battlefield or to be used to hire new employees, which is what we talked about a number of times before on this floor, to make sure that we can provide more jobs as we see the joblessness rate rise.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute for the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COHEN).

Mr. COHEN. Madam Chair, I want to thank the people I have worked with on this amendment, Mr. KANJORSKI, Mr. FRANK, Mr. SARBANES.

The fact is that Sarbanes-Oxley section 404 is one of the more important pieces that we have in our portfolio to protect consumers against corporate fraud and corporate corruption. When it was passed it was passed by an overwhelming majority, almost unanimous, in this House.

Over the years it hasn't been implemented completely, but now it needs to be implemented, for small companies, $75 million or less, as well as the large companies where it has already been implemented. As Mr. SARBANES said, the loss to investors from small companies is just as important and potent to them as the loss from large companies. We have so many investors that will be at risk if there are not proper accounting procedures and safeguards for the American public.

As Arthur Levitt, the former chairman of the SEC said, Overturning the most pro-investor legislation in the past 25 years is deeply disturbing. Those who vote against investor protections in Sarbanes-Oxley will bear the investors' mark of Cain. Take it if you choose it.

I submit you shouldn't support the amendment.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I now yield 1½ minutes to my friend and colleague from South Jersey, Congressman ADLER.

Mr. ADLER of New Jersey. I thank the gentleman from New Jersey.

Much of the legislation we are discussing the last couple of days and tomorrow when we vote is about the failure of this Congress to regulate sufficiently. I mean, it's one instance we have facts, we have data, we have clear evidence of our overregulation. Sarbanes-Oxley has done some very good things, and unfortunately the section 404(b) has chased companies out of the United States of America. We know companies that are doing IPOs, not in New York, but in London. They have said so. We know other companies that have been unable to aggregate capital to go from small to big, to create jobs, the sorts of jobs the President talked about at the Brookings Institution just a couple of days ago. Small companies sometimes become great companies and employ thousands and thousands of people.

Most of this bill we are talking about today and tomorrow will do some very good things to add enough regulation. This one instance, we have to do what Mr. GARRETT and I tried to do, what a bipartisan group in the Financial Services Committee did, which is restore the right balance so small companies aren't crushed from their aspiration of going public, of selling stock to the public, of growing and creating the next Microsoft, IBM, General Electric, the next great companies. We are missing a chance here if we pass this amendment.

The committee did the right thing on a bipartisan basis to grow our economy. Let's not turn our backs on the many Americans who want to have good, decent jobs in this country now.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the chairman of the full committee, Mr. FRANK.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, the SEC has recognized the potential problems for people under $75 million. They are not now subjected to this. The question is not whether they should be immediately put under this, but whether they should be given a permanent exemption without giving us a chance to have the SEC continue its development of more appropriate rules. The notion that no such requirement should apply, there is an absolutism here that seems to me in error.

Yes, the SEC should treat companies at $75 million and below differently than people that are at a billion dollars and above, et cetera. But they are in the process of doing this. This is an exemption that is unnecessary at this time. If and when the SEC decides that it is ready to cover them and Members here think that they haven't done an adequate job of providing for it, a motion like this might be in order.

I understand the desire of people to help smaller businesses. But at this point it is a license for people who might want to be abusive by guaranteeing them that they will never be audited despite any effort to make an appropriate audit.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. We should be closing. Are there speakers on the other side?

I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KANJORSKI. As I understand, we are down to our last speaker on the other side; is that correct?

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I am going to close, yes.

Mr. KANJORSKI. I will take the remaining time on our side.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, this was a very close vote in the committee and a highly contested issue, and I understand that there are hard and good feelings on both sides.

I think the proponents of the amendment that carried in the committee, which now this amendment is trying to reverse here on the floor, were trying to say that government is hurting, in some way, small companies, about 5,000 of them, if we continue to impose 404(b). That's not correct.

First and foremost, 404(b), to the companies that are less than $75 million in capitalization are not presently compelled to follow any of the existing Sarbanes-Oxley proposals. As a matter of fact, in the underlying bill, it won't be until 2011 that there will be an imposition of that, and only after a study that has already been ordered is made, which, as the chairman of the full committee recognized in his presentation, is that we will have plenty of time, that if that study comes back and says we should make adjustments to 404(b), we'll be able to do that.

The problem of our friends like Mr. Levitt, Mr. Volcker, and many other leading economists in the country and people of high position in economics, they know that for 20 years there has been a fight in this country to try and protect investors from unscrupulous activity. We saw, 7 years ago, Enron and WorldCom, and that's the genesis of where this rule came from. To now summarily reverse this rule because it's not very nice to have companies spend money to protect their shareholders is very appealing. I haven't any doubt that it will appeal.

But we're not talking about—when our adversaries on this particular proposition talk about small business, this isn't small business. These are companies that are registered public companies on the stock exchange and have up to $75 million in capitalization. That's a pretty large company in most places. It certainly doesn't classify itself, under governmentspeak, to be a small business.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. And now, I shall yield my remaining 1½ minutes to my friend and colleague from the State of Texas.

Mr. HENSARLING. As I listen carefully to this debate, I'm struck by the fact that this United States Congress doesn't seem to get it. The number one job of this Congress ought to be jobs. Again, I know some on the other side of the aisle take umbrage at the facts, and the facts are, we have double-digit unemployment, the highest unemployment in a generation. 3.6 million have lost their jobs since President Obama became President.

Now, I was informed by the distinguished chairman of the Financial Services Committee that perhaps some, like myself, on this side of the aisle have amnesia because the problem really started in 2007, which conveniently coincides with the year that the Democrats took control of Congress. So apparently, amnesia does not know partisan bounds, Madam Chairman.

So what we have here in front of us is an amendment to put even greater burdens on small business, the job engine of America. How many more regulations, how much more cost do you have to put on small businesses as they're struggling to meet their payrolls, as they're struggling to try to keep their businesses afloat? How many more jobs have to be lost, Madam Chairman? I hope no more. And we should reject this amendment.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chair, I would enter into the RECORD at this time just the letters of support of the Adler-Garrett amendment from the New York Stock Exchange Euronext, Property Casualty Insurers, ICBA, Biotechnology, and the Center for Investors and Entrepreneurs.

NYSE EURONEXT,
DECEMBER 8, 2009.

Hon. JOHN ADLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.
Hon. SCOTT GARRETT,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVES ADLER AND GARRETT: NYSE Euronext supports your provision in the Investor Protection Act that would permanently exempt smaller public companies, with a market capitalization of less than $75 million, from Section 404(b) of the Sarbanes Oxley Act of 2002.

We urge Congress to retain this provision in H.R. 4173, The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009.

This provision will help promote the ability of smaller companies to compete and create jobs without sacrificing the important benefits of strong auditor oversight and robust financial reporting requirements. The SEC's current exemption for companies with less than $75 million in market value represents a measured approach to balancing investor protection and SME competitiveness, as these companies continue to be audited and subject to SEC rules regarding financial reporting and disclosure requirements.

NYSE Euronext looks forward to continuing to work with the Congress to strengthen the growth, competitiveness and job-creation of U.S. public companies.

Sincerely,

CLARKE D. CAMPER,
Senior Vice President, Head of Government Affairs and Public Advocacy.

PROPERTY CASUALTY INSURERS ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA,
Washington, DC, December 10, 2009.

Hon. JOHN H. ADLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.
Hon. SCOTT GARRETT,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN ADLER AND CONGRESSMAN GARRETT: The Property Casualty Insurers Association of America (PCI) supports your provision in the Investor Protection Act that would permanently exempt smaller public companies, with a market capitalization of less than $75 million, from Section 404(b) of the Sarbanes Oxley Act of 2002. We strongly urge the Congress to include this language in the final version of H.R. 4173, The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009.

PCI supports strong corporate governance for all corporations. However, since the Sarbanes-Oxley Act became law, it has become clear that the implementation of Section 404(b) was too broad. It has been a competitive disadvantage for many U.S. corporations. We believe that the costs of compliance with Section 404(b) must continue to be reduced for all publicly-traded insurance companies, in particular for the small-to-medium sized insurers to which your provision applies.

PCI applauds you for your continued leadership on this important issue, and we look forward to working with you to lessen the burden of Section 404(b) compliance for smaller public businesses.

PCI represents the broadest cross-section of insurers of any national property/casualty trade association, with over 1000 members writing over $180 billion in direct written premium annually, over 37 percent of the nation's property/casualty insurance.

Sincerely,

BENJAMIN J. MCKAY, III,
Senior Vice President,
Federal Government Relations.

INDEPENDENT COMMUNITY BANKERS OF AMERICA,
Washington, DC, December 8, 2009.

Hon. LOUISE MCINTOSH SLAUGHTER,
Chairwoman, Rules Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, DC. 20515
Hon. DAVID DREIER,
Ranking Member, Rules Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRWOMAN SLAUGHTER AND RANKING MEMBER DREIER: The Independent Community Bankers of America (ICBA) wishes to commend members of the House Financial Services Committee for including an amendment to the Investor Protection Act of 2009 sponsored by Representatives Scott Garrett and John Adler (which is Section 606 of that Act) that would exclude small publicly held companies including many community banks from the costly regulatory burden of complying with Section 404(b) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (SOX). As the Rules Committee considers amendments to the overall financial reform package, H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, ICBA would like to voice our opposition to an amendment being offered by Representative Paul Kanjorski that would strip this provision from the Investor Protection Act.

Without the Garrett/Adler exclusion included in the Investor Protection Act, beginning next year, many small, publicly held companies including several hundred community banks would be required to retain outside auditors to render costly attestations of their internal controls. In the case of community banks, this regulatory burden will be in addition to their other annual auditing fees, their regular safety and soundness and compliance examinations conducted by the banking agencies, and complying with numerous other federal and state banking laws and regulations. It also will be in addition to complying with SOX Section 404(a) which requires management to render an opinion concerning an issuer's internal controls.

For the hundreds of community banks that would be impacted by SOX Section 404(b), this exclusion will allow them to significantly reduce their regulatory expenses, conserve their capital, allowing them to make needed loans in their communities. This exclusion is particularly critical for those publicly held community banks located in areas of the country that have been hard hit by the economic downturn. These banks will be able to use this additional revenue to lend money to small businesses and consumers, encouraging job creation and aiding in the economic recovery. Importantly, this exclusion will also protect the FDIC's Deposit Insurance Fund by helping these community banks weather the economic crisis.

As you consider amendments to the regulatory reform package this week, ICBA urges you to retain the Garrett/Adler language that would exclude many community banks from the costly requirements of SOX Section 404(b) and oppose the Kanjorski amendment that would strip the bill of these needed provisions.

Sincerely,

STEPHEN VERDIER,
Executive Vice President,
Director of Congressional Relations.

BIOTECHNOLOGY INDUSTRY ORGANIZATION,
Washington, DC. December 10, 2009.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House,
House of Representatives.
Hon. STENY HOYER,
Majority Leader,
House of Representatives.
Hon. JAMES CLYBURN,
Majority Whip,
House of Representatives.
Hon. JOHN BOEHNER,
Republican Leader,
House of Representatives.
Hon. ERIC CANTOR,
Republican Whip,
House of Representatives.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI, LEADERS HOYER AND BOEHNER, WHIPS CLYBURN AND CANTOR: On behalf of the Biotechnology Industry Organization (BIO) and our more than 1,200 member companies and research organizations, I am writing to express support for a provision included in H.R. 4173, the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009, that will provide a permanent exemption from Section 404(b) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act for smaller reporting companies (those with less than $75 million in market capitalization), and to ask that you oppose an amendment by Rep. Kanjorski to remove this provision from the bill. The provision in the bill would provide much-needed relief to smaller public biotechnology companies on the cutting edge of research and development. Additionally, the language in H.R. 4173 would require the SEC and GAO to conduct a study within 180 days of enactment to determine how the SEC could reduce the burdens of compliance with Section 404(b) for those companies whose market capitalization is between $75 million and $250 million.

Over the past thirty years, the U.S. biotech industry has helped America build an innovation-based economy and created high-value, high-wage U.S. jobs. These jobs pay, on average, 68 percent more than private sector jobs in general. However, small biotechnology companies face great difficulties raising capital to finance the research and development of new and promising therapies, especially in the wake of the financial crisis. For example, in 2008 capital raised from initial public offerings fell 97 percent compared to 2007, and secondary offerings fell 56 percent. Total capital raised by the biotechnology industry in 2008 fell by 55 percent compared to 2007. There have only been 3 successful IPOs in 2009. I am concerned that adoption of Kanjorski Amendment #51 would contribute to the continuation of this troubling trend.

Without a permanent exemption from Section 404(b), the smallest biotech companies will be forced to absorb outsized audit and compliance costs—diverting revenue that could otherwise be reinvested in employees developing life-saving therapies. Currently, 41% of active publicly traded biotech companies fall under $75 million in market capitalization. This provision would both provide relief to small biotech companies as well as ensure that these companies can continue to focus their cash resources on developing the next generation of therapies to treat diseases affecting tens of millions of Americans.

Please support reasonable regulatory relief for small businesses and oppose Kanjorski amendment #51. I appreciate your leadership and look forward to working with you on this important issue.

Sincerely,

JAMES C. GREENWOOD,
President and CEO,
Biotechnology Industry Organization.

THE CENTER FOR INVESTORS AND ENTREPRENEURS,
DECEMBER 10, 2009.

SUPPORT SMALL ENTREPRENEURS AND INVESTORS—KEEP OBAMA-BACKED ADLER-GARRETT SARBOX RELIEF PROVISION IN FINANCIAL REFORM BILL

OPPOSE KANJORSKI-SARBANES AMENDMENT TO REMOVE ADLER-GARRETT PROVISION FROM BILL

DEAR DEFENDER OF AMERICAN ENTREPRENEURS AND INVESTORS:, As early as today, the U.S. House of Representatives will debate amendments to the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009. As an advocate of small entrepreneurs and informed retail investors, we urge you to oppose any amendments to section 7606 of the bill that would remove a measure vital for growing small businesses to raise capital.

The Center for Investors and Entrepreneurs strongly supports the bipartisan provision—added to the bill by John Adler (D–N.J.) and Scott Garrett (R–N.J.) and backed by President Barack Obama—to extend the exemption for small public companies from the most onerous requirements of Sarbanes-Oxley. This will free the resources of these innovative firms for the creation of new products, new technologies, and new jobs—rather than accounting minutiae.

Expressing support for the Adler-Garrett provision, the Obama administration has said, ''Our focus must be on addressing the threats posed to investors and consumers by large, interconnected companies, rather than placing an undue burden on small businesses.'' (Wall Street Journal, http://blogs.wsj.com/washwire/2009/11/03/sarbanes-oxley-critics-declare-a-victory-at-least-for-now/)

For several years, in fact, Democrats and Republicans have noted that Sarbanes-Oxley's unexpectedly high costs to entrepreneurs, and hence to shareholder return, exceed whatever benefits it may have provided to investors. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi told CNBC in 2006 that the law had ''unintended consequences,.'' and while, ''You need the transparency. . . . I don't think you need the whole package.'' And Sen. John Kerry (D-Mass.) has called for a ''task force'' to ''make it easier for small businesses to comply with the Sarbanes-Oxley by reducing their regulatory burden in the future.'' (Kerry press release, http://kerry.senate.gov/v3/cfm/record.cfm?id=264068&)

University of Minnesota economics professor Ivy Zhang has calculated that Sarbanes-Oxley has cost the U.S. economy a whopping $1.4 trillion and provided few if any quantifiable benefits to investors (Zhang paper, http://w4.stern.nyu.edu/accounting/docs/speaker—papers/spring2005/Zhang—Ivy Economic—Consequences—of—S—O.pdf). Direct costs for the average public company to comply with just one section of Sarbanes-Oxley—the onerous section 404 that Adler-Garret targets—exceed $2.3 million per year, more than 25 times the original SEC estimate of $91,000 in annual costs. As a result, there is a dearth of small and midsize companies attracting capital by going public, leading the Wall Street Journal to report that ''even though financial markets have rebounded this year, initial public offerings in the United States are on track to fall below even the levels of the dot-com bust of 2001–2003.'' (Wall Street Journal, http://online.wsj.com/(article/SB10001424052748703558004574584241362784198.html) When companies can't raise capital by issuing equity in shares to the public, they are more dependent on debt markets. And when both debt and equity markets are effectively closed off, growth opportunities are limited, as are prospects for the growth of new jobs.

The Adler-Garrett provision does not exempt smaller companies from numerous anti-fraud statutes or indeed from most of Sarbanes-Oxley. It simply says that they need not comply with the requirement of Section 404 (b) that ''internal controls'' over financial statements be subject to full-blown audits. In practice, accountants have interpreted ''internal controls'' under the law to mean everything from the possession of office keys to the number of letters in an employee password, auditing items that have little relevance to accurate statements for shareholders. And these internal control rules were did no good against the mortgage shenanigans of companies like Countrywide Financial, which actually won an award from its internal control compliance in 2007 from the Institute of Internal Auditors.

Ironically, The accounting firms intended to be reined in by Sarbanes-Oxley have made a bundle due to the ballooning audit costs that have resulted, leading some to call the law ''The Accountants Full Employment Act.'' Thus, it should not be surprising that some of the letters you may receive in support of an amendment removing that small company exemption come from accountant associations arguing the self-interests of their members.

One other important consideration is that major portions of Sarbanes-Oxley may be declared unconstitutional in the next few months by the Supreme Court. Reporting on a constitutional challenge to the law that the Court heard this Monday, the Bloomberg states that ''U.S. Supreme Court justices questioned the constitutionality'' of much of the law. (Bloomberg, http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?pid = 20601103&sid=acK3iq5xklI4#) Yet, with the current exemption for smaller public companies set to expire this spring, these firms now face no choice but to set aside numerous resources now to plan for expensive audits—resources that could be used to make more products and hire more people—even if the law is eventually declared unconstitutional. At the very least, smaller firms should not be subject to the most onerous rules from Sarbanes-Oxley while its constitutionality is in doubt.

But the floor amendment introduced by Reps. Frank, Kanjorski, Cohen, and Sarbanes would remove the bill's protection for smaller firms from onerous and possibly unconstitutional Sarbanes-Oxley rules. We urge you to stand with the Obama administration and the Democrats and Republicans supporting the Adler-Garret provision by OPPOSING this amendment and any other measure to remove this provision that is so valuable for investors and entrepreneurs from the bill.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Sincerely,

JOHN BERLAU, Director,
Center for Investors and Entrepreneurs,
Competitive Enterprise Institute.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KANJORSKI).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania will be postponed.

It is now in order to consider amendment No. 13 printed in House Report 111–370.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Parliamentary inquiry, Madam Chairman.

Is it not in order for the gentleman from California to offer his amendment now?

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 14 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Chairman, parliamentary inquiry.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman will state his inquiry.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I believe the Chair stated that amendment No. 13 was in order. Is the majority party skipping number 13?

The Acting CHAIR. Amendment No. 13 was not offered.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. If the gentleman would yield, that was also in the manager's amendment, so it will not be offered. It's in the manager's amendment.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I thank the Chair.

AMENDMENT NO. 14 OFFERED BY MR. MCCARTHY OF CALIFORNIA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 14 printed in House Report 111–370.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. Madam Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 14 offered by Mr. MCCARTHY of California:

Strike section 6012 (relating to ''Effect of Rule 436(G)'').

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCARTHY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. Madam Chairman, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, this amendment would strike section 6012 from the bill, which changes the liability standards for credit rating agencies that are Nationally Recognized Statistical Rating Organizations, or NRSROs, when they include their ratings on the new securities offerings.

First, I'm not here to defend credit rating agencies. I am supportive of other credit rating agency reforms that the committee passed, including removing references to credit rating from Federal statutes. I think the government and the private sector should use credit ratings for what they are—predictive opinions about inherently uncertain futures.

To cut through the technical discussion about section 7 and section 11 liability related to this issue, let me just make three points. Structure dictates behavior. Increased liability may lead to agencies being hesitant to even allow their ratings on security offerings, thereby providing potential investors with less information.

This also reminds me of the health care debate and our discussion of defensive medicine. Costs go up when doctors must practice defensive medicine to protect themselves from reckless lawsuits. In the same way, if rating agencies must practice defensive ratings for fear of being sued, this would ultimately increase costs and restrict credit. Opening NRSROs to unlimited civil liability will not guarantee more accurate credit ratings. Litigating an industry to death does not solve any problems.

Additionally, the SEC is currently seeking feedback on whether to rescind Rule 436(g), with comments due December 15. I am a critic of the SEC, and I do not always agree with their actions. However, I do think making this change, which will significantly affect security offerings, should be done thoughtfully and with an eye to the impact seemingly small changes will have on information investors receive as part of new securities offerings.

The SEC has asked for comments on a variety of issues, including whether rescinding 436(g) will disrupt access to capital, make it more difficult for smaller companies to obtain a credit rating, or would have negative consequences for smaller NRSROs. These are good issues to examine at any time. They are vital issues to examine in our current economy. We should be very careful about seemingly small changes that have huge consequences.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KILROY), a very diligent member of the committee.

Ms. KILROY. Madam Chairman, NRSROs, the credit rating agencies, have played a huge role in the collapse of our markets a year ago. In fact, they bragged that they could rate anything, even a cow. And they continue to play a critical role in millions of financial transactions as pension funds, mutual fund managers, and others rely on the ratings from Moody's, Standard & Poor's, and Fitch as they make their investment decisions. The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, H.R. 4173, will provide for greater scrutiny and more responsibility from the credit rating agencies protecting these investors.

But the amendment from the gentleman from California would weaken credit rating agency reforms. It would continue an exemption under SEC rule 436(g) that the agency should not retain.

At the core of the Securities Act of 1933 is the idea that a company should provide investors with basic information about the securities it is issuing. It requires the issues to publicly disclose significant information about themselves and terms of the securities. Those who make material misstatements of fact or omissions in a registration statement can be held accountable under section 11 of the Act.

This provision now covers many experts in the financial world, such as accountants, lawyers, investment bankers, directors, officers, and executives of the issuers. Rating agencies that are not NRSROs fall under it, and there are about a hundred of those. And formerly the NRSROs were held liable under previous rulings of the SEC.

Amazingly enough, though, today, Moody's, Standard and Poor's, and other NRSROs are exempt from section 11 liability by SEC rule. It is a very uneven playing field. H.R. 4173 in its current form would correct that.

This reform should remain in the bill, and the amendment should be rejected. The highest standard of accountability is the central recommendation of the July 2009 report.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield the gentlewoman an addition 30 seconds.

Ms. KILROY. This is a central recommendation of the July 2009 report of the Investors Working Group, an independent task force chaired by former SEC Chair Arthur Levitt, who was appointed by President Clinton, and co-chaired by President Bush's appointee, William Donaldson. As they stated, this change would make rating agencies more diligent about the ratings process and ultimately more accountable for its sloppy performance.

Unfortunately, Mr. MCCARTHY's amendment would remove this much-needed accountability for credit rating agencies, and I strongly urge its defeat.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. Madam Chair, may I inquire of the time remaining?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Both sides have 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. At this time, I'd like to yield 1 minute to my friend, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT).

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. I thank the gentleman.

What the gentleman from California is trying to do is trying to help investors and help the markets by providing this amendment. The SEC is currently examining this whole issue in studying this, and we should basically allow the SEC to continue with its evaluation and then come back to address the issue. Because what we're dealing with here is the fact that there's an exemption, and eliminating that exemption would be punishing not the CRAs, but punishing investors.

What it will do is create an environment that will lead to more volatile and less accurate ratings. Something that none of us should be supporting.

Right now there is an exemption for the NRSROs if they have the ratings included in the registration statements filed under the Act. This removes that. What would be the end consequence of that if this were to go through and this amendment were not to pass?

Well, you would increase dramatically the time and cost involved with raising capital and thus make it more difficult for its issuers to do so. Moreover, some SROs may refuse to consent entirely, and what would that do? That would mean we would have even less information available to investors as they try to evaluate securities in the registration statement.

At the end of the day without this amendment, this underlying bill will see to it that we have a higher cost of credit, a higher cost to do business and less jobs in the country.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KANJORSKI).

Mr. KANJORSKI. Madam Chairman, I think I heard the gentleman from New Jersey on the other side indicate that we should leave this up to the Securities and Exchange Commission and let them proceed under normal order. That's a unique statement tonight. I don't think I heard that argument all night. Suddenly, the Securities and Exchange Commission can be relied upon to act promptly. I'm happy to hear the other side is willing to assume that.

What we're trying to do with this amendment is to get uniformity. We should not have one standard of lawsuit and another standard not allowed. Everyone recognizes, including the Securities and Exchange Commission, that this needs reform. They have a role pending. There is no question about that. But we can fix this problem, and the great lady from Ohio took it upon herself to do so at the committee. And I urge my colleagues to support her thoughtful amendment—or the opposition to this amendment by supporting the underlying bill and making uniformity a call of the day.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. At this time, I will yield the remaining time to my good friend from Texas, Mr. JEB HENSARLING.

Mr. HENSARLING. I thank the gentleman for yielding the time.

This, in some respects, may be one of the few areas of agreement on both sides of the aisle that the rating agencies played a critical role in the economic turmoil that has been foisted upon our economy. We may differ on the remedy, though.

What is needed here is more competition, not more lawsuits. And what happens is when you lower the bar for a lawsuit, you raise the bar, barriers to entry, and make it more difficult. We know that for all intents and purposes that the government created a rating agency oligopoly that prevented the market from enjoying more competition, and we had all of this AAA-rated paper, and we know what has happened.

In many respects, Madam Chair, what we have seen now is the Democrats have tried to spin their way into more jobs than we have—our Nation's first trillion-dollar deficit; they have tried to borrow their way into more jobs—we're now borrowing 43 cents on the dollar and sending the IOUs to our children and grandchildren.

The bill that is brought to the floor today creates a permanent bailout authority for Wall Street. They have tried to bail out their way to more jobs, and this particular amendment says maybe we can sue our way into more jobs. That is not the way it is done, Madam Chair. We need more competition, not more lawsuits.

I urge the adoption of the amendment from the gentleman from California.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chair, I know the gentleman from Texas likes to blame everything bad that happened starting on January 21; there was no Bush recession; there was no deterioration in the war in Afghanistan; there was no TARP under Bush, but he's particularly trying to do it now because here's what he's doing: He's trying to defend an amendment that would give legal immunity to the rating agencies. I cannot think of a more counterintuitive and counterproductive thing to do.

The gentleman from California—I thought I heard him say—we don't want them practicing defensive ratings. Yeah, we do, because they have been practicing very offensive ratings. Here are the rating agencies that everybody agrees have been a major cause of the problems, and what do the Republicans want to do? Protect the poor dears from people suing them by a standard of gross negligence so that an investor who relies on their judgment has no remedy whatsoever.

Yes, we want the rating agencies to be a lot more careful. We want the rating agencies to fear that if they overestimate—here's the problem: We have a business model where the rating agencies are paid by the people they rate. I wish we could encourage people on the buy side to do that. We've certainly encouraged them in any way we can.

But as long as you have rating agencies paid by the people they rate—and the only people who would sue them now are the people who they rate. So they can only be sued if people thought they were too low. There's nobody who has the right to sue them if they thought they were too high—and of course we have done that in this bill.

But here's what it comes down to. If you want to protect the rating agencies from being legally liable for their gross negligence to hurt investors, vote for this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCARTHY).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCCARTHY of California. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

□ 2050

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SERRANO) having assumed the chair, Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives markets, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

PERMISSION TO CONSIDER CERTAIN AMENDMENTS AS MODIFIED DURING FURTHER CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4173

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that, during further consideration of H.R. 4173 pursuant to House Resolution 964, the amendments numbered 1 and 36 may be considered as modified by the respective forms at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the modifications.

The Clerk read as follows:

Modification to amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts:

On page 152 of the Amendment: strike the instruction referring to page 747 and the following text through page 153, line 8.

Modification to amendment No. 36 offered by Mr. BACHUS:

At the end of title I, add the following new section:

SEC. 1012. GAO AUDIT OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE.

Section 714 of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (b), by striking all after ''has consented in writing.'' and inserting the following: ''Audits of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal reserve banks shall not include unreleased transcripts or minutes of meetings of the Board of Governors or of the Federal Open Market Committee. To the extent that an audit deals with individual market actions, records related to such actions shall only be released by the Comptroller General after 180 days have elapsed following the effective date of such actions.'';

(2) in subsection (c)(1), in the first sentence, by striking ''subsection,'' and inserting ''subsection or in the audits or audit reports referring or relating to the Federal Reserve Board or Reserve Banks,''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(f) AUDIT AND REPORT OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—An audit of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Federal reserve banks under subsection (b) shall be completed within 12 months of the enactment of the Consumer and Taxpayer Protection Act of 2009.

''(2) REPORT.—

''(A) REQUIRED.—A report on the audit referred to in paragraph (1) shall be submitted by the Comptroller General to the Congress before the end of the 90-day period beginning on the date on which such audit is completed and made available to—

''(i) the Speaker of the House of Representatives;

''(ii) the majority and minority leaders of the House of Representatives;

''(iii) the majority and minority leaders of the Senate;

''(iv) the Chairman and Ranking Member of the committee and each subcommittee of jurisdiction in the House of Representatives and the Senate; and

''(v) any other Member of Congress who requests it.

''(B) CONTENTS.—The report under subparagraph (A) shall include a detailed description of the findings and conclusion of the Comptroller General with respect to the audit that is the subject of the report.

''(3) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed—

''(A) as interference in or dictation of monetary policy to the Federal Reserve System by the Congress or the Government Accountability Office; or

''(B) to limit the ability of the Government Accountability Office to perform additional audits of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System or of the Federal reserve banks.''.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the reading be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the original request?

Without objection, the amendments are modified.

There was no objection.

WALL STREET REFORM AND CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 2009

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 964 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4173.

□ 2052

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives markets, and for other purposes, with Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, a request for a recorded vote on amendment No. 14 printed in House Report 111–370 by the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCARTHY) had been postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in House Report 111–370 on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment No. 1, as modified, by Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts.

Amendment No. 2 by Mr. SESSIONS of Texas.

Amendment No. 5 by Mr. LYNCH of Massachusetts.

Amendment No. 6 by Mr. MURPHY of New York.

Amendment No. 7 by Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts.

Amendment No. 8 by Mr. STUPAK of Michigan.

Amendment No. 9 by Mr. STUPAK of Michigan.

The Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT NO. 1, AS MODIFIED, OFFERED BY MR. FRANK OF MASSACHUSETTS

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 240, noes 182, not voting 18, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 28 OFFERED BY MR. MOORE OF KANSAS

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Add at the end the following new title (and update the table of contents accordingly):

TITLE VIII—NONADMITTED AND REINSURANCE REFORM ACT

SECTION 10001. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Nonadmitted and Reinsurance Reform Act of 2009''.

SEC. 10002. EFFECTIVE DATE.

Except as otherwise specifically provided in this title, this title shall take effect upon the expiration of the 12-month period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle A—Nonadmitted Insurance

SEC. 10101. REPORTING, PAYMENT, AND ALLOCATION OF PREMIUM TAXES.

(a) HOME STATE'S EXCLUSIVE AUTHORITY.—No State other than the home State of an insured may require any premium tax payment for nonadmitted insurance.

(b) ALLOCATION OF NONADMITTED PREMIUM TAXES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The States may enter into a compact or otherwise establish procedures to allocate among the States the premium taxes paid to an insured's home State described in subsection (a).

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Except as expressly otherwise provided in such compact or other procedures, any such compact or other procedures—

(A) if adopted on or before the expiration of the 330-day period that begins on the date of the enactment of this Act, shall apply to any premium taxes that, on or after such date of enactment, are required to be paid to any State that is subject to such compact or procedures; and

(B) if adopted after the expiration of such 330-day period, shall apply to any premium taxes that, on or after January 1 of the first calendar year that begins after the expiration of such 330-day period, are required to be paid to any State that is subject to such compact or procedures.

(3) REPORT.—Upon the expiration of the 330-day period referred to in paragraph (2), the NAIC may submit a report to the Committee on Financial Services and Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate identifying and describing any compact or other procedures for allocation among the States of premium taxes that have been adopted during such period by any States.

(4) NATIONWIDE SYSTEM.—The Congress intends that each State adopt nationwide uniform requirements, forms, and procedures, such as an interstate compact, that provides for the reporting, payment, collection, and allocation of premium taxes for nonadmitted insurance consistent with this section.

(c) ALLOCATION BASED ON TAX ALLOCATION REPORT.—To facilitate the payment of premium taxes among the States, an insured's home State may require surplus lines brokers and insureds who have independently procured insurance to annually file tax allocation reports with the insured's home State detailing the portion of the nonadmitted insurance policy premium or premiums attributable to properties, risks or exposures located in each State. The filing of a nonadmitted insurance tax allocation report and the payment of tax may be made by a person authorized by the insured to act as its agent.

SEC. 10102. REGULATION OF NONADMITTED INSURANCE BY INSURED'S HOME STATE.

(a) HOME STATE AUTHORITY.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, the placement of nonadmitted insurance shall be subject to the statutory and regulatory requirements solely of the insured's home State.

(b) BROKER LICENSING.—No State other than an insured's home State may require a surplus lines broker to be licensed in order to sell, solicit, or negotiate nonadmitted insurance with respect to such insured.

(c) ENFORCEMENT PROVISION.—With respect to section 10101 and subsections (a) and (b) of this section, any law, regulation, provision, or action of any State that applies or purports to apply to nonadmitted insurance sold to, solicited by, or negotiated with an insured whose home State is another State shall be preempted with respect to such application.

(d) WORKERS' COMPENSATION EXCEPTION.—This section may not be construed to preempt any State law, rule, or regulation that restricts the placement of workers' compensation insurance or excess insurance for self-funded workers' compensation plans with a nonadmitted insurer.

SEC. 10103. PARTICIPATION IN NATIONAL PRODUCER DATABASE.

After the expiration of the 2-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, a State may not collect any fees relating to licensing of an individual or entity as a surplus lines broker in the State unless the State has in effect at such time laws or regulations that provide for participation by the State in the national insurance producer database of the NAIC, or any other equivalent uniform national database, for the licensure of surplus lines brokers and the renewal of such licenses.

SEC. 10104. UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR SURPLUS LINES ELIGIBILITY.

A State may not—

(1) impose eligibility requirements on, or otherwise establish eligibility criteria for, nonadmitted insurers domiciled in a United States jurisdiction, except in conformance with such requirements and criteria in sections 5A(2) and 5C(2)(a) of the Non-Admitted Insurance Model Act, unless the State has adopted nationwide uniform requirements, forms, and procedures developed in accordance with section 10101(b) of this title that include alternative nationwide uniform eligibility requirements; and

(2) prohibit a surplus lines broker from placing nonadmitted insurance with, or procuring nonadmitted insurance from, a nonadmitted insurer domiciled outside the United States that is listed on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers maintained by the International Insurers Department of the NAIC.

SEC. 10105. STREAMLINED APPLICATION FOR COMMERCIAL PURCHASERS.

A surplus lines broker seeking to procure or place nonadmitted insurance in a State for an exempt commercial purchaser shall not be required to satisfy any State requirement to make a due diligence search to determine whether the full amount or type of insurance sought by such exempt commercial purchaser can be obtained from admitted insurers if—

(1) the broker procuring or placing the surplus lines insurance has disclosed to the exempt commercial purchaser that such insurance may or may not be available from the admitted market that may provide greater protection with more regulatory oversight; and

(2) the exempt commercial purchaser has subsequently requested in writing the broker to procure or place such insurance from a nonadmitted insurer.

SEC. 10106. GAO STUDY OF NONADMITTED INSURANCE MARKET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study of the nonadmitted insurance market to determine the effect of the enactment of this subtitle on the size and market share of the nonadmitted insurance market for providing coverage typically provided by the admitted insurance market.

(b) CONTENTS.—The study shall determine and analyze—

(1) the change in the size and market share of the nonadmitted insurance market and in the number of insurance companies and insurance holding companies providing such business in the 18-month period that begins upon the effective date of this Act;

(2) the extent to which insurance coverage typically provided by the admitted insurance market has shifted to the nonadmitted insurance market;

(3) the consequences of any change in the size and market share of the nonadmitted insurance market, including differences in the price and availability of coverage available in both the admitted and nonadmitted insurance markets;

(4) the extent to which insurance companies and insurance holding companies that provide both admitted and nonadmitted insurance have experienced shifts in the volume of business between admitted and nonadmitted insurance; and

(5) the extent to which there has been a change in the number of individuals who have nonadmitted insurance policies, the type of coverage provided under such policies, and whether such coverage is available in the admitted insurance market.

(c) CONSULTATION WITH NAIC.—In conducting the study under this section, the Comptroller General shall consult with the NAIC.

(d) REPORT.—The Comptroller General shall complete the study under this section and submit a report to the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate regarding the findings of the study not later than 30 months after the effective date of this Act.

SEC. 10107. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this subtitle, the following definitions shall apply:

(1) ADMITTED INSURER.—The term ''admitted insurer'' means, with respect to a State, an insurer licensed to engage in the business of insurance in such State.

(2) AFFILIATE.—The term ''affiliate'' means, with respect to an insured, any entity that controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the insured.

(3) AFFILIATED GROUP.—The term ''affiliated group'' means any group of entities that are all affiliated.

(4) CONTROL.—An entity has ''control'' over another entity if—

(A) the entity directly or indirectly or acting through one or more other persons owns, controls or has the power to vote 25 percent or more of any class of voting securities of the other entity; or

(B) the entity controls in any manner the election of a majority of the directors or trustees of the other entity.

(5) EXEMPT COMMERCIAL PURCHASER.—The term ''exempt commercial purchaser'' means any person purchasing commercial insurance that, at the time of placement, meets the following requirements:

(A) The person employs or retains a qualified risk manager to negotiate insurance coverage.

(B) The person has paid aggregate nationwide commercial property and casualty insurance premiums in excess of $100,000 in the immediately preceding 12 months.

(C)(i) The person meets at least one of the following criteria:

(I) The person possesses a net worth in excess of $20,000,000, as such amount is adjusted pursuant to clause (ii).

(II) The person generates annual revenues in excess of $50,000,000, as such amount is adjusted pursuant to clause (ii).

(III) The person employs more than 500 full time or full time equivalent employees per individual insured or is a member of an affiliated group employing more than 1,000 employees in the aggregate.

(IV) The person is a not-for-profit organization or public entity generating annual budgeted expenditures of at least $30,000,000, as such amount is adjusted pursuant to clause (ii).

(V) The person is a municipality with a population in excess of 50,000 persons.

(ii) Effective on the fifth January 1 occurring after the date of the enactment of this Act and each fifth January 1 occurring thereafter, the amounts in subclauses (I), (II), and (IV) of clause (i) shall be adjusted to reflect the percentage change for such five-year period in the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor.

(6) HOME STATE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the term ''home State'' means, with respect to an insured—

(i) the State in which an insured maintains its principal place of business or, in the case of an individual, the individual's principal residence; or

(ii) if 100 percent of the insured risk is located out of the State referred to in subparagraph (A), the State to which the greatest percentage of the insured's taxable premium for that insurance contract is allocated.

(B) AFFILIATED GROUPS.—If more than one insured from an affiliated group are named insureds on a single nonadmitted insurance contract, the term ''home State'' means the home State, as determined pursuant to subparagraph (A), of the member of the affiliated group that has the largest percentage of premium attributed to it under such insurance contract.

(7) INDEPENDENTLY PROCURED INSURANCE.—The term ''independently procured insurance'' means insurance procured directly by an insured from a nonadmitted insurer.

(8) NAIC.—The term ''NAIC'' means the National Association of Insurance Commissioners or any successor entity.

(9) NONADMITTED INSURANCE.—The term ''nonadmitted insurance'' means any property and casualty insurance permitted to be placed directly or through a surplus lines broker with a nonadmitted insurer eligible to accept such insurance.

(10) NON-ADMITTED INSURANCE MODEL ACT.—The term ''Non-Admitted Insurance Model Act'' means the provisions of the Non-Admitted Insurance Model Act, as adopted by the NAIC on August 3, 1994, and amended on September 30, 1996, December 6, 1997, October 2, 1999, and June 8, 2002.

(11) NONADMITTED INSURER.—The term ''nonadmitted insurer'' means, with respect to a State, an insurer not licensed to engage in the business of insurance in such State.

(12) QUALIFIED RISK MANAGER.—The term ''qualified risk manager'' means, with respect to a policyholder of commercial insurance, a person who meets all of the following requirements:

(A) The person is an employee of, or third party consultant retained by, the commercial policyholder.

(B) The person provides skilled services in loss prevention, loss reduction, or risk and insurance coverage analysis, and purchase of insurance.

(C) The person—

(i)(I) has a bachelor's degree or higher from an accredited college or university in risk management, business administration, finance, economics, or any other field determined by a State insurance commissioner or other State regulatory official or entity to demonstrate minimum competence in risk management; and

(13) PREMIUM TAX.—The term ''premium tax'' means, with respect to surplus lines or independently procured insurance coverage, any tax, fee, assessment, or other charge imposed by a government entity directly or indirectly based on any payment made as consideration for an insurance contract for such insurance, including premium deposits, assessments, registration fees, and any other compensation given in consideration for a contract of insurance.

(14) SURPLUS LINES BROKER.—The term ''surplus lines broker'' means an individual, firm, or corporation which is licensed in a State to sell, solicit, or negotiate insurance on properties, risks, or exposures located or to be performed in a State with nonadmitted insurers.

(15) STATE.—The term ''State'' includes any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa.

Subtitle B—Reinsurance

SEC. 10201. REGULATION OF CREDIT FOR REINSURANCE AND REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS.

(a) CREDIT FOR REINSURANCE.—If the State of domicile of a ceding insurer is an NAIC-accredited State, or has financial solvency requirements substantially similar to the requirements necessary for NAIC accreditation, and recognizes credit for reinsurance for the insurer's ceded risk, then no other State may deny such credit for reinsurance.

(b) ADDITIONAL PREEMPTION OF EXTRATERRITORIAL APPLICATION OF STATE LAW.—In addition to the application of subsection (a), all laws, regulations, provisions, or other actions of a State that is not the domiciliary State of the ceding insurer, except those with respect to taxes and assessments on insurance companies or insurance income, are preempted to the extent that they—

(1) restrict or eliminate the rights of the ceding insurer or the assuming insurer to resolve disputes pursuant to contractual arbitration to the extent such contractual provision is not inconsistent with the provisions of title 9, United States Code;

(2) require that a certain State's law shall govern the reinsurance contract, disputes arising from the reinsurance contract, or requirements of the reinsurance contract;

(3) attempt to enforce a reinsurance contract on terms different than those set forth in the reinsurance contract, to the extent that the terms are not inconsistent with this subtitle; or

(4) otherwise apply the laws of the State to reinsurance agreements of ceding insurers not domiciled in that State.

SEC. 10202. REGULATION OF REINSURER SOLVENCY.

(a) DOMICILIARY STATE REGULATION.—If the State of domicile of a reinsurer is an NAIC-accredited State or has financial solvency requirements substantially similar to the requirements necessary for NAIC accreditation, such State shall be solely responsible for regulating the financial solvency of the reinsurer.

(b) NONDOMICILIARY STATES.—

(1) LIMITATION ON FINANCIAL INFORMATION REQUIREMENTS.—If the State of domicile of a reinsurer is an NAIC-accredited State or has financial solvency requirements substantially similar to the requirements necessary for NAIC accreditation, no other State may require the reinsurer to provide any additional financial information other than the information the reinsurer is required to file with its domiciliary State.

(2) RECEIPT OF INFORMATION.—No provision of this section shall be construed as preventing or prohibiting a State that is not the State of domicile of a reinsurer from receiving a copy of any financial statement filed with its domiciliary State.

SEC. 10203. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this subtitle, the following definitions shall apply:

(1) CEDING INSURER.—The term ''ceding insurer'' means an insurer that purchases reinsurance.

(2) DOMICILIARY STATE.—The terms ''State of domicile'' and ''domiciliary State'' means, with respect to an insurer or reinsurer, the State in which the insurer or reinsurer is incorporated or entered through, and licensed.

(3) REINSURANCE.—The term ''reinsurance'' means the assumption by an insurer of all or part of a risk undertaken originally by another insurer.

(4) REINSURER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''reinsurer'' means an insurer to the extent that the insurer—

(i) is principally engaged in the business of reinsurance;

(ii) does not conduct significant amounts of direct insurance as a percentage of its net premiums; and

(iii) is not engaged in an ongoing basis in the business of soliciting direct insurance.

(B) DETERMINATION.—A determination of whether an insurer is a reinsurer shall be made under the laws of the State of domicile in accordance with this paragraph.

(5) STATE.—The term ''State'' includes any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa.

Subtitle C—Rule of Construction

SEC. 10301. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this title or amendments to this title shall be construed to modify, impair, or supersede the application of the antitrust laws. Any implied or actual conflict between this title and any amendments to this title and the antitrust laws shall be resolved in favor of the operation of the antitrust laws.

SEC. 10302. SEVERABILITY.

If any section or subsection of this title, or any application of such provision to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this title, and the application of the provision to any other person or circumstance, shall not be affected.

AMENDMENT NO. 34 OFFERED BY MR. MURPHY OF NEW YORK

(a) EXEMPTION.—Section

Page 1024, line 3, strike the period at the end and insert ''; and''.

(b) CONSIDERATION OF RISK.—Section 203(c) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b—3(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(3) The Commission shall take into account the relative risk profile of different classes of private funds as it establishes, by rule or regulation, the registration requirements for private funds.''.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 964, the gentleman from Massachusetts and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, these are 10 amendments that raise in merit from wonderful to at least acceptable, and I will be reserving the balance of my time; and I will yield time, or they can get their own time, to any one of the offerers who wishes to explain his or her amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. I will claim the time in opposition, even though I am not opposed.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 10 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to speak on the five amendments that I offered in the Rules Committee that were made in order under the rule.

The first, Burgess amendment No. 20, to strike the word ''orderliness'' on the list of descriptors of title I's definitions of the duties of the Council. In the language of the underlying bill, there is no explanation for what ''orderliness'' means in financial parlance. Without that word, this section still has power, and what this amendment would do is remove a word that seems nebulous without a common understanding.

The second amendment, No. 21, index Systemic Dissolution Fund amounts to inflation. In the language of the underlying bill, the section creating the Systemic Dissolution Fund indexes the amount to inflation whereas any mitigatory action imposed by the Council involving the sale, divestiture or transfer of more than $10 billion in total assets by a financial holding company subject to a stricter set of standards does not. This amendment would index those amounts.

Burgess Amendment No. 22. The metrics of what determines ''significantly undercapitalized'' will be determined by rule or regulation. In the language of the underlying bill, title I portends to elaborate on what ''significantly undercapitalized'' means, but in its definition, it neither gives a fixed dollar amount, a ratio or even a formula. Without a specific metric, this definition is left too much to individual interpretation, just like on page 494 of the bill where ''substantial net position'' requires a specific definition by rulemaking, ''significantly undercapitalized'' should be defined in rule or regulation.

I would further point out that the very next section of the bill gives the term ''significantly critically undercapitalized,'' and under ''critically undercapitalized,'' there is, in fact, reference to at least a ratio at another part of the bill. ''Significantly undercapitalized'' is never adequately defined, and I am concerned about the effect of unintended consequences if we do not provide that definition.

Burgess No. 23, the outer limit of 2 years on the amount of time the Federal Reserve has to do their audit. During the Financial Services markup, Representative PAUL offered an amendment which was accepted 43–26. This amendment is generally reflected in title I, section 1000A, which allows for the auditing of the Federal Reserve, and it shall be completed as expeditiously as possible. My amendment seeks to put an outer time limit on the amount of time which can pass or otherwise be defined as ''expeditiously as possible.'' An audit by the IRS for an individual usually does not take very long. In fact, the IRS has 3 years to audit an individual if there is not a substantial omission or if there is no tax fraud. In those cases, it would take 6 years, but the IRS is given so much time to do an audit because there are 143 million individual returns to examine.

The Federal Reserve is different. Presumably, as a government agency, while they wouldn't be as easy to audit as an individual, because the government is supposed to have greater transparency, checking the Federal Reserve balance sheet of over $70 billion of assets should not take more than 2 years, simply for two reasons: we know who to audit and we know what to audit.

While I note the historic nature of even getting an audit of the Federal Reserve is in place, we cannot let the audit go on interminably, especially in times of financial crisis. We need to know what they have and where they have it. I applaud Representative PAUL for his laser-like dedicated focus to this issue, but this amendment would add an outer limit of 2 years on the amount of time that the Federal Reserve has to obtain that audit.

Finally, Burgess No. 24 strikes the phrase ''have engaged in information sharing or'' from the SEC ''revolving door'' study. In the language of the underlying bill, the definition of what or what is not information is not sufficiently evidenced so that if an employee of the SEC shares information as basic as the date of a meeting on a calendar, they would be considered a part of the SEC ''revolving door.''

This amendment proposes to get to the heart of the issue, which is to find those who have circumvented Federal rules and regulations without bringing in those who have basic and nonessential information. I liken this to the innocent spouse provision in the IRS statutes. If someone just simply shares a page from an Outlook calendar, that does not make them or should not make them part of the ''revolving door'' which we attempt to contain and restrain with the underlying language of the bill.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MURPHY), the author of one of the amendments.

Mr. MURPHY of New York. My amendment very simply gets rid of an anachronistic law from 1933. Right now, it's illegal for banks to pay interest to business checking accounts. This adversely affects our small businesses and keeps them from building their business.

Now, as we are fixing some of the issues we have with our regulatory system, is the right time to get rid of that. So my amendment would make it legal for banks to pay interest to business checking accounts. It wouldn't require it, but it would make it legal. This is the kind of commonsense approach that's going to move us forward and help our small businesses get this economy going again.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I would just take this opportunity to announce if there are any Members here who think we are going to do any further business, that we're not. We will resume tomorrow morning. I will inform the Members as a result of what we have been able to do with some of the manager's amendments and this en blocing, and I appreciate the cooperation of the gentleman from Texas and others, we have, I believe, 11 amendments left to be offered tomorrow.

Two of them will take a longer time, one on the CFPA, the Consumer Financial Protection Agency; one on the Republican substitute; and then there will be a recommit. So we should be, obviously, finishing this bill sometime early tomorrow afternoon. We will come back in tomorrow and resume the debate, and I wanted Members to know that.

Mr. PAULSEN. Mr. Chair, the bill before us establishes a Financial Stability Oversight Council that includes the Secretary of the Treasury, the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and Federal banking and securities regulators.

The bill also includes non-voting members, a State insurance commissioner, a State Securities commissioner, the head of the new Federal Insurance Office and a State banking supervisor, who would serve on the Council in an advisory capacity.

My amendment ensures that the non-voting regulators are not excluded from any proceedings, meetings, discussions, and deliberations.

I believe that is important to ensure that the Federal insurance office and other state regulators will have a seat at the table for any deliberations that impact the consumers they protect and institutions they regulate.

If these institutions are going to be responsible for paying into the bailout fund, it is only fair that their concerns are represented.

I urge adoption of my amendment.

Mr. DENT. Mr. Chair, my amendment is simple—It expresses the sense of Congress that mortgage lending institutions should provide loan applicants with a simplified summary of their loan contracts, including an easy to read list of the basic loan terms, payment information, the existence of prepayment penalties or balloon payments, and escrow information.

I ask that a sample template of this one page summary document be inserted into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

H.R. 4173 is a 1,200 plus page bill that purports to protect consumers from abusive financial products by creating a new government bureaucracy—the Consumer Finance Protection Agency.

We see in the complicated mortgage contract process that more bureaucracy and more requirements doesn't guarantee more protection. How many homebuyers understand the voluminous and complex documents they shuffle through when closing on a new home? The process is no less cumbersome for the lender. Less can be more.

Having gone through this process as a homebuyer and after speaking to numerous bankers and lenders, I believe we must work to simplify the process, while ensuring borrowers are protected from abusive contractual agreements and providing lenders with the tools to safely and soundly alleviate some of the administrative costs—costs ultimately passed along to the consumer.

Several months ago I learned that Mr. David Lobach and Mr. Elmer Gates of Embassy Bank—a community bank in the 15th District of Pennsylvania—developed a simplified mortgage contract summary for borrowers who take out a mortage with their institution. Embassy is bolstering consumer protection for their customers by ensuring that he or she knows exactly what they are agreeing to upon their signature—not only providing greater transparency for the borrower but also promoting efficiency for the mortgagee.

The statutes in place today, including the Truth in Lending Act and the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, intended to protect borrowers and lenders alike, have created this complex closing process that leaves some homebuyers confused and uninformed.

I believe that Congress should review and revisit the current statutes and consider meaningful reforms that make the mortgage process more understandable for borrowers and more efficient for lenders. The adoption of this amendment is an important first step in encouraging financial institutions engaged in mortgage lending to provide their borrowers with a simplified summary of the loan terms so that every new homeowner will walk away from the table understanding their obligations—in simple terms and in fewer pages.

I've held a number of mortgage foreclosure seminars across my district—the 15th District of Pennsylvania. After listening to the experiences of my constituents, I truly believe some of the foreclosures our country has seen in the past 2 years would not have taken place if homeowners had been aware of the actual terms and conditions of their loan.

My amendment is a common-sense approach to promote consumer protection by ensuring families in pursuit of the American dream fulfill that dream under terms they completely and fully understand.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendments en bloc offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

The amendments en bloc were agreed to.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Ms. KILROY) having assumed the chair, Mr. SABLAN, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives markets, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE REPUBLICAN LEADER

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Honorable JOHN A. BOEHNER, Republican Leader:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, December 10, 2009.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, H–232, U.S. Capitol,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI: Pursuant to section 1238(b)(3) of the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001, (22 U.S.C. 7002) amended by Division P of the Consolidated Appropriations Resolution, 2003 (22 U.S.C. 6901), I am pleased to reappoint Mr. Peter T. R. Brookes of Virginia and Mr. Daniel M. Slane of Ohio to the United States-China Economic and Security Review Commission, effective January 1, 2010.

Both Mr. Brookes and Mr. Slane have expressed interest in serving in this capacity and I am pleased to fulfill their requests.

Sincerely,

JOHN A. BOEHNER,
Republican Leader.

JOBS AND THE ECONOMY

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to reinforce the call to action by the American people.

As we have watched the recovery grow and Wall Street thrive, the American people need an answer to unemployment. I will be introducing legislation that will provide for 1-year training. For those individuals out of work, they will be allowed to keep their unemployment, but they will receive a stipend for training in many varied disciplines.

I also believe as a member of the new Jobs Caucus that is led by dynamic members from Chicago and from Ohio and members from around the Nation that we need to expand our domestic energy resources by exploring natural gas.

I also believe it is important to address those individuals who have been chronically unemployed, which the legislation that I offer will.

In addition, I support the Durbin-Hoyer relief to automobile dealers, but I want to ensure that mediation and arbitration is not so expensive that they cannot participate. Automobile dealers equal jobs, 40,000 jobs in the State of Texas alone.

It is important to create an opportunity for Americans to work. They have me as a partner along with hundreds of members of this caucus, the Democratic Caucus, who know that real jobs equal a great America.

OBAMA'S RISKY-SEX CZAR

(Mr. BURGESS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, the silence of the administration and, indeed, the House of Representatives on the subject of a senior presidential appointee to the Department of Education is astonishing. Kevin Jennings needs to be replaced. He needs to be replaced today. The so-called Safe Schools czar appointed by the Obama administration to the Department of Education is dangerous for our school children.

An editorial in yesterday's Washington Times titled ''Obama's risky-sex czar''—now, I don't know that I've ever seen an editorial in a major newspaper that came with a bolded warning, just like a new FDA drug: This editorial includes discussion of topics that are sexually graphic. Under usual circumstances, we would never entertain these subjects or the language involved. In this case, however, a very unusual exception must be made because the issues are central to the background of a senior presidential appointee in the United States Department of Education who is in a position to influence how and what our children are taught in our Nation's schools. Please do not read any further if you will be offended by the sexually graphic language.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, December 9, 2009.

Re Kevin Jennings.

President BARACK OBAMA,
The White House,
Washington, DC.

Secretary ARNE DUNCAN,
Department of Education,
Washington, DC.

DEAR PRESIDENT OBAMA AND SECRETARY DUNCAN: Enclosed for your reference is an editorial written in today's The Washington Times. The individual who is the subject of this article is someone with whom you are familiar, as he is a presidential appointee to the U.S. Department of Education.

On at least one prior occasion, my fellow Members and I have written to you regarding the type of behavior that Mr. Jennings has been promoting to our school-age children; however, the premise of the enclosed The Washington Times editorial heightens the complete lack of regard this Administration has followed regarding sexual relationships between adults and children.

Must I remind you that such behavior is never ''okay''—and is illegal.

The fact that this Administration stands by quietly while Mr. Jennings goes out into the public, under the cloak of protection of a presidential appointment, and informs our schoolchildren on behavior which is not only unspeakable, it is criminal.

This letter is about a grown man. Kevin Jennings, teaching school children as young as 14 years-of-age, that it is okay for them to have sex with grown adults. Mr. President, this is never okay. The callousness of this type of instruction is further evidenced by his relationship, and subsequent endorsement, of an individual who has an organization whose sole purpose is to advocate sexual relationships between grown men and adolescents. This activity is not one, and can never be one, in which the U.S. Department of Education promotes either by omission, through action or commission through silence.

The silence of this Administration with regards to Kevin Jennings cannot stand. He must be fired and must be fired today.

There are plenty of knowledgeable, honorable, respected and forceful advocates of your policies who could ably fill this job. Kevin Jennings is not that person, has never been that person and must not stay that person.

I respectfully request you remove him today and then submit an appropriate nomination to the U.S. Senate for his replacement.

With kinds regards,

MICHAEL C. BURGESS.

[From the Washington Times, Dec. 9, 2009]

OBAMA'S RISKY-SEX CZAR

Warning: This editorial includes discussion of topics that are sexually graphic. Under usual circumstances, we would never entertain these subjects or the rancid language involved. In this case, however, a very unusual exception must be made because the issues are central to the background of a senior presidential appointee at the U.S. Department of Education who is in a position to influence how and what our children are taught in our nation's schools. Thus far, out of fear or squeamishness, there has been public hesitance to examine closely the beliefs of this individual because many are afraid even to touch the risky content. Our scruples cannot be used against us when traditional moral precepts need to be defended. Simply, the deep level of depravity involved in this subject cannot be portrayed without providing a couple of examples to illustrate the inappropriate content. Please do not read any further if you will be offended by sexually graphic language.

The Obama administration is stonewalling serious inquiries about sexual filth propagated by a senior presidential appointee who is responsible for promoting and implementing federal education policy. Democrats clearly are terrified of ruffling the feathers of their activist homosexual supporters, who are an influential part of the Democratic party's base. This scandal, however, is not merely about homosexual behavior; it is about promoting sex between children and adults—and it's time for President Obama to make clear that abetting such illegal perversion has no place in his administration.

It is curious why White House officials and Education Secretary Arne Duncan believe it's worth it politically to continue taking arrows for defending Kevin Jennings, who is Mr. Obama's controversial ''safe schools czar.'' The evidence suggesting he is unfit to serve as a senior presidential appointee is startling and plentiful. It was revealed this week that Mr. Jennings was involved in promoting a reading list for children 13 years old or older that made the most explicit sex between children and adults seem normal and acceptable. This brought up anew Mr. Jennings' past controversies, such as his seeming encouragement of sex between one of his high school students and a much older man as well as his praise for Harry Hay, a notorious supporter of the North American Man Boy Love Association.

But there is more. There are shocking new revelations this week of tape recordings from a youth conference involving 14-year-old students. The conference, billed as a forum to encourage tolerance of homosexuality, was sponsored by Mr. Jennings' organization and was held at Tufts University in March 2000. Mr. Jennings was executive director of the Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network (GLSEN) from its founding in 1995 until August 2008. The conference sessions appear to have had less to do with promoting tolerance and more to do with teaching children how to engage in sex.

Andrew Breitbart's Biggovernment.com provides tapes of some of the sessions. Describing the subject matter as smut would be putting it lightly. The conference discussions were very graphic and cannot be relayed in full detail in a family newspaper. A few examples are sufficient to describe the depravity of the subject matter. During one session about oral sex, a presenter asked the 14-year-old students: ''Spit or swallow? Is it rude?'' In another session, the 14-year-olds are taught about a gross practice called ''fisting,'' in which ''the man leading the discussion position[ed] his hand and show[ed] 14-year-olds how to insert their entire hand into the rectum of their sex partner.''

Teaching children sexual techniques is simply not appropriate. Unfortunately, it is part of a consistent pattern by some homosexual activists to promote underage homosexuality while pretending that their mission is simply to promote tolerance for so-called alternative lifestyles. It is outrageous that someone involved in this scandal is being paid by the taxpayers to serve in a high-powered position at the Education Department, of all places. At some point, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Jennings, Obama administration spokesmen and the president himself are going to have to start answering questions about all this. Refusing to do so won't make the issue go away.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MCGOVERN addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. POE of Texas addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DEFAZIO addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. JONES addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

THE WAR POWERS ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, yesterday I began circulating to Members of Congress a letter that would enable Members to be able to sign on to legislation that will be introduced when we return in January that would be aimed at creating a vote in this House on whether or not we keep our troops in Afghanistan and continue operations in Pakistan. This action is being done pursuant to the War Powers Act.

The War Powers Act was passed in 1973, and the intention of it was to claim Congress's constitutional authority under article I, section 8 to be able to take this Nation into war, commit our troops to war, or to continue to stay at war.

Congress cannot remain on the sidelines in this matter. We have the lives of our troops at stake. We have trillions of dollars at stake. Congress must engage in this debate over whether or not to stay at war in Afghanistan and to continue operations in Pakistan.

It's comforting to let the President do everything, but we can't do that, because whether we agree with the President or not, we have a responsibility, a constitutional responsibility, to make a decision on these wars.

Now, some will say the authorization for use of military force dispensed with that. Oh, no, it didn't. A reading of that authorization makes it very clear that it does not supersede the War Powers Act.

And so when I put this resolution to the Congress in January, it will be an automatic mandatory referral to the International Relations Committee. They will have 15 days to report it back to the House, where we can expect a debate. When the bill is introduced, it will be introduced with broad bipartisan support because this is not a Democrat or Republican issue.

We have learned recently that U.S. contractors are paying the Taliban to ensure safe shipment of U.S. goods to U.S. soldiers, who then use those supplies to strengthen their war with the Taliban. We have learned that Blackwater is involved in ''black ops'' in Pakistan working as independent contractors for the purposes of assassination. We cannot let these things happen without Congress being directly involved and taking direct responsibility.

All across this country people are worried about their jobs, their homes, their health care, their investments, their retirement security. Why is it that war becomes the centerpiece of our national experience? Some can say, well, it makes us safer. Oh, has it? Did the invasion of Iraq make us safer? Over 1 million innocent people perished in a war based on a lie; let us never forget that.

The policies of unilateralism preempted at first strike were a dead-end. And for those who say war is inevitable, I say you're dead wrong. Peace is inevitable if you tell the truth. Peace is inevitable if you're ready to confront the difficulties of diplomacy.

We have a right to defend ourselves, and I stand upon that right. I voted for this country to defend itself in those days in September of 2001. But we can never mistake defense for offense. We can never claim the right to aggress against another nation in the name of trying to make us safer because all we do is create more enemies. Occupations fuel insurgencies. If you want peace, you work for peace. If you want war, you create war, but we can never claim that war is peace. It's not. It often is a path to more war.

The Constitution, when it was written, our Founders were very clear they didn't want an imperial government, they wanted to make sure the dog of war was chained. And the way to do it, they put that decision in the hands of the Congress. This is about our Constitution, our Constitution, which I always carry a copy of. This Constitution requires us to take a stand and to have a vote. And in January, we will have a vote whether to remain in Afghanistan and continue operations in Pakistan.

AMERICA NEEDS REAL BANKING REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, maybe someday real banking reform will be considered by this Congress. Real reform means breaking up the big banks. Real reform means empowering community banks and local capital accumulation. Real reform means separating speculation and investment. Real reform means restoring prudent lending. Real reform means restructuring troubled housing mortgages. Real reform means rewarding institutions that play by the rules and don't over-leverage. Real reform means prosecuting financial white-collar criminals and keeping them out of finance permanently.

Real reform means directly connecting executive pay and bonuses to the performance of the company and recouping the $145 billion in unwarranted bonuses for the American taxpayer. Real reform means regulating all derivatives openly and clearly. Real reform means limiting interconnectedness between large financial institutions. Real reform means independent supervisory and regulatory agencies that do their job—independent supervisory and regulatory agencies.

The bill that will be considered tomorrow, as it was today, merely bunts at wrestling casino capitalism to the ground. This bill, like so many before it, will simply lead to more abuse, more risky behavior, and more reward for the most hazardous and imprudent characters.

Wall Street needs our help in rescuing them from their own bad behavior, not because Wall Street deserves it or is worthy; they need to be disciplined because our natural interest is more important than Wall Street.

Let's dissect America's economic predicament and what Congress has passed to fix it. In the fall of 2008, Congress passed the ''Wall Street bailout.'' It told America that the TARP would work to steady the housing market. It not only didn't steady the housing market, but its purpose was totally changed by Secretary of Treasury Paulson, who gave the money to the biggest banks in our country whose risky behavior caused the meltdown. And Congress, it just looked the other way.

Now the housing foreclosure crisis has worsened coast to coast; 2 million Americans have lost their homes, and another 6 to 12 million are projected to lose their homes. Meanwhile, the biggest perpetrators of this disaster—the Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup, Wells Fargo and Goldman Sachs—have gone from controlling 30 percent of all deposits in this country when this mess began to 40 percent now.

The big 5 are just eating us up and taking bigger bonuses too. It is estimated they will reward themselves with that $145 billion in bonuses this year. Credit remains frozen across our country until today, seizing up economic recovery, and this bill calls itself the ''Wall Street Reform Bill.''

This bill, like those before it, will not meet the serious challenges crippling our financial system and it surely will not give a good signal to the future. Congress said the TARP bailout would save us from depression, but TARP passed, and the American people went into depression. Only the big banks were saved.

The bills passed by Congress today protect Wall Street and their shareholders. Main Street pays the price. Is this bill a reform bill? No. It will not break up the big banks. It will not create a strong, independent financial institution regulatory agency. It will not separate speculation from investment activity. It will not require loan workouts to stem rising foreclosures. It will not recoup undeserved Wall Street bonuses to help pay for this economic mess and put America back to work. In fact, the bill merely asks for nonbinding votes of shareholders.

It will not rein in nonbanking firms, but instead provide them with a golden sandbox. It will not rein in the power of the Federal Reserve. It will not regulate all over-the-counter derivatives. It will not provide the requisite number of FBI agents and prosecutors to put behind bars the financial world's white-collar criminals whose fraudulent behavior caused this mess. It will not bring to justice the wrongdoers at Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. There are bills in this House to do that; they're not included in this bill.

And it places the Treasury Department, a politically appointed superstructure, so much a part of the problem, in charge of the Finance Services Oversight Council. Importantly, it fails to institute and strengthen independent financial regulatory and supervisory agencies. The political appointees on this oversight council are surely clapping in the wings. This bill gives more power to the opaque Federal Reserve.

You know, you would think that after all the damage that has been done in the Republic, this Congress would have the guts for real reform. This bill isn't it, and I urge my colleagues to vote ''no'' on final passage.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 111th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 155 WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 2009 No. 185

Senate

The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable MARK L. PRYOR, a Senator from the State of Arkansas.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Gracious and merciful God, You promised never to leave us alone, and we are grateful for Your comforting presence. Thank You for your whispers of love and peace. Help us to see Your face in others and to show them Your love.

Today, give our Senators the wisdom to know Your will and to choose Your way and purpose. When the choice is between honor and self-interest, help them to do right. May they exercise themselves to have a conscience void of offense toward You and humanity. Lord, give them strength equal to their task, as You undergird them with Your loving providence.

We pray in Your precious Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable MARK L. PRYOR led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. BYRD).

NOTICE

If the 111th Congress, 1st Session, adjourns sine die on or before December 23, 2009, a final issue of the Congressional Record for the 111th Congress, 1st Session, will be published on Thursday, December 31, 2009, to permit Members to insert statements.

All material for insertion must be signed by the Member and delivered to the respective offices of the Official Reporters of Debates (Room HT–59 or S–123 of the Capitol), Monday through Friday, between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. through Wednesday, December 30. The final issue will be dated Thursday, December 31, 2009, and will be delivered on Monday, January 4, 2010.

None of the material printed in the final issue of the Congressional Record may contain subject matter, or relate to any event, that occurred after the sine die date.

Senators' statements should also be formatted according to the instructions at http://webster/secretary/cong__record.pdf, and submitted electronically, either on a disk to accompany the signed statement, or by e-mail to the Official Reporters of Debates at ''Record@Sec.Senate.gov''.

Members of the House of Representatives' statements may also be submitted electronically by e-mail, to accompany the signed statement, and formatted according to the instructions for the Extensions of Remarks template at http://clerk.house.gov/forms. The Official Reporters will transmit to GPO the template formatted electronic file only after receipt of, and authentication with, the hard copy, and signed manuscript. Deliver statements to the Official Reporters in Room HT–59.

Members of Congress desiring to purchase reprints of material submitted for inclusion in the Congressional Record may do so by contacting the Office of Congressional Publishing Services, at the Government Printing Office, on 512–0224, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. daily.

By order of the Joint Committee on Printing.

CHARLES E. SCHUMER, Chairman.

● This ''bullet'' symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

The bill clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, December 10, 2009.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable MARK L. PRYOR, a Senator from the State of Arkansas, to perform the duties of the Chair.

ROBERT C. BYRD,
President pro tempore.

Mr. PRYOR thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following leader marks, the Senate will resume consideration of H.R. 3590, the health care reform legislation. The time until 1 p.m. today will be equally divided and controlled and will be for debate only, with the time until 11 a.m. controlled between the two leaders or their designees and the remaining time controlled in 30-minute alternating blocks. The majority will control the first block and Republicans will control the next. Senators will be permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

I expect the House of Representatives to send a conference report to the Senate this afternoon. When it arrives, we will consider it. If cloture needs to be invoked, the Senate will have to be in session this weekend for a Saturday vote and a Sunday vote in order to complete action on these bills. This bill includes the bills we have tried to complete. We have been held up by the minority on these bills, but we have made progress. The first will be the Transportation appropriations bill, Commerce-Justice-Science, Military Construction, Labor-HHS, financial services, and State-Foreign Operations. That would leave the only remaining bill to be the Defense appropriations bill, which we will do sometime before the end of the year. We hope we can get word from the Republicans today what they want to do. Whatever they want to do, it is in their hands.

Everyone should understand that procedurally, no one can stop us from moving to the appropriations bills. It is bipartisan. We have worked closely with Republicans on this matter. We automatically go off the health care bill when we get on this. We are waiting for the score to come back from the Congressional Budget Office. There isn't a lot we can do until we get that done, which would be next week. So no time is lost on health care. We have to complete our work for the year anyway. So we have to do this bill.

Whenever we hear from the Republicans, Senators will know what their schedules can be. We could complete our work today and come back and work something out so that we can have a Monday vote. But whatever the Republicans want, we will be happy to cooperate with them—I shouldn't say whatever they want.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

SERVICEMEMBERS HOME OWNERSHIP TAX ACT OF 2009

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of H.R. 3590, which the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3590) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Reid amendment No. 2786, in the nature of a substitute.

Dorgan amendment No. 2793 (to amendment No. 2786), to provide for the importation of prescription drugs.

Crapo motion to commit the bill to the Committee on Finance with instructions.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 11 a.m. shall be equally divided and controlled by the two leaders or their designees.

The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, for the benefit of all Senators, let me lay out today's program. It has been 3 weeks since the majority leader moved to proceed to the health care reform bill. This is the 11th day of debate. The Senate has considered 18 amendments or motions. It has conducted 14 rollcall votes. Today, the Senate will continue debating the amendment by the Senator from North Dakota on prescription drug reimportation, we will continue debating the motion by the Senator from Idaho on taxes, and we will continue debate on the bill. Under the previous order, the time until 1 p.m. today will be for debate only, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees. Beginning at 11 o'clock, Republicans will control the first half hour, and the majority will control the second half hour. We will continue discussions to try to find a way forward.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I appreciate the statistics the Senator from Montana cited about how long we have been debating this and how many amendments we have done. That is how few amendments we have done, actually. The majority is now filibustering their own bill. I have no idea why that is happening. We have been calling for votes on both of these amendments that have been proposed so far and haven't been able to get the votes. I don't understand how they can talk about how many amendments are being done.

I also have to voice some other frustration. I don't know how many times I have heard the exact same speech by the Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, on this floor talking about the amount of hours that have been spent together working on these bills in the HELP Committee and the Gang of 6 in the Finance Committee. It isn't about how many hours we spend together. It isn't about how many hours we spend on the floor. It is whether we are accepting ideas. I understand the other party won the last election, but somehow they will have to get over this attitude that they won the election, they get to write the bill, they don't have to take any ideas from anybody else.

In the HELP Committee, I keep pointing out that most of the things we turned in were kind of punctuation corrections and spelling corrections. Any ideas we actually had that appeared to be accepted to be in the bill were ripped out of the bill before it was actually formally printed, without talking to us. What kind of bipartisan deal is that?

Another thing with the HELP Committee, we have only had 10 days of debate on this. We did more than that in the HELP Committee when we were marking up the bill.

But we are having, in the words of Yogi Berra, déjà vu all over again. When we were having that markup, the majority withheld a significant part of the bill, a big part of the bill. It was the government-run option part of the bill. They wouldn't give us the wording on that. I think they were still writing it. Maybe that is what is happening right now too. But we couldn't get the text we were going to write amendments on so that we could deal with the bill. I think America noticed that in August. People said: How come everybody isn't reading the bill? You can't read what you don't have.

The point I am making is, right now the newspapers are full of information—well, speculation; it has to be speculation—about what this new Medicare expansion does. I haven't run into anybody who has seen the text of that. I have asked some of the media, and they didn't see the text. They got a briefing. We haven't even had a briefing. The majority side has had a briefing, but our folks who have talked to those folks said: Wow, that was pretty general. How could you make up your mind on whether you are going to support it based on the little bit of information you received? That is not the way to run any kind of an organization, especially if you want bipartisan votes.

You can't write the bill in secret, which is what was done with this bill. There wasn't a Republican involved in the behind-the-door stuff Leader REID did to put together the bill we have now. That is not bipartisan. There hasn't been a single person from the Republican side briefed on this new proposal that is going to save the world.

Actually, I noticed that the American Medical Association suddenly left the bill and said: This will be the worst thing that could happen to us. The hospital associations, which have been strong supporters of the bill, have also said this won't work, particularly the Mayo Clinic, which we have been holding up as one of the prime examples of the way to do health care, saying: If this Medicare expansion happens, it will cost us millions. We won't be able to provide the kind of care we have been providing.

What is the deal around here? When are we going to actually get to see something? When is the majority actually going to share with us this marvelous idea they have had? What kind of a way to run a business is that?

Are we going to recess for the weekend? I don't want to recess for the weekend. I am conscious of the 11 days we have been debating, and we have only covered 14 amendments. We have a lot of important amendments that either will be a part of the bill or will help the people in this country to understand what is being thrust on them. There has never been a bill of such importance as this one from the standpoint of how many people it affects. We are talking about reforming health care in America. That is everybody. That is every single individual, every single provider. Every single business will be affected by this bill.

We talk about 2,074 pages, which seems like a lot. It would be for a normal bill that you could debate in a limited period, which is what we are being asked to do. But 2,074 pages isn't nearly enough to cover health care for America.

So why is it only 2,074 pages? There are hundreds of references in there to how the Secretary of Health and Human Services is going to solve all the problems. The things we aren't able to put into detail in there we just assign to her, and she will magically be able to solve the problems for American health care. After all, it is her Department. But that is not going to happen. You can't give that many assignments to any agency, any department, any group of people and expect them, in a reasonable amount of time, to come up with solutions, solutions that ought to be decided on by this body, the elected officials—not appointed officials but elected officials. That is not going to happen with this bill.

The only way that could happen is if we took significant parts of it and put it up one piece at a time and solved it. That is what seniors are asking for. They are asking for us to take the Medicare part and give them some assurance that when we are through, it will work. We are not even getting to see a significant part of it. We have been pointing out how taking $464 billion out of Medicare will break it, will ruin it. You just can't steal $464 billion out of Medicare and have it come out good. The majority recognizes that. That is why they put in the special commission that is going to come to us each and every year and suggest the kinds of cuts we ought to make to keep that solvent.

The biggest thing we ought to do is take these cuts that are provided and make them actually apply only to Medicare. But how are you going to fund the expansion of Medicare now down to age 55? How do you do that? I guess you charge a premium to those people. That is kind of the rumor that is out there. How big of a premium? How big of a premium are you going to thrust on those people? I suspect it is going to be the older and the sicker people in that 55- to 64-age category who are going to want to shift over to Medicare.

If it is a higher premium so the system stays solvent—having nothing to do, of course, with age, because we cannot do that under the bill, or sickness, because we cannot do that under the bill—and those are good ideas—but those better be up in that range of the high-risk pools that the States already have.

People come to me and say: You have to do something about health care because we cannot afford that high-risk pool; it is too expensive. Well, how much more are we going to expect the young people to pitch in in their paycheck? That is where the Medicare money comes from right now. They deduct a portion of the paycheck from every single working American, and that goes into Medicare, and gets paid out right away to Medicare recipients, none of whom or hardly any of whom are the ones paying into the system. They are hoping that system is going to be there when they get older.

What I am asking for is for the majority to show us the paper and give us a reasonable time to look at it and give America a reasonable time to look at it. I do not think it is unreasonable for that to be on the Internet. That is a significant part of the bill. That would be a significant bill all by itself. It was held from our view when the HELP Committee did it. Incidentally, that HELP Committee bill—that was put together in 2 weeks without our help and put on us—parts of it were withheld, as this has been withheld, until the last minute and then thrust in.

That is what created this enormous outrage across America of: Did you read the bill? How can you read the bill if you have not seen anything in it, if it has not been given to you? I do not think it is intended to be given to us until we have to shuffle this thing through at the end.

The anticipation was to get this done by Christmastime, and the majority side keeps talking about getting this done by Christmastime. Will we have time to read it before Christmastime? Will we have a chance to do any amendments on it before Christmastime? I am willing to stay around and work through the weekend and keep doing amendments, but I would like to see this marvelous idea that is going to solve the whole problem. If it was that marvelous and that good of an idea, I think it would be shared already.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of our time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum and I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally charged against both sides.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, commenting on the budget process in the 1980s, former CBO Director Rudy Penner said:

> The process is not the problem; the problem is the problem.

The chairman and ranking member of the Budget Committee have proposed another new budget process. No one has shown greater zeal in taking on the budget deficit than the chairman and ranking Republican Member of the Budget Committee. I commend their good intentions. They work hard. But we should reject this process. Instead, we should solve the problem.

In their press release yesterday, Senators CONRAD and GREGG said that ''Everything needs to be on the table, including spending and revenues.'' That is a quote: ''Everything needs to be on the table, including spending and revenues.'' But why stop there?

If Congress is going to outsource its core fiscal responsibilities, why stop with those responsibilities? Why not cede to this Commission all of the legislation in the next Congress? Why don't we outsource the entire year's work and then adjourn for the year?

Come to think of it, if we do cede all of our powers to this Commission, what is to stop them from inserting any and all business for the next Congress into the Commission's one, nonamendable, omnibus vehicle? No restrictions. They could put anything they want into it.

There is the rub. For if the Commission were merely a farce, then we could be satisfied with ridiculing it. But this Commission and its new fast-track process are truly dangerous. If we were to cede all of our responsibilities to this Commission, and we were to tie our hands so we could not amend its recommendations, then we would risk setting in motion some truly terrible policy.

Under the proposed fast-track procedures, we would not be able to amend the proposal. What if we did not like the Commission's recommendations? We would not be able to replace the Commission's recommendations with our own.

It is clear from their press release that Senators CONRAD and GREGG have painted a big red target on Social Security and Medicare. That is what this Commission is all about. It is a big roll of the dice for Social Security and Medicare.

Advocates of the task force say the regular order is not working. They say we need a new process to address our long-term fiscal challenges. But they are wrong. The regular order is working. We are enacting health care reform. And serious people know that controlling the costs of health care is the central path to addressing our long-term budget challenges.

The lion's share of the reason why deficits are projected to grow so much in the long run is the enormous increase in the costs of health care. We are doing something about it. We are doing it the right way. We held open hearings. We legislated in committee. We are voting on amendments. We are legislating. We are doing what our people back home sent us here to do.

The Congressional Budget Office says that health care reform will cut the deficit $130 billion in the first 10 years and $650 billion in the second 10 years. That is nearly $800 billion in CBO-certified deficit reduction in health care alone. And next year we will legislate fundamental tax reform.

But some appear to want to throw in the towel. Some want to punt our responsibilities away. I can see that a commission may be attractive to some. After all, it is an easy way out. It takes away our accountability for what we do. Senators can blame it all on the Commission. Senators could say: The Commission made me do it.

But this is no time to abdicate responsibility. This new Commission and this Congress are less than a year old. We should not shirk our responsibility. Rather, we should do the job our constituents sent us here to do.

Luckily, we already have a process to address the budget. It is called the congressional budget process. Here is a novel idea: Why don't we use the budget process to address the budget deficit? If the chairman and ranking Republican Member of the Budget Committee are in such broad agreement on their goals, why don't they skip the Commission and go straight to their recommendation? That is exactly why Congress created the budget resolution and the reconciliation bill in the first place.

We do not need a new commission to do our work. We do not need a new process to solve the problem. To solve the problem, we just need to solve the problem.

I urge my colleagues to reject this Commission idea. Let's get back to solving the problem. Let's get back to enacting real health care reform.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I am fascinated by the speech we heard. There has been a bipartisan proposal. The chairman of the Budget Committee and the ranking member of the Budget Committee have proposed a commission, and that bipartisan deal is being chastised here. So we are on the bill, where 64 percent of the amendments that have been filed so far were filed by the Democrats, and I keep wondering why they are filibustering their own bill.

Then when something bipartisan does come up, they are opposed to that too. I know they think the only good ideas come from the other side of the aisle, and I do get frustrated with that.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield on that one point? Just on that one point, will my good friend from Wyoming yield, on our time?

Mr. ENZI. Certainly.

Mr. BAUCUS. The question is this: Doesn't the Senator agree—it is kind of a hard question to ask—that this Senator spent an inordinate amount of time in the last year trying to get a bipartisan solution to health care reform; that is, in our committee, in the Finance Committee, having an open process, fully consulting on both sides of the aisle? Then we had that other group called the Group of 6, of which the Senator is a part. I think we had 130—I have forgotten how many days and meetings we had, how many hours we met.

But isn't it true that at least this Senator tried as hard as he could to get a bipartisan solution?

Mr. ENZI. I cannot fault the Senator from Montana for his efforts to get a bipartisan solution. As I have said many times, I am sorry he had to be cut off by phony time deadlines that kept us from reaching that kind of a solution, and then winding up with things that are in this bill we are talking about that were not a part of our discussions—again, the things that were proposed by people on this side of the aisle that are not in that bill.

There were some possibilities for solutions. But we wound up with that same situation of: We won the election, we get to write the bill, and it has to be done quickly. So I am disappointed in the whole process.

Mr. GREGG. Will the Senator yield for a question on that point?

Mr. ENZI. I will.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. I certainly respect that the Senator from Montana worked very hard to have a bipartisan initiative here, but this bill we are dealing with has no bipartisanship to it at all. Was this not written in camera behind closed doors for 8 weeks by the majority leader? Was there a Republican in that room at any time? And we have now been on it for what, 8 days or something, while they wrote it for 8 weeks. And furthermore, is there not rumored to be floating around this Congress somewhere, in some room, again—that we have not been invited to—a major rewrite of this bill called the managers' amendment, which supposedly is going to expand coverage to people under Medicare to 55 years of age, with Medicare already being bankrupt, and already cannot afford the people they have on Medicare? It is going to expand it. We have not seen it. Yet this is going to change this bill fundamentally and change health care fundamentally.

Is that bipartisan? I ask the Senator from Wyoming if that is the case? Was this bill written in a bipartisan manner? Were any Republicans in the room? Did it go through a committee process? Was it amended? Did it not take 8 weeks to write it, and it has now been on the floor for 8 days, and all of our amendments are being pushed to the side? And are we not hearing about a massive—a massive—rewrite of this bill that is going to appear deus ex machina from the majority leader's office and fundamentally change the way health care is delivered in this country? Is that going to be bipartisan?

Mr. ENZI. The Senator is absolutely right. We have not even seen this new piece. Nobody wants to show us the new piece. They keep talking about it. They have leaked it to the newspapers, but they will not show it to us, and then they keep talking about how this bill is going to solve the deficits for this country; that there is $157 billion or something saved in the first 10 years. That is only—only—if you use the phoney accounting they are using. It is only if you don't do the doc fix. It is only if you don't solve the myriad of other things we have brought out.

We have a bill they keep talking about as being the solution. America has figured it out, but the Democrats haven't figured it out.

I see the leader is on the Senate floor. I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I apologize to my colleagues for interrupting their conversation. Hopefully, it can continue upon completion of my remarks, and I may well wish to join in.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the American people have seen what Democrats in Congress plan to do with seniors' health care. They have looked on in disbelief as almost every Democrat in the Senate voted again and again and again to slash Medicare. Now they are watching in disbelief as Democrats float the idea of herding millions more—millions more—into this nearly bankrupt program as part of a backroom deal to force their plan for health care on the American people by Christmas.

Every day it seems we hear new revelations about secret conference room deliberations where Democrats are frantically working to get their 60 votes by Christmas. And every day we hear about some new idea they have come up with for creating a government plan by another name. This week's version would have the Office of Personnel Management running the program, an idea that was shot down almost as soon as it was announced by the former OPM Director who said it couldn't be done.

This is what he said: ''I flat out think that OPM doesn't have the capacity to do this type of role.''

This is precisely the kind of approach Americans are tired of in Washington, and this is precisely the kind of health care plan Americans did not want.

Seniors thought they could expect lower costs. What they are getting instead is an assault on their Medicare. Small business owners thought they could expect lower costs. What they are getting instead are higher taxes, stiff fines, and costly mandates. Working Americans thought they would get more efficiency, less fraud, cheaper rates. What they are getting instead are new bureaucracies and higher costs.

Business leaders from across the country enthusiastically support the idea of health care reform. They know better than anyone that costs are out of control and that something needs to be done. But they have read the bill Democrats in Congress have come up with and they are telling us this isn't it. This isn't it, they are saying. Not only won't this bill solve the problem, they say, it makes the existing problems actually worse.

The Vice President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce was here yesterday. He said there is a desperate need for reform—reform that bends the cost curve down. He said, unfortunately, this bill fails the test. He says this bill will only lead businesses to lower wages, decrease working hours, reduce hiring, and cut jobs. He said it adds to the deficit; it adds to the debt. It includes massive new spending programs and entitlements and incredibly, as I have noted, it also borrows from existing entitlement programs. It borrows from existing entitlement programs that are already in trouble.

Businesses look at this bill and they see $½ trillion in new taxes, as many as 10 million employees at risk of losing coverage, and crushing new mandates. This is not reform. This bill doesn't solve our problems, it spreads them. That is why seniors don't like this bill. That is why job creators don't like this bill. That is why public opinion has dramatically shifted against this bill.

Americans want reform, but this is not the one they asked for. This bill is fundamentally flawed and it can't be fixed. There is no way to fix this bill.

Americans want us to stop, they want us to start over, and they want us to get it right. Democrats should stop talking at the American people and start listening to them.

Now, Republicans are prepared to provide a platform for the debate as long as it takes—as long as it takes. The majority leader said we would be working every weekend. We take him at his word. We expect to be here this weekend, and we look forward to it. Republicans are convinced there is nothing more important we could do than to stop this bill and start over with the kind of step-by-step reforms Americans really want.

We have amendments. We want votes. We have been waiting since Tuesday to have more votes. We are eager to continue the debate.

Here is what my good friend, the majority leader, said when we started the debate on November 30:

> Debating and voting late at night. It definitely means the next weekends—plural—we'll be working. I have events I'll have to postpone, some I'll have to cancel. There is not an issue more important than finishing this legislation. I know people have things they want to do back in their States, and rightfully so. I know people have fundraisers because they're running for reelection. I know there are other important things people have to do, but nothing could be more important than this, and we notified everybody prior to the break that we would be working weekends.

We took the majority leader at his word when we started this debate on November 30 that we would be working weekends. Actually, it is a week later—this past Monday of this week—he said, ''It appears we certainly will be here this weekend again.''

My Members understood we would be here on the weekends. We don't think there is anything more important we can do, and we are a little bit upset—maybe more than a little bit—that we were not able to vote on an amendment yesterday. We have been prepared to vote for several days. There are amendments that have been offered that we can't seem to get a vote on. The American people are expecting us to vote on this bill, and we are here and prepared to do it. We would like to get started voting on amendments today.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. Leader, if I might ask a question through the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNET). The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. On that last point, it does seem there is a slowdown occurring on amendments. As I understand it, we have four or five very substantive amendments dealing with taxes, dealing with employer mandates, that we are ready to go to, and we are ready to vote on; is that not correct?

Mr. MCCONNELL. I say to my friend from New Hampshire, that is absolutely the case. We waited around all day to get a vote on the amendment by the Senator from Idaho, Mr. CRAPO. We were told there would be a side-by-side, and it mysteriously has not yet appeared. But we are here ready to work. We share the view of the majority leader that this is an extremely important issue, and we want to vote.

Mr. GREGG. I hope at some point today maybe we should propound a unanimous consent setting those four items up for votes on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Well, I think that is a good idea. Of course, we would prefer to vote today. We are going to be voting Saturday and Sunday too. I think the sooner the better. The American people are actually expecting us—they thought we were here voting and debating amendments on this bill, and we are going to continue to press forward and try to get that done.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, could I inquire of the Chair before the Senator from North Dakota speaks how much time remains.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority has 14 minutes, and the Republicans have just under 8.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I would ask, is the Senator from North Dakota recognized under an order of a colloquy at this point?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair simply recognized the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, was there a time reserved for a colloquy between myself and the Senator from New Hampshire?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the reason we are here on the floor is our understanding was we had time reserved at 10:30 for a colloquy between the Senator from New Hampshire and myself.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we have 20 minutes equally divided between myself and the Senator from North Dakota at this time. I see the Senator from Connecticut obviously wishes to speak also.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I was not a party to the request, but I am certainly prepared to yield 10 minutes of our time to our colleagues for a colloquy and whatever time the Republican side may want to yield to Senator GREGG from their time remaining for that purpose as well. Is that satisfactory?

Mr. GREGG. Do we have time remaining on our side?

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that 10 minutes of our time be allocated to Senator CONRAD for the purpose of a colloquy or whatever other purpose he may have.

Mr. CONRAD. Do the Republicans have 10 minutes remaining for Senator GREGG?

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, it is my understanding the leader spoke under leader time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. ENZI. So we should have an adequate 10 minutes to allocate to the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senators may engage in a 20-minute colloquy.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair. I thank our colleagues. I especially thank our colleague, the Senator from Wyoming, and our colleague from Connecticut. Thank you for your courtesy. We appreciate it very much.

Mr. President, this is a headline from Newsweek, December 7. In fact, it was the cover story: ''How Great Powers Fall. Steep Debt, Slow Growth, High Spending Kill Empires—and America Could Be Next.''

If you go to the story—by the way, interestingly enough, this was on December 7, Pearl Harbor day. If you go into the story that is in the magazine, it says:

This is how empires decline. It begins with a debt explosion. It ends with an inexorable reduction in the resources available for the Army, Navy, and the Air Force. If the United States doesn't come up soon with a credible plan to restore the Federal budget to balance over the next 5 to 10 years, the danger is very real that a debt crisis could lead to a major weakening of American power.

All we have to do is look at the facts. This shows the debt of the United States from 2001 projecting to 2019. Obviously, the first half of this chart is not a projection. It has already happened. We are approaching a debt that is 100 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States, the highest the debt has been since after World War II and the only time in our Nation's history it has been that high. The projection is by 2019 the debt will be high. The projection is by 2019 the debt will be 114 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States.

More alarming, the long-term outlook of the Congressional Budget Office says we will have a debt that will reach 400 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States by 2050 on the current trend line. No one believes that is a sustainable circumstance. We have had testimony from the head of the General Accounting Office, the Congressional Budget Office, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Chairman of the Federal Reserve all saying this is a completely unsustainable circumstance.

The Congressional Budget Office said this in June of 2009:

The difficulty of the choices notwithstanding, CBO's long-term budget projections make clear that doing nothing is not an option.

Doing nothing is not an option.

The National Journal, in an article entitled ''The Debt Problem is Worse Than You Think'' said this in a story just weeks ago:

Simply put, even alarmists may be underestimating the size of the debt problem, how quickly it will become unbearable, and how poorly prepared our political system is to deal with it.

I hope people are listening. I hope they are paying attention. I hope our colleagues are.

Yesterday a group of us introduced legislation to confront this debt threat head on. There are now 31 cosponsors of that legislation: 19 Republicans, 12 Democrats. This legislation offers the following: to address the unsustainable long-term fiscal imbalance; that a task force should be created with everything on the table. It would consist of 18 Members: 8 Republicans from the Congress, 8 Democrats from the Congress, and 2 representatives of the administration.

All task force members must be currently serving in Congress or the administration so they are accountable to the public. If 14 of the 18 Members could agree on a report, that report would come to Congress for a vote.

There would be no filibustering, a straight up-or-down vote on the recommendations. The report would be submitted after the 2010 election to insulate it from politics. And, the vote would be designed to occur before the end of the 111th Congress. It would receive fast-track consideration in the Senate and the House. There would be no amendments. It would be a straight up-or-down vote. A supermajority of the House and the Senate would have to vote for it, and the President would retain his ability to veto.

This is legislation that is designed to get to the floors of the House and the Senate, legislation to deal with our long-term debt threat, to face up to it. All of us know that with a problem, the sooner you deal with it, the less draconian the solutions need to be. For those who say this poses a threat to Social Security and Medicare, the opposite is true. A failure to act is what threatens Social Security and Medicare.

The trustees of Medicare have told us Medicare will go broke in 8 years. They have also told us Medicare is cash negative today. That means more money is going out than is coming in. The same is true of Social Security today. It is cash negative.

Now is the time. We are the ones who have an opportunity to help our country face up to a critical threat to the economic security of America. Some suggest the bill before us on health care is an example that the regular order will deal with this problem. Again, I believe the reverse is true.

I believe the health care bill before us does modestly deal with the deficit and debt—modestly. But it doesn't come close to dealing with the debt bomb I have outlined. In fact, the reality is, we are on a course that is absolutely unsustainable. It is our responsibility to face up to it.

In our past, we have chosen special processes, commissions, a summit, or some other special process to deal with fiscal challenges because we have learned, in our history, that going through the regular process and regular order is simply not going to succeed.

I have been here 23 years. I am on the Finance Committee. I am chairman of the Budget Committee. I have been on those committees for many years. If there is one thing that is absolutely clear to me, it is the regular order cannot and will not face up to a crisis of this dimension. It is going to take a special process, a special commitment of the Members and representatives of the administration to develop a plan that gets us back on track. It is going to take a special process to bring that plan to this floor for a vote up or down. That holds, I believe, the best prospects for success.

I believe this is a defining moment for this Chamber, for this Congress, for this administration. It is imperative that we find a way to deal with this debt threat. It poses one of the most dramatic challenges to American economic strength that we have confronted in the history of this country. It is time to stand and be counted.

Thirty-one of us have sent forward a proposal—a bipartisan proposal—that would assure a vote on a plan to bring America back from the brink. Let's give it a chance.

I thank the chair, and I especially thank the ranking member, Senator GREGG, for his energy, his commitment, and his devotion to facing up to, I believe, one of the greatest challenges confronting America.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I am privileged to join the Senator from South Dakota, the chairman of the Budget Committee, on this initiative. We have worked on it for a while, and we have come to a position of having a piece of legislation that accomplishes the goal as outlined by the Senator from North Dakota. That is good news.

The outpouring of support in the Senate—over 31 cosponsors in just a brief period of time—is a sign that there is a willingness to move in a bipartisan way. That is good news.

Right now, for this country, after the possibility of a terrorist getting a weapon of mass destruction and using it against us in the United States, the single biggest threat we have as a nation is the fact that we are on course toward fiscal insolvency. You cannot get around it. If we continue on the present course, this Nation goes bankrupt. We are already seeing the early signs of it. The early signs are devastating enough. We are seeing some of the nations who lend to us—and remember we are a debtor nation now of massive proportions—saying: Hold on, you folks are not being responsible, especially about your outyear debt.

Two days ago, we saw one of the rating agencies, Moody's, say England and the United States now are going to be put into a special category relative to the rest of the industrialized world because their fiscal situation is in such risk, and they are not managing their fiscal house correctly.

We know, as the Senator from North Dakota has outlined so correctly, that within 10 years—maybe sooner—we are going to get to a point where our debt has gotten so large we simply cannot pay it or, if we have to pay it, we are going to have to do some extraordinary things to do that, such as inflating the currency or raising taxes to a level where we reduce productivity and the opportunity for jobs. It is akin to a dog chasing its tail when you get your debt to a certain level. When you have spent so much more than you have taken in and you have promised so much more than you can afford to pay and your debt gets to such a level, as a nation, you only have two choices: You inflate the currency and destroy the quality of people's lives, destroying the value of their savings, and you put in an inflation economy, which is one of the worst things that can ever happen to a country or you have to radically increase your tax burden to levels that are simply going to choke off the capacity of the Nation to create prosperity because people will not be able to be productive. You will start to lose tax revenues as a result of that.

This is not a theoretical case. This is no longer something that is over the horizon. This problem is directly in front of us. We are hearing it from the people who lend us money, from the rating agencies, and we know it from intuitive common sense. Most Americans know this is an extraordinary problem.

We talked about this for a long time and we worked on it for a long time. Yes, regular order should take care of this, but we know it will not because we have seen what happens. When you put an idea on the table to deal with major entitlement programs that affect so many people, in such a personal way, immediately, those ideas are attacked and savaged, misrepresented, exploited, exaggerated, and hyperbolized by the interest groups that populate this city and other parts of the country for the purpose of making their political agenda move forward or their money-raising formula move forward.

When substantive, good ideas have been put on the table to try to correct this fiscal imbalance by dealing with questions of Social Security and Medicare or tax policy, we get clobbered on the policy side. We came to the conclusion from the right and the left that it is equally outrageous and equally destructive of constructive public policy. We came to the conclusion that the only way you can do this is to create a process that drives the policy, rather than put the policy on the table first, saying here is the policy and everybody jumps on it and kicks it and screams at it and so it never even gets to the starting line. We decided let's get to a process that leads to policy and leads to an absolute vote.

The theory is, basically, threefold: One, the process has to be absolutely fair and bipartisan. Nobody can feel they are being gamed. The American people will not allow major policy to occur in these areas unless they are comfortable the policy is bipartisan and fair. So this process we have set up is a bipartisan affair. There will be 18 people. We decided to go with people who actually have a responsibility for making decisions and understand the issues intimately; 16 from the Congress, as was mentioned—8 Republicans and 8 Democrats—and the 2 from the administration, with a supermajority to meet, to report, and there will be cochairmen from each party. That gives us the bipartisan nature.

The second part that is critical to the exercise is that it be real and that it not end up being a game. We have seen so many commissions end up being just commissions. They put their report out and it ends up on a shelf somewhere.

Something has to happen. What happens is, when this Commission reports with a supermajority and comes to Congress, by supermajority it must be voted up or down. So there is an absolute right to a vote, and the vote occurs on the policies proposed. That is critical. It is much along the lines of what we did for base closures, for many of the same reasons. You couldn't close bases politically, so we did it by fast-track approval.

Third, there will be no amendments. Why? Amendments allow Members to hide in the corners. It is that simple: Somebody throws an amendment up—even if it is well intentioned—and people vote for the amendment and then say it didn't pass or I will not vote for the final product. You have to have a policy put forward, and it will either attract a bipartisan supermajority and be a fair policy or it is not. If it doesn't attract a bipartisan supermajority, clearly, it wasn't well thought out.

That is the process we have come to. The amount of sponsors we have reflects the fact that it is viable and that it is bipartisan. We have 12 Democratic sponsors already and 19 Republicans. What else around here has that with serious legislation? This is it.

I congratulate the Senator from North Dakota for his efforts. I am hopeful we can get a vote on it. Then, I hope it can pass, and I am hopeful we can get White House support and House support to do this.

We are running out of time. If we don't accomplish this fairly soon, the outcome is very simple: We will pass on to our children less opportunity, a lower standard of living, and a weaker Nation than we received from our parents. No generation in American history has done that. But that is what we are going to do if we don't take action. That is exactly what is going to happen. How can one generation do that to another? In American history, that has never happened. This is an opportunity to avoid having that occur or at least help avoid it. I hope it will move forward.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, how much time remains of the 20 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Two minutes 40 seconds.

Mr. CONRAD. How much on my side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is equally shared.

Mr. CONRAD. Let me sum up by saying this: I have been here 23 years. We saw the debt double in the previous 8 years. We know the debt is scheduled to more than double over the next 8 years if we fail to act. That will be a debt, as I indicated earlier, of well over 100 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States.

The Congressional Budget Office tells us, on the current trend line, we are headed for a debt that will be 400 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States. That is absolutely beyond the pale. We know, from every serious expert who advises the Congress of the United States, we can't go there. We can't possibly be on a course to have a debt that is 400 percent of the gross domestic product of the country.

The question is, What do we do about it? There are some who say: Well, you stick with the status quo approach. It hasn't worked so far. Why is there any reason to believe it will work now? I would say the health care legislation before us is a perfect example. The President had a health care summit; he had a fiscal responsibility summit. At those summits, it was asserted—and I think it was well intended—that health care reform would deal with a major part of the debt projection facing us. Well, here we are. My belief is, this bill does modestly reduce the deficit in the short- and long-term. But it in no way deals with the trajectory that is headed for a debt of this country of 400 percent of the GDP, because when you are in this circumstance, the regular legislative process cannot face up to short-term pain in exchange for long-term gain. It will not do it. This is our opportunity. We must act.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Under the previous order, the time until 1 o'clock will be controlled in 30-minute alternating blocks, with the majority controlling the first block and the Republicans controlling the second 30 minutes.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, before my colleagues from North Dakota and New Hampshire leave, let me commend them for their efforts in this regard. There may be debates about the details of this legislation.

One of the first amendments I ever offered, sitting back in the far corner, as a freshman Member of this body was a pay-as-you-go budget in the Reagan administration. Then I was a cosponsor of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings back in 1985—that was 24 years ago—which was an effort to try to put some restraints on the exploding process at the time.

While I am not prepared necessarily to sign on this morning, I would be remiss if I did not thank them for their efforts. And either something like this or a variation of it is needed so there is some process in place to allow us to deal with these issues.

Before they wandered off and we were back on the health care debate, I wanted to thank them for their efforts.

Let me once again address issues that need to be clarified. We have disagreements about the health care bill.

I want the record to reflect the efforts that have been made for over a year now to involve our colleagues across the spectrum, beginning with my predecessor, Senator Kennedy, who would be otherwise standing at this very podium but for his illness and his death. My office and his staff worked closely together and I want to share the details of those meetings that occurred beginning about a year ago to formulate the very bill we are grappling with today. I was not a participant in those early meetings. Senator Kennedy was, with his staff and Members of the minority staff right after the elections. I began to work in his place starting around the first of the year or shortly thereafter.

There were numerous meetings between Members from across the spectrum from the Budget Committee, the Finance Committee, the HELP Committee, countless meetings of staff in all three of these committees. Many of them occurred in Chairman BAUCUS's office, the chairman of the Finance Committee.

Battling over the substance of the bill is a very legitimate process. There are 100 of us representing various constituencies and various ideas. There is nothing inherently wrong about that. In fact, it is a healthy process to go through. But I cannot stand here and accept the notion that people have been excluded from the process. That is not the case at all.

There are times when the majority, who has the responsibility to pose ideas, will meet together to formulate an idea or a series of ideas to bring forward. To say this is a historical, unprecedented occurrence defies what anyone who has known 5 minutes of the history of this institution knows. I recall only a few years ago when the minority leader and others were excluded from conference meetings between the House and the Senate. If Tom Daschle showed up, the word was, the conference committee would be canceled. Imagine, the minority leader, a conferee, dealing with the House and Senate, would show up and the meeting would be canceled. With all due respect, it is that old line of Claude Rains in the famous movie ''Casablanca,'' walking into Rick's Café, looking around with Humphrey Bogart there and saying: ''Is there gambling going on here? Shocking.'' Is politics going on in the Senate? Yes, it is. And it has back to 1789, to the founding of the Republic. Politics has happened in this institution where people try to formulate ideas to bring together on behalf of our constituents across the country.

It needs pointing out, as I will, and I will lay out and provide shortly every single amendment offered by the other side—hardly technical, so everybody can read them—the provisions in this bill that were specifically offered by Members of the minority that were accepted either in our committee or in other places and are reflected in the substance of this bill.

Is it their bill? No. Obviously, they have not voted for it. But a lot of the substance in it is theirs, and to suggest otherwise is not true. The notion that people have been excluded from this process is just not the case at all. In fact, going back, if you will, since January of 2007 the HELP Committee has held 30 bipartisan hearings on health care reform, with 15 alone in 2009. Taken together, the HELP and Finance Committees held more than 100 bipartisan meetings. Beginning in December 2008, the bipartisan leadership of the HELP Committee, the Finance Committee, and the Budget Committee met 10 times to discuss health care reform legislation. Staff met even more frequently. Ideas discussed in those meetings are reflected in this bill. In 2008, the HELP Committee held 15 bipartisan health reform staff roundtables, which included Republican and Democratic staff from the HELP, Finance, and Budget Committees. Over 80 stakeholders from the pharmaceutical industry, the insurance industry, those who advocated single-payer approaches—80 stakeholder meetings were held in the health care debate from across the political spectrum. Democrats, Republicans, patients, providers, employers, unions, insurers, and drug device manufacturers contributed recommendations to this bill. They were not all accepted. The idea that we would take everyone's idea that comes to the table is ludicrous on its face. But certainly the opportunity to affect the outcome of this bill was very much an open process.

In addition, committee staff held regular meetings with smaller representative groups. Since April of 2009, these meetings have included staff from Senator ENZI's office, Senator GREGG's office, and Senator HATCH's office. These meetings included groups from across the political spectrum who met for 2-hour sessions twice a week to provide detailed and thoughtful contributions to this bill.

In addition to these stakeholders, hundreds of groups attended larger stakeholder meetings on March 13 and May 15 where further recommendations on reform were heard.

On June 10 and 11, prior to beginning of the markup of the HELP Committee bill, Members had detailed, bipartisan discussions of the draft legislation, including extensive options contributed by our Republican colleagues. Options provided by Republican Members were reflected in the legislation approved by the committee.

On June 22, HELP Committee Senators also met with the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office Director Doug Elmendorf and other CBO staff.

The markup in the HELP Committee lasted almost a month—a record for that committee, by the way. The committee held 56 hours of executive consideration of the legislation, stretching across 23 different sessions over 13 days. Taken together with the Finance Committee, more than 20 days were devoted to the amendment process alone. During the HELP Committee markup—I have mentioned this over and over again—we considered 287 amendments, almost 300 amendments, and 161 of those 287 were accepted Republican amendments.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD all of those amendments that were accepted and the description of those amendments.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, specific pages in this bill and the language of these amendments or a synopsis of the language is included. These were not just technical amendments. Let me mention some that were included.

Our colleague from North Carolina, Mr. BURR, offered an amendment that subjects the public option to the same laws and requirements as private plans. This discussion that they were not involved in the public option—here are amendments offered by Republicans accepted in the committee dealing with the public option. Did we take all of them? Of course not. Of the 287 amendments, 161 of them, as you will now read, are reflected in these efforts.

Follow-on biologics: A bipartisan, Enzi-Hatch-Hagan—HAGAN, a Democrat, and HATCH and ENZI, Republicans—amendment establishes the pathway for biosimilar biological products. This Republican amendment is reflected in the bill on page 1859.

Long-term care: Senator GREGG ensured that the new voluntary program to approve long-term care options would remain solvent for 75 years—the CLASS Act—reflected on page 1931 of the bill.

Prevention—again, a bipartisan amendment offered by Senator GREGG and Senator HARKIN that expands and strengthens the incentives available for participation in workplace wellness programs, reflected in the bill on page 80.

The Murkowski of Alaska amendment will allow insurance companies to offer discounts for those who do not smoke. This is a Republican amendment reflected on page 80 of the bill.

Coverage: Several amendments were offered by Senators ENZI, COBURN, ROBERTS, and others to make certain that nothing in the legislation would allow for rationing of care and that no one would be denied care based on age, disability, medical dependency, or quality of life. That is reflected as well on page 105 of the bill.

My colleague from Wyoming, the ranking member of the committee, had 41 amendments that were included in the bill. For instance, in Title I, Enzi amendment No. 241 appears on page 185 of the marked-up bill. Line 22: to ensure that individuals enrolled in the community health service option have access to all services. Senator ENZI's amendment is included in the bill. He offered amendments on page 272 to prevent denial of care based on patient age, disability, medical dependency, quality of life, and antirationing proposals; follow-on biologics; amendments to protect and ensure that data and prevention programs include rural populations. Again, I will provide a list of the 41 amendments so my colleagues and others can read a synopsis of those amendments—hardly punctuation marks in the bill. We may not agree with every one. We accepted them. I thought they contributed to the bill, made a better bill. I did not decry them; I welcomed them.

So the suggestion that this somehow has been jammed down the throats of people, with secret meetings going on—I don't think people ought to engage in that. You can vote against the bill if you want, but don't suggest to me this process denied people a chance to be heard, to be involved, to be engaged. I went out of way my in the markup of that bill to stay for as many hours as people wanted to, for as long as they wanted to, to offer as many amendments as they wanted to. Staff worked all during the weekends of that process to go through these amendments. I remember on one occasion, after work over one weekend, I proposed accepting 40 amendments. I offered to accept all 40 of them, and my Republican friends objected to a request to accept their amendments in the committee.

So the notion we marked up titles of this bill without adequate notice of language is false. Titles of the bill had to be scored by CBO. The idea that we would markup our bill without notice of language or CBO scores again is false. The markup dates were postponed by me to allow more time to read language and to ensure that CBO scores were distributed to all Members as well.

As someone who has been around here a number of years, I know when there is a true willingness to have a bipartisan effort and I know when there is one that is not going to happen. Senator Kennedy understood that as well. I have had numerous bipartisan agreements with my colleagues on committees I have served on over the years. It is certainly far better when you can achieve that, I don't deny that at all, but I will not accept the notion that there has been a refusal to accept or willingness to listen to bipartisan ideas as part of this bill.

Again, there is a debate that I know is going on on the other side as to whether to have amendments or not have amendments, whether Rush Limbaugh is controlling the show, or the Republican leader. Those things happen. I understand that. But the fact is, we have a bill here, far from perfect—I will be the first to acknowledge it. It is not a bill I would have written on my own. But we serve in a body of 100 coequals who bring to our debate and discussion various backgrounds, experiences, and viewpoints. It is not an easy task.

Every Congress going back to the 1940s to one degree or another has tried to deal with this issue. Every administration, from Harry Truman through every Republican and Democratic administration since the 1940s, has, to one degree or another, grappled with this issue of health care. To a large extent, everyone has failed or has not tried because it has been so monumental an undertaking that it has been daunting. Certainly, we are seeing that as we grapple with it in our hour of watch. Those of us who are privileged to be here serving with an administration that has made this a priority have been challenged to do what no other Congress and no other administration has been able to achieve over the past 70 years. We are close to achieving a major beginning, and it is a beginning. Anyone who suggests otherwise does not understand the complexity or the largeness of this undertaking—a beginning, to begin to change and bring down costs, increase access, and affordability, as well as the quality of something that ought to be a basic right in the United States of America, and that is health care.

I am excited and optimistic about the possibility of achieving that. It is less than what I wished we could have done, but it is far more than has ever been achieved by others.

The product we have before us, while it is not one that has been endorsed on a bipartisan basis, reflects a lot of good contributions made by all Members. In fact, every single member of the HELP Committee—every single member—offered amendments that were adopted as part of our product—every single one. Substantive amendments were offered as well. I find it somewhat intriguing, that people claim to feel excluded from the public option idea. I had no idea they were interested in one. It is exciting to know they have some ideas on the public option. The reflection that occurred during our debate was they were totally opposed to any public option in this bill. So we adopted one as part of the HELP Committee process, under the leadership of SHERROD BROWN and SHELDON WHITEHOUSE and KAY HAGAN of North Carolina, who sat together and, working with others outside, came up with an option that we thought would appeal on a bipartisan basis. It did not, and we are very much involved in that debate as we speak.

Anyway, I wanted to respond to these earlier suggestions, and I will leave them as suggestions, that somehow this product and process has been totally written on a partisan basis. It is anything but that, and I want the RECORD to reflect that, hence the decision to include the specific amendments, the pages on which they exist in our product, and the substance of the ideas that were contributed by our Republican friends.

Mr. President, I saw my colleague from Montana a moment ago, who may be interested in addressing some of these ideas and thoughts as well that are coming before us. But while I wait for him to come to the floor, let me say that, again, I hear constantly this talk about Medicare and the cutting of Medicare. Let me reflect on how false those allegations are.

Again, what we are trying to do is to reduce the overpayments under the Medicare Advantage Program. That is what has happened here. These private plans—and that is what they are—operating under Medicare Advantage have two options: They can cut benefits or reduce their profits. We have to bring down these costs when you have an average of 14 percent overpayments occurring in the country that are being borne by 80 percent of Medicare recipients.

We talk about the numbers. I have a number: 96,000 people in the State of Connecticut who utilize the Medicare Advantage plan. I am not opposed to that. I think it is a wonderful option for people. But the fact is 470,000 other people in my State, who are Medicare recipients, are paying $90 extra in order to subsidize the Medicare Advantage plan and they are getting none of the benefits for it. So there is a huge percentage—about 80 percent of the elderly in this country—who are writing a check every year to subsidize private health care plans. These plans are profiting at the expense of people who never get a benefit from it.

What Senator BAUCUS and others have suggested is let's reduce these overpayments. It is up to the plans to decide what they want to do with that. They can decide to cut the benefits or take less profit. These are for-profit plans that are doing this. Maybe they don't want to take less profit. That might be a part of the motivation. But traditional Medicare, the guaranteed benefits under that—a nonprofit operation—are not touched in this bill—not a single guaranteed benefit. For over a week now I have challenged any Member in this body to identify a single guaranteed benefit under Medicare that is affected by this bill. Not one. Eliminating the overpayments under Medicare Advantage are, clearly, because we don't think that 80 percent of the population who qualify for Medicare ought to bear the financial burden of financing a benefit they never get.

None of us are opposed to Medicare Advantage, but we are opposed to the idea that these for-profit companies can play the game by suggesting they don't want to take less profit, they don't want to reduce any benefit, so they want to leave it exactly as it is. You want to know why Medicare is in trouble? That is why. If you want to put it on a solid footing for an additional 5 years, then take the proposal we have in the bill to reduce these overpayments. In the absence of doing that, the very people who are worried about the solvency of Medicare are going to be correct, because Medicare will be in financial jeopardy far earlier if we have these amendments adopted that would jeopardize the traditional Medicare Program.

Clarity is needed on all of this. The fact something is called Medicare Advantage, as I have said repeatedly, doesn't make it Medicare and it is certainly not an advantage. It is only an advantage for those private companies that are benefitting in terms of the profits they make. In fact, studies done by independent analysts say, that these companies have seen a 75 percent growth in profits as a result of this program. They are doing very well financially as a result of this. But they shouldn't be doing necessarily that well at the expense of others who are paying an additional $90, on average per couple of retirees, elderly people, who are contributing that amount every year without receiving a single benefit under Medicare Advantage.

Our simple question is: Why should they be asked to pay that much more? Ninety dollars a year may not sound like that much to a Member of Congress, but if you are a retired elderly person, living on a fixed income, that $90 a year can make a huge difference. It may not be much to a Member of Congress, many of whom, of course, are very wealthy indeed, but it is if you are sitting out there across America writing a check each year for $90 to go into a program you never get a benefit from, which serves 20 percent of the senior population.

I don't blame the 20 percent at all. I understand how they feel. They wish to continue to get those benefits. And they can get them, provided the companies they are getting those benefits from are willing to take less in profits. That is what our bill is designed to do—to provide that choice. Obviously, we can't mandate that from them—although we were promised early on they would be able to reduce the cost of Medicare. That was the original proposal when Medicare Advantage was adopted many years ago—a number of years ago.

Again, it is anything but Medicare and it is anything but an advantage, except for the profit-making companies that have done very well off this program. Our bill here merely restrains the overpayments. I know that may bother these companies. They would like to make more, if they could, and I respect that, from their vantage point. But we should not, as the Senate, sanction and necessarily approve a proposal that allows them to make more money out of the pockets of people on fixed incomes to support a fraction of the population at the expense of the overwhelming majority. Where is the equity in that, when 80 percent of Medicare recipients are writing a check each year to private companies, in effect, to pay for benefits they never get?

I appreciate the support of organizations across the country—AARP and certainly the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare—and we thank them for their very strong letters. These major organizations, representing 43 million of our elderly in this country, have taken a very strong position against the assaults on this bill regarding the overpayments that are occurring, and we thank them for it. That may not be enough for some people to appreciate, but I believe if they look and listen to what is going on here, they will understand what is at stake. If you are part of the 80 percent of seniors out there who are writing those checks every year and getting none of the benefits, those who oppose our bill want to maintain and probably expand on it in the years ahead. So for you out there who are worried about the cost and solvency of Medicare, our bill is a major step in the direction of reducing those overpayments and providing the options that ought to exist to reduce profits or extend benefits.

Again, I think it is important to remind our colleagues that under this bill, there is $130 billion in budget reductions in the first 10 years. It is the largest single reduction. We listened to our colleagues from North Dakota and New Hampshire talk about deficit reduction. This bill provides $130 billion in deficit reduction in the first 10 years and $650 billion of deficit reduction in the second 10 years.

We are now told by the Congressional Budget Office there are the millions of people today who are paying insurance and watching the costs escalate almost on an hourly basis. Even with zero inflation, we are watching private companies raise the cost of premiums—going up dramatically. There are 32 million people in the individual insurance market, according to the Congressional Budget Office, and they would pay 14 to 20 percent less in premiums for an equivalent plan than under the status quo. That is a huge reduction, potentially, in the years ahead for 32 million of our fellow citizens in the individual market. If you are in the small-group market—there are 25 million people in that, according to the CBO's analysis—you are eligible for tax credits and would pay 8 to 11 percent less in premiums. If you work for a small business and don't qualify for a tax credit, you would see a reduction, potentially, of 2 to 3 percent in premiums. If you are in the large-group market—and there are 134 million of our fellow citizens who are in that market, according to the Congressional Budget Office—again, you could see a reduction.

So in any category, you have a choice here to make—and we do in the coming hours. Do you want to continue the present process? And when people say status quo, it is such a misnomer. The status quo might even be acceptable to people if you could freeze everything. But you can't freeze everything. The status quo allows for a dramatic increase in premiums—dramatic increase. If we don't take steps to deal with rising costs, as we do in this bill, you are looking at premiums going from $12,000 a year for a family of four in this country to $24,000 to $35,000 in the next 7 to 10 years.

If this gets defeated—and, obviously, our Republican friends want this bill defeated—the idea that we are going to jump back into this is a pipe dream. We will end up with dramatically increasing costs to millions of our fellow citizens, which this bill restrains because of the hard work done by the Finance Committee, particularly, that had to work on these issues. So for those who suggest the status quo is okay, it is anything but okay.

In terms of cost reduction overall, as well as premium reduction, which is so important—and I thank my colleague from Indiana, Senator BAYH, who was the one who insisted CBO give us the analysis of what the impact of this bill would be on premiums—the fact is we see significant reductions of premium costs.

I see my colleague from Montana is now here, but I would give the example that in Connecticut, premiums in the year 2000 for a family of four were about $6,000. In the year 2009, that family of four in Connecticut is now paying around $12,000. So in 9 years, premiums have jumped from $6,000 to $12,000. And those numbers continue to escalate. So for those who say no to this bill, then—if you succeed in these efforts—prepare to answer the question why is it the premiums of those people you claim you are defending around here—if they have insurance—will escalate to the rates we have talked about. That is what is at stake—nothing less than that.

Whether it is so-called Medicare Advantage or cost reduction or premium reduction, this bill, with all of its imperfections, is a major, giant, positive step forward for our country. Again, I thank the members of the Finance Committee and Members of the HELP Committee, both staffs, and others who have worked to include many of the ideas that our friends on the other side wisely and thoughtfully made a part of these efforts.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I want to underline the huge bipartisan effort that this side undertook to put this bill together in many, many ways. I very much appreciate the comments of the Senator from Connecticut on that point.

Let's go back. A year ago, I held an all-day health care summit at the Library of Congress for members of the Finance Committee, Republicans and Democrats. They were all there. We spent a whole day. In addition, I talked to all the groups. I called them up and said: Look, we are all in this together—we Americans—consumer groups, labor, big business, small business, the pharmaceutical industry, hospitals, hospice, all these CEOs. I said: We are all working together to get health care reform passed for our country—for all Americans.

So we kept that process up to keep it—and I don't like that word ''bipartisan.'' It is more accurate to say that everybody was working together. If you don't like something, maybe you will like something else somewhere else.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KIRK). The time of the majority has expired.

Mr. BAUCUS. Just as I was getting wound up, Mr. President. I will continue when the majority's half-hour comes around.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Montana be given 2 additional minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. I appreciate very much the 2 minutes from the Senator from Arizona. This could take a couple more than 2 minutes, but I very much appreciate the offer. I will just wait.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. MCCAIN. I ask unanimous consent to enter into a colloquy with the Senators from Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Tennessee, both of them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, we are here, obviously, as we are on a daily basis, to discuss the issue of health care reform. But we are in a rather unusual situation this morning because we don't know what we are discussing or debating. We find ourselves in an interesting situation.

After almost a year of consideration of health care reform, with a measure that has been—at least a couple of the outlines of it we know but, frankly, we have had no details except that Medicare is going to be extended, eligibility for Medicare is going to be extended to age 55.

I just would quote: There was a meeting yesterday amongst Senate Democrats. Many Senate Democrats emerged from yesterday's caucus meeting saying they had learned little about the public option agreement and there were many outstanding concerns.

Senator MARY LANDRIEU called the agreement ''a very good idea.'' Senator BLANCHE LINCOLN said, ''More information is needed.'' And Senator BEN NELSON said, ''I just want to know what the costs are.''

So do the rest of us. So do the rest of us. Here we have a proposal after nearly a year that is being assessed by the Congressional Budget Office, and here we are with no knowledge of what that bill is about, with the exception of some bare essentials that have been leaked.

What did this have to do with change? What does this have to do with bipartisanship? What does this have to do with anything?

Frankly, we have an editorial in the Washington Post this morning that calls it ''Medicare Sausage?''

I ask unanimous consent the editorial from the Washington Post be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post]

MEDICARE SAUSAGE?

THE EMERGING BUY-IN PROPOSAL COULD HAVE COSTLY UNINTENDED CONSEQUENCES

The only thing more unsettling than watching legislative sausage being made is watching it being made on the fly. The 11th-hour ''compromise'' on health-care reform and the public option supposedly includes an expansion of Medicare to let people ages 55 to 64 buy into the program. This is an idea dating to at least the Clinton administration, and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus (D-Mont.) originally proposed allowing the buy-in as a temporary measure before the new insurance exchanges get underway. However, the last-minute introduction of this idea within the broader context of health reform raises numerous questions—not least of which is whether this proposal is a far more dramatic step toward a single-payer system than lawmakers on either side realize.

The details of how the buy-in would work are still sketchy and still being fleshed out, but the basic notion is that uninsured individuals 55 to 64 who would be eligible to participate in the newly created insurance exchanges could choose instead to purchase coverage through Medicare. In theory, this would not add to Medicare costs because the coverage would have to be paid for—either out of pocket or with the subsidies that would be provided to those at lower income levels to purchase insurance on the exchanges. The notion is that, because Medicare pays lower rates to health-care providers than do private insurers, the coverage would tend to cost less than a private plan. The complication is understanding what effect the buy-in option would have on the new insurance exchanges and, more important, on the larger health-care system.

Currently, Medicare benefits are less generous in significant ways than the plans to be offered on the exchanges. For instance, there is no cap on out-of-pocket expenses. So would near-seniors who buy in to Medicare get Medicare-level benefits? If so, who would tend to purchase that coverage? Sicker near-seniors might be better off purchasing private insurance on the an exchange. But the educated guessing—and that's a generous description—is that sicker near-seniors might tend to place more trust in a government-run program; they might assume, with good reason, that the government will be more accommodating in approving treatments, and they might flock to Medicare. That would raise premium costs and, correspondingly, the pressure to dip into federal funds for extra help.

In addition, the insurance exchanges proposal is being increasingly sliced and diced in ways that could narrow its effectiveness. Remember, the overall concept is to group together enough people to spread the risk and obtain better rates. But so-called ''young invincibles''—the under-30 crowd—would already be allowed to opt out of the regular exchange plans and purchase high-deductible catastrophic coverage. Those with income under 133 percent of the poverty level would be covered by Medicaid. The exchanges risk becoming less effective the more they are Balkanized this way.

Presumably, the expanded Medicare program would pay Medicare rates to providers, raising the question of the spillover effects on a health-care system already stressed by a dramatic expansion of Medicaid. Will providers cut costs—or will they shift them to private insurers, driving up premiums? Will they stop taking Medicare patients or go to Congress demanding higher rates? Once 55-year-olds are in, they are not likely to be kicked out, and the pressure will be on to expand the program to make more people eligible. The irony of this late-breaking Medicare proposal is that it could be a bigger step toward a single-payer system than the milquetoast public option plans rejected by Senate moderates as too disruptive of the private market.

Mr. MCCAIN. ''The emerging buy-in proposal could have costly unintended consequences.''

But we don't know what it is. But we know that never before in this entire year—I ask my colleagues—have we seen a proposal that would change eligibility for Medicare down to age 55, never before.

The majority leader came to the floor this morning and said if we accept an omnibus, a multitrillion-dollar bill by unanimous consent—by the way, the Omnibus appropriations bill is six bills totaling $450 billion, 1,351 pages long, with 4,752 earmarks totaling $3.7 billion. And, by the way, spending on domestic programs is increased by 14 percent except for veterans, which is increased by only 5 percent.

The majority leader wants us to go out for the weekend, after keeping us in all last weekend. Here we have an unspecified proposal—none of us know the details or the cost—so I am supposed to go home to Arizona this weekend and say: My friends, we have been working on health care reform for a year. And guess what. I can tell you nothing.

We need to stay in, we need to know what the proposals are, we need to have votes on it, and we need to tell the American people what is going on behind closed doors.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Will the Senator from Arizona yield?

Mr. MCCAIN. Gladly.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I recall our good friend, the majority leader, telling us on November 30 that we would be here the next two weekends. Then I recall our friend, the majority leader, saying Monday of this week we would be here this weekend.

My assumption was we were here to deal with this important issue that the majority has been indicating to everyone is so important, that we must stay here and do it. We are prepared to be here.

Mr. MCCAIN. And vote.

Mr. MCCONNELL. And vote. In fact, we have been trying to vote for a couple of days now, and it has been difficult to vote.

Mr. MCCAIN. If we are not going to have a vote, maybe we ought to have a vote to table the pending amendments, at least to have the Senate on record.

Could I finally say, I know New Orleans is very nice this time of year, but perhaps we ought to stay here and get this job done?

Mr. ALEXANDER. I think it is important to reflect on the season we have here. A couple of nights ago, the Senator from Arizona gave an impressive speech in front of the Capitol for the lighting of the Christmas tree. This is the Christmas season coming up, 2 weeks from tomorrow, a very important season. The majority leader said it is very important for us to stay through Christmas if necessary to debate this bill. We said: All right, that is what we will do. We will stay to New Year's Day. We will stay to Valentine's Day because this is indeed a historic bill and we don't want to make a historic mistake because it affects our children, our grandchildren, 17 percent of the economy, all 300 million Americans.

None of us have ever seen our constituents more involved in an issue than in this issue. So we are here ready to go to work.

I am wondering, as I listen to the Senator from Arizona, not only do we not know what this bill is that we are supposed to enact by 2 weeks from today, our friends on the other side don't know what it is. They cannot tell each other what it is.

They came out of—they had sort of a rally yesterday. One of the Senators described it as sort of a ''go team, go'' rally, but they did not know what they were going to. All we have heard they are going to—and I imagine the Senator from Oklahoma, who is a physician, who has delivered many babies, seen many patients, still continues to do it, would have some comment on this—all we have heard is they may try to expand Medicare.

We heard yesterday from the executive director of the Mayo Clinic Health Policy Center, I ask unanimous consent to have his letter printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MEDICARE EXPANSION WON'T GET US THERE

PROPOSAL WOULD NOT INCREASE ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE SERVICES OR CONTROL COSTS

The current Medicare payment system is financially unsustainable. Any plan to expand Medicare, which is the government's largest public plan, beyond its current scope does not solve the nation's health care crisis, but compounds it. We need to fix Medicare by moving it to a system that pays for value—quality health outcomes that are affordable over time—and ensure its success, before bringing more people into a broken system.

Expanding this system to persons 55 to 64 years old would ultimately hurt patients by accelerating the financial ruin of hospitals and doctors across the country. A majority of Medicare providers currently suffer great financial loss under the program. Mayo Clinic alone lost $840 million last year under Medicare. As a result of these types of losses, a growing number of providers have begun to limit the number of Medicare patients in their practices. Despite these provider losses, Medicare has not curbed overall spending, especially after adjusting for benefits covered and the cost shift from Medicare to private insurance. This is clearly an unsustainable model, and one that would be disastrous for our nation's hospitals, doctors and eventually our patients if expanded to even more beneficiaries.

It's also clear that an expansion of the price-controlled Medicare payment system will not control overall Medicare spending or curb costs. The Commonwealth Fund has reported this result for Medicare overall by looking at two time periods—one four-year period where Medicare physician fees increased and one four-year period where Medicare physician fees decreased. Overall cost per beneficiary increased at the same rate during each time period. This scenario follows the typical pattern for price controls—reduced access, compromised quality and increasing costs anyway. We need to address these problems—not perpetuate them—through health reform legislation.

We believe insurance coverage can be achieved without creating or expanding a government-run, price-controlled, Medicare-like insurance model.

Mayo Clinic supports the proposed insurance exchange model based on the Office of Personnel Management's Federal Employees Health Benefit Plan (FEHBP). This system will improve access to insurance, make reforms to the current insurance system that eliminate pre-existing condition exclusions, and create an individual mandate where individuals can purchase private insurance in various ways: through employers; on the individual market; through co-operatives; or through an exchange model like the FEHBP.

We also believe that the government should help people pay for insurance premiums through sliding scale subsidies as needed.

JEFFREY O. KORSMO,
Executive Director,
Mayo Clinic Health Policy Center.

Mr. ALEXANDER. I will just read one sentence from it:

Expanding the current Medicaid system to persons 55 to 64 years old would ultimately hurt patients by accelerating the financial ruin of hospitals and doctors across this country.

I am very puzzled why ideas like this are being cooked up behind closed doors 2 weeks before Christmas, and we do not know what they are, they don't know what they are, and the suggestion is we not vote today and we go home this weekend.

Mr. MCCAIN. Not only are there questions—not only is there opposition from the Mayo Clinic but the American Hospital Association and the AMA. They have all come up steadfastly against this.

Could I ask my colleague from Oklahoma—and I quote from this editorial. Here we are supposedly going out for the weekend and the editorial from the Washington Post says:

Presumably, the expanded Medicare program would pay Medicare rates to providers raising the question of the spillover effects on a health-care system already stressed by a dramatic expansion of Medicaid. Will providers cut costs—or will they shift them to private insurers, driving up premiums? Will they stop taking Medicare patients or go to Congress demanding higher rates? Once 55-year-olds are in, they are not likely to be kicked out and the pressure will be on to expand the program to make more people eligible. The irony of this late-breaking Medicare proposal is that it could be a bigger step toward a single-payer system than the milquetoast public option plans rejected by Senate moderates as too disruptive of the private market.

Mr. COBURN. I will answer my colleague as somebody who has practiced medicine for 25 years: MedPAC, last year, said 29 percent of Medicare beneficiaries it surveyed were looking for a primary care doctor and had great difficulty in finding somebody to treat them.

That is now. In the State of Texas, 58 percent of the State's doctors took new Medicare patients, but only 38 percent of the State's primary care doctors took new Medicare patients.

I would make the case to you that if you delay care, that is denied care. It is exacerbated in our older population because an older person with a medical need is much more susceptible to the complications that can come from that initial problem. So if you delay the care, you are denying the care and you are actually increasing the cost.

There are 15 million people in this population. I have no idea if their plans include all of them. But if you add 15 million new people to Medicare, what you are going to have is 50 percent of them are not going to find a primary care physician to care for them because the rate of reimbursement does not cover the cost of care.

I think the editorial you quote is exactly right.

I would also note, if I may, that President Obama loves the Mayo Clinic, and rightly so. I had a brain tumor removed the summer before last by the Mayo Clinic. I am standing here on the Senate floor because of their expertise.

Mr. MCCAIN. There are many who believe the Senator from Oklahoma could not have a heart attack.

Mr. COBURN. I will ignore that comment.

The fact is, what Mayo says is we have to figure out how we create incentives in terms of how do we get people cared for at a lower cost. Medicare is not the way to do it.

As a matter of fact, I heard our colleagues talk. We have had eight votes since last Saturday. We are ready to vote. This is a 2,074-page bill. I have 15 amendments in the queue. I want to vote on them.

They don't want to vote because they don't want the American people to hear all the bad things about what is going to happen to their health care if this bill passes. If we do Medicare, what is going to happen is Medicare costs are going to skyrocket, but access is going to go down.

Mr. MCCAIN. Apparently, I would ask my colleague from Tennessee, we do not know what we would be voting on because there has been a whole rewrite of this health care reform here after a year. We do not even know what the provisions of that bill are except what has been leaked. Apparently, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, with the exception of the majority leader, don't know what it is either.

Mr. COBURN. If the Senator will yield, there are some things we could vote on. President Obama outlined some very specific things that ought to be in this bill. We ought to vote to put them in the bill.

What he said he wanted and what this bill presents are two different things. We ought to vote on making sure everybody has access. We ought to vote on making sure we are under the same plan as everybody else we are going to put into any new expanded health care coverage. We ought to vote in making sure everybody is treated fairly in this country. We ought to vote on your prescription drug reimportation. We ought to vote. But what we are doing is we are getting a slowdown.

We heard we are obstructing the bill. We are not obstructing the bill. Any other bill that comes before this body that had 2,000 pages in it we would allot 8 weeks, 10 weeks to debate.

As our colleague from Maine knows, there is not a more complicated subject that will affect more people that this body has ever taken up. We are trying to squeeze that into 3½ weeks, and the last 2 weeks we don't know what is in the bill.

Time out.

Mr. CORKER. I would like to thank the Senator from Arizona for his great leadership on this issue. I agree with all here. I would like to continue to discuss this, ''colloquize,'' if you will, and vote. That is what we need to do all weekend is talk about this issue and vote.

There are numbers of amendments. But the thing that is interesting to me, I say to the Senator from Arizona—he has been one of the great champions in this country as it relates to how we live within our means. He has pointed out waste in government. He has pointed out overspending.

What has happened during this Christmas season is, for our friends on the other side of the aisle Medicare has become the gift that just keeps on giving.

I know the Senator talked about, during his campaign—and all of us have—that we need to get Medicare to a point where it is solvent, where seniors actually have the ability to use the benefits later on that now are in place. We have all talked about the need to make it solvent.

What does the base of this bill do? It takes $464 billion out of Medicare to create a whole new entitlement. It doesn't even deal with the doc fix, as we have said many times.

The reason, by the way, we do not know what this says is the leadership on the other side—this is another one of those yellow post-its. They are throwing it up on the wall just to see if it works. They are not telling us what the game plan is because they don't yet know whether it works. What they are hoping to do is to solve a major problem they have within their caucus, again, by taking from Medicare.

If you think about the fact that the Mayo Clinic, which is the model for all of us, would not even take new Medicare patients, and yet our friends on the other side of the aisle are trying to throw a whole new decade of seniors into the plan, what that means is less and less seniors are going to have access to care. That is what this means.

The other side of the aisle, I will have to say, based on history, I am surprised, but they continue, through their policies, to throw seniors under the bus.

I do not understand what has happened. This must be about a political victory and not about health care reform. What we would do is more firmly put in place, again, bad policy. The problem with Medicare today is physicians and providers are paid fees to do more work. So now what we would be doing, instead of health care reform, which is what Senator COBURN and all of us have talked about for some time, we are putting in place, in cement, something that works poorly, that the Mayo Clinic said is damaging to them and their patients, we would be putting it in place for even more people.

I thank the Senator for his leadership. I hope to be with him all weekend discussing amendments that are important and voting on those amendments. I can't imagine a better place for all of us to be.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Senator. May I ask the Republican leader, again, to be very clear that it is his view and that of all Republican Members that we will stay in for as long as it takes to get this issue resolved and we are prepared to vote throughout the entire weekend. If the majority leader moves to the Omnibus appropriations bills, we will have a conference report, and we will certainly have discussion about a bill that has 4,752 earmarks totaling $3.7 billion. But we should not get off this, should we?

Mr. MCCONNELL. My friend is entirely correct. I can only quote the majority leader himself who said we were going to be here this weekend. We expect to be here this weekend. If he tries to leave, we will have a vote to adjourn, and I am confident every Republican will vote against adjourning. This either is or it isn't as important as the majority says it is. If it is that important, we need to be here. More importantly than being here, equally important to being here is to vote. We tried to get a vote all day yesterday on a motion by Senator CRAPO. What we heard from the other side is: We are working on a side-by-side. That is kind of parliamentary inside talk for delay. We are ready to vote. As several of our colleagues have suggested, we keep hearing about these new iterations of this bill. It reminds me of the end of a football game, trying to throw a ''Hail Mary'' pass, just somehow, some way find a way to pass this bill. I think it important to remember what happens to most Hail Marys. They fall to the ground incomplete. You get the impression they are far less interested in the substance of the bill than just passing something.

When the President came up here last Sunday, he said: Make history. Make history? The American people are not asking us to make history by passing this bill. They don't believe it is about the President. They believe it is about the substance. We are out here prepared to talk about the substance of this measure, offer amendments, and we fully intend to do it for as long as it takes. As the Senator has suggested, if the majority leader pivots to a conference report, which he is able to do under our process, we will spend all the time it takes to deal with the conference report.

Mr. MCCAIN. May I point out, again, as the Senator from Maine, Ms. SNOWE, pointed out—and it was highlighted in the Wall Street Journal—no major reform in the modern history of this Senate has been enacted without bipartisan support, a reason for us to go back to the drawing board.

I know the Senator from Texas has been heavily involved in the issue of hospitalization and the American Hospital Association's reaction to what appears to be an expansion of Medicare.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I thank the Senator from Arizona. I am pleased our leader is standing strong to say nothing should take precedence over our handling of this bill and making sure it is done right. That is what the Republicans are trying to do, to make sure this is done right. We talked about the Medicare expansion that is in the purported bill that we have not seen yet but that Democrats appear to be putting forward. We have also been spending the week talking about $½ trillion in cuts to Medicare. Now we are talking about possibly expanding Medicare at the same time we are cutting $½ trillion out of the care Medicare patients would get.

I have an amendment. It would stop the $135 billion in cuts in the underlying bill to hospitals, cutting hospital reimbursements for Medicare patients. That is my amendment. Now we are talking about possibly expanding Medicare. The American Hospital Association put out an alarm, an action alert. It says:

Medicare pays hospitals 91 cents for every dollar of care provided. Medicaid pays just 88 cents for each dollar of care provided.

Medicaid, which may also be expanded, and the cuts in Medicare, which we are talking about possibly expanding, would go forward. Which means what? The hospital association knows what. ''What'' is rural hospitals that care for Medicare patients are going to go under. What kind of services can be provided if there is no hospital in the whole county that can provide care to these senior citizens? I ask the Senator from Arizona, who has been such a leader on this, we are going to cut $135 billion out of Medicare coverage for hospitals. We are going to now talk about expanding the coverage of more Medicare patients, which will mean we will cut more from the hospitals than is even envisioned in the underlying bill. Help me understand this, Senator. How would you suggest that passes the commonsense test?

Mr. MCCAIN. May I say, having stood fifth from the bottom of my class at the Naval Academy, I cannot explain it. But perhaps before I turn to the Senator from South Dakota, maybe we could get a response from Dr. COBURN to that question.

Mr. COBURN. They are going to cut care. We are going to have more complications and worse outcomes. That is what is going to happen. Rather than changing the payment formula, which is what we should do, by rewarding quality and rewarding outcome, rather than rewarding flipping a switch, that is what needs to happen. We are going to take the same antiquated system, we are going to cut $465 billion from it, and then we are going to add, as my colleague from Tennessee said, it is 34 million people, if they include everybody from 55 to 64 in the same program.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Is the Senator saying that whether you were at the top of your class, such as the Senator from Oklahoma or the Senator from Tennessee or the Senator from South Dakota, or the bottom of your class, as the Senator from Arizona has admitted he held down the fort, regardless of where you are on the quotient of where you stood in your class, you know what the bottom line is.

Mr. COBURN. Care is going to be impacted. Here is a survey of 90,000 physicians. That is more than the active practicing physicians of the AMA. More than 8 in 10 physicians surveyed think payment reform is best to improve the system for all Americans. Only 5 percent of the physicians surveyed rated the current government health care program as effective, 5 percent.

Mr. MCCAIN. I yield to the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. THUNE. I ask my colleague from Arizona if this is what happens when you end up with one-party rule, one party trying to go this on their own. This seems to be a model of dysfunction in how to come up with a solution to one of the major problems facing the American people, dysfunctional by Washington's twisted standards. They seem to be desperately throwing things at the wall, hoping something will stick. Surely, there has to be a better suggestion coming from the other side than to expand a program that is destined to be bankrupt in the year 2017. It is the equivalent of a ship that is sinking. It is similar to the Titanic. You will put more people on the deck of a sinking ship. Clearly, the overall objective, at least among some, and I think some have been very transparent about it—someone quoted earlier today the Congressman from New York in the other body who said this is the mother of all public options. He went on to say:

Never mind the camel's nose. We have his head and neck in the tent on the way to a single-payer system.

Obviously, there are people here who want to see a single-payer system, who want to see government-run health care. We don't happen to believe that is the best solution for America's health care system, but the amazing thing about this proposal is, it takes a program that is destined to be bankrupt in a few short years, cuts $1 trillion out of it over 10 years, when fully implemented, and then adds millions of new people into that program. It is hard to come up with any rational explanation for what is going on here, other than that they are left with, in desperation, trying to throw something at the wall, hoping it will stick. Is this typically what happens around here when one party tries to go on its own on something that is this consequential to America? One-sixth of our economy is represented by health care.

Essentially, what they are saying is, we want to expand that part of the economy that isn't working today, that is headed for bankruptcy, that underreimburses doctors and hospitals, put more money into that failed system, exacerbate the cost-shift problem by forcing people in the private-payer market to pay higher premiums. It seems like this creates all sorts of problems that make matters even worse.

I appreciate my colleague's leadership on this issue of pointing out what inevitably is going to happen. When you have the Washington Post editorial this morning even acknowledging the terrible problems this creates for health care and the way this is being conducted, sausage being made here in Washington, DC. Even by Washington's twisted standards, this process has become so dysfunctional, I don't know how they can recover.

One thing they could do is decide to sit down with Republicans and actually figure out some things we could do that would drive health care costs down, rather than making them go up.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Senator from South Dakota. I have to say I have never, in the years I have been here, seen a process such as this. It is incredibly bizarre that after a year, after hundreds of hours in the HELP Committee, after how many hundreds of hours in the Finance Committee, products are here on our desks. Yet there is a meeting yesterday of the Democrats. They come out, and they don't know what the proposal is either. Apparently, there is only one Senator who knows what the proposal is and that is the majority leader. Also, then it is OK to go home for the weekend. I honestly say to my colleague from South Dakota, I have never seen anything quite like this, especially when we are talking about one-sixth of the gross national product. Of course, already from what they know, the hospitals and doctors and others have come out in strong opposition to expansion of a program, as the Senator points out, that is going broke.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I say to my friend from Arizona, he made reference today to the senior Senator from Maine and her very insightful and thoughtful and correct speech a couple weeks ago about how an issue of this magnitude was historically dealt with here and how it was not being dealt with this way. She pointed out, major domestic legislation in modern U.S. history was, without exception, done on a largely bipartisan basis. That whole process, as the Senator from Maine pointed out, has been entirely missing, as we have moved along toward developing this 2,074-page monstrosity of a bill, designed to entirely restructure one-sixth of our economy on a totally partisan basis.

I don't think that is what the American people had in mind. They want us here, as we have all indicated, debating, discussing, and amending this proposal. That is what we would like to do for as long as it takes.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, if the Republican leader will think back when he first came to the Senate as a young aide in 1969, the year before I was a young aide in the Senate,

I can remember President Johnson, a Democrat, and Everett Dirksen, the Republican leader, dealing with the open housing legislation in 1968, a very controversial bill. How did they deal with it? The Democratic President had the bill literally written in the office of the Republican leader, with staff members and Senators trooping in and out. The country looked to Washington and said: Well, the Republican leader and the Democratic President both think it is important. They are trying to work it out. In the end, they voted for cloture. In the end, they got the bill.

Mr. MCCONNELL. My friend from Tennessee is entirely correct. Right before we got here—right before we got here—in 1964 and 1965, the Democrats had overwhelming majorities, as they do now, and the civil rights bill of 1964 and the voting rights bill of 1965 passed on an overwhelming bipartisan basis. The leader of the Republicans, Everett Dirksen, was every bit as much involved in that, if not more involved in it, than even the Democrats. Republicans supported it. On a percentage basis, a greater number——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURRIS). The minority time has expired.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 1 more minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. An even greater percentage of Republicans ended up supporting the civil rights bills of 1964 and 1965 than Democrats. But it was a truly bipartisan landscape for our country—a landmark, important. It was widely accepted by the American people because of the broad bipartisan support it enjoyed. That is what has been lacking here from the beginning.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a list of physician organizations that oppose this act, representing nearly one-half million physicians, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PHYSICIAN ORGANIZATIONS THAT OPPOSE SENATE'S PATIENT PROTECTION AND AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

To date over 40 state, county and national medical societies, representing nearly one-half million physicians, have stated their public opposition to the Senate healthcare overhaul bill, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (H.R. 3590). It is time for Congress to slow down, take a step back, and change the direction of current reform efforts to ensure that it is done right!

Hon. HARRY REID,
Majority Leader, U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR LEADER REID: On behalf of the over 240,000 surgeons and anesthesiologists we represent and the millions of surgical patients we treat each year, the undersigned 19 organizations strongly support the need for national health care reform and share the Senate's commitment to make affordable quality health care more accessible to all Americans. As you know, we have been working diligently and in good faith with the Senate during the past year and have provided input at various stages in the process of drafting the Senate's health care reform bill. To this end, we have reviewed the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act of 2009.

As you may recall, on November 4 our coalition sent you a letter outlining a number of serious concerns that needed to be addressed to ensure that any final health care reform package would be built on a solid foundation in the best interest of our patients. Since those concerns have not been adequately addressed, as detailed below, we must oppose the legislation as currently written.

We oppose:

Establishment and proposed implementation of an Independent Medicare Advisory Board whose recommendations could become law without congressional action;

Mandatory participation in a seriously flawed Physician Quality Reporting Initiative (PQRI) program with penalties for non-participation;

Budget-neutral bonus payments to primary care physicians and rural general surgeons;

Creation of a budget-neutral value-based payment modifier which CMS does not have the capability to implement and places the provision on an unrealistic and unachievable timeline;

Requirement that physicians pay an application fee to cover a background check for participation in Medicare despite already being obligated to meet considerable requirements of training, licensure, and board certification;

Relying solely on the limited recommendations of the United States Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) in determining a minimum coverage standard for preventive services and associated cost-sharing protections;

The so-called ''non-discrimination in health care'' provision that would create patient confusion over greatly differing levels of education, skills and training among health care professionals while inappropriately interjecting civil rights concepts into state scope of practice laws;

The absence of a permanent fix to Medicare's broken physician payment system and any meaningful proven medical liability reforms; and

The last-minute addition of the excise tax on elective cosmetic medical procedures. This tax discriminates against women and the middle class. Experience at the state level has demonstrated that it is a failed policy which will not result in the projected revenue. Furthermore, this provision is arbitrary, difficult to administer, unfairly puts the physician in the role of tax collector, and raises serious patient confidentiality issues.

This bill goes a long way towards realizing the goal of expanding health insurance coverage and takes important steps to improve quality and explore innovative systems for health care delivery. Despite serious concerns, there are several provisions in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act of 2009 that the surgical community supports, strongly believes are in the best interest of the surgical patients, and should be maintained in any final package. Specifically these include: health insurance market reforms, including the elimination of coverage denials based on preexisting medical conditions and guaranteed availability and renewability of health insurance coverage; strengthening patient access to emergency and trauma care by ensuring the survival of trauma centers, developing regionalized systems of care to optimize patient outcomes, and improving emergency care for children; well-designed clinical comparative effectiveness research, conducted through an independent institute and not used for determining medical necessity or making coverage and payment decisions or recommendations; and the exclusion of ultrasound from the increase in the utilization rate for calculating the payment for imaging services.

Further, while redistribution of unused residency positions to general surgery is a positive step in addressing the predicted shortage in the surgical workforce, we believe that the Senate should look more broadly at the issue of limits on residency positions for all specialties that work in the surgical setting that are also facing severe workforce problems.

Finally, we are pleased that you have accepted our suggestion and removed language which would reduce payments to physicians who are found to have the highest utilization of resources—without regard to the acuity of the patient's physical condition or the complexity of the care being provided. We thank you for making this important change.

While we must oppose the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act as currently written, the surgical coalition is committed to the passage of meaningful and comprehensive health care reform that is in the best interest of our patients. We are committed to working with you to make critical changes that are vital to ensuring that this legislation is based on sound policy, and that it will have a long-term positive impact on patient access to safe and effective high-quality surgical care.

Sincerely,

DECEMBER 7, 2009.

Hon. HARRY REID,
Majority Leader, U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR REID: The undersigned state and national specialty medical societies are writing you on behalf of more than 92,000 physicians in opposition to passage of the ''Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act'' (H.R. 3590) and to urge you to draft a more targeted bill that will reform the country's flawed system for financing healthcare, while preserving the best healthcare in the world. While continuance of the status quo is not acceptable, the shifting to the federal government of so much control over medical decisions is not justified. We are therefore united in our resolve to achieve health system reform that empowers patients and preserves the practice of medicine—without creating a huge government bureaucracy.

H.R. 3590 creates a number of problematic provisions, including:

The bill undermines the patient-physician relationship and empowers the federal government with even greater authority. Under the bill, (1) employers would be required to provide health insurance or face financial penalties; (2) health insurance packages with government prescribed benefits will be mandatory; (3) doctors would be forced to participate in the flawed Physician Quality Reporting Initiative (PQRI) or face penalties for nonparticipation; and (4) physicians would have to comply with extensive new reporting requirements related to quality improvement, case management, care coordination, chronic disease management, and use of health information technology.

The bill is unsustainable from a financial standpoint. It significantly expands Medicaid eligibility, shifting healthcare costs to physicians who are paid below the cost of delivering care and to the states that are already operating under severe budget constraints. It also postpones the start of subsidies for the uninsured long after the government levies new user fees and new taxes to cover expanded coverage and benefits. This ''back-loading'' of new spending makes the long-term costs appear deceptively low.

The government-run community health insurance option eventually will lead to a single-payer, government run healthcare system. Despite the state opt-out provision, the community health insurance option contains the same liabilities (i.e., government-run healthcare) as the public option that was passed by the House of Representatives. Such a system will ultimately limit patient choice and put the government between the doctor and the patient, interfering with patient care decisions.

Largely unchecked by Congress or the courts, the federal government would have unprecedented authority to change the Medicare program through the new Independent Medicare Advisory Board and the new Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation. Specifically, these entities could arbitrarily reduce payments to physicians for valuable, lifesaving care for elderly patients, reducing treatment options in a dramatic way.

The bill is devoid of real medical liability reform measures that reduce costs in proven demonstrable ways. Instead, it contains a ''Sense of the Senate'' encouraging states to develop and test alternatives to the current civil litigation system as a way of addressing the medical liability problem. Given the fact that costs remain a significant concern, Congress should enact reasonable measures to reduce costs. The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) recently confirmed that enacting a comprehensive set of tort reforms will save the federal government $54 billion over 10 years. These savings could help offset increased health insurance premiums (which, according to the CBO, are expected to increase under the bill) or other costs of the bill.

The temporary one-year SGR ''patch'' to replace the 21.2 percent payment cut in 2010 with a 0.5 percent payment increase fails to address the serious underlying problems with the current Medicare physician payment system and compounds the accumulated SGR debt, causing payment cuts of nearly 25 percent in 2011. The CBO has confirmed that a significant reduction in physicians' Medicare payments will reduce beneficiaries' access to services.

The excise tax on elective cosmetic medical procedures in the bill will not produce the revenue projected. Experience at the state level has demonstrated that this is a failed policy. In addition, this provision is arbitrary, difficult to administer, unfairly puts the physician in the role of tax collector, and raises serious patient confidentiality issues. Physicians strongly oppose the use of provider taxes or fees of any kind to fund healthcare programs or to finance health system reform.

Our concerns about this legislation also extend to what is not in the bill. The right to privately contract is a touchstone of American freedom and liberty. Patients should have the right to choose their doctor and enter into agreements for the fees for those services without penalty. Current Medicare patients are denied that right. By guaranteeing all patients the right to privately contract with their physicians, without penalty, patients will have greater access to physicians and the government will have budget certainty. Nothing in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act addresses these fundamental tenets, which we believe are essential components of real health system reform.

Senator Reid, we are at a critical moment in history. America's physicians deliver the best medical care in the world, yet the systems that have been developed to finance the delivery of that care to patients have failed. With congressional action upon us, we are at a crossroads. One path accepts as ''necessary'' a substantial increase in federal government control over how medical care is delivered and financed. We believe the better path is one that allows patients and physicians to take a more direct role in their healthcare decisions. By encouraging patients to own their health insurance policies and by allowing them to freely exercise their right to privately contract with the physician of their choice, healthcare decisions will be made by patients and physicians and not by the government or other third party payers.

We urge you to slow down, take a step back, and change the direction of current reform efforts so we get it right for our patients and our profession. We have a prescription for reform that will work for all Americans, and we are happy to share these solutions with you to improve our nation's healthcare system.

Thank you for considering our views.

Sincerely,

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Montana for his courtesy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I must say, some of the debate on the other side of the aisle is a little surreal. They say they want to move ahead, and then they refuse to enter into any reasonable time agreement to consider a necessary appropriations measure. I find it very impressive—I am very impressed—how the minority can maintain both that they want to move more quickly and not move at all—surreal.

I wish to also explain, despite what the claims on the other side are, that we have attempted mightily to work together on both sides of the aisle to get health care reform passed. They claim it is all one-party rule. Nothing could be further from the truth. Let me explain why.

When we began this effort over a year ago, we had many hearings. In fact, last year I think I had 10 hearings in the Finance Committee on health care reform to educate ourselves because we knew health care reform was going to be a big issue in the year 2009. So, in 2008, we had many Finance Committee hearings on all different aspects of health care. How does our system work? How do parts fit together? How does this all work? We were there to educate ourselves. We did not have a political ax to grind. We were not trying to make points. We got the experts in and asked: How does it work? How do the different parts of our system work together?

Then we issued a white paper. It was in November of last year. It was basically a call to action, which is what we called it. It was about an 80-, 90-page paper. It was a statement of the health care options: delivery system reforms, various ways to get increased health care coverage, various ways to help with insurance market reform—lots of different provisions.

I might say, casting all modesty to the wind, that white paper, that call to action, back in November of 2008, is probably the basis and springboard from which most of the ideas we have been debating, both in the House and in the Senate and on both sides of the aisle, come from. They basically come from there.

I might say, it has all been totally transparent. It is all on the Internet. It has all been open for everybody. Republicans and Democrats participated fully. First was the Library of Congress all-day session, both sides fully—that was over a year ago.

Since then, in 2009, this year, we have had a countless number—in the Finance Committee—of what we call roundtables, a countless number of walk-throughs, a countless number of hearings on all the various aspects of health care reform—bipartisan, fully open.

Also, I instituted something else here; that is, we got to the point where we finally got to the markup, and we put the marked up bill on the Internet, again, so everybody sees everything. We also made sure all amendments were on the Internet and fully debated by both sides—totally open, totally transparent. I prided myself on doing that.

In fact, one very well-known health journalist who works for a very major paper walked up to me and said: MAX, is this a new way of doing things? Maybe you started something, MAX, in being so transparent and working so much together. Do you think this is the model for the future? I said: I don't know. But it impressed him how much we tried to work together and did work together with people on both sides of the aisle.

I cannot think of a more comprehensive, more transparent, more bipartisan effort than this.

So what happened? Well, the HELP Committee had their version passed. So we in the Finance Committee worked on ours. To move the ball, I shifted it to another group—we called it the Gang of 6; three Republicans, three Democrats—to try to get a core provision together that we could take to the full committee.

We had a countless number of meetings. I have forgotten the number of days we met—I think in the nature of 30 or 40 meetings and close to 100 hours and with Republicans and Democrats to and fro. Guess what. It was very, very constructive. I wish the American public could have been an eye on the wall at those meetings and watched these meetings proceed. There were very good questions asked by Senators on both sides, Republicans and Democrats.

I highly compliment my friend from Wyoming, Senator ENZI. I highly compliment my friend from Maine, Senator SNOWE. I highly compliment everybody who was there. They asked very good questions—and Senator GRASSLEY, of course, he is the ranking member of the Finance Committee; and the same on the Democratic side—in an effort to try to find a good, solid health care reform bill.

Well, we kept working—bipartisan—working together for days, days, hours, hours. Then, unfortunately, we got to the point where—I am just calling it as I see it; one of my failings is I am too honest about things—and the Republicans started to walk away. They pulled away from the table. They had to leave.

I ask you, why? Why did that happen? The answer—to be totally fair and above board—is because their leadership asked them to. Their leadership asked them to become disengaged from the process. I know that to be a fact. Why did their leadership ask Republicans to leave and become disengaged from the process? To be totally candid, it is because they wanted to score political points by just attacking this bill. They were not here to help be constructive, to find some bipartisan solution. They were for a while. Then, when the rubber started to meet the road, when it came time to try to make some decisions, they left and began to attack.

I think a big, unfortunate circumstance in all this—we are going to pass health care reform. It is going to pass. It is going to do wonders for the American people. We are going to dramatically reform the health insurance market. People are going to have health insurance they do not now have. We are going to help put in place delivery system reforms. That is just a fancy term for saying changing the way we reimburse hospitals and doctors in a very positive way, so we are focusing more on quality and less on quantity and volume. This bill is going to pass. It is going to be a very good bill when it finally does pass and people understand it.

But the unfortunate part is this: It is unfortunate, in my judgment, that the other side pursued a strategy of just saying no, just saying no, and attack, attack, attack. That is basically what we have heard here in the last several weeks, instead of coming up with a comprehensive alternative, instead of coming up with a comprehensive alternative health care reform package. Then it would have been wonderful if we had an honest-to-goodness, solid debate on the pros and cons of each side, the merits of each side, a constructive dialog, pursuit, inquiry, focus on which portions of this should be put in the bill and which should not. But that did not happen. We did not have this constructive alternative provision presented to us. We had no provision presented to us—and by ''to us,'' I mean the American public—so we could debate here. But, rather, they just said no.

We have worked as hard as we could to be bipartisan. But to be honest and candid about it, the other side walked away. They walked away, and I think it is very unfortunate that happened.

Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. KIRK.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. President, before I say anything else, I wish to, once again, commend the Senator from Montana for his leadership on this historic piece of legislation. It is going to have an impact on people more widely and broadly than our Social Security system, and this will be as important a domestic piece of legislation as that. Every American who looks forward to their golden years knows what Social Security means.

The Senator from Montana has quite correctly mentioned how this legislation will have an impact on people's lives. I have only been in the Senate a short period of time, but I cannot tell you the numbers of constituents who have communicated with me about their situation in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; whereas, in 2006, Massachusetts enacted health care reform, many of the aspects of that legislation are contained in the bill we are debating.

For the record, today the Boston Globe published a story indicating that more than 96 percent of the State's adult taxpayers had health insurance in 2008. This is close to universal coverage, and I am sure, before too long, we will be able to say we hit the 100-percent mark.

This is providing affordable insurance to people who otherwise would never have had it. When the Senator from Montana talked about how this bill would impact people's lives, I am going to tell you a story that was told to me by a family who had a situation. I will call them Daniel and Brenda. Those are their names.

They had been living without health insurance for years. In fact, Brenda said she could barely remember when they had last gone to the doctor because they did not have health insurance. But she learned about our Health Care for All on the Helpline that is in existence in Massachusetts from a close friend. Soon after she contacted it, her husband was diagnosed with a serious heart condition. With the indispensable assistance of the Helpline, her family was able to enroll in coverage they could afford.

Brenda's husband Daniel had started to feel constant fatigue. He never imagined that someday he would need to have a strong supporting device inserted in his heart. Brenda said they truly appreciated all the assistance given to them through the Helpline. But there is more.

Brenda and Daniel recently welcomed a new addition to their family. Unfortunately, their son was born with respiratory problems and had to stay in the intensive care unit for 7 days immediately after his birth. Brenda told us she had a hard time leaving the hospital without her newborn son in her arms. But she could also take comfort in being surrounded by top medical professionals who were dedicated to caring for her son. Here is what she wrote:

Health Care for All has been such a gift to our lives. First, my husband had no idea of the seriousness of his health issue. If it wasn't for our eligibility with the [State's new health care reform] programs, we would probably have found out about his heart disease too late. And right after came the unexpected surprise of having my son in neonatal care for a week. Both of these situations were hard to go through just emotionally. We just couldn't imagine how it could have been hard financially speaking. That's why, and for many other reasons, we are just so amazed to be Massachusetts residents and count on the tremendous support we have been receiving from the Helpline counselors.

This is just one example of countless families I have heard from in Massachusetts.

It clearly shows how important it is to pass national health care reform and enable all Americans to have the quality, affordable health care that Brenda, Daniel, and their son were able to have.

So I wanted to bring to the attention of our colleagues in the Senate a real life story of what health care reform can mean and what will be great relief for the financial and health security to American families when we enact this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the Boston Globe article I mentioned be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Boston Globe, Dec. 10, 2009]

FEWER TAXPAYERS ARE PENALIZED FOR NOT HAVING HEALTH COVERAGE

(By Elizabeth Cooney)

Fewer Massachusetts taxpayers were penalized for lacking required health insurance last year than were fined in 2007, the state said yesterday in a report reflecting the second year that residents had to report on their tax returns whether they were covered under the state's near-universal-coverage mandate.

More than 96 percent, or 3.8 million, of the state's 3.95 million adult taxpayers said they had health insurance for at least part of 2008, according to the state Department of Revenue, and 3.65 million had coverage for the entire year.

About 45,000 tax filers did not have health insurance, although they were classified as able to afford it under state guidelines. They paid a penalty of up to $76 for each month they went without coverage, depending on a sliding scale matched to their income. Another 8,000 successfully appealed their penalties, based on hardship, to the Commonwealth Health Insurance Connector Authority.

In 2007, when 95 percent of tax filers said they were insured, more people were fined: 60,000 people lost their personal exemption, about $219 for an individual, for not having health insurance that year.

''This report gives us yet another data point demonstrating the continued success of health reform with exceptionally high rates of insurance and a smooth system for the mandate in the Commonwealth,'' Lindsey Tucker, health reform policy manager at the advocacy group Health Care For All, said in an e-mailed statement.

''The report also reminds us of one of the major gaps in our reform: the thousands of residents unable to purchase insurance due to its lack of affordability,'' she said. ''We must continue to search for ways to keep quality coverage affordable for all our residents.''

The penalty, which is pegged to one half the cost of the lowest premium offered by the Commonwealth Connector, went up to a maximum of $89 a month for 2009, and the Revenue Department has proposed raising it to $93 in 2010.

People who are deemed unable to afford insurance are not penalized, and those who have a lapse of up to three months in their coverage are also not subject to the penalty.

The high percentage of tax filers reporting they have insurance fits with other state reports saying that 97 percent of all residents have coverage, Navjeet K. Bal, commissioner of the Department of Revenue, said in an interview.

''From 2007 to 2008, we did not see a real drop in health insurance,'' she said. ''Even with the economic turmoil that started in [fall] 2008, people still had health insurance. A year from now, we'll see.''

Mr. KIRK. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. CASEY. Mr. President, I rise this afternoon to speak on two subjects as part of our health care debate. The first is what happens to our children. We have had an opportunity over the last couple of weeks, and will continue to have a full debate about so many aspects of this legislation. When it comes to the question of what happens to our children—and I speak of in this case poor children and special needs children—I have said from the beginning of this debate and even before the debate began many months ago that the standard ought to be four words: No child worse off. It is a very simple standard. I think it is a standard we can meet and I believe it is a standard we should meet for the most vulnerable children in America—those who happen to be poor or suffer from or are burdened by special needs, both the impact on that child, that individual life, as well as the impact on his or her family.

The good news is that over the last couple of years, we have gotten it right with regard to children's health insurance, a program I am proud to say had a good bit of its foundation and its origins in Pennsylvania. It became a national effort in 1997 when President Clinton signed the legislation. We have had, frankly, a lot of bipartisan support for this program over many years, although we had less bipartisan support when it was reauthorized this past year when President Obama signed it into law.

Here is what it means. The Children's Health Insurance Program, known by the acronym CHIP, has provided millions of children with health insurance coverage they would never have absent that program. We don't know the exact number as we speak today, but we are at a point now where we have in the range of 7 million or more children covered. Over the next couple of years, we will have 14 million American children covered. That is an enormous achievement, but more important than any kind of legislative achievement, it will mean that 14 million children or their families won't have to worry about whether they get quality health care.

In the first year of a child's life, the experts tell us they should get to the doctor at least six times for a so-called well child visit. A Children's Health Insurance Program in America ensures these children receive many benefits, including dental, immunization, and preventive care. But the fact I always point to is that for six times in the first year of a child's life, he or she will get to see a doctor because they are in the CHIP program, and that has an enormous impact for that one life, for that one family, but I would argue—and I think the evidence is irrefutable—it will have a positive impact on all of our lives, because of the impact of millions of children getting that kind of help in the early years of their life.

We know this program works. The Children's Health Insurance Program works. That is an understatement. It works well.

What we are worried about, though—what I am worried about—is that there have been people in Washington who have advocated putting the Children's Health Insurance Program in the new insurance exchange. The exchange is going to be a very positive development for our health care system and for adults, but I would argue strongly and vigorously that it is not good for kids. So we are going to be debating that maybe in a couple of years, but we want to make sure as we debate that question that we have as much evidence to show that and put forth the reasons why the Children's Health Insurance Program should not—should not—be part of the exchange.

In terms of why we say that, the research on this question is indisputable. The director of CBO, the Congressional Budget Office, Doug Elmendorf—and we know a lot about CBO. They make determinations about this bill and about costs. CBO has said that children will have better benefits and more cost savings in CHIP than they will in the exchange.

Yesterday, an organization many people here know as First Focus released a white paper which compared Children's Health Insurance coverage versus coverage those children would get in the exchange. Here are some of the results of that research paper.

No. 1, the question of children's coverage from 2009 through 2013:

If health reform were to repeal CHIP in 2013, States would not invest in improving coverage for those children when those very efforts will be dismantled just a few years later.

It stands to reason. Why would a State go forward to strengthen a program they know is going to change as a matter of Federal policy a couple of years later?

The increased coverage of 4 million children that is expected from passing Children's Health Insurance legislation earlier this year would be largely lost.

That whole effort that took years—years—and two Presidential vetoes, before President Obama became President, to get to continue the CHIP program and expand.

No. 2, First Focus, another one of their conclusions:

Children in most State Children's Health Insurance Plans receive coverage for all approved vaccinations, dental care and well-baby and well-child visits. This level of benefits stand in contrast to private plans, like those in the exchanges.

What is good for an adult may not be good for a child. Children are not small adults as so many advocates have said over and over. But the level of benefits that children get in CHIP stands in contrast to the provisions in private plans such as those in the exchange which often impose limits that are particularly harmful to low-income children and children with special needs.

That is conclusion No. 2 by First Focus.

Conclusion No. 3 is the following:

An actuarial study—

A recent study—finds that children moved from CHIP to the exchange plans would dramatically increase out-of-pocket costs for those kids. Out-of-pocket costs for a child living in a family earning 225 percent of the Federal poverty level would increase by 1,100 percent—not 1,100 dollars, but 1,100 percent—

if the Senate were to join the House in repealing Children's Health Insurance Program.

This is another reason why it is a bad idea. We want to make sure this program is strong. We know it works. We also don't want to exponentially, radically increase out-of-pocket costs.

Conclusion No. 4, premiums:

Because Children's Health Insurance keeps premiums and other out-of-pocket costs for children at low levels, the cost of health insurance exchange plans will be many times higher than that, even for just covering children.

An increase in premiums will lead to a number of children currently enrolled in CHIP to lose coverage—to lose coverage—according to the Congressional Budget Office.

No. 5, reason to do the right thing, access to pediatric providers:

Children's Health Insurance plans specifically focus on the unique health care needs of children, which is not the case in the proposed exchanges. The recent Children's Health Insurance reauthorization—

For those who watch these Senate debates, we use words such as ''reauthorization.'' My simple way of saying that is we do it again. We take an existing program, evaluate it, see if it is working, and keep doing it. That is what reauthorization is all about. But we did that earlier in the year, thank goodness, for children's health insurance.

The recent effort to continue CHIP included improvements to pediatric-specific quality measures that may get lost in the conversion of CHIP as a stand-alone program put into the exchange. We don't want to do that for kids. We want to make sure every pediatric-specific quality measure that we have in place now, all of these years later, is maintained. We don't want to injure that. We don't want to cut that back.

Finally, in terms of another item on the list of reasons, guarantee to care:

In exchange plans, some children currently eligible for the Children's Health Insurance Program may be barred—may be barred—from receiving subsidies for coverage due to the cost of employer-sponsored plans.

Once again, what is good for an adult may not be good for our kids. We have to watch this.

Moreover, the families that are eligible for subsidies and coverage through exchange plans may find coverage so unaffordable that they are left without insurance entirely.

So we don't want to send a family into the exchange who is trying to get insurance for themselves and their kids and find out that they can't cover their kids because it costs too much. We have an existing, stand-alone Children's Health Insurance Program that we know works.

This amendment I filed for this debate on health care—the children's health insurance amendment to guarantee that we keep it strong, strengthen it and continue it—the Children's Health Insurance Program has the support of over 500 national and State organizations that focus on children's health, health policy generally, social workers, children's mental health advocates, school educators, health plans in particular, faith groups across the country, and more. These 500 national and State organizations speak volumes about why this amendment is so important. We must strengthen and ensure the continuity of CHIP in this health care reform bill. That is what our amendment is all about.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to hae printed in the RECORD a letter addressed to me, dated December 9, from more than 500 organizations.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DECEMBER 9, 2009.

Hon. ROBERT P. CASEY, JR.,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CASEY: As organizations committed to ensuring that all of our nation's children get the health coverage they need and deserve, we are writing to thank you for your commitment to making children an important priority by filing Amendment #2790 to the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (H.R. 3590). Your amendment builds on the provisions of the underlying bill, continuing to protect and improve the country's successful Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) and ensuring that no child ends up worse off as a result of health reform. We applaud your leadership.

America's children have a lot at stake in health reform. More than eight million children remain uninsured, and more are losing employer-sponsored coverage daily. Families are just one playground accident away from medical bankruptcy. Each day a child is uninsured is a lost opportunity to strengthen our next generation, America's future. Your amendment goes a long way toward protecting and improving coverage for millions of children in low-income working families across the nation by:

Providing full funding for CHIP through 2019;

Maintaining current CHIP eligibility through 2013, and setting a floor for income eligibility for children in all states at 250 percent of poverty ($55,125 for a family of four) beginning in 2014;

Streamlining enrollment procedures making it easier for children to get coverage and keep it;

Ensuring that coverage for children remains affordable;

Guaranteeing all children in CHIP the comprehensive care they need from head to toe; and Requiring an HHS report in 2016 that will compare coverage for children in CHIP with coverage for children in the new Health Insurance Exchange and if coverage (including benefits, cost-sharing, premiums, and other features) is comparable or better, children can be transitioned from CHIP into the Exchange in 2019.

Our nation has made great strides over the last decade in securing health coverage for low-income children of working families. We must now seize this historic opportunity to build on the success of prior efforts and the bipartisan CHIP program, and ensure that children will be better off, not worse off, as a result of health reform. Your amendment will do just that.

We offer our strong support for your CHIP Amendment (#2790). We stand ready to work with you and your Senate colleagues to achieve our common goal of reforming our nation's health care system and ensuring that all children, indeed everyone in America, have access to the health coverage they need and deserve.

Sincerely,

National Organizations.

Mr. CASEY. Thank you very much. I wish to inquire as to how much time I have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 3½ minutes remaining.

Mr. CASEY. I will move quickly.

The second part of my remarks focuses on pregnant and parenting teens and women. We have an amendment that focuses on a group of pregnant women in America that we are not doing enough about. Neither party, in my judgment, is doing enough about them, enough about help for those women. I will come back to this maybe later today. But it is vitally important, whether we are Democrats, Republicans, or Independents, but as Americans, that we give integrity and meaning to the sentiment that is often expressed that we care about pregnant women, that we care about a teen mother who decides to bear a child, that we are going to help her through if she makes that decision.

If a woman on a college campus becomes pregnant and decides to have that child, we want to give her all the help we can. If a woman is a victim of domestic violence or other sexual violence or stalking, and through all of the horrific nightmare of that violence, she determines that she is going to go through with a pregnancy and have a child, that we help her in the midst of that darkness, that we give her some light in that darkness. What we don't want to have is women who are deciding to bear a child who feel all alone, who have to walk that path all by themselves.

That is what this amendment is about. I will return to it later today.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we be able to go into a colloquy for the next half hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about the taxes that are in this bill—taxes that are imposed in 3 weeks—not 3 weeks from 6 months from now, not 3 weeks from 2014, but 3 weeks from now, January 1, 2010. Three weeks from now, on January 1, 2010, we are going to see the taxes in this bill start.

I know people are saying: Wait a minute. This bill doesn't take effect until 2014. That is what we have been talking about. It is what we have been hearing. But, no, the tax part starts in 3 weeks—January of 2010.

I have partnered with Senator THUNE, who has been working on this problem, and Senator GRASSLEY and Senator HATCH and many others who will be speaking today.

I see my colleagues from Florida, Nebraska, Wyoming, as well as my colleague, Senator CRAPO, from Idaho, all of whom—Senator CRAPO, of course, is waiting for a vote on his amendment, which would stop the taxes on everyone who makes $200,000 or less.

We are talking about the taxes because it is such a huge issue. Here is what is going to happen with the taxes in the bill that start in 3 weeks. Americans will pay more in insurance premiums. Americans will pay more in prescription drugs. Americans will pay more for medical equipment. Let's walk through those taxes.

In a few weeks, in January of 2010, this will begin: $22 billion in taxes on prescription drug manufacturers; $19 billion in taxes on medical device manufacturers; $60 billion in taxes on insurance companies. That is around $100 billion, which starts in 3 weeks. Then, in 2013, the taxes on high-benefit plans take effect. That is $150 billion in taxes. So for every union member who has a good plan that gives them the benefits they have negotiated for over the years, those taxes come in at 40 percent of the benefits. That starts in 2013.

You are still saying: Wait a minute. I thought the bill started in 2014—and that is right. But the taxes start in 3 weeks, and they keep right on going. In 2013, the high-benefit plans start getting a 40-percent excise tax.

Mr. President, when the $100 billion in taxes start in 3 weeks on drug manufacturers, medical device manufacturers, and insurance companies, what happens? Premiums go up immediately, prescription drug prices go up immediately, and the medical devices—hearing aids and things people need for medical treatments—go up immediately.

We have been talking about health care reform and the need for it, and the need to make history. Yet the reform we are going to see go into effect right away is huge tax increases. I am here with many colleagues, who are so concerned about this for their constituents.

I ask the Senator from Wyoming, who is one of the two physicians in the Senate—he has been so active in this area. When the taxes go up on our insurance premiums, our prescription drugs, and our medical equipment, I ask the Senator from Wyoming, as a physician, what does he think is going to happen to the cost of health care.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I have great concern about the cost of health care for American families. We see it with our seniors certainly, as they will be seeing Medicare cuts. In this bill, there is $464 billion in Medicare cuts, but there are taxes that are going to go up, which will impact all of the people in this country.

I remember a promise the President made. He said his plan would not raise taxes one penny. He went on to say: not your income taxes, payroll taxes, capital gains taxes—any of your taxes.

We are seeing that taxes are going up, and in a way that is basically—you hate to say it, but it is a gimmick in this bill, where they are going to collect taxes for 10 years but only give benefits for 6, and it is the last 6 years.

As my colleague from Texas said, they are going to start collecting taxes—today is December 10—on the 31st of this month, 21 days from now, but the services would not be given for 4 years. That is how they get the number under $1 trillion, and it is at a time when the President makes a statement that this would not add a penny or a dime to the deficit. Eighty percent of the American people don't believe it because they know what is in front of them. They know what it is like to live their own lives. Is this what the Senator from Texas is seeing as well?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. The President said, in his address to the joint session of Congress, that this bill had to come in at a cost of no more than $900 billion. So the CBO scored the bill at $847 billion. But the Senator from Wyoming has brought up a point that is because they started scoring the bill in 2010, but the services in the bill don't start until 2014.

If you take the years from 2010 to 2019, it probably comes in at $847 billion. But if you start when the spending starts and go to 2023, the cost is $2.5 trillion.

I just ask the Senator from Nebraska if his constituents are hearing of this $2.5 trillion cost, with one-quarter of it coming from Medicare cuts and about one-quarter of it in new taxes that start next week. What does the Senator from Nebraska say about this?

Mr. JOHANNS. Mr. President, the citizens from Nebraska are absolutely on to this gimmick. They know it is a gimmick. Here is what I tell the Senator from Texas: I had an opportunity, as she knows, to be their Governor for 6 years. Every year, I had to walk in front of the unicameral—our one-house system—and give a state of the State address and lay out a budget plan. If I had walked into that chamber with a budget plan with these kinds of gimmicks, they would have been rolling in the aisles laughing at me, literally. They would have been rolling in the aisles.

I always did a State fly-around, where I visited the communities and talked about my budget vision and my legislative package, et cetera. The people of Nebraska would have run me out of the State had I tried to balance the State budget based upon this kind of gimmicky approach.

The Senator has absolutely hit the nail on the head. What we have here is a situation where those who wrote this bill—as we all know, it was written behind closed doors and nobody knew what the bill was until a few weeks ago—but those who wrote the bill said: Oh my goodness, the President has said we have to bring this bill in under $900 billion. That is what he said. How are we going to get that accomplished? So they used gimmicks. They uploaded the bill, front-end loaded the bill on the revenues, so that starts right away. Then the benefits don't start for 3 or 4 years. So it is magic; we have made the bill come in under $900 billion.

Let me offer this thought: Who loses on this crazy accounting gimmick? Do you know who loses? The constituents we represent in the United States—not just in Nebraska. They are going to pay the taxes. They are not going to see the benefits. It is like buying a car and paying on it for 4 years but not getting the car for 4 years. They are going to pay on it.

Sadly, and most concerning to me, is that this gimmickry is going to be passed on to the next generation because, when it doesn't work, somebody has to pick up the bill. The full cost of this bill, we have come to recognize, is $2.5 trillion. This bill doesn't fit together. It doesn't pass the smell test, as we say back home in Nebraska.

My hope is that sanity will revisit what we are doing and people will say: Time out. We can't ask the American people to go along with this. We have to call a timeout and get this right.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I thank the Senator from Nebraska. I think having been a former Governor, his view is especially important. What we have heard through the grapevine—we haven't seen any new proposals, but we heard there is going to be an expansion of Medicare and an expansion of Medicaid. Medicaid, in particular, is going to be very costly to States because they have a matching requirement for Medicaid. Many Governors are concerned about that.

I know the former Governor of Nebraska, in his background, realizes that is one of the biggest issues in a State's budget.

I know the Senator from Florida also has experience with being in a Governor's office, being a chief of staff for a Governor. He has been very active, especially because the population of Florida has a very high rate of senior citizens. The cuts in Medicare in the bill are huge. He is on the Senate floor. I am just wondering, when we are looking at the cuts in Medicare and the huge taxes, how that will impact the State of Florida, and how he thinks we are going to have to deal with that.

Mr. LEMIEUX. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Texas. This is budget gimmickry. As the Senator from Texas said, as a former chief of staff who worked on trying to balance the budget because our constitution in Florida requires that, we try to figure out how much revenue we have and how much we can spend. If there were not enough revenues, we either had to cut spending or find a new source of revenues. We could not engage in this budget gimmickry.

If I may borrow an analogy from my friend from Nebraska, this is like paying for a car for 4 years before you even get to drive it. Imagine you are going to make a substantial purchase—a house or car—and they show you the house, and they say here is your mortgage payment, and you will live in the house for 10 years, but you will start paying for it today. But you can't move in until 2014. That is what this bill does.

In order to make this ''budget neutral,'' we steal $½ trillion from Medicare—health care for seniors, which seniors have paid into—and we raise taxes, which is going to increase, not decrease, the cost of insurance. When we tax pharmaceutical companies and tax the providers of medical devices, what happens? They pass those costs right along to the citizens. Not only are we stealing from Medicare, not only are we raising taxes, which will be passed on to the citizens, now we are going to tell the States we are going to increase Medicaid.

We are hearing about this secret deal that has been put together behind closed doors. My friends are in the dark, and a lot of Democrats don't know what is going on either. They are trying to figure out what the deal is. The deal will put more of a burden on the States.

I know my friend from Nebraska knows this, being a former Governor. The American people need to know, when you increase Medicaid, the States pay the vast majority of that; and because they have to balance their budget, they will have to cut something else. So they are going to have to cut teachers or law enforcement. So we steal from seniors, steal from the States, raise taxes, and we don't cut the cost of health care for most Americans.

I am new to this Chamber, and perhaps my friend from Idaho can help me understand this. It doesn't make a lot of sense as to how we should proceed with health care reform.

Mr. CRAPO. No, it does not. I appreciate the comments of my colleague from Florida, all my colleagues on the Senate floor today.

As the Senator from Texas indicated, one of the items of business before us today is my motion to commit this bill to the Finance Committee to take out the taxes that the President pledged would not be in there. The President pledged that no one who makes less than $250,000 as a family or $200,000 as an individual will pay any taxes under this bill. Yet in the very first 10 years, there is almost $500 billion of those taxes, a huge portion of which falls on people who are in that category.

As has been indicated, the real implementation of the bill on the spending side does not happen until 2014. If you count the amount of taxes that start when the spending starts, it is about $1.2 trillion of new taxes. Really, the only thing that is transparent—because this was all crafted behind closed doors—the only thing that is transparent is the gimmick.

The President said, as the Senator from Texas pointed out, that he would not let a bill come across his desk and get a signature if it spent more than $900 billion. First of all, you have to say: Wow, why do we need almost $1 trillion of new spending? But when they went behind closed doors and came up with this bill, it turns out it cost around $2 trillion or $2.5 trillion.

How did they make it meet the $900 billion test? They just said: Look, let's delay its implementation for long enough that the number comes out to under $900 billion. That happened to be the year 2014. So if you don't count the first 4 years and only count 6 of the 10, then in this budget window we are working in you can get your number. It is just remarkable.

Before I ask the Senator from South Dakota about his perspective, because I know he is working with the Senator from Texas on an amendment to try to correct this gimmick, I would like to respond to one quick point I know our opposition on the other side has continued to make, and that is they actually say there are no tax increases in the bill.

How do they say that? Here is the way they say it. There are subsidies in the bill that are provided to people with low income who do not have adequate access to insurance. Those subsidies total about $400 billion in the bill in the first 10 years, which is really only 6. They count those subsidies as a tax cut. The technical term given to them is a ''refundable tax credit,'' although $300 billion of those subsidies do not go to taxpayers. The people who receive them do not have a tax liability. But then they offset those subsidies against the taxes the rest of America will pay and say, therefore, there are no taxes in the bill.

I think that is another form of gimmickry. I ask my colleague from South Dakota what his perspective is on the types of gimmicks we are seeing and whether the American people should insist that these kinds of things be removed from the bill.

Mr. THUNE. I say to my colleague from Idaho that I support his motion. I hope we get a chance to vote on it. I know right now they are scrambling to find an alternative to put up so they can have something on which to give their side political cover because they know the reason they are trying so hard is because they know this raises taxes. To say with a straight face this does not raise taxes—the American people get this. I think the gig is up. They figured out there are huge Medicare cuts in this bill, huge tax increases in this bill. And as the Senator from Idaho pointed out, when they say these refundable tax credits are going to go back in the form of premium subsidies and there are not that many people who are going to pay, as he pointed out, 73 percent of the people who will get those premium subsidies are people who do not have an income tax liability already. Therefore, it is hard to say you are going to reduce taxes on somebody who does not have an income tax liability.

More important than that, there are still 42 million Americans with incomes under $200,000 a year, according to the Joint Tax Committee, who are going to see their taxes go up under this bill. So you literally have millions and millions of Americans under $200,000 a year. And as the Senator from Idaho mentioned, the President's promise was he would not raise taxes on anybody earning under $250,000 a year. This flatly contradicts that, flatly violates that pledge. I cannot fathom anybody coming here with a straight face and saying: Oh, yes, this doesn't raise taxes. Of course it raises taxes.

What the Senator from Texas and I intend to do on our motion—and I hope we have a chance to vote on it and the Senator's motion—we will go back to the committee and figure this out. We want to offer a motion that we think makes sense because it aligns and synchronizes the dates of all this.

What has happened here, I would say, in a very deceptive way, is they understated the costs of the bill. My colleagues on the floor already alluded to this. They tried to get it under $1 trillion, and in attempt to get it under $1 trillion, they had to come up with budget gimmicks.

To illustrate that with a bar chart, we can see in the first 10 years of this bill—starting today and going to 2019—the spending in the early years does not show up much. That is because most of the spending gets put off until January 1, 2014.

So if we look at that first 10-year period, the spending under the bill is less than it will be when the bill is fully implemented. When the bill is fully implemented, looking at the years 2014 to 2023, it explodes the spending in the bill from about $1 trillion over the first 10 years to $2.5 trillion over the 10 years when it is fully implemented.

The reason they were able to do that is because of this sort of smoke-and-mirrors way of enacting the tax increases immediately and delaying the spending. The American people are going to end up spending $71 billion in tax increases out of their pockets, out of the American taxpayers' pockets, about $600 per taxpayer, before they ever see a benefit under this bill.

What the Senator from Texas, Mrs. HUTCHISON, and I are offering is a motion that would delay the tax increases until such time as the benefits begin. That, to me, seems to be a fair way to go about making public policy.

What they have done, in an effort to obscure the overall cost of this bill, is to say that 22 days from now, we are going to raise your taxes. On January 1 of this year is when most of these taxes—the taxes on prescription drugs, taxes on medical devices, taxes on health plans—all the taxes in the bill begin to take effect January 1 of next year. For 4 years, people will be paying taxes out of their pockets. I might add, because of the taxes that are going to go on all the device manufacturers, prescription drugs, and health plans, they will get passed on in the form of higher premiums. They are going to see tax increases and premium increases before they ever see a dollar of benefits.

It is 1,483 days until the benefits under this bill kick in. That is unfair. It is unfair to the American taxpayer, it is unfair to the American people, and it is unfair to try to obscure and mask the total cost of this bill and say we are only spending $1 trillion on this bill when we know full well when it is fully implemented, the total cost of that is $2.5 trillion.

I appreciate the discussion that is being held here in pointing out the smoke and mirrors, the sort of underhanded way to try to shield the cost of this bill but also to support the Senator from Idaho with his motion that would commit this bill and get these tax increases out of here because the one thing small businesses are saying right now is we want to invest, we want to create jobs. But you cannot raise taxes on small businesses when you want them to create jobs. That is what this bill does.

The National Federation of Independent Business, the Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Wholesalers and Distributors—all the major business organizations—have come out opposed to this bill.

The National Federation of Independent Business in a letter yesterday said: We do not support policies that increase the cost of doing business and that raise taxes. Clearly, that is what this bill does.

Our motion is very simple; that is, it simply delays tax increases until such time as the benefits begin.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I am very pleased that the Senator from South Dakota talked about what we are trying to do because it is very simple. It is very simple. The Hutchison-Thune motion to commit says, if we do nothing else, if we do nothing else in this bill, we have to be fair and transparent with the American people; that is, we do not start the taxes, we do not start the increases in premiums, increases in prescription drug benefits, increases in medical devices until at least there is an implementation of this insurance program that we hear is going to be offered to the American people. We have not seen it, but we are told that there is going to be an insurance program that Americans can sign up for, but they are going to be paying higher taxes and premiums and costs in health care for 4 years before they ever see it. All we are saying is, let's send this bill back to committee and fix that.

It does not—as the Senator from Nebraska said earlier—pass the smell test. It does not pass the smell test in Nebraska, Wyoming, Florida, Idaho, South Dakota, or Texas. To tax people for 4 years, to raise their costs until they basically are going to say, Give me an alternative, and the alternative is, guess what: A big government takeover of our health care system. That is like saying: I am from the Federal Government, and I am here to help you. We have heard that before.

I do not think the American people will in any way believe that this bill is fair or honest with them if we start the taxes 22 days from now, as the Senator from South Dakota has pointed out, but they do not see a program. They are going to go online and say: Oh, my premiums are going up, my prescription drugs are going up; my goodness, where is the insurance program they have been talking about? They are going to go online, but, hey, there is no program.

How can we go home—I ask any of the Senators who would like to add their perspective on this—how are you going to go home and tell your constituents that your taxes start in 22 days, and maybe in 4 years, roughly, maybe you are going to see a program, and we are from the Federal Government, and we are here to help you?

Mr. BARRASSO. You cannot go home and say that with a straight face. There are many rural areas in our States. People see through all this.

There are two articles next to each other in today's New York Times. One talks about the details of the secret agreement they are working on behind closed doors. It says: ''Details Are Scanty.'' Right next to it it talks about: ''For Rural Elderly, Times Are Distinctly Harder.'' These are the people who are going to see taxes going up, these are the people who are going to see cuts in Medicare.

I want to read the first paragraph because this is from Lingle, WY, a community in my State. It talks about Norma Clark, 80. It says:

Norma Clark, 80, slipped on the ice out by the horse corral one afternoon and broke her hip in four places.

I am an orthopedic doctor. I have taken care of these over the years.

Alone, it took her three hours—

These are the kind of wonderful Americans we have—

Alone, it took her 3 hours to drag herself 40 yards back to the house through snow and mud, after she had tied her legs together with rope to stabilize the injury.

This is a person who is on Medicare, and they are going to cut $464 billion from Medicare, and they are going to use gimmicks that are going to harm our people.

I have a former Governor and a former chief of staff for a Governor's office. You know in the rural parts of your community, I say to Governor, now the Senator from Nebraska, you have people like that—hard-working people who expect honesty from a government, and they are not getting it in this bill which is going to tax for 10 years and only give services for 6.

Mr. JOHANNS. That is such a compelling story. I want to add something to that. When you think the policy could not get more crazy and insane, you hear about this idea that they are going to expand Medicare, which is due to be insolvent in 2017. But the tragedy of that in relating it to the story you just told us is this: That will hammer our rural hospitals. Why? Because they cannot stay open on Medicare reimbursement rates. They cannot stay open on Medicaid reimbursement rates.

This poor woman who dragged herself to try to get some care all of a sudden could be faced with the possibility that the hospital she relies on will not stay open under this health care bill.

I have been to those hospitals. I have seen the struggles they are going through with Medicaid and Medicare reimbursement. Every hospital administrator tells me the same thing: We would close our doors if we had to live on that.

So what is their solution? Expand Medicaid and Medicare. You have got to be kidding me. Who are they listening to? You know what. Take this bill out to the rural areas of Nebraska. You will get an earful.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. How much time is left on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Seven seconds—2, 1, 0. Time has expired.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Let me give the last 5 seconds to the Senator from South Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time has expired.

Mr. THUNE. I yield back my 5 seconds. I don't have enough time to distribute equally. It would not be fair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida is recognized.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time for debate only be extended until 2 p.m., with the time equally divided, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with no amendments in order during this time.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Reserving the right to object, I ask the Senator from Florida, it is 10 minutes and going back and forth. It is not 30 minutes allocated per side; is that correct?

Mr. NELSON of Florida. It is back and forth.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask to be advised when I have used 8 of my 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will be so notified.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, small businesses are the backbone of our economy. They make up 99.7 percent of all employer firms. They employ just over half of all private sector employees. They pay 44 percent of the total U.S. private payroll. They have generated 64 percent—a majority—of the net new jobs over the past 15 years. They create more than half of the nonfarm private gross domestic product, and they hire 40 percent of all high-tech workers.

Small businesses drive this economy. They are also the sector most in need of real health reform that will reduce cost and make it easier to buy insurance. It is estimated that 26 million of the uninsured are small business owners, employees, and their dependents. That is a majority of the uninsured. They continue to struggle to be able to afford health care.

Here are two examples: Jim Henderson, president of Dynamic Sales in St. Louis, has made every adjustment in the book to continue to provide health insurance to his employees. He covered both employees and their families back in the 1980s, but he is now at a point where he can only afford to provide for his employees. He pays 70 percent, his employees 30 percent. Jim is one of the very few small businesses that right now have weathered the storm despite the economy. He wants reform that lowers cost and helps individuals better spend their health care dollars.

Unfortunately, the Democratic health care bills we have seen so far—and I guess we haven't seen all of them—won't help Jim to continue to provide his employees health care.

Kathie and Tom Veasey own True Value Hardware in Wilmington, DE, the hometown of Vice President BIDEN. They employ 28 people, most of whom they consider family. They cover 100 percent of the cost for their employees and half for their families. But they have seen huge increases in premiums over the years, with a 36-percent increase just this year after an employee got sick. Each year, they are forced to shop for health insurance, but they continue to have limited choices due to an uncompetitive market.

Unfortunately, the Democratic bills won't fix the problem or help Kathie and Tom continue to provide their employees health care.

If we really want to get out of this recession, if we really want to address the problem of affordable and accessible health insurance, then the majority party needs to take a hard look at health care reform.

First of all, we need to allow small businesses to go together and purchase health care across State lines so they have true competition and so they can lower costs. We need medical malpractice reform, which would cut $120 billion to $200 billion out of the cost of health care.

However, when we look closely, the bills we see before us do not address the real health care needs, and, in fact, by imposing more taxes—and taxes which the CBO said will be passed from health care companies down to those who are paying the private bills—not only will it make health care less affordable for these small businesses, it will force many of them to drop whatever coverage they have now.

Tax equity is extremely important. An employee of a large corporation or a union member who gets health care premiums paid for by their employer or by their union doesn't have to record them as income. Small businesses, their employees, farmers, and individual purchasers need the same benefit that the employees of large corporations and union members get.

Now, instead of proposing commonsense health care solutions for small businesses, the bills we have seen coming out of the smoke-filled rooms run by the majority leader continue to heap costly new burdens on small businesses that are trying to keep their doors open. More and more it seems small businesses are under attack, and that is what they are telling us. One of the universities that visited me this past week is trying to do something to help small businesses, and I said: What is the attitude? They say: The attitude of small business is that they are under attack by what is being done in Congress and what is being proposed by the administration.

The 2010 budget calls for tax increases on those earning $250,000 or more. For small businesses that are taxed at their personal rate—proprietorships, partnerships, and sub S corporations—these tax increases hit the returns of those small businesses, and they are taxed at the punitive rate. Higher energy taxes on businesses in the cap-and-trade plan will put many small businesses in my part of the country out of work. New taxes and new mandates in the health care bill will be passed on.

Randy Angst of Lebanon, MO, says the following about the Senate bill:

> The new taxes would eliminate roughly half of my profits. It would force me to let employees go, refrain from hiring new employees and prevent me from reinvesting in my business. The mandates would be very harmful and make it much more costly for me to operate my business.

This bill—the last bill we have seen—requires a costly $28 billion new mandate on businesses that do not offer health care. Who pays that mandate? Anybody looking for a job. If you tell businesses they have to spend big money on a mandate, they cannot spend it on hiring new workers. The mandates do nothing to reduce insurance costs, and because they are focused on full-time workers, the mandate gives companies an incentive to classify more of their workers as part time.

Gene Schwartz, with K&S Wire Products in Neosho, MO, says:

> We are in a recession and I am in manufacturing. The legislation would be nothing but detrimental to us. Our workforce is already down 25 percent from last year, and if this bill goes through in its current form, the new taxes and mandates will force me to make further cuts. Also, this bill will increase my costs by further raising my already sky-high insurance premiums.

This bill also includes more paperwork which is costly for a small business. Section 9006 requires that every time a business vendor sells a service or property exceeding $600 to another business, the receiving business must report the transaction to the IRS. That is an enormous new costly paperwork burden that will hit almost every business regardless of how small.

These mandates and regulations disproportionately affect small businesses and come at a high cost. According to the SBA's own Web site, very small firms with fewer than 20 employees annually spend 45 percent more per employee than larger firms to comply with Federal regulations. These very small firms spend 4½ times as much per employee to comply with environmental regulations and 67 percent more per employee on tax compliance than their larger counterparts.

The bill clearly fails to bring down the cost of health care for small businesses. It fails to bring down the cost of health care at all, but it is especially hard on small businesses that can't afford coverage under the current law.

Small business owners from my State have come to me for two decades looking for more affordable ways to make health insurance available. They want to be able to provide insurance for their people. That is why I have long been a champion of small business health care reform.

Does the majority's bill include strong reform that will allow small businesses and the self employed access to more affordable, more accessible health care? No.

Does the bill include protections for small businesses that disproportionately feel the burden of increased government mandates and taxes? No.

In fact, CBO has said that this bill will increase premiums for individuals in the non group market by 10–13 percent.

Premiums for small businesses could increase by 1 percent or be reduced by 2 percent but it is easy math. If a small business cannot afford to provide health insurance now, they will not be able to afford to do so under this bill.

According to CBO, under current law families in a small group plan today pay about $13,300. In 2016, they will pay about $19,200 if this bill becomes law.

That is the wrong direction.

Health care is already too expensive for small businesses. We need to make it cheaper. It should not cost a family $19,200 in 2016 for health insurance.

This bill continues down the path of unsustainable health care costs.

In fact that is one of the main reasons the National Federation of Independent Businesses opposes this bill. They say, ''Small businesses can't support a proposal that does not address their number 1 problem—the unsustainable cost of healthcare. With unemployment at a 26-year high and small business owners struggling to simply keep their doors open, this kind of reform is not what we need to encourage small business to thrive.''

This bill also imposes new taxes and fees, like the $6.7 billion per year tax increase on health insurance companies.

Yes, the majority wants to sock it to the insurance companies.

Well, guess what. The insurance companies are going to pass the costs along to consumers.

Small businesses cannot self-insure, they must purchase products available in the marketplace. That is why CBO has found that increased costs due to fees being passed on to the consumer will be more pronounced for small businesses. NFIB has also said this new tax will fall almost exclusively on small businesses.

This bill just does not help small businesses.

I know the argument my colleagues on the other side offer.

They say they provide a tax credit to help small businesses.

What they don't say is that this is a bait and switch.

First of all, in order to get the full credit, you cannot have more than 10 workers who get paid an average of $20,000.

After that, the credit begins to phase out for each employee you have above 10. It also phases out for each $1,000 increase in average wages above $20,000. If you have 25 employees or you pay more than an average wage of above $40,000, you don't even get the credit.

The real kicker is that the full credit is only available for 2 years after the exchange takes effect. Then that is it.

A small business will either have to offer an employee health insurance—which will really not be any cheaper than it is today—or they will have to pay a fine. Or an employee can go into the exchange as an individual where insurance will cost 10–13 percent more.

Let us examine a realistic situation using Jim from St. Louis as an example.

As I mentioned before, the small business tax credit is filled with thresholds and variations that make it of limited value for the few small businesses that are eligible to claim the credit.

The full value of the credit, which is equal to 50 percent of the business owner's costs, is available for small businesses with 10 or fewer workers that pay their employees an average annual wage of $20,000 or less. But the credit also starts to phase out as the employer adds employees or gives raises, so the entire credit is gone if the employer has 25 or more employees and pays them an average wage of $40,000 or more.

Jim has six employees and his average annual wage is about $39,000. Jim has to ask if he meets the two threshold questions before he can determine whether he gets the tax credit. He passes the first test, since he only has six employees. But Jim's credit is reduced because he has paid his employees too much in wages.

Today, Jim's health care costs are $30,540. If he qualified for the full value of the credit, his annual health care costs would be $15,270—about half of what he pays now.

But the value of his small business tax credit is directly related to wage, so the value of Jim's credit is reduced to $763 based on the formula. That is a small fraction of his health care costs and wouldn't even cover the cost of hiring an accountant to figure out how much the credit is worth.

Because Jim is already so close to the highest average wage to be eligible for any credit at all, this means if he gives his employees a well-earned and well-deserved raise, he will lose the credit altogether.

In these tough economic times, the government is encouraging small business owners like Jim to create more jobs, but if they create too many or pay people too much, then the government will reward them by taking away their small business tax credit.

And even worse, the phase-outs mean that Jim has a disincentive to hire more workers.

So this bill completely misses the mark for small businesses.

Mr. President, our small businesses are struggling. We owe more to this critical sector of our economy which is responsible for half of the private-sector jobs and employees than a bill that mandates taxes and fails to provide real health care reform.

In a recent letter to Senator REID, the NFIB outlines how the bill will adversely affect business owners.

When evaluating healthcare reform options, small business owners ask themselves two specific questions. First, will the bill lower insurance costs? Second, will the bill increase the overall cost of doing business? If a bill increases the cost of doing business or fails to reduce insurance costs, then the bill fails to achieve their No. 1 goal—lower costs.

In both cases, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (H.R. 3590) fails the small business test and, therefore, fails small business.

They further say in the letter:

Despite the inclusion of insurance market reforms in the small-group and individual marketplaces, the savings that may materialize are too small for too few and the increase in premium costs are too great for too many. Those costs, along with greater government involvement, higher taxes and new mandates that are disproportionately targeted at small business and are being used to finance H.R. 3590, create a reality that is worse than the status quo for small business.

It is worse than the status quo.

Mr. President, it is time to stop attacking small business and work on real reform. We should defeat this proposal that does not make insurance more affordable, is a massive government intrusion into health care and that will pay for new entitlement programs on the backs of our small businesses.

Let us put this debate in context. If small businesses do most of the hiring, and we are counting on them to help lead us out of the recession, why would we want to increase their costs of doing business and make it less likely they will hire new workers?

President Obama hosted a Forum on Jobs and Economic Growth last week, where he invited ideas to jump start job growth in our sluggish economy.

Now, he and the majority are considering a new plan to jump-start job growth using ''unspent'' or returned TARP funds. Have they forgotten that it is all borrowed money, and thus deficit spending, in the first place?

Let me submit that the bill before us will hurt job creation.

Before practicing medicine, doctors often take an oath, the Hippocratic Oath, where they promise to refrain from doing harm. I would like to see Congress and the President take the same oath.

How can you on the one hand legislate new taxes on businesses in the name of health reform—coupled with new energy taxes in the name of climate protection—and on the other hand ask businesses to generate new jobs? It cannot be done. Massive tax increases and job creation are mutually exclusive.

Employers who face uncertainty regarding new, oppressive taxes and mandates are not going to want to sink money into new jobs. It is that simple.

We should think about the harm we will do to small businesses through this legislation and instead work on commonsense reforms that have bipartisan support.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter from the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS,
December 8, 2009.

Senator HARRY REID,
Majority Leader, Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.
Senator MITCH MCCONNELL,
Minority Leader, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS REID AND MCCONNELL: As the Senate continues to debate the future of comprehensive healthcare reform, the National Federation of Independent Business, the nation's leading small business association, is writing in opposition to the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (H.R. 3590).

When evaluating healthcare reform options, small business owners ask themselves two specific questions. First, will the bill lower insurance costs? Second, will the bill increase the overall cost of doing business? If a bill increases the cost of doing business or fails to reduce insurance costs, then the bill fails to achieve their No. 1 goal—lower costs.

In both cases, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (H.R. 3590) fails the small business test and, therefore, fails small business. The most recent CBO study detailing the effect that H.R. 3590 will have on insurance premiums reinforces that, despite claims by its supporters, the bill will not deliver the widely-promised help to the small business community. Instead, CBO findings report that the bill will increase non-group premiums by 10 to 13 percent and result in, at best, a 2 percent decrease for small group coverage by 2016. These findings tell small business all it needs to know—that the current bill does not do enough to reduce costs for small business owners and their employees.

Despite the inclusion of insurance market reforms in the small-group and individual marketplaces, the savings that may materialize are too small for too few and the increase in premium costs are too great for too many. Those costs, along with greater government involvement, higher taxes and new mandates that are disproportionately targeted at small business and are being used to finance H.R. 3590, create a reality that is worse than the status quo for small business. The shortcomings of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act include:

A New Small Business Health Insurance Tax

Unlike large businesses, which self-insure and find security under the blanket of ERISA, most small businesses are only able to find and purchase insurance in the fully-insured marketplace. The Senate bill includes a new $6.7 billion annual tax ($60.7 billion over 10 years) that falls almost exclusively on small business because the fee is assessed on the insurance companies. CBO's most recent study reinforces those costs will ultimately be passed on to their consumers, leaving the cost to be disproportionately borne by small business consumers in the individual and small-group marketplace whose only choice is to purchase those products or forgo insurance altogether.

A New Mandate That Punishes Employers, Employees and Hinders Job Creation

Employer mandates fail employers and employees in two ways. First, mandates do nothing to address the core issue facing small business—high healthcare costs. Second, mandates destroy job creation opportunities for employees. The job loss, whether through lost hiring or greater reliance on part-time employees, harms low-wage or entry-level workers the most. The employer mandate in H.R. 3590 sets up potentially troubling outcomes for this sector of the workforce. The multiple penalties assessed on full-time workers will most certainly result in a reduction of full-time workers to part-time workers and discourage the hiring of those entrants into the workforce who might qualify for a government subsidy, hardly an outcome that contributes to a greater insured population.

A Poorly-Structured Small Business Tax Credit

As structured, the small business tax credit will do little, if nothing, to propel either more firms to take-up coverage or produce greater overall affordability. Due to its short-term temporary nature and the limitations based on the business' average wage, its benefit is, at best, a temporary solution to the long-term cost and affordability problem. A tax credit that is poorly structured is not going to provide sustainable and long-term relief from high healthcare costs, and the recent CBO finding that the tax credit would benefit only 12 percent of the small business population illustrates its lack of effectiveness.

A Benefit Package That Is Too High a Hurdle for Small Business

NFIB has voiced concern over establishing a benefit threshold that is too high a price tag for small businesses to meet. Small businesses are especially price sensitive. They need purchasing choices that provide the flexibility in coverage options that reflect their marketplace and business needs. If Congress doesn't adjust the actuarial value standards in the legislation, what may be affordable this year may be unaffordable next year. As a result, small business owners will be at risk of having to drop coverage due to cost increases that outpace their healthcare budgets.

Destructive Rating Reforms and Phase-In Timelines That Threaten Affordability for All

NFIB supports balanced federal rating reforms that protect access and affordability, regardless of an individual or group's health status. However, the excessively tight age rating (3:1) in H.R. 3590 will increase more costs than it will decrease, and make coverage unaffordable for the very populations that are most beneficial to the insurance pool—the young and the healthy. Independent actuaries have analyzed the negative impact of such tight bands and have indicated that there will be devastating effects to the long-term viability of a pool without action to correct this rating imbalance.

Additionally, to prevent volatile spikes in insurance premiums, also known as ''rate shock,'' federal rating reforms must be appropriately applied to all marketplaces and phased in over a responsible period of time. If this is not done, then certain plans, including ''grandfathered plans,'' will utilize different rating practices when underwriting risk, which can create adverse selection issues. Those selection problems will have a striking negative impact on the new exchanges—exchanges that are meant to improve, rather than decrease, affordability for small business and individuals.

National Plans That Provide Limited Promise for Success

Leveling the playing field for small business starts with allowing uniform benefit packages to be purchased across state lines. If done right, this can provide a greater security that, as people change jobs and move from state to state, they can keep the benefit plan that meets their healthcare needs. National plans would be particularly helpful for states with smaller populations and where consumers lack a robust marketplace with choice and competition for private plans. Specifically, the state ''opt-out'' language in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act would create more disincentives than incentives for carriers to embark on these new opportunities. If the national plan section is not significantly restructured to make national plans a viable option, then these new opportunities will never materialize for small business.

Threatens Flexibility and Choice for Employers and Employees

Small employers need more affordable health insurance options and new alternatives for employers to voluntarily contribute to individually-owned plans. Provisions also need to be structured to insure that options are widely available to both employers and employees. The simple cafeteria plan language in H.R. 3590 excludes the owners of many ''pass-through'' business entities from participating in these arrangements. If owners are unable to participate in the plan, they will be less likely to provide insurance to their workforce. Finally, small business needs the freedom and flexibility to preserve options that are already proven to work. Prohibiting the use of HSA, FSA and HRA funds to purchase over-the-counter medications, along with the $2,500 limit on FSA contributions, diminishes that flexibility and threatens to further limit the options employers have to provide meaningful healthcare to their employees.

New Paperwork Costs on Small Businesses

The cost associated with tax paperwork is the most expensive paperwork burden that the federal government imposes on small business owners. The Senate bill dramatically increases that cost with a new reporting requirement that is levied on business transactions of more than $600 annually, leaving small business buried in paperwork and increasing their paperwork compliance expenses.

An Unprecedented New Payroll Tax on Small Employers

Since its creation the payroll taxes that fund the Medicare programs have not been wage-based and are dedicated specifically to funding Medicare. The Senate bill changes the nature of the tax and creates a precedent to use payroll taxes to pay for non-Medicare programs.

The Absence of Real Medical Liability Reform

NFIB strongly supports medical liability reform as a means to both inject more fairness into the medical malpractice legal system, and to reduce unnecessary litigation and legal costs. Taking serious steps to adopt meaningful medical liability reform is a significant step toward restoring common sense to our medical liability litigation system. It also is especially critical to improving access to healthcare for those living in rural areas, where it is becoming increasingly difficult for those in need to locate specialists such as OB/GYNs and surgeons.

The Creation of a New Government-Run Healthcare Program

A government-run plan will drive the private healthcare marketplace out of business. Private insurers will be unable to compete in a climate where the rules and practices are tilted in favor of a massive government-run plan. This means millions could lose their current coverage. This will decrease choice and increase costs. On both accounts, the government-run plan will leave small business with a single option—the government-run plan, which is the exact opposite outcome small businesses want from healthcare reform.

There is near universal agreement that, if done right, small business has much to gain from healthcare reform. But if it is done wrong, then small business will have the most to lose. The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, which is short on savings and long on costs, is the wrong reform, at the wrong time and will increase healthcare costs and the cost of doing business. NFIB remains committed to healthcare reform, and urges the Senate to develop common sense solutions to lower healthcare costs while ensuring that policies empower small business with the ability to make the investments necessary to move our economy forward.

Sincerely,

SUSAN ECKERLY,
Senior Vice President, Public Policy.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I have a couple of other comments I wish to add.

We have now learned that there is a new proposal coming out of the back rooms—the smoke-filled rooms. Every time something new is thrown up on the wall, we stand around with a great deal of interest to see whether it sticks. When you look at this one, I don't believe it sticks. I think it stinks.

If you read the Washington Post's lead editorial today, its headline is ''Medicare sausage? The emerging buy-in proposal could have costly unintended consequences.''

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD, after my remarks, the Washington Post article.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. UDALL of New Mexico). Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. BOND. At the end of the article, it says:

The irony of this late-breaking Medicare proposal is that it could be a bigger step toward a single-payer system than the milquetoast public option plans rejected by Senate moderates as too disruptive of the private market.

To say that it moves toward a public takeover is confirmed by one of the most outspoken backers of the public option, the one most interested in getting public control or governmental control of all of health care, New York Representative ANTHONY WEINER. He is quoted in Politico today as having hailed the expansion of Medicare as an unvarnished triumph for Democrats like himself who have been pushing for a single-payer run health care system. In the article, he says: ''Never mind the camel's nose, we've got his head and his neck in the tent.''

I think that is clear. Trying to expand Medicare will almost assuredly drive all the private plans out of the market. Why? Medicare pays 80 percent of the cost of hospitals and less for doctors, and they have to make up the rest of their cost by charging privately covered patients more money. It will raise the cost so that private health care can no longer succeed.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Washington Post, Dec. 10, 2009]

MEDICARE SAUSAGE?

The only thing more unsettling than watching legislative sausage being made is watching it being made on the fly. The 11th-hour ''compromise'' on health-care reform and the public option supposedly includes an expansion of Medicare to let people ages 55 to 64 buy into the program. This is an idea dating to at least the Clinton administration, and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus (D-Mont.) originally proposed allowing the buy-in as a temporary measure before the new insurance exchanges get underway. However, the last-minute introduction of this idea within the broader context of health reform raises numerous questions—not least of which is whether this proposal is a far more dramatic step toward a single-payer system than lawmakers on either side realize.

The details of how the buy-in would work are still sketchy and still being fleshed out, but the basic notion is that uninsured individuals 55 to 64 who would be eligible to participate in the newly created insurance exchanges could choose instead to purchase coverage through Medicare. In theory, this would not add to Medicare costs because the coverage would have to be paid for—either out of pocket or with the subsidies that would be provided to those at lower income levels to purchase insurance on the exchanges. The notion is that, because Medicare pays lower rates to health-care providers than do private insurers, the coverage would tend to cost less than a private plan. The complication is understanding what effect the buy-in option would have on the new insurance exchanges and, more important, on the larger health-care system.

Currently, Medicare benefits are less generous in significant ways than the plans to be offered on the exchanges. For instance, there is no cap on out-of-pocket expenses. So would near-seniors who buy in to Medicare get Medicare-level benefits? If so, who would tend to purchase that coverage? Sicker near-seniors might be better off purchasing private insurance on the an exchange. But the educated guessing—and that's a generous description—is that sicker near-seniors might tend to place more trust in a government-run program; they might assume, with good reason, that the government will be more accommodating in approving treatments, and they might flock to Medicare. That would raise premium costs and, correspondingly, the pressure to dip into federal funds for extra help.

In addition, the insurance exchanges proposal is being increasingly sliced and diced in ways that could narrow its effectiveness. Remember, the overall concept is to group together enough people to spread the risk and obtain better rates. But so-called ''young invincibles''—the under-30 crowd—would already be allowed to opt out of the regular exchange plans and purchase high-deductible catastrophic coverage. Those with incomes under 133 percent of the poverty level would be covered by Medicaid. The exchanges risk becoming less effective the more they are Balkanized this way.

Presumably, the expanded Medicare program would pay Medicare rates to providers, raising the question of the spillover effects on a health-care system already stressed by a dramatic expansion of Medicaid. Will providers cut costs—or will they shift them to private insurers, driving up premiums? Will they stop taking Medicare patients or go to Congress demanding higher rates? Once 55-year-olds are in, they are not likely to be kicked out, and the pressure will be on to expand the program to make more people eligible. The irony of this late-breaking Medicare proposal is that it could be a bigger step toward a single-payer system than the milquetoast public option plans rejected by Senate moderates as too disruptive of the private market.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. BOND. I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, over the past several months, I have come to the floor of this body many times to speak about the urgent need for comprehensive health care reform. I have said that our bill must accomplish three goals in order to be effective: It must bring competition to the insurance market—competition to the insurance market—it must provide significant cost savings to ordinary Americans, and it must restore accountability to an industry that has run roughshod over the American public for far too long. I would like to focus on this last point with my remarks today.

We need real accountability in the insurance market. After almost 100 years of debate about health care reform, this Senate stands on the verge of making history. There are many good elements in the legislation that is before us today, but without accountability, any reform measure would be toothless and inconsequential. If we don't give the American people a chance to hold their insurance providers accountable, quality care will continue to elude certain segments of our population. We can't stand for this any longer. We must prevent insurance companies from discriminating against people by charging them higher rates or denying coverage because of certain conditions.

Everyone knows it is hard for uninsured patients to get quality medical care. Under the current law, in the case of catastrophic injury or illness, anyone admitted to the emergency room should receive equal treatment to save their life. Shockingly, Harvard researchers have found that this is not the case. They examined 690,000 individual cases over 4 years and found that uninsured patients are nearly twice as likely to die in the hospital as patients with similar injuries who do have insurance. And even after these results were adjusted to account for age, race, gender, and the severity of the injuries, they found that the uninsured were still 80 percent more likely to die than those with health coverage, including Medicaid.

I just had a delegation of physicians in my office. I listened to their comments in reference to wanting us to make sure we passed a health care reform bill this session. One of those physicians began to relate to me the story of his brother, who was employed but was without health insurance. At 41 years old, he died of cancer because he waited too long to try to get treatment. And because he was uninsured and no one would treat him, that took his life at the young, tender age of 41.

So this new evidence is conclusive, and it is truly disturbing. The poor and the uninsured suffer disproportionately under our current system. In the most advanced country on Earth, there is no excuse for this stunning inequality.

Big corporations know there is a lot of money to be made out of the poor and they do not hesitate to rake in large profits and their expenses. These companies exploit minor technicalities to deny coverage to people who are sick. They use gaping holes in the system to refuse treatment for those with certain conditions. That is because they do not see patients as real people who need help, they see them as numbers in the corporate ledger. They see risk and expenses and lower dividends for their shareholders. That is why we need to prioritize patients over profits. That is why we need to extend coverage to more people and make these companies accountable for the first time in decades.

If we pass insurance reform with a strong public option it would be illegal to deny coverage because of a preexisting condition. For the first time in many years, ordinary Americans would be able to shop around if they are paying too much, or they are not being treated fairly. Costs would come down, coverage would improve, and lives would be saved.

Let us pledge ourselves to this cause. Let us make sure every American can get the treatment they need in the emergency room regardless of their income, need, or the insurance coverage they have. We must not fall short in this regard. We must not settle for anything less.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, my friends on the other side of the aisle have consistently stated that this 2074-page Reid bill, according to the Joint Committee on Taxation, is a net tax cut. I want to put emphasis throughout my remarks on the word ''net.''

Yesterday a chart was used to illustrate this point. This chart had multiple bars with dollar figures. For example, in 2019 the chart showed a $40.8 billion net tax cut. My Democratic friends said this number came from the Joint Committee on Taxation, a very responsible, intellectually honest group.

Unfortunately, the chart my friends were using was not entirely clear on how they came up with this net tax cut for Americans. So it was natural for most of the fellow Senators and the country at large to wonder how my Democratic friends got this number. They said show me the data.

To clear up any confusion, right here is the Joint Committee on Taxation table that the Democrats relied on to claim that the Reid bill results in a net tax cut. Here it is. We can see the negative $40,786, for example. That is the figure that was used. As the chart indicates, these dollar amounts are in the millions, so $40,786 million. The Joint Committee on Taxation says it this way: This means negative—the negative mark there—negative $40.8 billion.

My friends on the other side unfortunately did not explain what was going on here. It appears my friends simply made an assertion that they hoped many of us and those in the media would believe. But I cannot let my Democratic friends get off the hook this easily. Why? Because the entire story is not being told, so let me take a moment to explain.

First, in simplest terms, where you see negative numbers on this chart, the Joint Committee on Taxation is telling us there is some type of tax benefit going to the taxpayers. So this group and these groups here, wherever there is a negative here, those are tax benefits to the benefit of the taxpayers.

For example, families making $50,000 to $75,000 have a negative of $10,489 in their column. This means the Joint Committee on Taxation is telling us that this income category is receiving $10.4 billion in tax benefits.

I hope you will listen closely. When we see a negative number on this chart, the Joint Committee on Taxation tells us there is a tax benefit so, conversely, where we see a positive number the Joint Committee on Taxation is telling us that these taxpayers are seeing a tax increase. I have actually enlarged those numbers, the number of tax returns and the dollar amounts where there is a positive number for individuals and families. Again, these positive numbers indicate tax increase.

My friends have said that all tax returns in this chart are receiving a net tax cut. If that were so, why aren't there negative numbers next to all of the dollar amounts listed? Because not everyone in this chart is receiving a tax cut, despite what my friends have said. Quite to the contrary, a group of taxpayers is clearly seeing a tax increase and this group of taxpayers in middle income is seeing tax increases.

I didn't come down to the floor to say my friends on the other side of the aisle are wrong. After all, you can see here the negative $40,786 million figure they used is right there, out in the open. What I am doing is clarifying that my Democratic friends cannot spread this $40.8 billion tax cut across all the affected taxpayers on this chart, and then say that all have received a tax cut.

You want to know why. Because this chart, produced by the nonpartisan Joint Committee on Taxation, shows that taxes go up for those making more than $50,000 and families making more than $75,000. It is right here in the yellow, as you can see.

The numbers obviously do not lie. I say the nonpartisan Joint Committee on Taxation, I think everybody agrees, is very intellectually honest. So let me give you my read on what the Joint Committee on Taxation is saying here as evidenced by the figures on the chart.

First, there is a group of low- and middle-income taxpayers who clearly benefits under the 2074-page bill that is before the Senate. They benefit from the government subsidy of health insurance. This group, however, is relatively small.

There is another much larger group of middle-income taxpayers who are seeing their taxes go up due to one or a combination of the following tax increases: the high-cost plan tax increase, which actually is a brandnew tax; the medical expense deduction limitation, which used to be 7.5 percent, and now before you can deduct you have to have 10 percent of your income be medical expenses or you don't deduct anything, so that is a tax increase; and then a Medicare payroll tax increase, where everybody is going to pay—well, everybody over a certain income is going to pay an additional half a percentage point or, if you are self-employed, pay 1 percent more of payroll tax. In general, this group is not benefiting from the government subsidy. After all, how can a taxpayer see a tax cut if they are not even eligible for the subsidy?

Also, there is an additional group of taxpayers who would be affected by other tax increase provisions in the Reid bill that the Joint Committee on Taxation could not distribute in the way people are distributed on this chart. These undistributed tax increases include, among others, the cap on Federal savings—flexible savings accounts. Then there is a tax on cosmetic surgery.

My friend from Idaho, the author of the amendment before us, Mr. CRAPO, recently received a letter from the Joint Committee on Taxation stating that this additional group exists and many in this group will make less than $250,000 and, hence, have a tax increase that is not accounted for here and also a tax increase if they are under $250,000. That is a violation of the President's promise in the last campaign that nobody under that figure would get a tax increase—only people over $250,000.

So you see, my Democratic friends cannot, No. 1, say that all taxpayers receive a tax cut—I have proven that here—and, No. 2, say that middle-income Americans will not see a tax increase under the Reid bill.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, some of the charges from the other side of the aisle have taken us down some detours to essentially try to distract us from some of the main points of this legislation. I want to take a few moments to discuss one of the key features of the bill and that is insurance market reform.

The bill would change the way insurance companies do business in America. Sometimes I think this reform is part of the reason some on the other side are fighting this bill so hard. Our bill will end the practice, widespread today, of insurance companies denying coverage altogether, or charging someone an exorbitant amount of money if they have some preexisting condition, something in their health history which is an issue. Our bill would make those changes right away. They start going into effect in 2010. That is, the prohibition on companies denying coverage for preexisting conditions or health care stats, and right down the list, would take effect right away, 2010.

We all have countless numbers of examples, either directly or through friends or relatives of small insurance companies that either denied insurance coverage or you have to pay much greater increase in premiums because of a preexisting condition, whatever it may be, of something. It is wrong, flat, outright, 100 percent wrong. This bill stops that, stops those practices by insurance companies.

I think it is important that we not get sidetracked by some other very important matters but keep focused on what this legislation does. It reforms the health insurance industry.

What else does our bill do with respect to reforming the health insurance industry? It would prohibit lifetime limits on payments to people who get sick. Right now, insurance companies limit how much they pay out to people when they get sick. They have lifetime limits, annual limits. No matter how sick you are, some catastrophic coverage you have, the insurance company says: Sorry, we are putting a limit on it. That is not right. Sometimes people have conditions that require a lot more attention, more hospitalization, more attention by doctors. Our legislation would prohibit lifetime limits on payments to people who get sick.

Our bill also prohibits unreasonable annual limits. These are limits that insurance companies impose on policyholders. This reform would apply in both the group market and the individual market. What does that mean, that gobbledygook. It implies that for everybody, whether you are an individual or whether you are working for a company, this would take effect 6 months after enactment. That is pretty important. A lot of people have insurance policies with limits, where the insurance company will only pay so much to an individual or during the person's lifetime or in any year. It is not right because some conditions require a significant increase in payments or coverage for the person.

Our bill would require any insurance plan that provides dependent coverage for children to continue to make that coverage available until the child turns age 26. We know that is a problem today. Often, in a State, once a child turns 21 or 22, that person can't find health insurance. In today's economic recession, with unemployment so high, it is kind of hard for kids to find jobs, and that is how they would otherwise get their health insurance. We say family coverage covers your child until the child turns age 26. This reform would take effect 6 months after enactment.

In addition, when the exchanges are up and running, our bill would prohibit insurance companies from discriminating against consumers because of health status, generally. Sometimes the insurance industry says it is not a preexisting condition, but you have not been healthy lately so we will not give you insurance. No longer can insurance companies refuse to sell or renew policies because a person gets sick. If you pay your premiums, the insurance company has to renew your coverage.

When the exchanges are up and running, the legislation before us today would limit the ability of insurance companies to charge people much more just because of their age. That is what they do today. Sometimes, depending upon the State, the insurance company is able to charge somebody much more for the same coverage because of that person's age. Right now it is not at all unusual for insurance companies to charge more than five times as much just because a person is, say, age 55. Our bill would prohibit insurance companies from charging more than three times as much because of age. In some States, there is no limit whatsoever. In my State of Montana, we have no limit. Some States have five. We are saying down to three.

When the exchanges are up and running, our bill would prohibit insurance companies from charging women more than men. Think of that. Some insurance companies charge women more than men. That is not right. This is also a widespread practice among insurance companies that is charging women more than men. It is just plain wrong. Our legislation would stop that.

Health insurance reform also means real insurance market reform. It means real change in the way insurance companies do business. No longer will insurance companies be able to build their business by cherry-picking only the healthiest and the youngest. That is what they do today, especially for individuals, to some degree, in smaller organizations. No longer will they be able to insure only those who don't need insurance. We bring real reform. It would make insurance much more fair, and that is literally a matter of life and death.

As a recent Harvard study reported, people without insurance are 40 percent more likely to die prematurely than people with private insurance. Think of that. People without insurance are 40 percent more likely to die prematurely than people with private insurance. Tens of thousands of Americans die each and every year because they do not have insurance. Is that America? That doesn't sound like the United States we are all so proud of, where we allow tens of thousands of Americans to die each and every year simply because we have not set up a system for them to have health insurance. That is something we stop in this bill.

I suggest the absence of a quorum and ask unanimous consent that the time be charged equally against both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I have said, for the last 2 days, I was going to speak on the Dorgan amendment, a bipartisan amendment to allow the importation of drugs into the United States. I haven't done it until now, so I am glad to rise in support of this bipartisan amendment to add provisions of the Pharmaceutical Market Access and Drug Safety Act to this bill. That legislation is the result of a collaborative effort by Senators DORGAN, SNOWE, MCCAIN, and this Senator to finally make drug importation legal.

I have, for a long time, been a proponent of drug reimportation. In 2000, 2002, and 2003, I supported an amendment permitting the importation of prescription drugs into the United States from one country, Canada. This amendment is much broader than only Canada.

In 2004, the late Senator Kennedy and I worked together on a bill that would authorize drug importation, but it did not survive the partisan politics of this Chamber. I then introduced my own comprehensive drug importation bill in 2004. That was S. 2307, the Reliable Entry for Medicines at Everyday Discounts Through the Importation with Effective Safeguards Act. The REMEDIES Act is what the acronym finally spells out. In 2005, I combined my bill with a proposal sponsored by Senators DORGAN and SNOWE. In 2007, we reintroduced a version of that legislation with the hope that our combined efforts would finally lower the cost of prescription drugs for all Americans. That is what we are still working together to do this very day. I thank Senator DORGAN for his leadership.

This time around, I should be confident that this effort will finally pass. Historically, Democrats claim to be champions of holding the big pharmaceutical companies accountable. Now we have a Democratic supermajority in the Congress and a Democratic President who has supported drug importation in the past. I am not as confident as maybe I should be. That is because the White House has participated in some back-room negotiations since the last time this legislation was brought before the Senate and then Senator Obama supported it. Behind closed doors, the Democratic White House found new friends in the pharmaceutical industry. Last summer, the head of the pharmaceutical lobbying group bragged that drug manufacturers had negotiated a ''rock-solid deal''—those are their words—with the present administration.

An article in the New York Times detailed the administration's deal with big drug companies. This quote comes from the New York Times:

> Foreseeing new profits from the expansion of health coverage, big drug companies are spending as much as $150 million on advertisements to support the President's plan.

But in 2008, when President Obama was campaigning for the position he now holds, he promised that:

We'll take on drug and insurance companies, hold them responsible for the prices they charge and the harm they cause.

Certainly, the President knows that a great way to hold drug companies accountable is to allow drug importation. In fact, in 2004, when he was a candidate to be a Member of this Chamber, he challenged his opponents to support drug importation. He said at that time:

I urge [my opponent] to stop siding with the drug manufacturers and put aside his opposition to the re-importation of lower-priced prescription drugs. . . .

But, unfortunately, it has been reported that during backroom negotiations at the White House, the big pharmaceutical companies have convinced the President to drop his strong support for drug importation.

The New York Times reports that:

On July 7—

Meaning this year—

Rham Emanuel, [President] Obama's chief of staff . . . assured at least five pharmaceutical companies during a White House meeting that there would be no provision in the final health care package to allow the re-importation of cheaper drugs. . . .

I thought we were going to hold drug companies accountable. I thought health care reform was supposed to drive down the cost of health care, including the cost of prescription drugs for all Americans. The Dorgan amendment is a commonsense, bipartisan approach to achieve both of these goals. Drug importation achieves these goals without imposing arbitrary fees, and without flexing the muscles of the Federal Government.

I have always considered this a free trade issue. I know most people see it as a health issue, and it is a health issue. But I come at it from the point of view that there are only a couple items Americans cannot buy in this country from anyplace else in the world they want to buy it. One class is pharmaceutical drugs, the other class is Cuban——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 4 additional minutes and that it come off the next block of time from our side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. So I see this as a free-trade issue. Imports create competition and keep domestic industry more responsive to consumers. In the United States, we import everything consumers want. So I ask again, why not pharmaceuticals? That is why it is a trade issue for me as much as a health issue. Consumers in the United States pay far more for prescription drugs than those in other countries. If Americans could legally and safely access prescription drugs outside the United States, then drug companies would be forced to reevaluate their pricing strategies. They would no longer be able to gouge American consumers by making them pay more than their fair share for research and development.

It is true that pharmaceutical companies do not like the idea of opening up America to the global marketplace. They want to keep the United States closed to other markets in order to charge higher prices here.

Based on the reports I just read, it seems that the White House has already sided with the drug manufacturers and promised them the ability to continue to gouge American consumers, otherwise known as the status quo.

The debate is not over. With the Dorgan amendment, prescription drug companies will be forced to be competitive and establish fair prices in America. The drug companies will try to find loopholes in order to protect their bottom line.

The Dorgan amendment would make such action illegal. It would not allow manufacturers to discriminate against registered exporters or importers. It would prohibit drug companies from engaging in any actions to restrict, prohibit, or delay the importation of a qualifying drug.

The Dorgan amendment would give the Federal Trade Commission the authority to prevent this kind of abuse. It develops an effective and safe system that gives Americans access to lower prices. Our effort goes to great lengths to ensure the safety of imported drugs. The Dorgan amendment requires that all imported drugs be approved by the FDA. It puts in place a stringent set of safety requirements that must be met before Americans can import drugs from that country.

The amendment requires all exporting pharmacies and importing wholesalers to be registered with the FDA and inspected. It gives the authority for the FDA to inspect the entire distribution chain for imported drugs. It sets very stringent penalties for violations of the safety requirements in this bill, including criminal penalties and up to 10 years imprisonment.

We need to make sure Americans have even greater, more affordable access to innovative drugs by further opening the doors to competition in the global pharmaceutical industry.

If my colleagues on both sides of the aisle are serious about bending down the cost curve of health care inflation—and doing it in that direction, the right direction—then they will support the Dorgan amendment, a bipartisan amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. BROWN. Thank you, Mr. President.

I echo the comments of the senior Senator from Iowa. He is exactly right about the Dorgan amendment. There are a lot of reasons, as he pointed out, why the Dorgan amendment makes sense for the American people.

It makes sense for taxpayers because we pay way too much for prescription drugs as taxpayers. It makes sense for government programs—whether it is TRICARE, whether it is Medicare, whether it is Medicaid, whether it is the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program. It makes sense for small businesses and large businesses alike who are paying too much for prescription drugs. And it makes sense for seniors and all Americans who are paying too high a price for prescription drugs out of their pockets. It also makes sense in terms of, sort of, internationally as to what we do on the buying and selling of prescription drugs.

I was part of these discussions in the House where we had the same amendment. We would pass it, and then it would die in the Senate, or things would happen in the conference committees or whatever, where the drug companies really did exert their influence over the Congress and with the President during the Bush years.

But one of the arguments they always make is to question the safety of these drugs, that these drugs coming from Canada or these drugs coming from France are not safe, as if they did not have a food and drug administration as efficient and effective as ours in terms of protecting the public.

But what sort of shoots a hole in that argument is how many American drug companies—over and over and over, and in increasing numbers—how many American drug companies are importing ingredients especially from China.

Senator Kennedy, 1½ years or so ago, asked me to chair an oversight hearing with the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee on this issue of what is happening when these American drug companies are increasing their outsourcing of jobs, particularly to China. It was in response to what happened in Toledo, OH, among other places, where a number of Americans died because of contaminated heparin.

Heparin is a blood thinner drug that is a very important drug to keep people healthier and live longer and live better. But some of the ingredients for heparin were made in China, and the drug company is not able to trace back, if you will, the supply chain, where they are getting their ingredients. They know they get them from China. The American drug companies—whether it is Pfizer or another drug company—when they outsource their production to China, may know where the plant is that puts all these ingredients together, but they cannot trace back—or at least they will not tell us or cannot tell us—all their ingredients. So they may get this ingredient from Wuhan, and this ingredient from Shanghai, and that ingredient from a rural outpost in Hebei or Henan Province, but they cannot tell us exactly where they come from. So no wonder these drugs are not as safe as they should be.

So if they were interested in drug safety, it would not be that they would stop us from drug importation because we know if we buy it from France or Canada or Germany, they have a food and drug agency, an FDA equivalent, that keeps their drugs safe. They know that. It is all about protecting their profits. There is simply no doubt about that. Their profits get to be bigger because they make some of these drugs in China.

So let's not have it both ways. Let's not say we cannot import drugs safely into this country—when they are exporting jobs, as so many other industries are doing, to China, exporting jobs to little villages where they manufacture these ingredients. They end up in America's medicine cabinets. Let's not talk out of both sides of our mouths, as the drug industry is doing.

A couple other comments about the underlying bill and how important it is we move on this legislation. There are more than 400 people every day—in Defiance, OH, in Gallipolis and Zanesville and Saint Clairsville and Cadiz and all over my State—400 people every single day who lose their insurance.

Every day my friends on the other side of the aisle delay, every day they offer amendments and then will not let us vote on them, and stand up and object to even voting on things, every day they try to filibuster, every day they put up another hurdle, 400 more people in my State lose their insurance. It is about 1,000 people in this country every week—1,000 people in this country every week—who die because they do not have health insurance. It is 45,000 people a year, so 900-some people every week in this country die because they do not have health insurance.

A woman with breast cancer without insurance is 40 percent more likely to die than a woman with breast cancer with insurance. I heard President Bush, in Ohio, maybe a couple years ago, say every American can get health care. They can go to an emergency room. Well, a woman suffering from breast cancer, who did not get a mammogram because she could not afford it, did not get the kinds of tests she should have because she did not have a doctor she could afford to pay, and because she did not have insurance—the emergency room does not do those kinds of things. Even if she got sick, the emergency room would not take care of her until she was almost dead. Then she could go into the emergency room and they will take care of her in her last few days or her last few weeks of life.

That is not the way we should do health care. This kind of delay, hearing these kinds of delaying actions, these kinds of delaying tactics, these kinds of ''we can't pass this,'' ''chicken little,'' ''the sky is following''—every day we have Republicans coming down here saying ''the sky is falling,'' and it simply is not.

I want this bill to be bipartisan. I am a member of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, as is my friend, Senator ROBERTS from Kansas, who is in the Chamber. During that markup in June and July, we passed 160 Republican amendments. Some of them were major, some of them were not so major. But this bill had a bipartisan flavor to it.

It is only on the big questions—the role of Medicare, the role of the public option—some of the bigger questions, where there are philosophical differences; the same reasons that back in the 1960s, when Medicare passed, it was passed almost only by Democrats because Republicans did not agree there should be a major role in government in our health care system.

So it is a philosophical difference. It is not so much partisan as that. So even though there are many good Republican ideas in this bill, on the big questions there is that difference.

So, Mr. President, I think it is so important—when I hear that many Ohioans, every day, lose their insurance, this many Americans, every week, die because they do not have insurance—to pass this legislation.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BROWN. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The bill clerk continued with the call of the roll.

Mr. ROBERTS. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is advised the Senate is in a quorum call.

Mr. ROBERTS. I will try it again. I thought it was worked out.

I ask unanimous consent for the second time that the order for the quorum call be rescinded so I may be—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. ROBERTS. So I may proceed for 15 minutes.

Ms. CANTWELL. Objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. ROBERTS. Is this a bipartisan objection, I would ask the Presiding Officer?

The bill clerk continued with the call of the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that over the next 30 minutes, the time be equally divided with 15 minutes for the majority and 15 minutes for the minority for debate purposes only.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

Mr. ROBERTS. I thank the President. I rise today to talk about health care in general and the latest proposal to come out in the form of the so-called compromise, if there is no objection. I wish to talk about the latest proposal to come out from what some of us have determined is the majority leader's behind-closed-doors effort for the compromise on the government-run health insurance plan. I will admit very readily I do not know all of the details of this plan, although I hope to in the very near future. I think most of my friends across the aisle are in the same boat and we are all getting our information from the Post, the Times, and the rest of the catch-up media.

But this is the compromise, as I understand it: The majority leader will drop the government plan in exchange for two major policies: first, a national insurance plan run by nonprofit insurance companies and supervised by the Office of Personnel Management; and second, a massive expansion of Medicare to tens of millions of people age 55 and older.

Putting aside the first policy which, frankly, I don't understand how it could possibly work, I cannot believe anyone is seriously considering expanding Medicare as a compromise to the government-run or so-called public option. It doesn't take a genius to see that a huge expansion of Medicare is, as one single-payer advocate in the House dubbed it, ''the mother of all public plans,'' further quoting: ''An unvarnished and complete victory'' for advocates of single-payer health care and socialized medicine. That is a very strong quote, but that is the way it was.

In other words, this is not a compromise to the public option—it is worse. Maybe we need to remind ourselves why moving toward more government control of our health care system is such a bad idea. We need look no further than our current government-run insurance plans, Medicare and Medicaid, for examples. Government-run insurance plans currently control nearly half of the market. With the government's power, they have the ability to set payment levels for doctors and hospitals and home health care agencies and even hospices and all other health care providers, not based on the actual costs those providers incur when treating patients, but instead based on whatever arbitrary spending target the budget crunching bean counters determine the government can afford.

To paraphrase one observer: These types of global government budgets transform patients from sources of revenue over which providers compete to attract and serve, into sources of cost for the government to avoid, shunt off, and treat as cheaply as possible. That is not right. This has clearly been the result in the Medicare Program, often heralded as the best of all of the government's health care programs.

So to review: Medicare has been on an ever shrinking path toward bankruptcy for years. The latest reports from the Medicare trustees say the hospital insurance trust fund will go broke within the next 8 years. The program has $38 trillion in unfunded liabilities. How has the government responded? By severely underpaying Medicare providers and denying Medicare patients' claims. Medicare only pays doctors around 80 percent of their costs, and hospitals even lower.

Privately insured Americans pay a hidden tax of nearly $90 billion a year to make up for these underpayments. But even that hasn't been enough to keep some providers in business and able to afford to accept Medicare patients. Medicaid is even worse. Medicare is also a huge denier of claims. I think many of my colleagues would be surprised to hear that Medicare denies claims more often than most private insurance companies. In fact, in 2008, Medicare had the highest percentage and the highest number of denied claims in the country. Think about that when you hear some Senators demonize private insurance companies for denying claims. Medicare is even worse.

This bill already exacerbates these Medicare problems by cutting almost $½ trillion from this already woefully underfunded program. Now we are considering adding even more people. This is a sinking ship with no lifeboats, and we are adding more folks to the deck.

By underpaying health care providers and denying claims, Medicare already rations health care. Expanding Medicare to tens of millions of new people as envisioned by this compromise we hear about will take government rationing to a whole new level. Because as the government takes over more of the health care system and becomes responsible for more of the increasing costs of that system, the only way it will be able to afford this commitment is to ration health care. As I have said countless times before, this bill gives the government all the tools it requires to ration care.

From Comparative Effectiveness Research, to the independent Medicare advisory board, to the new powers granted to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS and the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force, this bill puts the rationing infrastructure into place. The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force's recent change to its guidelines pertaining to mammograms was a perfect illustration of how your health care will be rationed under this bill. For those who don't know, the task force recently reversed its longstanding advice that women should start getting regular mammograms to detect breast cancer at age 40.

Why is this important? Because under this bill, the recommendations of this task force will carry the weight of law for both government-run—i.e., Medicare—and private insurance. If the task force recommends a particular treatment or a particular set of patients, then Medicare and private insurers must cover it. If it doesn't, they don't.

What do you think will happen to treatments and tests that don't get the task force's recommendation? They simply will not be covered. That is how the government will hold down health care costs, by rationing access to treatments and tests such as mammograms.

Some government-controlled health care systems such as the one that exists in the United Kingdom are much more explicit about rationing. The rationing in this bill, quite frankly, is not as honest. Since Americans would never stand for the government explicitly rationing their health care, the authors of this bill had to come up with a pseudoscientific justification for rationing, and that justification is the main feature of this bill: Comparative Effectiveness Research, or CER.

Very generally, it is very simple. CER is the comparison of two or more treatment options to see which one is better. Sounds great, right? Except when you realize that CER is not being conducted for the purpose of improving patient care but for the purpose of saving the government money instead.

I read the CER section of the bill and I remember my amendment on CER and the distinguished chairman of the HELP Committee was very helpful, and said he would study it overnight. Because I had the word ''prohibit'' in the amendment we got into a great debate on what prohibit means. I thought it was pretty clear but, unfortunately, that was dropped from the bill, from the HELP Committee bill. We tried that again in Finance. It didn't work. We would like to try it again if we have time.

This bill establishes a CER institute to conduct this research for the purpose of justifying government rationing of health care. CER will be the golden ring of rationing.

So what we have here is a recipe for disaster: a bill that already significantly weakens the woefully underfunded Medicare Program and lays the foundation for a rationing infrastructure, plus a ''compromise'' that apparently will pour millions of more people into the program.

In the no-holds barred search for a proposal that can attract 60 votes, I don't understand how any Senator can support this idea.

This is just another Trojan horse, another incremental step toward the single-payer system. Again, as one House Member in the leadership observed:

> This gets not only the camel's nose under the tent, but his whole head and neck, too.

It is another step toward socialized medicine and increased government rationing of health care.

The American Hospital Association, American Medical Association, and the Federation of American Hospitals are finally taking notice of the advice they are receiving from their State and local hospitals and doctors. They, finally, have seen the light and have come out in opposition to this deal at least.

I urge my friends across the aisle to resist this latest misguided attempt at deal making. The consequences are too dangerous.

There is an awful lot of cactus in this health care world. I don't think we need to sit on each and every one of them.

Before yielding back my time, I truly thank the distinguished Senator from Connecticut for his comity and allowing me to make these debate comments. I thank the acting Presiding Officer in his effort to be bipartisan.

I think we will have a sad day in this body if one side or the other gets into a situation where we do not allow people to make remarks on not only the pending bills and specifically on the general issue of health care.

Mr. DODD. If my colleague will yield, he raises an interesting point. I am going back several months. As we get older, it is hard enough to remember what happened yesterday. The Presiding Officer is on the committee, as is my colleague from Vermont. There was a debate over the word ''construed'' to prohibit. I remember that word, talking about various practices. As I recall, the compromise that was offered either by my friend and colleague from Kansas or some other member was to strike the word ''construed,'' so nothing would be prohibited. I still, to this day, am not quite sure why we should not accept language that eliminates the word ''construed.'' That went on for about a day back and forth. I invite my colleague, again, to maybe get our staffs together and talk about that. I don't think he is wrong about this. I think it is good to have best practices. If a physician and patient decide, as a certainty, it is essential for that patient, then you should not be prohibited from doing that. As I recall, the debate was over the word ''construed.'' I don't want to take time from the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I agree with the Senator. I point out that in the specifics of the bill, I think it says shall not, in regard to cost containment on Medicare A and B, but the rest is encouraged. That is where we get into problems because CER is the blueprint on how we allot health care dollars in this country.

I might mention to the Senator, I had a chart on what CER recommended, and it had a figure of a humpback whale and how much money we would be devoting to different age groups. If you are 60—and, by the way, the average age of the Senate is 62—you are out of luck. If you are 70, you better get something fixed real quickly before this bill passes. That is my point. I thank the Senator for his comments.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I thank Senator ROBERTS for his amendment in the HELP Committee to protect patients by preventing rationing of health care. That is in the Senate bill. That was language we adopted, I say to my friend from Vermont. It was a Roberts amendment that was adopted in our markup that prohibits any rationing of health care in our bill. I thank him for that.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont is recognized.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, when Republicans controlled the White House, the Senate, and the House, they had the opportunity to do something about the health care disaster in America. From 2000 to 2008, some 7 million Americans lost their health insurance. Where were the Republicans? During that same period, health care costs soared in America. Small businesspeople found themselves unable to provide health care to their workers.

Where were our Republican friends? I am delighted they are down on the floor every single day criticizing an effort to try to improve the situation. But it might have been a little better if they were here 8 years ago, bringing forth their ideas. But they were not.

Having said that, let me suggest that in the midst of this health care crisis, in which 46 million Americans have no health insurance and health care costs are soaring and, as the President indicates, that will double in 8 years if we do nothing, at a time when 45,000 Americans this year will die because they don't get to a doctor when they should, when close to 1 million Americans are going to go bankrupt from medically related bills, we need real health care reform.

That is something that I, and I know many other Members in Congress, have been fighting for for years. More than anything, I wish to see us pass strong health care reform. I must express a disagreement with some of my colleagues on the Democratic side, who think we are on the 2-yard line, we are almost there. I don't think so. I think there are a number of problems that remain in this legislation that have to be resolved. I wish to touch on a few of them.

One of the parts of this legislation is that, finally, we are going to add some 30 million Americans to health care insurance. That is a good thing. About half of them will be added to an expanded Medicaid—a huge expansion of Medicaid. But here is my concern. Right now, our primary health care system is extremely weak. Everybody knows we don't have enough primary health care doctors. We know that Medicaid, today, is on wobbly legs as it tries to take care of the people who access that program. I am not quite sure how you add 15 million more people to Medicaid if you don't have a primary health care infrastructure to accommodate their needs.

In this regard, I have fought very hard for authorization language in the Senate to greatly expand community health centers and the National Health Service Corps, for which we will train and make sure that we have the primary health care doctors, dentists, and nurses we need, desperately need.

In the House bill, there is language introduced by Representative CLYBURN, supported by the Democratic leadership, that would provide $14 billion over a 5-year period to expand community health centers, enable tens of millions more to access health care, and make sure we have the primary health care doctors and dentists we need.

It would be a cruel hoax to tell people they now have health insurance—Medicaid or another program—but not create a situation by which they can get into the doctor's office. I fear that may happen. I am going to fight as hard as I can to make sure we have the primary health care infrastructure we need. That means, in the Senate, adopting the language that currently exists in the House bill for $14 billion over a 5-year period—money which, according to a variety of studies, will pay for itself as we keep people out of the emergency room and keep people from getting sicker than they otherwise should be and ending up in a hospital. This makes a lot of sense. Community health centers have had wide bipartisan support. We have to support the House language.

On another issue, I found it interesting that my friend from Kansas, a moment ago, was denouncing the United Kingdom's health care system, denouncing socialized medicine, single payer. Well, I got a little confused by my Republican friends, who have been in Congress, saying: We love Medicare. My word, do we love Medicare. We are very angry that those Democrats are trying to cut back on that.

Republicans who, year after year, wanted to privatize Medicare, this week they love it. If they love it so much, why don't they join us in trying to expand Medicare and address some of the problems in Medicare? Let's work together.

Last week, we were criticized, but now, I guess, the tune has changed a little. Get your act together, my Republican friends. Either you continue the line you have had for many years about detesting Medicare because it is a single-payer health care program, a government health care program—that is what it is, a single-payer government health care program. You have been on the floor defending it all week long, until a couple days ago.

I support Medicare. In fact, what I believe and am fighting for is a Medicare-for-all, single-payer program because, at the end of the day, I disagree with many on this side of the aisle. I think, at the end of the day, the only way you are going to provide comprehensive universal health care to all Americans, in a cost-effective manner, is through a Medicare-for-all, single-payer system, which ends the hundreds of billions of dollars of bureaucracy and waste engendered by the private insurance companies.

One of my concerns, as we seem to be hurtling down the finish line, is I don't know who is going to be able to offer amendments. I have an amendment that speaks to what millions of Americans want, including the Physicians for a National Health Program—17,000 doctors, mostly primary health care doctors but not exclusively. They want to see this country have a Medicare-for-all, single-payer system. I understand I am not going to get very many Republicans supporting that amendment—or any Republicans. I also understand I will get few enough Democrats supporting that amendment. In the years to come, we are going to have a Medicare-for-all, single-payer system. I want that debate on the floor of the Senate. I have offered an amendment and I want to have that debated. I don't need 20 hours or 5 days. I would love to discuss that issue with my Republican friends.

Democrats, I think it is an amendment that has a right to be offered and it should be. I understand that will not pass. I will tell you what could pass and what could have Republican support, it is the provision I have been working on that at least says that in our Federalist system, where each State learns from other States, at least give States the option. If the Governor or the legislature wants to go forward with a single-payer model; maybe it works, maybe it doesn't work. I have the feeling if one State—whether it is Vermont, California, Pennsylvania, States that have strong single-payer movements, a lot of support for that concept—if one State does it well, then other States will be saying we want the same thing. It is a cost-effective way to provide comprehensive health care to all our people.

I want to touch on another issue, where I think my colleagues in the Senate are wrong and my former colleagues in the House are right. This is an issue the occupant of the chair has worked on with me. We held a press conference this morning. It is to understand this legislation is going to cost between $800 billion and $1 trillion.

How do you get the money? Well, the Senate bill contains a tax on health insurance benefits. I think that is wrong. I think that is regressive. It is called a tax on Cadillac plans. Given the soaring cost of health care in America today, what may be a Cadillac plan today will be a junk car plan 5 years from now. Millions of Americans are going to be forced to pay taxes on their health care benefits or else their employer will cut back on those benefits, and they are going to have to pay out of their own pockets. That is wrong. It is a regressive and unfortunate and unfair way to raise the revenue we need.

Our friends in the House did the right thing. They said that millionaires should be asked to pay a little bit more in taxes to make sure we expand health care coverage in this country. I support what our friends in the Senate and the House did, and I disagree with what is in the Senate bill. There will be a poll coming out this afternoon in which 70 percent of the American people, as I understand it, disagree with the tax on health care benefits. They understand that is a tax on the middle class.

Let's be clear. We are in a terrible recession now. Working families are struggling. It is wrong for us to propose a tax on health care benefits, which in a few years will be impacting millions of middle-class workers. We should follow what the House has done and say to people at the top—millionaires who have received huge tax breaks under President Bush—that they have to pay a little bit more in taxes so we can provide health care to all our people.

There is a lot in the bill in the Senate that makes a lot of sense to me. I congratulate Senator DODD and Senator BAUCUS and all those people and their staffs who have worked so very hard on this bill. We have 31 million more people who will get insurance. There is insurance reform dealing with preexisting conditions. We made progress in disease prevention. There are a lot of good things in it.

I want to be very clear: I do not think we are at the 2-yard line. I think a lot of work has to be done to improve this bill. We need to, as I mentioned a moment ago, make major improvements in primary health care. We need to change how we fund many parts of the expansion of insurance and do away with the tax on health care benefits. We have to give States the option, the flexibility to go forward with a single-payer system if that is what they want to do.

Also, I hope very much that this afternoon we will vote and adopt the reimportation prescription drug legislation championed by Senator DORGAN. It is an absurdity in this country that we remain the country that pays by far the highest prices in the world for prescription drugs. When I was in the House, I was the first Member of Congress, as I understand it, to take Americans over the Canadian border. Back then—10, 15 years ago—women were able to purchase the breast cancer drug Tamoxifen for one-tenth the price they were forced to pay in the United States. I know the drug companies are very powerful. I know they have a lot of influence in this institution. But I hope we can do the right thing and provide affordable medicine to all Americans through reimportation. And I hope we can adopt that amendment.

I did want to say I have some very serious concerns about this legislation, and I hope they will be addressed in the coming days and weeks. I very much want to be able to vote for this bill, but I am not there now, not by any means.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, at the end of the day, Americans don't care if a health reform proposal originated with a Democrat or a Republican, what matters to them is that it works. That is why I am proud to join forces with Senator COLLINS to offer commonsense amendments that will hold down premium costs and make health care more affordable for American families and their employers. As I have long said, the best way to hold down health care costs and make insurance companies accountable is to put Americans in the driver's seat and empower them to pick the plan that best fits their needs.

Along with Senator COLLINS, I am proposing as amendments to the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act three amendments that will improve the Senate bill by doing more to hold down premium increases for all Americans while expanding health care choices for more Americans and their employers. Our amendments are as follows:

First, we are offering an amendment to provide more choices for employers and workers. While the current Senate legislation will eventually make it possible for employers to insure their workforce in the new health insurance exchanges, the legislation does not contain a mechanism to make it possible for employers to offer their workers the ability to choose any plan offered in the exchange. This Wyden-Collins amendment would correct that by making it possible for employers—who want to offer their employees the full range of choices in the exchange—to do just that while increasing competition in the new marketplace.

Under the amendment, any employer that sponsors a health plan would have the option to offer tax-free vouchers to its workers equal to the amount the employer contributes to its own health plan. Workers could then use that voucher to purchase the exchange plan that works best for them and their family. If a worker decides to purchase a less-expensive plan, the worker would keep the savings as added income just as workers wanting to purchase more generous plans in the exchange will be able to pay the additional cost out of pocket. Whatever employers pay for vouchers will remain tax deductible for employers and tax free for employees and while no employer will be required to offer vouchers under the new system, in order to encourage participation, employers who want to offer their employees tax-free vouchers will be given accelerated access to the new health insurance exchanges. Under the amendment, any employer offering its workers vouchers would have access to the exchange in 2015 rather than 2017, which is the schedule for employer access in the bill.

Our second amendment offers more choices to individuals and families in the insurance exchanges. This amendment will make it possible for individuals who are not eligible for a subsidy to purchase a catastrophic plan, regardless of age. Catastrophic plans will typically have much lower premiums than other plans offered through the exchange but subscribers will pay for most of their health care expenses out of pocket up until they exceed their plan's catastrophic limit.

Americans should have the choice to purchase more affordable coverage, if that is what works best for them. Under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, individuals up to the age of 30 are eligible to purchase these plans. This Collins-Wyden amendment will extend that option to individuals—not receiving government subsidies—over the age of 30. This amendment would give consumers more choice and help ensure that more people can purchase coverage that fits their needs and is affordable to them.

The amendment includes aggressive disclosure requirements that will require catastrophic subscribers to certify that they understand the terms of the coverage and know that they are purchasing the lowest level of coverage available.

Finally, we are sponsoring an amendment to help hold down premium increases for consumers. Starting in 2010, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act will impose an annual fee on insurance companies based on the number of premiums written each year. This Wyden-Collins amendment will modify that fee to create an incentive for insurers to hold down rates. So, for example, insurance companies that hold down premium increases will pay lower fees, while insurers who jack up their premiums will pay much higher fees. Starting in 2010 the fee will be varied by as much as 50 percent based on how aggressively insurers control costs which will give them a strong incentive to hold the line on overhead, executive salaries, provider payments, and inefficiency. As under the bill, the total amount of the annual fee will be $6.7 billion per year.

I urge our colleagues on both sides of the aisle will support these bipartisan, commonsense amendments.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, as more American families struggle in the face of job loss and rising health care costs, the urgency with which the Senate health care debate must progress is clear.

Americans feel a growing insecurity about the future of their family and the future of our country. The recent economic crisis demonstrated the interconnectedness of Wall Street and Main Street. It confirmed what we already knew: that the strength and stability of our economy is intimately tied to the welfare of working families and our ability to direct spending down a more sustainable path.

In 2008, the United States spent $2.4 trillion on health care. By 2018, national health spending is expected to almost double, reaching $4.4 trillion and comprising 20 percent of our economy. If the growth of health care costs is not addressed, America's economy won't be able to keep up and more jobs will be lost, wages will drop, and health care benefits will be cut.

In addition to the unsustainable growth of health care costs, further faults in our current health care system leave millions of Americans one illness or job loss away from losing their health care benefits. Guaranteed access to affordable and meaningful health benefits would provide Americans with the security they deserve.

I recently heard from Brad and Joanne in Goodwin, SD. Brad is a cancer survivor and Joanne is a heart attack survivor. They had health insurance coverage at the time of their illnesses but still carry medical debt. After the economy forced the plant Joanne worked for to close in October 2008, she fell back on the health insurance coverage offered by Brad's employer. She relies on medication to manage her heart health and Brad requires regular checkups to make sure he stays cancer-free. In March of this year, the family hit hard times again when Brad's employer downsized and he was laid off.

Today, Brad and Joanne are still unable to find work and their unemployment benefits are set to run out at the end of the year. Even if they could find an insurance policy that approved them for coverage despite their pre-existing conditions, the price of health insurance in the individual market is far beyond their reach. So Joanne pays entirely out-of-pocket for her pricey heart medication and Brad can't afford to visit his doctor as often as he should. They do not know what they will do in the event they suffer another medical emergency or if their unemployment benefits run out before they are able to secure a new job.

Joanne and Brad's story illustrates the insecurity of many American families who are one job loss away from losing access to the health care they need. While South Dakota has been fortunate not to have as high of unemployment rate as other parts of the country, the economic crisis has put more and more South Dakotans on unsteady financial footing.

It is estimated that over 88 percent of South Dakotans have health insurance. This too is an impressive figure compared with other states, but it does not paint the whole picture. Nearly 61 percent of South Dakotans either purchase health insurance in the individual market or have coverage through their employer. These families are at risk of losing their coverage for reasons out of their control, such as those experienced by Brad and Joanne.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act will guarantee these families access to affordable health insurance through life's ups and downs. Insurers will be barred from denying coverage for pre-existing conditions, discriminating based on gender or medical history, and will not be able to drop your coverage the moment you become ill and need costly treatment. New health insurance exchanges in every state will provide a menu of quality, affordable health insurance plans for the self-employed and those not offered coverage through their employer. Families who need assistance will be eligible for tax credits to make the plan of their choice affordable.

These commonsense solutions will give every American one less thing to worry about when they get sick, change or lose their job. As we continue to work out the details of health care reform, let us keep in mind the American families who are struggling to make ends meet in the face of job loss and rising health care costs. When we think of them, the urgency of health care reform is clear.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRANSPORTATION, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2010—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I move to proceed to the conference report to accompany H.R. 3288, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be.

The Republican leader is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to proceed for a moment here prior to the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I say to my good friend the majority leader, we have been anxious to have health care votes since Tuesday, and we have had the Crapo amendment pending since Tuesday. You have said repeatedly, and I agree with you, that the health care issue is extraordinarily important and that we should be dealing with it and debating it.

So it is my hope that somehow, through our discussions both on and off the floor, we can get back to a process of facilitating the offering of amendments on both sides of the aisle at the earliest possible time and we can get back to the health care bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am happy to respond through the Chair to my distinguished colleague.

I think it is pretty evident to everyone here not only what has happened here on the Senate floor but the statements that have been made publicly and privately. And certainly I am not going to discuss any private conversations I have had, but based on Rush Limbaugh and Glenn Beck, which is on all the news today, they are upset at Senator MCCONNELL because he is not opposing the health care bill enough—that in a reasonable process on this, there are no efforts being made to improve this bill, only to kill this bill.

I think the debate has come to a point that I have rarely seen in the Senate. In fact, I have never seen it. To have my friends on the other side of the aisle come to the floor and in some way try to embarrass or denigrate me by virtue of the fact that—in fact, trying to embarrass me. What they should understand is that any events I had scheduled for this weekend have been canceled. Events I had last weekend had been canceled—four or five of them. To say the least, I would never, ever intentionally come to the floor and try to talk to somebody about having had a fundraiser and that is why they are trying to get out of here.

The reason I laid out to the Senate what I thought was a reasonable schedule is because, procedurally, we are where we are. The rules of the Senate are such that once cloture is invoked, that is what you stay with. I thought it would be appropriate, because we have worked pretty hard here, to have a day or two off. Anything that was reasonable, I would be happy to deal with everyone. But there was no result from this. Everything that can be done to stall and to divert attention from this bill is being done. And that is too bad, because it is important legislation.

Today, 14,000 Americans will lose their health insurance. Between now and 3:30, a number of people will die as a result of having no health insurance. So we are engaged in some important stuff; as pundits have said, some of the most important legislation that has ever been in this body.

So I am going to proceed to follow the rules of the Senate, and I am sorry we haven't been able to work with the Republicans in a constructive fashion on this health care bill, but it is obvious we haven't.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be able to respond briefly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I reiterate to my good friend from Nevada, all I said was the Crapo amendment has been pending since Tuesday. We would like to vote on amendments. There has been some difficulty, apparently, in coming up with a side by side to the Crapo amendment. I understand that. But I am perplexed that it would take 2 days to come up with a side by side.

This, as has been stated by my good friend the majority leader, is the most important issue—some have said in history. It has been equated with a variety of different monumentally important pieces of legislation in American history. All we are asking is the opportunity to offer amendments and get votes. I said it in a most respectful way and meant it in a most respectful way. I think it is pretty hard to argue with a straight face that we are not trying to proceed to amend and have votes on this bill. That is what we desire to do.

The majority leader certainly has the right to move to the conference report. He has now done that—or we are about to vote on doing that. All I suggested was we would like to get back on the health care bill as soon as we can, resume the debate process on what has been described on an issue of historic importance, and let Senators vote, which is what we do here in this body.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to my friend from Kentucky that I have an event I am going to now. I will vote and come back, and I will see if we can work something out.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. BYRD) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. KLOBUCHAR). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 56, nays 43, as follows:

NOT VOTING—1

Byrd

The motion was agreed to.

Mrs. BOXER. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. AKAKA. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mrs. BOXER. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, it is my understanding we are now on the fiscal year 2010 Consolidated Appropriations Act. I will have a lot to say about this 3,000-page omnibus appropriations bill, but I would point out to my colleagues that it is loaded down with 4,752 earmarks, totaling $3.7 billion; six bills, totaling $450 billion; 1,351 pages long, with 409 pages of earmarks. Spending on domestic programs is increased by 14 percent. Veterans spending is increased by 5 percent. That shows the priorities around here. Let me repeat that. Domestic spending programs are increased by 14 percent. Military construction and veterans spending is increased by only 5 percent.

Here we go again. Just a matter of months ago, in March, the Senate passed a monstrous $410 billion, 3,000-page omnibus appropriations bill that was loaded up with over 9,000 earmarks. At that time, those of us who complained about the ridiculous amount of waste were ignored. In fact, the President's Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Peter Orszag, said in an interview that ''this is last year's business. . . . We want to just move on''—a truly remarkable statement coming from the man the President put in charge of the government's budget.

In March, the majority leader placed the blame for the omnibus spending bill at the feet of President Bush. Senator REID said:

> . . . we have a lot of issues we need to get to after we fund the Government—something we should have done last year but we could not because of the difficulty we had working with President Bush.

So what is the excuse this time? Where will the blame be placed now? Is the majority leader having difficulty working with President Obama? We have had all year to work on 12 annual spending bills, and we only enacted 5 of them through the regular order, and 1 of those 5 was passed and sent to the President before the new fiscal year began.

We should be embarrassed by this process. Here we go again—faced with a whopping 1,350-page omnibus appropriations conference report, which contains six bills, spends $450 billion, and is loaded up with 4,752 earmarks, totaling $3.7 billion. Meanwhile, people are out of jobs, they are out of their homes, unemployment in my home State is 17 percent, and we are going to spend money on things such as $2.7 million—get this; I am not making it up—$2.7 million for supporting surgical operations in outer space—supporting surgical operations in outer space—at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, Omaha, NE; $30,000 for Woodstock Film Festival Youth Initiative; $13.9 million for fisheries in Hawaii—the list goes on and on and on and on—$200,000 to renovate and construct the Laredo Little Theatre.

We should not be spending American taxpayer dollars to replace worn auditorium seating and soundproofing materials. The list goes on and on and on: $800,000 for jazz at the Lincoln Center; $3.4 million for a rural bus program in Hawaii—you will note that Hawaii pops up all the time here—$1.6 million to build a tram between the Huntsville Botanical Garden and the Marshall Flight Center in Alabama; $750,000 for the design and fabrication of exhibits to be placed in the World Food Prize Hall of Laureates in Iowa.

I am not making these up. This is the same party and President that promised to scrub each one of these appropriations bills and get rid of the unnecessary ones.

So we will be talking a lot about this bill. But I want to point out again what is before us to the American people: six bills—not one—six bills, totaling $450 billion; 409 pages of earmarks, 4,752 earmarks, totaling $3.7 billion; and spending on domestic programs is increased by 14 percent; MILCON and veterans spending is increased by 5 percent.

I have met recently with the Governor of my State. We are suffering under incredible economic difficulties. We are having the greatest financial crisis in the history of my State. Couldn't they use some of this $3.7 billion in earmarks to pay for some of the essential services that are having to be cut back, not only in my State but all over America? No. The beat goes on. It is business as usual here in Washington.

And do not be surprised at the anger of the American people over this way of doing business—bills 1,351 pages long, filled with earmarks and pork that have nothing to do with the betterment of our Nation.

So we will be talking a lot more about many of these porkbarrel amendments that are in it. But it is awful: $200,000 for ''design and construction of the Garapan Public Market'' in the Northern Mariana Islands. We will be hearing a lot more about it.

Mr. THUNE. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. MCCAIN. I will be glad to yield.

Mr. THUNE. The Senator mentioned that for these seven bills, the year-over-year increase in spending is 12 percent. Does the Senator from Arizona know what the CPI this last year was?

Mr. MCCAIN. The CPI was minus 1.3 percent, not to mention 10 percent unemployment in America, not to mention people not being able to stay in their homes, not to mention the hardest economic conditions in history, certainly, since the Great Depression.

Spending on domestic programs is increased by 14 percent. What brings that down to 12 percent is they only increased veterans spending—veterans spending—by 5 percent. But opera houses, rural bus programs, music programs—$300,000 for music programs at Carnegie Hall. Do you think Carnegie Hall needs $300,000 for music programs?

Mr. THUNE. If the Senator will yield for another question, do any of these numbers the Senator is talking about—this 12-percent increase in spending in these seven appropriations bills over the previous year, at a time when families across this country are being asked to tighten their belts, small businesses are tightening their belts; as the Senator said, we have record unemployment—do these numbers include the almost $1 trillion that was spent earlier this year in the stimulus bill?

Mr. MCCAIN. The stimulus bill has nothing to do with that, I would say to my colleague, and we all know that. This is entirely new, six appropriations bills, totaling nearly $450 billion which, by the way, the majority leader wanted to pass by unanimous consent. Remarkable.

Mr. THUNE. I say to my colleague and friend from Arizona, that is a 12-percent year-over-year increase and the five bills that have already passed had increases that were in the teens in terms of the year-over-year increases too. I do not know how, when you pass a $1 trillion stimulus bill, much of which was distributed to Federal agencies that are also going to get these year-over-year 12-percent, 14-percent, 15-percent increases in spending, we can justify that to the American taxpayer or to hard-working Americans who are struggling right now to make ends meet and have to balance their family budgets. States are struggling to balance their budgets. But here in Washington, it seems as though it is spend, spend, spend.

Mr. MCCAIN. I would also respond to my friend, it has to be in the context of a revision over 10 years, recently, by the Office of Management and Budget from a $10 trillion to a $12 trillion deficit. The deficit for this year is $1.4 trillion, and I am not sure what it is next year. But they could not have known that in the Appropriations Committee when they passed spending measures such as this.

The point is, in the face of massive, unprecedented deficits, unfunded liabilities in Social Security and Medicare, where we are asking Americans all over to tighten their belts—in my State essential services are being cut because they do not have enough money—this is the same business as usual that we have seen for years.

I saw a poll yesterday—it was in a Hotline poll or one of those—that the approval rating of Members of Congress is below that of used car salesmen. I have not met those who express their approval. So we should not be surprised at some very interesting things that may take place in the elections coming up this November. But it is unfortunate, that is all.

Mr. THUNE. I say to the Senator, one final point I would make is, of all that spending the Senator mentioned—and again the $1 trillion in stimulus money was all borrowed money; that was all added to the debt, will be added to the debt, and is going to be paid for by our children and grandchildren, but the $1.4 trillion the Senator mentioned that last year constituted the Federal deficit means that out of every dollar the Federal Government spent last year, 43 cents was borrowed.

Mr. MCCAIN. Forty-three cents. And do you know who they borrowed it against? Our kids and our grandkids. They are the ones who are going to have to pay for it. I do not think I will. It is our kids and our grandkids whom we are laying it on. This is a colossal act of generational theft that we have committed. And believe it or not, the American people have figured it out.

Mr. THUNE. There is no question. The one thing that I guess is bothersome is most generations of Americans—your generation, obviously—worked hard, sacrificed so the next generation could have a better life. What we are basically doing is borrowing from the next generation because we have not been able to live within our means. That turns on its head one of the great ethics of America that has served this country so well for generations. Washington, DC, has not learned the lesson that when you borrow money, it has to be paid back, and that you cannot spend more than you take in. Forty-three cents out of every dollar last year was borrowed—all to be put on the bills of our children and grandchildren.

Mr. MCCAIN. The Senator is correct.

Madam President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the conference report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3288), making appropriations for the Departments of Transportation and Housing and Urban Development, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, and for other purposes, having met, have agreed that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment, and the Senate agree to the same, signed by a majority of the conferees on the part of the two Houses.

(The conference report is printed in the RECORD of December 8, 2009, beginning at page H13631, Book II.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I know we have moved to the Omnibus appropriations bill to continue government, and the time is running out for the current authorization bill, and this brings us back to the authorization of spending, but it also takes us away from health care reform.

On this side of the aisle, we have been waiting for a long period of time to vote on some amendments that are now before the Senate, such as the Crapo motion which would send the bill back to committee to take out the tax increases that are in it. Then we also have the Dorgan amendment. I can understand why maybe the majority does not want to vote on Republican amendments, but I sure don't understand why they would object to voting on Senator DORGAN's amendment, a Democratic amendment, because there have always been more Democrats than Republicans for the Dorgan amendment, and quite frankly, I am in a position where I agree with that amendment. I am a cosponsor of it. I think we would have a great deal of bipartisan support for the Dorgan amendment. But now we are just automatically away from the health care debate and those amendments.

So I am wondering why we had to do this appropriations bill right now. I think there is growing realization that maybe public reaction, negative reaction to the legislation before us—remember that 2,074-page bill that is before us—the public is getting wise to what is in that bill and there is objection to it, and maybe now the majority party would like to have a little respite from that debate. So I thought I would come back to not the substance of the health care reform bill debate but to a lot of organizations that oppose it and why they oppose it, just to keep the public's attention that we on this side of the aisle feel the health care issue is very important.

As I travel around Iowa, I hear a lot of concern about out-of-control government spending. People are worried about all of the bailouts, the banks, and the automakers, the automakers such as General Motors being nationalized. They are worried about the rising rate of unemployment, which is 10 percent now. They don't see how we will ever dig ourselves out of the deficit hole we are in, a deficit that has been increased by $1.3 trillion since President Obama's inauguration.

As Senator MCCAIN just pointed out, the bill that has now come before the Senate to fully fund the Federal Government has 12.5-percent increases in it. From that standpoint, it seems to me we are getting away from a commonsense principle that we ought to use around here on spending, and that is that spending shouldn't eat up any more than the economic growth of the tax base that is coming into the Federal Treasury to support that spending. Quite obviously, you can't have 12.5 percent increases in appropriations this year over last year, and last year was 9 percent over the previous year. You just can't sustain that. Common sense dictates against it. But what rules here in Washington is just a lot of nonsense.

So our constituents are confused. They are confused as to why, in the face of all these fiscal problems, some in Congress are now proposing $500 billion in tax increases. Tax increases are very bad for the economy. It is more difficult to get out of the recession as you increase expenditures. They don't understand why some are proposing the largest Medicaid expansion since the program's creation. They want to know why they are proposing $500 billion in Medicare cuts to create an entirely new entitlement program that this country can't afford.

Nowhere are these worries and this confusion more evident than among business leaders of America because business is where jobs are created. Government does not produce wealth; government consumes wealth. So if you want to expand the economy, you do it through the private sector. That is where the resources of government come from. That is where the resources that sustain our people come from.

So whether it is a small business owner on Main Street or a CEO on Wall Street, the message is clear: Stop spending, get the economy back on track, and get people back to work.

Unfortunately, the health reform bill will not address any of these goals. In fact, it may just do the opposite. Don't take my word for it. Let's take a look at what the groups that represent American businesses are saying.

Let's start with the Chamber of Commerce representing 3 million American businesses. In a press release distributed November 19, 1 day after the release of the Senate bill, the Chamber called the Senate bill a ''Missed Opportunity to Enact Meaningful Reform.'' That was their title.

Let me go to a specific quote:

> This bill still contains a government-run plan and an onerous employer mandate, it taxes working Americans, slashes Medicare, spends over a trillion dollars—and after all this—CBO tells us 24 million Americans will still not have health insurance.

That doesn't sound like the kind of reform that is going to help get the chamber members back on track hiring more workers so we can get this unemployment down. It sounds as though they will end up being forced to pay higher taxes and cut jobs. I am not an economist, but that certainly doesn't sound like a formula for getting this country out of the recession.

In fact, the chamber's press release says:

> The Chamber believes the path to a healthier economy is to cut taxes, not to raise them by $500 billion.

They go on to ask a question for which I still can't find an answer:

> Why is there still no meaningful medical liability reform? Is currying favor with the trial lawyers worth passing up $50 billion in CBO verified savings?

I think it is pretty clear that the Chamber of Commerce doesn't think this $2.5 trillion bill will cure what ails the U.S. economy.

Let's see what some other business groups have to say. The National Association of Manufacturers put out a press release the same day as the Chamber of Commerce, November 19. The National Association of Manufacturers is the Nation's largest industrial trade association. Their members build the machines that keep America running, so they should know a little bit about how to get our economy running again. Unfortunately, they see Senator REID's bill as a step in the wrong direction. Like the Chamber and like pretty much every other business group, the National Association of Manufacturers has announced that they cannot support the pending bill.

I find it hard to believe that some Senators who claim to be probusiness can support a bill that is opposed by almost the entire business community—or am I missing something? How can some Democrats who claim to want to get people back to work support a bill that economists from the far right to the far left say will reduce wages and increase unemployment? It just doesn't seem to make sense.

Like other business groups, the National Association of Manufacturers is in favor of reform. Manufacturers realize that we need health reform to lower costs, increase access, and improve quality. But according to their press release, they cannot support a bill that will—this is their quote—''add massive financial burdens to businesses that are already struggling in this recession.'' They go on to express deep concern about huge tax increases that will hurt small business manufacturers, and they are worried that both the so-called public option and the massive Medicaid expansion will just end up shifting more costs and higher premiums to private businesses.

The National Association of Manufacturers ends their press release by saying:

> Oppose the majority leader's bill and urge Senators to do the same as it raises costs and ultimately will destroy jobs.

Again, I find myself asking how someone can claim to be probusiness but support a bill that is so strongly opposed by the business community.

Let's take a look at what small businesses have to say. Maybe that is where the answer is. You have to remember that small businesses create 70 percent of the net new jobs in America. In fact, it was Christina Romer, the President's top economic adviser, who said in a recent Webcast that health care reform will ''benefit small business—not burden it.''

Unfortunately, the National Federation of Independent Businesses, the voice of small businesses, doesn't seem to agree. After the release of Senator REID's bill, the National Federation of Independent Businesses said this:

> This kind of reform is not what we need to encourage small business to thrive. We oppose the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act due to the amount of new taxes, the creation of new mandates, and the establishment of new entitlement programs.

Like the chamber and the National Association of Manufacturers, small businesses want and need reform, probably more so than even chamber members and the National Association of Manufacturers. But it doesn't sound as though the pending bill actually addresses the problems of small business. In fact, it sounds as though the pending bill simply creates a host of new problems—problems at a time when this country is coming back from the brink of the greatest economic downturn since the Depression.

The National Federation of Independent Businesses goes on to say:

> There is no doubt all of these burdens will be paid for on the backs of small businesses.

Over the coming weeks, I am sure some Senators are going to come down here and talk about all of the benefits for small businesses that are in this bill. But in the interest of honest debate, I hope they will at least mention in their remarks that despite all of the so-called benefits, this bill is still opposed by the voices of America's small businesses. It is still opposed by the National Federation of Independent Businesses. I could go on and list about half a dozen other business groups that oppose this bill. The Associated Builders and Contractors, the Independent Electrical Contractors, the International Franchise Association, the National Association of Wholesalers, the Small Business and Entrepreneurship Council, and the International Food Service Distribution Association—all of these groups recognize the devastating impact this bill will have on our economy.

We are facing the highest unemployment rate in 26 years. We have already seen the national debt increase by $1.3 trillion since inauguration or per household $11,535. The pending bill misses the mark on business' top priority, and that is lowering costs. Don't take my word for it. The Congressional Budget Office says the Reid bill bends the Federal spending curve further upward by a net of $160 billion between 2010 and 2019.

For these reasons, the pending bill is opposed by these organizations I have quoted: the National Association of Manufacturers, the Chamber of Commerce, the National Federation of Independent Businesses, as well as almost every other business group based in Washington, DC, or maybe, for all I know, they are based in other parts of the country, but they still follow legislation here in this city, in the Congress.

The business community has spoken, and their message is loud and clear. For Senators who want to bend the growth curve down—and that is what we all set out to do, but we don't have a bill before us that does it—this bill is not the answer. For those Senators who want to get people back to work, this bill is not the answer.

For those Senators who want to get this country's economy back on track, this bill is not the answer.

If you support American businesses—and American businesses are what provide the income into the Federal Treasury, whether it is corporate tax or income tax—it seems to me that if you have pride in American businesses and the jobs they create, you cannot support this bill.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. MCCASKILL). The Senator from Washington is recognized.

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I rise this afternoon to speak about the Transportation-Housing title of the bill now before the Senate. This is a bill that has broad bipartisan support because it addresses the very real housing and transportation needs of American families across the Nation.

There is a lot to be proud of in this conference report, and I am pleased with what we have been able to accomplish working with my colleague from across the aisle, Senator BOND, Chairman OLVER on the House side, and Congressman LATHAM and all their staffs.

This bill makes needed investments in our transportation infrastructure, creating critical jobs, while also supporting housing and services for our Nation's most vulnerable.

It ensures that two critical Federal agencies—departments that communities across the country depend on—have the resources they need to keep our commuters safe and our communities moving and prospering.

The bill before us touches the lives of Americans in ways they can appreciate each day. Because we are talking about transportation projects and housing assistance, we are also talking about jobs and stemming a housing crisis that has contributed to our current economic troubles.

Whether it is the parent who commutes every day and needs safe roads or new public transportation options so they can spend more time with their families or a business that depends on solid infrastructure to move goods and attract customers or the young family searching for a safe and affordable community in which to raise their children or the recently laid-off worker who needs help to keep his or her family in their home, this omnibus bill before us has a real impact on Americans who are struggling in these troubling economic times.

Our bill takes a balanced approach that addresses the most critical needs we face in both transportation and housing, while remaining financially responsible and staying within the constraints of the budget resolution.

I am especially pleased that the bill provides over $10.3 billion to support and expand public transit, which continues to see record growth in ridership.

The bill also includes $600 million for the competitive multimodal surface transportation grant program, which supports projects making a significant impact on communities and regions—in addition to the over $41.8 billion included for our Nation's roads and bridges, which will support good-paying construction jobs and lead to safer and more reliable infrastructure.

These transportation investments are critical to supporting our Nation's economy and creating good-paying jobs.

In addition to these important investments in transportation, the bill represents a firm commitment to provide critical housing and supportive services to families most impacted by the economic crisis.

This bill includes increased funding for the section 8 program, which provides housing for low-income families across the country. In addition, the bill increases housing programs for some of our Nation's most underserved populations, such as the elderly, the disabled, and Native American communities.

Senator BOND and I are particularly proud that this bill includes $75 million for vouchers for the joint HUD-Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing Program. That program will provide an additional 10,000 homeless veterans and their families housing and supportive services. We should all be very proud of the inclusion of that in the bill.

I am also pleased the bill includes more than $150 million for housing counseling programs to help families avoid scams and stay in their homes, instead of facing foreclosure.

Our bill provides assistance to those who need it most, and it directs resources in a responsible and fiscally prudent way.

It addresses the needs of families and businesses in every region of the country—families who are looking for the Federal Government to step up and provide solutions to everything from congestion solutions to transportation safety, to foreclosure assistance, to affordable housing.

This bill helps our commuters, homeowners, and the most vulnerable in society. Most important, it will create jobs and support the continued recovery of our national economy.

I hope we can get past the differences we have and move quickly to send this bill to the President's desk.

Before I close, I thank all our Senate staff who worked extremely hard over this past year to move this bill forward to our subcommittee, through full committee, to the floor of the Senate, through conference committee, and now here at its final stop before it reaches the President's desk. They have worked many weekends and evenings putting this together. These staff members are: Matt McCardle, John Kamarck, Ellen Beares, Joanne Waszczak, Travis Lumpkin, Grant Lahmann, Michael Bain, Dedra Goodman and Alex Keenan and especially Meaghan McCarathy and Rachel Milberg for their outstanding efforts to help us get this bill to the floor today. We are the ones who stand before everybody and take credit for these bills, but it is our staffs who have helped us get here. I thank the staffs on both sides of the aisle for getting us here today.

I urge our colleagues to get past our differences and move the bill quickly to the President's desk.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAPO. Madam President, I wish to speak on the Omnibus appropriations bills, to which we just moved, as well as to return and make some comments on the health care legislation from which we just retreated.

First, regarding the Omnibus appropriations bill, I am very concerned about the fact that, as my motion is pending on the health care bill, dealing with one of the more important issues; namely—the President's pledge to make sure no one in America who makes less than $250,000 as a couple or $200,000 as an individual will be required to pay for the unbelievably high cost of this bill.

While we were facing that amendment, the majority has decided they will shift from the bill—I understand that is a tough vote to take because the bill contains so many hundreds of billions of dollars of new tax increases that the American people squarely in the middle class will be called upon to share. We should not have shifted from the health care debate to move to the Omnibus appropriations bill, not only because of the importance of the issues we are dealing with on the health care legislation but because of the Omnibus appropriations bill itself.

This Congress cannot control its appetite for spending. The appropriations bill we see before us now is called omnibus because it packages together seven of the original appropriations bills this Congress has been working on—and we are studying them to find out the details. But from the information I have received, the average rate of growth in spending in this bill overall—over those seven bills—is somewhere between 12 percent and 14 percent growth in Federal spending.

This Congress has generated a $1.4 trillion deficit in less than 12 months. For next year, we want to see Federal Government grow by another 12 to 14 percent. That doesn't count the new stimulus package spending that is being talked about, and it doesn't count the spending—that almost $2.5 trillion in new spending—contemplated in the health care legislation, and any number of other pieces of legislation waiting in the queue to come before the Congress.

At some point, fiscal restraint has to return to Washington, DC. We have not seen it here for far too long. I know it is very tempting to just say we can pile the debt on our children and grandchildren and spend what we want to spend today. There are those who say the only way we can have a strong economy is to spend ourselves into prosperity. Yet it is not the government that creates jobs. It is the formation of capital, the investment by small businesses and entrepreneurs in new ideas and products, and the expansion of business in the United States that will allow us to sustain a strong, healthy growth in our economy.

If we continue to rely on borrowing money from the future in order to spend ourselves into prosperity, we will continue to see our national debt mount to a point where it cannot be sustained. We are already at a $12 trillion national debt, a national debt that is projected to double over the next 10 years to $24 trillion. I object to moving off the health care bill, where we had such critical amendments and motions pending. I object to moving to a bill that will now increase the spending of the Federal Government by 12 to 14 percent.

Let me shift for a moment and talk more about the health care bill. The motion I had brought—the pending motion before the Senate—or it was before we shifted off the health care bill—was a simple motion that would have required the bill to be committed to the Finance Committee, with instructions to the Finance Committee to take out those parts of the bill that impose a tax increase on people in the United States who earn less than $250,000 as a couple or $200,000 as individuals.

Very straightforward, it is exactly what the President pledged he would do, on multiple occasions, to the American people. Yet we have shown there are almost $500 billion of taxes in the first 10 years of this bill. If you look at the real first 10 years after the spending has kicked in—the 2014 to 2023 time period—it is almost $1.2 trillion in new taxes, a huge portion of which falls on the middle class. The response has been that actually this bill is a net tax cut. How can that be? The only way it can be claimed to be a tax cut is if you take the subsidies in the bill—about $400 billion worth of them—which are used to provide people at lower income categories, who don't have adequate access to insurance, with a subsidy toward the purchase of insurance and if you call that a tax cut. In the bill, it is actually called a renewable tax credit—even though $300 billion of the $400 billion goes to individuals who do not pay taxes, do not have a tax liability, and it is scored by the CBO as spending, not tax relief. Even if you were willing to count that money as tax relief, then you would have a situation in which 7 percent of the Americans would be receiving these government subsidies, while the remainder would be paying the price—paying the taxes.

To put some numbers on that, out of 282 million Americans who have insurance in America today—or will have in 2019—only 19 million would receive this tax credit being talked about. Remember, the vast majority of them get what is called a tax credit, but it is a government subsidy going to those who have not generated a tax liability, and 157 million of the 282 million would be people who get health insurance through their employer and will not be eligible for that health insurance.

After you do all the numbers and take out the taxpayers who make less than $250,000 a year as a couple or $200,000 as an individual, the bottom line is, after all those who are subsidized are taken out, there are still 42 million Americans in the middle class, as defined by the President, who will pay hundreds of billions of dollars in taxes.

My amendment would simply require that those taxes be taken out of the bill, the President's pledge be honored in the bill, and the bill then be put into a posture to return to the floor for further debate.

There is one other item I would like to talk about. One of the things that is often said by the opponents of my amendment is that this bill actually drives down the spending curve.

When they say that, I wonder what curve they are talking about. Are they talking about the size of government? No. The size of government under this bill grows up by $2.5 trillion. Are they talking about the cost of health care? No. The CBO study indicated very clearly that at best Americans will not see the cost of their health care go down. For those in the most needy categories, the 17 percent of Americans who are in the individual market, their health insurance will actually go up by 10 to 13 percent.

Are they talking about the Federal deficit? Actually, CBO says the deficit will go down. That is not the size of the government, but that is the size of the debt or spending each year. But how does it go down? It goes down only if you use the budget gimmicks that I will outline in just a minute or if you include all the taxes, the hundreds of billions of dollars of taxes that are in the bill, and if you count the Medicare cuts that are in the bill.

Take out any one of those—the nearly $500 billion of Medicare cuts, the nearly $500 billion of taxes, or the budget gimmicks—and this bill does not drive the deficit curve down.

What are the budget gimmicks—and I will close with this—what are the budget gimmicks about which I am talking? There are a number of them. The biggest is that the proponents of the bill do not count the first 4 years of spending. If you look at the 10-year spending cycle of the first 10 years of the first part of this bill, the taxes go into effect on the first day the bill is law, on January 1 of next year. The spending does not start until the year 2014.

So we have 10 years of taxes, 10 years of Medicare cuts, and 6 years of spending. That is how they are able to say it balances out. If they started the spending and the taxing on the same day and did not give themselves a 4-year run of tax collection until they start the actual implementation of the spending part of the bill, it would drive the deficit down also.

All we need to do in this Senate is to slow down, refer the bill back to committee, have them fix the provisions on taxes, and then work on some of the common ground we know we have that will help bend the spending curve down and will help improve the situation for Americans across this country who are calling for us to control the skyrocketing costs of health care.

It is my hope that as the Senate goes through the next few weeks of debate on this legislation, as well as the other legislation we bring before us, we will remember our children and our grandchildren and all Americans today who are calling for the kind of true health care reform that will truly address the kind of fiscal responsibility and the kind of cost containment that we should be seeking in this Chamber.

I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR. Madam President, I rise to reiterate exactly what my colleague just said, that transparency with the American people on the cost of this plan is absolutely essential. If you are going to tax the American people, tell them what you are going to tax. If you are going to cut their benefits, tell them what you are going to cut. Do not use smoke and mirrors to create a panacea for the people down the road to find out they have been sold a pig in a poke.

I want to talk about not what has been introduced but what has been reported in the press as to where we may go on this bill.

As many know, the bill that is under consideration that is supposed to reform health care is a bill that was crafted in a back office in the Capitol where very few people participated, and those who did participate were only Democrats. It was not until it was rolled out on the Senate floor that many of us had an opportunity to read the 2,074 pages. If the American people are like I am, we are still working our way through section by section trying to figure out exactly what it says and, more importantly, exactly what it means and, even more important than that, how does it affect me? How does it affect my family?

You see, health care is a very personal issue for everybody in this country. It is important that we display the honesty they expect from us. If, in fact, we are going to reform health care, then let's reform it. If we are going to do what we have done over the past several weeks, which is have a debate about coverage expansion, then let's be honest with the American people. Who is going to pay for it?

We know how CBO looked at the bill and how it was designed by the majority leader. They are going to steal $464 billion from Medicare. That is a fact. Nobody disagrees with that. Madam President, $464 billion would be stolen from Medicare which the Medicare trustees say will be insolvent in 2017, a mere 8 years from now. I am not sure that is fiscal responsibility, but it is in the bill.

In the last 24 hours, the press reports the majority leader has sent a new proposal to CBO, the Congressional Budget Office, because he is seeking to find out what that new proposal will cost. If the reports are correct, he has decided to drop the public option and to craft a new coverage plan for some segment of the American people. Again, by news accounts only, that would be an expansion of coverage for individuals in this country 55 to 64. I do not know whether that is the entirety of the group. That is 24 million to 30 million people. The likelihood is if it were opened to any segment, it would be like a magnet to those who probably had some type of health condition because if you do not have a health condition, the likelihood is, in the open marketplace through your employer, if you are employed, you can find a reasonably priced plan. Automatically, the way we have designed it is we are going to attract the sickest of that population.

In the process of doing that, we have to pause for a moment and realize that we have over 40 million seniors and disabled already in Medicare. It is a system that does not reimburse for 100 percent of the services provided. In other words, for Medicare, we reimburse a doctor and a hospital less than it costs them to deliver the service. Nationally, we have accepted that because in that system, when a senior goes in under Medicare and gets a service, what is not reimbursed is then shifted over to the private sector side. It is shifted over to people who pay out of pocket. It is shifted over to people who have private insurance.

Doctors and hospitals have been successful at managing their payer mix. A lot of doctors have X amount of Medicare, X amount of Medicaid, and X amount of private pay. When they put them all together, they find a way to stay in business.

I think it is safe to say if you change the doctors' payer mix or you change the hospitals' payer mix, you could take a provider and move them from slightly profitable, enabling them to practice, over to losing money based upon how the payer mix reimburses them.

My point is, as you take people out of private pay, which is coverage by their employer under a health care plan, payment out of pocket or purchase of health insurance, where that health insurance pays at 100-plus percent of the cost of a service provided, we are basically putting 24 million possibly new additional covered lives into Medicare under Medicare reimbursements. Through that, we automatically change the payer mix of every potential provider in America. We put in jeopardy the doctor. We put in jeopardy the hospital. We put in jeopardy anybody who provides a service under Medicare.

What is the doctor going to do? The doctor can look at it and say: I can absorb the reduction and the change in the payer mix or the doctor may look at it and say: I cannot add any more Medicare beneficiaries. I am sorry, I saw you before when you were on private insurance, but I cannot continue to see you because now I do not get reimbursed sufficiently. So you are going to have to find another doctor.

Now we have gotten into the core pledges of the President where he said: If you like your plan, you get to keep it; if you like your doctor, you can continue with him. We are putting a burden on the doctor or the hospital to make a determination as to how they monitor and control their payer mix by one simple change: by increasing the opportunity for people to participate in a program that up to this time has been sacred and, I might also add, is a program that every participant has paid in their lifetime to be enrolled in.

Medicare is a trust fund. I think we forgot that, when we arbitrarily said we can take $464 billion and steal it out of Medicare and use it to fund this new entitlement. This is not our money to steal. This is the beneficiaries' money that they have paid taxes on their entire life to fund their Medicare benefits.

I am not sure why we believe we have the right to go in and move that money from one account to another, where, in essence, we are moving it from one account and using it for somebody totally different. It is unfair to those who planned a lifetime for this.

Let me go back to the payer mix. As you increase the rolls of Medicare beneficiaries, you affect the viability of every outlet of medical services—hospitals, doctors, this could also affect pharmacists. It is important that we realize we have already increased in this bill the number of individuals who will be covered under Medicaid. The majority leader's original bill mandates that every State will now raise their limit on Medicaid participation from 100 percent of poverty to 133 percent of poverty. Medicaid reimburses at about 72 cents of every dollar of service provided. When you do that, you have now enrolled between 11 million and 15 million new covered lives under Medicaid.

So every provider in the system is already looking at what has been proposed—until the press accounts of the last 24 hours—and said: I am going to have 11 million to 15 million more people. I am being reimbursed 72 cents of every dollar provided. It is hard to stay in business when it costs you a dollar to deliver a service and you get 72 cents back as payment.

They are already trying to figure out how they are going to adjust their payer mix to meet the demands when all of a sudden we come out with a new proposal that the press accounts say we could enroll 24 million people in, that further contributes to cost shift.

Let me say to my colleagues, I was in full agreement with the President when he came out and said: Here are our goals. We have to reform health care. We have to focus on making sure every American has access and affordable options to health care. We have to make sure it is fiscally sustainable.

Why, in the 21st century, would we design a health care system that we could not be certain was financially sound for generations to come?

The truth is, by every account, in a real 10-year period, 10 years of taxes and 10 years of benefits going out, this bill before the revision yesterday is a $2.5 trillion bill. It will contribute to the debt. It will borrow money that our children will be obligated to pay interest on and pay back.

This just compounds the problem, a breakthrough. This is not about policy; this is about in a back room in Washington in the U.S. Capitol, where the majority leader was trying to get to 60 votes. It is real simple.

Listen to the American people and we would start over and we would start over with the principles of the President: Make sure what you do reforms health care, attracts 100 percent of the American people because of access and affordability, and it is fiscally sustainable for generations to come.

The truth is, we have been on the Senate floor for 2 weeks. We have debated a bill that does coverage expansion. I admit openly, it covers 31 million more Americans. But it misses the mark of doing any health care reform because, you see, the bill, before the press accounts of the last 24 hours, assured every American that if they had private insurance or they paid out of pocket, their health care costs were going up. There is no way they could not.

Now what we have done is we have shifted and said we are going to increase the amount of the cost shift. Let me explain for just a minute what a cost shift is. Cost shift is when somebody goes in and is provided a medical service, and if they do not pay for that service or they do not pay the entire cost of that service, what is left over is shifted somewhere in the system. Well, somewhere in the system is the next person who walks in with insurance or who pays out of pocket. Because of the blend they have to meet, they pick up the difference.

Why has health care had such a phenomenal increase in cost? It is because as we increased the rolls of Medicaid, as we had more seniors go into Medicare, we had more costs that were shifted. Up to this point, the President, the Congress, and others were only focused on the uninsured and the underinsured. Well, they are a contributor to the cost shift, there is no question. But let me suggest to you that if we provide insurance—and we should provide access and affordability for every American. By putting people into Medicaid, all you are doing is exacerbating the cost shift. If, in fact, you create a health care system that has an incentive for an individual not to purchase their own health care because it is cheaper to pay the fine, all you are doing is exacerbating the problem of cost shift.

Health care reform is about changing the health system so that cost shift is eliminated. Quite frankly, it starts with making sure we pay 100 percent of what the cost of the services are. But we are not having that debate. This debate on the Senate floor right now, 2 weeks before Christmas, is about coverage expansion. It is not about health care reform. If it were about health care reform, we would be talking about how we create an incentive for private companies to create products that allow an individual to construct their health insurance so that it matches their age, their income, and their health condition. That is not what we are doing. We are sitting in Washington, creating a one-size-fits-all program and saying: You know what, if this doesn't fit, well, we are going to create a government option for you, and we will subsidize you and put you in the government option. Where is that fair to the American taxpayer?

That is why Senator CRAPO's motion is so important. Refer it back to committee. Start over. We have our priorities wrong as it relates to our ability to dip into the American people's pockets and use their money to fund something that is not going to benefit them one bit. This would be a different debate if we could look at the people who are not covered and say: We have fiscally maximized our ability to provide you health care but not necessarily abused the American people's pockets to do it.

America is the most compassionate country in the world. But when we debate things such as this, we are also the most foolish country in the world because it is irresponsible on our part to abuse the power of this government to spend money like this without the benefits that we set out to achieve.

So it is my hope that as we go through the weekend, we will have an opportunity to see what the new proposal is that is laid down on the table. Again, I have to go by what I read, and that is not always accurate in this town.

The CBO has stated that a similar proposal, which was a proposal for a buy-in at the age of 62, would result in an adverse selection in the Medicare Program and would drive up premiums. Let me quote CBO because I don't want it just to be me. This is what the CBO said:

> A potential problem with this option is that the amount of adverse selection that the program experienced could be greater than anticipated, which would put upward pressure on premiums.

CBO is the entity that is evaluating the cost of the current proposal, which nobody knows what is in it. But this was a proposal that was sent to them some time ago that had the buy-in starting at 62, not 55, and their assessment of it, with a buy-in of 62, is that the adverse selection—meaning more sick people were going to migrate to this new option—would cause upward pressure on Medicare premiums and upward pressure on premiums across the board.

So it is my hope that we will have an opportunity very soon to know what is in the proposal and to be able to debate the facts versus just trying to educate ourselves based on the leaks from the media. But there is one thing for certain: The American people have voiced their position on health care reform. They do not see it as reform. They do not see it as positively affecting themselves. They see it as too expensive, they see it as a breach of trust on a plan that seniors have become 100 percent reliant on because they paid into it.

This path has a lot of problems. It is not just the new proposals, it is the proposal that has been on the table for some time. It is my hope that we will continue this debate as long as it takes to make sure that at the end of the day we do what is right for the American people and not necessarily what is expeditious for Members who would like to be home for the holidays.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, earlier today I explained to my fellow Senators, and hopefully to my friends in the media, that the Reid bill does not provide a net tax cut for Americans. Contrary to the Democrats' claims, that seems to be the situation. They claim there is a net tax cut. I hope I proved earlier today that it does not have a net tax cut. Some Americans are cut, but don't forget that some Americans have increases in taxes. I pointed directly to this data, as prepared by the Joint Committee on Taxation, to show that a group of middle-income taxpayers will see their taxes go up under the Reid bill, and that would be this class of taxpayers right here. I don't disagree with Democrats saying there is $40,786 million of tax cuts, but there are also tax increases for a large share of Americans.

I want to now build on those earlier remarks. As I stated, there is clearly a group of individuals and families who benefit from the government subsidy for health care. However, that group is relatively small. Another much larger group would see their taxes go up. So I want to take a minute to provide some statistics that we pulled from the data of the Joint Committee on Taxation looking at both the winners and the losers under the bill.

For the benefit of the public, the Joint Committee on Taxation is an intellectually honest group of professionals who are nonpartisan, and they give Congress information on the impact of policies we make here in our various committees or as individuals or the Senate as a whole.

According to this professional group, the Joint Committee on Taxation, out of those individuals and families affected by four major tax provisions under the Reid bill, individuals earning more than $50,000 and families earning more than $75,000 would see, on average, their taxes going up. Only individuals with incomes below $50,000 and families with incomes below $75,000 would, on average, see some tax relief on account of receiving subsidies for health insurance.

The data of the Joint Committee on Taxation indicates that in 2019, individuals earning less than $50,000 would, on average, receive tax relief through this subsidy equal to $875. Families earning less than $75,000 would, on average, receive tax relief equal to $2,031 from the subsidy. This so-called tax relief, however, is in the form of an advance refundable tax credit that is delivered directly to the insurance company providing health insurance coverage, not to the individual but signed, sealed, and delivered directly to the insurance company—100 percent of it. I repeat: not to the individual but to the insurance company. Clearly, this group is a winner under the Reid bill. But the same data from the Joint Committee on Taxation indicates that in 2019, individuals earning between $50,000 and $200,000 would, on average, see a tax increase of $593. That is for individuals. Now, let's go to families earning between $75,000 and $200,000. They would, on average, see a tax increase of $670.

So what does all this mean? This means the Reid bill does not cut taxes for all Americans. To the contrary, the Reid bill breaks Obama's promise not to tax individuals making less than $200,000 and families making less than $250,000 a year. And you just can't know how many times President Obama, during his Presidential campaign—whether in debates or in individual appearances when he was a candidate—made it very clear that nobody with under $200,000 a year in income was going to see a tax increase. To the contrary, the Reid bill breaks President Obama's pledge not to tax individuals making less than $200,000, and then a higher figure for families making less than $250,000.

Does the tax relief provided to individuals earning less than $50,000 and families making less than $75,000 represent a tax cut? Generally, no, because based upon the report of the Joint Committee on Taxation, of the $395 billion the government will spend on tax credits for health insurance—or subsidies for health insurance—$288 billion will be refundable, meaning individuals and families who have no tax liability will still receive the full benefit. The Joint Committee on Taxation tells us that the remaining $106 billion will go toward reducing real tax liability.

The Congressional Budget Office classifies a benefit provided to tax filers with no tax liability as government spending, not as a tax decrease. This is compared to a tax benefit that actually will reduce a taxpayer's tax liability. This means the $288 billion of government spending through the Tax Code cannot be considered a true tax reduction.

The Democrats count the $288 billion in government spending when claiming the Reid bill provides a tax cut. And the reason is if the Democrats do not count this government spending as a tax cut, they could not hide the fact that the Reid bill increases taxes.

Bottom line: The Reid bill does not provide a net tax cut. Instead, the bill raises taxes and it raises taxes on individuals and families earning less than $250,000, contrary to Candidate Obama's presentation during the campaign that nobody below that figure would get a tax increase.

Check the data. No one can dispute it. It is right here in these figures. Everybody in the United States is represented by these figures here highlighted. They are the ones who are going to get a tax increase. That is the rest of the story.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. CASEY. Madam President, we are on the floor today, as we have been for many days and weeks now, discussing health care. One thing I think is undeniably clear is that there is a basic divide in the Senate on health care. That is not news to most people. But I believe on this side of the aisle there is a great deal of consensus about what health care reform should be about.

We have been trying throughout this debate to make it very clear that we are not only concerned about the tens of millions of Americans who do not have any insurance at all—that is obviously a focus of our work and focus of the debate—but we are also concerned at the same time, as we must be, with those who have insurance—with families with insurance, families who believe they have the security of insurance but, unfortunately, under our system many of them don't.

Many families, in fact millions of families, over the last couple of years have had a member of their family denied coverage because of a preexisting condition. That should be illegal. In this legislation we deal with that directly for the first time ever.

We also provide other protections. When you say ''consumer protections,'' that is a nice sounding phrase but in some ways it does not describe what we are trying to do. We are trying to prevent people from being denied coverage because of preexisting conditions. We are trying to make sure that other families don't have a tragedy such as the family I have spoken on before on this floor, the Ritter family in Manheim, PA. They had the tragedy of finding out a number of years ago that their two 4-year-old daughters, twins, had leukemia but also the insult and the outrage of our system saying to them: Your daughters have leukemia, we can treat them, we have a lot of experts and knowledge and technology to help them, but we are going to limit their care.

That is an outrage. The first provision in this bill says we are not going to put caps on treatment for people who are very sick.

We also recognize that, as President Obama said a number of months ago, if you get sick, you shouldn't go bankrupt. But that is happening more and more in America. It is an outrage and we should not allow it to go on any longer.

We are trying also to keep premiums affordable. Fortunately, the Congressional Budget Office helped us make that argument. In their own way they weighed in on that question and talked about the fact that so many American families will have their premiums reduced if not kept level.

We are obviously trying to enhance quality and prevention. All of these strategies that we know work, the research is irrefutable, but we talk about them as a way of a good example instead of talking about them as something we ought to put in the law and make part of our system. Why should we have all of those prevention strategies and then throw up our hands and say that would be nice if insurance companies did that in their policies instead of make it part of the law. And we will, both in terms of prevention strategies as well as quality.

Finally, as a quick summary of what we are trying to do, we are trying to control costs. I think this bill does that. We still have a bill to do and amendments to make. It also cuts the deficit by $130 billion over 10 years, and much more, several hundred billion, in the years after that.

One fundamental recognition, I guess, in this debate—at least on this side of the aisle—is that our system has left people out. In some cases it has left them out in a very tragic way when they are denied coverage because of a preexisting condition. Our health care system has left out others in different ways, and I rise today to speak about an amendment I filed, along with Senator KLOBUCHAR, my cosponsor on this amendment, that seeks to address a group of Americans who have been left out of our health care system and forgotten at a very difficult time in their lives. The name of the amendment is the Pregnant and Parenting Teens and Women Amendment. It recognizes what I believe to be a fundamental reality in America. I will describe two scenarios—one that so many of us have had the opportunity to experience as parents but especially those in this Chamber and those who are listening to this debate who are women who become pregnant.

For many women that moment when they find out they are pregnant is a moment of joy. It is the miracle of pregnancy. They feel that joy and they share it with their family and their friends. It is a time of real happiness. Many of these women in that first scenario do not need help beyond what their families provide or what they might receive by way of adequate support within our existing framework of programs and services—whether that is government help or private sector or nonprofit help. That is wonderful and we hope that becomes more and more the case.

But there is a second scenario in America, a second category where a woman finds out she is pregnant and that moment of discovery is not a moment of joy. For her, it is a moment of terror or panic or even shame. She may be in a doctor's office or she may be at home—she may be in a number of places—but for her that moment begins with a crisis in which she feels overwhelmingly and perhaps unbearably alone, all alone. She could be wealthy, middle income, or poor—but most likely, if that pregnancy is a crisis, she is poor. Whatever her income, she feels very simply all alone.

A pregnant woman who is facing those horrific circumstances may be a woman who has an abusive spouse or boyfriend who is tormenting her. She is all alone in many instances.

Another pregnant woman may believe that she cannot support or care for her new baby at this point in her life. She is all alone.

Another woman might believe that her financial situation is so precarious that she cannot care for or raise a child. She may feel all alone and helpless. If she decides to bear a child, she needs our help. She needs our help to walk with her along that difficult journey—not only through the 9 months of her pregnancy but also through the early months and years of that child's life.

I believe that is an obligation we have. I know some may not agree with that, but it is important that we are honest about where we stand.

We understand that many women face that reality. So what do we do about it? Do we say: That is too bad and that is kind of their problem and let them find their own way or there is a little program down the street that might help them or there might be a little government program over here or there might be some charity that will help them. They will do fine. Don't worry about them.

This country has shown a capacity to reach out and help people who are in crisis, to try to give people a sense that they are not all alone, that there are lots of ways to help. Unfortunately, neither political party has adequately met this challenge, in my judgment. We hear a lot of discussion about it. We hear a lot of sentiment about it. But we do not do nearly enough about it.

Here is what the amendment will do. First, it will provide assistance and support for pregnant and parenting college students. Second, it will provide assistance and support for pregnant and parenting teens. Third, it will improve services for pregnant women who are victims of domestic violence, sexual violence, and stalking. And fourth, it will increase public awareness of the resources available to pregnant or parenting teens and women.

Let me give some examples of these services. First, funding for colleges to provide pregnant and parenting resources located on campus or within the local community and improve such resources, including: the inclusion of maternity coverage, which a lot of insurance companies do not provide now, unfortunately and insultingly, in my judgment; make available riders for coverage for additional family members in student health care on a college campus; make sure that woman, if she has chosen to bear a child, gets housing and childcare and flexible or alternative academic scheduling to allow her to remain in school; education to improve her parenting skills; maternity and baby clothing, baby food, baby furniture—all of the things some of us take for granted in our families prior to or upon the birth of a child.

The other part of this is funding for programs that help pregnant and parenting teens stay in or complete high school and prepare for college or vocational education, by providing resources and assistance.

Next, assistance to States in providing intervention services, accompaniment and supportive social services for pregnant victims of domestic violence and other kinds of violence as well, to start.

Finally, making people aware, providing public awareness and outreach so that pregnant and parenting teens and women are aware of the services available to them.

We cannot stand here on the floor and say we care about these folks and we want to help them if we are not willing to make good on that promise. It is not enough to have good intentions. It is not enough to say there might be a program out there. We know for sure that at least these three categories—maybe others could add to it, maybe others may not, but these three categories of pregnant women are in many cases all alone. Neither political party nor our Government—and I would argue other parts of our society—are doing enough. It is time as we debate health care that we say one part of our health care system is going to be made much better.

In addition to the substantial changes on protecting families from the ravages of what insurance companies have done to some families, protecting them at long last, those with insurance, ensuring 30 million Americans, cutting the deficit, having prevention strategies, controlling chronic disease and making it something we can manage better, and save money—all of that is important. But I do not think in the debate here we should leave out those who are asking for a little bit of the help we are not giving them.

We should never ask a pregnant woman to walk that journey all alone. I think that is the least we can do in this Chamber, in this debate.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, my friends on the other side of the aisle have taken to the floor to make the argument in favor of the Reid bill that it eliminates a so-called hidden tax. What is this so-called hidden tax? The other party argues that there is a hidden health tax that families pay in increased premium costs to cover the costs of caring for the uninsured. In short, when doctors and hospitals provide treatment to the uninsured they are forced to compensate for this ''uncompensated care'' and do so by charging more to private health insurers. The cost of this care that is shifted to the insurers is then passed on to health care consumers in the form of higher health insurance premiums. Unfortunately, this so-called hidden tax is often overstated.

Families USA conducted a study attempting to quantify the cost shift associated with uncompensated care. According to this study, about $43 billion in uncompensated care is shifted to private health insurance which led Families USA to conclude that there is a hidden tax of about $1,100 that families pay in increased premiums. A Kaiser Family Foundation study dissected the Families USA numbers and estimated that the total amount of uncompensated care shifted to private insurers was closer to $11 billion, making the so-called hidden tax around $200 for a family, compared to the $1,100 that Families USA said. Let me give some ground to my friends on the other side and assume that the hidden tax does equal that higher figure, $1,100, as compared to the Kaiser Family Foundation figure of $200.

The Democrats' bill does not get rid of the hidden tax entirely. Actually, this bill makes it worse. How? First, the Democrats' health care reform bill still leaves a large number of Americans uninsured. Specifically, the Reid bill leaves 23 million out of 54 million still without health insurance at the end of this decade, remembering that this bill does not actually take effect until 2014. So between 2014 and at the end of the budget window, we still have 23 million people without health insurance. At best, the reform in this 2,074-page Democratic bill cut the hidden tax in half; in this case, to about $500 for a family.

The Reid bill adds, however, new hidden taxes. These impose $67 billion worth of so-called fees on health insurance companies and self-insured arrangements beginning in 2010. The Congressional Budget Office, the Joint Committee on Taxation, the nonpartisan experts and official congressional scorekeepers have testified that these fees will be passed on to health care consumers.

The Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Committee on Taxation have further testified that this will result in higher insurance premiums for all Americans. The actuaries at Oliver-Wyman estimate that the fees imposed on health insurers would add $488 to the cost of the average family health insurance policy. A new hidden tax is also created as a result of the Medicaid expansion and Medicare cuts. The major cost shift in health care derives from the government programs, Medicare and Medicaid, which reimburse providers at rates roughly 20 percent to 40 percent lower than what private providers pay to the same doctors and hospitals.

President Obama understands that paying doctors below market rates leads to a cost shift. After all, in a townhall on health care reform, the President said:

> If they're only collecting 80 cents on the dollar, they've got to make it up somewhere, and they end up getting it from people who have private insurance.

The Medicare and Medicaid cost shift will be increased significantly under the Democrats' health care reform bill. According to CBO's estimate, Medicaid will be increased by more than 40 percent, from 35 million to 50 million people by the end of the budget window in 2019. Additionally, the bill includes almost $½ trillion in Medicare cuts which will result in lower payments to providers.

The actuaries at Milliman Consulting studied the current cost shifting resulting from Medicare and Medicaid underpaying providers and found that this cost shift for Medicare and Medicaid totaled almost $89 billion per year, adding $1,788 to the current family health insurance policy. Increasing the current Medicare and Medicaid cost shift, as a result of this 2,074-page health reform bill before us, would add even more cost to a family health insurance policy.

The easier cost shift to address would be the $1,700 cost shift from defensive medicine. The Democrats do not address cost shift from defensive medicine which Dr. Mark McClellan, former head of CMS, and Daniel Kessler estimated adds $1,700 in additional cost per average family. Addressing this reform alone could save more than covering all of the uninsured.

So you see, the Democrats say their bill will eliminate the so-called hidden tax. My friends seem to come up short on that one. Also, my friends add new hidden taxes that will burden middle-class Americans.

I ask my friends to be transparent when they are talking about getting rid of the hidden tax. The Democratic health reform bill actually makes things worse.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WHITEHOUSE). The Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Last night, I held a telephone townhall meeting. As usual, because we get over 10,000 people on the telephone townhall talking to us, I said: This is a meeting that is open to any subject you can talk about.

Overwhelmingly, they all wanted to talk about health care. I had one call where the fellow said he liked this health care bill. He was a small businessman. He said: This will help me as a small businessman, and why are you opposed to it?

I said to him: I have been a small businessman, and I would like to point out to you that NFIB, the organization that helps small business, is opposed to it. And I went through some of the reasons. Then I told him of other small- or medium-size businessmen in Utah who have said to me: If this bill passes, we are out of here. We could do our manufacturing overseas. We could send our product to South America and have it made there. We have stayed in Utah more out of patriotism than money. But if this bill passes, the impact on us in small business will be sufficiently great that we will leave Utah. We will leave America. We will take all of these jobs and go overseas.

That was that one discussion with the one caller. Every other caller talked about the health care bill and said: Don't pass it. Every other caller was opposed. There was only the one who made comments in favor of it, comments on which I think I was able to dissuade him.

Every other one came up: Do you want to talk about Afghanistan?

No, we want to talk about health care. We are opposed to this bill.

Do you want to talk about some other aspects of what is going on in Washington?

No, we want to talk about health care, and we are opposed to this bill.

Over and over, the only other subject that came up that I can recall with any regularity—there were several calls that talked about cap and trade and expressed their opposition to that. But, overwhelmingly, the entire hour was people who were saying: We are opposed to this bill.

I want to share with the Members some aspects of the reaction of Utahns to the campaigns that have been mounted by various groups in favor of this bill. Let's go to the campaign that has been mounted by the AARP. AARP is one of the strongest lobbying organizations in the country. Indeed, there are those who say it is the most powerful lobbying organization. AARP, in an effort to make sure this bill gets passed, has prepared preprinted petitions and sent them out to their members. Here is a copy of one. It is addressed directly to me and was sent to people in the State of Utah: ''Petition to Senator Robert F. Bennett. Dear Senator Robert F. Bennett, As one of your constituents . . . '' so on and so forth.

Then all the AARP member has to do is sign it and send it to me. This one was sent to me. But as we can see, he didn't just sign it, instead he wrote on it. This is what it says in handwriting:

Absolutely not! Please vote against current legislation being proposed by the current administration and endorsed by the AARP.

The ''not'' is underlined. He signed his name. I have taken it off this facsimile to protect the man's privacy, but he made it clear that he was not in favor of what the AARP was saying and doing in this situation. We have others who have said the same kind of thing.

Here is a letter I will quote from:

Senator Bennett, please do not vote to pass the health care bill that contains a public option. The present medical is broken and surely needs fixing. However, it should be done in ways that do not bankrupt the country, close hospitals and doctors offices.

Who is saying this? He says:

I will probably withdraw from AARP since they support the present health care proposals. Several of my doctor friends have withdrawn from the AMA due to its support of these proposals.

Then he signed his name, and his initials make it clear he, too, is a physician, a member of AARP who clearly wants to drop out of AARP, and a member of AMA who supports those who drop out of the AMA.

Let me quote from another physician who wrote a lengthier letter, more analytical. I will quote from parts of the letter. He starts out:

As a practicing Utah physician, I see and treat patients every day. I try to accurately diagnose what their troubles are and offer an incremental plan for their recovery. I am thorough, methodical and exacting in my plan, purposely first doing no harm, as my Hippocratic oath reads, not making the situation worse, not causing more pain or suffering. The Senate bill before you will make America more ill, with increased pain and suffering. I plead with you to first do no harm. Please do not make the situation worse as with the current bill. It is beyond repair. Please recognize that the Senate plan will add to America's ills.

Then he goes on later in the letter to make this comment:

Patients ask me why the AMA appears to support this bill. They sense that the AMA is not looking out for patients and doctors. I agree that the AMA is misdirected and explained that the AMA represents fewer than one in five U.S. doctors and has compromised its mission.

I find that interesting. I didn't realize that the AMA membership had dropped so low. When I first became interested in politics, the AMA represented virtually every doctor in the country. Not anymore.

I tell my patients about the multitude of other medical organizations of which I am a member, state medical organizations, speciality groups, and the Coalition to Protect Patients Rights, representing thousands of doctors who actively oppose the Senate bill in its entirety and are fighting for patients and the right fixes for affordable, quality care.

Well, as I found out in my telephone town meeting, which covered the entire State—and with no filtering on the part of my staff as to who could get in and who could not—this is, indeed, very clearly the majority opinion for members of the State, seniors who presumably belong to AARP, and physicians who either used to belong to the AMA or understand the AMA.

Here is an e-mail from a doctor. I cannot pronounce the specialty he is in. He says:

As a constituent and practicing—

And then he goes on to say whatever kind of ''ologist'' he is—

I strongly urge you to oppose the passage of the current Senate healthcare reform legislation. . . . Although our nation would benefit from targeted healthcare reform, the proposed legislation is not the answer and will harm, not help, healthcare delivery in our nation. . . .

As surgeons, we take pride in our work and strive to provide the best patient care possible. We will support reform efforts that truly preserve access to high qualify specialty care without jeopardizing the physician-patient relationship. As such, I oppose the ''Patient Protection and Affordable Healthcare Act'' as it has the potential to seriously compromise the delivery of healthcare in the United States by creating additional pressures on an already overburdened healthcare system.

Well, I have a number more. I will not go into all of them; I will just pick a few from the stack I brought with me.

I am a Surgeon who has been practicing for about 30 years. I am against the total overhaul of the health care system. All entitlement programs are not cost effective and all are in danger of bankrupting the U.S.

Here is one, who is a retiree, who says:

Please vote against these healthcare ''reforms'' that will limit options, cost us all more and reduce our freedoms. We need real change: portability, tort reform, and less government control.

Back to the doctors. He says:

Dear Mr. Bennett,

I am a pediatrician in Utah and met you at the hospital in Orem. Thank you for your opposition to the current process happening in Washington. We do not need to rush through and push the American people into government run health care and more red tape. Medicaid is already my biggest head ache in my practice.

And so on and so forth, as I say.

I want to make this other point with respect to all of these people who are so concerned that we will have an immediate bad impact if this bill passes. They do not realize—and I did my best to point this out to those who were on the telephone townhall meeting last night—that this bill will not fully take effect—indeed, most of the aspects of this bill will not take effect—until January of 2014. That is correct, January of 2014—4 years away.

Here we are meeting on weekends, coming in here on Sunday, driving to get this done by Christmas because it is so pressing that we have to do it, and, by the way, we are not going to start, really, any of these reforms for 4 years. So these people who are writing me, these doctors who are complaining about AMA's endorsement, these people who are complaining about AARP not representing them, are worried about an immediate impact.

Let me tell you what the immediate impact of this bill will be. The immediate impact of the bill will be financial. The taxes will take place immediately upon passage. The increase in premiums will begin to start on passage, as the pressure on the insurance companies, the pressure on manufacturers, the pressure on pharmaceutical companies will all begin with the passage of this bill. But all of the wonderful things we are being promised as benefits from this bill will be delayed for 4 years. Why? There is only one reason why: in order to use smoke and mirrors in the budgetary process to make it look as if this is cheaper than it really is. If you get the money coming in for 10 years but the expenses only going out for 6 years in your calculation, it looks as if it is a whole lot cheaper than it really is.

The only honest way to score this is to say the expenses start the same day the taxes start, the expenses going out start the same day the revenue coming in starts. Then you get an accurate description of how much this costs.

I cannot imagine any businessman going before his board of directors and saying: I have a new program I want to institute in this company, and it is going to cost X, and here is how I have calculated it is going to cost X. I am calculating the revenue from the sales of the product over a 10-year period, but the actual sales will only occur in the last 6 years.

His board of directors would take one look at him and say: There is no way we can make a strategic plan based on that kind of smoke and mirrors. What in the world is wrong with you to do accounting of that kind?

He will say: That is the kind of accounting I learned from the U.S. Senate—start counting the revenues immediately, but don't count the expenses until 4 years later.

Well, let's look at the impact of that 4-year gap and tie it to the messages I am receiving from my constituents, and I think we will see something very interesting happen. Between now and the time the benefits of this bill begin to take hold, there will be three or four open seasons of people who will look at their health care plan and be allowed to make changes in it. They will see the costs go up, and they will say: Wait a minute, what is happening here? The costs are going up, but there are no changes coming from this bill the Senate passed back in 2009—or 2010, if we push it until next year. What is happening?

Well, your costs are going up in anticipation of the costs of this bill that will take hold in January of 2014.

At that point, the anger we are seeing from constituents now will get worse. The anger we are seeing in the e-mails and letters I am receiving now will get more intense, and people will start to say: You mean I am being forced to pay extra premiums in 2010 because the government needs to accumulate cash against the time when these great changes hit us in 2014? When they start writing me that kind of complaint, I will say: That is exactly what I mean. The government is going to start taxing you in 2010, but they are not going to do this program until 2014—at which point, the outcry from constituents will be: Well, let's stop the taxes and let's kill the effective date of 2014.

I am not sure I can predict that with certainty, but I can go back in history and remember the catastrophic bill that was passed with respect to Medicare, and the senior citizens suddenly discovered how much it was costing them. The outcry was so overwhelming that the Congress, within a matter of 6 months of the passage of the bill, repealed the bill. I remember the pictures that appeared in national magazines of Congressmen Rostenkowski, who was at the time the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, being accosted physically when he went home to Chicago by seniors who would stand in front of his car and not allow him to move, who would sit on the hood of his car to block his way in every conceivable way. The outcry was enormous when they saw this increased cost for something where they did not see a corresponding benefit, and Congress responded to that outcry and repealed that bill.

In this case, there will be a 4-year period for the outcry to build before they start to see the benefits, if, indeed, the bill does confer benefits. There will be a 4-year period with that many open seasons for people to look at their programs and see their premiums go up and see their plans change and see the adjustments made in preparation for this, adjustments they will not want; 4 years in which they will see the statement of the President of the United States, that ''if you like your plan, you don't have to lose it,'' prove not to be the case.

In that 4-year period, it is entirely possible that the outcry from constituents, like the ones who are complaining now, will have tremendously more impact and more force. I hope that is, indeed, the case, if we pass this bill. I hope that in that 4-year period, before we start to see the wonderful things we are being promised from the other side of the aisle come to pass—the increased premiums, the increased taxes, and the increased costs will be with us—the people of this country will rise up and say: We want this bill repealed. They have 4 years in which to do it, 4 years in which to think about it, 4 years in which to experience it.

Why are we rushing to get this done before Christmas when we have 4 years before the thing finally kicks in? Let's take the time to do it right. Let's take the time to listen to our constituents. Let's take the time to listen to the American people who are examining this bill and, by ever-increasing margins, telling us again and again that they do not like it.

We have heard from many people the reactions of the polls. The Quinnipiac Poll made the comment: It is a good thing the Senate is not letting the American people vote on this bill because the American people are against it. We have seen the Gallup Poll show a tremendous swing, as their people are against it. The more they know about it, the less they like it. Yet we are trying to rush it through in the holiday season to get it done before Christmas even though it is 4 years away before all of the wonderful things that are being promised will surface.

Mr. President, I think my constituents have it right. I think those people who belong to AARP who are saying they are going to drop out because of AARP's endorsement are right. I think those physicians who say they are either not members of the AMA or they are going to drop out from the AMA because of the AMA's position are right. And I think if we cram this thing through in a sense of urgency, even though it is 4 years from implementation, we will see an outcry in the intervening 4 years from the American people that will cause Members of the Senate to wish they had taken more time to examine it all, to do it right, and not to panic over pressure from various special interest groups that see ways in which they can profit from this.

The American people, the American physicians, the American patients all see ways in which they will be hurt, and I speak for them, as they say: Slow this down. Do this thing right. Do not panic under pressure of an artificial time deadline.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

IN PRAISE OF WENDY TADA

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I rise to speak today about my great Federal employee of the week who works at the Department of Education.

Whenever I enter this hallowed Chamber, I never fail to notice the inspirational words written on each wall above the doors. Above the east door is inscribed the Latin phrase ''Annuit Coeptis,'' or ''Fortune favored Us in Our Beginnings.'' This refers to our Founders' belief that Providence looked kindly upon our Republic during its earliest days.

In that time, ours was mostly an agrarian society. Town life centered on planting seeds and harvesting crops. Children worked alongside their parents in the field, and when it came to their education, homeschooling or learning to read and add in a one-room schoolhouse was the norm.

Thomas Jefferson wrote, some years after his Presidency, that ''Science is more important in a republic than in any other government.'' It was this belief in the importance of knowledge and reason—including political and historical literacy—that led education pioneers such as Horace Mann to promote universal schooling in the early part of the 19th century.

Shortly before the Civil War, access to compulsory and free public education spread across the country as States passed laws inspired by this principle. The Morrill Land-Grant Colleges Act provided for the construction of some of our Nation's greatest colleges and universities in the late 1800s. In the early years of the 20th century, States increased access by expanding free, compulsory education to include high school. The last 60 years saw dramatic advances in this area, with the legal desegregation of schools and the passage of critical legislation such as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

I am proud to have been serving in the Senate earlier this year when we passed the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. That legislation sent much needed funding to fix schools, make student loans more readily available, and to keep teachers in the classroom. The Recovery Act so far saved over 230 teaching jobs in my home State of Delaware alone.

In 1980, the U.S. Department of Education was created, and its employees have been working tirelessly to make sure students from all 50 States, including Delaware and Rhode Island, receive the same strong support. They oversee the Federal loan programs that enable tens of millions of Americans to afford college and postcollege studies. They help develop policies to ensure that Americans with physical and intellectual disabilities have education programs in their communities and can pursue a full range of opportunities.

Wendy Tada, who has worked at the Department of Education for 9 years, is one of those outstanding employees. When she arrived at the Department in 2000, Wendy already had a great deal of experience working to expand opportunities for rural special needs students in Hawaii and Alaska.

Wendy, who is a lifelong learner herself, holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Seattle University, a master's in physical therapy from Stanford, and a master's in public health from San Diego State. She also earned a doctorate in developmental psychology from the University of California in San Diego.

Wendy's experience includes working at the State and local levels. She provided physical therapy to disabled students in Washington State, developed an education curriculum for special needs children in Hawaii and its remote Pacific Islands, and evaluated health and education services in Native Alaskan villages.

Wendy has taught college and graduate courses in education and public health at the University of Washington and the University of Hawaii.

Her first job with the Department of Education was as a research analyst in the Office of Special Education Programs. Wendy's talents and experience led to a promotion within a year, when she became Chief of Staff to the Assistant Secretary overseeing that office. She continued as his top adviser when he was appointed to serve as Assistant Secretary for the Office of Vocational and Adult Education. In 2006, Wendy became the Chief of Staff to the Deputy Secretary of Education.

This January, after a brief stint as an education analyst for the Office of Management and Budget, she was asked by the Deputy Secretary of Education to serve as senior adviser for policy and programs.

During her years in the Department, Wendy has been instrumental in developing important regulations and guidance documents relating to IDEA and title I of the ESEA. Today, her time is spent in developing and putting into practice education programs funded by the Recovery Act.

One of the central programs under the Recovery Act is the new Race to the Top Fund. This initiative represents the largest Federal competitive investment in elementary and secondary education in our history. It will offer over $4 billion—that is billion—in grants to States to develop comprehensive education reform plans. This will help all States, including Delaware, save even more teaching jobs and add new resources for schools.

Wendy's work and that of her colleagues throughout the Department of Education continue to benefit American students nationwide. They ensure that all our children are favored in their beginnings so they may pursue the opportunities they deserve. Education is, without a doubt, the most important investment our Nation can make, for its dividends are our future prosperity and global leadership.

I hope my colleagues will join me in honoring Wendy Tada and all the hardworking employees of the Department of Education for their service to this country. Our future is in their hands.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I wish to say a few words about the legislation which is pending before us, which is the Omnibus appropriations bill. It is a bill that will substantially add to our national debt and substantially increase spending and I think it is worthwhile to point out some of the features of this bill, since presumably we will be voting on it sometime this weekend.

I would start by pointing out that our national deficit for the past fiscal year now stands at $1.4 trillion. So the fiscal year which just concluded added $1.4 trillion to the national debt. That is the largest deficit we have ever had, by far. It is about three times as much as the largest deficit under the Bush administration. Our current unemployment level is at 10 percent, despite the administration's insistence earlier this year that Congress pass a $1 trillion-plus stimulus package that was supposed to reduce unemployment. The Senate is currently in the middle of a debate on a health care bill that has a 10-year implementation cost of $2.5 trillion. Sometime in the next month we will be forced to raise the Nation's debt ceiling for the second time this year to a level that exceeds the current ceiling of $12.1 trillion.

If all that were not enough, we are now presented with this Omnibus appropriations bill that costs nearly $500 billion more; to be exact, $446.8 billion. This is simply irresponsible. When is it going to end? We are piling spending bill on spending bill and debt on debt. At a time when many Americans are being forced to get by on less, the majority has crafted a bill that uses the government's credit card to increase spending on the six appropriations bills that make up this package—by how much? By 12 percent total.

For perspective, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the consumer price index, the CPI, the measurement of inflation over the past 12 months, was .2 percent. So the cost of living is going up by .2 percent. Yet we are giving these government agencies 12 percent more money for next year. Let me give some examples.

The Transportation-HUD bill receives a 23-percent increase over last year. Has anybody had their income go up by 23 percent over last year? Well, if you are in the Federal Government, you can make it happen. That is not responsible.

How about the State-Foreign Operations bill, a 33-percent increase, a third over last year—a 33-percent increase. Included in that is a 24-percent increase for the State Department's salaries and operations account. That is not responsible.

The Commerce, Justice, and Science bill receives a 12-percent increase over last year. At least that is the average of the six bills in total.

How about earmarks? Well, they are in here, big time. According to Taxpayers for Common Sense, this bill is larded up with 5,224 earmarks—5,224 earmarks—that total $3.8 billion. That is not responsible.

Some examples include $600,000 for a streetscape beautification in California and $300,000 for Carnegie Hall music and education programs in New York City. In the current economic environment, that doesn't seem to be the most responsible use of Federal taxpayer dollars.

If the irresponsible levels of spending were not bad enough, the bill makes a number of significant policy changes as well. Ordinarily, we are not supposed to have policy changes in an appropriations bill, but when you lump them all together in a take-it-or-leave-it form, such as this omnibus, well, if you are the majority, you think you can get away with it. Here are 134 examples.

With respect to the fairness doctrine, this omnibus does not include the fiscal year 2008 ban on Federal funds being used to enforce or implement the so-called fairness doctrine—so nothing to implement or enforce the so-called fairness doctrine.

The bill makes some changes to several longstanding policy provisions contained in the financial services bill and specifically the District of Columbia section dealing with abortion, medical marijuana, needle exchange, domestic partners, and the DC Opportunity Scholarship Program. That program has been enormously popular and enormously successful. Yet this bill provides only enough money—$13.2 million—to allow the currently enrolled students in this popular program, the DC Opportunity Scholarship Program, ultimately leading to the termination of the program. I have met with some of these students and their parents. They are doing very well because of the environment in which they are finally able to study and learn and be safe. This program is so popular that people have lined up in long queues to take advantage of it. Yet we are going to terminate the program as a result of language in this bill.

Well, it is a cross between irresponsible policy and spending.

The bill reduces funding for the Office of Labor Management standards at the Department of Labor by 10 percent. This is the office that investigates union activity and the use of membership dues. Since fiscal year 1998, it has secured 1,400 convictions, resulting in the return of $106 million in embezzled funds to union workers. So where are our priorities? The only place where we see cuts in this bill are in areas where, in this case, the Department of Labor has been enforcing labor law and getting convictions for embezzlement of workers' funds. This is not an area where we want to cut, unless, of course, you are trying to do the bidding of the labor unions who don't like to be called to account for embezzlement of trust fund moneys of their members.

Well, what is missing from this bill? Despite spending nearly $500 billion and covering 6 of the 10 appropriations bills, this bill is significant for what it does not include: The fiscal year 2010 Defense appropriations bill, arguably the most important bill yet to be acted upon. Just shortly after President Obama announced his surge strategy for Afghanistan, the majority has decided to play politics on the backs of our troops. The majority is holding the Defense bill back from this package so it can be used as a vehicle for other purposes; for example, to increase our Nation's debt ceiling and potentially push through a number of other bills that likely don't have the votes to pass on their own. That is wrong. While our commanders in the field and civilians at the Pentagon wait, our other less-urgent appropriations priorities will receive double-digit spending increases. That is not responsible and it is not right.

Given what I know about this bill—and I haven't had a chance to read it all yet—I would echo my friend in the House, Republican leader JOHN BOEHNER, who requested the President uphold his campaign promise to go through the budget, line by line, and eliminate irresponsible and wasteful spending.

I can assure my colleagues, we will go through this and we will identify those earmarks and we will bring them to the attention of our colleagues, and we will, undoubtedly, because of these spending increases and earmarks and bad policy, attempt to defeat this legislation.

Finally, I wish to make reference to some comments I saw delivered by Dr. Christina Romer, Chair of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, as I was drinking my coffee and watching TV a couple days ago. This was on CNN's ''American Morning'' program on December 8. I was rather startled because she said she was getting rid of the jobs deficit and dealing with the budget deficit, two big problems we inherited and absolutely have to deal with.

Well, it is true, on January 20 of this year when President Obama took office, we had a deficit and we also had a problem with unemployment. The problem is in inferring they are doing something about it, whereas the Bush administration created the problem, I think they create a misimpression. So I asked my staff to get just two numbers. What was the national debt the last day of President Bush's second term and what is it today—or actually December 7 is the date we got the number for, the 322nd day of President Obama's term. In other words, Dr. Christina Romer was saying these are big problems we inherited and we have to deal with them. So how have they dealt with them? Well, it turns out the national debt the last day of President Bush's second term was $10.6 trillion. What is it today, 322 days later? It is $12 trillion. That is some way to fix that problem.

If they are going to complain about the national debt, then get it reduced instead of increased in less than a year—it has gone from $10.6 trillion to $12 trillion; that is $4.5 billion in new debt every single day. These are not my numbers, these are the official statistics of the Bureau of the Public Debt.

The other statistic was unemployment. ''We inherited unemployment.'' That is true. I don't know the average, but I think it is somewhere around 4 or 5 percent in our country. On the last day President Bush was in office, unemployment stood at 7.6 percent. I thought, given the stimulus package, surely we have reduced unemployment. What is the unemployment number today? It is 10 percent—after nearly a year of President Obama's failed $1 trillion stimulus experience.

When Dr. Romer said ''we inherited this problem,'' my immediate reaction is that the President has been in office for a year. What has he done about it? Answer: It has gotten worse. We have added well over $1 trillion to the national debt, and unemployment is now up to 10 percent from 7.6 percent under President Bush.

Some fixing of the problem. I suggest that President Obama and his White House officials and staff stop trying to blame President Bush for everything. If the President has been in office long enough to get the Nobel Peace Prize, presumably he has been in office long enough to do something about the public debt or unemployment.

He has done something about it all right: Unemployment is up from 7.6 percent to 10 percent, and the national debt is up from $10.6 trillion to $12 trillion.

In view of these facts, it doesn't make sense to me to pass a nearly $500 billion omnibus appropriations bill, with departments of this government receiving 26, 30, and 33 percent increases in their budget, when the CPI has only gone up .2 percent this year, and when Americans are scrimping and saving and trying to get by with less. It makes no sense at all.

I hope my colleagues, as we consider this omnibus appropriations bill before us right now, will take these things into consideration before we vote to pile yet more debt on the backs of our taxpaying constituents.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I want to speak for a few minutes on the Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies appropriations bill. The Senator from Michigan was kind enough to let me do this now, even though she had been on the floor.

I ask unanimous consent that at the end of my comments, the Senator from Michigan be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, as chairman of the subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, Education and Related Agencies, I want to take a few minutes to go over the bill we have before us, the so-called ''minibus.''

I wish in the beginning the Senate could have debated and voted on the Labor-HHS bill individually, rather than having it as part of the so-called minibus. Unfortunately, it is now December. We still have to complete the health care bill and, frankly, we have run out of time.

However, I want to assure my colleagues that the Labor-HHS appropriations bill is a bipartisan bill. We worked closely with Senator COCHRAN and his staff to reflect Democratic and Republican priorities alike. That is the tradition in our subcommittee—one we take very seriously.

In fact, the full Appropriations Committee approved our bill by a vote of 29 to 1. You cannot do much better than that to accommodate the concerns of both parties.

I also want to assure Senators that this is a fiscally responsible bill. Overall, our bill increases discretionary spending by just 2 percent over the fiscal year 2009 Labor-HHS appropriations bill.

With money so tight, we had to be selective about which programs received increases. One high priority is worker protections. Agencies that enforce rules protecting the health, safety, and rights of workers have been seriously shortchanged in recent years. This bill adds $121 million over last year's level and brings staffing levels at the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Employee Benefits Administration, and the Employment Standards Administration back to where they were in 2001. This means the agencies will have the resources they need to prevent wage theft and ensure safe workplaces for our Nation's workers.

The bill also includes a 50-percent increase—a total $1.1 billion—to reduce improper payments, fraud, and abuse from mandatory benefit programs, such as unemployment insurance, Medicare, and Social Security. These antifraud, anti-abuse measures could result in over $48 billion in savings and increased revenues over the next 10 years.

Another priority we had was getting people back to work. This bill provides an increase of $72 million, or 43 percent, for nurse training programs, including a new program to train nursing home aides and home health aides.

This bill also provides a major increase—$260 million—for the national service programs. This will boost the number of AmeriCorps members significantly and create a new social innovation fund that will help small nonprofits tackle a host of social programs.

In the area of education, increases are targeted to programs that are designed to reform schools, such as performance-based pay for teachers and principals, charter schools, and a comprehensive new literacy program.

Providing increases, such as the ones I have described, meant making some tough choices. Our bill eliminated 11 duplicative and ineffective programs, and we cut several others. Not everybody will be happy with all of those decisions. I may not be happy with all of them, but we did the best we could, struck compromises, and I stand by the outcome.

I also support the other five bills in this minibus, if I might say that. I worked closely with our colleagues on the Appropriations Committee. I want to particularly thank Senator MURRAY regarding her work to allow fiscal year 2009 Community Development Block Grant funds to be used as a match for other Federal programs. The reason this is important is because many States and local governments were hard hit by both disasters—such as the floods in Iowa—and the poor economy. They would have great difficulty providing Federal match requirements without this modification. I thank Senator MURRAY for putting that in her bill.

I also thank Senator DURBIN for the inclusion of a provision regarding auto dealers. In my State, there are a number of decisions that were made by General Motors to close down certain dealerships that met the criteria set down by General Motors for staying in business. I hope this provision that Senator DURBIN put in will allow for needed fairness for a number of these family businesses.

Again, I believe the package of bills we have before us is fiscally responsible. They move our country in the right direction, and I hope the Senate will approve them as soon as possible so we can send them to the President.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, before my good friend from Iowa leaves the floor, I thank him for his wonderful leadership on the health care reform bill, on the appropriations that he chaired—formerly on Agriculture. It has been a pleasure to partner with him on so many things.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak as in morning business for up to 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I want to talk about health care. I have to say that if 20 percent of what was being said by our Republicans friends was true about this bill, I could not vote for it either.

I keep hearing things described that have no relationship to the reality of the bill that I helped to write in the Finance Committee, or my friends helped to write in the HELP Committee or the bill that is on the floor now. I see all kinds of comments that, frankly, concern me because I don't see them reflected in the reality of the legislation in front of us.

I encourage people to take the opportunity to read the bill or the summaries. For the people in Michigan, we have had it up on our Web site, and we have had every bill, as it is introduced and passed, on the Web site, so people will have an opportunity to look at the information available.

I do know this: What we have been hearing from our colleagues is not good enough, when we think about the fact that we had a Congress and a White House for 6 out of the last 8 years that was controlled the by Republican Party and yet nothing was done. Proposals have come forward now about all these things that should be done. But they weren't done when they were in charge. What we saw was a lot of tax cuts for the wealthy people and a lot of no-bid contracts for friends of people in the administration. We saw a lot of things that didn't affect people in my State very positively and didn't help the working people in my great State of Michigan.

But now, as we are trying to move forward and do something for people, for small businesses and large businesses, and bring down costs and provide health care for people, there are all kinds of suggestions about why we should wait and do it over. What I heard in committee and what I am hearing now on the floor, as a proposal—because we don't have a Republican bill in front of us or one that has been offered—is this: Wait, wait, wait. We don't need to do this. That doesn't have to be done right now. There is no sense of urgency. We should wait, wait, wait.

That is what we hear. We hear that business as usual for the insurance companies is OK. Let them decide what is covered—if you can find insurance—and how much it should cost, whether or not they are going to be able to provide a test for you or an operation for you. That is OK. Let the insurance companies continue to be the ones between you and your doctor. That is what we have seen over and over. We saw it in committee. Every time we were trying to lower costs for families and small businesses, they were on the side of helping the insurance companies. They were willing to take tax cuts we put in the bill, and they offered amendment after amendment that would have had higher costs for middle-class families and small businesses, in order to help the insurance industry.

I will share a few stories from people who have become part of our health care people's lobby through my Web site, who have been willing to share stories.

David is from Sutton's Bay, which is a beautiful part of Michigan. We would love to have you come visit. It is a gorgeous part right on the water. David says:

> I'm a 61-year-old cancer survivor with diabetes and high blood pressure. I am self-employed, and lately, uninsured. I worked all my life to build a stake here in farm country and almost lost it last fall to foreclosure because of a medical emergency. This farm is all I have . . . the savings and cash are gone. I continue to work with no retirement in sight. I have put everything I had for retirement into my farm. Please, help me keep it.

I know that David is not saying wait, wait, wait. He wants us to act, and to act now, on something that will be meaningful and makes sense to bring down costs, to give him a chance to find affordable insurance that doesn't bankrupt him and his family.

I want to share also another story from Jeff from Rockford, MI:

> It has been over five years since death stared me down. I was diagnosed with testicular cancer. Losing my job to a layoff, mortgage to pay, among other things—and my options were minuscule. I had no insurance then because there was none that I could afford.
> I thank God and the staff at Grand Rapids Spectrum Health for my life today. Unfortunately, I am still $25,000 in debt because of lack of coverage.
> I served in the Marines from 1984–1988. One of their mottos is, ''We take care of our own.'' Imagine what this country would be like if we all thought like that.

Jeff is right. We are in this together and, just as we have dramatically increased our support for our veterans and their health care, we need to make sure we are taking care of our own American families and American businesses.

Wait, wait, wait? I don't think so. I don't think that is what Jeff is asking us to do.

Jennifer from Hollow, MI:

> I am married and have one beautiful little girl. But about 6 months ago, my husband's work informed us they would no longer be able to carry health insurance for their workers.

A very common story, having to choose between keeping people employed and paying for health care.

> We could have gone on COBRA but it would have cost double what we were paying and we couldn't meet that cost.

Mr. President, as you know, we have worked to lower the cost of COBRA, and we hope to be able to continue that lower cost in legislation that will be coming up shortly. But it is still very expensive.

We are lucky because Michigan has a program for children, so we didn't have to worry about our daughter's coverage. When we went to look for insurance for my husband and me, the prices were steep or we were denied because of my preexisting condition.

That is one of the things we are going to change.

Right now going to the doctor is next to impossible, but to see a specialist is like asking for the Moon. We know that we are highly blessed. My husband has a job. That is more than a lot of people have. We just want affordable health insurance, and we don't mind paying for it. It just doesn't seem like too much to ask, does it?

No, Jennifer, it is not too much to ask, and that is what we are all about. We are all about putting together a plan—and that is what is in front of us—that will lower costs, that will save lives, save Medicare, that will focus on making sure each American has a health care bill of rights, has protections they know will allow them to make sure their health insurance will be available if they pay for it; that they cannot get dropped because of a technicality; that if they have a preexisting condition, they can still find affordable insurance; that there will no longer be lifetime caps on insurance policies; that we will allow our young people to stay on mom's or dad's insurance until age 26.

We have a number of changes we are making for people in the insurance exchange, for policies that take effect after the effective date of this act, and it is about making sure people have affordable insurance and they are getting what they are paying for. That is what this is about.

What happens if we do nothing—if we do nothing; if we wait, wait, wait, like the Republicans are saying? Every single day 14,000 Americans lose their health insurance; 14,000 people got up today with health insurance and they will go to bed without it. That happens every single day.

Insurance rates are going to double in the next few years, by 2016. Business costs are going to double. Increased premiums are going to cost us, it is expected, 3.5 million more jobs. I don't know about any of my colleagues, but we cannot afford to lose any more jobs in Michigan. Health care is directly related to jobs and our international competitiveness.

We know incomes of families will be reduced. We know every 5,000 homes will be foreclosed as a result of a health crisis, and 62 percent of the bankruptcies are as a result of a health care crisis.

Wait, like our Republican colleagues say? No, we cannot wait. The families, the people I talked about and read their stories, they cannot wait. Families cannot wait. Businesses cannot wait. Small businesses that cannot find insurance cannot wait. Large businesses that are finding themselves in difficult situations, considering pulling up shop and going to another country because of lower health care costs cannot wait.

People expect us to solve this problem. They expect us to come together and work together, without all the stalling and the objections and the partisan politics. They expect us to come together and solve what is a huge American problem by bringing down costs and creating access to affordable health care where people know that the insurance company will not be the one that is standing between them and their doctor.

This is about saving lives, saving money, saving Medicare. Mr. President, 45,000 people will lose their lives in the coming year. And 45,000 families will have one less chair or an empty chair at the holiday dinners that are coming up because 45,000 people could not find affordable insurance in this country—Americans, in America.

Saving money—this is about making sure small businesses get the tax cuts they need to help them buy insurance, to make sure that families who are buying through the new insurance pool get the tax cuts they need to afford to buy insurance.

This is about making sure large businesses begin to see costs come down over time because when they are providing insurance already, they are not going to pay the extra costs of folks walking into an emergency room uninsured who are treated and then the costs get rolled over on to everybody with insurance.

We as a country are going to save dollars, save money over time for taxpayers and strengthen Medicare to bring down costs.

And, yes, we are going to save Medicare. We are going to lengthen the Medicare trust fund solvency. We are going to make sure overpayments to for-profit insurance companies are reined in so that the majority of seniors do not see their premiums go up under Medicare to pay for those excess profits.

We are going to make sure we are closing that gap in coverage for prescription drugs that has now been called the doughnut hole, where too many seniors or people with disabilities fall into that hole, cannot afford their medicine, and are not able to get the care they need.

We are going to make sure preventive care does not have an extra cost of a copay or deduction because we know it saves money and saves lives. Under Medicare, we are going to make sure that is there as well.

That is what this is about. It is not about waiting. It is not about all the other stuff we have heard that are scare tactics. This is about tackling and solving a problem for the American people that we cannot afford to wait to do any longer.

Coming from Michigan, I have to say everything I do, everything I care about is about saving jobs. We know in addition, we truly are saving jobs. We are saving jobs for our large employers right now that provide insurance, have been doing the right thing for years but have seen their costs go up 10 percent, 20 percent, 30 percent every year and cannot sustain it anymore. They are cutting health care benefits, raising premiums, or laying people off because they cannot afford it.

We know our small employers under our package will save 25 percent. I believe we are going to be doing even more for small businesses.

We have tax credits to help companies, and, as I indicated before, our plan is going to save 3.5 million jobs that would otherwise be lost because of the increased health care costs that cause employees to be let go or companies to move overseas.

We are talking about saving lives, saving money, saving Medicare. We are talking about saving jobs.

What we are not talking about is waiting. We are not talking about stall tactics or politics. We are way beyond that. I understand there is a big strategy to make sure the President of the United States is not successful. There is a big strategy to make sure we are not successful in the Senate. We have seen more filibusters and more objections than ever before. The vast majority of the days we have been in session—I believe it is 39 weeks now—all but 4 of those we have seen filibusters. It has never been done before—filibusters and objections over and over again.

We are committed to getting beyond that and focusing on the reality of what is happening in people's lives. People are waiting for us to step up and to solve this problem and to give them the ability to have access to affordable health insurance for themselves and their families.

We are not proposing something radical. We are proposing that we fill in the gaps for the folks who do not have insurance today, most of whom are in a small business, most of whom are working maybe one, two, three part-time jobs but they are working and they don't have access to health insurance, or they are self-employed, as the gentleman I talked about, David, in Suttons Bay, maybe a farmer, maybe a realtor, maybe the next Bill Gates in their garage coming up with the next great invention. They don't have access to the same big insurance pool that a big business has to bring down costs.

What we are talking about for those folks who are working or have recently been laid off and cannot find insurance is giving them a way, a competitive way to buy insurance from an insurance pool.

I cannot imagine a more important Christmas present to give to American families than the ability to know going forward that when they lose their job, they are not going to lose their health insurance; that they have an opportunity, a way to get affordable insurance, and that we have come together as a Senate to focus on saving lives, saving money, and saving Medicare.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BEGICH). The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I would love to interject a question to the distinguished Senator from Michigan.

We are in a situation in which the other side is repeatedly coming to the Senate floor to ask us to delay, to stop, to slow down, to start over. I am curious, as somebody who has watched this debate very closely, what the Senator from Michigan thinks about where we would be if we acceded to that wish? Bearing in mind that one of the sort of ideological firebrands who seems to be leading a measure of the debate on the other side has indicated this is not about health care and people; this is about giving President Obama a Waterloo; this is about creating a political defeat for the President of the United States on their side; it has nothing to do with health care; it is entirely about creating a defeat for this new President; when, in the face of all the obstruction the distinguished Senator from Michigan described so eloquently, this recordbreaking, ''unprecedented in the history of the Senate'' obstruction we are seeing, the person whom I think right now seems to characterize the leadership of the radicalized rightwing and is running the Republican Party, Rush Limbaugh, is telling the other side they have not been obstructive enough.

So if we were to go back, start all over, and reach out our hands again to our friends on the Republican side, is there any reason to believe that we would not be just as rebuffed going forward as we have been in the long arduous process of negotiation and hearing and public meeting and all of the work that has taken us to this point right now?

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I thank my friend from Rhode Island for the question and for his advocacy and understanding of how we bring down costs and what we should be doing in so many areas for families and for businesses in the country.

I will just say that we have, first of all, attempted to get something done for years. In the last couple of years, reaching out to Republicans in an unprecedented way, our distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee, as everyone knows, went to unparalleled lengths in reaching out and spending months and months putting together a work group of three Democrats and three Republicans to work in good faith to get something done.

We have accepted Republican ideas. I know on the HELP Committee there were many amendments accepted from Republican colleagues. We have continued to reach out and look for ways to work together.

But what we are seeing is a lack of desire to work together and more than just a lack of desire, as the Senator indicated, but simply to attempt to embarrass the President of the United States, to stop him from being successful, and to stop us politically, when the reality is very serious. This is not about a President. We have had 100 years of Presidents trying to do this. This is not a particular Senate. We have had Senates for years that have been trying to do this. This is about when are we going to get beyond all this? When are we going to actually get beyond this and focus on the reality of what is going on in people's lives, what is going on in every small business that is trying to figure out how to pay the bills and hold it together or every manufacturer in my great State that is trying to figure out how they are going to hold it together. At one point, the American people will have every right to say to us: When are you guys going to get beyond this stuff?

The good news is, we have a President who has said now is when we are going to put it behind us and the Senate has said now is the time and we will work in good faith with anyone who wants to work with us. But we will not wait, which is what we are being asked to do—wait until another time, when 45,000 more people will have died next year, when another 5,000 people a day will have lost their homes to foreclosure.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. If we were to wait, does the Senator think there is any likelihood people on the other side would suddenly want to cooperate with President Obama and not hand him a defeat? If Rush Limbaugh would say: OK, Republicans in the Senate, go ahead, work with the Democrats now; don't just be the party of obstruction and delay but try to work cooperatively for the American people, does the Senator think there is any likelihood of that happening?

Ms. STABENOW. I would like to think there would be a likelihood of that happening, but I can't imagine it. Frankly, and I think unfortunately, they view it in their self-interest, whether it is a business decision, as a radio host, or whether it is a decision of the other party. I appreciate the fact that it is hard to lose elections. We have all been in those situations. I appreciate the fact that folks don't want to be in the minority. Most of us have been in that situation. So I appreciate that. But I think all of us were hoping this year, with two wars, with the deficit we have, with the challenge on health care, with the need to create jobs, and with the financial crisis we are in, that somehow it would be different for a while.

I would ask my colleague if he had the same sense of hope coming in; that this year maybe there would be a moratorium on the partisanship; that we could actually come together in the interest of the country and solve problems before going back to the elections. I would ask my friend if he was as surprised as I was that there was not only no stopping after the election but that the same folks who led things during the election are leading them right here on the floor.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I share the disappointment of the Senator from Michigan; that the promise and the outreached hands have been rejected and rebuffed; that this place has become so bitterly partisan. This is my first time in the Senate with a Democratic President, and I have been surprised at the tone of the debate, at the lack of truth of a great many of the arguments, of the very apparent motivation.

I have spoken to members of our caucus who I think are probably viewed as some of the most moderate when it comes to seeking bipartisanship, who are calm and respected Members of the Senate and who have been here a long time, and I have asked them how this compares to their long years of experience in the Senate. One of them said he has literally never seen anything like it in all the years he has been in the Senate. He has never seen anything like it. They are always on message, he said, but I have never seen them so off truth.

I think it is regrettable, but if your mission is to destroy a strong and important piece of legislation, not because it is bad legislation but because you can't stand having this new President win a political victory, are you going to go out and disclose that is your motivation? No, you are going to come up with a bunch of other cockamamie arguments to paper that over. You will talk about death panels and you will go through all the nonsense we have seen and it is regrettable.

Ms. STABENOW. If I might interject with my friend, I have been handed a note that says, in fact, there have been over 150 amendments offered by Republicans, and so our attempts have been ongoing to reach out.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I think those were the Republican amendments that were accepted into the HELP Committee bill. In fact, I think there were 161, if I remember correctly from my time sitting on the committee. We took Republican amendment after Republican amendment after Republican amendment trying to reach out to them.

Ms. STABENOW. So we have over 300 pages of the bill which contain Republican amendments, and that is fine. There is no ownership in the sense of who has the better ideas. In fact, what I find interesting is the insurance exchange we have in the bill for small businesses—which is at the heart of coverage of small businesses and individuals—has been offered by Republicans and Democrats. I believe distinguished former Senator Bob Dole offered some form of an exchange back during the debate when President Clinton was in office.

So we are not trying to claim a corner on ideas. There are many ideas that have been available and talked about for years. It is a matter of having the will, the commitment to actually do the hard work people expect us to do in order to get this done. I think that is what is so important about this time, when the average family is finding themselves unraveling, with not knowing if their job is going to continue to be available or if there will be a cut in wages. They are paying more out of pocket for everything under the Sun and then worrying if the employer is thinking: Well, you can have your job or your health insurance because the employer can't keep both going.

The fact is, we have lost so many middle-class jobs—and I will spend another time talking about the loss of manufacturing jobs in this country. We have lost a lot of our middle class in terms of good-paying jobs. So people are now saying: Wait a minute, just being the party of no, that is not going to be enough. That is not good enough—just saying no for political reasons. That is not enough. We want to know what you are going to say yes to. We want to know how you are going to work together. We want to know how are you going to actually solve a problem.

When someone such as Joe, from Rockford, MI, says he served in the Marines for 4 years and their motto is: ''We take care of our own,'' my question is: When are we going to come together and take care of our own Americans? I don't mean literally taking care of every person but creating opportunity for people, creating the climate for people to have a job, to have health insurance, to send the kids to college, to be able to afford to keep their lights on, and to be able to know that their country is on their side. That is what this is about. They do not want us to wait more, they want us to move quickly—move quickly on health care and jobs and all the other issues that are so important to their families.

So I thank my friend from Rhode Island for joining me, because there is a sense of urgency that people have, and we need to have that sense of urgency to get things done—to work together and to get things done. Frankly, one of the things our colleagues on the other side of the aisle have successfully done is united our caucus in its determination to not let this kind of stalling and objections and tactics, which are slowing things down, stop us from actually solving a huge problem that has gone too long unsolved for the American people.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, we are considering the omnibus bill. Once again, I have to say that we are heading recklessly, at a high rate of speed, toward the most reckless spending this Nation has ever seen. We saw some big spending during World War II but nothing like this, in the kind of environment we are in today. Plus, then we had the whole Nation working to win that life-and-death struggle.

I will just say a few things about this omnibus bill. First, I don't think any of us should support it. Why? It is unacceptable. Why? It is the kind of spending that has caused the American people to be outraged and to go out in the streets. People told me they had never been to a rally before in their lives, but they went out because they are afraid for their country.

Look at the package of spending that is in this legislation—the Commerce, Justice, and Science bill has been cobbled together with the others. There are 6 of the 13 appropriations bills all packaged together into 1 to see if they can't ram it through during the last days before Christmas so nobody will have the gumption to cause a fuss about it and so we can just get this done. What is it that is contained in the legislation that causes such angst on my part and on the part of others? I will explain it for you.

Here are the numbers. The Commerce, Justice, Science appropriations bill contains $64 billion in spending. The percent of growth over last year's spending is 12 percent. Just to recall for my colleagues, if you know the rule of seven, which you learn in accounting: at a 7-percent growth rate—or if you have an interest rate of 7 percent—your money will double in value in 10 years. Here we have a 12-percent increase. That means the expenditure line of Commerce, Justice, and Science increases at 12 percent, which would double that whole amount in about 7 years. Do you think that is what the American people want? This does not count the stimulus package we passed earlier this year. My wife says: Quit saying we passed, when you voted against it. I didn't vote for it. It was $800 billion, and $15 billion went into Commerce, Justice, and Science appropriations. So we go from $64 billion in this bill and add $15 billion on top of that amount, which is already being spent.

What about a second one—financial services. It has a 7-percent increase. The rate of inflation is what, 1 percent? On top of this bill, we add about a $7 billion infusion in financial services from the stimulus package. Last year, the spending was $22 billion; this year, it is $24 billion. Add $6.9 billion on top of that and you have about $31 billion, which is a massive increase.

Labor, HHS, and Education also increased at 7 percent, and it received $72 billion extra from the stimulus package. I am not counting the stimulus when I say it is a 7-percent increase. I am talking about the baseline budget. Military Construction and Veterans Affairs is oddly the lowest. It only received a 5-percent raise. Well, 5 percent is still a big increase when the inflation rate is below 2, and it received $4 billion from the stimulus, which is not much. The stimulus gave very little to military matters.

What about the State Department and Foreign Operations? How much did that budget line increase over last year? Thirty-three percent. We don't have to increase State and Foreign Operations 33 percent. This is beyond a reasonable amount by any stretch of the imagination, and it also received an increase in the stimulus package.

What about Transportation and Housing and Urban Development? What kind of increase did they get in this year's budget, in a time when the American people are having to cut their budgets, when they try to save more than they ever saved before, trying to find work if they or family members are losing jobs, when they are not getting overtime like they did before, when other things are tightening them up and the fear of unemployment is out there; what does Transportation and HUD get in the baseline budget? Not counting the stimulus money: 23 percent increase. With a 23-percent increase you double the whole Transportation-HUD budget in 4 years. This is not responsible.

By the way, the baseline Transportation-HUD budget in 2009 was $54 billion. It was $54 billion, and the stimulus package added $61.8 billion on top of that.

The omnibus bill in all of the spending lines amounts to an increase of 12 percent. This is unsustainable, and the 12 percent does not include the huge amount of money that was funded through the stimulus package.

I see my colleague here, one of our stalwart Members of this Senate. I will yield to him, but I just want to be on record saying I would love to vote for these bills. I voted for many of these funding bills in years past, but I am not going to vote for a package that increases spending of the Federal Government at 12 percent when the average American is lucky to have a job and inflation in this country is 1 or 2 percent. This makes no sense to me.

Remember, this spending is in addition to the amount of money approved in the stimulus package—$800 billion.

If you would like to know how much money $800 billion amounts to, the general fund budget in my State of Alabama—we are an average size State—is less than $2 billion. The entire total spending of these six bills in this omnibus package is $445 billion, and we spent in February—this Congress approved without my support $800 billion extra to try to stimulate the economy. Unfortunately, it has been frittered away without the kind of impact we need.

I am worried what we are doing. I appreciate having this opportunity to share those comments, and I will speak more about it in the future.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I appreciate my colleague's great remarks. I rise today to discuss an important aspect of this multifaceted health care reform bill that is now pending on the Senate floor. It is tax increases and who will bear the burden of those tax increases. I have actually heard some stand on the Senate floor and say there are tax reductions. Who are they kidding? The gargantuan piece of legislation laying before us provides plenty of fodder for debate and discussion. This debate and discussion is taking place all over the country among Americans everywhere: over the family breakfast table, during breaks at work around the water cooler, in corporate boardrooms, and bowling alleys, and during Christmas shopping trips.

Of course, right here in the Senate we have already had many hours of debate about the health care bill, with many more likely to come. As one peruses the 2,074 pages that comprise the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act—this bill—it quickly becomes obvious that this bill encompasses many topics and touches on a comprehensive array of issues dealing with our health care system.

However, it is not until near the very end of the bill, starting on page 1,979, that we find title IX, which deals with revenue offset provisions. Perhaps it is because this title is near the end of this seemingly endless bill that we have heard relatively little discussion about the new taxes it creates or perhaps it is because the tax title is relatively short, a mere 67 pages.

No matter the reason, I believe it is vital that the American people understand something about these new taxes before we are asked to vote on this legislation, this gargantuan legislation.

Before I get into the specifics of the new taxes and tax increases in this bill, I need to inform my Utahns and Americans everywhere that they are being sold a bill of goods when it comes to these taxes.

Based on what President Obama promised during his campaign last year, every individual American taxpayer earning less than $200,000 per year, and every family making less than $250,000 per year is justified in believing that this health care bill, which has been endorsed by the President, would not raise their taxes. Here is the direct quote from candidate Barack Obama in New Hampshire on September 12, 2008:

> I can make a firm pledge. Under my plan no family making less than $250,000 a year will see any form of tax increase.

Unfortunately, this bill places the cost of health care reform squarely on the backs of the taxpayers and mostly on the 98 percent of Americans the President promised to protect from new taxes. That is what it said. President Obama's exact words were:

> I can make a firm pledge. Under my plan, no family making less than $250,000 a year will see any form of tax increase.

The President went on to promise:

> Not your income tax, not your payroll tax, not your capital gains taxes, not any of your taxes.

However, when one looks at the list of revenue offsets beginning on page 1,979, we see all but 5 of the 14 revenue raisers included there would hit families making less than $250,000.

There is a cornucopia of new taxes on middle-income Americans in this legislation: a limitation on itemized medical expense deductions for medical expenses; an excise tax on the high-cost health insurance plans; a new tax on medical devices such as wheelchairs, breast pumps, and syringes used by diabetics for insulin injections; a limit on contributions to flexible spending accounts; an increase on the penalty for unqualified distributions from a health savings account; an increase in the payroll tax, and on and on.

Look at all these taxes: itemized medical expense deduction, fees on drug manufacturers, high-cost plan tax—by the way those are passed on to you and me and every other consumer, most of whom are less than $250,000-a-year earners—fees on health insurers, nonqualified HSA distribution from 10 percent to 20 percent, fees on medical device manufacturers, fees on FSAs—a $2,500 cap on FSAs—people who have suffered from disabilities and other problems, they can't live with that kind of cap—and an individual mandate penalty excise tax, all of those. That is just mentioning a few of them. It goes on and on.

Some of these would directly hit many taxpayers who make less than $200,000, such as this 5 percent excise tax on cosmetic surgery, while others would in the form of higher fees and penalties that would ultimately be passed on to the consumer.

This is certainly the indication with the new ''industry fees'' that would be assessed on several sectors of the health care industry.

Who do they think is going to pay for those? It is you and me and everybody else. Look at this chart, the biggest single tax increase in this health care bill is also one of the most insidious. This is the 40-percent excise tax on high-cost insurance.

By 2019, 88 percent, or $30.5 billion will be borne by individual taxpayers. Eighty-four percent of those will be individuals who make less than $200,000 or families who make less than $250,000. That is according to the Joint Committee on Taxation, upon which I sit. It is a nonpartisan committee.

This is the 40-percent excise tax on health insurance coverage that exceeds $8,500 for single families or $23,500 for families.

The unions in this country are going crazy over that, and with good reason.

The proponents of this idea tell us it is necessary in order to ''bend the cost curve'' downward and get the cost of health care under control. However, in reality, this is simply a bastardized version of the concept that might have been effective in discouraging employees from bargaining for too much insurance because it is a tax-free benefit; that is, for corporations that provide it, a cap on the value of tax-free, employer-provided health insurance.

The original concept, which was discussed at length in the finance committee earlier in the process of developing health care reform legislation this year, has merit if done correctly. By providing a direct disincentive to the very individuals who would suffer the tax increase, this original idea would have discouraged purchasing or bargaining for higher cost insurance simply because of the tax benefit.

However, this bill and the one approved by the Finance Committee does not take this route. Instead, it takes the cowardly approach and applies the tax increase at the insurer level.

Why is this a bad idea? For one thing, the tax increase occurs at a level two steps removed from the individual employee, which is where the decision to buy a less costly plan is made. Rather, the tax is assessed on the insurance company which has no choice but to pass the cost of the tax on to the employer and the employee who, together, pay the cost of the policy.

Instead of providing a disincentive for purchasing more health insurance than is necessary, applying the tax at the insurer level simply increases the cost of insurance without the employer and employee necessarily even knowing why the cost has gone up.

You wonder why insurance costs go up?

So for the sake of avoiding what appears to be a direct tax increase on workers, this approach loses the benefit of the original idea of bending down the cost curve by providing a disincentive. But make no mistake, this increased cost of these insurance plans will be passed on to the employees.

''Forty percent excise tax on high-cost insurance''—which most people will have. This is not even—

> . . . by 2019, 88 percent or $30.5 billion will be borne by individual taxpayers; 84 percent of those will be individuals who make less than $200,000 or families who make less than $250,000. The Joint Tax Committee.

My gosh, when does it end?

Moreover this tax burden would not be just on those whom the President says he wants to target for tax increases, those making over $200,000 per year as individuals or $250,000 per year for families. Far from it.

Data from the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation showed that only 16 percent of the $30.5 billion borne by individual taxpayers in 2019 would be paid by those making over $200,000 per year. This means that 84 percent or almost $26 billion for this 1 year only would be paid by those whom the President promised to protect against tax increases.

Unfortunately, the excise tax on high-cost insurance policies is not the only way the health care bill would increase the cost of health insurance. To add insult to injury, the bill also includes a $6 billion annual fee assessed on providers of health insurance.

I have heard the other side just condemn health insurers, day in and day out. Yet they are adding all these costs to the health insurers that have to pass them on to the individual citizens, or insurees.

As I understand it, the rationale behind this misguided idea is that health insurance companies will be enjoying a windfall from this bill in that millions of new customers will become insured for the first time. Therefore, the reasoning goes, the health insurance industry will be earning billions of dollars that they would not have otherwise made, all because of the beneficial aspects of this health reform bill.

Therefore, since these companies will be reaping all of this extra profit, why should we not tax them on this windfall in the form of this annual fee as though those costs are not going to be passed on? This is a bad idea on so many levels. First, it assumes that the insurance companies will actually be gaining all of these new customers. Secondly, it assumes that the insurance companies will be making money from these new customers if they indeed gain them. Keep in mind, they are talking now in the back rooms. Nobody knows what they have concluded. They are talking about putting people into Medicare from 55 years old on, where today you have to be 65 years of age to be able to qualify for Medicare. Now they want to do that at 55. What does that mean? That means the sickest of the sick will go into Medicare. People are going to push them out of regular policies and others will go into Medicare, so these insurance companies aren't going to make all the money the Democrats say they are.

The third assumption is the most troubling. That is that it would be the insurance companies themselves that would bear the burden of these fees. These are all dangerous assumptions. The third one is downright fallacious. It assumes that corporations suffer the incidence of taxation. As anyone with a modicum of economic training knows, corporations do not bear the burden of taxes, people do. Specifically, it is the people who work for the corporation, who own the corporation, and who are the customers of the corporation who ultimately pay the tax. They are passed right on to the people. This is not the only dangerous new excise tax in this bill. We have a whole passel of them. A new excise tax on health insurance providers. Look at this, excise taxes in the health care bill, excise tax on health insurance providers, new tax on pharmaceuticals, a new tax on medical devices, a new tax on high-cost insurance plans, and a new tax on cosmetic surgery. In the case of competitive markets, an excise tax is generally borne by consumers in the form of higher prices in the long term. At least this is what the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation said to me in a letter on these insurance industry fees, dated October 28, 2009. Why in the world would we want to add a fee to the health insurance industry when we know it will be passed right on to consumers of the health insurance in the form of higher insurance costs? That means you and me. That means the employee. That means the person who bears the burden. I thought the purpose of this health reform bill was to rein in health care costs.

How much does this so-called health care reform bill harm taxpayers and violate President Obama's promise not to raise taxes on the middle class? Let me tell you about one of the most egregious tax increases in this bill. I have always believed that one of the major purposes of health care reform is to lower the cost of medical expenses to American families and especially to vulnerable American families. Therefore, it makes no sense to me that this bill should include this next tax increase which would largely hit the sickest Americans. This proposal would increase the threshold for deducting medical expenses from today's level of 7.5 percent to 10 percent of adjusted gross income. This seemingly small change is projected by the Joint Committee on Taxation to cost taxpayers over $15 billion over 10 years. Which taxpayers would suffer this tax increase? The ones earning more than $250,000 per year that President Obama pledged would be the only Americans to be saddled with a tax hike under his administration? Hardly. Of the many millions of families affected by this change, only a few thousand have incomes over $200,000. Think about that. The vast majority of the victims of this tax hit would be below that figure, with many of them being far from wealthy. In fact, a high percentage of the taxpayers affected by this change make less than $75,000 per year.

Look at this. If your income equals $100,000, then you need to incur $10,000 worth of medical expenses before you become eligible for the deduction. Millions of taxpayers making less than $200,000 will be affected. The deduction for medical expenses has been in the Tax Code for decades. Its purpose is to provide relief to Americans who face catastrophic medical expenses in relation to the size of their income. It is designed so that an average or usual amount of health care costs will not trigger the relief. Like I say, a family earning $100,000 this year would have to have medical expenses exceeding $7,500 before the deduction kicks in. This does not count what insurance pays but only what the family would fork over in out-of-pocket costs.

Even for those with the most basic health insurance, 7.5 percent of family income spent for medical expenses is a large amount. In many cases, this much medical cost relative to income is caused by chronic health conditions or serious accidents or injuries, and this is exactly the point. The current tax law rightly says that if a family has to pay catastrophic or near catastrophic amounts for health care during the year, relief is available. By design this deduction is there only for those who need it. So the big question is: Why we would want to increase taxes on those with already high medical expenses by making it tougher for them to get relief from catastrophic medical expenses. But the real conundrum is why would we do this as part of a bill that is supposed to rein in health care costs.

It is no wonder my fellow Utahns and Americans everywhere are questioning the wisdom of this bill. As with so many other features of this so-called health reform plan, this doesn't make sense.

There is much more I want to say about the tax increases in this bill. American taxpayers need to know the truth about what is about to hit them, if the majority has its way. I have not yet mentioned the new industry fee on medical device companies. Because my home State of Utah has many such companies, I plan to address this new fee in a separate floor statement as this debate progresses.

Let me summarize by reminding my colleagues that the tax increases in this bill fly in the face of the promises made by the President, the leader of the majority party in Congress who has explicitly endorsed this legislation. The staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation recently conducted a distributional analysis of how four of these tax increase provisions affect American taxpayers. Under that analysis, in 2019, individuals making over $75,000 and families making over $75,000 will see their taxes increase under this bill. That is equal to 42 million middle-income taxpayers. Think about that: 42 million middle-income taxpayers all making less than $200,000 per year and all of them, told by the President that they would be protected from tax increases, will be hit and hit hard by this bill. This is after taking into account the tax effects of the advanced refundable tax credit for health insurance.

Think about this: Millions more middle-income taxpayers will be hit by indirect tax increases from the health industry segment fees included in this bill. There is no question that these fees and other excise taxes will be passed through to the individuals who are consumers of the health care products that are being passed. As we debate this health care bill, it is imperative that the American people know what is in the legislation and how it will affect them. It would be a travesty for us to vote on this before these things are fully understood and debated. This is one of those few bills that come along only once in a generation or so. It is one of those bills that has the potential to change our country forever, for good or bad. In this case, it is not for good.

The tax increases in this bill are unprecedented in many ways and not well thought out. They will have a devastating effect on the people the President has promised to protect. The tax increase aspect alone of this leviathan is enough to demand its defeat here in the Senate. But there are so many more ill-advised provisions in the other 2,007 pages as well.

I urge my colleagues to take a good and honest look at these tax increases and make sure they are ready to face the vast majority of their unsuspecting constituents once they discover what has been done to them with this bill, should it pass.

I am very concerned about this bill. The American people are very concerned about this bill. Polls show they don't support this bill. I can't believe my colleagues on the other side are trying to present it as though it is a tax deduction bill when, in fact, it raises taxes in billions and billions of dollars, most of which go to the middle class or lower in transferred payments, and causes other problems added to their woes in health care and their very lives, as we go through all of our lives here in the United States. I am very concerned about it. I think everybody ought to be concerned about it. This is one-sixth of the American economy. If we can't get 75 to 80 votes in a bipartisan way, you know it is a lousy bill. This is a lousy bill. From what I have heard of the one that even Democrats don't know what form it will be in, it is going to be even more lousy.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, pending before us now is an omnibus bill which contains six different appropriations bills. It was not our intention to call this omnibus bill but to call each one of the appropriation bills. Unfortunately, it has been impossible to reach that goal because of a strategy that has been employed by the Republican side of the aisle to slow down any debate on any topic as much as possible, to challenge us with filibusters and force cloture votes and make the Senate go into interminable quorum calls. So many times we have called bills that came out of the Appropriations Committee with overwhelmingly positive votes only to run into roadblocks on the floor. And then after weeks and weeks and weeks of procedural problems tossed our way by the Republican side of the aisle, the bill is finally called and passes by an overwhelming margin. The strategy is clear.

It is as clear on the health care bill as it is on the appropriations bills that the Republican side of the aisle doesn't want us to complete. So we are attempting to do our best by consolidating into one appropriations bill six different appropriations bills that passed with overwhelmingly positive margins out of the Senate Appropriations Committee. There were three bills that received 30 to nothing votes in the Appropriations Committee and three others that were reported out 29 to 1, to give an idea of the kind of support they had. We brought up the Commerce-Justice-Science appropriations bill on October 6. It took us a month to finish that bill because of the delay tactics of the other side. That is the reality of what we face. We have run ourselves into the ground day after day, week after week with amendments relating to things of little or no consequence. I cannot count how many ACORN amendments we voted on. It would be a forest of oak trees if those acorns were planted. But we voted on them regularly, religiously. We made sure we took care of ACORN, but we didn't take care of the people's business because those amendments wasted our time.

These appropriations bills have taken longer and longer because the minority will not agree to reasonable time agreements to consider amendments and finish debate.

Instead, we found ourselves consistently sidetracked by the minority, spending hours on the floor taking the same votes on keeping ACORN from receiving money from different Federal agencies like the Interior Department.

So, here we are. We have 21 days before the end of the calendar year and we need to finish the business of the Congress.

To do so, we engaged Republican members of the Appropriations Committee and worked on reasonable compromises to the differing bills in the House and Senate.

This package of appropriations bills is the result of a truly bicameral and bipartisan effort.

This package represents the priorities of the American people. The conference report invests in students, veterans and law enforcement.

The bill before us makes college education more affordable for students by increasing Pell grants to $5,500.

This will help all students, whether they are going to college for the first time or going back to acquire new skills, get the college education necessary to compete in the global economy.

The conference report also helps local governments fight crime and puts more police on our streets.

We have increased grants for State and local law enforcement by $480 million over last year.

These grant programs were cut by almost $2 billion during the last administration.

This conference report sets the right priorities by increasing funding essential to helping our States and local police departments fight crime.

We also help local law enforcement with hiring and training by including $298 million for the Community Oriented Policing Services or COPS program to put more cops on the beat.

This funding will help hire or retain approximately 1,400 police officers.

The COPS program has helped train nearly 500,000 law enforcement personnel and put over 121,500 additional officers on the beat nationwide.

This conference report also helps keep our promise to our Nation's veterans by increasing funding for the Veterans Affairs Department by $5.3 billion above last year's level.

This funding will increase access to quality health care for our veterans. In particular, the conference report increases discretionary spending at the VA by more than $5 billion to help the VA care for the more than 6.1 million veterans they expect to see in 2010.

As chairman of the subcommittee responsible for Division C of this consolidated appropriations bill, I would like to take the next few minutes to describe the key components of that portion of this bill.

Before doing so, I want to recognize and commend my ranking member, Senator COLLINS, for her helpful counsel, input, and support in crafting the bill. It has been a privilege and pleasure to collaborate with her in addressing the needs of the agencies and programs dependent on funding under our division of this conference agreement. I am proud that we have produced a truly bipartisan product.

This conference agreement allocates budgetary resources totaling $46.3 billion. This consists of $24.2 billion in discretionary spending and $22.1 billion in mandatory spending for financial services and general government accounts. The discretionary funds are $1.6 billion above the fiscal year 2009 enacted level and $40 million less than the President's request.

Our work has provided a valuable opportunity to evaluate the responsibilities, functions, and budgetary needs of the diverse agencies and programs under our jurisdiction. Our challenge has been deliberating carefully to make tough decisions within our conference funding allocation to address many worthy requests.

The bill provides resources for the Department of the Treasury, the Executive Office of the President and White House operations, the Federal judiciary, and the District of Columbia.

In addition, the bill funds over two dozen independent and vital, but often obscure, Federal agencies responsible for a wide array of critical functions in the delivery of public services.

I would like to share some of the highlights of the bill:

My top priority this year was to continue to address the resource needs of two of our Nation's premier regulatory agencies: the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission. These two agencies occupy pivotal positions at the forefront of stimulating and sustaining economic growth and prosperity in our country.

The CFTC received its fiscal 2010 funding as part of the Agriculture appropriations bill, signed into law in September. I am pleased to have played a role in providing that agency with $168.8 million, a 16-percent boost above last year.

For the Securities and Exchange Commission, this bill includes $1,111,000,000, an increase of $85 million above the President's budget request and $151 million more than the fiscal year 2009 enacted level.

The SEC is the investor's advocate. I want to make certain that the SEC has the necessary resources to effectively fulfill its singular obligation: protecting shareholders.

SEC Chairman Mary Schapiro has charted an aggressive new course to strengthen SEC vigilance by recruiting professional expertise and investing in enhanced technology. The $85 million increase in this bill will support 420 additional investigators, attorneys, and analysts to expand significantly the SEC's enforcement, examination, risk assessment, and market oversight functions.

In addition, the SEC will be able to accelerate investments in several key information technology projects, including installing and launching a new system to track tips and complaints.

The conference bill supports community and small business development at a time when these investments are more crucial than ever. With the economy struggling, economic development must be a top priority.

Treasury's Community Development Financial Institutions Fund program—CDFI—helps finance community development projects throughout the country and supports basic financial services for underserved communities. The bill provides $166.8 million for CDFIs to provide financing for projects such as day care centers, community centers, and affordable housing projects in America's underserved neighborhoods.

Through the Small Business Administration, the bill provides over $824 million to promote the development of America's small businesses. The bill supports $28 billion in new lending to small businesses, providing financing opportunities for small businesses at a time when private sector credit is difficult, if not impossible, to access. The bill also provides $22 million for microloan technical assistance grants and supports $25 million in microlending.

Funding also supports SBA's partners, including Small Business Development Centers, Women's Business Centers, and Veterans Business Outreach Centers. These partners form a foundation of support to help America's small businesses weather the economic downturn and assist newly unemployed Americans seeking advice on starting a small business as a new career path.

As we have done in the past few years, this bill provides a significant funding increase for the Consumer Product Safety Commission. To help keep CPSC on track to meet its new responsibilities under the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act, the bill provides $118.2 million, an increase of $13 million above last year's level and $11 million above the budget request.

These funds will help expand the import safety initiative, which puts CPSC inspectors at key U.S. ports, and to further investigate suspected problems with imported drywall from China. With these resources, the CPSC can provide the nation with a robust safety program and protect the public against unreasonable risk of injury associated with consumer products.

For the Internal Revenue Service, the bill provides $12.2 billion. Of this, $7 billion is for tax law enforcement, $387 million more than last year, to help advance the administration's initiative to target wealthy individuals and businesses who avoid U.S. taxes by sheltering money in overseas tax havens.

The bill provides nearly $6.4 billion to enable the Federal judiciary to carry out constitutional responsibilities to administer justice and resolve disputes impartially under the rule of law.

Of the $752 million in Federal funding for the District in this bill, the largest portion, $563 million, is designated for the local courts and criminal justice system including public defender services and pretrial and postconviction offender supervision.

In addition, the bill provides a total of $186 million in Federal funds for local District of Columbia activities under the control of the mayor. Of this amount, $110 million is for education-related functions, specifically support for local school improvement and postsecondary tuition assistance.

This $110 million continues our commitment to improving the quality of education for children in the District of Columbia. I convened two hearings this fall to assess the Federal investment in school improvement over the past 5 years. To date, including this bill, Congress has provided $348 million since fiscal year 2004 as special payments to help the District address long-standing deficiencies in its education system.

This conference agreement provides $75.4 million for school improvement in the District in three sectors: $42.2 million for public schools, $20 million for charter schools, and $13.2 million for opportunity scholarships. The bill also includes $35.1 million to continue the District of Columbia resident tuition assistance grant program which permits eligible District residents to attend out-of-state colleges and universities at in-state tuition rates.

Finally, just a few words about earmarks. This is a very transparent appropriations bill shining a light on requests from Senators, House Members, and the Obama administration. Quite frankly, that is the way it should be.

Nothing is buried or disguised. The name of every Member who has asked for anything in the House or Senate bill that has been included in this conference agreement is disclosed in the explanatory statement. Every Member has to stand by every request he or she makes, and it is printed right there for the world to see.

After the document went to print, Senator SCHUMER submitted a letter to the committee conveying his support for several items included in the bill at the request of House members.

I ask unanimous consent to have the text of Senator SCHUMER's letter printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, December 7, 2009.

Hon. RICHARD DURBIN,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Financial Services and General Government, Senate Committee on Appropriations, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Hon. SUSAN COLLINS,
Ranking Member, Subcommittee on Financial Services and General Government, Senate Committee on Appropriations, Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN DURBIN AND RANKING MEMBER COLLINS: As your Subcommittee works toward a conference with the House of Representatives on the Fiscal Year 2010 Financial Services and General Government Appropriations bill, I respectfully request your support for several projects that are important to the state of New York, as well as to our nation.

I urge the Senate Conferees to fully fund my priority project included in the FY10 Senate version of the Financial Services Appropriations bill:

Support the Senate Appropriations Committee (SAC) addition of $117,500 for the City of Buffalo for the Buffalo Clean Energy Incubator, in the Small Business Administration account;

Support the SAC addition of $117,500 for the Community Service Society of New York for a financial education project, in the Small Business Administration account;

Support the SAC addition of $117,500 for the Greater Syracuse Chamber of Commerce for the Space Alliance Technology Outreach Program, in the Small Business Administration account.

In addition to my Senate priorities, I also offer my support for the following projects included in the House version of the bill:

Support the House Appropriations Committee (HAC) addition of $17,500,000 for National Archives and Records Administration, Washington, D.C., for FDR Presidential Library, New York, in the National Archives and Records Administration account;

Support the HAC addition of $150,000 for Agudath Israel of America, New York, NY, for Mentoring and training services, in the Salaries and Expense account;

Support the HAC addition of $250,000 for the Buffalo Niagara International Trade Foundation, Buffalo, NY, to support small businesses, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $150,000 for the Center for Economic Growth, Albany, for Watervliet Innovation Center, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $150,000 for the Consortium for Worker Education, New York, NY, for Financial training and guidance programs, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $151,000 for Girl Scouts of the USA, New York, NY, for a national program to improve financial literacy, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $200,000 for Greater Syracuse Chamber of Commerce, Syracuse, NY, for Clean Tech Startup Camp, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $350,000 for Hudson Valley Agribusiness Development Corporation, Hudson, NY, for Hudson Valley Food Processing Incubator Facility, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

Support the HAC addition of $75,000 for Hunter College, New York, NY, for the Roosevelt House Institute Public Policy Institute, Financial Literacy Project, in the Salaries and Expenses account;

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we are here at 7 o'clock. My friend—I want to make sure the RECORD reflects that he is my friend—the Republican leader, we scuffle and argue out here, but we have done a lot of things together over the years. But I do have a direct quote from my friend just this afternoon:

We have been anxious to have health care votes since Tuesday and we have had the Crapo amendment pending since Tuesday. We would like to vote on amendments. All we are asking is an opportunity to offer amendments and get votes.

That is what we have been trying to do now for the last several hours. First of all, I have a cloture motion at the desk with respect to the conference report to accompany H.R. 3288.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the Chair directs the clerk to read the motion.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the conference report to accompany H.R. 3288, the Transportation, HUD, Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

Daniel K. Inouye, Al Franken, Jon Tester, Paul G. Kirk, Jr., Roland W. Burris, Edward E. Kaufman, Jack Reed, Daniel K. Akaka, Mark Begich, Patty Murray, Jeff Bingaman, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Sherrod Brown, Thomas R. Carper, Byron L. Dorgan, Richard J. Durbin, Harry Reid.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the mandatory quorum be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 3590

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate resume consideration of H.R. 3590, the health care bill, for the purposes of considering the pending Crapo motion to commit and the Dorgan amendment No. 2739, as modified; that Senator BAUCUS be recognized to call up his side-by-side amendment to the Crapo motion; that once that amendment has been reported by number, Senator LAUTENBERG be recognized to call up his side-by-side amendment to the Dorgan amendment, as modified; that prior to each of the votes specified in this agreement, there be 5 minutes of debate equally divided and controlled in the usual form; that upon the use or yielding back of the time, the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the Lautenberg amendment; that upon disposition of the Lautenberg amendment, the Senate then proceed to vote in relation to the Dorgan amendment; that upon disposition of that amendment, the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the Baucus amendment; that upon disposition of that amendment, the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the Crapo motion to commit; that no other amendments be in order during the pendency of this agreement; that the above-referenced amendments and motion to commit be subject to an affirmative 60-vote threshold and that if they achieve that threshold, then they be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; that if they do not achieve that threshold, then they be withdrawn.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. MCCONNELL. As I stated earlier today, and as the majority leader has indicated, we have waited since Tuesday to vote on additional health care amendments, including the pending Crapo motion to commit on taxes. Finally, tonight the other side gave us language on their alternative to Senator CRAPO's motion.

Senator CRAPO's motion would ensure that the bill does not raise taxes on the middle class. I understand that their alternative is sense-of-the-Senate language on that subject. This consent request now has us voting on two drug reimportation amendments from the other side—not one but two on the Democratic side—one of which we just received less than an hour ago and is 100 pages long.

We are prepared to return to the health care bill and proceed to the two tax-related votes tonight. After those votes, I would suggest we continue to work on the bill and other amendments. I assume there could be votes on the drug reimportation issue and a whole host of other amendments we have all been anxious to offer at a later time. But at this stage, regretfully, I object and propound the following alternative.

Is my objection registered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I would say to my friend, the majority leader, could we just get in the queue the Crapo amendment and the, I believe, Baucus side by side to the Crapo amendment? I ask unanimous consent that we do that, which would give us a way to go forward on two measures that both sides seem to want to vote on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Just this afternoon, my friend, the Republican leader, said—and I quote—''I think it is pretty hard to argue with a straight face that we're''—''we'' meaning Republicans—''not trying to proceed to amend and have votes on this bill. That's what we desire to do.''

Mr. President, it is obvious the Republicans have said privately to their friends and publicly here and in the media that this is a bill they want to kill. To think they are interested in doing something that is positive about this stretches the imagination.

Also, let me just say this. I did not come to this body yesterday. I am not the expert with procedures in the Senate, but I am pretty good. I want everyone to understand this is a ploy procedurally to stop us from completing this bill. We are not going to have a bunch of amendments stacked up. Amendments have been offered. We are agreeing to vote on the amendments. We know the drug importation is a difficult vote for the Republicans; it is a difficult vote for the Democrats. But that is what we do around here.

Every amendment we have had so far has been 60-vote margins. This should not be any different. So I want the RECORD to reflect that we are ready to vote. He keeps talking about ''since Tuesday.'' There have been quite a few things going on around here since Tuesday. It is not as if we have been sitting around staring in space. There has been good debate on the Senate floor. It is just that we have amendments that would—if we move off the motion they have filed, it creates a procedural issue that we would have difficulty getting out of. That is why they are wanting to do that. We have to clear the deck, continue offering amendments, as we have. I think that is the right way to do it.

So, Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Republican leader.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, could I just say, at the risk of being redundant—and I do not want to get into a spirited debate with my friend and colleague over this—the facts are we were just handed a 100-page Lautenberg amendment about an hour ago. I have 39 Members here, all interested in that issue. It is simply impossible for me to clear voting on an amendment of 100 pages in duration that I just got an hour ago.

The reason I had suggested—and I was hopeful that maybe it would be a good way forward—we vote on the Crapo amendment, which everybody understands has been out there since Tuesday, and a sense-of-the-Senate resolution that is fairly brief, I assume—a very brief sense of the Senate that Senator BAUCUS was going to offer—is because both sides fully understand those two measures. They are not 100 pages long and enormously complicated. We did not just receive them.

So I do not want to get into an extensive back and forth with the majority leader, but I would say to him through the Chair, sincerely, it strikes me a good way to just get started would be to vote on these two issues, the Crapo motion and the Baucus amendment that both sides fully understand.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, this is no sucker punch the Democrats have just leveled to the Republicans. This amendment was previously offered by Senator COCHRAN, a Republican, that Senator LAUTENBERG is offering. This is something people have known about for a long time. So I understand people may have forgotten what was in that. They can have the evening to look it over. But I will renew my request tomorrow. We are ready to legislate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I guess I will have to prolong it just a little bit further.

I just learned something from the majority leader, that in fact this is an amendment that has been around before. We just learned that from his comments, having just received it a short time ago. Nevertheless, we will continue to talk and see if we cannot move forward and make progress and give both sides votes they are clearly interested in having.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I appreciate the attitude of the Republican leader. I think it is fair to have a chance to look at that amendment. We will be here in the morning and try to work through this.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, what is the pending business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The omnibus conference report.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I rise to speak about the omnibus conference bill before the Senate and specifically about provisions on Cuba that have not passed the Senate and have not been subjected to debate by this body. These provisions would undo current law where the Castro regime would have to pay in advance of shipment for goods being sold to them because of their terrible credit history.

Yes, Cuba's credit history is horrible. The Paris Club of creditor nations recently announced that Cuba has failed to pay almost $30 billion in debt. Among poor nations that is the worst credit record in the world.

So I ask: If the Cuban Government has put off paying those to whom it already owes $30 billion, why does anyone think it would meet new financial obligations to American farmers?

Considering the serious economic crisis we are facing right now, we need to focus on solutions for hard-working Americans, not subsidies for a brutal dictatorship. We should evaluate how to encourage the regime to allow a legitimate opening—not in terms of cell phones and hotel rooms that Cubans cannot afford but in terms of the right to organize, the right to think and speak what they believe.

However, what we are doing with this omnibus bill is far from that evaluation, and the process by which these changes have been forced upon this body is so deeply offensive to me and so deeply undemocratic that I have no intention—no intention—of continuing to vote for Omnibus appropriations bills if they are going to jam foreign policy changes down throats of Members in what some consider ''must-pass'' bills.

I am putting my colleagues on notice: You may have the wherewithal to do that because you have a committee perch or an opportunity to stick something in that has not been debated on the floor of the Senate in what you think is a must-pass bill, but do not expect me to cast critical votes to pass that bill.

An example of the danger of what we are doing by changing the definition that is now being changed in this omnibus bill of what we call ''cash in advance'' is exhibited by a Europapress report. I want to quote from that press report: ''During a trade fair this month in Havana, Germany's Ambassador to Cuba, Claude Robert Ellner, told German businessmen that Cuba's debt to the German government had been forgiven''—forgiven—''in the hopes that Cuba will meet its debt obligations to them''—meaning to the businessmen.

In other words, German taxpayers will now be responsible for bailing out its private sector and, by implication, the Castro regime.

Thanks to the U.S. policy we have had up to now, of requiring the Castro regime to pay ''cash in advance'' for its purchases of agricultural products, U.S. taxpayers could rest assured that the same would not happen to them—that we would not have to forgive any debt or obligations in order to make sure private businesspeople got paid by the regime because, otherwise, they would be left defaulted.

The Castro regime has mastered the art of making some European Governments acquiesce to its every whim, even if it means a free pass for its daunting repression.

So how do they do it? It is rather simple. They give European countries a choice: either you do what we say or we will freeze your nationals' bank accounts and default on any debts. To me, that is also known as blackmail.

Let's take Spain, for example. Recently, European news services reported that Spain has begun a diplomatic offensive to convince the Castro regime to unblock nearly 266 million euros—or the equivalent of about 400 million United States dollars—in funds that have been frozen by the Castro regime of over 300 Spanish companies in Cuba. These are Spanish companies doing business in Cuba and now cannot get access to their money.

So what does the Spanish Government do? Not coincidentally, the Spanish Government announced that upon assuming the Presidency of the European Union in 2010, it would enter into a new bilateral agreement with the Castro regime that would replace the current European Union policy which contains diplomatic sanctions for human rights violations.

The Castro regime had made it clear to Spain that the current European Union policy was an ''insurmountable obstacle'' to normal relations and, I might add, for Spanish nationals and companies to get their money back. Therefore, the Spanish Government immediately responded to what I consider to be blackmail.

On a recent visit to Cuba, Spain's Foreign Minister, Miguel Angle Moratinos, met for 3 hours with Raul Castro. He did not get one concession—not one—on human rights. But he did get $300 million that Cuba owed to Spanish companies that do business inside of Cuba.

Is that what the United States of America intends to do?

So the lesson for dictators is, go ahead and freeze the bank accounts of other countries' companies and create debt you do not intend to pay for and you get a free pass for repression.

Look at another article. A recent Reuters article highlights that Cuba continues to block access to foreign business bank accounts. Let me quote from that article:

> Many foreign suppliers and investors in Cuba are still unable to repatriate hundreds of millions of dollars from local accounts almost a year after Cuban authorities blocked them because of the financial crisis, foreign diplomats and businessmen said.

It goes on to say in the article:

> The businessmen, who asked not to be identified—

Because they are fearful if they are—> said they were increasingly frustrated because the Communist authorities refused to offer explanations or solutions for the situation, which stems from a cash crunch in the Cuban economy triggered by the global downturn and heavy hurricane damage last year.

This is a quote from one of those people. He says:

I have repeatedly e-mailed, visited the offices and sent my representative to the offices of a company I did business with for years and which owes me money, and they simply refuse to talk to me.

That is what a Canadian businessman told Reuters.

The article goes on:

Delegations from foreign banks and investor funds holding commercial paper from Cuba's State banks have repeatedly traveled to Cuba this year seeking answers from the Central Bank or other authorities—without success.

Representatives of some companies with investment or joint ventures on the island say they were bracing for the possibility of not being able to repatriate year-end dividends paid to their accounts in Cuba.

Now, let's remember that some 90 percent of the country's economic activity is in the regime's hands, in the state's hands.

Foreign economic attachés and commercial representatives in Cuba said most of their nationals doing business with the Caribbean island still face payment problems.

That is all from that article. These are all those who are doing business with Cuba now finding themselves and their money trapped.

Last week, the Russian Federation's Audit Chamber revealed that the Cuban regime failed on three occasions to pay installments on the equivalent of $355 million in a credit deal it signed with Russia in September of 2006. That is just the latest episode in a saga that in 2009 alone includes, first, reports by Mexico's La Jornada and Spain's El Pais newspapers that hundreds of foreign companies that transact business with the Cuban regime's authorities have had their accounts frozen—frozen—since January of 2009 by the regime-owned bank that is solely empowered to conduct commercial banking operations in that country.

Second, a June 9, 2009, Reuters article said:

Cuba has rolled over 200 million Euros in bond issues that were due in May, as the country's central bank asked for another year to repay foreign holders of the debt, financial sources in London and Havana said this week.

Those are direct quotes from those articles.

As a reminder, in Castro's Cuba, you can only do business with the regime because private business activity is strictly restricted.

So the real reason so many whose work is often subsidized by business interests advocate Cuba policy changes is about money and commerce, not about freedom and democracy. It makes me wonder why those who spend hours and hours in Havana listening to Castro's soliloquies cannot find minutes—minutes—for human rights and democracy activists. It makes me wonder why those who go and enjoy the Sun of Cuba will not shine the light of freedom on its jails full of political prisoners. They advocate for labor rights in the United States, but they are willing to accept forced labor inside of Cuba. They talk about democracy in Burma, but they are willing to sip the rum with Cuba's dictators.

Which takes me to a place in Cuba called Placetas. Placetas is a city in the Villa Clara Province in the center of Cuba, in the heart of the island, in the center of Cuba. In other words, it is not a beachside resort frequented by Canadian and European tourists.

Placetas is also the home of this couple. It is the home of Cuban political prisoner and prodemocracy leader Jorge Luis Garcia Perez Antunez, generally known as Antunez. On March 15 of 1990, a then-25-year-old Antunez stood at the center square of Placetas listening to the government's official radio transmission calling for the Fourth Congress of the Communist Party. He spontaneously began to shout: ''What we want and what we need are reforms like the ones performed in Eastern Europe.'' Immediately, he was beaten by state security agents, charged with ''oral enemy propaganda,'' and imprisoned. That would begin a 17-year prison term, which is about half of his current life that he spent in prison. His crime? Saying: We need the types of changes that took place in Eastern Europe. For that, 17 years in prison. He was not released until 2007. He is now 45 years old, hopefully with an entire life ahead of him.

The Castro regime would love for Mr. Antunez and his wife, who is also a prodemocracy activist—this says in Spanish, ''we are all the resistance'' and ''long live human rights.'' They would love for him to leave the island permanently, but he refuses to do so. He has decided to stay in Cuba and demand that the human and civil rights of the Cuban people be respected. For this, he has been rearrested over 30 times since 2007.

Last week, at that same center in that small town of Placetas where he had been originally arrested simply for saying that: What we need is a change as we saw in Eastern Europe, Antunez and other local prodemocracy leaders gathered to honor Cuba's current political prisoners, people who simply, through peaceful means, try to create changes for democracy and human rights inside of their country and get arrested and languish in jail.

Antunez and his colleagues were not ''educated'' on the importance of human rights and civil disobedience by foreign tourists, as some of my colleagues suggest would happen—that we need to send foreign tourists to educate the Cubans about human rights and civil disobedience. He and all of those who are languishing in Castro's jails understand about human rights and civil disobedience in a way to try to capture your rights. Unwittingly, though, foreign tourists have financed their repression. They give money to the regime that ultimately gives them the state security forces that throw people such as Antunez in jail.

Let me read an open letter that just came out by Mr. Antunez that was sent to Cuba's dictator Raul Castro. I am going to quote from an English translation.

It says:

Mr. Raul Castro—

This is Mr. Antunez speaking now—

My name is Jorge Luis Garcia Perez Antunez—a former political prisoner—and I am writing to you again not because I pretend to make you aware of something that, far from alien, is commonplace in Cuba due to the nature and politics of your government. For several months now my spouse Yris Tamara Perez Aguilera and I find ourselves under forced house arrest by your political police. The week before the Juanes concert—

That is the concert of the famous Colombian singer Juanes—

a high ranking State security official upon arresting me informed me that there had been an order for my arrest throughout the island of Cuba, wherever I might be found. He emphasized that they were going to be watching every step I take. Since that date I have lost count of how many times I have been arrested, the majority of times with violence.

Mr. Dictator—allow me a few questions that may help you clarify some doubts amongst those compatriots of mine who are hopeful that your government would diminish repression or that even Democratic openings could be made.

He poses this question:

With what right do the authorities, without a prior crime being committed, detain and impede the free movement of their citizens in violation of a universally recognized right? What feelings could move a man like Captain Idel Gonzalez Morfi to beat my wife, a defenseless woman, so brutally, causing lasting effects to her bones for the sole act of arriving at a radio station to denounce with evidence the torture that her brother received in a Cuban prison. Or is it that for you there are only five families that exist in our country that have the right to protest and demand justice for their jailed relatives? Should you not be ashamed that your corpulent police officers remain stationed for days at the corner of my home to impede us from leaving our house and monitoring our movements in our own city?

Where is the professionalism and ethics of your subordinates that with their ridiculous operations provoke the mockery of the populace towards these persons on almost a daily basis? How do you feel when you encourage or allow these persons who call themselves men to beat and drag women through the streets such as: Damaris Moya Portieles, Marta Diaz, Ana Alfonso Arteaga, Sara Marta Fonseca, Yris Perez, and most recently—

The well-known blogger, Yoani Sanchez. I am adding for the record ''the well-known blogger.'' He doesn't say that, but she is a well-known blogger, internationally known, recently beaten simply as she was trying to go to a place of civil disobedience.

How can you and your subordinates sleep calmly after deliberately and maliciously physically knocking down on more than one occasion Idania Yanez Contreras who is several months pregnant? How can you and your government speak about the battle of ideas when you are constantly repressing ideas through beatings, arrests, and years of incarceration?

Maybe your followers cannot find or even attempt to find a response. However, I find myself in the long list of persons that are not afraid to respond.

You act this way because you are a cruel man, and insensible to the pain and suffering of others. You act this way because you are faithful to your anti Democratic and dictatorial vocation, because you are convinced that dictatorships like the one you preside over can only be maintained through terror and torture, and because the most minimal opening can lead to the loss of the one thing that you are interested in—which is maintaining yourself in power.

Lastly, returning to my case in particular, I will respond without even asking you beforehand the concrete motives of your continued repression against my person. Your government and your servants in the repressive corps cannot forgive my two biggest and only ''crimes.'' First, that despite almost two decades of torture and cruel and inhuman punishment during my unjust and severe sanction, you could not break my dignity and my position as a political prisoner. And second, because even though I am accosted and brutalized and above all risk returning to prison, I have taken the decision not to leave my country in which I will continue struggling for a change that I believe is both necessary and inevitable.

The letter is signed: From Placetas, Jorge Luis Garcia Perez Antunez, December 2009.

This is the voice of those who languish under Castro's brutal dictatorship. As you can see, Mr. Antunez is an Afro-Cuban, not part of the White elite of the regime's dictatorship; not what the regime tells the world, that Cubans who are all White seek to oppose the dictatorship. Most of the movement for democracy inside of Cuba are Afro-Cubans. Inside of Cuba, they are subjected to a citizenship status that is less than any human being should be subjected to.

Antunez's voice rings in my head. It tugs at my conscience.

His words:

Despite almost two decades of torture and cruel and inhuman punishment during my unjust and severe sanction, you could not break my dignity and my position as a political prisoner, because even though I am accosted and brutalized and above all risk returning to prison, I have taken the decision not to leave my country in which I will continue struggling for a change I believe is both necessary and inevitable.

Antunez is right. Change in Cuba is inevitable, but the United States needs to be a catalyst of that change. It does not need to be a sustainer of that dictatorship. It does not need to create an infusion of money that only goes to a regime that ultimately uses it not to put more food on the plates of Cuban families but to arrest and brutalize people such as Mr. Antunez.

These are the human rights activists on whom some would turn their backs for the sake of doing business. I guess the only thing they can see is the color of money. Well, not me, not now, and not ever.

Thank you, Mr. President. With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I don't rise to add to what the Senator from New Jersey said. I just wish to take this opportunity to tell him I agree with him, and I appreciate his leadership on this issue over several years—even the years before he came to the Senate.

Often, I am asked in my State, because we can export so much agricultural stuff, if I would vote to open trade with Cuba. I said I am willing to open trade for Cuba when they give political freedom and economic freedom to the people of that country because this dictator has run Cuba into the most impoverished country in the world. Before he took over, they had a very viable middle class and they were a prosperous country.

I stand ready to help the Senator on what he is trying to do in that area.

Mr. MENENDEZ. If the Senator will yield, I thank the distinguished Senator from Iowa for his comments and for the position he has taken over a long period of time. It may not be the easiest, but I believe it is the one that is morally correct. Most important, on that day—which I believe is sooner rather than later—in which Cubans are free, they will remember who stood with them in the midst of this. That will make all the difference in the world. I thank the Senator.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I come to the floor at this point to give some breadth to a statement that was made on the floor earlier today. It was made by my friend, Senator BAUCUS. I don't take offense to what he said because I sensed a great deal of frustration in his statement. I will read what he said so you know what I am reacting to. The reason I don't take offense to what he said is because he and I have worked so closely together over 10 years, with one or the other of us being chairman of the Finance Committee, that we have such an understanding of each other.

Just prior to the remarks I am going to read, he had spoken positively about Senator ENZI and me. So I want my colleagues to know this statement is not made out of anger that I am going to give a rebuttal to.

Well, we kept working bipartisan—working together, for days and days, hours and hours, and then, fortunately, Mr. President, it got to the point where I'm just calling it as I see it. I can't—I—one of my feelings is I'm too honest about things. And it's—the Republicans started to walk away. They pulled away from the table. They had to leave.

I ask you why? Why did that happen? And the answer is, to be totally fair and above board, is—and above board, is because their leadership asked them to. Their leadership asked them to become disengaged from the process. I know that to be a fact. Why did their leadership ask Republicans to leave and become disengaged from the process? To be totally candid, they wanted to score political points by just attacking this bill. They were not here to help—help be constructive, to find bipartisan solutions. They were for a while, then when the rubber started to meet the road and it came time to try to make some decisions, they left and began to attack—and began to attack.

I wish to take a few minutes to respond to these remarks that I read. It was asserted, through these remarks on the floor, that some Republicans in the so-called Gang of 6 were directed by the Senate Republican leadership to cease participating in bipartisan talks. The Gang of 6 referred to the six bipartisan members of the Senate Finance Committee. On the Democratic side, the members were my friends, three chairmen, including Senator BAUCUS, Budget Committee chairman; Senator CONRAD; and Energy Committee chairman, Senator BINGAMAN. All are senior members of the Democratic Caucus. On the Republican side, the three members included Senator SNOWE, ranking member of the Small Business Committee; Senator ENZI, ranking member of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee; and this Senator. Senators SNOWE and ENZI are senior Members of the Republican caucus.

Chairman BAUCUS convened this working group with a singular goal of a bipartisan health care reform bill. We met for several weeks up in the Montana Room of Chairman BAUCUS's office. I would agree with the way participating Members have described these discussions. They were well informed, thoughtful, provocative, challenging, and frustrating all at the same time. But I would say that in the months we negotiated, there was never once that anyone walked away from the table. There was never once that there were any harsh words.

While we were engaged in those discussions, there was constant pressure from folks outside the room for us to reach a quick deal. That pressure came from the White House, it came from the Democratic leadership, it came from advocacy groups outside, and it came from many media folks covering the day-by-day meetings. To be fair, the Senate Republican leadership was very concerned about some of the directions the policy discussions were taking in the Gang of 6. That concern grew, particularly after the very partisan HELP Committee markup occurred. Senator HATCH left the original Gang of 7 because of the character and result of the HELP Committee markup.

Most important, the Senate Republican leadership was concerned that a bipartisan Finance Committee bill would be co-opted into a partisan floor bill, when the Democratic leadership merged the bills. Senators SNOWE, ENZI, and I anticipated that concern.

To be fair to Senator BAUCUS, as he was negotiating with us, he tried to convince us that we would be very much a part of those merging of the bills. He offered that in good faith. I believe him. I even believe him today saying that. But seeing how neither the HELP Committee nor the Finance Committee was as involved as they should have been in what Senator REID put together in this 2,074-page bill, I wonder whether Senator BAUCUS could have, if we had a bipartisan agreement, actually carried out that guarantee.

From the get-go, we Republican members of the Gang of 6, to make sure we were a part of the process that I described, as Senator BAUCUS told us we would be, asked for assurances from the White House and from the Senate Democratic leadership on the next step in the legislative process, if we, in fact, did arrive at a bipartisan agreement.

I also found that many in the broader group of Republicans, who provided the bipartisan glue for the CHIP bill of 2008, had similar concerns. All Republicans had process concerns, such as where would it go once it left the Senate Finance Committee.

We wanted assurances, and here is what we wanted. The assurances requested boiled down to a good-faith promise that the bipartisan Finance Committee health care bill would not morph into a partisan health care reform bill when Majority Leader REID merged the two committee bills. We wanted to make sure the bipartisan character of a bipartisan Finance Committee bill was going to be retained through these next steps. To do otherwise would be akin to getting on a bus and not knowing where the bus was going or how much the bus ticket would cost. Assurances were also requested with respect to a conference between the House and Senate. The assurances were similar to assurances requested by Senator REID and made by the then-majority Republican leadership during the period of 2005 and 2006. The Democratic minority leader, at that time, made these assurances a condition to letting major regular order Finance Committee bills even go to conference.

As an example, take a look at the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and you will see the assurances made by then-Majority Leader Frist to then-Minority Leader REID. These requests were made repeatedly to the Democratic leadership, publicly and privately, about how the postcommittee action of the bipartisan group would be handled in the merger with the HELP Committee bill. It was a focus of a July 8 lunchtime, face-to-face meeting at the majority leader's office, with Senators REID, BAUCUS, CONRAD, BINGAMAN, SNOWE, ENZI, and myself. The bottom-line response from Senator REID at that meeting was he needed 60 votes.

I guess, the implication was, despite the fact that the Democratic caucus contained 60 members then and now, Senator REID didn't think it was possible to secure the votes of all members of his caucus. A restatement of the reality of the Senate rules was not the assurances the three Republican Senators—this one included—sought from Senator REID.

Senator REID, himself, recognized the validity of this request in an August 8 Washington Post article. I ask unanimous consent to have that article printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEMOCRATS FIND RALLYING POINTS ON HEALTH REFORM, BUT SPLINTERS REMAIN

(By Shailagh Murray and Paul Kane)

Democrats leave town for the August recess with frayed nerves and fragile agreements on health-care reform, and a new bogeyman to fire up their constituents: the insurance industry.

With the House already gone and the Senate set to clear out by Friday, the terms of the recess battle are becoming clear. Republicans will assail the government coverage plan that Democrats and President Obama are advocating as a recklessly expensive federal takeover of health care. And Democrats will counter that GOP opposition represents a de facto endorsement of insurance industry abuses.

''We know what we're up against,'' House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (Calif.) told reporters on Friday. ''Carpet-bombing, slash and burn, shock and awe—anything you want to say to describe what the insurance companies will do to hold on to their special advantage.''

Although Pelosi won a significant victory last week when the Energy and Commerce Committee approved the House bill, setting up a floor debate after Labor Day, conservative Democrats were able to demand that negotiators weaken the government-plan provision. The uprising, which lasted for several days, suggested that the public option is growing increasingly vulnerable even as a consensus forms around other reform policies.

Republican leaders have pledged to use town halls, ads and other forums to intensify their assault on the Democratic-led reform effort. ''I think it's safe to say that, over the August recess, as more Americans learn more about [Democrats'] plan, they're likely to have a very, very hot summer,'' House Minority Leader John A. Boehner (R–Ohio) said.

In the Senate, a bipartisan coalition of Finance Committee lawmakers is backing a member-run cooperative model as an alternative to the public option. But Republicans are beginning to push back against that cooperative approach, too.

The latest critic is Sen. John McCain (R–Ariz.), who on Sunday compared insurance co-ops to Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, the government-backed mortgage giants that played prominent roles in the housing crisis. ''I have not seen a public option that, in my view, meets the test of what would really not eventually lead to a government takeover,'' McCain said on CNN's ''State of the Union.''

Pelosi and other Democrats have countered that Republicans are seeking to protect a health insurance industry that is their business ally, not so much from a government insurance option, but from the broad industry reforms that enjoy public support, including the elimination of coverage caps and the practice of denying coverage to those with pre-existing conditions. The White House also wants to steer the debate toward insurance reform, as it is easier to digest than long-term cost control, which is another chief objective.

''How you regulate the insurance industry is as important to health-care reform as controlling costs,'' said White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel. The public plan, he said, is one of an array of measures intended to change industry behavior.

As the rhetoric against the industry heated up, the leading insurance trade group issued a statement Thursday calling for lawmakers to cool down their criticisms and redouble efforts toward ''bipartisan health-care reform.'' Robert Zirkelbach, spokesman for America's Health Insurance Plans, defended his industry, saying it had already proposed many of the changes that Congress is seeking, including those involving pre-existing conditions and ratings based on health status and gender.

Despite the sparring, House and Senate Democrats and three GOP Senate negotiators have reached broad consensus on the outlines of reform. Lawmakers generally agree that individuals must be required to buy health insurance, that Medicaid should be significantly expanded, and that tax increases, in some form, will be required. The final bill also could bring about some of the most significant changes to Medicare since the program was created in 1965.

But the rebellion from fiscal conservatives on the Energy and Commerce Committee last week served as a political wake-up call for Democratic leaders. With enough votes on the panel and on the floor to sink reform legislation, the Blue Dog Coalition forced Pelosi and Emanuel into concessions that made the government plan similar to private health insurance, sparking a new fight with House liberals.

Sensing that the Blue Dogs had dug in for a prolonged fight, Pelosi and Emanuel gave in to most demands in order to get the legislation moving again. They essentially decided that it was better to pick a fight with their liberal flank, where Pelosi remains popular and where loyalty to Obama is strongest, particularly in the Congressional Black Caucus.

Despite threats from almost 60 progressive House Democrats—who outnumber the Blue Dogs—Pelosi defended the compromise, saying it was similar to one backed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D–Mass.). Pelosi predicted that the liberal wing would fall in line because the legislation is so important to them.

''Are you asking me, 'Are the progressives going to take down universal, quality, affordable health care for all Americans?' I don't think so,'' Pelosi told reporters Friday, breaking into laughter at the question.

Just as troublesome as the internal House divisions is the burgeoning distrust among House Democrats, their Senate counterparts and the White House.

Pelosi acknowledged that ''there are concerns'' in her caucus that the White House, namely their former colleague Emanuel, takes House Democrats for granted. House lawmakers are being encouraged to pass the most liberal bill possible, she said, while the White House works on a bipartisan compromise with a select group of senators.

''It's no secret,'' Pelosi said, ''that members sometimes think: 'Why do I always read in the paper that they're checking with the Finance Committee all the time? What does that mean, that they just want to know what's happened with the Finance Committee? What about the [Senate health] committee? What about our committees over here?' ''

The six Senate Finance Committee negotiators have burrowed in for another six weeks of talks, having set a Sept. 15 deadline for producing a bill. The group includes an array of small-state senators with little national prominence who have proven surprisingly resistant to pressure from their party leaders and the White House.

Although the House bill and the Senate Health Committee version have attracted no Republican support, the Senate Finance Committee coalition includes Sens. Mike Enzi (Wyo.) and Charles Grassley (Iowa), both Republicans, along with moderate GOP Sen. Olympia Snowe (Maine). And the lead Democratic negotiator, Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus (Mont.), is a moderate who has broken with his party on numerous bills co-authored with Grassley.

The closer these negotiators move to striking a deal, the more fraught the discussions become by issues of trust and political will. Among Republicans, the pressure is especially acute. All three GOP senators fear they will be sidelined once the bill is approved at the committee level, with their names invoked to demonstrate bipartisanship even as they're left with no say over the final product as it is meshed with the Senate health panel's version and then ultimately with the House bill.

For Republicans, a prime concern is that Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (Nev.) will abandon the Finance Committee bill and force legislation to the Senate floor using budget rules that would protect against a Republican filibuster. Even advocates concede that the option is highly risky and that it would vastly limit the policy scope of the bill. For instance, Senate budget experts say most insurance reforms would have to be sidelined.

Treasury Secretary Timothy F. Geithner said Sunday that the administration would consider all options. ''Ideally, you want to do this with as broad a base of consensus as possible,'' he said in an interview on ABC's ''This Week.'' ''But people on the Hill are going to have to make that choice: Do they want to help shape this and be part of it, or do they want this country, the United States of America, to go another several decades [without reform]?''

Reid said he already provided the Republicans with some assurances, and added, ''I'll do more if necessary.'' He said of GOP concerns, ''I don't blame them.'' And he added that, considering the political realities of the Senate, with its large number of moderate Democrats, health-care reform would have to gain significant bipartisan support to cross the finish line.

''I sure hope we can get a bipartisan bill; it makes it easier for me to go home,'' moderate Sen. Mary Landrieu (D–La.) told the Democratic caucus last week, according to Reid.

''We all feel that way,'' Reid added.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I will quote, in part, from the article:

The closer these negotiators move to striking a deal, the more fraught the discussions become by issues of trust and political will. Among Republicans, the pressure is especially acute. All three GOP senators fear they will be sidelined once the bill is approved at the committee level, with their names invoked to demonstrate bipartisanship even as they're left with no say over the final product as it is meshed with the Senate health panel's version and then ultimately with the House bill.

Republicans were also worried that the bipartisan product could be lifted into a partisan reconciliation bill. I quote further from that same Post article:

Reid said he already provided the Republicans with some assurances, and added, ''I'll do more if necessary.''

Continuing to quote from the Post article:

He said of GOP concerns, ''I don't blame them.'' And he added that, considering the political realities of the Senate, with its large number of moderate Democrats, health-care reform would have to gain significant bipartisan support to cross the finish line.

President Obama and the Senate Democratic leadership set a deadline of September 15 for the bipartisan Gang of 6 to produce a proposal. If the proposal were not available by then, the President and Senate Democratic leadership made it clear the plug would be pulled on further bipartisan talks.

I point that out because that is very significant. A powerful member of the Senate Democratic leadership, the senior Senator from New York, made it crystal clear the Senate Democratic leadership would pull the plug. That member, who is very smart and articulate, made it as transparent as possible that the September 15 deadline was more important than a bipartisan deal.

I ask you to go back and look at the media reports. The Gang of 6 was unable to reach a deal on contentious issues such as abortion, the individual mandate, and financing issues by White House/Democratic leadership's deadline.

Chairman BAUCUS had to move forward. I respect the pressure my friend from Montana was under. I have been there myself. But the record needs to be correctly made that the September 15 deadline was not a Republican deadline. It was a deadline imposed by the White House and the Senate Democratic leadership. I might say that wasn't just the GOP deadline—it wasn't a deadline for the Gang of 6 either. I didn't sense, from the three Democratic members, that they agreed with that.

So the Senate Democratic leadership pulled the plug on the talks. Again, go check the public comments and press reports. They pulled the plug. Senator ENZI and I could not agree to the product at that point because of substantive issues that were resolved against us and the failure of the White House or Senate Democratic leadership to deliver on those process assurances that we asked for.

Senator SNOWE did have substantive issues resolved sufficiently at the Finance Committee markup so that she could support the bill.

I might note today that I heard Senator SNOWE caution the Democrats as she gave them the boost from her vote in the Finance Committee—that was right after the bill passed—she made it clear that her vote for later stages would depend in part on data on the key question of whether the product makes health care more affordable. Her letter to CBO dated December 3 lays out the issues in precision.

At the next stage of the process, the merged-bill stage, all of the Senate Republicans' worst fears were confirmed, but it was especially telling to Senator ENZI and me. My sense is Senator SNOWE appreciated it more than any other member of our conference. The bottom line was that the majority leader's merged bill was constructed in such a partisan way that Senator SNOWE's input was cast aside.

Let's be clear. Senate Republicans did not set deadlines. Senate Republicans did not threaten to go their own way if the deadlines were not met. Even today, the pending motion from this side of the aisle puts the question to the Senate this way: Take the bill back to the Finance Committee.

As the old saying goes, hindsight is 20/20. As I look back on the process, I make these observations: There was an uncanny disconnect between those inside and outside the room. Many on the outside, mainly from the left side of the political spectrum, seemed to want a reform deal just to have a deal. They did not seem to be that curious about the contents. Perhaps for some of those folks, it was a bit of an imperative to draw on the good will that any President has in the first few months of office.

For those of us in the room—meaning the room where the negotiations were going on—there was a realization that we were tackling, as Chairman BAUCUS has described it, an extremely complex set of issues. We learned very quickly that closing the loop on the policy issues, let alone finding political consensus, was not easy.

The pressure to close a deal by the July 4 recess was overwhelming. My friend, the chairman, wisely pushed back and said we would get a deal when we reached a bipartisan deal. The Group of 6 was unable to reach a deal on contentious issues such as abortion, individual mandate, and financing issues faced by the White House-Democratic leadership deadline. Chairman BAUCUS had to move. In my heart, I feel he would rather not have had that sort of pressure or make that decision. But that was not our deadline. It was a deadline imposed by the White House and the Senate Democratic leadership. They pulled the plug on the talks. Go check the public comments and the press reports. They pulled the plug. Senator ENZI and I could not agree to a product at that point because of the substantive issues that were very much involved.

I want to make it very clear, for this Senator, of the three Republicans who were negotiating, kind of in summary, that the Republican leadership, I think, had questions about a lot of things that were going on in those negotiations. But never once did Senator MCCONNELL, my leader, say to me: Get out of there.

That is the impression that was left this morning.

I can only say that I think I have established a reputation in the Senate, particularly while I was chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, that I did not listen to either the White House or people in leadership necessarily when I thought a bipartisan compromise was the only way to get things done. I suppose there is a whole long list of things that I ought to write down before I make this statement, but I can only think of two or three right now that I can be sure of that I can say in an intellectually honest way that I stood up to the Bush White House when I was chairman of the committee.

They came out immediately for a $1.7 trillion tax cut in 2001. I made a decision early on that it was not good for the economy and it was not politically possible. So we passed a much smaller, in a bipartisan way, tax bill for that year. And yet it was the biggest tax cut in the history of the country.

In 2003, when the White House and House Republicans in the majority at that time said we had to have a $700 billion tax cut in addition to the tax cut that was passed in 2001, there were not votes in the Senate among just Republicans to get it done. To secure the votes to get it done, we had to limit it to half that amount of money, or just a little bit more than half that amount of money. And in order to get those votes, contrary to the $700 billion tax cut that the Bush White House wanted and the House Republicans wanted that we could not get through here, I said I will not come out of conference with a tax cut more than that amount of roughly $300 billion.

We got that done by just the bare majority to get it done. But I stood up to the White House, I stood up to the House Republican leadership who thought we should not be doing anything that was short of that full $700 billion.

There have been other health care bills very recently where I stood up against the White House and against our Republican leadership.

I think I have developed a reputation where I am going to do what is right for the State of Iowa and for our country. And I am going to try to represent a Republican point of view as best I can, considering first the country and my own constituency.

Then when it comes to whether people in this body or outside of this body might think that for the whole months of May, June, and July, and through August, with a couple meetings we had during the month of August, that we were dragging our feet to kill a health care reform bill, I want to ask people if they would think I wouldn't have better things to do with my time than to have 24 different meetings, one on one with Chairman BAUCUS, or that I wouldn't have more than something else to do than have 31 meetings with the Group of 6. These were not just short meetings. These were meetings that lasted hours. There was another group of people—GRASSLEY, BAUCUS, and others, sometimes that included people from the HELP Committee and the Budget Committee. But we had 25 meetings like that. I wonder if people think we would just be meeting and spending all those hours to make sure that nothing happened around here. No. Every one of the 100 Senators in this body, if you were to ask them, would suggest changes in health care that need to be made. Even in that 2,074-page bill, there are some things that most conservative people in this country would think ought to be done.

We all know to some extent something has to be done about this system. We worked for a long period of time, thinking we could have something bipartisan. But it did not work out that way, and now we are at a point where we have a partisan bill.

That is not the way you should handle an issue such as health care reform. Just think of the word ''health,'' ''health care.'' It deals with the life and death of 306 million Americans. Just think, you are restructuring one-sixth of the economy.

Senator BAUCUS and I started out in January and February saying to everybody we met, every group we talked to, that something this momentous ought to be passing with 75 or 80 votes, not just 60 votes. Maybe one of the times the White House decided to pull the plug on September 15 may have come on August 5 when the Group of 6 had our last meeting with President Obama. He was the only one from the White House there and the six of us. It was a very casual discussion.

I said this before so I am not saying something that has not been said. But President Obama made one request of me and I asked him a question. For my part, I said: You know, it would make it a heck of a lot easier to get a bipartisan agreement if you would just say you could sign a bill without a public option. That is no different than what I said to him on March 5 when I was down at the White House, that the public option was a major impediment to getting a bipartisan agreement. Then he asked me would I be willing to be one of three Republicans, along with the rest of the Democrats, to provide 60 votes. My answer was upfront: No. As I told him, you can clarify with Senator BAUCUS sitting right here beside you, that 4 or 5 months before that, I told Senator BAUCUS: Don't plan on three Republicans providing the margin, that we were here to help get a broad-based consensus, as Senator BAUCUS and I said early on this year, that something this massive ought to pass with a wide bipartisan majority.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNET). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I need to correct the RECORD. In the part of my statement where I refer to the July 8 meeting with Senator REID, it was only SNOWE, GRASSLEY, and ENZI, not the other Senators I named. So I wish to correct that for the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DNA SAMPLING

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following letter, which consists of my May 19, 2008, comments on proposed Federal regulations governing the collection of DNA samples from Federal arrestees and illegal-immigrant deportees, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, May 19, 2008.

Re OAG Docket Number 119

Mr. DAVID J. KARP,
Senior Counsel, Office of Legal Policy, Main Justice Building, Pennsylvania Avenue, NW., Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. KARP: I am writing to comment on the Justice Department's April 18, 2008, proposed regulation for implementing the DNA sample collection authority created by section 1004 of the DNA Fingerprint Act, Public Law 109–162, and by section 155 of the Adam Walsh Act, Public Law 109–248. I am the legislative author of both of these provisions.

Allow me to note at the outset that I have reviewed the proposed regulations and have concluded that they properly implement the authority created by the laws noted above. I do not recommend that you make any changes to the proposed regulations, as I believe that they are consistent with the clear meaning and spirit of their underlying statutory authorization.

The remainder of this letter first comments on the general privacy objections that have been raised by other commenters with regard to the proposed regulations, and then addresses several other criticisms and recommendations that are made in some of those comments.

PRIVACY CONCERNS

The most common criticism leveled against the proposed regulations by other commenters is that the proposed rules pose a threat to individual privacy. The general argument made is that although fingerprints are routinely taken at arrest, DNA fingerprinting is not like ordinary fingerprinting because DNA has the potential to reveal medically sensitive or other private information. This concern usually also is the basis for arguments that the proposed regulations are unconstitutional.

I think that the privacy concern is best addressed by explaining the legal framework governing the operation of the National DNA Index System (NDIS) and the practical realities of DNA analysis.

A number of statutes prescribe privacy restrictions for use of DNA samples. See 42 U.S.C. 14132(b)(3), (c), 14133(b)–(c), 14135(b)(2), 14135e. In general, DNA information is treated like other law-enforcement case file information—its dissemination is prohibited and subject to serious professional and even criminal sanctions. In particular, section 14133(c) of title 42 provides that any person who has access to individually identifiable DNA information in NDIS and knowingly discloses such information in an unauthorized manner may be fined up to $100,000, and any person who accesses DNA information without authorization may be fined up to $250,000 and imprisoned up to one year.

Lab employees are professionals. The notion that they will violate the laws and regulations governing DNA analysis not only requires one to assume that these employees will jeopardize their careers, but also that they will risk criminal fines and even imprisonment. Such fears are not realistic. Indeed, when arguments were made that such violations might occur during the Senate Judiciary Committee's consideration of the Justice for All Act in 2004, I proposed an amendment, which was subsequently enacted into law, to increase the penalties in section 14133(c) for misuse of DNA samples. When I consulted with the Justice Department about my proposal, I was told that the FBI had no objection to the amendment because there was no chance that any lab employee would ever run afoul of the provision.

Let us assume, however, that a rogue lab employee were not deterred by professional and criminal sanctions and were determined to use a DNA sample to discover private information. That lab employee would find that it is virtually impossible for him to use the NDIS system to do so.

Developing a DNA profile from a saliva or blood sample involves three broad steps: (1) the DNA is extracted from the sample; (2) the DNA is copied or amplified at one of the sites on the DNA strand from which the profile will be drawn; and (3) the amplified DNA is processed in a genetic analyzer to produce a DNA profile.

Each law enforcement DNA laboratory has a defined number of staff who have access to DNA samples, the identity of the person who submitted the sample, and DNA analysis equipment. This is currently the universe of people who could hypothetically use collected samples to try to violate someone's privacy. If one of these employees sought to analyze an individual's DNA to find medically sensitive or other private information, he would run into a series of virtually insurmountable practical problems.

First, the 13 sites at which a DNA strand is analyzed for purposes of entry of a profile into the national database are sites that do not reveal any medically sensitive information. The 13 sites were chosen because the sites do not reveal sensitive information, the sites are relatively stable and do not degrade easily, and the sites tend to demonstrate great variation between different individuals (with the exception of identical twins). Even the American Civil Liberties Union's (ACLU) May 19, 2008, comment on the proposed regulations, while speculating that the 13 sites may be found to reveal sensitive information in the future, concedes ''none of the CODIS loci have been found to date to be predictive for any physical or disease traits.''

So our hypothetical rogue lab employee would need to draw a profile of different sites on the DNA strand in order to discover medically sensitive information. This would be extremely difficult to do. The second step of the analysis—amplifying the relevant DNA sites for analysis—requires the use of specialized reagents and equipment to copy the DNA fragments in question.

Once the DNA is amplified, the DNA is pushed through a column that separates out the DNA fragments. The columns used in the lab serve to duplicate DNA for the specific 13 CODIS sites. So our rogue employee would need to purchase a specialized column for duplicating a different type of DNA. Next the employee would need to obtain different reagents for reproducing the DNA that he seeks. Reagents consist of polymerase, certain chemicals, and DNA primers. A primer is a piece of DNA that recognizes its complimentary DNA on a molecule and attaches itself, allowing that part to be reproduced when the remaining reagents are added. Access to primers is extremely limited—our rogue employee couldn't just buy them on the internet or from a medical supply store. Primers usually are only available from the DNA researcher who discovered the DNA gene or site in question. These researchers generally have a proprietary interest in their discovery; they do not publish all of the information necessary to analyze that gene and do not give the necessary primers to others. A lab employee is very unlikely to be able to obtain the necessary information and primers to amplify the DNA that he seeks.

Moreover, even if our hypothetical lab employee were able to copy the DNA in question, he would next need to retrofit the DNA analyzer to draw a profile from that DNA. This would require breaking down, reassembling, and recalibrating the lab equipment, and reprogramming the equipment and software to analyze different DNA sites. This is an extremely complex process and requires specialized software that, again, is generally only available from the researchers who identified the gene in question. The lab employees are not trained to analyze any DNA other than at the 13 sites used in CODIS; to analyze DNA used for medical purposes is a completely different specialization that requires the use of equipment that lab employees have no experience using.

Finally, our hypothetical rogue employee would need to figure out how to do this analysis by himself and would need to account for his use of the equipment. DNA analysis of database samples is an assembly-line process that involves different persons carrying out different steps of the analysis. An employee acting alone would need to come in at night and perform all of the steps by himself. Although usually no employees are in the lab at night, the equipment runs through the night. To use the equipment for a different purpose, the rogue employee would need to shut it down, which itself would lead to an inquiry into why the equipment did not perform a programmed analysis at night. Moreover, the robotics and most of the instruments used in DNA analysis have programmed activity logs that record what process was run on the equipment, and employees must log in it to operate the equipment. Any inquiry into why the equipment was not running at night would immediately reveal that a different process was run on the equipment and would reveal who ran that process.

Although it is not completely impossible, it is extremely unlikely that a lab employee would be able to perform all of these steps on his own, and it is virtually impossible that he would be able to do so without getting caught. Suffice to say that although the NDIS database has existed for 10 years and nearly 6 million offender profiles have been added to that database, and although the lab has been conducting analysis of DNA from criminal suspects and victims for 20 years, there has never been one noted case in which a lab employee has ever made an unauthorized disclosure of DNA information. The risk that lab employees will undertake such acts is not substantial enough to merit consideration in a reasoned analysis of the privacy risks posed by the operation of NDIS.

Finally, it bears weighing the virtually nonexistent risk to privacy posed by NDIS against other potential risks to DNA privacy. Many of the arguments about the privacy threats created by law-enforcement DNA sampling and analysis appear to assume that DNA samples and the information within them could not be accessed in any other way. A quick internet search of the words ''DNA testing,'' however, reveals that there are many private laboratories that offer to the public at large a wide variety of DNA tests for sensitive information. Nor are DNA samples particularly difficult to obtain. Every time an individual spits on the sidewalk, or even drinks from a paper cup and discards it, he leaves a DNA sample behind. Particularly in light of the criminal penalties attached to misuse of the NDIS system, a person determined to analyze another person's DNA for an improper purposes would find much easier sources of DNA than the samples collected by law enforcement, and would have much readier access to DNA analysis than that made possible by law-enforcement laboratories. The incremental threat to DNA privacy posed by the NDIS system is extremely small.

RESPONSE TO OTHER COMMENTERS

A number of other commenters have offered various criticisms of the proposed regulations beyond generalized privacy arguments. Many of these comments are very similar and appear to have been generated by news stories and notices placed by various organizations and publications. Other criticisms and recommendations are unique to particular commenters. The remainder of this letter responds to those criticisms, first addressing the mass comments and then the arguments of particular organizations and individuals.

Constitutionality

The argument that arrestee and illegal-immigrant DNA sampling violates the Fourth Amendment mostly rests on the privacy arguments that are addressed above. It is beyond argument that the Constitution permits arrestees and immigration detainees to be fingerprinted and searched. If the privacy risks posed by law-enforcement DNA sampling are properly understood, there is no constitutionally significant difference between ordinary fingerprinting and DNA fingerprinting. Both are used for the legitimate purpose of biometric identification and neither poses a significant risk to individual privacy.

The physical intrusion necessary to collect a DNA sample is minor and is commensurate with the other types of privacy intrusions endured by arrestees, who are generally subject to search following arrest. Some commenters cite the 1966 Schmerber decision as a benchmark, and note that the court upheld the drawing of a blood sample in that case because the blood was drawn by a medical professional rather than by a police officer. These commenters neglect to mention, however, that the disposable and sterile pinprick kits used to draw blood samples for purposes of DNA analysis are much different from and much less medically invasive than the needle-drawn blood samples of 1966. And cheek swabs present even less of an intrusion. Modern DNA sample-collection techniques present less of a privacy intrusion than do the physical searches that regularly accompany arrest.

Presumption of Innocence

Many commenters argue that DNA profiling of arrestees violates the presumption of innocence that attaches to an arrestee before he is convicted of a crime. Arrestees are presumed innocent, but DNA sampling and analysis does not constitute a finding or judgment of guilt. If biometric identification did constitute such a judgment, then the photographs and fingerprints taken at and kept after arrest also would violate the presumption of innocence. They do not, and neither does DNA sampling.

Disparate Impact

A number of commenters condemn the proposed regulations on the basis that a disproportionate number of members of racial minorities may be subjected to DNA sampling. A disparate effect, however, is not the same thing as discrimination and is not unconstitutional or otherwise proscribed. Nor could it be. Most laws have some type of disparate effect; it is a rare (if nonexistent) law that affects each racial or ethnic group in the United States in proportion to its percentage of the U.S. population. The proposed regulations are tied an individual's arrest or his detention on account of his illegal presence in this country; they do not discriminate between individuals on account of their race.

Analysis Backlog

Several commenters complain that adding DNA samples of arrestees and detained illegal immigrants to NDIS will increase the number of DNA samples that the FBI lab or private labs used by the FBI must analyze, and that a backlog of samples may result. The FBI lab and other law enforcement authorities, however, have ample discretion to decide which samples should be analyzed first. These commenters suggest that a backlog of samples may hinder investigations, but a murder or rape for which no suspect has been identified would be hindered more by never collecting a DNA sample from the perpetrator than by collecting that sample and analyzing it after a delay. To the extent that these commenters are concerned about the cost of analyzing DNA samples, they should bear in mind the massive costs of the labor-intensive police manhunts for serial murderers and rapists that would be avoided if the perpetrator could be identified through DNA sample collection, and the enormous costs of crime to its victims and to society as a whole.

Outsourcing

Many commenters suggest that the proposed regulations pose a privacy risk by allowing private contractors to aid in DNA sample processing. These private laboratories are subject to a comprehensive system of regulation, however. They also have a powerful incentive to handle samples properly: a lab that fails to do so will lose its contract and will go out of business.

ACLU Letter

In addition to raising arguments addressed above, the ACLU's May 19 comment argues that biological samples should be destroyed after analysis. This recommendation is outside the scope of the proposed regulations, and in any event should be rejected. Biological samples need to be retained in case the technology used for analysis is changed and all existing samples must be reanalyzed, something that has happened once already. Moreover, such samples are used for quality control, and for rechecking a purported match to crime scene evidence without taking a new sample from the suspect identified by the match.

The ACLU argues that collection of DNA from immigration detainees will deepen resentment and hostility among ethnic communities living in or visiting the United States. Few things exacerbate tensions between Americans and foreign visitors to this country more severely, however, than the serious crimes committed in the United States by illegal immigrants. Angel Resendiz, the so-called Railway Killer, was in this country illegal and is believed to have murdered 15 people here (and an untold number in Mexico). Santana Aceves, the so-called Chandler rapist and also an illegal immigrant, sexually assaulted half a dozen young girls in their homes in the Chandler suburb of Phoenix in 2007 and 2008. Both cases ''deepened resentment and hostility'' toward illegal immigrants in this country. And both Resendiz and Aceves would have been identified and their crime sprees likely stopped early had their DNA been taken during one of their earlier deportations. Relations between different groups in this country surely would be bettered rather than worsened has these two men's names not been permitted to become household words in the communities that they targeted.

The ACLU recommends that the proposed regulations ''prohibit comparison of an individual's DNA profile with anything other than the DNA profiles generated from the crime scene evidence for which she [sic] is suspected unless or until that person is convicted.'' This is a proposal to bar the use of arrestee and detainee DNA to make cold-case matches to crime-scene evidence. It is effectively a recommendation to gut the proposed regulations and to abdicate the Justice Department's responsibility to use the authority created by the DNA Fingerprint Act and the Adam Walsh Act. My floor statement commenting on final Senate action on the DNA Fingerprint Act describes the dozens of rapes and murders that could have been prevented in just one American city had arrestee sampling been in place; I offer it as rebuttal to the ACLU's argument that the proposed regulations should not permit arrestee DNA to be used to solve cold-case crimes.

The ACLU suggests that the Justice Department reassess the costs and benefits of broad sampling and consider narrower alternatives. ''Narrower alternatives'' would mean fewer rapes and murders prevented, a cost which alone justifies the proposed regulations.

The ACLU argues that the proposed regulations, by allowing some exceptions to their sampling rules, fail to give individuals adequate notice whether they will be subject to sampling. The proposed rule clearly requires that all federal arrestees and illegal immigrants being deported be sampled. Allowing a few exceptions to this rule for practical and other reasons does not significantly detract from the notice given by the proposed regulations.

The ACLU complains that the proposed rule does not address how to avoid duplicative sampling of the same individual. This is an administrative matter that does not merit attention in the text of the proposed regulation.

The ACLU questions the Justice Department's estimate of the cost of analyzing and storing DNA samples. The Justice Department's estimate is comparable to other estimates of the costs of DNA storage and analysis.

The ACLU concludes that Congress ''doubtless intended that the regulations would address [legal, privacy, and policy] concerns and would limit the DNA sampling to instances where . . . the benefits outweigh the costs.'' I believe that the proposed rule adequately considers these concerns and appropriately exercises the authority given to the Justice Department by Congress.

McLain and Mercer Letter

William McClain and Stephen Mercer, both law professors at the University of the District of Columbia, contend in a May 19, 2008 comment that the proposed regulations should be modified to allow an individual to retain counsel and file a lawsuit before a sample is collected. I urge the Justice Department to reject this recommendation. Any individual wishing to contest the legality of arrestee sampling may challenge such sampling after the fact; the interests at stake are not substantial enough to justify a pre-litigation injunction in the regulations themselves. Such a delay in sampling would also undermine the administration of the proposed system, as it is far easier to collect a sample at booking, when fingerprints and pictures are also taken.

The professors also suggest that the ''reasonable means'' authorized to collect samples be defined more specifically and be defined in the same way for all agencies collecting samples. The different agencies collecting samples have different means at their disposal and deal with different populations of offenders and detainees; it is appropriate that reasonableness should be defined in the context of each agency and by that agency.

The professors also recommend that all DNA processing agreements with private entities specify that all constitutional, statutory, and regulatory federal law requirements that would apply to government processing also apply to private processing. Such a requirement is superfluous, and in any event is unnecessary in light of the comprehensive regulation of private entities processing DNA on behalf of the Federal government.

Center for Constitutional Rights Letter

Aside from arguments addressed above, CCR argues in a May 19, 2008 comment that the proposed regulations would give Homeland Security staff discretion to ''take DNA samples of everyone pulled out of line for questioning at an airport immigration station.'' This is an unreasonable reading of the regulations, which exclude from sampling ''aliens held at a port of entry during consideration of admissibility and not subject to further detention or proceedings.'' The regulation's ''further detention or proceedings'' clearly contemplates more than just minor additional questioning at a port of entry.

Alliance for Democracy and United for Peace and Justice et al.

These two groups submitted comments on May 19, 2008 suggesting that the proposed regulations would inhibit speech because DNA samples would be taken from persons arrested for civil disobedience. A person wishing to criticize the government or communicate other messages has many ways of doing so without committing a crime, and if he chooses to commit a crime, he should be prepared to face the consequences of doing so, including booking, fingerprinting, DNA sample collection, and a fine or imprisonment.

National Lawyers Guild—Columbia Law School

NLG suggests in an April 21, 2008 comment that the proposed regulations be amended to expressly bar DNA sample collection from LPRs until they are ordered removed and their appeals are exhausted. LPRs very rarely find themselves in immigration detention, and when they do so, it is overwhelmingly because they have committed a crime—and therefore would be subject to sampling on that basis. The remaining class of LPRs not subject to sampling is de minimis; their situation does not rise to the level of a matter that needs to be addressed on the face of the proposed regulations.

NLG also suggests that, because of the risk that a citizen may be mistakenly detained in immigration proceedings, no illegal immigrant should be sampled unless his nationality is conceded or proved, or in the alternative that no sampling ought to take place until a final order of removal has been entered. This proposal would substantially defeat administration of illegal-immigrant sampling by precluding sampling as part of the booking process. Moreover, cases in which citizens are mistakenly detained for deportation are extremely rare and are almost always corrected very quickly. The few cases that might occur should be dealt with on a case-by-case basis and do not merit attention in the text of the proposed rule.

NLG also suggests that subsection (b)(1) of the proposed rule suggests that ''the Secretary of Homeland Security could authorize that which is not authorized by Congress''— apparently LPR sampling, though NLG is unclear on this point. NLG's concern is misplaced. The bar on LPR sampling is implicit in the proposed regulation, which earlier in the same subsection clearly excludes LPRs.

Administrative Office of the United States Courts

The AOC suggests in a May 16, 2008 comment that the word ''agency'' as used in the proposed rule be defined to exempt judicial agencies from the obligation to collect DNA samples from persons facing charges. A person facing Federal charges may have been arrested by state authorities or turned himself in, and therefore may not have had a DNA sample collected by an executive agency during a Federal arrest. I do not recommend that judicial agencies be exempted from the proposed rule, as they may be the only—or at least the first—Federal agency that is in a position to collect a DNA sample from an offender. I see no reason to exempt judicial pre-trial services agencies from the obligation of all parts of the Federal government to carry out those ministerial tasks necessary to the prevention of violent crime.

AOC also notes that the proposed regulation does not identify a system for determining whether an offender's sample is already in NDIS. This is an administrative matter that need not be addressed in the text of the proposed regulation.

Canadian Embassy and MP

The Canadian Embassy and a Canadian Member of Parliament submitted comments on May 19, 2008 posing several questions about the scope of the proposed rules, most of which appear to be based on a misunderstanding that the rule would require sampling of routine Canadian visitors to the United States. The rule exempts persons processed for lawful entry to the United States or held at a port of entry for consideration for admission to the United States, exceptions that address the concerns raised in these comments.

Sincerely,

JON KYL,
U.S. Senator.

FUNDING FOR PEACEKEEPER TRAINING

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I want to speak today in favor of the administration's funding request for the Global Peace Operations Initiative and one of its important components, the Africa Contingency Operations Training and Assistance Program, for which the bill before the Senate, the fiscal year 2010 State-Foreign Operations appropriations bill, includes $96.8 million in funding. These programs, which I have supported in their various forms for more than a decade, are vital tools in helping the United States and nations around the world, but especially in Africa, to contain crises, violence and instability that threaten not only other nations, but also our own.

The Global Peace Operations Initiative, or GPOI, began in fiscal year 2005 as an effort to address worrisome gaps in the world community's ability to support, equip, and sustain a growing number of peacekeeping operations. This initiative comprised, in part, the fulfillment of a U.S. pledge at the June 2004 G–8 summit meeting at Sea Island, Georgia, to train 75,000 new peacekeepers. The GPOI built on and incorporated the Africa Contingency Operations Training and Assistance Program, or ACOTA, which has trained African peacekeepers since 1997. The objective of these programs is to train and equip military units to deploy to peacekeeping operations, many of them in Africa. In addition, GPOI supports efforts to train special ''gendarme'' police units to participate in peacekeeping operations.

Why are these programs so important? I think we all recognize that the world has become a more challenging and less stable place, but we may not recognize just how pronounced regional security problems have become. We do not need to look further than the two largest United Nations peacekeeping operations, in Darfur, Sudan, and in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Both of these missions were authorized in response to complex regional conflicts. The United Nations, which oversees the majority of peacekeeping operations worldwide, reports that more than 100,000 peacekeepers and police personnel are deployed on peacekeeping operations—a sevenfold increase since 1999. Those troops are deployed in 17 separate operations, nearly half of which are on the African continent.

Through ACOTA and GPOI, the United States has helped to meet the growing demand for peacekeeping personnel. Since its start in 2005 through the end of fiscal year 2009, GPOI has provided training for nearly 87,000 personnel representing more than 50 nations. Appropriately, given the security challenges in Africa, ACOTA is GPOI's biggest initiative. Since 2005, more than 77,000 personnel from about two dozen African nations have received training through the initiative, and almost 14,000 more have received training under ACOTA through other funding sources. To make these numbers more significant, on average, 90 percent of units trained under ACOTA have deployed between 2005 and 2009.

GPOI provides partner nations with the training and equipment they need to perform peacekeeping missions through the UN or regional groups such as the African Union. This training is broad, and appropriately focuses on peacekeeping-specific tasks such as how to operate checkpoints and convoys, maintaining peace by safely disarming potential combatants, protecting refugees and internally displaced persons, developing and following appropriate rules of engagement, and, in some cases, peacemaking operations.

According to a report by the Department of State Inspector General, GPOI training through ACOTA ''is a win-win situation in which minimal numbers of U.S. military troops are involved, African professionalism and capacity are built up, and the participating African troops are rewarded well when deployed.'' Significantly, the IG report states ''that there have been minimal disciplinary problems and no ACOTA trained troops have been cited for atrocities or notable human rights abuses,'' an important sign that the emphasis on adherence to human rights standards and following the UN's rules of engagement has paid off.

The bill before the Senate, the State-Foreign Operations appropriations bill, includes funding for the administration's request of $96.8 million in funding for GPOI in fiscal year 2010. All of this funding is contained in the peacekeeping operations, or PKO, account of the bill. Based on past practice and the demand for peacekeeping in Africa, the Department of State will likely allocate more than half of this funding to ACOTA. Nearly $100 million is a substantial commitment of taxpayer dollars. But the price of failing to fund these important efforts would be far higher.

Our military leaders are particularly supportive of such efforts, with good reason. Admiral Mike Mullen, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, believes the U.S. commitment to aid the peacekeeping efforts of other nations is ''extremely important and cost effective in comparison to unilateral operations these peacekeepers help promote stability and help reduce the risks that major U.S. military interventions may be required to restore stability in a country or region. Therefore, the success of these operations is very much in our national interest.''

I agree with Admiral Mullen. Programs such as GPOI are important not only because they help alleviate suffering around the globe—which they surely do—but also because they are a cost-effective way of managing U.S. security interests.

I am especially pleased that the administration intends to concentrate going forward on strengthening the capability of partner nations to train their own peacekeeping forces. This ''train the trainers'' approach multiplies the impact of U.S. efforts by giving partner nations the ability to sustain their own peacekeeping efforts. Using this model, the State Department plans to assist in the training and equipping of more than 240,000 peacekeepers over the next 5 years. The other focus will be on growing the planning and operational capability of the regional security organizations on the African continent.

There are other steps we should take to make these vital programs more effective, particularly in Africa. Outside that continent, the U.S. military's Geographic Combatant Commands are responsible for much of the day-to-day management of GPOI programs, including contract management. In Africa, however, those tasks have been performed by contractors working for the State Department's Bureau of African Affairs. With the stand-up of U.S. Africa Command, AFRICOM, in 2008, there is now a Combatant Command in place that could take over the same types of management duties performed elsewhere by its sister commands. I believe the Departments of State and Defense should explore whether such arrangements are advisable. Given the State Department's deep reliance on contractor personnel to manage the ACOTA program and AFRICOM's unique interagency command structure, I believe AFRICOM ought to be given a more significant role in the day-to-day execution of this critical program. Meanwhile, both departments should make efforts to ensure close cooperation between the State Department and AFRICOM personnel so that the taxpayers and partner nations see the maximum bang for the buck because they are a cost-effective way of managing U.S. security interests and supporting U.N. peacekeeping while reserving U.S. troops for other operations.

Having successfully completed the first 5-year phase, GPOI is entering a new phase. I urge my colleagues to support fully the administration's funding request for GPOI. With this money, we can help contain violence and chaos in many of the world's most troubled places. We can reduce the chance for such instability to create direct and immediate threats to our own security. We can enhance the ability of partner nations to maintain the peace in their own sectors of the globe. And we can accomplish all these things with a relatively modest amount of money—an investment with a substantial return, in both human and financial terms.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 11:35 a.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Niland, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 86. An act to eliminate an unused lighthouse reservation, provide management consistency by incorporating the rocks and small islands along the coast of Orange County, California, into the California Coastal National Monument managed by the Bureau of Land Management, and meet the original Congressional intent of preserving Orange County's rocks and small islands, and for other purposes.

H.R. 3603. An act to rename the Ocmulgee National Monument.

H.R. 3951. An act to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 2000 Louisiana Avenue in New Orleans, Louisiana, as the ''Roy Rondeno, Sr. Post Office Building''.

H.R. 4213. An act to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend certain expiring provisions, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that pursuant to section 125(c)(1) of Public Law 110–343, the minority leader appointed from private life Mr. J. Mark McWatters of Texas as a member of the Congressional Oversight Panel on the part of the House.

At 2:32 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Niland, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3288) making appropriations for the Departments of Transportation, and Housing and Urban Development, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, and for other purposes.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bills were read the first and the second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

H.R. 86. An act to eliminate an unused lighthouse reservation, provide management consistency by incorporating the rocks and small islands along the coast of Orange County, California, into the California Coastal National Monument managed by the Bureau of Land Management, and meet the original Congressional intent of preserving Orange County's rocks and small islands, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

H.R. 3603. An act to rename the Ocmulgee National Monument; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

H.R. 3951. An act to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 2000 Louisiana Avenue in New Orleans, Louisiana, as the ''Roy Rondeno, Sr. Post Office Building''; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

H.R. 4213. An act to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend certain expiring provisions, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. PRYOR:

S. 2863. A bill to provide that an outbreak of infectious disease or act of terrorism may be a major disaster under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5122 et seq.), and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce two pieces of legislation to address gaps in our preparedness and ability to respond to widespread infectious disease outbreaks and biological attacks.

The H1N1 outbreak demonstrated to us how investments in pandemic preparedness activities, such as the creation of pandemic influenza strategies, can lessen the effects of a pandemic and improve our response. However, we have learned from the H1N1 pandemic that we still have gaps in our ability to prepare for and respond to these types of events and that state and local entities are uncertain in their abilities to respond to a more severe event.

Apart from shortcomings in government coordination and planning, there is also a glaring deficiency in an important statute that underpins our nation's response to disasters. When a natural disaster such as flooding in Arkansas occurs, local and State government resources can be quickly overextended. When that occurs a governor can request and the President can issue a major disaster declaration, which triggers the maximum amount of resources from the Federal disaster response system.

Sometimes the system works well and other times not as well, but we know for certain that without a disaster declaration and effective Federal intervention a natural disaster can have devastating effects on life, property, and our economy.

Unfortunately, due to a lack of clarification of the definition of a major disaster in the Stafford Act, there is no precedent for the President to issue a major disaster declaration when local medical resources are overwhelmed by the exponential spread of life-threatening diseases, or alternatively, a deliberate biological attack by terrorists. The bills that I am introducing today will help to address preparedness shortcomings as well as the deficiency in law.

My first bill, S. 2863, entitled The Emergency Response Act, addresses this shortcoming in law. It will ensure the Federal Government can provide the maximum amount of support to State and local governments by allowing pandemics, acts of terrorism or other man-made disasters to be considered a major disaster under the Stafford Act. This clarification in law will permit the President to issue a major disaster declaration and allow Federal agencies to coordinate their efforts, give technical assistance, give advisory assistance, and work with local authorities and people in the private sector for events such as pandemics, biological attacks or chemical releases.

The second bill, S. 2864, entitled The Defense Against Infectious Disease Act, requires the Federal government to periodically update the National Strategy for Pandemic Influenza and the National Pandemic Implementation plan with the assistance of State, Local and Tribal stakeholders in order to ensure our preparedness plans are up to date and incorporate the latest technologies, medical developments and logistical challenges.

This bill addresses concerns raised by the U.S. Government Accountability Office about both the completeness of these emergency plans and the need for them to be updated. Most Americans may not even know that these emergency plans exist, but they do understand that strong planning is the foundation for effective action. An out-of-date plan is not a plan, and after watching the spread of H1N1 and the missteps in our government's response, Americans can easily imagine what it would be like in the event of an even more serious disease outbreak, and the importance of planning for such an emergency.

This bill will also help address the situation I described previously in which a severe infectious disease outbreak can overwhelm our local medical facilities, many of which have limited resources to handle even their every day needs. To address situations which will over extend local resources, my bill also requires the Federal Government to identify alternative medical care facilities and other resources such as medical equipment, daily supplies and personnel to ensure we know what assets we have to help State and local communities.

The idea here is preparation. We should make the best of the H1N1 outbreak and learn from this experience. That is why I introduced the Emergency Response Act and the Defense Against Infectious Diseases Act. I ask that my colleagues support these bills to ensure that we are prepared for the next pandemic.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a bill summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EMERGENCY RESPONSE ACT OF 2009 SUMMARY

The Emergency Response Act of 2009 is intended to improve response to infectious disease outbreaks, acts of terrorism and other disasters.

Section 2 of the legislation amends the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistant Act to provide that a pandemic, act of terrorism or other manmade disaster be considered a trigger to issue a ''major disaster'' declaration under the Act. Section 3 creates a working group under the auspices of the Secretary of Homeland Security to prepare recommendations for facilitating the dissemination of public health information to State fusion centers and the greater homeland security community.

DEFENSE AGAINST INFECTIOUS DISEASES ACT OF 2009 SUMMARY

The Defense Against Infectious Disease Act of 2009 is intended to address gaps in preparedness in the event of a significant outbreak of an infectious disease.

Section 3 of the legislation directs that a consortium of state, local, and tribal representatives be convened to assess the adequacy of existing guidance and support in the National Strategy for Pandemic Influenza and National Strategy for Pandemic Influenza Implementation plans. Section 4 directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services in coordination with the Secretary of Homeland Security to identify alternative medical care facilities and resources available to locate and distribute both medical and non-medical supplies to support communities over extended by an infectious disease outbreak. Section 5 directs GAO to prepare a report describing the roles and responsibilities, capabilities and coordination of federal government assets in place across various departments for responding to infectious disease outbreaks and biological attacks.

By Ms. LANDRIEU (for herself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 2869. A bill to increase loan limits for small business concerns, to provide for low interest refinancing for small business concerns, and for other purposes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, our Nation's small businesses have created 64 percent of all new jobs in the last 15 years, yet in the last year nearly 85 percent of the jobs lost have come from small businesses. To reverse this job loss trend and allow small businesses to be the engine of economic growth once again, we must make sure they have the access to capital they need to be successful and help grow our economy.

That is exactly why I, along with the ranking member of the Small Business Committee, OLYMPIA SNOWE of Maine, am introducing the Small Business Job Creation and Access to Capital Act of 2009. This bipartisan legislation is a result of five hearings and roundtables in the Small Business Committee this year as well as numerous meetings with small business owners. It builds off of S. 1832, the Small Business Access to Capital Act of 2009, and S. 1615, the Next Step for Main Street Credit Availability Act of 2009, legislation Senator SNOWE and I have previously introduced.

This legislation enhances the ability of the SBA to support larger loans and provide more options to small businesses. As many other sources of capital have evaporated, loans guaranteed by the SBA, with support of funding through the Recovery Act, have been able to support $16.5 billion in loans to small businesses. Specifically, this act would: increase the loan limit on 7(a) loans from $2 million to $5 million; increase the loan limit on 504 loans from $1.5 million to $5.5 million; increase the loan limit on microloans from $35,000 to $50,000, as well as increase the loan limit to microloan intermediaries from $3.5 million to $5 million; allow the 504 loan program to refinance short-term commercial real estate debt into long-term, fixed rate loans; extend the authorization to provide 90 percent guarantees on 7(a) loans and fee elimination for borrowers on 7(a) and 504 loans through December 31, 2010; and direct the SBA to create a website where small businesses can identify lenders in their communities.

These provisions will have an immediate impact on increasing the availability of credit for small businesses and spurring job growth, with many of these provisions coming at little or no cost to the government. For example, the SBA estimates that the loan limit increases will be budget neutral, but will increase SBA lending by $5 billion next year alone. The refinancing provisions could help save 60,000 jobs next year by allowing small businesses to refinance short-term commercial real estate debt into long-term fixed rate mortgages. To ensure that this program is budget neutral we have included a provision that would require any additional cost created by the program to be funded by the fees of the participants. Additionally, we have placed a number of safeguards on this program, such as requiring that the refinanced loan be current for at least one year, that the business owner invest a minimum of 20 percent equity and that the availability of funds be capped at $65,000 for every job retained.

The extension of the 90 percent guarantees on 7(a) loan and the fee elimination for borrowers on traditional 504 and 7(a) loans extends critical provisions in the Recovery Act. This legislation does not include the appropriations for this funding, but does provide an extension of its authorization should appropriations be made available. It is estimated that if an additional $479 million were to be appropriated for these programs, the SBA would be able to support $18.5 billion in lending to small businesses. Alternately, we are starting to see the impact of this funding not being available. In the first full week of lending since the SBA had to create a waiting list for the final Recovery Act funding, 7(a) loan volume fell from $985 million in the last week of the full funding being available, to $71 million. This $71 million in loan volume is lower than the average weekly volume we were experiencing before the Recovery Act was approved. We also know that as of today there are more than 700 small businesses in the SBA waiting list approved for $350 million in loans if we made more funding available.

It is clear that now is the time to act. Our Nation's small businesses need access to capital and this bill helps facilitate this crucial need.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, we all know the statistics are bleak. Unemployment is at 10 percent, more than 7 million Americans have lost their jobs since the start of this current recession, and the National Federation of Independent Businesses' Optimism Index, a compilation of 10 survey indicators, is at 88.3, a number the NFIB calls ''stuck at recession levels.'' These statistics, and the stories they represent present Congress with myriad challenges including: What will we do to lower unemployment, create jobs, and help our small businesses to grow again?

The legislation Chair LANDRIEU and I are introducing today, the Small Business Job Creation and Access to Capital Act of 2009, aims to meet this challenge and takes the best ideas from Republicans and Democrats, to help put American small businesses back to work. I would especially like to thank the Chair for working with me in such an open manner in developing this bill. Creating jobs and helping small businesses should not be a partisan issue and the Chair has been extremely open to my suggestions, incorporating many of the provisions I originally introduced in the Small Business Lending Improvement Act, the 10 Steps for a Main Street Economic Recovery Act, and the Next Step for a Main Street Economic Recovery Act into this legislation.

In the past year, one cornerstone of small business recovery has been Small Business Administration, SBA, backed lending. Last year, to help address the chronic shortage of capital for small business borrowers, I introduced the 10 Steps for a Main Street Economic Recovery Act. Many of the provisions in this legislation were included in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act and some have been credited with helping to increase SBA loan volume 79 percent.

One provision which has been extremely popular has been fee reductions for 7(a) and 504 loans. In fact, at a round table on reauthorizing the SBA's access to capital programs the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship heard from Mr. Michael Heath, the owner of Ramunto's Brick Oven Pizza in St. Johnsbury, Vermont. Mr. Heath told the Committee that the funds he saved in SBA fee reductions helped him buy his pizzeria. The bill we are introducing today would extend the fee reductions I originally proposed in 10 Steps to December 31st, 2010. This critical step ensures that we can continue to help entrepreneurs like Mike open businesses on Main Streets across America.

Another vital provision contained in this legislation expands the number of businesses eligible for SBA-backed loans and expands the size of those loans. I originally proposed this idea in the Small Business Lending Improvement Act which calls for an alternative size standard that would help more small businesses meet the SBA's requirements to access SBA-backed loans, and also included it in the Next Step for Main Street Credit Availability Act, which includes provisions allowing borrowers to take out larger 7(a) loans, microloans, and 504 loans. President Obama has also recognized the need for larger loan sizes and has advocated for this position as a way to create jobs and help small businesses.

Underscoring the inadequate size of SBA loans, I heard testimony earlier this year at a field hearing Senator SHAHEEN and I held in Portland, Maine from Mr. Richard Pfeffer, a local business owner, on how small SBA loan sizes have directly impacted his business. Mr. Pfeffer testified that his two businesses, Aroostook Starch and Gritty McDuff's, a restaurant and pub regarded by many as a Portland landmark, were close to bankruptcy not because of the economic downturn, but rather because of his inability to access larger SBA loans. Mr. Pfeffer is still in business today, and Gritty's is now serving its famous Christmas Ale, but his inability to access capital still looms and it is costing him the opportunity to expand his business and hire more workers. The increased loan limits in this bill would help Mr. Pfeffer and others like him to put the American economy back on track.

This bill also includes another provision I proposed in March and introduced in my Next Steps legislation that would allow SBA borrowers to shop and compare SBA loan rates online, offering borrowers the opportunity to make an informed choice and save time and money.

Finally, the Small Business Job Creation and Access to Capital Act of 2009 would allow borrowers of 504 loans to refinance their debt. This provision will give borrowers critical working capital that they can use to grow and expand their businesses.

These targeted reforms will help put Americans back to work, ease the capital crunch for small businesses, and help bring SBA lending into the future. I urge my colleagues to support this critical legislation to improve America's economy and increase small business lending.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 3115. Mr. CASEY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 1609, after line 23, insert the following:

SEC. 6108. COMMUNITY INTEGRATED NURSING CARE HOMES DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Community Integrated Nursing Care Homes Demonstration Program Act'' or the ''CINCH Demonstration Program''.

(b) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish the CINCH demonstration program to test the viability of multiple small house nursing homes that are embedded within residential neighborhoods and collectively certified to provide services through a single eligible operating entity in order to reduce administrative costs and provide related cost savings to the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(2) DURATION AND SCOPE.—

(A) DURATION.—The Secretary shall conduct the CINCH demonstration program for a period of 5 years.

(B) SCOPE.—The Secretary shall select not more than 6 sites (as described in paragraph (3)) to participate in the CINCH demonstration program, with each site to be operated by a different eligible operating entity (as described under subsection (c)(2)) and not less than 2 sites to be located in rural areas.

(3) SITES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A site shall consist of not less than 2 locations, with each location containing not more than 2 small house nursing homes, that are operated by an eligible operating entity under such entity's nursing home license and provider certification.

(B) LOCATIONS.—

(i) DISTANCES.—Distances between locations within a site may vary based upon market demand and availability, with maximum distances between locations to be established by the eligible operating entity based upon the ability of such entity to—

(I) deliver required services and supervision in a timely and appropriate manner; and

(II) subject to paragraph (5), meet all applicable statutory and regulatory requirements for operation of a nursing home.

(ii) ADJOINING PARCELS.—A location shall—

(I) consist of a single parcel of land or multiple adjoining parcels of land; and

(II) be separate from any other location and operate on a non-adjoining parcel of land from such location.

(C) NUMBER OF SMALL HOUSE NURSING HOMES PER SITE.—A site shall contain not less than 4 small house nursing homes and not greater than—

(i) in rural areas (or a site that encompasses a rural area), 12 small house nursing homes; or

(ii) in urban or suburban areas, 24 small house nursing homes.

(4) CONTINUATION OF TREATMENT AS SINGLE PROVIDER.—The Secretary shall develop a process to allow a site, following the 5-year period for the CINCH demonstration program, to continue operation through a single operating entity and receive certification as a single provider for purposes of Medicare and Medicaid, including provisions to permit such continuation following a change in ownership of a participating small house nursing home.

(5) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—The Secretary may waive such requirements of titles XI, XVIII, and XIX of the Social Security Act as may be necessary to carry out the CINCH demonstration program and shall develop a process that permits sites to be certified and reimbursed under Medicare and Medicaid.

(c) SELECTION.—

(1) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, through a request for proposal process, shall select a technical assistance provider that shall be responsible for assisting and monitoring eligible operating entities (as described under paragraph (2)).

(B) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—In selecting the technical assistance provider, the Secretary shall ensure that such organization—

(i) is a national not-for-profit organization that is in good standing;

(ii) has a consistent, clearly articulated, and research-based model for operation of small house nursing homes;

(iii) has not less than 10 years of experience in providing development, operation, regulatory, policy, and financial consulting services to clients or partners seeking to innovate the provision of long-term care;

(iv) has demonstrated a successful process and record (for not less than 4 years) for selection and assistance of multiple organizations in implementation of a small house nursing home model, including development, operations, and staff training;

(v) has established curricula for training of leadership, clinical, and direct care staff;

(vi) has demonstrated capacity, through its own resources and consultants, to—

(I) collect Minimum Data Set (''MDS'') information and financial data from eligible operating entities; and

(II) benchmark and analyze such financial data on not less than a quarterly basis;

(vii) has the ability to administer the CINCH demonstration program without additional funding from Federal, State, or local governmental sources;

(viii) agrees to provide technical assistance services to eligible operating entities for a fee that is not greater than its usual and customary fee for such services; and

(ix) agrees to maintain a provider network for small house nursing homes participating in the CINCH demonstration program for a fee that is not greater than its usual and customary fee for such services.

(C) PREFERENCES.—In selecting the technical assistance provider, the Secretary shall give preference to an organization that has demonstrated experience in related business activities, including community-based care models, health care financing, and demonstration programs.

(2) ELIGIBLE OPERATING ENTITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Selection of eligible operating entities shall be determined by the technical assistance provider through a request for proposal process on a continual basis.

(B) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—An eligible operating entity seeking to participate in the CINCH demonstration program shall be required to—

(i) commit to maintaining the small house nursing home requirements described under subsection (d) and permit the technical assistance provider to conduct periodic evaluations to ensure adherence to such requirements;

(ii) maintain membership in a small house nursing home provider network that is maintained by the technical assistance provider; and

(iii) ensure that, for each site, at least 30 percent of the total capacity developed under the CINCH demonstration program is provided to residents that are receiving nursing home benefits under Medicaid.

(d) SMALL HOUSE NURSING HOME REQUIREMENTS.—To be eligible to participate in the CINCH demonstration program, a small house nursing home shall—

(1) subject to subsection (b)(5), have been certified by a State or local entity (in accordance with applicable State and local law) to operate a nursing home;

(2) operate in compliance with any direct care and certified nurse assistant staffing requirements under Federal and State law;

(3) provide nursing home services, as required under State law and applicable licensing standards, that shall not be less comprehensive or high-acuity than services provided by the eligible operating entity within the immediate surrounding community;

(4) provide for meals cooked in the small house nursing home and not prepared in a central kitchen and transported to the nursing home;

(5) provide for a universal worker approach to resident care (such as a certified nursing assistant who provides personal care, socialization services, meal preparation services, and laundry and housekeeping services);

(6) provide for direct care staffing at a rate of not less than 4 hours per resident per day, with direct care staff (including certified nurse assistants) to be onsite, awake, and available within each nursing home at all times;

(7) provide for direct nursing care at a rate of not less than 1 hour per resident per day, with a nurse to be awake and available at each location at all times (with nurses to be shared between not more than 2 nursing homes on each site) as part of a nursing staff that meets or exceeds applicable Federal and State requirements for qualifications, services, and availability;

(8) provide for any other clinical, operational, management, or facility staff and services as required under applicable Federal and State requirements, with such staff to be available from centralized or distributed locations;

(9) provide for consistent staff assignments and self-directed work teams of direct care staff;

(10) provide training for all staff involved in the operations of the nursing home (for not less than 120 hours for each universal worker and not less than 60 hours for each leadership and clinical team member, to be completed for the majority of the staff before they start to work in a small house nursing home) concerning the philosophy, operations, and skills required to implement and maintain self-directed care, self-managed work teams, a noninstitutional approach to life and care in long-term care, appropriate safety and emergency skills, cooking from scratch by the direct care staff and food handling and safety, and other elements required for successful operation of the nursing home;

(11) ensure that the percentage of residents in each nursing home who are short-stay rehabilitation residents does not exceed 20 percent at any time (unless the small house nursing home is entirely devoted to providing rehabilitation services), except that a long-term resident transferring back to a nursing home after an acute episode and who is receiving rehabilitation services for which payment is made under the Medicare program shall not be counted toward such limitation;

(12) provide the technical assistance provider with MDS information and financial data in a timely manner on a monthly basis; and

(13) consist of a physical environment designed to look and feel like a home, rather than an institution, and that shall—

(A) be designed to serve as a fully independent and disabled accessible house or apartment, with not more than 10 residents within such house or apartment, and that shall only be connected to or share areas that would be generally shared between private homes (such as a driveway) or apartments (such as a lobby or laundry room);

(B) contain residential-style design elements and materials throughout the home that are similar to those in the immediate surrounding community and that do not use commercial and institutional elements and products (such as a nurses' station, medication carts, hospital or office-type florescent lighting, acoustical tile ceilings, institutional-style railings and corner guards, and room numbering and labeling) unless mandated by authorities with appropriate jurisdiction over the nursing home;

(C) provide private, single occupancy bedrooms that are shared only at the request of a resident to accommodate a spouse, partner, family member, or friend, and that contains a full private bathroom that includes, at a minimum, a toilet, sink, and accessible shower;

(D) contain a living area where residents and staff may socialize, dine, and prepare food together that provides, at a minimum, a living room seating area, a dining area large enough for a single table serving all residents and not less than 2 staff members, and an open full kitchen;

(E) contain ample natural light in each habitable space that is provided through exterior windows and other means, with window areas, exclusive of skylights and clerestories, being a minimum of 10 percent of the area of the room;

(F) have a life-safety rating that is sufficient to meet State and local standards for nursing facilities and appropriately accommodate individuals who cannot evacuate the nursing home without assistance; and

(G) contain built-in safety features to allow all areas of the nursing home to be accessible to residents during the majority of the day and night.

(e) NO ADDITIONAL PAYMENT.—The technical assistance provider, as well as any eligible operating entities and participating small house nursing homes, shall not receive any additional payment or reimbursement under the Medicare or Medicaid programs based upon their participation in the CINCH demonstration program.

(f) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 4 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the technical assistance provider shall evaluate the performance of each of the sites participating under the CINCH demonstration program and shall submit to Congress and the Secretary a report containing the results of such evaluation.

(2) EVALUATION REQUIREMENTS.—The evaluation shall include an analysis of—

(A) not less than 12 months of MDS information and financial data from at least 10 small house nursing homes; and

(B) results from focus groups or surveys regarding health outcomes for residents and program costs.

(g) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) CINCH DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—The term ''CINCH demonstration program'' means the demonstration program conducted under this section.

(2) MEDICAID.—The term ''Medicaid'' means the program for medical assistance established under title XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.).

(3) MEDICARE.—The term ''Medicare'' means the program for medical assistance established under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.).

(4) NURSING HOME.—The term ''nursing home'' means—

(A) a skilled nursing facility (as defined in section 1819(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395i-3(a))); or

(B) a nursing facility (as defined in section 1919(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396r(a))).

(5) RESEARCH-BASED.—The term ''research-based'' means research that—

(A) has been conducted by an objective researcher or research team that has—

(i) no financial or affiliated organizational interest in the success of the model; and

(ii) expertise in long-term care, with not less than 3 research articles relating to long-term care that have been published in leading peer-reviewed journals;

(B) has been conducted according to generally accepted research practices;

(C) has been published in a leading peer-reviewed journal on aging or long-term care; and

(D) indicates a measurable improvement in multiple aspects of quality of life and care.

(6) SECRETARY.—The term ''Secretary'' means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(7) RURAL AREA.—The term ''rural area'' means any area other than an urban or suburban area.

(8) SUBURBAN AREA.—The term ''suburban area'' means any urbanized area that is contiguous and adjacent to an urban area.

(9) URBAN AREA.—The term ''urban area'' means a city or town that has a population of greater than 50,000 inhabitants.

SA 3116. Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. BAYH) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr.

DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 2028, strike lines 9 and 10 and insert the following:

(3) EFFICIENCY ADJUSTMENT BASED ON PREMIUM INCREASES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The portion of the fee determined under paragraph (1) with respect to a covered entity for a calendar year which is attributable to net premiums written shall be multiplied by an amount equal to the sum of—

(i) 50 percent, plus

(ii) the applicable percentage.

(B) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE.—The applicable percentage is a percentage determined by the Secretary in the following manner:

(i) The applicable percentage for the covered entity with the lowest per-capita premium change shall be 0 percent.

(ii) The applicable percentage for the covered entity with the highest per-capita premium change shall be 100 percent.

(iii) The applicable percentage for each other cover entity shall be based on the degree to which the per-capita premium change for such covered entity is greater than the covered entity with the lowest per-capita premium change, except that in determining such amount the Secretary shall ensure that the aggregate fees for all covered entities under this section for the calendar year (after application of this subsection) is equal to $6,700,000,000.

(iv) Notwithstanding clause (iii), the Secretary may reduce the applicable percentage for a covered entity (but not below zero) with respect to any calendar year if the Secretary determines that the amount of the per-capita premium increase for such entity was primarily due to government restrictions on rates, but only to the extent that the amount of the per-capita premium increase was due to such government restrictions, as determined by the Secretary. In the case of any reduction under the preceding sentence, proper adjustment shall be made to the applicable percentages for other covered entities described in clause (iii) such that the aggregate fees for all covered entities under this section for the calendar year (after application of this subsection) is equal to $6,700,000,000. In no case shall any adjustment cause the applicable percentage for any covered entity to exceed 100 percent.

(C) PER-CAPITA PREMIUM CHANGE.—For purposes of this paragraph—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ''per-capita premium change'' means, with respect to any calendar year, the excess of—

(I) the per-capita premium amount for the such calendar year, over

(II) the per capita premium amount for the preceding calendar year.

(ii) PER-CAPITA PREMIUM AMOUNT.—The term ''per-capita premium amount'' means, with respect to any calendar year, the total amount of net premiums written with respect to health insurance for any United States health risk for such calendar year divided by the number of United States health risks which are covered under such net written premiums.

(iii) REPORTING.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—Each covered entity shall include in the report required under subsection (g) the number of United States health risks which are covered under net written premiums with respect to health insurance.

(II) PENALTY.—The rules of subsection (g)(2) shall apply to the information required to be reported under subclause (I).

(4) SECRETARIAL DETERMINATION.—The Secretary shall calculate the amount of each covered entity's fee for any calendar year under this subsection.

SA 3117. Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. BAYH) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 164, between lines 2 and 3, insert the following:

SEC. 13___. OPTIONAL FREE CHOICE VOUCHERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Any employer may provide a free choice voucher to any employee of such employer, but only if such employer offers free choice vouchers to—

(1) in the case of an offering employer, all employees of such employer who are eligible to participate in an employer-sponsored plan described in subsection (c)(1), and

(2) in the case of any other employer, all employees of the employer.

(b) FREE CHOICE VOUCHER.—

(1) AMOUNT.—

(A) OFFERING EMPLOYERS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an offering employer, the amount of the free choice voucher provided under subsection (a) shall be equal to the monthly portion of the cost of the eligible employer-sponsored plan which would have been paid by the employer if the employee were covered under the plan with respect to which the employer pays the largest portion of the employee's premium. Such amount shall be equal to the amount the employer would pay for an employee with self-only coverage unless such employee elects family coverage (in which case such amount shall be the amount the employer would pay for family coverage).

(ii) DETERMINATION OF COST.—The cost of any health plan shall be determined under the rules similar to the rules of section 2204 of the Public Health Service Act, except that such amount may be adjusted for age and category of coverage in accordance with regulations established by the Secretary.

(B) OTHER EMPLOYERS.—In the case of any other employer, the amount of the voucher provided under subsection (a) shall be not greater than the amount equal to the lowest cost bronze plan of the individual market in the rating area in which the employee resides which—

(i) is offered through an Exchange, and

(ii) provides—

(I) in the case of an employee electing self-only coverage, self-only coverage, and

(II) in any other case, family coverage.

(2) USE OF VOUCHERS.—An Exchange shall credit the amount of any free choice voucher provided under subsection (a) to the monthly premium of any qualified health plan in the Exchange in which the qualified employee is enrolled and the offering employer shall pay any amounts so credited to the Exchange.

(3) PAYMENT OF EXCESS AMOUNTS.—If the amount of the free choice voucher exceeds the amount of the premium of the qualified health plan in which the qualified employee is enrolled for such month, such excess shall be paid to the employee. Any amount paid to the employee under the preceding sentence shall not be taken into account in determining the rate of pay of the employee under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

(c) OFFERING EMPLOYER.—For purposes of this section, the term ''offering employer'' means any employer who—

(1) offers minimum essential coverage to its employees consisting of coverage through an eligible employer-sponsored plan; and

(2) pays any portion of the costs of such plan.

(d) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—Any term used in this section which is also used in section 5000A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall have the meaning given such term under such section 5000A.

(e) ACCELERATED ACCESS TO EXCHANGES.—Notwithstanding section 1312(f)(2)(B)—

(1) beginning in 2015, each State may allow issuers of health insurance coverage in the large group market in the State to offer qualified health plans in such market through an Exchange, but only in connection with employers who provide free choice vouchers under subsection (a); and

(2) if a State under paragraph (1) allows issuers to offer qualified plans in the large group market though an Exchange, the term ''qualified employer'' (as defined in section 1312(f)(2)) shall include a large employer that—

(A) provides free choice vouchers to its employees under subsection (a); and

(B) elects to make all full-time employees eligible for 1 or more qualified health plans offered in the large group market through the Exchange.

(f) EXCLUSION FROM INCOME FOR EMPLOYEE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Part III of subchapter B of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after section 139C the following new section:

''SEC. 139D. FREE CHOICE VOUCHERS.

''Gross income shall not include the amount of any free choice voucher provided by an employer under part I of subtitle D of title I of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act to the extent that the amount of such voucher does not exceed the amount paid for a qualified health plan (as defined in section 1301 of such Act) by the taxpayer.''.

(2) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part III of subchapter B of chapter 1 of such Code is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 139C the following new item:

''Sec. 139D. Free choice vouchers.''.

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to vouchers provided after December 31, 2013.

(g) DEDUCTION ALLOWED TO EMPLOYER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 162(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: ''For purposes of paragraph (1), the amount of a free choice voucher provided under part I of subtitle D of title I of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act shall be treated as an amount for compensation for personal services actually rendered.''.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to vouchers provided after December 31, 2013.

(h) VOUCHER TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT IN DETERMINING PREMIUM CREDIT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (b)(2) of section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by section 1401, is amended by adding at the end the following new flush sentence:

''The amount of any monthly premium under subsection subparagraph (A) and the amount of the adjusted monthly premium for the second lowest cost silver plan under subparagraph (B) shall be reduced by the amount of any free choice voucher provided to the taxpayer under section _____ of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.''.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2013.

(i) COORDINATION WITH EMPLOYER RESPONSIBILITIES.—

(1) SHARED RESPONSIBILITY PENALTY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (c) of section 4980H of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by section 1513, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''(3) SPECIAL RULES FOR EMPLOYERS PROVIDING FREE CHOICE VOUCHERS.—The assessable payment imposed under paragraph (1) shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the amount of any free choice voucher provided to a full-time employee under section ___ of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act for any month during which such employee is enrolled in a qualified health plan with respect to which an applicable premium credit or cost-sharing subsidy is allowed or paid with respect to such employee.''.

(B) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this paragraph shall apply to months beginning after December 31, 2013.

(2) NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENT.—Section 18B(a)(3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as added by section 1512, is amended—

(A) by inserting ''and the employer does not offer a free choice voucher'' after ''Exchange''; and

(B) by striking ''will lose'' and inserting ''may lose''.

(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR INDIVIDUALS AGE 30 AND OVER NOT ELIGIBLE FOR EXCHANGE CREDITS AND REDUCTIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), an individual who has attained at least the age of 30 before the beginning of a plan year shall be treated as an individual described in paragraph (2) if the individual is not eligible for the plan year for the premium tax credit under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 or the cost-sharing reductions under section 1402 with respect to enrollment in a qualified health plan offered through an Exchange. The preceding sentence shall not apply to an individual if the individual is not eligible for such credit or reductions because the individual is eligible to enroll in minimum essential coverage consisting of coverage under a government sponsored program described in section 5000A(f)(1)(A).

(B) REQUIREMENTS.—Subparagraph (A) shall only apply to an individual if the individual elects the application of this paragraph and such election provides that—

(i) the individual acknowledges that coverage under the catastrophic plan is the lowest coverage available, that the plan provides no benefits for any plan year until the individual has incurred cost-sharing expenses in an amount equal to the annual limitation in effect under subsection (c)(1) for the plan year (except as provided for in section 2713), and that these cost-sharing expenses could involve significant financial risk for the individual; and

(ii) the individual agrees that—

(I) the individual will not change such coverage until the next applicable annual or special enrollment period under section 1311(c)(5); and

(II) if the individual elects to change such coverage at the time of such enrollment period, the individual may only enroll in the bronze level of coverage.

(4) STATE AUTHORITY.—In accordance with section 1321(d), a State may impose additional requirements or conditions for catastrophic plans described in this subsection to the extent such requirements or conditions are not inconsistent with the requirements under this subsection.

Subtitle G—Modernizing America's Health Care System

PART I—IMPROVING QUALITY AND VALUE THROUGH DELIVERY SYSTEM REFORM

SEC. 3601. QUALITY REPORTING FOR PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1886(s) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3401(f), is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''(4) QUALITY REPORTING.—

''(A) REDUCTION IN UPDATE FOR FAILURE TO REPORT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Under the system described in paragraph (1), for rate year 2014 and each subsequent rate year, in the case of a psychiatric hospital or psychiatric unit that does not submit data to the Secretary in accordance with subparagraph (C) with respect to such a rate year, any annual update to a standard Federal rate for discharges for the hospital during the rate year, and after application of paragraph (2), shall be reduced by 2 percentage points.

''(ii) SPECIAL RULE.—The application of this subparagraph may result in such annual update being less than 0.0 for a rate year, and may result in payment rates under the system described in paragraph (1) for a rate year being less than such payment rates for the preceding rate year.

''(B) NONCUMULATIVE APPLICATION.—Any reduction under subparagraph (A) shall apply only with respect to the rate year involved and the Secretary shall not take into account such reduction in computing the payment amount under the system described in paragraph (1) for a subsequent rate year.

''(C) SUBMISSION OF QUALITY DATA.—For rate year 2014 and each subsequent rate year, each psychiatric hospital and psychiatric unit shall submit to the Secretary data on quality measures specified under subparagraph (D). Such data shall be submitted in a form and manner, and at a time, specified by the Secretary for purposes of this subparagraph.

''(D) QUALITY MEASURES.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), any measure specified by the Secretary under this subparagraph must have been endorsed by the entity with a contract under section 1890(a).

''(ii) EXCEPTION.—In the case of a specified area or medical topic determined appropriate by the Secretary for which a feasible and practical measure has not been endorsed by the entity with a contract under section 1890(a), the Secretary may specify a measure that is not so endorsed as long as due consideration is given to measures that have been endorsed or adopted by a consensus organization identified by the Secretary.

''(iii) TIME FRAME.—Not later than October 1, 2012, the Secretary shall publish the measures selected under this subparagraph that will be applicable with respect to rate year 2014.

''(E) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF DATA SUBMITTED.—The Secretary shall establish procedures for making data submitted under subparagraph (C) available to the public. Such procedures shall ensure that a psychiatric hospital and a psychiatric unit has the opportunity to review the data that is to be made public with respect to the hospital or unit prior to such data being made public. The Secretary shall report quality measures that relate to services furnished in inpatient settings in psychiatric hospitals and psychiatric units on the Internet website of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 1890(b)(7)(B)(i)(I) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3014, is amended by inserting ''1886(s)(4)(D),'' after ''1886(o)(2),''.

SEC. 3602. PILOT TESTING PAY-FOR-PERFORMANCE PROGRAMS FOR CERTAIN MEDICARE PROVIDERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 1, 2016, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall, for each provider described in subsection (b), conduct a separate pilot program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act to test the implementation of a value-based purchasing program for payments under such title for the provider.

(b) PROVIDERS DESCRIBED.—The providers described in this paragraph are the following:

(1) Psychiatric hospitals (as described in clause (i) of section 1886(d)(1)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(d)(1)(B))) and psychiatric units (as described in the matter following clause (v) of such section).

(2) Long-term care hospitals (as described in clause (iv) of such section).

(3) Rehabilitation hospitals (as described in clause (ii) of such section).

(4) PPS-exempt cancer hospitals (as described in clause (v) of such section).

(5) Hospice programs (as defined in section 1861(dd)(2) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(dd)(2))).

(c) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—The Secretary may waive such requirements of titles XI and XVIII of the Social Security Act as may be necessary solely for purposes of carrying out the pilot programs under this section.

(d) NO ADDITIONAL PROGRAM EXPENDITURES.—Payments under this section under the separate pilot program for value based purchasing (as described in subsection (a)) for each provider type described in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (b) for applicable items and services under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for a year shall be established in a manner that does not result in spending more under each such value based purchasing program for such year than would otherwise be expended for such provider type for such year if the pilot program were not implemented, as estimated by the Secretary.

(e) EXPANSION OF PILOT PROGRAM.—The Secretary may, at any point after January 1, 2018, expand the duration and scope of a pilot program conducted under this subsection, to the extent determined appropriate by the Secretary, if—

(1) the Secretary determines that such expansion is expected to—

(A) reduce spending under title XVIII of the Social Security Act without reducing the quality of care; or

(B) improve the quality of care and reduce spending;

(2) the Chief Actuary of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services certifies that such expansion would reduce program spending under such title XVIII; and

(3) the Secretary determines that such expansion would not deny or limit the coverage or provision of benefits under such title XIII for Medicare beneficiaries.

SEC. 3603. PLANS FOR A VALUE-BASED PURCHASING PROGRAM FOR AMBULATORY SURGICAL CENTERS.

Section 3006 of this Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(f) AMBULATORY SURGICAL CENTERS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall develop a plan to implement a value-based purchasing program for payments under the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for ambulatory surgical centers (as described in section 1833(i) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 13951(i))).

''(2) DETAILS.—In developing the plan under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall consider the following issues:

''(A) The ongoing development, selection, and modification process for measures (including under section 1890 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395aaa) and section 1890A of such Act, as added by section 3014), to the extent feasible and practicable, of all dimensions of quality and efficiency in ambulatory surgical centers.

''(B) The reporting, collection, and validation of quality data.

''(C) The structure of value-based payment adjustments, including the determination of thresholds or improvements in quality that would substantiate a payment adjustment, the size of such payments, and the sources of funding for the value-based bonus payments.

''(D) Methods for the public disclosure of information on the performance of ambulatory surgical centers.

''(E) Any other issues determined appropriate by the Secretary.

''(3) CONSULTATION.—In developing the plan under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall—

''(A) consult with relevant affected parties; and

''(B) consider experience with such demonstrations that the Secretary determines are relevant to the value-based purchasing program described in paragraph (1).

''(4) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than January 1, 2011, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report containing the plan developed under paragraph (1).''.

SEC. 3604. REVISIONS TO NATIONAL PILOT PROGRAM ON PAYMENT BUNDLING.

Section 1866D of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3023, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (a)(2)(B), in the matter preceding clause (i), by striking ''8 conditions'' and inserting ''10 conditions'';

(2) by striking subsection (c)(1)(B) and inserting the following:

''(B) EXPANSION.—The Secretary may, at any point after January 1, 2016, expand the duration and scope of the pilot program, to the extent determined appropriate by the Secretary, if—

''(i) the Secretary determines that such expansion is expected to—

''(I) reduce spending under title XVIII of the Social Security Act without reducing the quality of care; or

''(II) improve the quality of care and reduce spending;

''(ii) the Chief Actuary of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services certifies that such expansion would reduce program spending under such title XVIII; and

''(iii) the Secretary determines that such expansion would not deny or limit the coverage or provision of benefits under this title for individuals.''; and

(3) by striking subsection (g).

SEC. 3605. IMPROVEMENTS TO THE MEDICARE SHARED SAVINGS PROGRAM.

Section 1899 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3022, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

''(i) OPTION TO USE OTHER PAYMENT MODELS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines appropriate, the Secretary may use any of the payment models described in paragraph (2) or (3) for making payments under the program rather than the payment model described in subsection (d).

''(2) PARTIAL CAPITATION MODEL.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), a model described in this paragraph is a partial capitation model in which an ACO is at financial risk for some, but not all, of the items and services covered under parts A and B, such as at risk for some or all physicians' services or all items and services under part B. The Secretary may limit a partial capitation model to ACOs that are highly integrated systems of care and to ACOs capable of bearing risk, as determined to be appropriate by the Secretary.

''(B) NO ADDITIONAL PROGRAM EXPENDITURES.—Payments to an ACO for items and services under this title for beneficiaries for a year under the partial capitation model shall be established in a manner that does not result in spending more for such ACO for such beneficiaries than would otherwise be expended for such ACO for such beneficiaries for such year if the model were not implemented, as estimated by the Secretary.

''(3) OTHER PAYMENT MODELS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), a model described in this paragraph is any payment model that the Secretary determines will improve the quality and efficiency of items and services furnished under this title.

''(B) NO ADDITIONAL PROGRAM EXPENDITURES.—Subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) shall apply to a payment model under subparagraph (A) in a similar manner as such subparagraph (B) applies to the payment model under paragraph (2).

''(j) INVOLVEMENT IN PRIVATE PAYER AND OTHER THIRD PARTY ARRANGEMENTS.—The Secretary may give preference to ACOs who are participating in similar arrangements with other payers.

''(k) TREATMENT OF PHYSICIAN GROUP PRACTICE DEMONSTRATION.—During the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this section and ending on the date the program is established, the Secretary may enter into an agreement with an ACO under the demonstration under section 1866A, subject to rebasing and other modifications deemed appropriate by the Secretary.''.

SEC. 3606. INCENTIVES TO IMPLEMENT ACTIVITIES TO REDUCE DISPARITIES.

Section 1311(g)(1) of this Act is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (C), by striking ''; and'' and inserting a semicolon;

(2) in subparagraph (D), by striking the period and inserting ''; and''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(E) the implementation of activities to reduce health and health care disparities, including through the use of language services, community outreach, and cultural competency trainings.''.

SEC. 3607. NATIONAL DIABETES PREVENTION PROGRAM.

Part P of title III of the Public Health Service Act 42 U.S.C. 280g et seq.), as amended by section 5405, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''SEC. 399V-2. NATIONAL DIABETES PREVENTION PROGRAM.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, shall establish a national diabetes prevention program (referred to in this section as the 'program') targeted at adults at high risk for diabetes in order to eliminate the preventable burden of diabetes.

''(b) PROGRAM ACTIVITIES.—The program described in subsection (a) shall include—

''(1) a grant program for community-based diabetes prevention program model sites;

''(2) a program within the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to determine eligibility of entities to deliver community-based diabetes prevention services;

''(3) a training and outreach program for lifestyle intervention instructors; and

''(4) evaluation, monitoring and technical assistance, and applied research carried out by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

''(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—To be eligible for a grant under subsection (b)(1), an entity shall be a State or local health department, a tribal organization, a national network of community-based non-profits focused on health and wellbeing, an academic institution, or other entity, as the Secretary determines.

''(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For the purpose of carrying out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014.''.

SEC. 3608. SELECTION OF EFFICIENCY MEASURES.

Sections 1890(b)(7) and 1890A of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3014, are amended by striking ''quality'' each place it appears and inserting ''quality and efficiency''.

SEC. 3609. REGIONAL TESTING OF PAYMENT AND SERVICE DELIVERY MODELS UNDER THE CENTER FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID INNOVATION.

Section 1115A(a) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3021, is amended by inserting at the end the following new paragraph:

''(5) TESTING WITHIN CERTAIN GEOGRAPHIC AREAS.—For purposes of testing payment and service delivery models under this section, the Secretary may elect to limit testing of a model to certain geographic areas.''.

SEC. 3610. ADDITIONAL IMPROVEMENTS UNDER THE CENTER FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID INNOVATION.

Section 1115A(a) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3021, is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(2)—

(A) in subparagraph (A)—

(i) in the second sentence, by striking ''the preceding sentence may include'' and inserting ''this subparagraph may include, but are not limited to,''; and

(ii) by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: ''The Secretary shall focus on models expected to reduce program costs under the applicable title while preserving or enhancing the quality of care received by individuals receiving benefits under such title.''; and

(B) in subparagraph (C), by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(viii) Whether the model demonstrates effective linkage with other public sector or private sector payers.'';

(2) in subsection (b)(4), by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

''(C) MEASURE SELECTION.—To the extent feasible, the Secretary shall select measures under this paragraph that reflect national priorities for quality improvement and patient-centered care consistent with the measures described in 1890(b)(7)(B).''; and

(3) in subsection (c)—

(A) in paragraph (1)(B), by striking ''care and reduce spending; and'' and inserting ''patient care without increasing spending;'';

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking ''reduce program spending under applicable titles.'' and inserting ''reduce (or would not result in any increase in) net program spending under applicable titles; and''; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

''(3) the Secretary determines that such expansion would not deny or limit the coverage or provision of benefits under the applicable title for applicable individuals.

In determining which models or demonstration projects to expand under the preceding sentence, the Secretary shall focus on models and demonstration projects that improve the quality of patient care and reduce spending.''.

SEC. 3611. IMPROVEMENTS TO THE PHYSICIAN QUALITY REPORTING SYSTEM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1848(m) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(m)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''(7) ADDITIONAL INCENTIVE PAYMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For 2011 through 2014, if an eligible professional meets the requirements described in subparagraph (B), the applicable quality percent for such year, as described in clauses (iii) and (iv) of paragraph (1)(B), shall be increased by 0.5 percentage points.

''(B) REQUIREMENTS DESCRIBED.—In order to qualify for the additional incentive payment described in subparagraph (A), an eligible professional shall meet the following requirements:

''(i) The eligible professional shall—

''(I) satisfactorily submit data on quality measures for purposes of paragraph (1) for a year; and

''(II) have such data submitted on their behalf through a Maintenance of Certification Program (as defined in subparagraph (C)(i)) that meets—

''(aa) the criteria for a registry (as described in subsection (k)(4)); or

''(bb) an alternative form and manner determined appropriate by the Secretary.

''(ii) The eligible professional, more frequently than is required to qualify for or maintain board certification status—

''(I) participates in such a Maintenance of Certification program for a year; and

''(II) successfully completes a qualified Maintenance of Certification Program practice assessment (as defined in subparagraph (C)(ii)) for such year.

''(iii) A Maintenance of Certification program submits to the Secretary, on behalf of the eligible professional, information—

''(I) in a form and manner specified by the Secretary, that the eligible professional has successfully met the requirements of clause (ii) (which may be in the form of a structural measure);

''(II) if requested by the Secretary, on the survey of patient experience with care (as described in subparagraph (C)(ii)(II)); and

''(III) as the Secretary may require, on the methods, measures, and data used under the Maintenance of Certification Program and the qualified Maintenance of Certification Program practice assessment.

''(C) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this paragraph:

''(i) The term 'Maintenance of Certification Program' means a continuous assessment program, such as qualified American Board of Medical Specialties Maintenance of Certification program or an equivalent program (as determined by the Secretary), that advances quality and the lifelong learning and self-assessment of board certified specialty physicians by focusing on the competencies of patient care, medical knowledge, practice-based learning, interpersonal and communication skills and professionalism. Such a program shall include the following:

''(I) The program requires the physician to maintain a valid, unrestricted medical license in the United States.

''(II) The program requires a physician to participate in educational and self-assessment programs that require an assessment of what was learned.

''(III) The program requires a physician to demonstrate, through a formalized, secure examination, that the physician has the fundamental diagnostic skills, medical knowledge, and clinical judgment to provide quality care in their respective specialty.

''(IV) The program requires successful completion of a qualified Maintenance of Certification Program practice assessment as described in clause (ii).

''(ii) The term 'qualified Maintenance of Certification Program practice assessment' means an assessment of a physician's practice that—

''(I) includes an initial assessment of an eligible professional's practice that is designed to demonstrate the physician's use of evidence-based medicine;

''(II) includes a survey of patient experience with care; and

''(III) requires a physician to implement a quality improvement intervention to address a practice weakness identified in the initial assessment under subclause (I) and then to remeasure to assess performance improvement after such intervention.''.

(b) AUTHORITY.—Section 3002(c) of this Act is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''(3) AUTHORITY.—For years after 2014, if the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines it to be appropriate, the Secretary may incorporate participation in a Maintenance of Certification Program and successful completion of a qualified Maintenance of Certification Program practice assessment into the composite of measures of quality of care furnished pursuant to the physician fee schedule payment modifier, as described in section 1848(p)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(p)(2)).''.

(c) ELIMINATION OF MA REGIONAL PLAN STABILIZATION FUND.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1858 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–27a) is amended by striking subsection (e).

(2) TRANSITION.—Any amount contained in the MA Regional Plan Stabilization Fund as of the date of the enactment of this Act shall be transferred to the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund.

SEC. 3612. IMPROVEMENT IN PART D MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT (MTM) PROGRAMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1860D–4(c)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–104(c)(2)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subparagraphs (C), (D), and (E) as subparagraphs (E), (F), and (G), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraphs:

''(C) REQUIRED INTERVENTIONS.—For plan years beginning on or after the date that is 2 years after the date of the enactment of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, prescription drug plan sponsors shall offer medication therapy management services to targeted beneficiaries described in subparagraph (A)(ii) that include, at a minimum, the following to increase adherence to prescription medications or other goals deemed necessary by the Secretary:

''(i) An annual comprehensive medication review furnished person-to-person or using telehealth technologies (as defined by the Secretary) by a licensed pharmacist or other qualified provider. The comprehensive medication review—

''(I) shall include a review of the individual's medications and may result in the creation of a recommended medication action plan or other actions in consultation with the individual and with input from the prescriber to the extent necessary and practicable; and

''(II) shall include providing the individual with a written or printed summary of the results of the review.

The Secretary, in consultation with relevant stakeholders, shall develop a standardized format for the action plan under subclause (I) and the summary under subclause (II).

''(ii) Follow-up interventions as warranted based on the findings of the annual medication review or the targeted medication enrollment and which may be provided person-to-person or using telehealth technologies (as defined by the Secretary).

''(D) ASSESSMENT.—The prescription drug plan sponsor shall have in place a process to assess, at least on a quarterly basis, the medication use of individuals who are at risk but not enrolled in the medication therapy management program, including individuals who have experienced a transition in care, if the prescription drug plan sponsor has access to that information.

''(E) AUTOMATIC ENROLLMENT WITH ABILITY TO OPT-OUT.—The prescription drug plan sponsor shall have in place a process to—

''(i) subject to clause (ii), automatically enroll targeted beneficiaries described in subparagraph (A)(ii), including beneficiaries identified under subparagraph (D), in the medication therapy management program required under this subsection; and

''(ii) permit such beneficiaries to opt-out of enrollment in such program.''.

(b) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall limit the authority of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to modify or broaden requirements for a medication therapy management program under part D of title XVIII of the Social Security Act or to study new models for medication therapy management through the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation under section 1115A of such Act, as added by section 3021.

SEC. 3613. EVALUATION OF TELEHEALTH UNDER THE CENTER FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID INNOVATION.

Section 1115A(b)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3021, is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(xix) Utilizing, in particular in entities located in medically underserved areas and facilities of the Indian Health Service (whether operated by such Service or by an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as those terms are defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)), telehealth services—

''(I) in treating behavioral health issues (such as post-traumatic stress disorder) and stroke; and

''(II) to improve the capacity of non-medical providers and non-specialized medical providers to provide health services for patients with chronic complex conditions.''.

SEC. 3614. REVISIONS TO THE EXTENSION FOR THE RURAL COMMUNITY HOSPITAL DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (g) of section 410A of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–173; 117 Stat. 2272), as added by section 3123(a) of this Act, is amended to read as follows:

''(g) FIVE-YEAR EXTENSION OF DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the succeeding provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall conduct the demonstration program under this section for an additional 5-year period (in this section referred to as the '5-year extension period') that begins on the date immediately following the last day of the initial 5-year period under subsection (a)(5).

''(2) EXPANSION OF DEMONSTRATION STATES.—Notwithstanding subsection (a)(2), during the 5-year extension period, the Secretary shall expand the number of States with low population densities determined by the Secretary under such subsection to 20. In determining which States to include in such expansion, the Secretary shall use the same criteria and data that the Secretary used to determine the States under such subsection for purposes of the initial 5-year period.

''(3) INCREASE IN MAXIMUM NUMBER OF HOSPITALS PARTICIPATING IN THE DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—Notwithstanding subsection (a)(4), during the 5-year extension period, not more than 30 rural community hospitals may participate in the demonstration program under this section.

''(4) HOSPITALS IN DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM ON DATE OF ENACTMENT.—In the case of a rural community hospital that is participating in the demonstration program under this section as of the last day of the initial 5-year period, the Secretary—

''(A) shall provide for the continued participation of such rural community hospital in the demonstration program during the 5-year extension period unless the rural community hospital makes an election, in such form and manner as the Secretary may specify, to discontinue such participation; and

''(B) in calculating the amount of payment under subsection (b) to the rural community hospital for covered inpatient hospital services furnished by the hospital during such 5-year extension period, shall substitute, under paragraph (1)(A) of such subsection—

''(i) the reasonable costs of providing such services for discharges occurring in the first cost reporting period beginning on or after the first day of the 5-year extension period, for

''(ii) the reasonable costs of providing such services for discharges occurring in the first cost reporting period beginning on or after the implementation of the demonstration program.''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Subsection (a)(5) of section 410A of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–173; 117 Stat. 2272), as amended by section 3123(b) of this Act, is amended by striking ''1-year extension'' and inserting ''5-year extension''.

PART II—PROMOTING TRANSPARENCY AND COMPETITION

SEC. 3621. DEVELOPING METHODOLOGY TO ASSESS HEALTH PLAN VALUE.

(a) DEVELOPMENT.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (referred to in this section as the ''Secretary''), in consultation with relevant stakeholders including health insurance issuers, health care consumers, employers, health care providers, and other entities determined appropriate by the Secretary, shall develop a methodology to measure health plan value. Such methodology shall take into consideration, where applicable—

(1) the overall cost to enrollees under the plan;

(2) the quality of the care provided for under the plan;

(3) the efficiency of the plan in providing care;

(4) the relative risk of the plan's enrollees as compared to other plans;

(5) the actuarial value or other comparative measure of the benefits covered under the plan; and

(6) other factors determined relevant by the Secretary.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report concerning the methodology developed under subsection (a).

SEC. 3622. DATA COLLECTION; PUBLIC REPORTING.

Section 399II(a) of the Public Health Service Act, as added by section 3015, is amended to read as follows:

''(a) IN GENERAL.—

''(1) ESTABLISHMENT OF STRATEGIC FRAMEWORK.—The Secretary shall establish and implement an overall strategic framework to carry out the public reporting of performance information, as described in section 399JJ. Such strategic framework may include methods and related timelines for implementing nationally consistent data collection, data aggregation, and analysis methods.

''(2) COLLECTION AND AGGREGATION OF DATA.—The Secretary shall collect and aggregate consistent data on quality and resource use measures from information systems used to support health care delivery, and may award grants or contracts for this purpose. The Secretary shall align such collection and aggregation efforts with the requirements and assistance regarding the expansion of health information technology systems, the interoperability of such technology systems, and related standards that are in effect on the date of enactment of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

''(3) SCOPE.—The Secretary shall ensure that the data collection, data aggregation, and analysis systems described in paragraph (1) involve an increasingly broad range of patient populations, providers, and geographic areas over time.''.

SEC. 3623. MODERNIZING COMPUTER AND DATA SYSTEMS OF THE CENTERS FOR MEDICARE & MEDICAID SERVICES TO SUPPORT IMPROVEMENTS IN CARE DELIVERY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall develop a plan (and detailed budget for the resources needed to implement such plan) to modernize the computer and data systems of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (in this section referred to as ''CMS'').

(b) CONSIDERATIONS.—In developing the plan, the Secretary shall consider how such modernized computer system could—

(1) in accordance with the regulations promulgated under section 264(c) of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, make available data in a reliable and timely manner to providers of services and suppliers to support their efforts to better manage and coordinate care furnished to beneficiaries of CMS programs; and

(2) support consistent evaluations of payment and delivery system reforms under CMS programs.

(c) POSTING OF PLAN.—By not later than 9 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall post on the website of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services the plan described in subsection (a).

SEC. 3624. EXPANSION OF THE SCOPE OF THE INDEPENDENT MEDICARE ADVISORY BOARD.

(a) ANNUAL PUBLIC REPORT.—

(1) REPORT.—Section 1899A of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3403, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(n) ANNUAL PUBLIC REPORT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than July 1, 2014, and annually thereafter, the Board shall produce a public report containing standardized information on system-wide health care costs, patient access to care, utilization, and quality-of-care that allows for comparison by region, types of services, types of providers, and both private payers and the program under this title.

''(2) REQUIREMENTS.—Each report produced pursuant to paragraph (1) shall include information with respect to the following areas:

''(A) The quality and costs of care for the population at the most local level determined practical by the Board (with quality and costs compared to national benchmarks and reflecting rates of change, taking into account quality measures described in section 1890(b)(7)(B)).

''(B) Beneficiary and consumer access to care, patient and caregiver experience of care, and the cost-sharing or out-of-pocket burden on patients.

''(C) Epidemiological shifts and demographic changes.

''(D) The proliferation, effectiveness, and utilization of health care technologies, including variation in provider practice patterns and costs.

''(E) Any other areas that the Board determines affect overall spending and quality of care in the private sector.''.

(2) ALIGNMENT WITH MEDICARE PROPOSALS.—Section 1899A(c)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3403, is amended—

(A) in clause (v), by striking ''and'' at the end;

(B) in clause (vi), by striking the period at the end and inserting ''; and''; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(vii) take into account the data and findings contained in the annual reports under subsection (n) in order to develop proposals that can most effectively promote the delivery of efficient, high quality care to Medicare beneficiaries.''.

(b) ADVISORY RECOMMENDATIONS FOR NON-FEDERAL HEALTH CARE PROGRAMS.—Section 1899A of the Social Security Act, as added by section 3403 and as amended by subsection (a)(1), is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(o) ADVISORY RECOMMENDATIONS FOR NON-FEDERAL HEALTH CARE PROGRAMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 15, 2015, and at least once every two years thereafter, the Board shall submit to Congress and the President recommendations to slow the growth in national health expenditures (excluding expenditures under this title and in other Federal health care programs) while preserving or enhancing quality of care, such as recommendations—

''(A) that the Secretary or other Federal agencies can implement administratively;

''(B) that may require legislation to be enacted by Congress in order to be implemented;

''(C) that may require legislation to be enacted by State or local governments in order to be implemented;

''(D) that private sector entities can voluntarily implement; and

''(E) with respect to other areas determined appropriate by the Board.

''(2) COORDINATION.—In making recommendations under paragraph (1), the Board shall coordinate such recommendations with recommendations contained in proposals and advisory reports produced by the Board under subsection (c).

''(3) AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC.—The Board shall make recommendations submitted to Congress and the President under this subsection available to the public.''.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in the amendments made by this section shall preclude the Independent Medicare Advisory Board, as established under section 1899A of the Social Security Act (as added by section 3403), from solely using data from public or private sources to carry out the amendments made by subsections (a)(1) and (b).

SEC. 3625. ADDITIONAL PRIORITY FOR THE NATIONAL HEALTH CARE WORKFORCE COMMISSION.

Section 5101(d)(4)(A) of this Act is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(v) An analysis of, and recommendations for, eliminating the barriers to entering and staying in primary care, including provider compensation.''.

PART III—PROMOTING ACCOUNTABILITY AND RESPONSIBILITY

SEC. 3631. HEALTH CARE FRAUD ENFORCEMENT.

(a) FRAUD SENTENCING GUIDELINES.—

(1) DEFINITION.—In this subsection, the term ''Federal health care offense'' has the meaning given that term in section 24 of title 18, United States Code, as amended by this Act.

(2) REVIEW AND AMENDMENTS.—Pursuant to the authority under section 994 of title 28, United States Code, and in accordance with this subsection, the United States Sentencing Commission shall—

(A) review the Federal Sentencing Guidelines and policy statements applicable to persons convicted of Federal health care offenses;

(B) amend the Federal Sentencing Guidelines and policy statements applicable to persons convicted of Federal health care offenses involving Government health care programs to provide that the aggregate dollar amount of fraudulent bills submitted to the Government health care program shall constitute prima facie evidence of the amount of the intended loss by the defendant; and

(C) amend the Federal Sentencing Guidelines to provide—

(i) a 2-level increase in the offense level for any defendant convicted of a Federal health care offense relating to a Government health care program which involves a loss of not less than $1,000,000 and less than $7,000,000;

(ii) a 3-level increase in the offense level for any defendant convicted of a Federal health care offense relating to a Government health care program which involves a loss of not less than $7,000,000 and less than $20,000,000;

(iii) a 4-level increase in the offense level for any defendant convicted of a Federal health care offense relating to a Government health care program which involves a loss of not less than $20,000,000; and

(iv) if appropriate, otherwise amend the Federal Sentencing Guidelines and policy statements applicable to persons convicted of Federal health care offenses involving Government health care programs.

(3) REQUIREMENTS.—In carrying this subsection, the United States Sentencing Commission shall—

(A) ensure that the Federal Sentencing Guidelines and policy statements—

(i) reflect the serious harms associated with health care fraud and the need for aggressive and appropriate law enforcement action to prevent such fraud; and

(ii) provide increased penalties for persons convicted of health care fraud offenses in appropriate circumstances;

(B) consult with individuals or groups representing health care fraud victims, law enforcement officials, the health care industry, and the Federal judiciary as part of the review described in paragraph (2);

(C) ensure reasonable consistency with other relevant directives and with other guidelines under the Federal Sentencing Guidelines;

(D) account for any aggravating or mitigating circumstances that might justify exceptions, including circumstances for which the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, as in effect on the date of enactment of this Act, provide sentencing enhancements;

(E) make any necessary conforming changes to the Federal Sentencing Guidelines; and

(F) ensure that the Federal Sentencing Guidelines adequately meet the purposes of sentencing.

(b) INTENT REQUIREMENT FOR HEALTH CARE FRAUD.—Section 1347 of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by inserting ''(a)'' before ''Whoever knowingly''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(b) With respect to violations of this section, a person need not have actual knowledge of this section or specific intent to commit a violation of this section.''.

(c) HEALTH CARE FRAUD OFFENSE.—Section 24(a) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking the semicolon and inserting ''or section 1128B of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320a–7b); or''; and

(2) in paragraph (2)—

(A) by inserting ''1349,'' after ''1343,''; and

(B) by inserting ''section 301 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 331), or section 501 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1131),'' after ''title,''.

(d) SUBPOENA AUTHORITY RELATING TO HEALTH CARE.—

(1) SUBPOENAS UNDER THE HEALTH INSURANCE PORTABILITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT OF 1996.—Section 1510(b) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking ''to the grand jury''; and

(B) in paragraph (2)—

(i) in subparagraph (A), by striking ''grand jury subpoena'' and inserting ''subpoena for records''; and

(ii) in the matter following subparagraph (B), by striking ''to the grand jury''.

(2) SUBPOENAS UNDER THE CIVIL RIGHTS OF INSTITUTIONALIZED PERSONS ACT.—The Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (42 U.S.C. 1997 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 3 the following:

''SEC. 3A. SUBPOENA AUTHORITY.

''(a) AUTHORITY.—The Attorney General, or at the direction of the Attorney General, any officer or employee of the Department of Justice may require by subpoena access to any institution that is the subject of an investigation under this Act and to any document, record, material, file, report, memorandum, policy, procedure, investigation, video or audio recording, or quality assurance report relating to any institution that is the subject of an investigation under this Act to determine whether there are conditions which deprive persons residing in or confined to the institution of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States.

''(b) ISSUANCE AND ENFORCEMENT OF SUBPOENAS.—

''(1) ISSUANCE.—Subpoenas issued under this section—

''(A) shall bear the signature of the Attorney General or any officer or employee of the Department of Justice as designated by the Attorney General; and

''(B) shall be served by any person or class of persons designated by the Attorney General or a designated officer or employee for that purpose.

''(2) ENFORCEMENT.—In the case of contumacy or failure to obey a subpoena issued under this section, the United States district court for the judicial district in which the institution is located may issue an order requiring compliance. Any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt that court.

''(c) PROTECTION OF SUBPOENAED RECORDS AND INFORMATION.—Any document, record, material, file, report, memorandum, policy, procedure, investigation, video or audio recording, or quality assurance report or other information obtained under a subpoena issued under this section—

''(1) may not be used for any purpose other than to protect the rights, privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States of persons who reside, have resided, or will reside in an institution;

''(2) may not be transmitted by or within the Department of Justice for any purpose other than to protect the rights, privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States of persons who reside, have resided, or will reside in an institution; and

''(3) shall be redacted, obscured, or otherwise altered if used in any publicly available manner so as to prevent the disclosure of any personally identifiable information.''.

SEC. 3632. DEVELOPMENT OF STANDARDS FOR FINANCIAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE TRANSACTIONS.

(a) ADDITIONAL TRANSACTION STANDARDS AND OPERATING RULES.—

(1) DEVELOPMENT OF ADDITIONAL TRANSACTION STANDARDS AND OPERATING RULES.—Section 1173(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320d–2(a)), as amended by section 1104(b)(2), is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1)(B), by inserting before the period the following: '', and subject to the requirements under paragraph (5)''; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''(5) CONSIDERATION OF STANDARDIZATION OF ACTIVITIES AND ITEMS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of carrying out paragraph (1)(B), the Secretary shall solicit, not later than January 1, 2012, and not less than every 3 years thereafter, input from entities described in subparagraph (B) on—

''(i) whether there could be greater uniformity in financial and administrative activities and items, as determined appropriate by the Secretary; and

''(ii) whether such activities should be considered financial and administrative transactions (as described in paragraph (1)(B)) for which the adoption of standards and operating rules would improve the operation of the health care system and reduce administrative costs.

''(B) SOLICITATION OF INPUT.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall seek input from—

''(i) the National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics, the Health Information Technology Policy Committee, and the Health Information Technology Standards Committee; and

''(ii) standard setting organizations and stakeholders, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.''.

(b) ACTIVITIES AND ITEMS FOR INITIAL CONSIDERATION.—For purposes of section 1173(a)(5) of the Social Security Act, as added by subsection (a), the Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall, not later than January 1, 2012, seek input on activities and items relating to the following areas:

(1) Whether the application process, including the use of a uniform application form, for enrollment of health care providers by health plans could be made electronic and standardized.

(2) Whether standards and operating rules described in section 1173 of the Social Security Act should apply to the health care transactions of automobile insurance, worker's compensation, and other programs or persons not described in section 1172(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1320d–1(a)).

(3) Whether standardized forms could apply to financial audits required by health plans, Federal and State agencies (including State auditors, the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services), and other relevant entities as determined appropriate by the Secretary.

(4) Whether there could be greater transparency and consistency of methodologies and processes used to establish claim edits used by health plans (as described in section 1171(5) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320d(5))).

(5) Whether health plans should be required to publish their timeliness of payment rules.

(c) ICD CODING CROSSWALKS.—

(1) ICD-9 TO ICD-10 CROSSWALK.—The Secretary shall task the ICD-9-CM Coordination and Maintenance Committee to convene a meeting, not later than January 1, 2011, to receive input from appropriate stakeholders (including health plans, health care providers, and clinicians) regarding the crosswalk between the Ninth and Tenth Revisions of the International Classification of Diseases (ICD-9 and ICD-10, respectively) that is posted on the website of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, and make recommendations about appropriate revisions to such crosswalk.

(2) REVISION OF CROSSWALK.—For purposes of the crosswalk described in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall make appropriate revisions and post any such revised crosswalk on the website of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

(3) USE OF REVISED CROSSWALK.—For purposes of paragraph (2), any revised crosswalk shall be treated as a code set for which a standard has been adopted by the Secretary for purposes of section 1173(c)(1)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320d–2(c)(1)(B)).

(4) SUBSEQUENT CROSSWALKS.—For subsequent revisions of the International Classification of Diseases that are adopted by the Secretary as a standard code set under section 1173(c) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320d–2(c)), the Secretary shall, after consultation with the appropriate stakeholders, post on the website of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services a crosswalk between the previous and subsequent version of the International Classification of Diseases not later than the date of implementation of such subsequent revision.

(10) REGULATED RECORD.—The term ''regulated record'' means information or documentation from a prescription.

SEC. __03. PRIVACY PROTECTIONS.

(a) PROHIBITION.—No company or person in possession of regulated records, or their agents, or those acting on their behalf shall knowingly disclose, sell, or use regulated records containing individual identifying information for marketing a prescribed product.

(b) PERMITTED TRANSFERS.—A regulated record containing individual identifying information may be transferred to another entity, including to another branch or subsidiary of the same entity, only if the transfer provides satisfactory assurance that the recipient will safeguard the records from being disclosed or used for a marketing purpose prohibited under this section.

(c) PERMITTED USES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Regulated records containing individual identifying information may be disclosed, sold, transferred, exchanged, or used for any purpose other than marketing a prescribed product, including—

(A) to fill a valid prescription, including communication by a pharmacist about patient safety or generic substitution, or in response to patient or physician questions about a medication, as well as any transfer necessary for billing or pharmacy reimbursement;

(B) to conduct of a bona fide clinical trial;

(C) to disseminate safety warnings, labeling changes, risk evaluation and mitigation strategies (REMS) compliance communications, or to facilitate adverse event reporting, or to otherwise implement a REMS;

(D) for the purposes of academic detailing or public health communications;

(E) for the administration of a patient's health insurance or benefits plan, including determining compliance with the terms of coverage or medical necessity; or

(F) to comply with existing State or Federal law.

(2) RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.—This section shall not be construed to—

(A) prohibit any communication between a health care provider and patients under his or her care, or any communication between health care providers for the purpose of patient care;

(B) prohibit the use of data by a health plan or a pharmacy benefit manager where such plan or manager is acting in the fiduciary interest of such organizations, for purposes of planning, conducting, or evaluating formulary compliance or quality assurance program based on evidence based prescribing or cost-containment goals;

(C) prohibit conduct that involves the collection, use, transfer, or sale of regulated records for marketing purposes if—

(i) the data involved does not contain individually identifying information; and

(ii) there is no reasonable basis to believe that the data can be used to obtain individually identifying information; and

(D) prevent any person from disclosing regulated records to the identified individual as long as the information does not include protected information pertaining to any other person.

(d) REGULATIONS.—The Attorney General may promulgate regulations as necessary to implement this title.

(e) ENFORCEMENT.—Any person who knowingly fails to comply with the requirements of this title, or regulations promulgated pursuant to this title, by using or disclosing regulated records in a manner not authorized by this title, or regulations, shall be subject to an civil penalty of at least $10,000, and not more than $50,000, per violation, as assessed by the Attorney General. Each disclosure of a regulated record shall constitute a violation of this title. The Attorney General shall take necessary action to enforce the payment of penalties assessed under this section.

SEC. __04. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this title, or its application to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of this title, or the application of the provision, to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

SEC. __05. NO EFFECT ON TRUTHFUL SPEECH TO DOCTORS OR PATIENTS.

Nothing in this title shall be construed to regulate the content, time, place, or manner of any discussion between a prescriber and their patient, or a prescriber and any person representing a prescription drug manufacturer.

SA 3132. Mrs. MCCASKILL submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 40, between lines 21 and 22, insert the following:

SEC. 1003A. STUDY TO PROVIDE HEALTH CARE INFLATION TRANSPARENCY AND ACCOUNTABILITY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Manufacturers of drugs have increased wholesale prices of brand-name drugs by approximately 9 percent in the period from 2008 to 2009, while all other sectors of the economy experienced a 1.3 percent decline in such period.

(2) Insurance brokers and benefits consultants predict that the small business clients of such brokers and consultants will experience an increase in premiums by an average of approximately 15 percent for 2010, which is double the rate of such increase that occurred for 2009.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) HEALTH CARE SECTOR.—The term ''health care sector'' includes manufacturers of drugs, manufacturers of devices, hospitals, insurance companies, laboratories, and health care providers that are affected by this Act (and the amendments made by this Act).

(2) HEALTH INSURANCE ISSUER.—The term ''health insurance issuer'' means those health insurance issuers subject to section 2794(a) of the Public Health Service Act (as added by section 1003)

(3) SECRETARY.—The term ''Secretary'' means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(c) ANNUAL STUDY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in coordination with the Attorney General and the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, shall, on an annual basis, collect and study data on pricing in the health care sector. Such data shall include the information provided to the Secretary under section 2794(b)(1)(A) of the Public Health Service Act (as added by section 1003).

(2) INITIAL STUDY.—The initial such study shall be for the 1-year period beginning on July 1, 2009, and ending on the date of the first report under subsection (e).

(3) SUBSEQUENT STUDIES.—Each subsequent study shall be for the 1-year period following the date of the preceding report under subsection (e).

(d) COLLECTION OF DATA.—Health insurance issuers and entities operating within the health care sector shall provide to the Secretary information on price, demographics, and any other variable or factor the Secretary may deem necessary to determine if premiums, retail or wholesale prices, or other costs are being increased unreasonably, including information about the actuarial value of the plans of the issuer and the medical loss ratio of such plans.

(e) REPORTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Based on the annual study conducted under subsection (c), the Secretary, in coordination with the Attorney General and the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, shall publish an annual report on the excess price inflation in the health care sector that occurred during the period described in such subsection.

(2) EXCESS PRICE INFLATION.—For purposes of the report, the term ''excess price inflation'' shall be defined by the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, and other Government experts and economists as the Secretary determines appropriate.

(f) EFFECT OF STUDY AND REPORTS.—

(1) REIMBURSEMENT RATES.—The results of the study and report under this section shall be taken into account—

(A) when reimbursement rates for Federal health programs are established for the years following such report; and

(B) by States, when making recommendations under section 2974(b)(1)(B) of the Public Health Service Act (as added by section 1003).

(2) REBATES.—

(A) HEALTH INSURANCE ISSUERS.—Based on a study conducted under subsection (c), if insurance premiums of a health insurance issuer are determined by the Secretary, in coordination with the Attorney General and the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, to meet the definition of excess price inflation, such issuer shall provide to each enrollee of such issuer a rebate. The amount of the rebate shall be calculated using the formula described under section 2718(b) of the Public Health Service Act (as added by section 1001), except for the amount of the excess price inflation shall be substituted for the amount of the premium revenues.

(B) HEALTH CARE SECTOR ENTITIES.—Based on a study conducted under subsection (c), if the Secretary determines, in coordination with the Attorney General and the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, that an entity within the health care sector has increased price of goods or services related to such entity's participation in the health care sector, such as drugs or devices, sufficient to meet the definition of excess price inflation, then such entity shall pay to the Treasury the amount of the excess price inflation for the purpose of deficit reduction.

(3) APPEAL OF DETERMINATION.—The Secretary shall establish an effective appeals process under which a health insurance issuer or health care entity within the health care sector may appeal the determination of excess price inflation described in paragraph (2). In making an appeals determination, the Secretary may consult with the Attorney General, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, and other Government experts and economists as the Secretary determines appropriate.

(g) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—The Secretary shall make each report under subsection (e), and the supporting data describing excess price inflation in the health care sector, available to the public.

SA 3133. Mr. WICKER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Physician Payment Update Commission

SEC. 10001. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Physician Payment Update Commission Act''.

SEC. 10002. ESTABLISHMENT OF PHYSICIAN PAYMENT UPDATE COMMISSION.

(a) MEDICARE PHYSICIAN FEE SCHEDULE UPDATE AND SUNSET OF MEDICARE SUSTAINABLE GROWTH RATE FORMULA.—

(1) UPDATE FOR 2010 AND 2011.—Section 1848(d)(10) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(d)(10)), as added by section 3101, is amended to read as follows:

''(10) UPDATE FOR 2010 AND 2011.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The update to the single conversion factor established in paragraph (1)(C) for 2010 and 2011 shall be 0 percent.

''(B) NO EFFECT ON COMPUTATION OF CONVERSION FACTOR FOR 2012 AND SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—The conversion factor under this subsection shall be computed under paragraph (1)(A) for 2012 and subsequent years as if subparagraph (A) had never applied.''.

(2) SUNSET OF MEDICARE SUSTAINABLE GROWTH RATE FORMULA.—Effective January 1, 2012, subsection (f) of section 1848 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4) is repealed.

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF PHYSICIAN PAYMENT UPDATE COMMISSION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established a commission to be known as the ''Physician Payment Update Commission'' (referred to in this section as the ''Commission'').

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—

(A) COMPOSITION.—The Commission shall be composed of 17 members appointed by the Comptroller General of the United States, upon the recommendation of the majority and minority leaders of the Senate and the Speaker and minority leader of the House of Representatives.

(B) DATE OF APPOINTMENTS.—Members of the Commission shall be appointed not later than 2 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(3) QUALIFICATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The membership of the Commission shall include individuals with national recognition for their expertise in health finance and economics, actuarial science, integrated delivery systems, allopathic and osteopathic medicine and other areas of health services, and other related fields, who provide a mix of different professionals, broad geographic representation, and a balance between urban and rural representatives.

(B) INCLUSION.—The members of the Commission shall include (but not be limited to) physicians and other health professionals, employers, third-party payers, individuals skilled in the conduct and interpretation of biomedical, health services, and health economics research and technology assessment. Such membership shall also include representatives of consumers and the elderly.

(C) MAJORITY PHYSICIANS AND OTHER HEALTH PROFESSIONALS.—Individuals who are physicians or other health professionals shall constitute a majority of the membership of the Commission.

(4) TERM; VACANCIES.—

(A) TERM.—A member shall be appointed for the life of the Commission.

(B) VACANCIES.—A vacancy on the Commission—

(i) shall not affect the powers of the Commission; and

(ii) shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment was made.

(5) MEETINGS.—The Commission shall meet at the call of the Chairperson.

(6) QUORUM.—A majority of the members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum, but a lesser number of members may hold hearings.

(7) CHAIRPERSON.—The Comptroller General shall designate a member of the Commission, at the time of the appointment of the member, as Chairperson.

(c) DUTIES.—

(1) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study of all matters relating to payment rates under the Medicare physician fee schedule under section 1848 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4).

(2) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission shall develop recommendations on the establishment of a new physician payment system under the Medicare program that would appropriately reimburse physicians by keeping pace with increases in medical practice costs and providing stable, positive Medicare updates.

(3) REPORT.—Not later than December 1, 2010, the Commission shall submit to the appropriate Committees of Congress and the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission—

(A) a detailed statement of the findings and conclusions of the Commission;

(B) the recommendations of the Commission for such legislation and administrative actions as the Commission considers appropriate (including proposed legislative language to carry out such recommendations); and

(C) a long-term CBO cost estimate regarding such recommendations (as described under subsection (i)).

(d) POWERS.—

(1) HEARINGS.—The Commission may hold such hearings, meet and act at such times and places, take such testimony, and receive such evidence as the Commission considers advisable to carry out this section.

(2) INFORMATION FROM FEDERAL AGENCIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Commission may secure directly from a Federal agency such information as the Commission considers necessary to carry out this section.

(B) PROVISION OF INFORMATION.—On request of the Chairperson of the Commission, the head of the agency shall provide the information to the Commission.

(3) POSTAL SERVICES.—The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as other agencies of the Federal Government.

(e) COMMISSION PERSONNEL MATTERS.—

(1) COMPENSATION OF MEMBERS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Members of the Commission shall serve without compensation in addition to the compensation received for the services of the member as an officer or employee of the Federal Government.

(B) TRAVEL EXPENSES.—A member of the Commission shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, at rates authorized for an employee of an agency under subchapter I of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, while away from the home or regular place of business of the member in the performance of the duties of the Commission.

(2) STAFF AND SUPPORT SERVICES.—

(A) EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR.—The Chairperson shall appoint an executive director of the Commission.

(B) STAFF.—With the approval of the Commission, the executive director may appoint such personnel as the executive director considers appropriate.

(C) APPLICABILITY OF CIVIL SERVICE LAWS.—The staff of the Commission shall be appointed without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and shall be paid without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title (relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates).

(D) EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS.—With the approval of the Commission, the executive director may procure temporary and intermittent services under section 3109(b) of title 5, United States Code.

(f) TERMINATION OF COMMISSION.—The Commission shall terminate 30 days after the date on which the Commission submits its report under subsection (c)(3).

(g) REVIEW AND RESPONSE TO RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE MEDICARE PAYMENT ADVISORY COMMISSION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than February 1, 2011, the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall—

(A) review the recommendations included in the report submitted under subsection (c)(3);

(B) examine the budget consequences of such recommendations, directly or through consultation with appropriate expert entities; and

(C) submit to the appropriate Committees of Congress a report on such review.

(2) CONTENTS OF REPORT ON REVIEW OF COMMISSION RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report submitted under paragraph (1)(C) shall include—

(A) if the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission supports the recommendations of the Commission, the reasons for such support; or

(B) if the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission does not support such recommendations, the recommendations of the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission, together with an explanation as to why the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission does not support the recommendations of the Commission.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for the Commission to carry out this section. Such appropriation shall be payable from the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund under section 1841 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395t).

(i) LONG-TERM CBO COST ESTIMATE.—

(1) PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION.—When the Commission submits a written request to the Director of the Congressional Budget Office for a long-term CBO cost estimate of recommended legislation or administrative actions (as described under subsection (c)(3)), the Director shall prepare the estimate and have it published in the Congressional Record as expeditiously as possible.

(2) CONTENT.—A long-term CBO cost estimate shall include—

(A) an estimate of the cost of each provision (if practicable) or group of provisions of the recommended legislation or administrative actions for first fiscal year it would take effect and for each of the 49 fiscal years thereafter; and

(B) a statement of any estimated future costs not reflected by the estimate described in subparagraph (A).

(3) FORM.—To the extent that a long-term CBO cost estimate presented in dollars is impracticable, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office may instead present the estimate in terms of percentages of gross domestic product, with rounding to the nearest 1/10 of 1 percent of gross domestic product.

(4) LIMITATIONS ON DISCRETIONARY SPENDING.—A long-term CBO cost estimate shall only consider the effects of provisions affecting revenues and direct spending (as defined by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985), and shall not assume that any changes in outlays will result from limitations on, or reductions in, annual appropriations.

(j) EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION OF COMMISSION RECOMMENDATIONS.—

(1) INTRODUCTION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The proposed legislative language contained in the report submitted pursuant to subsection (c)(3) (referred to in this subsection as the ''Commission bill'') shall be introduced within the first 10 calendar days of the 112th Congress (or on the first session day thereafter) in the House of Representatives and in the Senate by the majority leader of each House of Congress, for himself, the minority leader of each House of Congress, for himself, or any member of the House designated by the majority leader or minority leader. If the Commission bill is not introduced in accordance with the preceding sentence in either House of Congress, then any Member of that House may introduce the Commission bill on any day thereafter. Upon introduction, the Commission bill shall be referred to the appropriate committees under subparagraph (B).

(B) COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION.—A Commission bill introduced in either House of Congress shall be jointly referred to the committee or committees of jurisdiction, which shall report the bill without any revision and with a favorable recommendation, an unfavorable recommendation, or without recommendation, not later than 10 calendar days after the date of introduction of the bill in that House. If any committee fails to report the bill within that period, that committee shall be automatically discharged from consideration of the bill, and the bill shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

(2) EXPEDITED PROCEDURE.—

(A) IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 5 days of session after the date on which a Commission bill is reported or discharged from all committees to which it was referred, the majority leader of the House of Representatives or the majority leader's designee shall move to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill. It shall also be in order for any Member of the House of Representatives to move to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill at any time after the conclusion of such 5-day period.

(ii) MOTION TO PROCEED.—A motion to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill is highly privileged in the House of Representatives and is not debatable. The motion is not subject to amendment or to a motion to postpone consideration of the Commission bill. A motion to proceed to the consideration of other business shall not be in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion to proceed is agreed to or not agreed to shall not be in order. If the motion to proceed is agreed to, the House of Representatives shall immediately proceed to consideration of the Commission bill without intervening motion, order, or other business, and the Commission bill shall remain the unfinished business of the House of Representatives until disposed of.

(iii) LIMITS ON DEBATE.—Debate in the House of Representatives on a Commission bill under this paragraph shall not exceed a total of 100 hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the bill. A motion further to limit debate is in order and shall not be debatable. It shall not be in order to move to recommit a Commission bill under this paragraph or to move to reconsider the vote by which the bill is agreed to or disagreed to.

(iv) APPEALS.—Appeals from decisions of the chair relating to the application of the Rules of the House of Representatives to the procedure relating to a Commission bill shall be decided without debate.

(v) APPLICATION OF HOUSE RULES.—Except to the extent specifically provided in this paragraph, consideration of a Commission bill shall be governed by the Rules of the House of Representatives. It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives to consider any Commission bill introduced pursuant to the provisions of this subsection under a suspension of the rules or under a special rule.

(vi) NO AMENDMENTS.—No amendment to the Commission bill shall be in order in the House of Representatives.

(vii) VOTE ON FINAL PASSAGE.—In the House of Representatives, immediately following the conclusion of consideration of the Commission bill, the vote on final passage of the Commission bill shall occur without any intervening action or motion, requiring an affirmative vote of 3/5 of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. If the Commission bill is passed, the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall cause the bill to be transmitted to the Senate before the close of the next day of session of the House.

(B) IN THE SENATE.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 5 days of session after the date on which a Commission bill is reported or discharged from all committees to which it was referred, the majority leader of the Senate or the majority leader's designee shall move to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill. It shall also be in order for any Member of the Senate to move to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill at any time after the conclusion of such 5-day period.

(ii) MOTION TO PROCEED.—A motion to proceed to the consideration of the Commission bill is privileged in the Senate and is not debatable. The motion is not subject to amendment or to a motion to postpone consideration of the Commission bill. A motion to proceed to consideration of the Commission bill may be made even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to. A motion to proceed to the consideration of other business shall not be in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion to proceed is agreed to or not agreed to shall not be in order. If the motion to proceed is agreed to, the Senate shall immediately proceed to consideration of the Commission bill without intervening motion, order, or other business, and the Commission bill shall remain the unfinished business of the Senate until disposed of.

(iii) LIMITS ON DEBATE.—In the Senate, consideration of the Commission bill and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection therewith shall not exceed a total of 100 hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the Commission bill. A motion further to limit debate on the Commission bill is in order and is not debatable. Any debatable motion or appeal is debatable for not to exceed 1 hour, to be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the motion or appeal. All time used for consideration of the Commission bill, including time used for quorum calls and voting, shall be counted against the total 100 hours of consideration.

(iv) NO AMENDMENTS.—No amendment to the Commission bill shall be in order in the Senate.

(v) MOTION TO RECOMMIT.—A motion to recommit a Commission bill shall not be in order under this paragraph.

(vi) VOTE ON FINAL PASSAGE.—In the Senate, immediately following the conclusion of consideration of the Commission bill and a request to establish the presence of a quorum, the vote on final passage of the Commission bill shall occur and shall require an affirmative vote of ⅗ of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(vii) OTHER MOTIONS NOT IN ORDER.—A motion to postpone or a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business is not in order in the Senate. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the Commission bill is agreed to or not agreed to is not in order in the Senate.

(viii) CONSIDERATION OF THE HOUSE BILL.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—If the Senate has received the House companion bill to the Commission bill introduced in the Senate prior to the vote required under clause (vi) and the House companion bill is identical to the Commission bill introduced in the Senate, then the Senate shall consider, and the vote under clause (vi) shall occur on, the House companion bill.

(II) PROCEDURE AFTER VOTE ON SENATE BILL.—If the Senate votes, pursuant to clause (vi), on the bill introduced in the Senate, the Senate bill shall be held pending receipt of the House message on the bill. Upon receipt of the House companion bill, if the House bill is identical to the Senate bill, the House bill shall be deemed to be considered, read for the third time, and the vote on passage of the Senate bill shall be considered to be the vote on the bill received from the House.

(C) NO SUSPENSION.—No motion to suspend the application of this paragraph shall be in order in the Senate or in the House of Representatives.

Subtitle B—Medical Care Access Protection

SEC. 10101. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. 10102. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, distribution, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this subtitle to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of ''defensive medicine'' and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. 10103. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this subtitle, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. 10104. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this subtitle applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. 10105. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this subtitle shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. 10106. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. 10107. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. 10108. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. 10109. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this subtitle.

SEC. 10110. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this subtitle shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. 10111. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this subtitle. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this subtitle; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this subtitle shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this subtitle, notwithstanding section 10105(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this subtitle (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subtitle shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this subtitle;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this Act;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. 10112. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This subtitle shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

Subtitle C—Rescission of Unused Stimulus Funds

SEC. 10201. RESCISSION IN ARRA.

Effective as of October 1, 2010, any unobligated balances available on such date of funds made available by division A of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–5) are rescinded.

SA 3134. Mr. BURR (for himself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, and Mr. WICKER) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 2074, after line 25 insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Medicare Physician Fee Schedule Update for 2010, 2011, and 2012

SEC. 10001. MEDICARE PHYSICIAN FEE SCHEDULE UPDATE FOR 2010, 2011, AND 2012.

Section 1848(d)(10) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(d)), as added by section 3101, is amended to read as follows:

''(10) UPDATE FOR 2010, 2011, AND 2012.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (7)(B), (8)(B), and (9)(B), in lieu of the update to the single conversion factor established in paragraph (1)(C) that would otherwise apply for each of 2010, 2011, and 2012, the update to the single conversion factor shall be 0.5 percent.

''(B) NO EFFECT ON COMPUTATION OF CONVERSION FACTOR FOR 2013 AND SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—The conversion factor under this subsection shall be computed under paragraph (1)(A) for 2013 and subsequent years as if subparagraph (A) had never applied.''.

Subtitle B—Medical Care Access Protection

SEC. 10101. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, distribution, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this subtitle to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of ''defensive medicine'' and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. 10102. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this subtitle, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. 10103. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this subtitle applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. 10104. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this subtitle shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. 10105. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. 10106. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. 10107. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. 10108. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this subtitle.

SEC. 10109. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this subtitle shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. 10110. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this subtitle. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this subtitle; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this subtitle shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this subtitle, notwithstanding section 10104(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this subtitle (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subtitle shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this subtitle;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this Act;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. 10111. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This subtitle shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

Subtitle C—Rescission of Discretionary Amounts Appropriated by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009

SEC. 10201. RESCISSION OF DISCRETIONARY AMOUNTS APPROPRIATED BY THE AMERICAN RECOVERY AND REINVESTMENT ACT OF 2009.

(a) IN GENERAL.—All discretionary amounts made available by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (123 Stat. 115; Public Law No: 111-5) that are unobligated on the date of the enactment of this Act are hereby rescinded.

(b) ADMINISTRATION.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall—

(1) administer the reduction specified in subsection (a); and

(2) submit to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives a report specifying the account and the amount of each reduction made pursuant to subsection (a).

SA 3135. Mr. SANDERS (for himself, Mr. BROWN, Mr. FRANKEN, and Mr. BURRIS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

Beginning on page 1979, line 20, strike all through page 1996, line 3, and insert the following:

SEC. 9001. SURCHARGE ON HIGH INCOME INDIVIDUALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new part:

"PART VIII—SURCHARGE ON HIGH INCOME INDIVIDUALS

"Sec. 59B. Surcharge on high income individuals.

"SEC. 59B. SURCHARGE ON HIGH INCOME INDIVIDUALS.

"(a) GENERAL RULE.—In the case of a taxpayer other than a corporation, there is hereby imposed (in addition to any other tax imposed by this subtitle) a tax equal to 5.4 percent of so much of the modified adjusted gross income of the taxpayer as exceeds $4,800,000.

"(b) TAXPAYERS NOT MAKING A JOINT RETURN.—In the case of any taxpayer other than a taxpayer making a joint return under section 6013 or a surviving spouse (as defined in section 2(a)), subsection (a) shall be applied by substituting '$2,400,000' for '$4,800,000'.

"(c) MODIFIED ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME.—For purposes of this section, the term 'modified adjusted gross income' means adjusted gross income reduced by any deduction (not taken into account in determining adjusted gross income) allowed for investment interest (as defined in section 163(d)). In the case of an estate or trust, adjusted gross income shall be determined as provided in section 67(e).

"(d) SPECIAL RULES.—

"(1) NONRESIDENT ALIEN.—In the case of a nonresident alien individual, only amounts taken into account in connection with the tax imposed under section 871(b) shall be taken into account under this section.

"(2) CITIZENS AND RESIDENTS LIVING ABROAD.—The dollar amount in effect under subsection (a) (after the application of subsection (b)) shall be decreased by the excess of—

"(A) the amounts excluded from the taxpayer's gross income under section 911, over

"(B) the amounts of any deductions or exclusions disallowed under section 911(d)(6) with respect to the amounts described in subparagraph (A).

"(3) CHARITABLE TRUSTS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to a trust all the unexpired interests in which are devoted to one or more of the purposes described in section 170(c)(2)(B).

"(4) NOT TREATED AS TAX IMPOSED BY THIS CHAPTER FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES.—The tax imposed under this section shall not be treated as tax imposed by this chapter for purposes of determining the amount of any credit under this chapter or for purposes of section 55.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of parts for subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"PART VIII. SURCHARGE ON HIGH INCOME INDIVIDUALS.".

(c) SECTION 15 NOT TO APPLY.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall not be treated as a change in a rate of tax for purposes of section 15 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2010.

SA 3136. Mr. UDALL of New Mexico submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, AND MR. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 796, between lines 5 and 6, insert the following:

PART IV—TELEHEALTH AND REMOTE PATIENT MONITORING

SEC. 3031. TELEHEALTH AND REMOTE PATIENT MONITORING.

(a) IMPROVING CREDENTIALING AND PRIVILEGING STANDARDS FOR TELEHEALTH SERVICES.—Section 1834(m) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(5) ESTABLISHMENT OF REMOTE CREDENTIALING AND PRIVILEGING STANDARDS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall establish regulations for considering the remote credentialing and privileging standards applicable to telehealth services, including interpretative services, for originating sites under this subsection. Such regulations shall allow an originating site to accept, and not duplicate, the credentialing and privileging processes and decisions made by another site.

"(B) CLARIFICATION REGARDING ACCEPTANCE OF PROCESSES AND DECISIONS PRIOR TO ENACTMENT OF REGULATIONS.—During the period beginning on such date of enactment and ending on the effective date of the regulations under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall not take any punitive action under any rule or regulation against an originating site on the basis of that site's acceptance, for purposes of receiving telehealth services (including interpretive services), the credentialing and privileging processes and decisions made by another site that is certified by a national body recognized by the Secretary if the site accepting such credentialing and privileging processes is also so certified and complies with the applicable requirements for such acceptance.".

(b) EXPANDING ACCESS TO STROKE TELEHEALTH EVALUATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1834(m)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)(4)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(G) STROKE TELEHEALTH SERVICES.—The term 'stroke telehealth services' means a telehealth service used for the evaluation of individuals with acute stroke.".

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall apply to telehealth services furnished on or after the date that is 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) IMPROVING ACCESS TO TELEHEALTH SERVICES AT IHS FACILITIES.—

(1) COVERAGE OF METROPOLITAN SITES.—Section 1834(m)(4)(C)(i) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)(4)(C)(i)) is amended—

(A) in subclause (II), by deleting "or" at the end;

(B) in subclause (III), by deleting the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following subclause:

"(IV) from a facility of the Indian Health Service (whether operated by such Service or by an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as those terms are defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)).''.

(2) INCLUSION OF IHS FACILITIES AS ORIGINATING SITES.—Section 1834(m)(4)(C)(ii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)(4)(C)(ii)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subclause:

''(IX) A facility of the Indian Health Service, whether operated by such Service or by an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as those terms are defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act).''.

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection apply to telehealth services furnished on or after the date that is 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(d) COMMUNITY-BASED PATIENT MONITORING.—Section 3026(B) of this Act is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(vi) Utilizing telehealth, remote patient monitoring, and other technology when medically appropriate to enhance care transition services provided across the continuum of care.''.

(e) TELEHEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Section 1868 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ee) is amended—

(A) in the heading, by adding at the end the following: ''TELEHEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE''; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(c) TELEHEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A Telehealth Advisory Committee (in this subsection referred to as the 'Advisory Committee') shall be appointed by the Secretary to make annual recommendations to the Secretary on policies of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services regarding telehealth services as established under section 1834(m), including the appropriate addition or deletion of services (and HCPCS codes) to those specified in paragraphs (4)(F)(i) and (4)(F)(ii) of such section and for authorized payment under paragraph (1) of such section, and to Congress on areas in which originating sites are located (as specified in paragraph (4)(C)(i) of such section) and eligible telehealth sites (as described in paragraph (4)(C)(ii) of such section).

''(2) MEMBERSHIP; TERMS.—

''(A) MEMBERSHIP.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Advisory Committee shall be composed of 10 members, to be appointed by the Secretary, of whom—

''(I) 5 shall be practicing physicians;

''(II) 2 shall be practicing nonphysician health care practitioners;

''(III) 2 shall be administrators of telehealth programs; and

''(IV) 1 shall be an informatics or technology expert.

''(ii) REQUIREMENTS FOR APPOINTING MEMBERS.—In appointing members of the Advisory Committee, the Secretary shall—

''(I) ensure that each member has prior experience with the practice of telemedicine or telehealth;

''(II) give preference to individuals who are currently providing telemedicine or telehealth services or who are involved in telemedicine or telehealth programs;

''(III) ensure that the membership of the Advisory Committee represents a balance of specialties and geographic regions; and

''(IV) take into account the recommendations of stakeholders.

''(B) TERMS.—The members of the Advisory Committee shall serve for a 3-year term.

''(C) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—A member of the Advisory Committee may not participate with respect to a particular matter considered in a meeting of the Advisory Committee if such member (or an immediate family member of such member) has a financial interest that could be affected by the advice given to the Secretary with respect to such matter.

''(D) PRIORITY AREAS FOR CONSIDERATION.—In making recommendations under paragraph (1), the committee shall consider recommendations to Congress on the following:

''(i) Increasing coverage of telehealth services to all geographic areas of the United States. Such consideration shall take into account the costs to the Federal Government of such increased coverage and the total offsetting savings accrued to the Federal Government as a result of investments in telehealth.

''(ii) Including providing payments under section 1834(m) for store and forward services for all eligible areas. Such consideration should take into account the experience in Alaska and Hawaii in providing such services under this title, including the impact on costs, the effect on the quality and availability of health services, and ways in which the Federal Government can minimize the risk of fraud and abuse for such services.

''(iii) Expanding coverage under this title of remote monitoring services for—

''(I) individuals with chronic diseases;

''(II) individuals recently discharged from a facility that is an originating site under such section; and

''(III) individuals assigned to an accountable care organization under section 1899, individuals discharged from a hospital that receives disproportionate share payments under section 1886(d)(5)(F) who are in need of transitional care, and individuals who are furnished services under the national pilot program on payment bundling under section 1866D.

Each recommendation made under paragraph (1) shall take into consideration the costs to the Federal Government and the total offsetting savings accrued to the Federal Government as a result of investments in telehealth and ways in which the Federal Government can minimize the risk of fraud and abuse for telehealth services.

''(3) REQUIREMENT TO REVIEW AND PROVIDE RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Advisory Committee shall review and provide recommendations to the Secretary on legislation that would allow other providers of services and suppliers to provide telehealth services to Medicare beneficiaries.

''(4) DEADLINE.—Not later than December 31, 2010, the Advisory Committee shall submit to Congress any recommendations to Congress under paragraph (1), including the recommendations considered under paragraph (2)(D).''.

(2) FOLLOWING RECOMMENDATIONS.—Section 1834(m)(4)(F) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)(4)(F)) is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(iii) RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE TELEHEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—In making determinations under clauses (i) and (ii), the Secretary shall take into account the recommendations of the Telehealth Advisory Committee (established under section 1868(c)) when adding or deleting services (and HCPCS codes) and in establishing policies of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services regarding the delivery of telehealth services. If the Secretary does not implement such a recommendation, the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register a statement regarding the reason such recommendation was not implemented.''.

(3) WAIVER OF ADMINISTRATIVE LIMITATION.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall establish the Telehealth Advisory Committee under the amendment made by paragraph (1) notwithstanding any limitation that may apply to the number of advisory committees that may be established (within the Department of Health and Human Services or otherwise).

(f) LIST OF COVERED TELEHEALTH SERVICES.—Section 1834(m)(4)(F) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(m)(4)(F)), as amended by subsection (e), is further amended—

(1) by redesignating clauses (ii) and (iii) as clauses (iii) and (iv);

(2) by inserting after clause (i) the following new clause:

''(ii) ORIGINATING SITE SERVICES.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II), the Secretary may make payments under this subsection to an originating site described in subparagraph (C)(ii) for services originating at the site.

''(II) LIMITATION.—The Secretary may not make such payments with respect to a service described in subclause (I) if the Secretary finds, upon review of the available evidence, that a service is not safe, effective, or medically beneficial when performed as a telehealth service.''; and

(3) by striking clause (iii), as redesignated under paragraph (1), and inserting the following new clause:

''(iii) YEARLY UPDATE.—The Secretary shall establish a process that provides, on an annual basis—

''(I) for the addition of telehealth services (and HCPCS codes), to those specified in clauses (i) and (ii) for authorized payment under this subsection, unless the Secretary finds, upon review of the available evidence, that a service is not safe, effective, or medically beneficial when performed as a telehealth service; and

''(II) for the deletion of such services (and HCPCS codes), from those specified in clauses (i) and (ii) for authorized payment under this subsection, that the Secretary finds, upon review of additional evidence, are not safe, effective, or medically beneficial when performed as a telehealth service.''.

(g) TELEHEALTH ACCESS TO SMALL POPULATION METROPOLITAN COUNTIES.—Section 1834(m)(4)(C)(i)(II) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(4)(C)(i)(II)) is amended to read as follows:

''(II) in a county with a population of less than 35,000, according to the most recent decennial census, or that is not included in a Metropolitan Statistical Area; or''.

(h) TELEHEALTH ACCESS FOR ''STORE AND FORWARD'' DIAGNOSTIC CONSULTATIONS.—Section 1834(m)(1) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395(m)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following sentence: ''For purposes of the first sentence, in the case of telehealth services that are furnished by a facility of the Indian Health Service, a rural health clinic, a Federally qualified health center, or a critical access hospital (as described in paragraph (4)(C)(ii)) , or a sole community hospital (as defined in section 1886(d)(5)(D)(iii)), the term 'telecommunications system' includes store-and-forward technologies described in the preceding sentence.''.

SA 3137. Mr. BEGICH submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 1339, between lines 18 and 19, insert the following:

SEC. 5211. INCREASING ACCESS TO PRIMARY CARE SERVICES.

(a) STATE GRANTS TO HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS WHO PROVIDE SERVICES TO A HIGH PERCENTAGE OF MEDICALLY UNDERSERVED POPULATIONS OR OTHER SPECIAL POPULATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A State may award grants to health care providers who treat a high percentage, as determined by such State, of medically underserved populations or other special populations in such State.

(2) SOURCE OF FUNDS.—A grant program established by a State under paragraph (1) may not be established within a department, agency, or other entity of such State that administers the Medicaid program under title XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.), and no Federal or State funds allocated to such Medicaid program, the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.), or the TRICARE program under chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code, may be used to award grants or to pay administrative costs associated with a grant program established under paragraph (1).

(b) PROVIDING FOR UNDERSERVED MEDICARE POPULATIONS DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—Subpart III of part D of title III of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 254l et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''SEC. 338N. PROVIDING FOR UNDERSERVED MEDICARE POPULATIONS DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, in not more than 5 States, a demonstration project, to be known as the Providing for Underserved Medicare Populations Demonstration Project, for the purpose of encouraging health care providers who are recent graduates of a health care program to enter into primary care practice, by providing incentive payments to eligible primary health services providers.

''(b) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall grant awards, on a competitive basis, to eligible primary health services providers, as described in paragraph (2). Each recipient of such an award shall receive such award for a period of 3 years, provided such recipient continues to meet the eligibility criteria described in subsection (c).

''(2) AWARD AMOUNTS.—Each award described in paragraph (1) shall be in an amount not to exceed—

''(A) $50,000 per year for the repayment of student loans associated with the health care educational expenses of such recipient; or

''(B) $37,500 per year in cash incentive payments.

''(c) ELIGIBLE PRIMARY HEALTH SERVICES PROVIDERS.—The Secretary shall establish criteria for individuals to be eligible to receive an award under this section, which shall include requirements that such individual—

''(1) be actively employed as a primary health services provider, or have arrangements to commence active employment as a primary health services provider, in one of the 5 States that the Secretary has selected for participation in this demonstration project and in a community with a population of not less than 35,000 and not more than 350,000 and not designated as a health professional shortage area;

''(2) have graduated, not more than 2 years after the date on which such individual would begin receiving incentive payments under this project, from an accredited program that qualifies such individual to maintain employment as a primary health services provider;

''(3) agree that, of the patients receiving care from such primary health services provider in the period during which such individual participates in the project, not less than 60 percent of such patients shall be enrolled in the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act;

''(4) be employed, as described in paragraph (1), in a State in which the 65-and-over population is expected to grow at least 50 percent between 2010 and 2020, according to United States Census Bureau projections; and

''(5) meet such other eligibility criteria established by the Secretary.

''(d) DURATION OF PROGRAM.—The Secretary shall make initial awards to individuals under this section for each of fiscal years 2011 through 2013.

''(e) REPORT.—Not later than December 31, 2015, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report concerning the results of the demonstration project.

''(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated $25,000,000 for fiscal years 2011 through 2015.''.

(c) FACULTY LOAN REPAYMENT FOR PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS.—Section 738(a)(3) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C.293b(a)(3)) is amended by inserting ''schools offering physician assistant education programs,'' after ''public health,''.

(d) NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS.—

(1) FULFILLMENT OF OBLIGATED SERVICE REQUIREMENT THROUGH HALF-TIME SERVICE.—

(A) WAIVERS.—Subsection (i) of section 331 (42 U.S.C. 254d) is amended—

(i) in paragraph (1), by striking ''In carrying out subpart III'' and all that follows through the period and inserting ''In carrying out subpart III, the Secretary may, in accordance with this subsection, issue waivers to individuals who have entered into a contract for obligated service under the Scholarship Program or the Loan Repayment Program under which the individuals are authorized to satisfy the requirement of obligated service through providing clinical practice that is half time.'';

(ii) in paragraph (2)—

(I) in subparagraphs (A)(ii) and (B), by striking ''less than full time'' each place it appears and inserting ''half time'';

(II) in subparagraphs (C) and (F), by striking ''less than full-time service'' each place it appears and inserting ''half-time service''; and

(III) by amending subparagraphs (D) and (E) to read as follows:

''(D) the entity and the Corps member agree in writing that the Corps member will perform half-time clinical practice;

''(E) the Corps member agrees in writing to fulfill all of the service obligations under section 338C through half-time clinical practice and either—

''(i) double the period of obligated service that would otherwise be required; or

''(ii) in the case of contracts entered into under section 338B, accept a minimum service obligation of 2 years with an award amount equal to 50 percent of the amount that would otherwise be payable for full-time service; and''; and

(iii) in paragraph (3), by striking ''In evaluating a demonstration project described in paragraph (1)'' and inserting ''In evaluating waivers issued under paragraph (1)''.

(B) DEFINITIONS.—Subsection (j) of section 331 (42 U.S.C. 254d) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(5) The terms 'full time' and 'full-time' mean a minimum of 40 hours per week in a clinical practice, for a minimum of 45 weeks per year.

''(6) The terms 'half time' and 'half-time' mean a minimum of 20 hours per week (not to exceed 39 hours per week) in a clinical practice, for a minimum of 45 weeks per year.''.

(2) REAPPOINTMENT TO NATIONAL ADVISORY COUNCIL.—Section 337(b)(1) (42 U.S.C. 254j(b)(1)) is amended by striking ''Members may not be reappointed to the Council.''.

(3) LOAN REPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Section 338B(g)(2)(A) (42 U.S.C. 254l–1(g)(2)(A)) is amended by striking ''$35,000'' and inserting ''$50,000, plus, beginning with fiscal year 2012, an amount determined by the Secretary on an annual basis to reflect inflation,''.

(4) TREATMENT OF TEACHING AS OBLIGATED SERVICE.—Subsection (a) of section 338C (42 U.S.C. 254m) is amended by adding at the end the following: ''The Secretary may treat teaching as clinical practice for up to 20 percent of such period of obligated service.''.

TITLE__MEDICAL CARE ACCESS PROTECTION

SEC. __1. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. __2. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider in a medically underserved community, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services) in a medically underserved community.

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services in a medically underserved community, affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider who delivers services in a medically underserved community or a health care institution located in a medically underserved community regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider who delivers services in a medically underserved community or a health care institution located in a medically underserved community regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider who delivers services in a medically underserved community or a health care institution located in a medically underserved community, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this title, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) MEDICALLY UNDERSERVED COMMUNITY.—The term ''medically underserved community'' means a health manpower shortage area as designated under section 332 of the Public Health Service Act.

(15) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(16) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider who delivers services in a medically underserved community or a health care institution located in a medically underserved community. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(17) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(18) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. _3. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this title applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. _4. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this title shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. _5. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. _6. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. _7. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. __8. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this title.

SEC. __9. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this title shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this title in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this title or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this title) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this title shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this title in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this title or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this title) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this title shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. __10. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this title shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this title. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this title supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this title; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this title shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this title) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this title, notwithstanding section ___4(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this title (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this title shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this title;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this title;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. __11. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this title, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this title shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

SEC. ___. STATE OPT OUT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The provisions described in subsection (b) shall not apply to

(1) individuals residing within a State;

(2) employers located within a State; and

(3) health coverage offered within a State; if the State enacts a law rejecting such provisions as described in subsection (b) and attests to the Secretary that the State will implement reforms appropriate for application within the State to reduce the uninsured population of the State and increase access to affordable health insurance options.

(b) EFFECT OF STATE LAW.—The provisions described in this subsection are the following:

(1) The insurance market reform provisions of title I (and the amendments made by such title), except for section 2704 of the Public Health Service Act (as added by section 1201 (relating to preexisting condition exclusions).

(2) The requirements relating to obtaining or providing individual and employer health insurance coverage under title I (and the amendments made by such title).

(3) The provisions relating to Medicaid expansion under the amendments made by title I.

(4) The provisions relating to the Medicare program (and the amendments to such program) under title III and (IV).

(5) The provisions relating to the imposition of, or increases in, fees paid by insurance issuers and drug and medical device manufacturers under the amendments made by this Act.

(6) Any other provision of this Act (or an amendment made by this Act), except for this section.

(c) ABOVE-THE-LINE DEDUCTION FOR HEALTH INSURANCE PREMIUMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 62(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining adjusted gross income) is amended by inserting after paragraph (21) the following new paragraph:

''(22) HEALTH INSURANCE PAYMENTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Any amount allowable as a deduction under section 213 (determined without regard to any income limitation under subsection (a) thereof) by reason of subsection (d)(1)(D) thereof for qualified health insurance.

''(B) QUALIFIED HEALTH INSURANCE.—For purposes of this paragraph—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The term 'qualified health insurance' means insurance offered to individuals located in a State that enacts a law described in section ___(a) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act which constitutes medical care as defined in section 213(d) without regard to—

''(I) paragraph (1)(C) thereof, and

''(II) so much of paragraph (1)(D) thereof as relates to qualified long-term care insurance contracts.

''(ii) EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN OTHER CONTRACTS.—Such term shall not include insurance if a substantial portion of its benefits are excepted benefits (as defined in section 9832(c)).''.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2009.

Mr. FRANKEN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place in title VI, insert the following:

SEC. ___. ANTI-FRAUD CONSULTATION GROUP.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services jointly with the Attorney General shall establish an anti-fraud consultation group for the purpose of coordinating expertise and best practices relating to the analysis, detection, and prevention of fraud, waste, and abuse arising from, or related to, health care.

(b) COMPOSITION.—The anti-fraud consultation group under subsection (a) shall be composed of individuals, to be appointed jointly by the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Attorney General, with expertise from both the public and private sectors in fraud arising from, or related to, health care, including law enforcement personnel, health insurance issuers, physicians and other health care providers, insurance anti-fraud organizations, academic experts, consumer groups, and insurance regulators.

(c) DUTIES.—At the request of the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Attorney General, the anti-fraud consultation group under subsection (a) shall provide advice concerning—

(1) methods of preventing fraud against Federal and State health care programs, consumers, providers, employers, and health insurance issuers;

(2) the evaluation of information and data to improve the ability to detect and prevent fraud;

(3) the enhancement of anti-fraud information data systems, consistent with the protection of personal privacy; and

(4) the coordination of public and private resources in the analysis, detection, and prevention of fraud arising from, or related to, health care.

(d) ANNUAL REPORT.—The anti-fraud consultation group under subsection (a) shall, not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, and annually thereafter, submit to the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Attorney General a report concerning the group's—

(1) accomplishments to improve the coordination of public and private health care anti-fraud actions;

(2) development of enhanced techniques for the analysis, detection, and prevention of fraud; and

(3) recommendations for the improvement of anti-fraud programs.

(e) FUNDING.—The Secretary and the Attorney General shall use funds appropriated to the Secretary or Attorney General prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and otherwise available, to carry out this section.

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, distribution, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of ''defensive medicine'' and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this Act, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. 4. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this Act applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. 5. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this Act shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. 6. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. 7. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. 8. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. 9. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this Act.

SEC. 10. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this Act shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this Act in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this Act or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this Act) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this Act shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this Act in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this Act or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this Act) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. 11. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this Act shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this Act. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this Act supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this Act; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this Act shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this Act, notwithstanding section 5(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this Act (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this Act;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this Act;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. 12. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

SA 3146. Mr. BARRASSO submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 340, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

''(g) PENALTIES CREDITED TO INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS AND USED FOR PREMIUMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not later than January 1, 2014, establish and implement a program under which—

''(A) if a penalty has been imposed under this section with respect to an applicable individual for months during any calendar year, the Secretary—

''(i) establishes an account on behalf of the applicable individual, and

''(ii) credits such account with an amount equal to the amount of the penalty, and

''(B) if the applicable individual subsequently becomes covered under minimum essential coverage for 1 or more months, the Secretary pays to or on behalf of the applicable individual an amount equal to the premiums paid by the individual for such coverage (or, if lesser, the balance in the account established under subparagraph (A)).

''(2) AMOUNTS AVAILABLE ONLY FOR 3 YEARS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—If an account is credited under paragraph (1)(A) with an amount for any calendar year, such amount shall be available for payment under paragraph (1)(B) only for premiums for minimum essential coverage for months occurring during the 3 calendar years immediately following such calendar year.

''(B) SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this subsection—

''(i) the Secretary need only establish 1 account for an individual, and

''(ii) amounts shall be treated as paid out of an account on a first-in, first-out basis.''.

On page 339, between lines 12 and 13, insert the following:

''(5) HIGH DEDUCTIBLE HEALTH PLAN.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—If an applicable individual—

''(i) is an employee of an employer who ceases to offer the employee the opportunity to enroll in an eligible employer-sponsored plan, or

''(ii) ceases employment with an employer and is not otherwise eligible to enroll in an eligible employer-sponsored plan, the applicable individual may enroll in a high deductible health plan described in subparagraph (C) and such plan shall be treated as minimum essential coverage.

''(B) CONTINUED ENROLLMENT.—If an individual described in subparagraph (A) enrolls in a high deductible health plan described in subparagraph (C), such plan shall continue to be treated as minimum essential coverage with respect to that individual during any continuous period of enrollment even if the individual is otherwise eligible to enroll in an eligible employer-sponsored plan.

''(C) PLAN DESCRIBED.—A health plan is described in this subparagraph if it is a high deductible health plan (as defined in section 223(c)(2)) that meets all requirements under such section to be offered in connection with a health savings account. No requirement imposed by any provision of, or any amendment made by, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act shall apply with respect to the plan or issuer thereof.

Subtitle H—Sunset if Premiums Increase Too Rapidly

SEC. 1601. SUNSET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The following requirements shall not apply to health insurance coverage and group health plans offered in the individual or group market within a State during plan years beginning after the sunset date with respect to that market:

(1) Any requirement under section 1301 of this title, section 2707 of the Public Health Service Act, or any other provision of, or amendment made by, this title that a health plan provide an essential health benefits package described in section 1302(a) of this title, including any requirement that the plan provide—

(A) for essential health benefits described in section 1302(b);

(B) in the case of a plan offered in the group market, an annual limitation on the plan's deductible described in section 1302(c)(2); and

(C) a level of coverage described in section 1302(d).

(2) The requirements of section 2701 of the Public Health Service Act (relating to limits on premiums).

(b) COORDINATION WITH QUALIFIED HEALTH PLANS AND PREMIUM TAX CREDITS AND COST-SHARING REDUCTIONS.—In the case of a State to which subsection (a) applies, the Secretary shall establish procedures for establishing which health plans shall be treated as qualified health plans for purposes of the Exchanges established within such State. Such procedures shall ensure that the aggregate amount of premium tax credits under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and cost-sharing reductions under section 1402 with respect to qualified health plans in the individual market within such State does not exceed the aggregate amount of such credits and reductions that would have been allowed if subsection (a) did not apply to such State.

(c) SUNSET DATE.—For purposes of this section—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ''sunset date'' means, with respect to the individual or group market within a State, the first date on which the applicable State authority determines under paragraph (2) that the percentage increase in average annual premiums within such market for a calendar year over the preceding calendar year exceeds the percentage increase for such period in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers published by the Department of Labor.

(2) DETERMINATION.—The applicable State authority shall for each calendar year after 2013 make the determination described in paragraph (1).

(3) APPLICABLE STATE AUTHORITY.—The term ''applicable State authority'' has the meaning given such term by section 2791(d)(1) of the Public Health Service Act.

(q) BUDGET-NEUTRAL EXEMPTION OF CERTAIN PROVIDERS.—Notwithstanding the provisions of, and amendments made by, the preceding subsections of this section—

(1) such provisions and amendments shall not apply to a health care provider that—

(A) is described in section 340B(a)(4) of the Public Health Service Act or 1927(c)(1)(D)(i)(IV) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396r–8(c)(1)(D)(i)(IV)); and

(B) is located in an area that is not a metropolitan statistical area (as determined by the Bureau of the Census); and

(2) the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make appropriate adjustments in the application of such provisions and amendments to ensure that the amount of expenditures under title XVIII of the Social Security Act is equal to the amount of expenditures that would have been made under such title if this subsection had not been enacted, as estimated by the Secretary.

SEC. 1325. PROHIBITION ON FEDERAL BAILOUT OF A CO-OP PLAN OR A COMMUNITY HEALTH INSURANCE OPTION.

(a) PROHIBITION.—Notwithstanding any provision of (or amendment made by) this Act, no Federal funds shall paid to, or used to support the operation of (including ensuring the solvency of), a qualified health plan offered under the Consumer Operated and Oriented Plan (CO-OP) program under section 1322 or a community health insurance option under section 1323.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to—

(1) loans and grants under section 1322(b) or loans or payments under section 1323(c); or

(2) any premium tax credit under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 or any cost-sharing reduction under section 1402, or any advance payment of either, with respect to an individual enrolled in a plan or option described in subsection (a).

TITLE ____—MEDICAL CARE ACCESS PROTECTION

SEC. _1. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. _2. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this title, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. _3. INCREASED FMAP FOR MEDICAL LIABILITY REFORM.

With respect to fiscal years 2011 and 2012, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall increase by an amount equal to 2 percent of the total amount of Federal payments estimated to be made to a State under section 1903(a)(1) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b(a)(1)) for providing medical assistance for children under the State Medicaid program during the fiscal year if the Secretary determines that the State has enacted a law that substantially complies with this title.

SEC. _4. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this title applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. _5. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this title shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. __6. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. __7. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. __8. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability.

If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. __9. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this title.

SEC. __10. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this title shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this title in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this title or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this title) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this title shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this title in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this title or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this title) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this title shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. _11. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this title shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this title. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this title supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this title; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this title shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this title) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this title, notwithstanding section _5(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this title (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this title shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this title;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this title;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. _12. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this title, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this title shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

TITLE X—IMPORTATION OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

SEC. 10001. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Pharmaceutical Market Access and Drug Safety Act of 2009''.

SEC. 10002. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) Americans unjustly pay up to 5 times more to fill their prescriptions than consumers in other countries;

(2) the United States is the largest market for pharmaceuticals in the world, yet American consumers pay the highest prices for brand pharmaceuticals in the world;

(3) a prescription drug is neither safe nor effective to an individual who cannot afford it;

(4) allowing and structuring the importation of prescription drugs to ensure access to safe and affordable drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration will provide a level of safety to American consumers that they do not currently enjoy;

(5) American spend more than $200,000,000,000 on prescription drugs every year;

(6) the Congressional Budget Office has found that the cost of prescription drugs are between 35 to 55 percent less in other highly-developed countries than in the United States; and

(7) promoting competitive market pricing would both contribute to health care savings and allow greater access to therapy, improving health and saving lives.

SEC. 10003. REPEAL OF CERTAIN SECTION REGARDING IMPORTATION OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.

Chapter VIII of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 381 et seq.) is amended by striking section 804.

SEC. 10004. IMPORTATION OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS; WAIVER OF CERTAIN IMPORT RESTRICTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter VIII of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 381 et seq.), as amended by section 10003, is further amended by inserting after section 803 the following:

''SEC. 804. COMMERCIAL AND PERSONAL IMPORTATION OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.

''(a) IMPORTATION OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of qualifying drugs imported or offered for import into the United States from registered exporters or by registered importers—

''(A) the limitation on importation that is established in section 801(d)(1) is waived; and

''(B) the standards referred to in section 801(a) regarding admission of the drugs are subject to subsection (g) of this section (including with respect to qualifying drugs to which section 801(d)(1) does not apply).

''(2) IMPORTERS.—A qualifying drug may not be imported under paragraph (1) unless—

''(A) the drug is imported by a pharmacy, group of pharmacies, or a wholesaler that is a registered importer; or

''(B) the drug is imported by an individual for personal use or for the use of a family member of the individual (not for resale) from a registered exporter.

''(3) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This section shall apply only with respect to a drug that is imported or offered for import into the United States—

''(A) by a registered importer; or

''(B) from a registered exporter to an individual.

''(4) DEFINITIONS.—

''(A) REGISTERED EXPORTER; REGISTERED IMPORTER.—For purposes of this section:

''(i) The term 'registered exporter' means an exporter for which a registration under subsection (b) has been approved and is in effect.

''(ii) The term 'registered importer' means a pharmacy, group of pharmacies, or a wholesaler for which a registration under subsection (b) has been approved and is in effect.

''(iii) The term 'registration condition' means a condition that must exist for a registration under subsection (b) to be approved.

''(B) QUALIFYING DRUG.—For purposes of this section, the term 'qualifying drug' means a drug for which there is a corresponding U.S. label drug.

''(C) U.S. LABEL DRUG.—For purposes of this section, the term 'U.S. label drug' means a prescription drug that—''(i) with respect to a qualifying drug, has the same active ingredient or ingredients, route of administration, dosage form, and strength as the qualifying drug;

''(ii) with respect to the qualifying drug, is manufactured by or for the person that manufactures the qualifying drug;

''(iii) is approved under section 505(c); and

''(iv) is not—

''(I) a controlled substance, as defined in section 102 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 802);

''(II) a biological product, as defined in section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262), including—

''(aa) a therapeutic DNA plasmid product;

''(bb) a therapeutic synthetic peptide product;

''(cc) a monoclonal antibody product for in vivo use; and

''(dd) a therapeutic recombinant DNA-derived product;

''(III) an infused drug, including a peritoneal dialysis solution;

''(IV) an injected drug;

''(V) a drug that is inhaled during surgery;

''(VI) a drug that is the listed drug referred to in 2 or more abbreviated new drug applications under which the drug is commercially marketed; or

''(VII) a sterile opthlamic drug intended for topical use on or in the eye.

''(D) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

''(i)(I) The term 'exporter' means a person that is in the business of exporting a drug to individuals in the United States from Canada or from a permitted country designated by the Secretary under subclause (II), or that, pursuant to submitting a registration under subsection (b), seeks to be in such business.

''(II) The Secretary shall designate a permitted country under subparagraph (E) (other than Canada) as a country from which an exporter may export a drug to individuals in the United States if the Secretary determines that—

''(aa) the country has statutory or regulatory standards that are equivalent to the standards in the United States and Canada with respect to—

''(AA) the training of pharmacists;

''(BB) the practice of pharmacy; and

''(CC) the protection of the privacy of personal medical information; and

''(bb) the importation of drugs to individuals in the United States from the country will not adversely affect public health.

''(ii) The term 'importer' means a pharmacy, a group of pharmacies, or a wholesaler that is in the business of importing a drug into the United States or that, pursuant to submitting a registration under subsection (b), seeks to be in such business.

''(iii) The term 'pharmacist' means a person licensed by a State to practice pharmacy, including the dispensing and selling of prescription drugs.

''(iv) The term 'pharmacy' means a person that—

''(I) is licensed by a State to engage in the business of selling prescription drugs at retail; and

''(II) employs 1 or more pharmacists.

''(v) The term 'prescription drug' means a drug that is described in section 503(b)(1).

''(vi) The term 'wholesaler'—

''(I) means a person licensed as a wholesaler or distributor of prescription drugs in the United States under section 503(e)(2)(A); and

''(II) does not include a person authorized to import drugs under section 801(d)(1).

''(E) PERMITTED COUNTRY.—The term 'permitted country' means—

''(i) Australia;

''(ii) Canada;

''(iii) a member country of the European Union, but does not include a member country with respect to which—

''(I) the country's Annex to the Treaty of Accession to the European Union 2003 includes a transitional measure for the regulation of human pharmaceutical products that has not expired; or

''(II) the Secretary determines that the requirements described in subclauses (I) and (II) of clause (vii) will not be met by the date on which such transitional measure for the regulation of human pharmaceutical products expires;

''(iv) Japan;

''(v) New Zealand;

''(vi) Switzerland; and

''(vii) a country in which the Secretary determines the following requirements are met:

''(I) The country has statutory or regulatory requirements—

''(aa) that require the review of drugs for safety and effectiveness by an entity of the government of the country;

''(bb) that authorize the approval of only those drugs that have been determined to be safe and effective by experts employed by or acting on behalf of such entity and qualified by scientific training and experience to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of drugs on the basis of adequate and well-controlled investigations, including clinical investigations, conducted by experts qualified by scientific training and experience to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of drugs;

''(cc) that require the methods used in, and the facilities and controls used for the manufacture, processing, and packing of drugs in the country to be adequate to preserve their identity, quality, purity, and strength;

''(dd) for the reporting of adverse reactions to drugs and procedures to withdraw approval and remove drugs found not to be safe or effective; and

''(ee) that require the labeling and promotion of drugs to be in accordance with the approval of the drug.

''(II) The valid marketing authorization system in the country is equivalent to the systems in the countries described in clauses (i) through (vi).

''(III) The importation of drugs to the United States from the country will not adversely affect public health.

''(b) REGISTRATION OF IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS.—

''(1) REGISTRATION OF IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS.—A registration condition is that the importer or exporter involved (referred to in this subsection as a 'registrant') submits to the Secretary a registration containing the following:

''(A)(i) In the case of an exporter, the name of the exporter and an identification of all places of business of the exporter that relate to qualifying drugs, including each warehouse or other facility owned or controlled by, or operated for, the exporter.

''(ii) In the case of an importer, the name of the importer and an identification of the places of business of the importer at which the importer initially receives a qualifying drug after importation (which shall not exceed 3 places of business except by permission of the Secretary).

''(B) Such information as the Secretary determines to be necessary to demonstrate that the registrant is in compliance with registration conditions under—

''(i) in the case of an importer, subsections (c), (d), (e), (g), and (j) (relating to the sources of imported qualifying drugs; the inspection of facilities of the importer; the payment of fees; compliance with the standards referred to in section 801(a); and maintenance of records and samples); or

''(ii) in the case of an exporter, subsections (c), (d), (f), (g), (h), (i), and (j) (relating to the sources of exported qualifying drugs; the inspection of facilities of the exporter and the marking of compliant shipments; the payment of fees; and compliance with the standards referred to in section 801(a); being licensed as a pharmacist; conditions for individual importation; and maintenance of records and samples).

''(C) An agreement by the registrant that the registrant will not under subsection (a) import or export any drug that is not a qualifying drug.

''(D) An agreement by the registrant to—

''(i) notify the Secretary of a recall or withdrawal of a qualifying drug distributed in a permitted country that the registrant has exported or imported, or intends to export or import, to the United States under subsection (a);

''(ii) provide for the return to the registrant of such drug; and

''(iii) cease, or not begin, the exportation or importation of such drug unless the Secretary has notified the registrant that exportation or importation of such drug may proceed.

''(E) An agreement by the registrant to ensure and monitor compliance with each registration condition, to promptly correct any noncompliance with such a condition, and to promptly report to the Secretary any such noncompliance.

''(F) A plan describing the manner in which the registrant will comply with the agreement under subparagraph (E).

''(G) An agreement by the registrant to enforce a contract under subsection (c)(3)(B) against a party in the chain of custody of a qualifying drug with respect to the authority of the Secretary under clauses (ii) and (iii) of that subsection.

''(H) An agreement by the registrant to notify the Secretary not more than 30 days before the registrant intends to make the change, of—

''(i) any change that the registrant intends to make regarding information provided under subparagraph (A) or (B); and

''(ii) any change that the registrant intends to make in the compliance plan under subparagraph (F).

''(I) In the case of an exporter:

''(i) An agreement by the exporter that a qualifying drug will not under subsection (a) be exported to any individual not authorized pursuant to subsection (a)(2)(B) to be an importer of such drug.

''(ii) An agreement to post a bond, payable to the Treasury of the United States that is equal in value to the lesser of—

''(I) the value of drugs exported by the exporter to the United States in a typical 4-week period over the course of a year under this section; or

''(II) $1,000,000.

''(iii) An agreement by the exporter to comply with applicable provisions of Canadian law, or the law of the permitted country designated under subsection (a)(4)(D)(i)(II) in which the exporter is located, that protect the privacy of personal information with respect to each individual importing a prescription drug from the exporter under subsection (a)(2)(B).

''(iv) An agreement by the exporter to report to the Secretary—

''(I) not later than August 1 of each fiscal year, the total price and the total volume of drugs exported to the United States by the exporter during the 6-month period from January 1 through June 30 of that year; and

''(II) not later than January 1 of each fiscal year, the total price and the total volume of drugs exported to the United States by the exporter during the previous fiscal year.

''(J) In the case of an importer, an agreement by the importer to report to the Secretary—

''(i) not later than August 1 of each fiscal year, the total price and the total volume of drugs imported to the United States by the importer during the 6-month period from January 1 through June 30 of that fiscal year; and

''(ii) not later than January 1 of each fiscal year, the total price and the total volume of drugs imported to the United States by the importer during the previous fiscal year.

''(K) Such other provisions as the Secretary may require by regulation to protect the public health while permitting—

''(i) the importation by pharmacies, groups of pharmacies, and wholesalers as registered importers of qualifying drugs under subsection (a); and

''(ii) importation by individuals of qualifying drugs under subsection (a).

''(2) APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL OF REGISTRATION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date on which a registrant submits to the Secretary a registration under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall notify the registrant whether the registration is approved or is disapproved. The Secretary shall disapprove a registration if there is reason to believe that the registrant is not in compliance with one or more registration conditions, and shall notify the registrant of such reason. In the case of a disapproved registration, the Secretary shall subsequently notify the registrant that the registration is approved if the Secretary determines that the registrant is in compliance with such conditions.

''(B) CHANGES IN REGISTRATION INFORMATION.—Not later than 30 days after receiving a notice under paragraph (1)(H) from a registrant, the Secretary shall determine whether the change involved affects the approval of the registration of the registrant under paragraph (1), and shall inform the registrant of the determination.

''(3) PUBLICATION OF CONTACT INFORMATION FOR REGISTERED EXPORTERS.—Through the Internet website of the Food and Drug Administration and a toll-free telephone number, the Secretary shall make readily available to the public a list of registered exporters, including contact information for the exporters. Promptly after the approval of a registration submitted under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall update the Internet website and the information provided through the toll-free telephone number accordingly.

''(4) SUSPENSION AND TERMINATION.—

''(A) SUSPENSION.—With respect to the effectiveness of a registration submitted under paragraph (1):

''(i) Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary may suspend the registration if the Secretary determines, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that the registrant has failed to maintain substantial compliance with a registration condition.

''(ii) If the Secretary determines that, under color of the registration, the exporter has exported a drug or the importer has imported a drug that is not a qualifying drug, or a drug that does not comply with subsection (g)(2)(A) or (g)(4), or has exported a qualifying drug to an individual in violation of subsection (i), the Secretary shall immediately suspend the registration. A suspension under the preceding sentence is not subject to the provision by the Secretary of prior notice, and the Secretary shall provide to the registrant an opportunity for a hearing not later than 10 days after the date on which the registration is suspended.

''(iii) The Secretary may reinstate the registration, whether suspended under clause (i) or (ii), if the Secretary determines that the registrant has demonstrated that further violations of registration conditions will not occur.

''(B) TERMINATION.—The Secretary, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, may terminate the registration under paragraph (1) of a registrant if the Secretary determines that the registrant has engaged in a pattern or practice of violating 1 or more registration conditions, or if on 1 or more occasions the Secretary has under subparagraph (A)(ii) suspended the registration of the registrant. The Secretary may make the termination permanent, or for a fixed period of not less than 1 year. During the period in which the registration is terminated, any registration submitted under paragraph (1) by the registrant, or a person that is a partner in the export or import enterprise, or a principal officer in such enterprise, and any registration prepared with the assistance of the registrant or such a person, has no legal effect under this section.

''(5) DEFAULT OF BOND.—A bond required to be posted by an exporter under paragraph (1)(I)(ii) shall be defaulted and paid to the Treasury of the United States if, after opportunity for an informal hearing, the Secretary determines that the exporter has—

''(A) exported a drug to the United States that is not a qualifying drug or that is not in compliance with subsection (g)(2)(A), (g)(4), or (i); or

''(B) failed to permit the Secretary to conduct an inspection described under subsection (d).

''(c) SOURCES OF QUALIFYING DRUGS.—A registration condition is that the exporter or importer involved agrees that a qualifying drug will under subsection (a) be exported or imported into the United States only if there is compliance with the following:

''(1) The drug was manufactured in an establishment—

''(A) required to register under subsection (h) or (i) of section 510; and

''(B)(i) inspected by the Secretary; or

''(ii) for which the Secretary has elected to rely on a satisfactory report of a good manufacturing practice inspection of the establishment from a permitted country whose regulatory system the Secretary recognizes as equivalent under a mutual recognition agreement, as provided for under section 510(i)(3), section 803, or part 26 of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations (or any corresponding successor rule or regulation).

''(2) The establishment is located in any country, and the establishment manufactured the drug for distribution in the United States or for distribution in 1 or more of the permitted countries (without regard to whether in addition the drug is manufactured for distribution in a foreign country that is not a permitted country).

''(3) The exporter or importer obtained the drug—

''(A) directly from the establishment; or

''(B) directly from an entity that, by contract with the exporter or importer—

''(i) provides to the exporter or importer a statement (in such form and containing such information as the Secretary may require) that, for the chain of custody from the establishment, identifies each prior sale, purchase, or trade of the drug (including the date of the transaction and the names and addresses of all parties to the transaction);

''(ii) agrees to permit the Secretary to inspect such statements and related records to determine their accuracy;

''(iii) agrees, with respect to the qualifying drugs involved, to permit the Secretary to inspect warehouses and other facilities, including records, of the entity for purposes of determining whether the facilities are in compliance with any standards under this Act that are applicable to facilities of that type in the United States; and

''(iv) has ensured, through such contractual relationships as may be necessary, that the Secretary has the same authority regarding other parties in the chain of custody from the establishment that the Secretary has under clauses (ii) and (iii) regarding such entity.

''(4)(A) The foreign country from which the importer will import the drug is a permitted country; or

''(B) The foreign country from which the exporter will export the drug is the permitted country in which the exporter is located.

''(5) During any period in which the drug was not in the control of the manufacturer of the drug, the drug did not enter any country that is not a permitted country.

''(6) The exporter or importer retains a sample of each lot of the drug for testing by the Secretary.

''(d) INSPECTION OF FACILITIES; MARKING OF SHIPMENTS.—

''(1) INSPECTION OF FACILITIES.—A registration condition is that, for the purpose of assisting the Secretary in determining whether the exporter involved is in compliance with all other registration conditions—

''(A) the exporter agrees to permit the Secretary—

''(i) to conduct onsite inspections, including monitoring on a day-to-day basis, of places of business of the exporter that relate to qualifying drugs, including each warehouse or other facility owned or controlled by, or operated for, the exporter;

''(ii) to have access, including on a day-to-day basis, to—

''(I) records of the exporter that relate to the export of such drugs, including financial records; and

''(II) samples of such drugs;

''(iii) to carry out the duties described in paragraph (3); and

''(iv) to carry out any other functions determined by the Secretary to be necessary regarding the compliance of the exporter; and

''(B) the Secretary has assigned 1 or more employees of the Secretary to carry out the functions described in this subsection for the Secretary randomly, but not less than 12 times annually, on the premises of places of businesses referred to in subparagraph (A)(i), and such an assignment remains in effect on a continuous basis.

''(2) MARKING OF COMPLIANT SHIPMENTS.—A registration condition is that the exporter involved agrees to affix to each shipping container of qualifying drugs exported under subsection (a) such markings as the Secretary determines to be necessary to identify the shipment as being in compliance with all registration conditions. Markings under the preceding sentence shall—

''(A) be designed to prevent affixation of the markings to any shipping container that is not authorized to bear the markings; and

''(B) include anticounterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies, taking into account the economic and technical feasibility of those technologies.

''(3) CERTAIN DUTIES RELATING TO EXPORTERS.—Duties of the Secretary with respect to an exporter include the following:

''(A) Inspecting, randomly, but not less than 12 times annually, the places of business of the exporter at which qualifying drugs are stored and from which qualifying drugs are shipped.

''(B) During the inspections under subparagraph (A), verifying the chain of custody of a statistically significant sample of qualifying drugs from the establishment in which the drug was manufactured to the exporter, which shall be accomplished or supplemented by the use of anticounterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies, taking into account the economic and technical feasibility of those technologies, except that a drug that lacks such technologies from the point of manufacture shall not for that reason be excluded from importation by an exporter.

''(C) Randomly reviewing records of exports to individuals for the purpose of determining whether the drugs are being imported by the individuals in accordance with the conditions under subsection (i). Such reviews shall be conducted in a manner that will result in a statistically significant determination of compliance with all such conditions.

''(D) Monitoring the affixing of markings under paragraph (2).

''(E) Inspecting as the Secretary determines is necessary the warehouses and other facilities, including records, of other parties in the chain of custody of qualifying drugs.

''(F) Determining whether the exporter is in compliance with all other registration conditions.

''(4) PRIOR NOTICE OF SHIPMENTS.—A registration condition is that, not less than 8 hours and not more than 5 days in advance of the time of the importation of a shipment of qualifying drugs, the importer involved agrees to submit to the Secretary a notice with respect to the shipment of drugs to be imported or offered for import into the United States under subsection (a). A notice under the preceding sentence shall include—

''(A) the name and complete contact information of the person submitting the notice;

''(B) the name and complete contact information of the importer involved;

''(C) the identity of the drug, including the established name of the drug, the quantity of the drug, and the lot number assigned by the manufacturer;

''(D) the identity of the manufacturer of the drug, including the identity of the establishment at which the drug was manufactured;

''(E) the country from which the drug is shipped;

''(F) the name and complete contact information for the shipper of the drug;

''(G) anticipated arrival information, including the port of arrival and crossing location within that port, and the date and time;

''(H) a summary of the chain of custody of the drug from the establishment in which the drug was manufactured to the importer;

''(I) a declaration as to whether the Secretary has ordered that importation of the drug from the permitted country cease under subsection (g)(2)(C) or (D); and

''(J) such other information as the Secretary may require by regulation.

''(5) MARKING OF COMPLIANT SHIPMENTS.—A registration condition is that the importer involved agrees, before wholesale distribution (as defined in section 503(e)) of a qualifying drug that has been imported under subsection (a), to affix to each container of such drug such markings or other technology as the Secretary determines necessary to identify the shipment as being in compliance with all registration conditions, except that the markings or other technology shall not be required on a drug that bears comparable, compatible markings or technology from the manufacturer of the drug. Markings or other technology under the preceding sentence shall—

''(A) be designed to prevent affixation of the markings or other technology to any container that is not authorized to bear the markings; and

''(B) shall include anticounterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies, taking into account the economic and technical feasibility of such technologies.

''(6) CERTAIN DUTIES RELATING TO IMPORTERS.—Duties of the Secretary with respect to an importer include the following:

''(A) Inspecting, randomly, but not less than 12 times annually, the places of business of the importer at which a qualifying drug is initially received after importation.

''(B) During the inspections under subparagraph (A), verifying the chain of custody of a statistically significant sample of qualifying drugs from the establishment in which the drug was manufactured to the importer, which shall be accomplished or supplemented by the use of anticounterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies, taking into account the economic and technical feasibility of those technologies, except that a drug that lacks such technologies from the point of manufacture shall not for that reason be excluded from importation by an importer.

''(C) Reviewing notices under paragraph (4).

''(D) Inspecting as the Secretary determines is necessary the warehouses and other facilities, including records of other parties in the chain of custody of qualifying drugs.

''(E) Determining whether the importer is in compliance with all other registration conditions.

''(e) IMPORTER FEES.—

''(1) REGISTRATION FEE.—A registration condition is that the importer involved pays to the Secretary a fee of $10,000 due on the date on which the importer first submits the registration to the Secretary under subsection (b).

''(2) INSPECTION FEE.—A registration condition is that the importer involved pays a fee to the Secretary in accordance with this subsection. Such fee shall be paid not later than October 1 and April 1 of each fiscal year in the amount provided for under paragraph (3).

''(3) AMOUNT OF INSPECTION FEE.—

''(A) AGGREGATE TOTAL OF FEES.—Not later than 30 days before the start of each fiscal year, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of the Treasury, shall establish an aggregate total of fees to be collected under paragraph (2) for importers for that fiscal year that is sufficient, and not more than necessary, to pay the costs for that fiscal year of administering this section with respect to registered importers, including the costs associated with—

''(i) inspecting the facilities of registered importers, and of other entities in the chain of custody of a qualifying drug as necessary, under subsection (d)(6);

''(ii) developing, implementing, and operating under such subsection an electronic system for submission and review of the notices required under subsection (d)(4) with respect to shipments of qualifying drugs under subsection (a) to assess compliance with all registration conditions when such shipments are offered for import into the United States; and

''(iii) inspecting such shipments as necessary, when offered for import into the United States to determine if such a shipment should be refused admission under subsection (g)(5).

''(B) LIMITATION.—Subject to subparagraph (C), the aggregate total of fees collected under paragraph (2) for a fiscal year shall not exceed 2.5 percent of the total price of qualifying drugs imported during that fiscal year into the United States by registered importers under subsection (a).

''(C) TOTAL PRICE OF DRUGS.—

''(i) ESTIMATE.—For the purposes of complying with the limitation described in subparagraph (B) when establishing under subparagraph (A) the aggregate total of fees to be collected under paragraph (2) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall estimate the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered importers during that fiscal year by adding the total price of qualifying drugs imported by each registered importer during the 6-month period from January 1 through June 30 of the previous fiscal year, as reported to the Secretary by each registered importer under subsection (b)(1)(J).

''(ii) CALCULATION.—Not later than March 1 of the fiscal year that follows the fiscal year for which the estimate under clause (i) is made, the Secretary shall calculate the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered importers during that fiscal year by adding the total price of qualifying drugs imported by each registered importer during that fiscal year, as reported to the Secretary by each registered importer under subsection (b)(1)(J).

''(iii) ADJUSTMENT.—If the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered importers during a fiscal year as calculated under clause (ii) is less than the aggregate total of fees collected under paragraph (2) for that fiscal year, the Secretary shall provide for a pro-rata reduction in the fee due from each registered importer on April 1 of the subsequent fiscal year so that the limitation described in subparagraph (B) is observed.

''(D) INDIVIDUAL IMPORTER FEE.—Subject to the limitation described in subparagraph (B), the fee under paragraph (2) to be paid on October 1 and April 1 by an importer shall be an amount that is proportional to a reasonable estimate by the Secretary of the semiannual share of the importer of the volume of qualifying drugs imported by importers under subsection (a).

''(4) USE OF FEES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be credited to the appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration until expended (without fiscal year limitation), and the Secretary may, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of the Treasury, transfer some proportion of such fees to the appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection until expended (without fiscal year limitation).

''(B) AVAILABILITY.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be made available to the Food and Drug Administration.

''(C) SOLE PURPOSE.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) are only available to the Secretary and, if transferred, to the Secretary of Homeland Security, and are for the sole purpose of paying the costs referred to in paragraph (3)(A).

''(5) COLLECTION OF FEES.—In any case where the Secretary does not receive payment of a fee assessed under paragraph (1) or (2) within 30 days after it is due, such fee shall be treated as a claim of the United States Government subject to subchapter II of chapter 37 of title 31, United States Code.

''(f) EXPORTER FEES.—

''(1) REGISTRATION FEE.—A registration condition is that the exporter involved pays to the Secretary a fee of $10,000 due on the date on which the exporter first submits that registration to the Secretary under subsection (b).

''(2) INSPECTION FEE.—A registration condition is that the exporter involved pays a fee to the Secretary in accordance with this subsection. Such fee shall be paid not later than October 1 and April 1 of each fiscal year in the amount provided for under paragraph (3).

''(3) AMOUNT OF INSPECTION FEE.—

''(A) AGGREGATE TOTAL OF FEES.—Not later than 30 days before the start of each fiscal year, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of the Treasury, shall establish an aggregate total of fees to be collected under paragraph (2) for exporters for that fiscal year that is sufficient, and not more than necessary, to pay the costs for that fiscal year of administering this section with respect to registered exporters, including the costs associated with—

''(i) inspecting the facilities of registered exporters, and of other entities in the chain of custody of a qualifying drug as necessary, under subsection (d)(3);

''(ii) developing, implementing, and operating under such subsection a system to screen marks on shipments of qualifying drugs under subsection (a) that indicate compliance with all registration conditions, when such shipments are offered for import into the United States; and

''(iii) screening such markings, and inspecting such shipments as necessary, when offered for import into the United States to determine if such a shipment should be refused admission under subsection (g)(5).

''(B) LIMITATION.—Subject to subparagraph (C), the aggregate total of fees collected under paragraph (2) for a fiscal year shall not exceed 2.5 percent of the total price of qualifying drugs imported during that fiscal year into the United States by registered exporters under subsection (a).

''(C) TOTAL PRICE OF DRUGS.—

''(i) ESTIMATE.—For the purposes of complying with the limitation described in subparagraph (B) when establishing under subparagraph (A) the aggregate total of fees to be collected under paragraph (2) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall estimate the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered exporters during that fiscal year by adding the total price of qualifying drugs exported by each registered exporter during the 6-month period from January 1 through June 30 of the previous fiscal year, as reported to the Secretary by each registered exporter under subsection (b)(1)(I)(iv).

''(ii) CALCULATION.—Not later than March 1 of the fiscal year that follows the fiscal year for which the estimate under clause (i) is made, the Secretary shall calculate the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered exporters during that fiscal year by adding the total price of qualifying drugs exported by each registered exporter during that fiscal year, as reported to the Secretary by each registered exporter under subsection (b)(1)(I)(iv).

''(iii) ADJUSTMENT.—If the total price of qualifying drugs imported into the United States by registered exporters during a fiscal year as calculated under clause (ii) is less than the aggregate total of fees collected under paragraph (2) for that fiscal year, the Secretary shall provide for a pro-rata reduction in the fee due from each registered exporter on April 1 of the subsequent fiscal year so that the limitation described in subparagraph (B) is observed.

''(D) INDIVIDUAL EXPORTER FEE.—Subject to the limitation described in subparagraph (B), the fee under paragraph (2) to be paid on October 1 and April 1 by an exporter shall be an amount that is proportional to a reasonable estimate by the Secretary of the semiannual share of the exporter of the volume of qualifying drugs exported by exporters under subsection (a).

''(4) USE OF FEES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be credited to the appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration until expended (without fiscal year limitation), and the Secretary may, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of the Treasury, transfer some proportion of such fees to the appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection until expended (without fiscal year limitation).

''(B) AVAILABILITY.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be made available to the Food and Drug Administration.

''(C) SOLE PURPOSE.—Fees collected by the Secretary under paragraphs (1) and (2) are only available to the Secretary and, if transferred, to the Secretary of Homeland Security, and are for the sole purpose of paying the costs referred to in paragraph (3)(A).

''(5) COLLECTION OF FEES.—In any case where the Secretary does not receive payment of a fee assessed under paragraph (1) or (2) within 30 days after it is due, such fee shall be treated as a claim of the United States Government subject to subchapter II of chapter 37 of title 31, United States Code.

''(g) COMPLIANCE WITH SECTION 801(a).—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A registration condition is that each qualifying drug exported under subsection (a) by the registered exporter involved or imported under subsection (a) by the registered importer involved is in compliance with the standards referred to in section 801(a) regarding admission of the drug into the United States, subject to paragraphs (2), (3), and (4).

''(2) SECTION 505; APPROVAL STATUS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A qualifying drug that is imported or offered for import under subsection (a) shall comply with the conditions established in the approved application under section 505(b) for the U.S. label drug as described under this subsection.

''(B) NOTICE BY MANUFACTURER; GENERAL PROVISIONS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The person that manufactures a qualifying drug that is, or will be, introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country shall in accordance with this paragraph submit to the Secretary a notice that—

''(I) includes each difference in the qualifying drug from a condition established in the approved application for the U.S. label drug beyond—

''(aa) the variations provided for in the application; and

''(bb) any difference in labeling (except ingredient labeling); or

''(II) states that there is no difference in the qualifying drug from a condition established in the approved application for the U.S. label drug beyond—

''(aa) the variations provided for in the application; and

''(bb) any difference in labeling (except ingredient labeling).

''(ii) INFORMATION IN NOTICE.—A notice under clause (i)(I) shall include the information that the Secretary may require under section 506A, any additional information the Secretary may require (which may include data on bioequivalence if such data are not required under section 506A), and, with respect to the permitted country that approved the qualifying drug for commercial distribution, or with respect to which such approval is sought, include the following:

''(I) The date on which the qualifying drug with such difference was, or will be, introduced for commercial distribution in the permitted country.

''(II) Information demonstrating that the person submitting the notice has also notified the government of the permitted country in writing that the person is submitting to the Secretary a notice under clause (i)(I), which notice describes the difference in the qualifying drug from a condition established in the approved application for the U.S. label drug.

''(III) The information that the person submitted or will submit to the government of the permitted country for purposes of obtaining approval for commercial distribution of the drug in the country which, if in a language other than English, shall be accompanied by an English translation verified to be complete and accurate, with the name, address, and a brief statement of the qualifications of the person that made the translation.

''(iii) CERTIFICATIONS.—The chief executive officer and the chief medical officer of the manufacturer involved shall each certify in the notice under clause (i) that—

''(I) the information provided in the notice is complete and true; and

''(II) a copy of the notice has been provided to the Federal Trade Commission and to the State attorneys general.

''(iv) FEE.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—If a notice submitted under clause (i) includes a difference that would, under section 506A, require the submission of a supplemental application if made as a change to the U.S. label drug, the person that submits the notice shall pay to the Secretary a fee in the same amount as would apply if the person were paying a fee pursuant to section 736(a)(1)(A)(ii). Fees collected by the Secretary under the preceding sentence are available only to the Secretary and are for the sole purpose of paying the costs of reviewing notices submitted under clause (i).

''(II) FEE AMOUNT FOR CERTAIN YEARS.—If no fee amount is in effect under section 736(a)(1)(A)(ii) for a fiscal year, then the amount paid by a person under subclause (I) shall—

''(aa) for the first fiscal year in which no fee amount under such section in effect, be equal to the fee amount under section 736(a)(1)(A)(ii) for the most recent fiscal year for which such section was in effect, adjusted in accordance with section 736(c); and

''(bb) for each subsequent fiscal year in which no fee amount under such section is effect, be equal to the applicable fee amount for the previous fiscal year, adjusted in accordance with section 736(c).

''(v) TIMING OF SUBMISSION OF NOTICES.—

''(I) PRIOR APPROVAL NOTICES.—A notice under clause (i) to which subparagraph (C) applies shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than 120 days before the qualifying drug with the difference is introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country, unless the country requires that distribution of the qualifying drug with the difference begin less than 120 days after the country requires the difference.

''(II) OTHER APPROVAL NOTICES.—A notice under clause (i) to which subparagraph (D) applies shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than the day on which the qualifying drug with the difference is introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country.

''(III) OTHER NOTICES.—A notice under clause (i) to which subparagraph (E) applies shall be submitted to the Secretary on the date that the qualifying drug is first introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country and annually thereafter.

''(vi) REVIEW BY SECRETARY.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—In this paragraph, the difference in a qualifying drug that is submitted in a notice under clause (i) from the U.S. label drug shall be treated by the Secretary as if it were a manufacturing change to the U.S. label drug under section 506A.

''(II) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—Except as provided in subclause (III), the Secretary shall review and approve or disapprove the difference in a notice submitted under clause (i), if required under section 506A, using the safe and effective standard for approving or disapproving a manufacturing change under section 506A.

''(III) BIOEQUIVALENCE.—If the Secretary would approve the difference in a notice submitted under clause (i) using the safe and effective standard under section 506A and if the Secretary determines that the qualifying drug is not bioequivalent to the U.S. label drug, the Secretary shall—

''(aa) include in the labeling provided under paragraph (3) a prominent advisory that the qualifying drug is safe and effective but is not bioequivalent to the U.S. label drug if the Secretary determines that such an advisory is necessary for health care practitioners and patients to use the qualifying drug safely and effectively; or

''(bb) decline to approve the difference if the Secretary determines that the availability of both the qualifying drug and the U.S. label drug would pose a threat to the public health.

''(IV) REVIEW BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall review and approve or disapprove the difference in a notice submitted under clause (i), if required under section 506A, not later than 120 days after the date on which the notice is submitted.

''(V) ESTABLISHMENT INSPECTION.—If review of such difference would require an inspection of the establishment in which the qualifying drug is manufactured—

''(aa) such inspection by the Secretary shall be authorized; and

''(bb) the Secretary may rely on a satisfactory report of a good manufacturing practice inspection of the establishment from a permitted country whose regulatory system the Secretary recognizes as equivalent under a mutual recognition agreement, as provided under section 510(i)(3), section 803, or part 26 of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations (or any corresponding successor rule or regulation).

''(vii) PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION ON NOTICES.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Through the Internet website of the Food and Drug Administration and a toll-free telephone number, the Secretary shall readily make available to the public a list of notices submitted under clause (i).

''(II) CONTENTS.—The list under subclause (I) shall include the date on which a notice is submitted and whether—

''(aa) a notice is under review;

''(bb) the Secretary has ordered that importation of the qualifying drug from a permitted country cease; or

''(cc) the importation of the drug is permitted under subsection (a).

''(III) UPDATE.—The Secretary shall promptly update the Internet website with any changes to the list.

''(C) NOTICE; DRUG DIFFERENCE REQUIRING PRIOR APPROVAL.—In the case of a notice under subparagraph (B)(i) that includes a difference that would, under subsection (c) or (d)(3)(B)(i) of section 506A, require the approval of a supplemental application before the difference could be made to the U.S. label drug the following shall occur:

''(i) Promptly after the notice is submitted, the Secretary shall notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general that the notice has been submitted with respect to the qualifying drug involved.

''(ii) If the Secretary has not made a determination whether such a supplemental application regarding the U.S. label drug would be approved or disapproved by the date on which the qualifying drug involved is to be introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country, the Secretary shall—

''(I) order that the importation of the qualifying drug involved from the permitted country not begin until the Secretary completes review of the notice; and

''(II) promptly notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general of the order.

''(iii) If the Secretary determines that such a supplemental application regarding the U.S. label drug would not be approved, the Secretary shall—

''(I) order that the importation of the qualifying drug involved from the permitted country cease, or provide that an order under clause (ii), if any, remains in effect;

''(II) notify the permitted country that approved the qualifying drug for commercial distribution of the determination; and

''(III) promptly notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general of the determination.

''(iv) If the Secretary determines that such a supplemental application regarding the U.S. label drug would be approved, the Secretary shall—

''(I) vacate the order under clause (ii), if any;

''(II) consider the difference to be a variation provided for in the approved application for the U.S. label drug;

''(III) permit importation of the qualifying drug under subsection (a); and

''(IV) promptly notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general of the determination.

''(D) NOTICE; DRUG DIFFERENCE NOT REQUIRING PRIOR APPROVAL.—In the case of a notice under subparagraph (B)(i) that includes a difference that would, under section 506A(d)(3)(B)(ii), not require the approval of a supplemental application before the difference could be made to the U.S. label drug the following shall occur:

''(i) During the period in which the notice is being reviewed by the Secretary, the authority under this subsection to import the qualifying drug involved continues in effect.

''(ii) If the Secretary determines that such a supplemental application regarding the U.S. label drug would not be approved, the Secretary shall—

''(I) order that the importation of the qualifying drug involved from the permitted country cease;

''(II) notify the permitted country that approved the qualifying drug for commercial distribution of the determination; and

''(III) promptly notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general of the determination.

''(iii) If the Secretary determines that such a supplemental application regarding the U.S. label drug would be approved, the difference shall be considered to be a variation provided for in the approved application for the U.S. label drug.

''(E) NOTICE; DRUG DIFFERENCE NOT REQUIRING APPROVAL; NO DIFFERENCE.—In the case of a notice under subparagraph (B)(i) that includes a difference for which, under section 506A(d)(1)(A), a supplemental application would not be required for the difference to be made to the U.S. label drug, or that states that there is no difference, the Secretary—

''(i) shall consider such difference to be a variation provided for in the approved application for the U.S. label drug;

''(ii) may not order that the importation of the qualifying drug involved cease; and

''(iii) shall promptly notify registered exporters and registered importers.

''(F) DIFFERENCES IN ACTIVE INGREDIENT, ROUTE OF ADMINISTRATION, DOSAGE FORM, OR STRENGTH.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A person who manufactures a drug approved under section 505(b) shall submit an application under section 505(b) for approval of another drug that is manufactured for distribution in a permitted country by or for the person that manufactures the drug approved under section 505(b) if—

''(I) there is no qualifying drug in commercial distribution in permitted countries whose combined population represents at least 50 percent of the total population of all permitted countries with the same active ingredient or ingredients, route of administration, dosage form, and strength as the drug approved under section 505(b); and

''(II) each active ingredient of the other drug is related to an active ingredient of the drug approved under section 505(b), as defined in clause (v).

''(ii) APPLICATION UNDER SECTION 505(b).—The application under section 505(b) required under clause (i) shall—

''(I) request approval of the other drug for the indication or indications for which the drug approved under section 505(b) is labeled;

''(II) include the information that the person submitted to the government of the permitted country for purposes of obtaining approval for commercial distribution of the other drug in that country, which if in a language other than English, shall be accompanied by an English translation verified to be complete and accurate, with the name, address, and a brief statement of the qualifications of the person that made the translation;

''(III) include a right of reference to the application for the drug approved under section 505(b); and

''(IV) include such additional information as the Secretary may require.

''(iii) TIMING OF SUBMISSION OF APPLICATION.—An application under section 505(b) required under clause (i) shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than the day on which the information referred to in clause (ii)(II) is submitted to the government of the permitted country.

''(iv) NOTICE OF DECISION ON APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall promptly notify registered exporters, registered importers, the Federal Trade Commission, and the State attorneys general of a determination to approve or to disapprove an application under section 505(b) required under clause (i).

''(v) RELATED ACTIVE INGREDIENTS.—For purposes of clause (i)(II), 2 active ingredients are related if they are—

''(I) the same; or

''(II) different salts, esters, or complexes of the same moiety.

''(3) SECTION 502; LABELING.—

''(A) IMPORTATION BY REGISTERED IMPORTER.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a qualifying drug that is imported or offered for import by a registered importer, such drug shall be considered to be in compliance with section 502 and the labeling requirements under the approved application for the U.S. label drug if the qualifying drug bears—

''(I) a copy of the labeling approved for the U.S. label drug under section 505, without regard to whether the copy bears any trademark involved;

''(II) the name of the manufacturer and location of the manufacturer;

''(III) the lot number assigned by the manufacturer;

''(IV) the name, location, and registration number of the importer; and

''(V) the National Drug Code number assigned to the qualifying drug by the Secretary.

''(ii) REQUEST FOR COPY OF THE LABELING.—The Secretary shall provide such copy to the registered importer involved, upon request of the importer.

''(iii) REQUESTED LABELING.—The labeling provided by the Secretary under clause (ii) shall—

''(I) include the established name, as defined in section 502(e)(3), for each active ingredient in the qualifying drug;

''(II) not include the proprietary name of the U.S. label drug or any active ingredient thereof;

''(III) if required under paragraph (2)(B)(vi)(III), a prominent advisory that the qualifying drug is safe and effective but not bioequivalent to the U.S. label drug; and

''(IV) if the inactive ingredients of the qualifying drug are different from the inactive ingredients for the U.S. label drug, include—

''(aa) a prominent notice that the ingredients of the qualifying drug differ from the ingredients of the U.S. label drug and that the qualifying drug must be dispensed with an advisory to people with allergies about this difference and a list of ingredients; and

''(bb) a list of the ingredients of the qualifying drug as would be required under section 502(e).

''(B) IMPORTATION BY INDIVIDUAL.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a qualifying drug that is imported or offered for import by a registered exporter to an individual, such drug shall be considered to be in compliance with section 502 and the labeling requirements under the approved application for the U.S. label drug if the packaging and labeling of the qualifying drug complies with all applicable regulations promulgated under sections 3 and 4 of the Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 (15 U.S.C. 1471 et seq.) and the labeling of the qualifying drug includes—

''(I) directions for use by the consumer;

''(II) the lot number assigned by the manufacturer;

''(III) the name and registration number of the exporter;

''(IV) if required under paragraph (2)(B)(vi)(III), a prominent advisory that the drug is safe and effective but not bioequivalent to the U.S. label drug;

''(V) if the inactive ingredients of the drug are different from the inactive ingredients for the U.S. label drug—

''(aa) a prominent advisory that persons with an allergy should check the ingredient list of the drug because the ingredients of the drug differ from the ingredients of the U.S. label drug; and

''(bb) a list of the ingredients of the drug as would be required under section 502(e); and

''(VI) a copy of any special labeling that would be required by the Secretary had the U.S. label drug been dispensed by a pharmacist in the United States, without regard to whether the special labeling bears any trademark involved.

''(ii) PACKAGING.—A qualifying drug offered for import to an individual by an exporter under this section that is packaged in a unit-of-use container (as those items are defined in the United States Pharmacopeia and National Formulary) shall not be repackaged, provided that—

''(I) the packaging complies with all applicable regulations under sections 3 and 4 of the Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 (15 U.S.C. 1471 et seq.); or

''(II) the consumer consents to waive the requirements of such Act, after being informed that the packaging does not comply with such Act and that the exporter will provide the drug in packaging that is compliant at no additional cost.

''(iii) REQUEST FOR COPY OF SPECIAL LABELING AND INGREDIENT LIST.—The Secretary shall provide to the registered exporter involved a copy of the special labeling, the advisory, and the ingredient list described under clause (i), upon request of the exporter.

''(iv) REQUESTED LABELING AND INGREDIENT LIST.—The labeling and ingredient list provided by the Secretary under clause (iii) shall—

''(I) include the established name, as defined in section 502(e)(3), for each active ingredient in the drug; and

''(II) not include the proprietary name of the U.S. label drug or any active ingredient thereof.

''(4) SECTION 501; ADULTERATION.—A qualifying drug that is imported or offered for import under subsection (a) shall be considered to be in compliance with section 501 if the drug is in compliance with subsection (c).

''(5) STANDARDS FOR REFUSING ADMISSION.—A drug exported under subsection (a) from a registered exporter or imported by a registered importer may be refused admission into the United States if 1 or more of the following applies:

''(A) The drug is not a qualifying drug.

''(B) A notice for the drug required under paragraph (2)(B) has not been submitted to the Secretary.

''(C) The Secretary has ordered that importation of the drug from the permitted country cease under subparagraph (C) or (D) of paragraph (2).

''(D) The drug does not comply with paragraph (3) or (4).

''(E) The shipping container appears damaged in a way that may affect the strength, quality, or purity of the drug.

''(F) The Secretary becomes aware that—

''(i) the drug may be counterfeit;

''(ii) the drug may have been prepared, packed, or held under insanitary conditions; or

''(iii) the methods used in, or the facilities or controls used for, the manufacturing, processing, packing, or holding of the drug do not conform to good manufacturing practice.

''(G) The Secretary has obtained an injunction under section 302 that prohibits the distribution of the drug in interstate commerce.

''(H) The Secretary has under section 505(e) withdrawn approval of the drug.

''(I) The manufacturer of the drug has instituted a recall of the drug.

''(J) If the drug is imported or offered for import by a registered importer without submission of a notice in accordance with subsection (d)(4).

''(K) If the drug is imported or offered for import from a registered exporter to an individual and 1 or more of the following applies:

''(i) The shipping container for such drug does not bear the markings required under subsection (d)(2).

''(ii) The markings on the shipping container appear to be counterfeit.

''(iii) The shipping container or markings appear to have been tampered with.

''(h) EXPORTER LICENSURE IN PERMITTED COUNTRY.—A registration condition is that the exporter involved agrees that a qualifying drug will be exported to an individual only if the Secretary has verified that—

''(1) the exporter is authorized under the law of the permitted country in which the exporter is located to dispense prescription drugs; and

''(2) the exporter employs persons that are licensed under the law of the permitted country in which the exporter is located to dispense prescription drugs in sufficient number to dispense safely the drugs exported by the exporter to individuals, and the exporter assigns to those persons responsibility for dispensing such drugs to individuals.

''(i) INDIVIDUALS; CONDITIONS FOR IMPORTATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of subsection (a)(2)(B), the importation of a qualifying drug by an individual is in accordance with this subsection if the following conditions are met:

''(A) The drug is accompanied by a copy of a prescription for the drug, which prescription—

''(i) is valid under applicable Federal and State laws; and

''(ii) was issued by a practitioner who, under the law of a State of which the individual is a resident, or in which the individual receives care from the practitioner who issues the prescription, is authorized to administer prescription drugs.

''(B) The drug is accompanied by a copy of the documentation that was required under the law or regulations of the permitted country in which the exporter is located, as a condition of dispensing the drug to the individual.

''(C) The copies referred to in subparagraphs (A)(i) and (B) are marked in a manner sufficient—

''(i) to indicate that the prescription, and the equivalent document in the permitted country in which the exporter is located, have been filled; and

''(ii) to prevent a duplicative filling by another pharmacist.

''(D) The individual has provided to the registered exporter a complete list of all drugs used by the individual for review by the individuals who dispense the drug.

''(E) The quantity of the drug does not exceed a 90-day supply.

''(F) The drug is not an ineligible subpart H drug. For purposes of this section, a prescription drug is an 'ineligible subpart H drug' if the drug was approved by the Secretary under subpart H of part 314 of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations (relating to accelerated approval), with restrictions under section 520 of such part to assure safe use, and the Secretary has published in the Federal Register a notice that the Secretary has determined that good cause exists to prohibit the drug from being imported pursuant to this subsection.

''(2) NOTICE REGARDING DRUG REFUSED ADMISSION.—If a registered exporter ships a drug to an individual pursuant to subsection (a)(2)(B) and the drug is refused admission to the United States, a written notice shall be sent to the individual and to the exporter that informs the individual and the exporter of such refusal and the reason for the refusal.

''(j) MAINTENANCE OF RECORDS AND SAMPLES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A registration condition is that the importer or exporter involved shall—

''(A) maintain records required under this section for not less than 2 years; and

''(B) maintain samples of each lot of a qualifying drug required under this section for not more than 2 years.

''(2) PLACE OF RECORD MAINTENANCE.—The records described under paragraph (1) shall be maintained—

''(A) in the case of an importer, at the place of business of the importer at which the importer initially receives the qualifying drug after importation; or

''(B) in the case of an exporter, at the facility from which the exporter ships the qualifying drug to the United States.

''(k) DRUG RECALLS.—

''(1) MANUFACTURERS.—A person that manufactures a qualifying drug imported from a permitted country under this section shall promptly inform the Secretary—

''(A) if the drug is recalled or withdrawn from the market in a permitted country;

''(B) how the drug may be identified, including lot number; and

''(C) the reason for the recall or withdrawal.

''(2) SECRETARY.—With respect to each permitted country, the Secretary shall—

''(A) enter into an agreement with the government of the country to receive information about recalls and withdrawals of qualifying drugs in the country; or

''(B) monitor recalls and withdrawals of qualifying drugs in the country using any information that is available to the public in any media.

''(3) NOTICE.—The Secretary may notify, as appropriate, registered exporters, registered importers, wholesalers, pharmacies, or the public of a recall or withdrawal of a qualifying drug in a permitted country.

''(l) DRUG LABELING AND PACKAGING.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—When a qualifying drug that is imported into the United States by an importer under subsection (a) is dispensed by a pharmacist to an individual, the pharmacist shall provide that the packaging and labeling of the drug complies with all applicable regulations promulgated under sections 3 and 4 of the Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 (15 U.S.C. 1471 et seq.) and shall include with any other labeling provided to the individual the following:

''(A) The lot number assigned by the manufacturer.

''(B) The name and registration number of the importer.

''(C) If required under paragraph (2)(B)(vi)(III) of subsection (g), a prominent advisory that the drug is safe and effective but not bioequivalent to the U.S. label drug.

''(D) If the inactive ingredients of the drug are different from the inactive ingredients for the U.S. label drug—

''(i) a prominent advisory that persons with allergies should check the ingredient list of the drug because the ingredients of the drug differ from the ingredients of the U.S. label drug; and

''(ii) a list of the ingredients of the drug as would be required under section 502(e).

''(2) PACKAGING.—A qualifying drug that is packaged in a unit-of-use container (as those terms are defined in the United States Pharmacopeia and National Formulary) shall not be repackaged, provided that—

''(A) the packaging complies with all applicable regulations under sections 3 and 4 of the Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 (15 U.S.C. 1471 et seq.); or

''(B) the consumer consents to waive the requirements of such Act, after being informed that the packaging does not comply with such Act and that the pharmacist will provide the drug in packaging that is compliant at no additional cost.

''(m) CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, this section does not authorize the importation into the United States of a qualifying drug donated or otherwise supplied for free or at nominal cost by the manufacturer of the drug to a charitable or humanitarian organization, including the United Nations and affiliates, or to a government of a foreign country.

''(n) UNFAIR AND DISCRIMINATORY ACTS AND PRACTICES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—It is unlawful for a manufacturer, directly or indirectly (including by being a party to a licensing agreement or other agreement), to—

''(A) discriminate by charging a higher price for a prescription drug sold to a registered exporter or other person in a permitted country that exports a qualifying drug to the United States under this section than the price that is charged, inclusive of rebates or other incentives to the permitted country or other person, to another person that is in the same country and that does not export a qualifying drug into the United States under this section;

''(B) discriminate by charging a higher price for a prescription drug sold to a registered importer or other person that distributes, sells, or uses a qualifying drug imported into the United States under this section than the price that is charged to another person in the United States that does not import a qualifying drug under this section, or that does not distribute, sell, or use such a drug;

''(C) discriminate by denying, restricting, or delaying supplies of a prescription drug to a registered exporter or other person in a permitted country that exports a qualifying drug to the United States under this section or to a registered importer or other person that distributes, sells, or uses a qualifying drug imported into the United States under this section;

''(D) discriminate by publicly, privately, or otherwise refusing to do business with a registered exporter or other person in a permitted country that exports a qualifying drug to the United States under this section or with a registered importer or other person that distributes, sells, or uses a qualifying drug imported into the United States under this section;

''(E) knowingly fail to submit a notice under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i), knowingly fail to submit such a notice on or before the date specified in subsection (g)(2)(B)(v) or as otherwise required under paragraphs (3), (4), and (5) of section 10004(e) of the Pharmaceutical Market Access and Drug Safety Act of 2009, knowingly submit such a notice that makes a materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement, or knowingly fail to provide promptly any information requested by the Secretary to review such a notice;

''(F) knowingly fail to submit an application required under subsection (g)(2)(F), knowingly fail to submit such an application on or before the date specified in subsection (g)(2)(F)(iii), knowingly submit such an application that makes a materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement, or knowingly fail to provide promptly any information requested by the Secretary to review such an application;

''(G) cause there to be a difference (including a difference in active ingredient, route of administration, dosage form, strength, formulation, manufacturing establishment, manufacturing process, or person that manufactures the drug) between a prescription drug for distribution in the United States and the drug for distribution in a permitted country;

''(H) refuse to allow an inspection authorized under this section of an establishment that manufactures a qualifying drug that is, or will be, introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country;

''(I) fail to conform to the methods used in, or the facilities used for, the manufacturing, processing, packing, or holding of a qualifying drug that is, or will be, introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country to good manufacturing practice under this Act;

''(J) become a party to a licensing agreement or other agreement related to a qualifying drug that fails to provide for compliance with all requirements of this section with respect to such drug;

''(K) enter into a contract that restricts, prohibits, or delays the importation of a qualifying drug under this section;

''(L) engage in any other action to restrict, prohibit, or delay the importation of a qualifying drug under this section; or

''(M) engage in any other action that the Federal Trade Commission determines to discriminate against a person that engages or attempts to engage in the importation of a qualifying drug under this section.

''(2) REFERRAL OF POTENTIAL VIOLATIONS.—The Secretary shall promptly refer to the Federal Trade Commission each potential violation of subparagraph (E), (F), (G), (H), or (I) of paragraph (1) that becomes known to the Secretary.

''(3) AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE.—

''(A) DISCRIMINATION.—It shall be an affirmative defense to a charge that a manufacturer has discriminated under subparagraph (A), (B), (C), (D), or (M) of paragraph (1) that the higher price charged for a prescription drug sold to a person, the denial, restriction, or delay of supplies of a prescription drug to a person, the refusal to do business with a person, or other discriminatory activity against a person, is not based, in whole or in part, on—

''(i) the person exporting or importing a qualifying drug into the United States under this section; or

''(ii) the person distributing, selling, or using a qualifying drug imported into the United States under this section.

''(B) DRUG DIFFERENCES.—It shall be an affirmative defense to a charge that a manufacturer has caused there to be a difference described in subparagraph (G) of paragraph (1) that—

''(i) the difference was required by the country in which the drug is distributed;

''(ii) the Secretary has determined that the difference was necessary to improve the safety or effectiveness of the drug;

''(iii) the person manufacturing the drug for distribution in the United States has given notice to the Secretary under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i) that the drug for distribution in the United States is not different from a drug for distribution in permitted countries whose combined population represents at least 50 percent of the total population of all permitted countries; or

''(iv) the difference was not caused, in whole or in part, for the purpose of restricting importation of the drug into the United States under this section.

''(4) EFFECT OF SUBSECTION.—

''(A) SALES IN OTHER COUNTRIES.—This subsection applies only to the sale or distribution of a prescription drug in a country if the manufacturer of the drug chooses to sell or distribute the drug in the country. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to compel the manufacturer of a drug to distribute or sell the drug in a country.

''(B) DISCOUNTS TO INSURERS, HEALTH PLANS, PHARMACY BENEFIT MANAGERS, AND COVERED ENTITIES.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to—

''(i) prevent or restrict a manufacturer of a prescription drug from providing discounts to an insurer, health plan, pharmacy benefit manager in the United States, or covered entity in the drug discount program under section 340B of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 256b) in return for inclusion of the drug on a formulary;

''(ii) require that such discounts be made available to other purchasers of the prescription drug; or

''(iii) prevent or restrict any other measures taken by an insurer, health plan, or pharmacy benefit manager to encourage consumption of such prescription drug.

''(C) CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to—

''(i) prevent a manufacturer from donating a prescription drug, or supplying a prescription drug at nominal cost, to a charitable or humanitarian organization, including the United Nations and affiliates, or to a government of a foreign country; or

''(ii) apply to such donations or supplying of a prescription drug.

''(5) ENFORCEMENT.—

''(A) UNFAIR OR DECEPTIVE ACT OR PRACTICE.—A violation of this subsection shall be treated as a violation of a rule defining an unfair or deceptive act or practice prescribed under section 18(a)(1)(B) of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 57a(a)(1)(B)).

''(B) ACTIONS BY THE COMMISSION.—The Federal Trade Commission—

''(i) shall enforce this subsection in the same manner, by the same means, and with the same jurisdiction, powers, and duties as though all applicable terms and provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.) were incorporated into and made a part of this section; and

''(ii) may seek monetary relief threefold the damages sustained, in addition to any other remedy available to the Federal Trade Commission under the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.).

''(6) ACTIONS BY STATES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—

''(i) CIVIL ACTIONS.—In any case in which the attorney general of a State has reason to believe that an interest of the residents of that State have been adversely affected by any manufacturer that violates paragraph (1), the attorney general of a State may bring a civil action on behalf of the residents of the State, and persons doing business in the State, in a district court of the United States of appropriate jurisdiction to—

''(I) enjoin that practice;

''(II) enforce compliance with this subsection;

''(III) obtain damages, restitution, or other compensation on behalf of residents of the State and persons doing business in the State, including threefold the damages; or

''(IV) obtain such other relief as the court may consider to be appropriate.

''(ii) NOTICE.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Before filing an action under clause (i), the attorney general of the State involved shall provide to the Federal Trade Commission—

''(aa) written notice of that action; and

''(bb) a copy of the complaint for that action.

''(II) EXEMPTION.—Subclause (I) shall not apply with respect to the filing of an action by an attorney general of a State under this paragraph, if the attorney general determines that it is not feasible to provide the notice described in that subclause before filing of the action. In such case, the attorney general of a State shall provide notice and a copy of the complaint to the Federal Trade Commission at the same time as the attorney general files the action.

''(B) INTERVENTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—On receiving notice under subparagraph (A)(ii), the Federal Trade Commission shall have the right to intervene in the action that is the subject of the notice.

''(ii) EFFECT OF INTERVENTION.—If the Federal Trade Commission intervenes in an action under subparagraph (A), it shall have the right—

''(I) to be heard with respect to any matter that arises in that action; and

''(II) to file a petition for appeal.

''(C) CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of bringing any civil action under subparagraph (A), nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent an attorney general of a State from exercising the powers conferred on the attorney general by the laws of that State to—

''(i) conduct investigations;

''(ii) administer oaths or affirmations; or

''(iii) compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of documentary and other evidence.

''(D) ACTIONS BY THE COMMISSION.—In any case in which an action is instituted by or on behalf of the Federal Trade Commission for a violation of paragraph (1), a State may not, during the pendency of that action, institute an action under subparagraph (A) for the same violation against any defendant named in the complaint in that action.

''(E) VENUE.—Any action brought under subparagraph (A) may be brought in the district court of the United States that meets applicable requirements relating to venue under section 1391 of title 28, United States Code.

''(F) SERVICE OF PROCESS.—In an action brought under subparagraph (A), process may be served in any district in which the defendant—

''(i) is an inhabitant; or

''(ii) may be found.

''(G) MEASUREMENT OF DAMAGES.—In any action under this paragraph to enforce a cause of action under this subsection in which there has been a determination that a defendant has violated a provision of this subsection, damages may be proved and assessed in the aggregate by statistical or sampling methods, by the computation of illegal overcharges or by such other reasonable system of estimating aggregate damages as the court in its discretion may permit without the necessity of separately proving the individual claim of, or amount of damage to, persons on whose behalf the suit was brought.

''(H) EXCLUSION ON DUPLICATIVE RELIEF.—The district court shall exclude from the amount of monetary relief awarded in an action under this paragraph brought by the attorney general of a State any amount of monetary relief which duplicates amounts which have been awarded for the same injury.

''(7) EFFECT ON ANTITRUST LAWS.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to modify, impair, or supersede the operation of the antitrust laws. For the purpose of this subsection, the term 'antitrust laws' has the meaning given it in the first section of the Clayton Act, except that it includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act to the extent that such section 5 applies to unfair methods of competition.

''(8) MANUFACTURER.—In this subsection, the term 'manufacturer' means any entity, including any affiliate or licensee of that entity, that is engaged in—

''(A) the production, preparation, propagation, compounding, conversion, or processing of a prescription drug, either directly or indirectly by extraction from substances of natural origin, or independently by means of chemical synthesis, or by a combination of extraction and chemical synthesis; or

''(B) the packaging, repackaging, labeling, relabeling, or distribution of a prescription drug.''.

(b) PROHIBITED ACTS.—The Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act is amended—

(1) in section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), by striking paragraph (aa) and inserting the following:

''(aa)(1) The sale or trade by a pharmacist, or by a business organization of which the pharmacist is a part, of a qualifying drug that under section 804(a)(2)(A) was imported by the pharmacist, other than—

''(A) a sale at retail made pursuant to dispensing the drug to a customer of the pharmacist or organization; or

''(B) a sale or trade of the drug to a pharmacy or a wholesaler registered to import drugs under section 804.

''(2) The sale or trade by an individual of a qualifying drug that under section 804(a)(2)(B) was imported by the individual.

''(3) The making of a materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement or representation, or a material omission, in a notice under clause (i) of section 804(g)(2)(B) or in an application required under section 804(g)(2)(F), or the failure to submit such a notice or application.

''(4) The importation of a drug in violation of a registration condition or other requirement under section 804, the falsification of any record required to be maintained, or provided to the Secretary, under such section, or the violation of any registration condition or other requirement under such section.''; and

(2) in section 303(a) (21 U.S.C. 333(a)), by striking paragraph (6) and inserting the following:

''(6) Notwithstanding subsection (a), any person that knowingly violates section 301(i)(2) or (3) or section 301(aa)(4) shall be imprisoned not more than 10 years, or fined in accordance with title 18, United States Code, or both.''.

(c) AMENDMENT OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 801 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 381) is amended by striking subsection (g) and inserting the following:

''(g) With respect to a prescription drug that is imported or offered for import into the United States by an individual who is not in the business of such importation, that is not shipped by a registered exporter under section 804, and that is refused admission under subsection (a), the Secretary shall notify the individual that—

''(1) the drug has been refused admission because the drug was not a lawful import under section 804;

''(2) the drug is not otherwise subject to a waiver of the requirements of subsection (a);

''(3) the individual may under section 804 lawfully import certain prescription drugs from exporters registered with the Secretary under section 804; and

''(4) the individual can find information about such importation, including a list of registered exporters, on the Internet website of the Food and Drug Administration or through a toll-free telephone number required under section 804.''.

(2) ESTABLISHMENT REGISTRATION.—Section 510(i) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360(i)) is amended in paragraph (1) by inserting after ''import into the United States'' the following: '', including a drug that is, or may be, imported or offered for import into the United States under section 804,''.

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(d) EXHAUSTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 271 of title 35, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsections (h) and (i) as (i) and (j), respectively; and

(B) by inserting after subsection (g) the following:

''(h) It shall not be an act of infringement to use, offer to sell, or sell within the United States or to import into the United States any patented invention under section 804 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act that was first sold abroad by or under authority of the owner or licensee of such patent.''.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in the amendment made by paragraph (1) shall be construed to affect the ability of a patent owner or licensee to enforce their patent, subject to such amendment.

(e) EFFECT OF SECTION 804.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 804 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), shall permit the importation of qualifying drugs (as defined in such section 804) into the United States without regard to the status of the issuance of implementing regulations—

(A) from exporters registered under such section 804 on the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act; and

(B) from permitted countries, as defined in such section 804, by importers registered under such section 804 on the date that is 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) REVIEW OF REGISTRATION BY CERTAIN EXPORTERS.—

(A) REVIEW PRIORITY.—In the review of registrations submitted under subsection (b) of such section 804, registrations submitted by entities in Canada that are significant exporters of prescription drugs to individuals in the United States as of the date of enactment of this Act will have priority during the 90 day period that begins on such date of enactment.

(B) PERIOD FOR REVIEW.—During such 90-day period, the reference in subsection (b)(2)(A) of such section 804 to 90 days (relating to approval or disapproval of registrations) is, as applied to such entities, deemed to be 30 days.

(C) LIMITATION.—That an exporter in Canada exports, or has exported, prescription drugs to individuals in the United States on or before the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act shall not serve as a basis, in whole or in part, for disapproving a registration under such section 804 from the exporter.

(D) FIRST YEAR LIMIT ON NUMBER OF EXPORTERS.—During the 1-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (referred to in this section as the ''Secretary'') may limit the number of registered exporters under such section 804 to not less than 50, so long as the Secretary gives priority to those exporters with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs to individuals in the United States.

(E) SECOND YEAR LIMIT ON NUMBER OF EXPORTERS.—During the 1-year period beginning on the date that is 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may limit the number of registered exporters under such section 804 to not less than 100, so long as the Secretary gives priority to those exporters with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs to individuals in the United States.

(F) FURTHER LIMIT ON NUMBER OF EXPORTERS.—During any 1-year period beginning on a date that is 2 or more years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may limit the number of registered exporters under such section 804 to not less than 25 more than the number of such exporters during the previous 1-year period, so long as the Secretary gives priority to those exporters with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs to individuals in the United States.

(3) LIMITS ON NUMBER OF IMPORTERS.—

(A) FIRST YEAR LIMIT ON NUMBER OF IMPORTERS.—During the 1-year period beginning on the date that is 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may limit the number of registered importers under such section 804 to not less than 100 (of which at least a significant number shall be groups of pharmacies, to the extent feasible given the applications submitted by such groups), so long as the Secretary gives priority to those importers with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs imported into the United States.

(B) SECOND YEAR LIMIT ON NUMBER OF IMPORTERS.—During the 1-year period beginning on the date that is 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may limit the number of registered importers under such section 804 to not less than 200 (of which at least a significant number shall be groups of pharmacies, to the extent feasible given the applications submitted by such groups), so long as the Secretary gives priority to those importers with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs into the United States.

(C) FURTHER LIMIT ON NUMBER OF IMPORTERS.—During any 1-year period beginning on a date that is 3 or more years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may limit the number of registered importers under such section 804 to not less than 50 more (of which at least a significant number shall be groups of pharmacies, to the extent feasible given the applications submitted by such groups) than the number of such importers during the previous 1-year period, so long as the Secretary gives priority to those importers with demonstrated ability to process a high volume of shipments of drugs to the United States.

(4) NOTICES FOR DRUGS FOR IMPORT FROM CANADA.—The notice with respect to a qualifying drug introduced for commercial distribution in Canada as of the date of enactment of this Act that is required under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i) of such section 804 shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act if—

(A) the U.S. label drug (as defined in such section 804) for the qualifying drug is 1 of the 100 prescription drugs with the highest dollar volume of sales in the United States based on the 12 calendar month period most recently completed before the date of enactment of this Act; or

(B) the notice is a notice under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i)(II) of such section 804.

(5) NOTICE FOR DRUGS FOR IMPORT FROM OTHER COUNTRIES.—The notice with respect to a qualifying drug introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country other than Canada as of the date of enactment of this Act that is required under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i) of such section 804 shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act if—

(A) the U.S. label drug for the qualifying drug is 1 of the 100 prescription drugs with the highest dollar volume of sales in the United States based on the 12 calendar month period that is first completed on the date that is 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act; or

(B) the notice is a notice under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i)(II) of such section 804.

(6) NOTICE FOR OTHER DRUGS FOR IMPORT.—

(A) GUIDANCE ON SUBMISSION DATES.—The Secretary shall by guidance establish a series of submission dates for the notices under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i) of such section 804 with respect to qualifying drugs introduced for commercial distribution as of the date of enactment of this Act and that are not required to be submitted under paragraph (4) or (5).

(B) CONSISTENT AND EFFICIENT USE OF RESOURCES.—The Secretary shall establish the dates described under subparagraph (A) so that such notices described under subparagraph (A) are submitted and reviewed at a rate that allows consistent and efficient use of the resources and staff available to the Secretary for such reviews. The Secretary may condition the requirement to submit such a notice, and the review of such a notice, on the submission by a registered exporter or a registered importer to the Secretary of a notice that such exporter or importer intends to import such qualifying drug to the United States under such section 804.

(C) PRIORITY FOR DRUGS WITH HIGHER SALES.—The Secretary shall establish the dates described under subparagraph (A) so that the Secretary reviews the notices described under such subparagraph with respect to qualifying drugs with higher dollar volume of sales in the United States before the notices with respect to drugs with lower sales in the United States.

(7) NOTICES FOR DRUGS APPROVED AFTER EFFECTIVE DATE.—The notice required under subsection (g)(2)(B)(i) of such section 804 for a qualifying drug first introduced for commercial distribution in a permitted country (as defined in such section 804) after the date of enactment of this Act shall be submitted to and reviewed by the Secretary as provided under subsection (g)(2)(B) of such section 804, without regard to paragraph (4), (5), or (6).

(8) REPORT.—Beginning with the first full fiscal year after the date of enactment of this Act, not later than 90 days after the end of each fiscal year during which the Secretary reviews a notice referred to in paragraph (4), (5), or (6), the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress concerning the progress of the Food and Drug Administration in reviewing the notices referred to in paragraphs (4), (5), and (6).

(9) USER FEES.—

(A) EXPORTERS.—When establishing an aggregate total of fees to be collected from exporters under subsection (f)(2) of such section 804, the Secretary shall, under subsection (f)(3)(C)(i) of such section 804, estimate the total price of drugs imported under subsection (a) of such section 804 into the United States by registered exporters during the first fiscal year in which this title takes effect to be an amount equal to the amount which bears the same ratio to $1,000,000,000 as the number of days in such fiscal year during which this title is effective bears to 365.

(B) IMPORTERS.—When establishing an aggregate total of fees to be collected from importers under subsection (e)(2) of such section 804, the Secretary shall, under subsection (e)(3)(C)(i) of such section 804, estimate the total price of drugs imported under subsection (a) of such section 804 into the United States by registered importers during—

(i) the first fiscal year in which this title takes effect to be an amount equal to the amount which bears the same ratio to $1,000,000,000 as the number of days in such fiscal year during which this title is effective bears to 365; and

(ii) the second fiscal year in which this title is in effect to be $3,000,000,000.

(C) SECOND YEAR ADJUSTMENT.—

(i) REPORTS.—Not later than February 20 of the second fiscal year in which this title is in effect, registered importers shall report to the Secretary the total price and the total volume of drugs imported to the United States by the importer during the 4-month period from October 1 through January 31 of such fiscal year.

(ii) REESTIMATE.—Notwithstanding subsection (e)(3)(C)(ii) of such section 804 or subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall reestimate the total price of qualifying drugs imported under subsection (a) of such section 804 into the United States by registered importers during the second fiscal year in which this title is in effect. Such reestimate shall be equal to—

(I) the total price of qualifying drugs imported by each importer as reported under clause (i); multiplied by

(II) 3.

(iii) ADJUSTMENT.—The Secretary shall adjust the fee due on April 1 of the second fiscal year in which this title is in effect, from each importer so that the aggregate total of fees collected under subsection (e)(2) for such fiscal year does not exceed the total price of qualifying drugs imported under subsection (a) of such section 804 into the United States by registered importers during such fiscal year as reestimated under clause (ii).

(D) FAILURE TO PAY FEES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Secretary may prohibit a registered importer or exporter that is required to pay user fees under subsection (e) or (f) of such section 804 and that fails to pay such fees within 30 days after the date on which it is due, from importing or offering for importation a qualifying drug under such section 804 until such fee is paid.

(E) ANNUAL REPORT.—

(i) FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION.—Not later than 180 days after the end of each fiscal year during which fees are collected under subsection (e), (f), or (g)(2)(B)(iv) of such section 804, the Secretary shall prepare and submit to the House of Representatives and the Senate a report on the implementation of the authority for such fees during such fiscal year and the use, by the Food and Drug Administration, of the fees collected for the fiscal year for which the report is made and credited to the Food and Drug Administration.

(ii) CUSTOMS AND BORDER PROTECTION.—Not later than 180 days after the end of each fiscal year during which fees are collected under subsection (e) or (f) of such section 804, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prepare and submit to the House of Representatives and the Senate a report on the use, by the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, of the fees, if any, transferred by the Secretary to the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection for the fiscal year for which the report is made.

(10) SPECIAL RULE REGARDING IMPORTATION BY INDIVIDUALS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any provision of this title (or an amendment made by this title), the Secretary shall expedite the designation of any additional permitted countries from which an individual may import a qualifying drug into the United States under such section 804 if any action implemented by the Government of Canada has the effect of limiting or prohibiting the importation of qualifying drugs into the United States from Canada.

(B) TIMING AND CRITERIA.—The Secretary shall designate such additional permitted countries under subparagraph (A)—

(i) not later than 6 months after the date of the action by the Government of Canada described under such subparagraph; and

(ii) using the criteria described under subsection (a)(4)(D)(i)(II) of such section 804.

(f) IMPLEMENTATION OF SECTION 804.—

(1) INTERIM RULE.—The Secretary may promulgate an interim rule for implementing section 804 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a) of this section.

(2) NO NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING.—The interim rule described under paragraph (1) may be developed and promulgated by the Secretary without providing general notice of proposed rulemaking.

(3) FINAL RULE.—Not later than 1 year after the date on which the Secretary promulgates an interim rule under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall, in accordance with procedures under section 553 of title 5, United States Code, promulgate a final rule for implementing such section 804, which may incorporate by reference provisions of the interim rule provided for under paragraph (1), to the extent that such provisions are not modified.

(g) CONSUMER EDUCATION.—The Secretary shall carry out activities that educate consumers—

(1) with regard to the availability of qualifying drugs for import for personal use from an exporter registered with and approved by the Food and Drug Administration under section 804 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by this section, including information on how to verify whether an exporter is registered and approved by use of the Internet website of the Food and Drug Administration and the toll-free telephone number required by this title;

(2) that drugs that consumers attempt to import from an exporter that is not registered with and approved by the Food and Drug Administration can be seized by the United States Customs Service and destroyed, and that such drugs may be counterfeit, unapproved, unsafe, or ineffective;

(3) with regard to the suspension and termination of any registration of a registered importer or exporter under such section 804; and

(4) with regard to the availability at domestic retail pharmacies of qualifying drugs imported under such section 804 by domestic wholesalers and pharmacies registered with and approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

(h) EFFECT ON ADMINISTRATION PRACTICES.—Notwithstanding any provision of this title (and the amendments made by this title), the practices and policies of the Food and Drug Administration and Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, in effect on January 1, 2004, with respect to the importation of prescription drugs into the United States by an individual, on the person of such individual, for personal use, shall remain in effect.

(i) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Federal Trade Commission shall, on an annual basis, submit to Congress a report that describes any action taken during the period for which the report is being prepared to enforce the provisions of section 804(n) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (as added by this title), including any pending investigations or civil actions under such section.

SEC. 10005. DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN DRUGS DENIED ADMISSION INTO UNITED STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter VIII of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 381 et seq.), as amended by section 10004, is further amended by adding at the end the following section:

"SEC. 805. DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN DRUGS DENIED ADMISSION.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall deliver to the Secretary a shipment of drugs that is imported or offered for import into the United States if—

''(1) the shipment has a declared value of less than $10,000; and

''(2)(A) the shipping container for such drugs does not bear the markings required under section 804(d)(2); or

''(B) the Secretary has requested delivery of such shipment of drugs.

''(b) NO BOND OR EXPORT.—Section 801(b) does not authorize the delivery to the owner or consignee of drugs delivered to the Secretary under subsection (a) pursuant to the execution of a bond, and such drugs may not be exported.

''(c) DESTRUCTION OF VIOLATIVE SHIPMENT.—The Secretary shall destroy a shipment of drugs delivered by the Secretary of Homeland Security to the Secretary under subsection (a) if—

''(1) in the case of drugs that are imported or offered for import from a registered exporter under section 804, the drugs are in violation of any standard described in section 804(g)(5); or

''(2) in the case of drugs that are not imported or offered for import from a registered exporter under section 804, the drugs are in violation of a standard referred to in section 801(a) or 801(d)(1).

''(d) CERTAIN PROCEDURES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The delivery and destruction of drugs under this section may be carried out without notice to the importer, owner, or consignee of the drugs except as required by section 801(g) or section 804(i)(2). The issuance of receipts for the drugs, and recordkeeping activities regarding the drugs, may be carried out on a summary basis.

''(2) OBJECTIVE OF PROCEDURES.—Procedures promulgated under paragraph (1) shall be designed toward the objective of ensuring that, with respect to efficiently utilizing Federal resources available for carrying out this section, a substantial majority of shipments of drugs subject to described in subsection (c) are identified and destroyed.

''(e) EVIDENCE EXCEPTION.—Drugs may not be destroyed under subsection (c) to the extent that the Attorney General of the United States determines that the drugs should be preserved as evidence or potential evidence with respect to an offense against the United States.

''(f) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This section may not be construed as having any legal effect on applicable law with respect to a shipment of drugs that is imported or offered for import into the United States and has a declared value equal to or greater than $10,000.''.

(b) PROCEDURES.—Procedures for carrying out section 805 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), shall be established not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 10006. WHOLESALE DISTRIBUTION OF DRUGS; STATEMENTS REGARDING PRIOR SALE, PURCHASE, OR TRADE.

(a) STRIKING OF EXEMPTIONS; APPLICABILITY TO REGISTERED EXPORTERS.—Section 503(e) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 353(e)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)—

(A) by striking ''and who is not the manufacturer or an authorized distributor of record of such drug'';

(B) by striking ''to an authorized distributor of record or''; and

(C) by striking subparagraph (B) and inserting the following:

''(B) The fact that a drug subject to subsection (b) is exported from the United States does not with respect to such drug exempt any person that is engaged in the business of the wholesale distribution of the drug from providing the statement described in subparagraph (A) to the person that receives the drug pursuant to the export of the drug.

''(C)(i) The Secretary shall by regulation establish requirements that supersede subparagraph (A) (referred to in this subparagraph as 'alternative requirements') to identify the chain of custody of a drug subject to subsection (b) from the manufacturer of the drug throughout the wholesale distribution of the drug to a pharmacist who intends to sell the drug at retail if the Secretary determines that the alternative requirements, which may include standardized anti-counterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies, will identify such chain of custody or the identity of the discrete package of the drug from which the drug is dispensed with equal or greater certainty to the requirements of subparagraph (A), and that the alternative requirements are economically and technically feasible.

''(ii) When the Secretary promulgates a final rule to establish such alternative requirements, the final rule in addition shall, with respect to the registration condition established in clause (i) of section 804(c)(3)(B), establish a condition equivalent to the alternative requirements, and such equivalent condition may be met in lieu of the registration condition established in such clause (i).'';

(2) in paragraph (2)(A), by adding at the end the following: ''The preceding sentence may not be construed as having any applicability with respect to a registered exporter under section 804.''; and

(3) in paragraph (3), by striking ''and subsection (d)—'' in the matter preceding subparagraph (A) and all that follows through ''the term 'wholesale distribution' means'' in subparagraph (B) and inserting the following: ''and subsection (d), the term 'wholesale distribution' means''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 503(d) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 353(d)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(4) Each manufacturer of a drug subject to subsection (b) shall maintain at its corporate offices a current list of the authorized distributors of record of such drug.

''(5) For purposes of this subsection, the term 'authorized distributors of record' means those distributors with whom a manufacturer has established an ongoing relationship to distribute such manufacturer's products.''.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by paragraphs (1) and (3) of subsection (a) and by subsection (b) shall take effect on January 1, 2012.

(2) DRUGS IMPORTED BY REGISTERED IMPORTERS UNDER SECTION 804.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the amendments made by paragraphs (1) and (3) of subsection (a) and by subsection (b) shall take effect on the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act with respect to qualifying drugs imported under section 804 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by section 10004.

(3) EFFECT WITH RESPECT TO REGISTERED EXPORTERS.—The amendment made by subsection (a)(2) shall take effect on the date that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(4) ALTERNATIVE REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary shall issue regulations to establish the alternative requirements, referred to in the amendment made by subsection (a)(1), that take effect not later than January 1, 2012.

(5) INTERMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary shall by regulation require the use of standardized anti-counterfeiting or track-and-trace technologies on prescription drugs at the case and pallet level effective not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act.

(6) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Secretary shall, not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, require that the packaging of any prescription drug incorporates—

(i) a standardized numerical identifier unique to each package of such drug, applied at the point of manufacturing and repackaging (in which case the numerical identifier shall be linked to the numerical identifier applied at the point of manufacturing); and

(ii)(I) overt optically variable counterfeit-resistant technologies that—

(aa) are visible to the naked eye, providing for visual identification of product authenticity without the need for readers, microscopes, lighting devices, or scanners;

(bb) are similar to that used by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to secure United States currency;

(cc) are manufactured and distributed in a highly secure, tightly controlled environment; and

(dd) incorporate additional layers of nonvisible convert security features up to and including forensic capability, as described in subparagraph (B); or

(II) technologies that have a function of security comparable to that described in subclause (I), as determined by the Secretary.

(B) STANDARDS FOR PACKAGING.—For the purpose of making it more difficult to counterfeit the packaging of drugs subject to this paragraph, the manufacturers of such drugs shall incorporate the technologies described in subparagraph (A) into at least 1 additional element of the physical packaging of the drugs, including blister packs, shrink wrap, package labels, package seals, bottles, and boxes.

SEC. 10007. INTERNET SALES OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter V of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 503B the following:

''SEC. 503C. INTERNET SALES OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.

''(a) REQUIREMENTS REGARDING INFORMATION ON INTERNET SITE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A person may not dispense a prescription drug pursuant to a sale of the drug by such person if—

''(A) the purchaser of the drug submitted the purchase order for the drug, or conducted any other part of the sales transaction for the drug, through an Internet site;

''(B) the person dispenses the drug to the purchaser by mailing or shipping the drug to the purchaser; and

''(C) such site, or any other Internet site used by such person for purposes of sales of a prescription drug, fails to meet each of the requirements specified in paragraph (2), other than a site or pages on a site that—

''(i) are not intended to be accessed by purchasers or prospective purchasers; or

''(ii) provide an Internet information location tool within the meaning of section 231(e)(5) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 231(e)(5)).

''(2) REQUIREMENTS.—With respect to an Internet site, the requirements referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) for a person to whom such paragraph applies are as follows:

''(A) Each page of the site shall include either the following information or a link to a page that provides the following information:

''(i) The name of such person.

''(ii) Each State in which the person is authorized by law to dispense prescription drugs.

''(iii) The address and telephone number of each place of business of the person with respect to sales of prescription drugs through the Internet, other than a place of business that does not mail or ship prescription drugs to purchasers.

''(iv) The name of each individual who serves as a pharmacist for prescription drugs that are mailed or shipped pursuant to the site, and each State in which the individual is authorized by law to dispense prescription drugs.

''(v) If the person provides for medical consultations through the site for purposes of providing prescriptions, the name of each individual who provides such consultations; each State in which the individual is licensed or otherwise authorized by law to provide such consultations or practice medicine; and the type or types of health professions for which the individual holds such licenses or other authorizations.

''(B) A link to which paragraph (1) applies shall be displayed in a clear and prominent place and manner, and shall include in the caption for the link the words 'licensing and contact information'.

''(b) INTERNET SALES WITHOUT APPROPRIATE MEDICAL RELATIONSHIPS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), a person may not dispense a prescription drug, or sell such a drug, if—

''(A) for purposes of such dispensing or sale, the purchaser communicated with the person through the Internet;

''(B) the patient for whom the drug was dispensed or purchased did not, when such communications began, have a prescription for the drug that is valid in the United States;

''(C) pursuant to such communications, the person provided for the involvement of a practitioner, or an individual represented by the person as a practitioner, and the practitioner or such individual issued a prescription for the drug that was purchased;

''(D) the person knew, or had reason to know, that the practitioner or the individual referred to in subparagraph (C) did not, when issuing the prescription, have a qualifying medical relationship with the patient; and

''(E) the person received payment for the dispensing or sale of the drug.

For purposes of subparagraph (E), payment is received if money or other valuable consideration is received.

''(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to—

''(A) the dispensing or selling of a prescription drug pursuant to telemedicine practices sponsored by—

''(i) a hospital that has in effect a provider agreement under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (relating to the Medicare program); or

''(ii) a group practice that has not fewer than 100 physicians who have in effect provider agreements under such title; or

''(B) the dispensing or selling of a prescription drug pursuant to practices that promote the public health, as determined by the Secretary by regulation.

''(3) QUALIFYING MEDICAL RELATIONSHIP.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—With respect to issuing a prescription for a drug for a patient, a practitioner has a qualifying medical relationship with the patient for purposes of this section if—

''(i) at least one in-person medical evaluation of the patient has been conducted by the practitioner; or

''(ii) the practitioner conducts a medical evaluation of the patient as a covering practitioner.

''(B) IN-PERSON MEDICAL EVALUATION.—A medical evaluation by a practitioner is an in-person medical evaluation for purposes of this section if the practitioner is in the physical presence of the patient as part of conducting the evaluation, without regard to whether portions of the evaluation are conducted by other health professionals.

''(C) COVERING PRACTITIONER.—With respect to a patient, a practitioner is a covering practitioner for purposes of this section if the practitioner conducts a medical evaluation of the patient at the request of a practitioner who has conducted at least one in-person medical evaluation of the patient and is temporarily unavailable to conduct the evaluation of the patient. A practitioner is a covering practitioner without regard to whether the practitioner has conducted any in-person medical evaluation of the patient involved.

''(4) RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.—

''(A) INDIVIDUALS REPRESENTED AS PRACTITIONERS.—A person who is not a practitioner (as defined in subsection (e)(1)) lacks legal capacity under this section to have a qualifying medical relationship with any patient.

''(B) STANDARD PRACTICE OF PHARMACY.—Paragraph (1) may not be construed as prohibiting any conduct that is a standard practice in the practice of pharmacy.

''(C) APPLICABILITY OF REQUIREMENTS.—Paragraph (3) may not be construed as having any applicability beyond this section, and does not affect any State law, or interpretation of State law, concerning the practice of medicine.

''(c) ACTIONS BY STATES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Whenever an attorney general of any State has reason to believe that the interests of the residents of that State have been or are being threatened or adversely affected because any person has engaged or is engaging in a pattern or practice that violates section 301(l), the State may bring a civil action on behalf of its residents in an appropriate district court of the United States to enjoin such practice, to enforce compliance with such section (including a nationwide injunction), to obtain damages, restitution, or other compensation on behalf of residents of such State, to obtain reasonable attorneys fees and costs if the State prevails in the civil action, or to obtain such further and other relief as the court may deem appropriate.

''(2) NOTICE.—The State shall serve prior written notice of any civil action under paragraph (1) or (5)(B) upon the Secretary and provide the Secretary with a copy of its complaint, except that if it is not feasible for the State to provide such prior notice, the State shall serve such notice immediately upon instituting such action. Upon receiving a notice respecting a civil action, the Secretary shall have the right—

''(A) to intervene in such action;

''(B) upon so intervening, to be heard on all matters arising therein; and

''(C) to file petitions for appeal.

''(3) CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of bringing any civil action under paragraph (1), nothing in this chapter shall prevent an attorney general of a State from exercising the powers conferred on the attorney general by the laws of such State to conduct investigations or to administer oaths or affirmations or to compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of documentary and other evidence.

''(4) VENUE; SERVICE OF PROCESS.—Any civil action brought under paragraph (1) in a district court of the United States may be brought in the district in which the defendant is found, is an inhabitant, or transacts business or wherever venue is proper under section 1391 of title 28, United States Code. Process in such an action may be served in any district in which the defendant is an inhabitant or in which the defendant may be found.

''(5) ACTIONS BY OTHER STATE OFFICIALS.—

''(A) Nothing contained in this section shall prohibit an authorized State official from proceeding in State court on the basis of an alleged violation of any civil or criminal statute of such State.

''(B) In addition to actions brought by an attorney general of a State under paragraph (1), such an action may be brought by officers of such State who are authorized by the State to bring actions in such State on behalf of its residents.

''(d) EFFECT OF SECTION.—This section shall not apply to a person that is a registered exporter under section 804.

''(e) GENERAL DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

''(1) The term 'practitioner' means a practitioner referred to in section 503(b)(1) with respect to issuing a written or oral prescription.

''(2) The term 'prescription drug' means a drug that is described in section 503(b)(1).

''(3) The term 'qualifying medical relationship', with respect to a practitioner and a patient, has the meaning indicated for such term in subsection (b).

''(f) INTERNET-RELATED DEFINITIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section:

''(A) The term 'Internet' means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, which comprise the interconnected world-wide network of networks that employ the transmission control protocol/internet protocol, or any predecessor or successor protocols to such protocol, to communicate information of all kinds by wire or radio.

''(B) The term 'link', with respect to the Internet, means one or more letters, words, numbers, symbols, or graphic items that appear on a page of an Internet site for the purpose of serving, when activated, as a method for executing an electronic command—

''(i) to move from viewing one portion of a page on such site to another portion of the page;

''(ii) to move from viewing one page on such site to another page on such site; or

''(iii) to move from viewing a page on one Internet site to a page on another Internet site.

''(C) The term 'page', with respect to the Internet, means a document or other file accessed at an Internet site.

''(D)(i) The terms 'site' and 'address', with respect to the Internet, mean a specific location on the Internet that is determined by Internet Protocol numbers. Such term includes the domain name, if any.

''(ii) The term 'domain name' means a method of representing an Internet address without direct reference to the Internet Protocol numbers for the address, including methods that use designations such as '.com', '.edu', '.gov', '.net', or '.org'.

''(iii) The term 'Internet Protocol numbers' includes any successor protocol for determining a specific location on the Internet.

''(2) AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY.—The Secretary may by regulation modify any definition under paragraph (1) to take into account changes in technology.

''(g) INTERACTIVE COMPUTER SERVICE; ADVERTISING.—No provider of an interactive computer service, as defined in section 230(f)(2) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 230(f)(2)), or of advertising services shall be liable under this section for dispensing or selling prescription drugs in violation of this section on account of another person's selling or dispensing such drugs, provided that the provider of the interactive computer service or of advertising services does not own or exercise corporate control over such person.

''(h) NO EFFECT ON OTHER REQUIREMENTS; COORDINATION.—The requirements of this section are in addition to, and do not supersede, any requirements under the Controlled Substances Act or the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act (or any regulation promulgated under either such Act) regarding Internet pharmacies and controlled substances. In promulgating regulations to carry out this section, the Secretary shall coordinate with the Attorney General to ensure that such regulations do not duplicate or conflict with the requirements described in the previous sentence, and that such regulations and requirements coordinate to the extent practicable.''.

(b) INCLUSION AS PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 331) is amended by inserting after paragraph (k) the following:

''(l) The dispensing or selling of a prescription drug in violation of section 503C.''.

(c) INTERNET SALES OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS; CONSIDERATION BY SECRETARY OF PRACTICES AND PROCEDURES FOR CERTIFICATION OF LEGITIMATE BUSINESSES.—In carrying out section 503C of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (as added by subsection (a) of this section), the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall take into consideration the practices and procedures of public or private entities that certify that businesses selling prescription drugs through Internet sites are legitimate businesses, including practices and procedures regarding disclosure formats and verification programs.

(d) REPORTS REGARDING INTERNET-RELATED VIOLATIONS OF FEDERAL AND STATE LAWS ON DISPENSING OF DRUGS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (referred to in this subsection as the ''Secretary'') shall, pursuant to the submission of an application meeting the criteria of the Secretary, make an award of a grant or contract to the National Clearinghouse on Internet Prescribing (operated by the Federation of State Medical Boards) for the purpose of—

(A) identifying Internet sites that appear to be in violation of Federal or State laws concerning the dispensing of drugs;

(B) reporting such sites to State medical licensing boards and State pharmacy licensing boards, and to the Attorney General and the Secretary, for further investigation; and

(C) submitting, for each fiscal year for which the award under this subsection is made, a report to the Secretary describing investigations undertaken with respect to violations described in subparagraph (A).

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For the purpose of carrying out paragraph (1), there is authorized to be appropriated $100,000 for each of the first 3 fiscal years in which this section is in effect.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) take effect 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, without regard to whether a final rule to implement such amendments has been promulgated by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 701(a) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. The preceding sentence may not be construed as affecting the authority of such Secretary to promulgate such a final rule.

SEC. 10008. PROHIBITING PAYMENTS TO UNREGISTERED FOREIGN PHARMACIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 303 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 333) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(h) RESTRICTED TRANSACTIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The introduction of restricted transactions into a payment system or the completion of restricted transactions using a payment system is prohibited.

''(2) PAYMENT SYSTEM.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'payment system' means a system used by a person described in subparagraph (B) to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service that may be used in connection with, or to facilitate, a restricted transaction, and includes—

''(i) a credit card system;

''(ii) an international, national, regional, or local network used to effect a credit transaction, an electronic fund transfer, or a money transmitting service; and

''(iii) any other system that is centrally managed and is primarily engaged in the transmission and settlement of credit transactions, electronic fund transfers, or money transmitting services.

''(B) PERSONS DESCRIBED.—A person referred to in subparagraph (A) is—

''(i) a creditor;

''(ii) a credit card issuer;

''(iii) a financial institution;

''(iv) an operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated;

''(v) a money transmitting business; or

''(vi) a participant in an international, national, regional, or local network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service.

''(3) RESTRICTED TRANSACTION.—The term 'restricted transaction' means a transaction or transmittal, on behalf of an individual who places an unlawful drug importation request to any person engaged in the operation of an unregistered foreign pharmacy, of—

''(A) credit, or the proceeds of credit, extended to or on behalf of the individual for the purpose of the unlawful drug importation request (including credit extended through the use of a credit card);

''(B) an electronic fund transfer or funds transmitted by or through a money transmitting business, or the proceeds of an electronic fund transfer or money transmitting service, from or on behalf of the individual for the purpose of the unlawful drug importation request;

''(C) a check, draft, or similar instrument which is drawn by or on behalf of the individual for the purpose of the unlawful drug importation request and is drawn on or payable at or through any financial institution; or

''(D) the proceeds of any other form of financial transaction (identified by the Board by regulation) that involves a financial institution as a payor or financial intermediary on behalf of or for the benefit of the individual for the purpose of the unlawful drug importation request.

''(4) UNLAWFUL DRUG IMPORTATION REQUEST.—The term 'unlawful drug importation request' means the request, or transmittal of a request, made to an unregistered foreign pharmacy for a prescription drug by mail (including a private carrier), facsimile, phone, or electronic mail, or by a means that involves the use, in whole or in part, of the Internet.

''(5) UNREGISTERED FOREIGN PHARMACY.—The term 'unregistered foreign pharmacy' means a person in a country other than the United States that is not a registered exporter under section 804.

''(6) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—

''(A) CREDIT; CREDITOR; CREDIT CARD.—The terms 'credit', 'creditor', and 'credit card' have the meanings given the terms in section 103 of the Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. 1602).

''(B) ACCESS DEVICE; ELECTRONIC FUND TRANSFER.—The terms 'access device' and 'electronic fund transfer'—

''(i) have the meaning given the term in section 903 of the Electronic Fund Transfer Act (15 U.S.C. 1693a); and

''(ii) the term 'electronic fund transfer' also includes any fund transfer covered under Article 4A of the Uniform Commercial Code, as in effect in any State.

''(C) FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.—The term 'financial institution'—

''(i) has the meaning given the term in section 903 of the Electronic Transfer Fund Act (15 U.S.C. 1693a); and

''(ii) includes a financial institution (as defined in section 509 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 6809)).

''(D) MONEY TRANSMITTING BUSINESS; MONEY TRANSMITTING SERVICE.—The terms 'money transmitting business' and 'money transmitting service' have the meaning given the terms in section 5330(d) of title 31, United States Code.

''(E) BOARD.—The term 'Board' means the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

''(7) POLICIES AND PROCEDURES REQUIRED TO PREVENT RESTRICTED TRANSACTIONS.—

''(A) REGULATIONS.—The Board shall promulgate regulations requiring—

''(i) an operator of a credit card system;

''(ii) an operator of an international, national, regional, or local network used to effect a credit transaction, an electronic fund transfer, or a money transmitting service;

''(iii) an operator of any other payment system that is centrally managed and is primarily engaged in the transmission and settlement of credit transactions, electronic transfers or money transmitting services where at least one party to the transaction or transfer is an individual; and

''(iv) any other person described in paragraph (2)(B) and specified by the Board in such regulations, to establish policies and procedures that are reasonably designed to prevent the introduction of a restricted transaction into a payment system or the completion of a restricted transaction using a payment system

''(B) REQUIREMENTS FOR POLICIES AND PROCEDURES.—In promulgating regulations under subparagraph (A), the Board shall—

''(i) identify types of policies and procedures, including nonexclusive examples, that shall be considered to be reasonably designed to prevent the introduction of restricted transactions into a payment system or the completion of restricted transactions using a payment system; and

''(ii) to the extent practicable, permit any payment system, or person described in paragraph (2)(B), as applicable, to choose among alternative means of preventing the introduction or completion of restricted transactions.

''(C) NO LIABILITY FOR BLOCKING OR REFUSING TO HONOR RESTRICTED TRANSACTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A payment system, or a person described in paragraph (2)(B) that is subject to a regulation issued under this subsection, and any participant in such payment system that prevents or otherwise refuses to honor transactions in an effort to implement the policies and procedures required under this subsection or to otherwise comply with this subsection shall not be liable to any party for such action.

''(ii) COMPLIANCE.—A person described in paragraph (2)(B) meets the requirements of this subsection if the person relies on and complies with the policies and procedures of a payment system of which the person is a member or in which the person is a participant, and such policies and procedures of the payment system comply with the requirements of the regulations promulgated under subparagraph (A).

''(D) ENFORCEMENT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—This subsection, and the regulations promulgated under this subsection, shall be enforced exclusively by the Federal functional regulators and the Federal Trade Commission under applicable law in the manner provided in section 505(a) of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 6805(a)).

''(ii) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—In considering any enforcement action under this subsection against a payment system or person described in paragraph (2)(B), the Federal functional regulators and the Federal Trade Commission shall consider the following factors:

''(I) The extent to which the payment system or person knowingly permits restricted transactions.

''(II) The history of the payment system or person in connection with permitting restricted transactions.

''(III) The extent to which the payment system or person has established and is maintaining policies and procedures in compliance with regulations prescribed under this subsection.

''(8) TRANSACTIONS PERMITTED.—A payment system, or a person described in paragraph (2)(B) that is subject to a regulation issued under this subsection, is authorized to engage in transactions with foreign pharmacies in connection with investigating violations or potential violations of any rule or requirement adopted by the payment system or person in connection with complying with paragraph (7). A payment system, or such a person, and its agents and employees shall not be found to be in violation of, or liable under, any Federal, State or other law by virtue of engaging in any such transaction.

''(9) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—No requirement, prohibition, or liability may be imposed on a payment system, or a person described in paragraph (2)(B) that is subject to a regulation issued under this subsection, under the laws of any state with respect to any payment transaction by an individual because the payment transaction involves a payment to a foreign pharmacy.

''(10) TIMING OF REQUIREMENTS.—A payment system, or a person described in paragraph (2)(B) that is subject to a regulation issued under this subsection, must adopt policies and procedures reasonably designed to comply with any regulations required under paragraph (7) within 60 days after such regulations are issued in final form.

''(11) COMPLIANCE.—A payment system, and any person described in paragraph (2)(B), shall not be deemed to be in violation of paragraph (1)—

''(A)(i) if an alleged violation of paragraph (1) occurs prior to the mandatory compliance date of the regulations issued under paragraph (7); and

''(ii) such entity has adopted or relied on policies and procedures that are reasonably designed to prevent the introduction of restricted transactions into a payment system or the completion of restricted transactions using a payment system; or

''(B)(i) if an alleged violation of paragraph (1) occurs after the mandatory compliance date of such regulations; and

''(ii) such entity is in compliance with such regulations.''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall take effect on the day that is 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System shall promulgate regulations as required by subsection (h)(7) of section 303 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 333), as added by subsection (a), not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 10009. IMPORTATION EXEMPTION UNDER CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES IMPORT AND EXPORT ACT.

Section 1006(a)(2) of the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act (21 U.S.C. 956(a)(2)) is amended by striking ''not import the controlled substance into the United States in an amount that exceeds 50 dosage units of the controlled substance.'' and inserting ''import into the United States not more than 10 dosage units combined of all such controlled substances.''.

SEC. 10010. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this title, an amendment by this title, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this title, the amendments made by this title, and the application of the provisions of such to any person or circumstance shall not affected thereby.

SEC. 10011. CERTIFICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—This title (other than this section), and the amendments made by this title, shall become effective only if the Secretary of Health and Human Services certifies to Congress that the implementation of this title, and the amendments made by this title, will—

(1) pose no additional risk to the public's health and safety; and

(2) result in a significant reduction in the cost of covered products to the American consumer.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, or of any amendment made by this title—

(1) any reference in this title, or in such amendments, to the date of enactment of this title shall be deemed to be a reference to the date of the certification under subsection (a); and

(2) each reference to ''January 1, 2012'' in section 10006(c) shall be substituted with ''90 days after the effective date of this title''.

TITLE__—PROVIDING TAX EQUITY

Subtitle A—Use of Health Savings Accounts for Non-Group High Deductible Health Plan Premiums

SEC. __001. USE OF HEALTH SAVINGS ACCOUNTS FOR NON-GROUP HIGH DEDUCTIBLE HEALTH PLAN PREMIUMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 223(d)(2)(C) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exceptions) is amended by striking ''or'' at the end of clause (iii), by striking the period at the end of clause (iv) and inserting '', or'', and by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(v) a high deductible health plan, other than a group health plan (as defined in section 5000(b)(1)).''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2009.

Subtitle B—Medical Care Access Protection

SEC. __101. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. __102. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, distribution, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this subtitle to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of ''defensive medicine'' and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. __103. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this subtitle, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. _104. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this subtitle applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. _105. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this subtitle shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. __106. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. __107. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. __108. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. __109. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this subtitle.

SEC. __110. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this subtitle shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. __111. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this subtitle. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this subtitle; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this subtitle shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this subtitle, notwithstanding section __105(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this subtitle (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subtitle shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this subtitle;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this Act;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. __112. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This subtitle shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

SA 3159. Mr. KYL submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, insert the following:

TITLE K__—HSA CONTRIBUTION LIMIT

Subtitle A—Increase in HSA Contribution Limit

SEC. __001. INCREASE IN LIMIT FOR HSA CONTRIBUTIONS TO EQUAL MAXIMUM HIGH DEDUCTIBLE HEALTH PLAN OUT-OF-POCKET LIMIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 223(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exceptions) is amended—

(1) by striking ''$2,250'' in subparagraph (A) and inserting ''the dollar amount specified under subsection (c)(2)(A)(ii)(I) for such taxable year'', and

(2) by striking ''$4,500'' in subparagraph (B) and inserting ''the dollar amount specified under subsection (c)(2)(A)(ii)(II) for such taxable year''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to months beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Medical Care Access Protection

SEC. __101. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Medical Care Access Protection Act of 2009'' or the ''MCAP Act''.

SEC. __102. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, distribution, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this subtitle to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of ''defensive medicine'' and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. __103. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION SYSTEM; ADR.—The term ''alternative dispute resolution system'' or ''ADR'' means a system that provides for the resolution of health care lawsuits in a manner other than through a civil action brought in a State or Federal court.

(2) CLAIMANT.—The term ''claimant'' means any person who brings a health care lawsuit, including a person who asserts or claims a right to legal or equitable contribution, indemnity or subrogation, arising out of a health care liability claim or action, and any person on whose behalf such a claim is asserted or such an action is brought, whether deceased, incompetent, or a minor.

(3) COLLATERAL SOURCE BENEFITS.—The term ''collateral source benefits'' means any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, or any service, product or other benefit provided or reasonably likely to be provided in the future to or on behalf of the claimant, as a result of the injury or wrongful death, pursuant to—

(A) any State or Federal health, sickness, income-disability, accident, or workers' compensation law;

(B) any health, sickness, income-disability, or accident insurance that provides health benefits or income-disability coverage;

(C) any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or income disability benefits; and

(D) any other publicly or privately funded program.

(4) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—The term ''compensatory damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities, damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature. Such term includes economic damages and noneconomic damages, as such terms are defined in this section.

(5) CONTINGENT FEE.—The term ''contingent fee'' includes all compensation to any person or persons which is payable only if a recovery is effected on behalf of one or more claimants.

(6) ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''economic damages'' means objectively verifiable monetary losses incurred as a result of the provision of, use of, or payment for (or failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services or medical products, such as past and future medical expenses, loss of past and future earnings, cost of obtaining domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities.

(7) HEALTH CARE GOODS OR SERVICES.—The term ''health care goods or services'' means any goods or services provided by a health care institution, provider, or by any individual working under the supervision of a health care provider, that relates to the diagnosis, prevention, care, or treatment of any human disease or impairment, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

(8) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTION.—The term ''health care institution'' means any entity licensed under Federal or State law to provide health care services (including but not limited to ambulatory surgical centers, assisted living facilities, emergency medical services providers, hospices, hospitals and hospital systems, nursing homes, or other entities licensed to provide such services).

(9) HEALTH CARE LAWSUIT.—The term ''health care lawsuit'' means any health care liability claim concerning the provision of health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, or any health care liability action concerning the provision of (or the failure to provide) health care goods or services affecting interstate commerce, brought in a State or Federal court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of claimants, plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of claims or causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(10) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTION.—The term ''health care liability action'' means a civil action brought in a State or Federal Court or pursuant to an alternative dispute resolution system, against a health care provider or a health care institution regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action, in which the claimant alleges a health care liability claim.

(11) HEALTH CARE LIABILITY CLAIM.—The term ''health care liability claim'' means a demand by any person, whether or not pursuant to ADR, against a health care provider or health care institution, including third-party claims, cross-claims, counter-claims, or contribution claims, which are based upon the provision of, use of, or payment for (or the failure to provide, use, or pay for) health care services, regardless of the theory of liability on which the claim is based, or the number of plaintiffs, defendants, or other parties, or the number of causes of action.

(12) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ''health care provider'' means any person (including but not limited to a physician (as defined by section 1861(r) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(r)), registered nurse, dentist, podiatrist, pharmacist, chiropractor, or optometrist) required by State or Federal law to be licensed, registered, or certified to provide health care services, and being either so licensed, registered, or certified, or exempted from such requirement by other statute or regulation.

(B) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.—For purposes of this subtitle, a professional association that is organized under State law by an individual physician or group of physicians, a partnership or limited liability partnership formed by a group of physicians, a nonprofit health corporation certified under State law, or a company formed by a group of physicians under State law shall be treated as a health care provider under subparagraph (A).

(13) MALICIOUS INTENT TO INJURE.—The term ''malicious intent to injure'' means intentionally causing or attempting to cause physical injury other than providing health care goods or services.

(14) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The term ''noneconomic damages'' means damages for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(15) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—The term ''punitive damages'' means damages awarded, for the purpose of punishment or deterrence, and not solely for compensatory purposes, against a health care provider or health care institution. Punitive damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages.

(16) RECOVERY.—The term ''recovery'' means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim, including all costs paid or advanced by any person. Costs of health care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorneys' office overhead costs or charges for legal services are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose.

(17) STATE.—The term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. __104. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first.

(b) GENERAL EXCEPTION.—The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall not exceed 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury unless the tolling of time was delayed as a result of—

(1) fraud;

(2) intentional concealment; or

(3) the presence of a foreign body, which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect, in the person of the injured person.

(c) MINORS.—An action by a minor shall be commenced within 3 years from the date of the alleged manifestation of injury except that if such minor is under the full age of 6 years, such action shall be commenced within 3 years of the manifestation of injury, or prior to the eighth birthday of the minor, whichever provides a longer period. Such time limitation shall be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care institution have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

(d) RULE 11 SANCTIONS.—Whenever a Federal or State court determines (whether by motion of the parties or whether on the motion of the court) that there has been a violation of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (or a similar violation of applicable State court rules) in a health care liability action to which this subtitle applies, the court shall impose upon the attorneys, law firms, or pro se litigants that have violated Rule 11 or are responsible for the violation, an appropriate sanction, which shall include an order to pay the other party or parties for the reasonable expenses incurred as a direct result of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper that is the subject of the violation, including a reasonable attorneys' fee. Such sanction shall be sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated, and to compensate the party or parties injured by such conduct.

SEC. __105. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, nothing in this subtitle shall limit the recovery by a claimant of the full amount of the available economic damages, notwithstanding the limitation contained in subsection (b).

(b) ADDITIONAL NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a health care provider, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the provider, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties other than a health care institution against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(2) HEALTH CARE INSTITUTIONS.—

(A) SINGLE INSTITUTION.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against a single health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from the institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence.

(B) MULTIPLE INSTITUTIONS.—In any health care lawsuit where final judgment is rendered against more than one health care institution, the amount of noneconomic damages recovered from each institution, if otherwise available under applicable Federal or State law, may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same occurrence, except that the total amount recovered from all such institutions in such lawsuit shall not exceed $500,000.

(c) NO DISCOUNT OF AWARD FOR NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—In any health care lawsuit—

(1) an award for future noneconomic damages shall not be discounted to present value;

(2) the jury shall not be informed about the maximum award for noneconomic damages under subsection (b);

(3) an award for noneconomic damages in excess of the limitations provided for in subsection (b) shall be reduced either before the entry of judgment, or by amendment of the judgment after entry of judgment, and such reduction shall be made before accounting for any other reduction in damages required by law; and

(4) if separate awards are rendered for past and future noneconomic damages and the combined awards exceed the limitations described in subsection (b), the future noneconomic damages shall be reduced first.

(d) FAIR SHARE RULE.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party's several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party's percentage of responsibility. A separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportion of responsibility of each party for the claimant's harm.

SEC. __106. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants.

(2) CONTINGENCY FEES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant's damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity.

(B) LIMITATION.—The total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit shall not exceed the following limits:

(i) 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(ii) 33⅓ percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iii) 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).

(iv) 15 percent of any amount by which the recovery by the claimant(s) is in excess of $600,000.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations in subsection (a) shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution.

(2) MINORS.—In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court retains the authority to authorize or approve a fee that is less than the maximum permitted under this section.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—No individual shall be qualified to testify as an expert witness concerning issues of negligence in any health care lawsuit against a defendant unless such individual—

(A) except as required under paragraph (2), is a health care professional who—

(i) is appropriately credentialed or licensed in 1 or more States to deliver health care services; and

(ii) typically treats the diagnosis or condition or provides the type of treatment under review; and

(B) can demonstrate by competent evidence that, as a result of training, education, knowledge, and experience in the evaluation, diagnosis, and treatment of the disease or injury which is the subject matter of the lawsuit against the defendant, the individual was substantially familiar with applicable standards of care and practice as they relate to the act or omission which is the subject of the lawsuit on the date of the incident.

(2) PHYSICIAN REVIEW.—In a health care lawsuit, if the claim of the plaintiff involved treatment that is recommended or provided by a physician (allopathic or osteopathic), an individual shall not be qualified to be an expert witness under this subsection with respect to issues of negligence concerning such treatment unless such individual is a physician.

(3) SPECIALTIES AND SUBSPECIALTIES.—With respect to a lawsuit described in paragraph (1), a court shall not permit an expert in one medical specialty or subspecialty to testify against a defendant in another medical specialty or subspecialty unless, in addition to a showing of substantial familiarity in accordance with paragraph (1)(B), there is a showing that the standards of care and practice in the two specialty or subspecialty fields are similar.

(4) LIMITATION.—The limitations in this subsection shall not apply to expert witnesses testifying as to the degree or permanency of medical or physical impairment.

SEC. __107. ADDITIONAL HEALTH BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The amount of any damages received by a claimant in any health care lawsuit shall be reduced by the court by the amount of any collateral source benefits to which the claimant is entitled, less any insurance premiums or other payments made by the claimant (or by the spouse, parent, child, or legal guardian of the claimant) to obtain or secure such benefits.

(b) PRESERVATION OF CURRENT LAW.—Where a payor of collateral source benefits has a right of recovery by reimbursement or subrogation and such right is permitted under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

(c) APPLICATION OF PROVISION.—This section shall apply to any health care lawsuit that is settled or resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. __108. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES PERMITTED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise available under applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer.

(2) FILING OF LAWSUIT.—No demand for punitive damages shall be included in a health care lawsuit as initially filed. A court may allow a claimant to file an amended pleading for punitive damages only upon a motion by the claimant and after a finding by the court, upon review of supporting and opposing affidavits or after a hearing, after weighing the evidence, that the claimant has established by a substantial probability that the claimant will prevail on the claim for punitive damages.

(3) SEPARATE PROCEEDING.—At the request of any party in a health care lawsuit, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding—

(A) whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award; and

(B) the amount of punitive damages following a determination of punitive liability. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim for punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether compensatory damages are to be awarded.

(4) LIMITATION WHERE NO COMPENSATORY DAMAGES ARE AWARDED.—In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages is rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit against such person.

(b) DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) FACTORS CONSIDERED.—In determining the amount of punitive damages under this section, the trier of fact shall consider only the following:

(A) the severity of the harm caused by the conduct of such party;

(B) the duration of the conduct or any concealment of it by such party;

(C) the profitability of the conduct to such party;

(D) the number of products sold or medical procedures rendered for compensation, as the case may be, by such party, of the kind causing the harm complained of by the claimant;

(E) any criminal penalties imposed on such party, as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant; and

(F) the amount of any civil fines assessed against such party as a result of the conduct complained of by the claimant.

(2) MAXIMUM AWARD.—The amount of punitive damages awarded in a health care lawsuit may not exceed an amount equal to two times the amount of economic damages awarded in the lawsuit or $250,000, whichever is greater. The jury shall not be informed of the limitation under the preceding sentence.

(c) LIABILITY OF HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A health care provider who prescribes, or who dispenses pursuant to a prescription, a drug, biological product, or medical device approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for an approved indication of the drug, biological product, or medical device, shall not be named as a party to a product liability lawsuit invoking such drug, biological product, or medical device and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such drug, biological product, or medical device.

(2) MEDICAL PRODUCT.—The term ''medical product'' means a drug or device intended for humans. The terms ''drug'' and ''device'' have the meanings given such terms in sections 201(g)(1) and 201(h) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321), respectively, including any component or raw material used therein, but excluding health care services.

SEC. __109. AUTHORIZATION OF PAYMENT OF FUTURE DAMAGES TO CLAIMANTS IN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction to present value, equaling or exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering that the future damages be paid by periodic payments in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section applies to all actions which have not been first set for trial or retrial before the effective date of this subtitle.

SEC. __110. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) GENERAL VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that title XXI of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such title XXI shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under title XXI of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(b) SMALLPOX VACCINE INJURY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent that part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act establishes a Federal rule of law applicable to a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death—

(A) this subtitle shall not affect the application of the rule of law to such an action; and

(B) any rule of law prescribed by this subtitle in conflict with a rule of law of such part C shall not apply to such action.

(2) EXCEPTION.—If there is an aspect of a civil action brought for a smallpox vaccine-related injury or death to which a Federal rule of law under part C of title II of the Public Health Service Act does not apply, then this subtitle or otherwise applicable law (as determined under this subtitle) will apply to such aspect of such action.

(c) OTHER FEDERAL LAW.—Except as provided in this section, nothing in this subtitle shall be deemed to affect any defense available, or any limitation on liability that applies to, a defendant in a health care lawsuit or action under any other provision of Federal law.

SEC. __111. STATE FLEXIBILITY AND PROTECTION OF STATES' RIGHTS.

(a) HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle shall preempt, subject to subsections (b) and (c), State law to the extent that State law prevents the application of any provisions of law established by or under this subtitle. The provisions governing health care lawsuits set forth in this subtitle supersede chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, to the extent that such chapter—

(1) provides for a greater amount of damages or contingent fees, a longer period in which a health care lawsuit may be commenced, or a reduced applicability or scope of periodic payment of future damages, than provided in this subtitle; or

(2) prohibits the introduction of evidence regarding collateral source benefits.

(b) PREEMPTION OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS.—No provision of this subtitle shall be construed to preempt any State law (whether effective before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act) that specifies a particular monetary amount of compensatory or punitive damages (or the total amount of damages) that may be awarded in a health care lawsuit, regardless of whether such monetary amount is greater or lesser than is provided for under this subtitle, notwithstanding section __105(a).

(c) PROTECTION OF STATE'S RIGHTS AND OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any issue that is not governed by a provision of law established by or under this subtitle (including the State standards of negligence) shall be governed by otherwise applicable Federal or State law.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subtitle shall be construed to—

(A) preempt or supersede any Federal or State law that imposes greater procedural or substantive protections (such as a shorter statute of limitations) for a health care provider or health care institution from liability, loss, or damages than those provided by this subtitle;

(B) preempt or supercede any State law that permits and provides for the enforcement of any arbitration agreement related to a health care liability claim whether enacted prior to or after the date of enactment of this Act;

(C) create a cause of action that is not otherwise available under Federal or State law; or

(D) affect the scope of preemption of any other Federal law.

SEC. __112. APPLICABILITY; EFFECTIVE DATE.

This subtitle shall apply to any health care lawsuit brought in a Federal or State court, or subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, that is initiated on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, except that any health care lawsuit arising from an injury occurring prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be governed by the applicable statute of limitations provisions in effect at the time the injury occurred.

SA 3160. Mr. BEGICH submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title IV, insert the following:

SEC. 4208. INTERAGENCY TASK FORCE TO ASSESS AND IMPROVE ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE IN THE STATE OF ALASKA.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established a task force to be known as the ''Interagency Access to Health Care in Alaska Task Force'' (referred to in this section as the ''Task Force'').

(b) DUTIES.—The Task Force shall—

(1) assess access to health care for beneficiaries of Federal health care systems in Alaska; and

(2) develop a strategy for the Federal Government to improve delivery of health care to Federal beneficiaries in the State of Alaska.

(c) MEMBERSHIP.—The Task Force shall be comprised of Federal members who shall be appointed, not later than 45 days after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

(1) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall appoint one representative of each of the following:

(A) The Department of Health and Human Services.

(B) The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

(C) The Indian Health Service.

(2) The Secretary of Defense shall appoint one representative of the TRICARE Management Activity.

(3) The Secretary of the Army shall appoint one representative of the Army Medical Department.

(4) The Secretary of the Air Force shall appoint one representative of the Air Force, from among officers at the Air Force performing medical service functions.

(5) The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall appoint one representative of each of the following:

(A) The Department of Veterans Affairs.

(B) The Veterans Health Administration.

(6) The Secretary of Homeland Security shall appoint one representative of the United States Coast Guard.

(d) CHAIRPERSON.—One chairperson of the Task Force shall be appointed by the Secretary at the time of appointment of members under subsection (c), selected from among the members appointed under paragraph (1).

(e) MEETINGS.—The Task Force shall meet at the call of the chairperson.

(f) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Task Force shall submit to Congress a report detailing the activities of the Task Force and containing the findings, strategies, recommendations, policies, and initiatives developed pursuant to the duty described in subsection (b)(2). In preparing such report, the Task Force shall consider completed and ongoing efforts by Federal agencies to improve access to health care in the State of Alaska.

(g) TERMINATION.—The Task Force shall be terminated on the date of submission of the report described in subsection (f).

SA 3161. Mr. THUNE submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 101, between lines 19 and 20, insert the following:

(3) INCLUSION OF HIGH DEDUCTIBLE HEALTH PLANS IN CERTAIN STATES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If a State is described in subparagraph (B) with respect to health plans offered in the individual or small group market, then, on and after the certification date—

(i) a health plan described in subparagraph (C) shall be treated as a qualified health plan under this section, and as minimum essential coverage under section 5000A of such Code, for purposes of this Act and the amendments made by this Act; and

(ii) no requirement imposed by any provision of, or any amendment made by, this Act shall apply with respect to such plan or issuer thereof.

(B) STATE DESCRIBED.—For purposes of this paragraph—

(i) IN GENERAL.—A State is described in this subparagraph with respect to the individual or small group market within the State if the applicable State authority determines for any calendar year after 2013 that the percentage increase in average annual premiums for health insurance coverage in such market for the calendar year over the preceding calendar year exceeds the percentage increase for such period in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers published by the Department of Labor.

(ii) CERTIFICATION DATE.—The term ''certification date'' means the first date on which the applicable State authority certifies a determination described in clause (i).

(iii) APPLICABLE STATE AUTHORITY.—The term ''applicable State authority'' has the meaning given such term by section 2791(d)(1) of the Public Health Service Act.

(C) HIGH DEDUCTIBLE HEALTH PLAN.—A health plan is described in this subparagraph if the plan is a high deductible health plan (as defined in section 223(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) that meets all requirements under such section to be offered in connection with a health savings account.

SA 3162. Mr. SPECTER (for himself and Mrs. HAGAN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 1925, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

Subtitle C—Provisions Relating to the Safety of Drugs and Biological Products

SEC. 7201. ENSURING THE SAFETY OF DRUGS AND BIOLOGICAL PRODUCTS CONTAINING BLOOD, BLOOD COMPONENTS, AND BLOOD DERIVATIVES.

Section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262), as amended by section 7002, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

''(m) BLOOD, BLOOD COMPONENTS, AND BLOOD DERIVATIVES.—

''(1) REGULATION AND LICENSURE.—The Secretary shall issue regulations that—

''(A) require a person seeking approval of any drug or licensure of a biological product that contains blood, blood components, or blood derivatives to—

''(i) submit an application for licensure pursuant to this section; and

''(ii) demonstrate the clinical safety, purity, and potency of such drug or product; and

''(B) provide analytical methods and standards to evaluate the quality of the blood, blood components, or blood derivatives contained in the new drug or biological product throughout the manufacturing process.

''(2) BIOLOGICAL PRODUCTS AND DRUG PRODUCTS CONTAINING BLOOD, BLOOD COMPONENTS, OR BLOOD DERIVATIVES.—A drug or biological product described in paragraph (1) that contains blood, blood components, or blood derivatives shall include any drug or biological product that includes an active or inactive ingredient that—

''(A) contains blood, blood components, or blood derivatives and has the potential to—

''(i) transmit infectious agents, such as of a prion or a microbial origin; or

''(ii) cause an adverse immune reaction due to the presence of blood, blood components, or blood derivatives; and

''(B) is—

''(i) essential to the manufacture of the drug or product;

''(ii) determinate of the absorption and distribution of the drug or product when administered; and

''(iii) essential to the safety and efficacy of the drug or product.

''(3) OTHER PRODUCTS CONTAINING BLOOD, BLOOD PRODUCTS, OR BLOOD DERIVATIVES.—In addition to the drugs and biological products that meet the criteria described in paragraph (2), the Secretary may issue regulations to include other products containing blood, blood products, or blood derivatives as biological products subject to paragraph (1).

''(4) CONSISTENCY OF DEFINITIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, after the date of enactment of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, a drug or biological product that has been approved under section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and that meets the criteria described in paragraph (2) shall be treated by the Secretary as a biological product approved under a biologics license application under this section.''.

SA 3163. Mr. SPECTER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2786 proposed by Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DODD, and Mr. HARKIN) to the bill H.R. 3590, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the first-time homebuyers credit in the case of members of the Armed Forces and certain other Federal employees, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 869, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 3143. REVISION TO PAYMENT FOR CONSULTATION CODES.

(a) TEMPORARY DELAY OF ELIMINATION OF PAYMENT FOR CONSULTATION CODES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall not, prior to January 1, 2011, implement any provision contained in a final rule that eliminates or discontinues payment for consultation codes under the physician fee schedule and part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

(b) EVALUATION PERIOD.—During the period prior to January 1, 2011, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall consult with the Current Procedural Terminology Editorial Panel of the American Medical Association for the purpose of developing proposals to—

(1) modify existing consultation codes or establish new consultation codes to more accurately reflect the value provided through such consultation services; and

(2) minimize coding errors.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following staff of the Finance Committee be permitted the privileges of the floor during debate on the health care bill: Angela Franklin, Kaitlin Guarascio, and Scott Allen.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXTENSION OF AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY OF THE ARMY

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4165, which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4165) to extend through December 31, 2010, the authority of the Secretary of the Army to accept and expend funds contributed by non-Federal public entities to expedite the processing of permits.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any statements related to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4165) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

EXTENDING AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND AUTHORITY

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4217, which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4217) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend the funding and expenditure authority of the Airport and Airway Trust Fund, to amend title 49, United States Code, to extend authorizations for the airport improvement programs, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any statements related to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4217) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

NO SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS FOR PRISONERS ACT OF 2009

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4218, which was received from the House and is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4218) to amend titles II and XVI of the Social Security Act to prohibit retroactive payments to individuals during periods for which such individuals are prisoners, fugitive felons, or probation or parole violators.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I urge the Senate to pass by unanimous consent the ''No Social Security Benefits for Prisoners Act of 2009,'' which was recently passed by the House of Representatives.

This bill would prevent retroactive Social Security and Supplemental Security Income benefit payments from being issued to individuals while they are in prison, or in violation of conditions of parole or probation, or are fleeing to avoid prosecution for a felony or a crime punishable by sentence of more than one year.

Under current law, the Social Security Act already prohibits payment of current monthly benefits to such individuals. This bill ensures this prohibition applies to retroactive benefit payments as well. The bill allows any payments that are withheld to be paid once the person is no longer in prison, or in violation of conditions of parole or probation, or are fleeing to avoid prosecution.

This bill makes a common sense reform to the Social Security Act and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

I thank my colleagues for their support.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any statements relating to the matter be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4218) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

ORDERS FOR FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 2009

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 10 a.m., Friday, December 11; that follow the prayer and pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with Republicans controlling the first 30 minutes and the majority controlling the next 30 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, the majority leader came to the floor this evening and asked for permission to move to four pending amendments on the health care bill and it was not given. The Republican leader objected. We are hoping to renew that unanimous consent request tomorrow so we can wrap up the Omnibus appropriations bill and move quickly back to debate on the health care bill. I am hoping we can do that, in the interests of moving through some of the important amendments now pending.

We expect two votes tomorrow on motions to waive points of order with respect to the consolidated appropriations conference report. Those votes should require 60 affirmative votes. Senators will be notified when votes are scheduled. Senators should also be prepared for votes Saturday morning.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. DURBIN. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent it adjourn under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:04 p.m., adjourned until Friday, December 11, 2009, at 10 a.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

TRIBUTE TO SAM SIMMERMAKER

HON. MIKE PENCE
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the long and distinguished career of one of my heroes in broadcasting, Sam Simmermaker.

For fifty years, Sam Simmermaker has been a fixture on the airwaves of WCSI/WKKG in my hometown of Columbus, Indiana. As the ''Voice of High School Sports'', Sam has amassed an extraordinary career over the last half century that deserves to be commemorated on the floor of the People's House.

Both graduates of Indiana University in Bloomington, Sam and his beloved wife Fran came to Columbus in December of 1959 for what they thought would be a brief stop on their way to St. Louis. Sam was and still is a diehard Cardinals fan and it was his dream to become the radio voice of that baseball team.

Thankfully, the Simmermakers never left our community in Eastern Indiana and on January 1, 2010, Sam will celebrate fifty years in broadcasting on WCSI.

The list of awards and recognitions that Sam Simmermaker has received is long and distinguished. In 1976 and 1997, Sam was chosen as the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters ''Sportscaster of the Year.''

He was inducted into the Indiana Sportswriters and Sportscasters Hall of Fame in 1998 and the Indiana Broadcast Association Hall of Fame a decade later.

One of the biggest awards that Sam Simmermaker received was his induction into the Indiana Basketball Hall of Fame. In 2006, he joined the long list of legendary Hoosier basketball players and coaches as a St. Vincent Silver Medal Award winner.

Columbus High School basketball fans know him as the familiar voice of the Bull Dogs who for decades has brought a unique yet consistent style to a game that has evolved tremendously during his decades of service.

Listeners and fans alike can identify Sam by his trademark call—''Holy Cow!''—during his play-by-play call of local high school basketball, football and baseball games.

Aside from his professional role, Sam continues to be an active citizen in the community. He serves as a board member of the Columbus Fire Department's Cheer Fund and is a member of the First Christian Church.

Still an athlete, Sam can still be found playing first base in the Columbus Parks and Recreation Department's Old-Timer Slow Pitch Softball League.

Sam's long career has spanned many games over the last fifty years, but more importantly, it is a testament to his dedication to his community, friends and family.

Sam Simmermaker has become an icon in Columbus, Indiana and across its airwaves. To me, he will forever be a dear friend and mentor.

HONORING MR. EDGAR H. LANCASTER, JR.

HON. RODNEY ALEXANDER
OF LOUISIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam Speaker, I rise today in honor and remembrance of the life and achievements of Edgar H. Lancaster, Jr., who died on October 12, 2009, at the age of 91.

Lancaster was a graduate of Tallulah High School, Louisiana Tech University, and Louisiana State University School of Law. He proudly served his country in the U.S. Army during World War II. Following his discharge, he returned to Louisiana to pursue his law degree, in which he actively practiced from 1948 until the time of his death.

Lancaster served in the Louisiana House of Representatives from 1952 to 1968, where he continued his service to his community and state. In this capacity, he also served as Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and Speaker Pro Tempore.

Among his impressive list of endeavors, Lancaster also was an organizer of Southern National Bank at Tallulah, where he served on its Board of Directors, in addition to working as the bank's attorney.

For his remarkable life's work, Lancaster received numerous awards and distinctions. In 1986, the Louisiana Bar Foundation named him Attorney of the Year, and he was inducted into the LSU Law School Hall of Fame in 1987. He was appointed by the Louisiana Supreme Court as the 6th Judicial District Judge Pro Tempore from 1992 to 1993, and served on the Louisiana Law Institute for over 50 years, also acting as past president and chairman emeritus of the Institute. Moreover, Lancaster was very involved in the Louisiana State Bar Association, where he served on both the Board of Governors and the Attorney Ethics Commission.

A devoted husband and father, Lancaster is survived by his lovely wife of sixty-five years, Beverly Vedros Lancaster, and their three children. They are also the proud grandparents to three grandsons.

A man of many dimensions, Lancaster was an avid golfer and an unofficial historian in his spare time.

It is my pleasure to honor the late Edgar H. Lancaster, a man who served the people of Madison Parish as well as the state of Louisiana for many years. His commitment, hard work and leadership warrant this laudable recognition.

HONORING 373RD ANNIVERSARY OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

SPEECH OF
HON. LAURA RICHARDSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, December 7, 2009

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of House Resolution 940, a resolution recognizing and honoring the National Guard on the occasion of its 373rd anniversary. The National Guard has a rich and vital history of protecting our Nation, and I am proud to support this resolution honoring them.

I would like to thank Congressman LATTA for authoring this important resolution, and House Majority Leader STENY HOYER and Speaker NANCY PELOSI for their skill and leadership in bringing it to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, since the attacks on September 11, 2001, hundreds of thousands of members of the Army and Air National Guard have been called upon by their States and the Federal Government to provide security at home and combat terrorism abroad. As a conferee on H.R. 2647, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010, I was proud to support the provision of $200 million to support National Guard and Reserve military construction projects. The men and women of the National Guard make so many sacrifices to keep our Nation and its people safe, and we need to make sure they have the support and funding to perform their duties. This resolution recognizes and honors those sacrifices.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution thanking the members of the National Guard for their service and continued support, as well as expressing condolences and gratitude to the families of members of the National Guard who have lost their lives. I am proud to honor and support the compassionate, courageous, and dedicated members of the National Guard who serve a critical role in protecting the United States and its citizens' freedoms and treasured liberties.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 940.

RECOGNIZING THE BLUEWATER ELEMENTARY SCHOOL FOR RECEIVING THE BLUE RIBBON AWARD

HON. HARRY TEAGUE
OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. TEAGUE. Madam Speaker, I want to congratulate Bluewater Elementary School in Bluewater, New Mexico, for receiving the Blue Ribbon School Award awarded by the U.S. Department of Education for demonstrating academic excellence and dramatic gains in student achievement levels.

The Blue Ribbon Schools award was created in 1982 to recognize schools where students attain and maintain high academic standards and are pushed to improve themselves and further their dedication to scholastic achievement. This award shows that Bluewater Elementary School is serving its students well and helping them make strides forward in their academic careers.

Schools like Bluewater Elementary achieve such great distinctions because of the hard work and dedication of the teachers, staff, and administration. Their students also deserve to be commended for fully taking advantage of all of the opportunities provided to them by their exceptional staff. Bluewater Elementary School is a model for the progress other schools throughout the nation should strive to achieve.

I am honored to have Blue Ribbon Schools like Bluewater Elementary School in my district. I commend their achievement and wish them luck in the continuing their academic achievement.

HONORING MIKE NURY

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Mike Nury upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award'' at the 2009 San Joaquin Winegrowers Association 7th Annual San Joaquin Valley Wine & Grape Industry Forum. The luncheon will be held in Fresno, California on Friday, November 20, 2009.

Mr. Mike Nury came to the United States in November 1945 to attend American International University in Springfield, Massachusetts. In 1946 he was drafted into the United States Army and served during the Korean War. Upon completion of his military career, he arrived in California and attended the University of California, Berkley. He later transferred to the University of California, Davis where he earned a bachelor of science and master of science degree in food science in 1952. In 1953, Mr. Nury started his career with Vie-Del Company, a Fresno, California based winery, as a research chemist. His role at the winery had a tremendous impact on the company, as well as the industry as a whole. He played a major role in developing an improved method of concentrating grape flavors by adjusting the temperature and time used to concentrate the grapes. The outcomes were significant. The new concentrate had no ethanol, which was important for those unable to metabolize ethanol, thus eliminating ethanol taxes on the original concentrate. It also weighed less, reducing shipping costs, and the new concentrate made it possible to add wine flavor to more products.

In 1972, Mr. Nury was named President of the Vie-Del, and in 1990 the Nury family purchased the controlling interest in Vie-Del from Joseph E. Seagram & Sons. Since then, the company has continued to grow, producing millions of gallons of concentrate per year. Mr. Nury has served as president and owner, and after his semi-retirement, he served as chairman of the board. His family has also taken an interest in the wine industry. Two of his three daughters, Dianne and Roxanne, have spent many years with the company and his brother, Fred, taught Enology at California State University, Fresno and later worked for Seagram in the Bay Area. Mr. Nury is only one of three winemakers to have served as president of the Wine Institute and the American Society of Enology and Viticulture. He has also played an active role with the Fresno Rotary for over thirty-five years, served as a member of the Fresno Community Hospital Foundation Board and Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Mike Nury upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award.'' I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Mr. Nury many years of continued success.

OPPOSITION TO THE STUPAK AMENDMENT

HON. LOUISE McINTOSH SLAUGHTER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I have witnessed the horror of the choice between a back alley abortion and a forced marriage to avoid disgrace. These were the realities women faced prior to 1973. My fear is that if this harmful Stupak/Pitts language is signed into law, we will revert back to those dark times.

Until now, for over 30 years we lived in this House in peaceful coexistence, the pros and the cons getting together on the fact that the Hyde amendment said no federal money can be spent. We on our side simply had the law.

Critical to this debate is to break down the facts. The opposition claims that the Stupak/Pitts Amendment codifies current law. This is grossly incorrect.

Stupak-Pitts goes far beyond current law by placing unprecedented restrictions on individuals' use of their own private dollars. The Hyde Amendment does not apply to private funding nor does it apply to administrative costs. It has only placed limits on direct federal appropriations being used to fund abortion benefits. The Stupak Amendment expands the Hyde prohibitions on the use of Federal funds for an abortion benefit to include ''any part of the costs of any health plan that includes coverage of abortion.''

The Hyde Amendment does not include similar, far-reaching language. Seventeen States currently provide abortion coverage in Medicaid with separate State funding.

The opposition claims that this amendment will not change current insurance plans for women. This is blatantly wrong.

A report by health policy experts at the George Washington University School of Public Health concludes that the Stupak Amendment ''will have an industry-wide effect, eliminating coverage of medically indicated abortions over time for all women, not only those whose coverage is derived through a health insurance exchange.''

The opposition claims that the segregation of funding under the House bill is an accounting sham. This is blatantly false.

In the Capps Amendment, the segregation of funding piece is based on the current model the Federal Government uses to pay for abortions currently permitted in Medicaid. States are permitted to use their own funding to provide additional abortion coverage under Medicaid.

For me, and for many of my colleagues, it means 30 or 40 years of our life is being cancelled out with this amendment.

I am afraid that we are driving young women, poor women, all women of child-bearing age back to the back alley, and I dread to see that day.

COMMENDING RAPIDES PARISH SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT, GARY JONES

HON. RODNEY ALEXANDER

OF LOUISIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam Speaker, I rise today with pride to commend Rapides Parish School District Superintendent, Gary Jones, for his contributions to local education, specifically his plans to launch Aiken cyberacademy this spring, which will revolutionize learning options available to our students.

This virtual academy is modeled similarly to an online charter school in that it will be interactive and self-paced. Since students will be registered in the district system, Aiken will differ from online charter schools since students will be able to take other courses, as well as join extracurricular activities by attending a regular school.

As our nation's educators continue to look for ways to improve and strengthen education in our country, I believe this is an innovative alternative for students who have not thrived in the traditional classroom. In addition, this plan will provide more choices for homeschooled children.

To keep our communities on the cutting edge of educational advancements, I am proud of Gary Jones for ensuring such a creative option is available to help prepare our students. Please join me in honoring him for his work on behalf of our young students.

PROTECT REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS IN HEALTH CARE REFORM

HON. DIANA DeGETTE

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. DEGETTE. Madam Speaker, we came to work this year to deliver affordable, high-quality health care to all Americans. Instead of offering the possibility of health care to all Americans, some want to deny essential health care—reproductive health care—to women.

For politicians to intrude on a woman or couple's most personal and painful decisions is cynical and wrong. Nobody in America has the right to use government to impose their religious beliefs on someone else. Yet the Stupak-Pitts amendment would do just that.

The Stupak-Pitts amendment adopted by this House does not—does not—preserve the status quo on abortion. The Stupak-Pitts amendment tells millions of middle-class Americans that they cannot use their own money to purchase private health insurance to cover legal medical procedures. This is an unprecedented and dramatic departure from current law.

Not long ago, Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg observed that reproductive rights "center on a woman's autonomy to determine her life's course." Trading away those rights for limited access to health care is a devil's bargain that we will not make.

I urge my colleagues to act—to support women's access to a full range of reproductive health services, and to bring health care to all Americans.

HONORING JOSEPH TORCHIA

HON. SAM GRAVES

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. GRAVES. Madam Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Joseph Torchia, a very special young man who has exemplified the finest qualities of citizenship and leadership by taking an active part in the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 351, and in earning the most prestigious award of Eagle Scout.

Joseph has been very active with his troop participating in many scout activities. Over the many years Joseph has been involved with scouting, he has not only earned numerous merit badges, but also the respect of his family, peers, and community.

Madam Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Joseph Torchia for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout.

CONGRATULATING PRESIDENT AND MRS. GORDON MOULTON ON THE OCCASION OF THE NAMING OF THE USA BELL TOWER IN THEIR HONOR

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to offer congratulations to University of South Alabama President Gordon Moulton and his wife, Geri, whose efforts in support of the University are being permanently heralded by the naming of the new campus bell tower in their honor.

On September 18, 2009, the University of South Alabama Board of Trustees officially announced that the school's new bell tower will be dedicated "in honor of 'the exceptional service' of President Gordon Moulton and his wife, Geri."

When the 135-foot structure is completed in December, it will be the "premier landmark and the enduring symbol of spirit of the University of South Alabama," the board said. The impressive tower with four large bronze bells will also serve as a monument honoring alumni who are providing support for the project.

Madam Speaker, Gordon and Geri are deserving of such a lasting recognition. President Moulton has not only been the helmsman of the University since 1998—overseeing milestones in student enrollment and graduation, enhancement of campus life, and greater involvement of faculty and students in the community—he has also had a direct role in the establishment of the Mitchell Cancer Institute.

The University of South Alabama has also seen the benefit of his support of the University's Technology and Research Park and the Children's and Women's Hospital, to name a few.

President and Mrs. Moulton are well known for their advocacy of local causes important to the community. Geri was also honored in 2009 with the dedication of the Geri Moulton Children's Park.

I wish to extend my congratulations and appreciation to both President and Mrs. Moulton and look forward to their continued beneficial leadership of the University of South Alabama.

MAKE NO COMMITMENTS AT COPENHAGEN

HON. ED WHITFIELD

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. WHITFIELD. Madam Speaker, I rise today in response to President Obama's expected commitment to the world at the Copenhagen climate change discussion for the United States to reduce carbon emissions by 17 percent by 2020.

It is simply ludicrous to think that we can reduce carbon emissions by 17 percent by 2020 without wrecking our economy. I am also concerned about the Administration's so-called endangerment finding to regulate carbon emissions under the Clean Air Act. This is a disastrous move forward to regulate carbon under a law that was clearly not intended to regulate carbon emissions. In many cases, it is not required under this law to take into consideration the impact on the economy, which poses enormous problems. Going further on the science of climate change, in light of the emails that show that scientists have been suppressing information about the scientific proof of climate change, I believe that it is even more important that we take a step back and ensure that we understand the impact of carbon emissions.

The trick that scientists have been using to make the data work has been reported as being called, "trick and hide." It seems, Madam Speaker, that not only are the scientists "tricking and hiding" the American people on the science of climate changes, but the Democratic Majority is "tricking and hiding" the truth about the cap and trade bill. The truth about the cap and trade bill is that this bill will increase electricity rates in some states, like Kentucky, as much as 40 percent. Additionally, the cap and trade bill is nothing more than a hidden tax on the American people. I might add that I am not against reducing carbon emissions as I have cosponsored and helped move the Carbon Capture and Sequestration legislation that was sponsored by Congressman BOUCHER and others.

It is important that we develop this technology before enacting any regulatory regime to dramatically reduce carbon emissions. These efforts are essential in keeping electricity rates low. However, I am against the President making a commitment that we cannot meet and that China and India will not match. I am also against the Administration's movement to regulate carbon through the Clean Air Act.

We must take a step back and study the science on this issue to make certain we get this right and I call on the Administration to do just that. I call on my colleagues to speak up about negative impacts of the "trick and hide" bill and urge the Administration not to make any commitments at Copenhagen.

HONORING VFW POST 8946 IN WOODCLIFF LAKE, NEW JERSEY

HON. SCOTT GARRETT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor the work of VFW Post 8946 in Woodcliff Lake, New Jersey for their selfless and inspiring deeds towards their fellow citizens. For the past few years this group of extraordinary individuals has been traveling to the Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington DC as well as the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center in Bethesda, Maryland. During their trips the members of the Post have spent time with wounded veterans and their families. They have brought items such as clothing, CD players, electric shavers and even a large TV for the Recreation Room.

After one of their more recent visits to Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, William Huston, a member of the Post, told a local reporter that, "these young men have a remarkable attitude, we cannot properly express the admiration we have for them." It is this sense of genuine commitment towards helping those who have given so much to our nation that makes this Post unique in many ways.

As I reflect on the deeds they have done I cannot help but be reminded of the enduring words from President Abraham Lincoln's second inaugural address. Lincoln challenged his fellow Americans to "care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." The men of this Post are a living testament to these words.

I want to once again thank this group of exceptional men for their service towards their fellow citizens. I am proud to represent such a fine group of people in the United States House of Representatives and I would like to recognize individually: William Huston, Gerard DeCicco, Joseph M. Poggi, Faust Faustini, Ray Johns, Peter Mauro, James Horris, Edward Powers, Sergei Leoniuk, Edward Halvey, George Kritzler, Fredrick Singer, and Robery Schmitt.

RECOGNIZING MORRILL WORCESTER FOR HIS WORK IN HONORING OUR NATION'S FALLEN

HON. DUNCAN HUNTER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. HUNTER. Madam Speaker, today I rise in recognition of Mr. Morrill Worcester of Harrington, Maine. Morrill is President of the Worcester Wreath Company, and he and his company have provided Christmas wreaths for Arlington National Cemetery since 1992.

Morrill Worcester's story begins in 1962 when at the age of 12 he won a trip to Washington, DC, from his local paper. After visiting Arlington National Cemetery, he was awestruck by the enormity of the cemetery and its perfectly aligned rows of headstones representing the thousands who have died in service to this country. The powerful imagery of Arlington left a lasting impression on Morrill, one that would stay with him long after he began his business selling Christmas wreaths.

In 1992, the Worcester Wreath Company had an overstock of Christmas wreaths. Unwilling to simply throw the extra wreaths away, and with the image of Arlington still a treasured memory, Morrill was inspired. With the help of volunteers, he spent 6 hours in the rain placing a wreath at each headstone. For 18 years, Morrill has taken time out of his busiest season to deliver handmade wreaths to Arlington National Cemetery and lead volunteers in laying them on the headstones.

When word of his efforts spread around the Internet, hundreds more Americans from across the country began to ask how they could get involved and show their respect for our fallen. Morrill soon expanded the project into Wreaths Across America, allowing anyone to donate a wreath to honor the fallen. As a result, Wreaths Across America have laid over 100,000 wreaths at numerous national cemeteries. Congress has recognized his work by declaring December 13, 2008 as ''Wreaths Across America Day.''

Madam Speaker, this gentleman's dedication and actions directly reflect his selfless resolve to honor and remember our Nation's fallen. Individuals like Morrill and the volunteers of Wreaths Across America embody the great respect that we as a nation have for those who have died defending our freedom. On the second Saturday of December this year, and hopefully for many more Decembers to come, Morrill will be at Arlington National Cemetery in solemn remembrance to lay more wreaths.

Mr. Morrill Worcester, thank you for remembering those who have given so much for our freedom, and thank you for sharing your passion to honor these brave men and women with the American people.

HONORING NORWICH UNIVERSITY AND ITS INAUGURAL DAY OF SERVICE

HON. PETER WELCH

OF VERMONT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. WELCH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge Norwich University and its inaugural Day of Service.

Located in the foothills of the Green Mountains in Northfield, Vermont, Norwich University is the oldest private military college in the Nation. The university's founder, Captain Alden Partridge, believed in the importance of service and experiential learning. On November 7, 2009, over 150 alumni, undergraduate and graduate students, staff, and friends of Norwich University exemplified these principles by joining together in the university's inaugural Day of Service. The date was chosen specifically to coincide with Veterans Day, with most of the volunteer opportunities focused on supporting our Nation's veterans and active duty military.

Here in the DC area, dozens of alumni and friends volunteered at Walter Reed Army Medical Center's Fisher Houses, which are nonprofit homes where family members of injured soldiers can stay while their soldier recuperates from injury. Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, Norwich alumni visited with veterans at the local Veterans' Community Living Center and sponsored an afternoon of pizza and bingo. Norwich community volunteers in Massachusetts, New York, and Florida collected hundreds of toys and books to be distributed through the Armed Forces Foundation and Operation Paperback. Elsewhere around the country volunteers assembled care packages that will be sent to Norwich University alumni currently serving in Iraq. In North Carolina, alumni rallied to support Wakefield High School's anti-drunk driving efforts, and in San Antonio over 20 alumni and friends spent the morning volunteering in the fruit and vegetable gardens of the San Antonio Food Bank. In my home State of Vermont, over 50 students and alumni helped with local river cleanup, volunteered at the Vermont Food Bank and Habitat for Humanity, and provided logistical support for the White River Junction Mobile Vet Center.

At a time when so many of the men and women of our armed forces are serving around the globe, the Norwich Day of Service is a praiseworthy example of how those of us at home can volunteer our time to thank our servicemembers and veterans for their sacrifice.

HONORING THE SERVICE OF HUGH S. BRANYON UPON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor the exemplary public service of Mr. Hugh S. Branyon who is retiring on December 11, 2009, after 35 years as superintendent of Gulf State Park on Alabama's Gulf Coast.

A native of Fayette in northwest Alabama, Mr. Branyon first came to Baldwin County in 1957 to work at Gulf State Park. His experience along the gulf sparked such a love of the outdoors that he devoted not only his career, but indeed, his life to the service of Alabama's state parks.

Mr. Branyon's labors have spanned a half century and the length of Alabama. After his first job at Gulf State Park, Mr. Branyon traveled upstate to Lake Guntersville State Park, where he rose to acting manager. Over the ensuing years, he traversed the state, heading back for a brief stint at Gulf State Park before being appointed ranger at Auburn's Chewacla State Park. In 1967, he was called to the State capital to become Chief of Operation in Maintenance to all Alabama state parks and fishing lakes. In 1972, Mr. Branyon returned to Baldwin County where he eventually became Superintendent of Gulf State Park and has since served continuously.

Mr. Branyon has always preferred to call his job a way of life. It was his dedication to the mission of preserving our outdoors that led Mr. Branyon to also assume the role of Southwest District Superintendent over five other south Alabama parks: Bladon Springs, Frank Jackson, Chickasaw, Florala and Meaher.

He has shepherded Gulf State Park through 13 named tropical storms and hurricanes. He oversaw the original construction of Gulf State Park's much-used fishing pier in 1967 and its reconstruction, nearly doubling its length. Under his supervision, Gulf State Park has steadily grown to become one of Alabama's most popular state parks.

No stranger to volunteer service in his community and across the state, he has also been active in many local civic clubs and organizations. His selfless service has led to his receipt of the highest awards from Rotary and Lions clubs international.

Mr. Branyon has been more than a park superintendent, but rather a friend, to so many of his employees and those who crossed his path over the decades in Alabama's parks. His devotion to preserving the treasures of Alabama's outdoors will be hard to match. All those who have enjoyed the beauty and splendor of our pristine parks owe Hugh Branyon a debt of thanks.

Mr. Branyon and his wife, Carol Wenzel Branyon, have two daughters and five grandchildren. Upon retirement, Mr. Branyon plans to devote even more time to his beloved outdoors, including fishing with his grandchildren.

I join thousands of Alabamians in wishing Hugh Branyon the best as he enters his well-deserved retirement.

TRIBUTE TO BROTHER BOB BEVINGTON

HON. JOHN J. DUNCAN, JR.

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. DUNCAN. Madam Speaker, today I wish to pay tribute to a beloved pastor from my District who was one of the most tireless servants of the Lord I have ever known.

I knew Rev. Bob Bevington—affectionately called Brother Bob by all—from the time I was a small boy. He was the advisor to the Christian Student Organization when I was in High School, and I had tremendous admiration and respect for him.

Most especially, I admired his unwavering faith during the passing of both of his sons. The pain of losing two children is unimaginable, but Brother Bob relied on his creator during those dark days and showed us all that God can help us even through terrible and tragic times.

Brother Bob's impact on my District is incalculable. He started the Knoxville Baptist Tabernacle Church in 1951, and his calling to preach the Word had no limits. The Church continued to grow, and in 1971 Brother Bob launched the Knoxville Baptist Christian School, which is still going strong today.

Knowing that there were more people who needed to hear his message than his pews could hold, Brother Bob also published many newsletters and newspaper columns and launched a radio ministry called the Revival of the Air in 1948. Broadcasts continued right up until his passing.

While eulogizing Brother Bob, the current Pastor of Knoxville Baptist Tabernacle Church, Brother Tony Greene, spoke of Brother Bob's legacy, saying ''From this church have gone hundreds of soul winners, preachers, and missionaries. At this church have preached the mighty voices of the 20th century.''

He continued, ''Just hours before his Homegoing, the Lord allowed Brother Bob the strength to do one final radio broadcast. What a testimony of faithfulness to the end! A life well-lived, to the finish. 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.' ''

In a recent tribute to Brother Bob, a commentator in the Knoxville News Sentinel appropriately wrote, ''Maybe the words 'good and decent' don't tell the whole story. Brother Bob, you were one exceptional man.''

Madam Speaker, the passing of Brother Bob Bevington is a tremendous loss for my District, his wife Mary Lou, daughter and son-in-law Marilyn and Bob Russell, his grandchildren and great-grandchildren, many other family and friends and the thousands of people devoted to his message of loving the Lord. I want to call his service and faith in God to the attention of my Colleagues and other readers of the RECORD and thank him for showing us all the way to a better life.

HONORING BOB McINTURF

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Bob McInturf upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award'' at the 2009 San Joaquin Winegrowers Association 7th Annual San Joaquin Valley Wine & Grape Industry Forum. The luncheon will be held in Fresno, California on Friday, November 20, 2009.

Mr. Bob McInturf began farming in Madera and Fresno counties in 1946. For approximately fifty years he has been an integral member of the farming community; promoting farmers and small business owners, and working closely with vineyards around the San Joaquin Valley. Mr. McInturf was one of the original incorporators of Allied Grape Growers and served as President from 1956 through 1987. He has also served on the board of directors for Sun Maid Raisin Growers, the Agricultural Council of California, the National Council of Farm Cooperatives, the California Association of Winegrape Growers and the San Joaquin Valley Winegrowers Association. Mr. McInturf is the past chairman of the Agricultural Advisory Committee for the University of California.

Mr. McInturf has worked on many boards and committees representing the grape and agricultural industry on the local, state, national and international arenas. For many years he was involved with the marketing order of grapes for crushing and served as chairman of the Specialty Crop Committee for Trade Negotiations with the European Community Market.

Mr. McInturf and his wife, Rosalie, had lived in Fresno most of their lives. After Mr. McInturf retired they moved to Roseville, California. They have two children, Cindy and Stan. Mr. McInturf has been involved with his church and many church activities throughout his life.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Bob McInturf upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award.'' I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Mr. McInturf many years of continued success.

TRIBUTE TO FORMER ALABAMA STATE SENATOR PIERRE PELHAM

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, last week, Alabama lost one of its luminaries—a gifted public servant who will be remembered not only for his articulate and persuasive oratory, but also for his many contributions to our region.

Former State Senator Pierre Pelham of Mobile passed away on December 3, 2009, at the age of 80.

A native of Chatom, Alabama, Pierre Pelham was a scholar, a patriot, and an astute and skilled politician who was admired by many.

Senator Pelham distinguished himself early in life as a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Alabama and went on to graduate cum laude from Harvard University Law School.

He served his country during the Korean War, rising to the rank of Lieutenant in the Army. During his military service, he earned the Combat Infantryman and the Expert Infantryman badges.

Back home in Alabama, he developed a passion for public service. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions in 1960 and 1964, laying the groundwork for later public office. From 1966 to 1974, he represented Mobile in the Alabama State Senate. He attained the position of president pro tempore of the Alabama Senate while only in his second term.

During his political career, Senator Pelham is credited with helping to establish the College of Medicine at the University of South Alabama in Mobile. Today, the USA College of Medicine plays a leading role in education and research to save the lives of thousands of Alabamians and others along the Gulf Coast.

A Fellow of Harvard University's Kennedy Institute of Politics, Senator Pelham was widely known for his command of the political craft and the spoken word. He was formidable in his ability to persuade his colleagues during debate.

Senator Pelham was also known for his deep, abiding faith and his lifelong membership and support of the Chatom United Methodist Church.

I rise to extend my condolences to his wife, Eva, and four children, Joseph, Marc, Pier, and Patrice Pelham, and 12 grandchildren.

May his family know that they are in our thoughts and prayers at this difficult time.

IN OPPOSITION TO THE STUPAK AMENDMENT

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. LEE of California. Madam Speaker, I rise to join my colleagues in opposition to further restrictions on the constitutionally guaranteed right to abortion.

Last night the other body wisely defeated an amendment mirrored on the Stupak language that would have gone far and away beyond the current Hyde Amendment restrictions on abortion law.

That amendment, like the Stupak amendment we adopted in the House represented a blatant attack on women.

It attempts to dictate how individual Americans can spend their own money. That is simply outrageous.

The federal government has no place inserting itself between the medical decisions that a woman makes with her doctor.

This is a democracy, not a theocracy. The religious views of some should not dictate public policy for all.

We've got to follow the Senate's lead and strip the Stupak language from the final health reform bill and ensure that woman can exercise their right to seek an abortion.

We cannot and should not compromise away the rights of women to win votes.

We have already compromised far too much.

IN RECOGNITION OF ROBERT K. McCLEARY

HON. JOHN GARAMENDI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. GARAMENDI. Madam Speaker, Representatives GEORGE MILLER, Representative JERRY MCNEARNEY and I rise today in honor of Robert McCleary, who has served as the Executive Director for the Contra Costa Transportation Authority for the last 20 years. As his colleagues, friends and family gather together to celebrate the next chapter of his life, we ask all of our colleagues to join us in saluting this outstanding public servant.

Bob McCleary's visionary efforts and hard work have benefited this generation and will benefit many more generations in the years to come. Transportation projects such as the BART extension to Pittsburg/BayPoint, the widening of Routes 4, 242 and 680, the Richmond Parkway, the intermodal stations at Richmond and Martinez, along with numerous other local transportation improvements have all been constructed under Bob McCleary's stay at the Contra Costa Transportation Authority and serve as a true testament to his judicious hard work and dedication.

Bob McCleary was faced with the daunting task of implementing Contra Costa's first transportation sales tax—Measure C—passed by the voters in 1988. Bob McCleary has worked diligently to ensure that the transportation sales tax program has been executed in an efficient, effective and equitable manner, consistent with the voters' intent. He recently played an integral role in establishing the necessary consensus building efforts leading to the successful passage in 2004, of Measure J—the successor transportation sales tax to Measure C. His legacy will live on in this Measure and in a series of transportation projects that are instrumental and essential to the communities they serve.

Prior to serving as the executive director for the Contra Costa Transportation Authority, Bob McCleary was also involved in other regional programs such as the Santa Clara County Traffic Authority where he served as the Deputy Director for Project Management. During Bob's stay at the Santa Clara County Traffic Authority he helped establish the new authority and manage the day to day project implementation of a $1 billion dollar local sales tax program. This program would fund three State highways, the first of its kind in California and relied heavily on a partnership with Caltrans, local government, and the private sector for success. Bob McCleary made sure it became a success.

Madam Speaker, we are truly honored to pay tribute to our friend and dedicated public servant. We ask all of our colleagues to join with us in thanking Robert McCleary for his long and dedicated service to the citizens of California and wishing him continued success and happiness in all of his future endeavors along with a happy retirement.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. GONZALEZ. Madam Speaker, a personal matter prevented my presence in the House this past Thursday, December 03, 2009. Had I been present, I would have voted ''yea'' on final passage of the Permanent Estate Tax Relief for Families, Farmers, and Small Businesses Act of 2009 (H.R. 4154).

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. ADAM SMITH

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Madam Speaker, on Tuesday, December 8, 2009, I was unable to be present for recorded votes because I was attending the memorial service held in Tacoma, Washington for the four police officers of the Lakewood Police Department who were killed last week in the line of duty.

Had I been present, I would have voted: ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 931 (on the motion to instruct conferees on H.R. 3288); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 932 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Con. Res. 199, as amended); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 933 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Con. Res. 206, as amended); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 934 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Res. 940); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 935 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Res. 845, as amended); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 936 (on the motion to suspend the rules and pass H.R. 2278, as amended); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 937 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Res. 915); ''yes'' on rollcall vote No. 938 (on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to H. Res. 907).

HONORING WORLD WAR II VETERAN MAURICE GLENN BELL, SURVIVOR OF THE USS ''INDIANAPOLIS''

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor the memory of World War II veteran Maurice Glenn Bell of Mobile, Alabama, who passed away on December 4, 2009, at the age of 84.

Mr. Bell proudly embodied the qualities that our nation has associated with the ''Greatest Generation''—those Americans who were called to give everything for the defense of our freedom and the liberation of millions overseas. Mr. Bell was absolutely committed to serving his country in wartime, and after the war, he was a role model of character and courage in civilian life.

In 1943, when he was summoned to serve in the Second World War, Mr. Bell was already working as an electrician's helper in the Mobile shipyards. He joined the Navy and saw engagements in places we know well from our history books—including the allied invasions of Tarawa, Saipan, and the battle of the Philippine Sea.

But the World War II experience for which Mr. Bell is best remembered is uniquely linked to the vessel upon which he served—the historic USS Indianapolis. It was the Indianapolis that delivered the first atomic bomb to be dropped on Japan. And after the heavy cruiser was struck by two Japanese torpedoes in the middle of the night on July 30, 1945, Mr. Bell was among the 900 crew members who were able to get into the water in an attempt to save themselves.

Mr. Bell and his comrades spent four days in the unforgiving ocean awaiting rescue—an ordeal that subjected them to near constant shark attack and dehydration. Of the 1,196 men on board the Indianapolis before she went down, only 316 survived—including Maurice Bell.

Like many Indianapolis veterans, he had remained mostly silent about his experiences on those four fateful days in 1945. However, 62 years later, he was given a chance to tell his story before a national audience as part of the PBS World War II documentary, ''The War.'' The Ken Burns film interviewed a number of Mobile area veterans, including Mr. Bell.

Mr. Bell also captivated local audiences who would hear his stories about those long days and nights adrift in a seemingly dark and bottomless sea. He urged them never to give up.

It is ironic that this veteran of the war in the Pacific was buried on December 7, 2009—the 68th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Alabama is fortunate to have so many veterans like Maurice Bell who love their country and answered its call in time of need. We will always owe them a deep debt of gratitude.

I join this House in offering condolences to his wonderful wife of 65 years, Lois Bell, and their three children, Beverly Gros, Bonnie Hall and David Bell, and six grandchildren and 24 great grandchildren.

May they be comforted in knowing that they remain in our prayers during their time of loss.

RECOGNIZING ARIZONA'S GIFT OF THE 2009 CAPITOL CHRISTMAS TREE

HON. HARRY E. MITCHELL

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. MITCHELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the State of Arizona's gift to the U.S. Capitol and to the American people. The Capitol Christmas Tree has been a tradition at the United States Capitol since 1964. This is the first time that Arizona has gifted the Capitol Christmas tree, and it is also the tallest ever.

On December 8th, 2009, this majestic 85-foot Blue spruce, originally harvested from the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forests in Eastern Arizona, was unveiled on the west lawn of the United States Capitol. The Capitol Christmas Tree, also known as ''The People's Tree,'' is decorated with more than 6,000 holiday ornaments made by Arizona's school children. These ornaments were made from recycled materials and were made specially to survive the winter elements of this colder Washington climate.

The tree's journey to the United States Capitol began when it was cut down on November 7th, and embarked on a 10-day tour of Arizona, during which the tree stopped in 28 of our communities. The tree eventually travelled over 4,600 miles before arriving at its final destination in Washington, D.C., but before arriving, it stopped at cities across the nation so that thousands of Americans could marvel at the seven-story, 9,000-pound spruce. Moving such a large tree for so great a distance was a challenge, and was successful due to the efforts of Harry Baker and his crew from Southwest Industrial Rigging.

Madam Speaker, please join me in thanking the U.S. Forest Service, and especially the employees of the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forests, for their devotion to this wonderful project. These employees gave up their Thanksgiving holiday with their families to assist with the transportation of the tree to Washington, D.C. I would especially like to thank Rick Davalos, the District Manager of the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forests, and Jim Payne, the Forest Service's Public Affairs Officer, who headed up this extensive project. And lastly, I would like to commend the Steering Committee of the Capitol Christmas Tree 2009 Project, and the project's many volunteers, for their time and hard work.

TRIBUTE TO TERESEANN LYNCH

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. LATHAM. Madam Speaker, I would like to take a moment to remember a woman from Iowa who personified the courage and spirit of a working mother and Member of the United States Military. TereseAnn Lynch was killed on November 11, 2009, due to an act of domestic violence. TereseAnn, 30, was a mother of an 8-month-old son. As a member of the Iowa Air National Guard for more than a decade, she served tours of duty in Iraq, Kuwait, and Saudi Arabia working as a weapons specialist. Most recently, TereseAnn served her country with honor providing aid in the Iraq War as a technical sergeant. She was also an active and committed employee at the Department of Human Services in Iowa where she provided help to young children and mothers trying to recover lost child support payments.

On behalf of my family, and the United States Congress, I would like to extend my condolences to her family, friends, and loved ones. TereseAnn embodied the character and values of a servicewoman and loving mother.

A tragedy like this is a painful reminder of the frequency of domestic violence cases. Domestic violence is a willful act of abuse that results in many reactions such as fear, anger, depression, and even death. In the U.S., an estimated 1.3 million women are victims of physical assault by an intimate partner each year. In Iowa over the past decade, domestic violence has affected nearly 6,000 women annually and 1,200 men. Structured to fight the battle against domestic violence, the Iowa Coalition Against Domestic Violence (ICADV) is an organization established to reach out and help Iowans with domestic violence issues. With 28 direct service programs across the state, the coalition offers counseling and community outreach. The ICADV institutes a 24-hour statewide hotline for those needing help. The phone number is 1–800–942–0333.

Domestic violence is a horrific act that no one should have to deal with, and it is my hope that the resources and help available will offer guidance and aid to those affected.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ROBERT B. ADERHOLT

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. ADERHOLT. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of HR 3288, the Consolidated Appropriations Act, Fiscal Year 2010:

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: DOJ, COPS Tech

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: City of Hartselle, AL

Address of Requesting Entity: 200 Sparkman St. N.W. Hartselle, AL 35640

Description of Request: Wireless Area Network $250,000

The funding would be used to purchase a Wireless Area Network. This funding will greatly improve the telecommunication access in the area.

The full amount of these funds will be used to purchase equipment.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: DOJ, OJP—Byrne

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama Department of Public Safety, Montgomery, AL

Address of Requesting Entity: P.O. Box 1511, Montgomery, AL 36102-1511

Description of Request: ''ADPS Child Sexual Predator Project, $150,000''

The funding would be used for Project targets arrest and prosecution of Child Sexual Predators in AL. ADPS received 2008 start-up funding from COPS Child Sexual Predator Program. ADPS needs federal assistance to maintain the current level of effective operation. This program continues efforts initiated nationwide under the ADAM WALSH ACT.

These funds will be used for the following areas: $50,000 equipment; $10,000 access to background data base repositories to locate absconded sex offenders; $70,000 salaries and benefits; and $20,000 enhancement of the department's ability to accept electronically transmitted sex offender information.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: DOJ, OJP—Byrne

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: The University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, AL

Address of Requesting Entity: Box 870117, Tuscaloosa, AL 35487

Description of Request: Domestic Violence Law Clinic, $300,000

The funding would be used to provide free civil legal services to victims of domestic violence, stalking, and assault in the seven west Alabama counties of Bibb, Greene, Hale, Fayette, Pickens, Lamar and Tuscaloosa. The services provided by the DV Law Clinic further the national goal of crime prevention and victim assistance and support the important services set forth in the Violence Against Women Act and other federal laws.

These funds will be used for the following areas: $219,000 for salaries and benefits; and $81,000 will be used for facilities and administrative costs associated with the Clinic.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: DOJ, OJP—Byrne

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama District Attorneys Association, Montgomery, AL

Address of Requesting Entity: 515 South Perry Street Montgomery, Alabama 36104

Description of Request: Zerometh Drug Prevention Campaign, $1,000,000

The funding would be used by Zerometh to expose meth and its deadly consequences to teens and young adults. The goal is to stop a potential first-time user from ever trying the drug, while encouraging everyone to look for the warning signs and support treatment. Methamphetamine is a national epidemic and efforts to educate youth on its dangers and hopefully prevent the initial use of meth are needed.

$30,000 would be used for Program Administration, Project Evaluation, and Compliance, while $970,000 would be used for a year of demand reduction programs across the State of Alabama.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: DOJ, OJP–JJ

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama Institute for Deaf and Blind, Talladega, AL

Address of Requesting Entity: 205 E. South St, P.O. Box 698, Talladega, Alabama 35161

Description of Request: Overcoming Communication Barriers for AIDB At-Risk Youth, $15,000

The funding would be used to expand a preventive education program for at-risk disabled children impacted by communication barriers, increased incidence of dysfunctional families and a lack of appropriately trained personnel in rural areas and school systems. One in 10 US children is born with a disability, adding emotional and financial stress to families and rural school systems. Disabled teens are more likely to face abuse, pregnancy or suicide due to communication and other barriers, and this funding helps address this.

$110,000 for program development, $29,000 for parent education and training, $11,000 for program materials, supplies and support.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account or Provision: NASA, Cross Agency Support

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: The University of Alabama in Huntsville

Address of Requesting Entity: 301 Sparkman Avenue, Huntsville, AL 38152

Description of Request: Virtual Environment Simulation Laboratory $500,000.

The funding would be used for purchasing of equipment which provides UAH a new capability to support Marshall Space Flight Center (MSFC) missions by developing engineering and science applications of virtual environment simulation as well as enhancing student involvement in virtual environments. This would benefit NASA MSFC uses of the facility relevant to MSFC missions, including virtual examination of rocket engines while firing, virtual participation in spacecraft manufacturing and maintenance processes and virtual presence on the surface of the moon.

The full amount of these funds will be used to purchase equipment.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account: NASA, Cross Agency Support

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Southern Research Institute

Address of Requesting Entity: 757 Tom Martin Drive, Birmingham, AL 35211

Description of Request: Development of characterization techniques for advanced high temperature materials in space launch, $1,000,000.

The funding of $1 million for the ''Development of Characterization Techniques for Advanced High Temperature Materials in Space Launch Applications'' will enable research and developments of advanced modeling, testing and characterization techniques for advanced composite materials in extreme environments. SRI has identified several gaps in current NASA technology that if filled, will greatly assist analysts and designers to successfully utilize composites in advanced structural and thermal protection system applications and reduce overall program risk.

$350,000 to be spent on equipment and material purchases, $400,000 to be spent on materials research and analysis, $200,000 to be spent on testing, and $50,000 to be spent on program management.

Requesting Member: ADERHOLT

Bill Number: HR 3288

Account or Provision: NASA, Cross Agency Support

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: B.G. Smith & Associates, Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 555 Sparkman Drive, Suite 810, Huntsville, AL 35816

Description of Request: Product life-cycle management and advanced modeling and simulation methods, $1,000,000.

The program seeks to create an integrated and interoperable Product Lifecycle environment as it relates to engineering and manufacturing capabilities and to perform focused critical analyses on flight vehicle performance issues. To move MSFC in the direction leading to modernizing its systems, streamline operations, increase traceability, decrease costs, gain better insight, and increased aerospace manufacturing expertise.

The funding would be used for about 6 full time employees, to purchase some hardware and cost associated with PLM software.

HONORING DR. LAWRENCE B. SCHOOK

HON. TIMOTHY V. JOHNSON

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the achievements of Dr. Lawrence B. Schook, who recently led an international team in the sequencing of the swine genome. Dr. Schook is a distinguished Gutsgell Professor and Director of the Division of Biomedical Sciences at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign where he has spent the past nine years researching genetic resistance to disease, regenerative medicine, and using genomics to create animal models for biomedical research.

The draft sequence will allow researchers to pinpoint genes that are useful to pork production or are involved in immunity or other important physiological processes in the pig. It will enhance breeding practices, offer insight into diseases that afflict pigs (and, sometimes, also humans) and will assist in efforts to preserve the global heritage of rare, endangered and wild pigs. It also will be important for the study of human health because pigs are very similar to humans in their physiology, behavior and nutritional needs.

With the growth of our world's population and subsequent rise in interaction between both domesticated and wild animals it is imperative that we continue to fund researchers such as Dr. Schook. The recent outbreak of H1N1 is a great reminder that the work of Dr. Schook and his colleagues is of upmost importance, not only to our world's food supply, but to our health as well.

I would ask that my colleagues join me in congratulating Dr. Schook, the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and all of the team members under Dr. Schook who made this discovery possible.

HONORING SCOTTS BLUFF NATIONAL MONUMENT ON ITS 90TH BIRTHDAY

HON. ADRIAN SMITH

OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. SMITH of Nebraska. Madam Speaker, I rise today to join in honoring the Scotts Bluff National Monument—which will be celebrating its 90th anniversary this Saturday.

On December 12th, 1919, President Woodrow Wilson signed a Presidential Proclamation, officially establishing Scotts Bluff National Monument on approximately 2,000 acres.

One of the highest points in Nebraska, Scotts Bluff played an important role in our country's westward expansion. A natural landmark, the formation served as a point of reference for travelers on the Oregon, California, Mormon, and Pony Express Trails.

Today, visitors to the monument can hike the Saddle Rock Trail, see a magnificent view from the summit, visit the Oregon Trail Museum and Visitor Center, and even relive life on the Oregon Trail during special ''Living History'' programs during the summer. The north face of the monument shows more geological history than any other formation in Nebraska, spanning a time period extending millions of years.

Having grown up in the shadow of the monument, I know full well just how important this monument has been for our country, for Nebraska, and for the local economy. It is with great pleasure I join with all Nebraskans to celebrate the 90th birthday of such an icon.

RECOGNIZING MR. ROY FOSTER AS A 2009 TOP 10 CNN HERO

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a courageous veteran turned social activist, Mr. Roy Foster. Mr. Foster is the founder of Stand Down House, an organization in South Florida that has been providing veterans with life-changing assistance since 2000. His hard work and dedication has earned him the esteemed distinction of 2009 Top 10 CNN Hero. CNN Heroes is an annual awards ceremony that recognizes ''everyday people changing the world.'' Mr. Foster was one of ten CNN Heroes chosen by a blue-ribbon panel of distinguished leaders and humanitarians, including Retired General Colin Powell, Whoopi Goldberg, and Sir Elton John, from an initial pool of more than 9,000 viewer nominations.

Mr. Foster knows all too well how hard it is to find programs that help veterans deal with addiction and homelessness because he used to be one of them. Born in rural Georgia, Mr. Foster joined the Army right after high school. Throughout his six years in the military, he drank alcohol and experimented with drugs. By the time he left the Army in 1980, Mr. Foster was an alcoholic and his drug use had begun to escalate as he struggled to deal with life after the Army. Like many people dealing with addiction, Mr. Foster spent nights sleeping on the streets as he battled his disease for many years.

After starting a life of sobriety in the early 1990s, Mr. Foster used his experiences to become an effective substance abuse counselor. Acknowledging the problems that veterans dealing with substance abuse face, Mr. Foster and another veteran, the late Don Reed, established the non- profit Faith*Hope*Love*Charity, Inc. so that veterans would no longer fall through the cracks of an imperfect system.

After six years of work, Mr. Foster founded Stand Down House to help fellow veterans who are struggling and have lost their homes, dignity, and the ability to lead productive lives. Through referral by the Veterans Administration (VA) and with help from their funding, Stand Down House provides transitional housing and support services to 45 veterans in different stages of recovery. This support includes housing, clothing, counseling, life skills classes for up to two years, and transportation to the VA hospital for medical and mental health care. The goal is to not only assist veterans in their recovery process, but give them the tools to find employment or attend school after their recovery process is over.

At Stand Down House, veterans realize that they are not alone in their struggles after returning home, which allows for veterans of all ages to become a support system for one another. This often leads to veterans becoming informal counselors to each other and making sure that one another stay on track. Many graduates of the program find the bond of friendship and support so beneficial that they return as volunteers to give back to others in need, especially with many veterans now returning home from Afghanistan and Iraq.

Madam Speaker, I truly admire the work that Mr. Roy Foster has done, and continues to do, for our nation's veterans each and every single day. After serving our country so valiantly, no veteran should ever have to face the future alone.

TRIBUTE TO DR. JAMES JOHNSON

HON. MARY FALLIN

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. FALLIN. Madam Speaker, I am saddened to rise today to note the passing of Dr. James Johnson, an adoring husband, cherished father, and respected physician in my home state of Oklahoma.

A lifelong hemophiliac, Dr. J, as he was known to so many of his patients, dedicated his life to healing others. During his more than 25 years practicing medicine, Dr. J treated thousands of patients, and worked with researchers and insurance companies on finding new ways to treat and hopefully one day cure hemophilia.

Dr. J was particularly fond of reminding students to continually challenge their minds—because while their bodies may someday fail them, they could always count on their knowledge. No one lived this out better than he did. During his months in the hospital, I am told, he would consult on his own case and instruct med students performing basic procedures on him. Always gracious and ever the educator, Dr. J would kindly suggest, ''You know, son, if you do it this way, you won't hurt your patient so much.''

Dr. J owned his own practice for many years, and was most recently medical director for a company that performs house calls for the elderly and homebound. Over the years, he worked as an ER doctor, a prison doctor, and a primary care doctor. When off the job, Dr. J was also a die-hard Sooners fan, a Thunder season-ticket holder, an amateur pilot, and an active member of his local church. But the roles he cherished most were those of husband and father.

Dr. J was laid to rest Monday in Edmond. While we take comfort in knowing that he is at peace, the State of Oklahoma and particularly who know Dr. J grieve this loss. I believe I speak for the whole House when I say our thoughts and prayers go out to Dr. J's wife of 26 years, Becky, their daughter, Ashley, and the hundreds of family, friends, colleagues, and patients who knew and love him so dearly.

HONORING CORPORAL SYLVESTER WATTS (RETIRED)

HON. CORRINE BROWN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. CORRINE BROWN of Florida. Madam Speaker, this communication is forwarded on behalf of the constituents of Congressional District Three and myself as we pay tribute to the life of Corporal Sylvester Watts (Retired). We are all saddened that Sylvester is gone, but joyful that he has gone to be with his Heavenly Father.

Sylvester Watts was born October 8, 1947 in Chicago, Illinois to the late Pastor Van B. and Missionary Ruby Watts. He was the youngest of 11 children; his parents, three brothers and one sister, Rufus, Reverend Roosevelt, John and Otha, made their transition from life-mortal ahead of him. He transitioned to await the resurrection on November 29, 2009 at his home in Chicago, Illinois.

Sylvester accepted Christ as his personal Savior at an early age under the pastorate of his father at Greater Progressive Baptist Church, Chicago, Illinois where he served as an usher and a member of the Youth Choir.

Sylvester joined the United States Marine Corps May 1, 1967, was temporarily retired April 16, 1969 and honorably discharged on September 30, 1974. He served his country with dignity and honor and attained the rank of Corporal. During his Military Service, he earned the National Defense Service Medal, Viet Nam Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal, Viet Nam Campaign Medal with device and Marksman Rifle Badge.

Having been reared in a Christian home where the Word of God, the love and support of family were the guiding principles, Sylvester learned early in life that ''if a man doesn't work, he doesn't eat'', so in spite of the emotional and psychological issues he faced as a result of his tenure in Viet Nam, he was determined to survive.

Sylvester attended Elmhurst College where he majored in Business Administration. He was gainfully employed with Gerber Products Company, Watts Side Grocery (family owned) the Deputy Sheriffs Office, Strategic Services Unit, Daley Center, Chicago, Illinois, Sodexho Marriott, Trajo Enterprises and Rich Cake Enterprises.

Sylvester leaves to cherish precious memories: Missionary Janet Watts-DuPart, Reverend Lucille Watts-Watson, Reverend Van Watts, Jr. (Ruth), Benny Watts, Reverend Frank Watts, Evangelist Shirley Watts Kyles Green; Nephews: Calvin Andre, Van Blair, Vincent, Victor, Vaughn, Joseph Preston, Joseph B., Anthony, Troy, Torrence, Ivyl, Michael, Steven, Anthony; Nieces: Barbette, Janet, Loretta, Christiana, Angie, Janet, Jacquelene, Tina L., Cheryl Lynn, Donna Michelle, Lori Alva, Rubi and Kora; a special nephew, Pastor Alfonzo Cleveland and a special friend, Reverend Jeanne L. Edwards, who engaged him in intellectual spiritual conversations at the dinner table whenever family gathered.

We, the Watts family, continue to strive to keep ourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life. He alone is able to keep us from falling and to present us faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy. Jude v 21&24.

HONORING BEVERLY SCOTT

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Beverly Scott as the outgoing President of the Yosemite Gateway Association of Realtors. Ms. Scott will be recognized at the annual installation luncheon for the Yosemite Gateway Association of Realtors on November 20, 2009 in Oakhurst, California.

The Yosemite Gateway Association of Realtors (YGAOR) first began as the Mountain Co-Op in 1998 with a group of eight volunteers. Today, the group has a paid professional staff and ownership of the Association's building. YGAOR was responsible for developing one of the first computerized Multiple Listing Systems, which continues to operate today with the latest technology. They work very closely with the California Association of Realtors by providing leadership at both the statewide and regional levels. YGAOR provides educational opportunities for its members, as well as fundraising activities that benefit local non-profit organizations and scholarship programs.

Ms. Beverly Scott is a fifth-generation native of Eastern Madera County. After graduating from Yosemite High School, she attended Bakersfield City College and earned her Bachelor's degree from California State University, Bakersfield. Ms. Scott has a very diverse history, including service in the United States Army, working as an editor, a photojournalist, a medical instructor, a realtor, a volunteer and a mother to four children: Skyler, Heavenly, Sierra and Raylynn. She is a true entrepreneur; the manager of Oakhurst Real Estate, and the general manager of National Computer Software, Inc.

With Ms. Scott's role at YGAOR, she has been a strong leader and provided a voice of optimism for local real estate. The 2009 Board Members worked closely with past Board Members to create a new strategic plan and to provide guidelines for defining a strategy, making decisions and allocating YGAOR resources. The new strategic plan brought an updated mission statement: ''The Yosemite Gateway Association of Realtors is committed to professional excellence for the success of its members in all aspects of the real estate industry.'' With this mission statement in mind, the 2009 Board, with the leadership of Ms. Scott, established four goals: Advocacy, Communication, Education and Organizational Excellence.

Ms. Scott is a leader in the real estate industry, as well as in the Oakhurst community. She has been a member of YGAOR since 2004, and has served on various committees over the past five years. Ms. Scott has been a member of the Board of Trustees for the Bass Lake Joint Union Elementary School District since 2006, serving as Vice President in 2009; the Eastern Madera County/Oakhurst Area Chamber of Commerce since 2001, serving as President in 2004, the Wild Wonderful King Vintage Museum since 2004, serving as an Officer and a Board Member, Local Water and Sewer Committees since 2002 and is a Charter Member of the New Community United Methodist Church. She is a past-president of the Oakhurst Sierra Sunrise Rotary, past-president of the California State Society of American Medical Technologists, past-board member of the Madera County Workforce Investment Board, past-member of the Boys and Girls Club, and past-Chaplain for the Oakhurst Elks Lodge. For her service to the community, Ms. Scott was the Golden Apple Award Recipient for 2005/2006 and was named ''Oakhurst Town Mother'' in 2004 by Angels Among Us, Woman of the Year.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Beverly Scott on her achievements. I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Ms. Scott and the Yosemite Gateway Association of Realtors many years of continued success.

RECOGNIZING THE HARRISON VALLEY VIEW ELEMENTARY SCHOOL FOR RECEIVING THE BLUE RIBBON AWARD

HON. HARRY TEAGUE

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. TEAGUE. Madam Speaker, I want to congratulate Valley View Elementary School in Las Cruces, New Mexico, for receiving the Blue Ribbon School Award awarded by the U.S. Department of Education for demonstrating academic excellence and dramatic gains in student achievement levels.

The Blue Ribbon Schools award was created in 1982 to recognize schools where students attain and maintain high academic standards and are pushed to improve themselves and further their dedication to scholastic achievement. This award shows that Valley View Elementary School is working with its students to improving its academic standing and educational excellence.

Schools like Valley View Elementary earn the Blue Ribbon Schools Award because of the hard work and the tireless work of its educators and families. The students also worked hard to improve themselves and make sure that their hard work paid off. Valley View Elementary School exemplifies what it means for a school to help its students strive towards academic excellence.

I am honored to have Blue Ribbon Schools like Valley View Elementary School in my district. I commend their achievement and wish them luck in continuing their academic achievement.

MARIE HARRIS

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay respects to the passing of my friend Marie Harris. Let this congressional insert serve as a tribute to her memory and celebration of her meaningful life.

Marie Harris came to Pacoima in 1960 from Detroit where she successfully co-owned the Elite Boulevard House of Fashions and captured the ''Formal Award'' in a nationwide competition from the National Association of Fashion and Accessory Designers, Inc. Her professional success continued as she transferred her membership with this organization to the Los Angeles Chapter and served as Fashion Coordinator, spearheading the unforgettable Designers Showcase at the Beverly Hilton in 1963 and 1964. She began tireless efforts producing a series of Designers Showcase Fashion Shows to help raise funds to build a new edifice and educational unit of the Parks Chapel AME Church in Pacoima, and continued her work in the fashion world by becoming a columnist for the North East Valley Post writing two columns weekly, ''Fashions LTD'' and ''Kaleidoscope'' society scoop.

Marie was known for her spirit of volunteerism and unwavering dedication to public service. In 1980, Marie was appointed to the Mayor's Committee on the city's Bicentennial Celebration in the Sepulveda Basin, which motivated her to produce the Back to Pacoima Expo at the Hansen Dam Amphitheater to honor Pacoima's trailblazers. One of the many results of Marie's work in Pacoima was the naming of ''Plaza of the Stars,'' a major shopping center located at Glenoaks and Van Nuys Boulevards.

Marie has a history of community involvement and her invaluable service has made an indelible mark on the San Fernando Valley. She was on the Board of Directors for the Economic Alliance of the San Fernando Valley Vision 2020 and the Commissioner for the Children's Museum and Commission for the San Fernando Valley Fair. She was aptly recognized as Woman of the Year by Assemblyman Richard Katz, and later appointed as an Honorary Mayor of Pacoima by former City of Los Angeles Councilman Ernani Bernardi.

Marie was a devoted mother, and wife for the past fifty years to Alvin Harris, deceased in January 2001. She is survived by her three children Sidney Alvin, Rolene Marie, Alton Keith and five grandchildren.

I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of Marie Harris.

HONORING DOUG CARROLL

HON. LOIS CAPPS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mrs. CAPPS. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor Doug Carroll of San Luis Obispo, CA. He is a valued member of the Central Coast Community and a valiant champion for all those living with Multiple Sclerosis. Since being diagnosed, ''Pastor Doug'' has maintained an active schedule, traveling to Sacramento and Washington, DC to lobby on behalf of all those affected by this horrible disease.

Back on the Central Coast, Pastor Doug managed to fit in MS fundraising and awareness events between a busy social calendar, multiple doctor and physical therapy appointments and his famous cooking classes at Spencer Market. He is a friend and inspiration to all who know him.

Though his health has deteriorated, his desire to educate others about MS has not. Countless people in my community have learned of the horrible effects this degenerative disease can have on an individual. Pastor Doug has handled these challenges with grace, good humor and humility. He is an example to us all and I am proud to represent him in Congress.

RECOGNIZING MELVIN FRIERSON ON HIS RETIREMENT AS A STAFF MEMBER OF THE U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. COSTELLO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Melvin Frierson as he retires after 23 years of service to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Mel began his federal career as a staff member for Congressman Mel Price, in 1986. When Congressman Price passed away in 1988 and I was elected to fill the vacant seat, Mel remained as one of my senior staff members and he has served loyally and with distinction ever since.

In addition to his work as a member of my Congressional staff, Mel has long been involved in local politics and was a precinct committeeman in East St. Louis for over 30 years. Mel is a 33d degree Mason and has been involved in Freemasonry for 40 years. He was the Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois for 2 terms, from 1985 to 1986 and is currently Deputy of the Orient for the Scottish Rite, Masonry, Prince Hall Affiliation in the State of Illinois.

Mel's community and charitable involvement has been extensive. For years, he has delivered food to needy families during the holidays, often covering the cost himself. He has also participated in the Toys for Tots campaign as well as the Relay for Life which supports the American Cancer Society.

Mel's faith and his family have always been his cornerstones. He is a long-time member of the Mount Zion Missionary Baptist Church, in East St. Louis. Mel's family, including daughters, Ingrid and Kimberly, son Brett and grandchildren have been a source of great pride and will no doubt see a good deal more of their father and grandfather now that he is retiring.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in an expression of recognition and appreciation for a loyal staff member and good friend.

HONORING MR. TIMOTHY WILL FOR HIS SERVICE TO THE PEOPLE OF WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

HON. HEATH SHULER

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. SHULER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Timothy Will of Rutherfordton, North Carolina, for his exemplary service to the people of Western North Carolina. Mr. Will recently received the $100,000 Purpose Prize for two local projects he has dedicated his time, energy and resources toward.

Mr. Will created FarmersFreshMarket.org, a Web site that connects local small farmers to chefs and consumers in metropolitan areas. Many of these farmers were previously unemployed after textile and furniture factory closings in the area. FarmersFreshMarket.org opens farmers to a new, lucrative market and helps those in urban areas take part in the local food movement and reconnect to the farm to serve local, fresh, and seasonal fare in their homes and restaurants.

Mr. Will also helped create the Foothills Connect Business and Technology Center to support local entrepreneurs and provide community Internet access to an area with few public computer terminals, and limited home and business access. With the help of grants, Foothills Connect wired Rutherford County's public schools with fiber optic connections. Foothills Connect also trained teachers how to use the technology, and instructed area residents on how to refurbish old computers to donate to low-income families.

By creating new business opportunities and providing vital community services to an area hit hard by unemployment, Mr. Will is a testament to the spirit of entrepreneurship and community giving. I am proud to honor Mr. Will today, and want to thank him for his invaluable contributions to Western North Carolina.

INTRODUCING THE FREE COMPETITION IN CURRENCY ACT

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I rise to introduce the Free Competition in Currency Act of 2009. Currency, or money, is what allows civilization to flourish. In the absence of money, barter is the name of the game; if the farmer needs shoes, he must trade his eggs and milk to the cobbler and hope that the cobbler needs eggs and milk. Money makes the transaction process far easier. Rather than having to search for someone with reciprocal wants, the farmer can exchange his milk and eggs for an agreed-upon medium of exchange with which he can then purchase shoes.

This medium of exchange should satisfy certain properties: it should be durable, that is to say, it does not wear out easily; it should be portable, that is, easily carried; it should be divisible into units usable for everyday transactions; it should be recognizable and uniform, so that one unit of money has the same properties as every other unit; it should be scarce, in the economic sense, so that the extant supply does not satisfy the wants of everyone demanding it; it should be stable, so that the value of its purchasing power does not fluctuate wildly; and it should be reproducible, so that enough units of money can be created to satisfy the needs of exchange.

Over millennia of human history, gold and silver have been the two metals that have most often satisfied these conditions, survived the market process, and gained the trust of billions of people. Gold and silver are difficult to counterfeit, a property which ensures they will always be accepted in commerce. It is precisely for this reason that gold and silver are anathema to governments. A supply of gold and silver that is limited in supply by nature cannot be inflated, and thus serves as a check on the growth of government. Without the ability to inflate the currency, governments find themselves constrained in their actions, unable to carry on wars of aggression or to appease their overtaxed citizens with bread and circuses.

At this country's founding, there was no government controlled national currency. While the Constitution established the congressional power of minting coins, it was not until 1792 that the U.S. Mint was formally established. In the meantime, Americans made do with foreign silver and gold coins. Even after the Mint's operations got underway, foreign coins continued to circulate within the United States, and did so for several decades.

On the desk in my office I have a sign that says: ''Don't steal—the government hates competition.'' Indeed, any power a government arrogates to itself, it is loathe to give back to the people. Just as we have gone from a constitutionally instituted national defense consisting of a limited army and navy bolstered by militias and letters of marque and reprisal, we have moved from a system of competing currencies to a government-instituted banking cartel that monopolizes the issuance of currency. In order to reintroduce a system of competing currencies, there are three steps that must be taken to produce a legal climate favorable to competition.

The first step consists of eliminating legal tender laws. Article I Section 10 of the Constitution forbids the States from making anything but gold and silver a legal tender in payment of debts. States are not required to enact legal tender laws, but should they choose to, the only acceptable legal tender is gold and silver, the two precious metals that individuals throughout history and across cultures have used as currency. However, there is nothing in the Constitution that grants the Congress the power to enact legal tender laws. We, the Congress, have the power to coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, but not to declare a legal tender. Yet, there is a section of U.S. Code, 31 U.S.C. 5103, that purports to establish U.S. coins and currency, including Federal Reserve notes, as legal tender.

Historically, legal tender laws have been used by governments to force their citizens to accept debased and devalued currency. Gresham's Law describes this phenomenon, which can be summed up in one phrase: bad money drives out good money. An emperor, a king, or a dictator might mint coins with half an ounce of gold and force merchants, under pain of death, to accept them as though they contained one ounce of gold. Each ounce of the king's gold could now be minted into two coins instead of one, so the king now had twice as much ''money'' to spend on building castles and raising armies. As these legally overvalued coins circulated, the coins containing the full ounce of gold would be pulled out of circulation and hoarded. We saw this same phenomenon happen in the mid-1960s when the U.S. government began to mint subsidiary coinage out of copper and nickel rather than silver. The copper and nickel coins were legally overvalued, the silver coins undervalued in relation, and silver coins vanished from circulation.

These actions also give rise to the most pernicious effects of inflation. Most of the merchants and peasants who received this devalued currency felt the full effects of inflation, the rise in prices and the lowered standard of living, before they received any of the new currency. By the time they received the new currency, prices had long since doubled, and the new currency they received would give them no benefit.

In the absence of legal tender laws, Gresham's Law no longer holds. If people are free to reject debased currency, and instead demand sound money, sound money will gradually return to use in society. Merchants would have been free to reject the king's coin and accept only coins containing full metal weight.

The second step to reestablishing competing currencies is to eliminate laws that prohibit the operation of private mints. One private enterprise which attempted to popularize the use of precious metal coins was Liberty Services, the creators of the Liberty Dollar. Evidently the government felt threatened, as Liberty Dollars had all their precious metal coins seized by the FBI and Secret Service in November of 2007. Of course, not all of these coins were owned by Liberty Services, as many were held in trust as backing for silver and gold certificates which Liberty Services issued. None of this matters, of course, to the government, which hates competition. The responsibility to protect contracts is of no interest to the government.

The sections of U.S. Code which Liberty Services is accused of violating are erroneously considered to be anti-counterfeiting statutes, when in fact their purpose was to shut down private mints that had been operating in California. California was awash in gold in the aftermath of the 1849 gold rush, yet had no U.S. Mint to mint coinage. There was not enough foreign coinage circulating in California either, so private mints stepped into the breech to provide their own coins. As was to become the case in other industries during the Progressive era, the private mints were eventually accused of circulating debased (substandard) coinage, and with the supposed aim of providing government-sanctioned regulation and a government guarantee of purity, the 1864 Coinage Act was passed, which banned private mints from producing their own coins for circulation as currency.

The final step to ensuring competing currencies is to eliminate capital gains and sales taxes on gold and silver coins. Under current federal law, coins are considered collectibles, and are liable for capital gains taxes. Short-term capital gains rates are at income tax levels, up to 35 percent, while long-term capital gains taxes are assessed at the collectibles rate of 28 percent. Furthermore, these taxes actually tax monetary debasement. As the dollar weakens, the nominal dollar value of gold increases. The purchasing power of gold may remain relatively constant, but as the nominal dollar value increases, the Federal Government considers this an increase in wealth, and taxes accordingly. Thus, the more the dollar is debased, the more capital gains taxes must be paid on holdings of gold and other metals.

Just as pernicious are the sales and use taxes which are assessed on gold and silver at the state level in many States. Imagine having to pay sales tax at the bank every time you change a $10 bill for a roll of quarters to do laundry. Inflation is a pernicious tax on the value of money, but even the official numbers, which are massaged downwards, are only on the order of 4 percent per year. Sales taxes in many states can take away 8 percent or more on every single transaction in which consumers wish to convert their Federal Reserve Notes into gold or silver.

In conclusion, Madam Speaker, allowing for competing currencies will allow market participants to choose a currency that suits their needs, rather than the needs of the government. The prospect of American citizens turning away from the dollar towards alternate currencies will provide the necessary impetus to the U.S. Government to regain control of the dollar and halt its downward spiral. Restoring soundness to the dollar will remove the government's ability and incentive to inflate the currency, and keep us from launching unconstitutional wars that burden our economy to excess. With a sound currency, everyone is better off, not just those who control the monetary system. I urge my colleagues to consider the redevelopment of a system of competing currencies and cosponsor the Free Competition in Currency Act.

OPPOSITION TO THE STUPAK AMENDMENT

HON. LOUISE McINTOSH SLAUGHTER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I have witnessed the horror of the choice between a back alley abortion and a forced marriage to avoid disgrace.

These were the realities women faced prior to 1973. My fear is that if this harmful Stupak/Pitts language is signed into law, we will revert back to those dark times.

Critical to this debate is to break down the facts. The opposition claims that the Stupak/Pitts amendment codifies current law. This is grossly incorrect.

Stupak-Pitts goes far beyond current law by placing unprecedented restrictions on individuals' use of their own private dollars. The Hyde amendment does not apply to private funding nor does it apply to administrative costs. It has only placed limits on direct Federal appropriations being used to fund abortion benefits. The Stupak amendment expands the Hyde prohibitions on the use of federal funds for an abortion benefit to include ''any part of the costs of any health plan that includes coverage of abortion.''

The opposition claims that this amendment will not change current insurance plans for women. This is blatantly wrong.

A report by health policy experts at the George Washington University School of Public Health concludes that the Stupak amendment ''will have an industry-wide effect, eliminating coverage of medically indicated abortions over time for all women, not only those whose coverage is derived through a health insurance exchange.''

The opposition claims that the segregation of funding under the House bill is an accounting sham. This is blatantly false.

In the Capps amendment, the segregation of funding piece is based on the current model the Federal Government uses to pay for abortions permitted in Medicaid.

I am afraid that we are driving young women, poor women, back to the dark alley, and I dread to see that day.

EXPRESSING CONGRATULATIONS TO GLENVILLE HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM ON HISTORIC 2009 SEASON

HON. MARCIA L. FUDGE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. FUDGE. Madam Speaker, I rise to congratulate the Glenville High School football team on its historic season. This Division I team became the first Cleveland Public School to compete for the state championship last Saturday.

While track icon Jesse Owens and the creators of Superman were products of Glenville, it has never had a state football champion.

This year's players are champions in every sense of the word. They play football at Glenville High School for the structure that football provides and the mentorship of their coach, Ted Ginn, Sr.

More than 100 of Ginn's players have earned athletic scholarships. Five play in the NFL.

Glenville played valiantly in the state championship, but lost by one point

Again, I congratulate the Glenville High football team, students, Coach Ginn, his assistant coaches, our supportive community, and Glenville Principal Jacqueline Bell on an amazing season. Next year they will bring home the trophy!

OUR UNCONSCIONABLE NATIONAL DEBT

HON. MIKE COFFMAN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Madam Speaker, today our national debt is $12,091,292,877,094.86. We have increased the national debt $5,120,762,726.63 since just yesterday.

On January 6, 2009, the start of the 111th Congress, the national debt was $10,638,425,746,293.80.

This means the national debt has increased by $1,452,867,130,801.06 so far this year.

According to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, the forecast deficit for this year is $1.6 trillion. That means that so far this year, we borrowed and spent $4.4 billion a day more than we have collected, passing that debt and its interest payments to our children and all future Americans.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. KEVIN BRADY

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks my district received as part of H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEVIN BRADY, Texas 8th Congressional District

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Project: 1–69 Texas Environmental Studies, TX

Account: Interstate Maintenance Discretionary, Federal Highway Administration

Requesting Entity: Alliance for I–69 Texas, Texas Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 1200 Smith, Suite 700, Houston, TX 77002

The original I–69 project began in 1991 and involves long-planned upgrades of US 59, 277 and 281 to interstate standards to increase motorist safety and mobility in the Houston and East Texas region. It is, thankfully, no longer included in the ill-fated Trans Texas Corridor. The original project enjoys the support of a broad collaboration of mayors, county judges, economic development groups, chambers of commerce and transportation officials from dozens of Texas communities, including several in the Eighth Congressional District. The $500,000 I requested on behalf of the Texas leaders of the I–69 coalition will provide the Texas Department of Transportation funding to complete the necessary environmental studies to begin construction on these much needed upgrades.

This bill also credits me, four of my colleagues in the House and our two distinguished Senators as requesting an additional $1.5 million under the Interstate Maintenance Discretionary and the Surface Transportation Priorities accounts. I appreciate the support of my colleagues and the Committee for this important project. I know the additional funds are greatly needed. However, in all honesty, the other members deserve credit for these funds since I submitted only the original $500,000 funding for the environmental studies.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEVIN BRADY, Texas 8th Congressional District

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Project: The District Capital Cost of Contracting, Montgomery County, TX

Account: Buses and Bus Facilities, Federal Transit Administration

Requesting Entity: The Brazos Transit District (The District)

Address of Requesting Entity: 1759 N. Earl Rudder Freeway, Bryan, Texas 77803

This request helps provide an important transportation service to over 700,000 Montgomery County commuters each year through four Park-and-Ride facilities. It also helps provide regular van service for East Texas veterans to VA facilities in the region. Through these services, the funding also helps reduce congestion along Interstate 45 and helps the region meet its clear air goals.

The $1,000,000 included in this bill reduces the equipment costs of providing these transportation services.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEVIN BRADY, Texas 8th Congressional District

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Project: Pulmonary Hypertension Awareness Program

Account: Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Requesting Entity: Pulmonary Hypertension Association

Address of Requesting Entity: 801 Roeder Rd., Suite 400, Silver Spring, MD 20910

I have supported strengthening Pulmonary Hypertension (PH) education for over ten years; and for this reason and for the third year in a row, I have requested funding to strengthen and continue a successful partnership between the non-profit Pulmonary Hypertension Association and the Centers for Disease Control. PH is a serious and often fatal condition where the blood pressure in the lungs rises to dangerously high levels. In PH patients the walls of the arteries that take blood from the right side of the heart to the lungs thicken and constrict. As a result, the right side of the heart has to pump harder to move blood into the lungs, causing it to enlarge and ultimately fail.

This request will allow the partners to continue to develop a pulmonary hypertension awareness program to better educate the medical community and the public about the disease, and lead to earlier diagnosis and longer life spans.

The $250,000 included in this bill for this project will be allocated to continue two components in the fight against pulmonary hypertension: the PHA Online University, a curriculum-based website for medical professionals, and a significant expansion of PHAware, a grassroots media campaign.

I also appreciate the Committee's support through report language encouraging further collaboration and research efforts on pulmonary hypertension within government agencies. The efforts of these organizations on issues including lung transplantation, the establishment of a PH Clinical Research Network and the increase in pulmonary hypertension diagnoses related to the abuse of methamphetamine will further our understanding of this disease.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEVIN BRADY, Texas 8th Congressional District

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Project: SHSU Regional Crime Lab

Account: Office of Justice Programs, Byrne Discretionary Grants

Requesting Entity: Sam Houston State University

Address of Requesting Entity: 1803 Avenue I, Huntsville, TX 77341

Law enforcement agencies in rural communities experience long waits and backlogs when requesting services from major cities like Houston. This request allows Sam Houston State University—one of the nation's foremost criminal justice universities—to use its expertise in forensic science to begin operations of the Regional Crime Laboratory started with funding I previously secured. This lab will provide important forensics services to local law enforcement such as identification of controlled substances, toxicology screening and fingerprint matching. The lab will be able to service communities in a 75-mile wide area.

The $1,000,000 included in this bill for this project will be allocated to staff the SHSU Regional Crime Lab and make it operational for serving regional law enforcement agencies. Specific budget items include: capital outlays (54%); salaries and benefits for laboratory staff (37%); lab supplies (8%); and subcontracts for staff training (1%).

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ANDER CRENSHAW

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. CRENSHAW. Madam Speaker, I rise today to submit documentation consistent with the Republican earmark standards.

Requesting Member: Congressman ANDER CRENSHAW

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2010

Account: Employment and Training Administration (ETA)—Training and Employment Services

Legal Name of Receiving Entity: Florida Manufacturing Extension Partnership (Florida MEP)

Address of Receiving Entity: 1180 Celebration Blvd., Suite 103, Celebration, FL 34747

Description of Request: I have secured $100,000 in funding in H.R. 3228, in the Employment and Training Administration (ETA)—Training and Employment Services account for Florida Manufacturing Extension Partnership in Celebration, FL.

The purpose of this funding is to deploy the proven Mobile Outreach Skills Training (M.O.S.T.) program in Florida. The program is a three-phase rapid training and job placement initiative in which nearly 100 percent of trainees who successfully complete the 2-week Phase I receive job offers from the participating manufacturers.

This is a valuable use of taxpayer funding because the program provides skills to veterans, the disadvantaged, and TANF families that lead to jobs and medical coverage, a capability that does not exist in current training programs.

There are no matching funds required or allowed for this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman ANDER CRENSHAW

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2010

Account: HRSA—Health Facilities Construction and Equipment

Legal Name of Receiving Entity: Shands HealthCare

Address of Receiving Entity: 720 SW 2nd Avenue, Suite 360A, Gainesville, FL 32601

Description of Request: I have secured $100,000 in funding in H.R. 3228, in the Health Facilities Construction and Equipment account for the purchase of equipment.

The purpose of this funding is to purchase a biplane angiography system at Shands Jacksonville to continue to maintain the expert quality of care for its Level One trauma center and its JCAHO Accredited Stroke Service. This biplane angiography system will improve patient care, enhance operational efficiency, and replace outdated equipment.

This is a valuable use of taxpayer funding because funding will help purchase a biplane angiography system that will allow physicians to accurately visualize clots or other vascular abnormalities. This will reduce diagnostic and procedure time while helping to avoid more invasive procedures.

There are no matching funds required or allowed for this project.

HONORING ROBERT G. KIGGANS

HON. J. GRESHAM BARRETT

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. BARRETT of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Robert G. Kiggans of Mt. Pleasant, South Carolina, and fellow alumnus of the Citadel, for a lifetime of distinguished leadership and service to the citizens of our State and our country. From his early days as a cadet at the Citadel to his current position as chief operating officer and president of the South Carolina Research Authority's, SCRA, Federal Sector, Bob has led an exemplary life and maintained a steadfast work ethic. His contributions to South Carolina and the United States in the fields of advanced computer and data technologies, program and technical management, manufacturing technologies, and command and control systems is recognized internationally. He is the embodiment of what makes America strong.

After receiving his undergraduate degree from the Citadel—where he excelled in both academics and athletics, achieving All-Time Lettermen status as a member of the men's basketball team—Bob earned his master's degree from the Air Force Institute of Technology. Upon graduation, Bob served his country as a navigator on B–52 model aircraft with the United States Air Force, operating from bases in Southeast Asia. He also directed advanced computer technology programs for the Air Force Strategic Command, SAC, including the development of a multi-million dollar automated executive information system, as well as other assignments. Having served his country with distinction, Bob retired from the Air Force as a lieutenant colonel. After his military experience, Bob served as the deputy director of the Information Science and Technology Office at the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, DARPA, assistant for program integration with the Department of Defense Joint Program Management Office. In addition to the foregoing achievements, Bob was appointed by the Department of Commerce to serve as head of the U.S. Delegation to the international Intelligent Manufacturing Systems Steering Committee and worked as a research fellow with the National Institute of Standards and Technology.

After serving his country in both a uniform and civilian capacity, Bob entered the private sector where he has worked for a variety of companies and nonprofit corporations including Cincinnati Electronics and the first president of the Advanced Technology Institute, ATI, a world leader in distributed technology management and affiliate of his current employer, the South Carolina Research Authority. Since its establishment in 1983, SCRA has fostered entrepreneurial development, introduced technological advancements, and supported countless industry leaders and small businesses throughout South Carolina and the Nation.

Through hard work and dedication, Bob has made significant contributions to our country's information technology and manufacturing technologies. His distinguished leadership and service has been invaluable, and for this I applaud him. His dedication to his family, friends, and colleagues should stand as an example of what we should all hope to be. I join Bob's colleagues at the South Carolina Research Authority, the citizens of our State, and his wife, Penny, his daughters and grandchildren in commending Robert G. Kiggans for his lifetime of service to South Carolina and this great Nation. May God bless them all.

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCES TO FAMILIES OF VICTIMS OF SOWELL MURDERS AND DECRYING VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

HON. MARCIA L. FUDGE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. FUDGE. Madam Speaker, Anthony Sowell raped and murdered 11 women in my own Congressional District. I offer condolences to the families of these women, whose names are: Tonia Carmichael, Nancy Cobbs, Tishana Culver, Crystal Dozier, Telacia Fortson, Amelda Hunter, Leshanda Long, Michelle Mason, Kim Yvette Smith, Diane Turner, and Janice Webb.

In honor of the women he victimized, we must address the underlying issue of violence against women.

Consider that 1 in every 4 American women will experience domestic violence in her lifetime. However, only about half of domestic violence incidents are reported to police. Even though African-American women are more likely than others to report their victimization to police, intimate partner homicide is the leading cause of death for African-American women ages 15–45.

A report issued in 2000 found that 17.6 percent of women in the United States have survived rape or attempted rape. Of these, 21.6 percent were younger than age 12 when they were first raped, and 32.4 percent were between the ages of 12 and 17. About half of all rape victims are in the lowest third of our national income distribution.

In 2010, the Violence Against Women Act is scheduled for reauthorization. Since its enactment, this Act has saved the lives of numerous women by providing funding for life-saving shelters and services, and educating the public about the cycle of violence. Congress has a unique opportunity to strengthen these programs and raise the profile of violence against women. Our Nation's current response is insufficient.

As we move forward, we must act with outrage about how our nation responds to violence against women and girls. Education and prevention is the key to break this cycle of violence.

COMMEMORATING THE LIFE AND ACHIEVEMENTS OF ISIAH ''IKE'' JESSE WILLIAMS III

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the life and achievements of my lifelong friend and widely respected community leader, Isiah ''Ike'' Jesse Williams III, who died on November 25, 2009, in Jacksonville, Florida, at the age of 78. Ike had been diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease 6 years prior to his death, and my thoughts and prayers go out to his wife, Marilyn Wilkerson-Williams; daughter, Helen Rogers; sons, Rodney Williams, Ira Marche, Isiah Williams IV, and Mark Benson; and the rest of his family and friends at this most difficult time. Ike was a community activist, scholar, lawyer, publisher, journalist, historian, and union organizer. Above all, however, he was a true inspiration to everyone who knew him.

Ike was born to Helen and Isiah Williams of Jacksonville on September 27, 1931. He attended Fessenden Academy, a small private school in Ocala, Florida, and graduated in 1949. A truly brilliant man, Ike went on to earn numerous degrees, including an associate's degree from Edward Waters College, a bachelor's Degree from Florida Memorial College, a Juris Doctor from Florida A & M University, and a master's degree from Brooklyn Law School in New York. He also studied at the New School for Social Research and Xavier Institute of Labor Relation in New York City. During his studies, Ike pledged Psi Beta Sigma, of which he was a dedicated member for more than 50 years.

A man of courage and excellence, Ike served with distinction in the U.S. Army and was a proud veteran of the Korean war. After his service, he moved to New York and successfully practiced law for 10 years. It was during those historic years of the civil rights movement that Ike was an attorney for the Black Panthers and became friends with powerful leaders such as Adam Clayton Powell and Malcolm X.

Back in his home State of Florida, Ike continued his fight for civil equality in the community. He was a true champion of the people and came to be known as a respected community leader in Jacksonville through the many important organizations where he held positions. Ike was a lifetime member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), a Mason, a founding member of the National Business League, and the founder of the Jacksonville Advocate, which was published weekly for 30 years. Furthermore, Ike also served as Publisher Emeritus of the People's Advocate. Both newspapers featured articles that highlighted accomplishments in the African American community. An early member of the Jacksonville Historic Landmarks Commission, Ike was a fitting keeper for the preservation of the history of the African American community and organized the Joseph E. Lee Library-Museum. In addition, he also helped form the Brotherhood of Black Firefighters.

Ike's hard work and dedication on behalf of all those who have been denied a voice earned him many awards. In 2005, he was awarded with the Onyx Award for Communications, a state honor that he dearly cherished. Most recently, he received the National Whitney M. Young Lifetime Achievement award presented by the Jacksonville Urban League.

Madam Speaker, Ike's legacy will live on for generations to come in the lives he has touched, and continues to touch. He was my dear friend and I am proud and fortunate to have known him.

HONORING VINCENT PETRUCCI

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Vincent Petrucci upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award'' at the 2009 San Joaquin Winegrowers Association 7th Annual San Joaquin Valley Wine & Grape Industry Forum. The luncheon will be held in Fresno, California, on Friday, November 20, 2009.

Mr. Vincent Petrucci was born on July 13, 1913, in California. He attended the University of California, Davis where he earned his bachelors of science degree in pomology in 1947 and his masters of science degree in horticulture in 1948. Upon completion of his masters, he was hired by Fresno State College, now California State University Fresno, as a faculty member with the task of organizing and developing the curriculum and facilities of the viticulture and enology program. Mr. Petrucci played an instrumental role in developing the Viticulture and Enology Research Center which opened in 1985 where he has served as director and is currently director emeritus. He taught classes in grape and wine production, raisin production and processing and numerous other classes encompassing the field of viticulture. After 45 years, Mr. Petrucci retired in 1993 from California State University, Fresno and was awarded an honorary doctorate of science degree on May 28, 1994.

Over the years, Mr. Petrucci has served as a consultant, offering advice to many European and South American countries as well as China and Australia. He has been active in several organizations including the International Office of Wine and Vine, the American Society of Horticulture Science, the California Grape Growers Coalition, the University of California Grape Research Committee, the American Vineyard Foundation, and the American Society for Enology and Viticulture. He has also published numerous papers, journal, rticles and written books on the subject of wine and grape growing. Mr. Petrucci's involvement has resulted in the international recognition of the viticulture program at CSU Fresno. For his accomplishments, Mr. Petrucci received the CSU Fresno ''Outstanding Professor Award'' in 1971, was named Wine and Vines ''Man of the Year'' in 1981, received the ''Founder Award'' for Enology in 1985, CSU Fresno ''Meritorious Performance and Professional Promise Award'' in 1986, the University of California, Davis ''Distinguished Achievement Award'' in 1995 and the American Vineyard ''Outstanding Service Award'' in 1996.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Vincent Petrucci upon being honored with the ''Lifetime Achievement Award.'' I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Mr. Petrucci many years of continued success.

RECOGNIZING THE HARRISON SCHMITT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL FOR RECEIVING THE BLUE RIBBON AWARD

HON. HARRY TEAGUE

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. TEAGUE. Madam Speaker, I want to congratulate Harrison Schmitt Elementary School in Silver City, New Mexico, for receiving the Blue Ribbon School Award awarded by the U.S. Department of Education for demonstrating academic excellence and dramatic gains in student achievement levels.

The Blue Ribbon Schools award was created in 1982 to recognize schools where the students attain and maintain high academic standards and are pushed to improve themselves and further their dedication to scholastic achievement. This award shows that Harrison Schmitt Elementary School is striving to close the achievement gap.

Schools like Harrison Schmitt Elementary achieve such great distinctions because of the hard work and its dedicated educators and families. The students also deserve to be recognized for making the most of the opportunities afforded to them by the excellent staff. Harrison Schmitt Elementary School is a prime example for the academic progress other schools throughout the nation should strive to achieve.

I am honored to have Blue Ribbon Schools like Harrison Schmitt Elementary School in my district. I commend their achievement and wish them luck in the continuing their academic achievement.

PERMANENT ESTATE TAX RELIEF FOR FAMILIES, FARMERS, AND SMALL BUSINESSES ACT OF 2009

SPEECH OF

HON. BETTY McCOLLUM

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 3, 2009

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4154, the Permanent Estate Tax Relief for Families, Farmers, and Small Businesses Act of 2009. This legislation is a necessary step in cleaning up the toxic fiscal legacy of the Bush administration.

The estate tax is set to expire completely in 2010 unless Congress acts. Under current estate tax parameters, an individual can inherit, tax-free, a trust fund worth $3.5 million—more than a middle class family making $70,000 a year earns in a lifetime. For couples, the exemption is $7 million. H.R. 4154 would permanently extend these generous parameters, ensuring that 99.8 percent of Americans never pay a dime in estate taxes.

This legislation helps put the Nation back on a path of fiscal sustainability. While it affects only a handful of the wealthiest Americans, the estate tax is an important source of Federal revenue. Eliminating this tax completely would expand the deficit by $662 billion and reduce funding available for schools, roads and other priority investments. The bill also includes a ''pay-as-you-go'' provision that mandates fiscally responsible spending, restoring a 1990s law that turned record deficits into surpluses.

Without congressional action, the estate tax will return in 2011 at a much higher rate. By permanently extending current levels, H.R. 4154 is a compromise between higher estate taxes in the next decade and a complete elimination of the tax.

Republican opposition to this compromise legislation is wrong-headed and hypocritical. By supporting nothing but a full repeal, Republicans are pushing for a policy that adds $662 billion to the deficit. This is extraordinarily irresponsible in a time of rising deficits and economic recession. With many middle-class families losing their jobs and their homes, it is difficult to justify a costly new tax cut for the Nation's wealthiest estates so they can pass on even larger inheritances tax-free. H.R. 4154 is a far more reasonable approach.

HONORING BAYSHORE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

HON. TED POE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, the people of the Second District of Texas are proud to recognize the students, faculty, and staff of Bayshore Elementary School in La Porte, Texas. Bayshore Elementary has earned the prestigious rating of ''Exemplary'' from the Texas Education Agency. This honor is especially meaningful for the students, teachers, and administrators of Bayshore Elementary because of the challenges they faced in the aftermath of Hurricane Ike.

Despite being dispersed to five other neighboring campuses, the students of Bayshore still performed at the ''Exemplary'' level on the Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills test. In the tradition of the Americans and Texans that have gone before them, the students and staff of Bayshore Elementary were able to rise above a difficult situation and achieve excellence in the face of adversity. This award not only recognizes their resilience but their determination to overcome difficulty and that is extremely honorable.

The Second District of Texas is proud of Bayshore Elementary school and commends them for their ''Exemplary'' award.

CELEBRATING THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE VOICE OF AMERICA'S UKRAINIAN SERVICE

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I rise today on the special occasion of the 60th anniversary of the Voice of America's first Ukrainian-language broadcast. As Co-chair of the Ukrainian Caucus, it is my honor to recognize this day. In the darkest hours of the cold war, Ukrainians behind the Iron Curtain have received VOA broadcasts of accurate, balanced and comprehensive news and information. The VOA reports that Ukrainian dissidents imprisoned in Siberian camps and human rights activists who worked clandestinely to avoid arrest say they drew strength from its broadcasts.

As the Communist system began to fissure, VOA notes it continued to provide Ukrainians with the news and information that their own censored, government-controlled media would not provide. Through the decades VOA was there to tell Ukrainians stories about the Hungarian Revolution in 1956, the Prague Spring of 1968, the rise of the Solidarity movement in Poland in the 1980s, the cover up of the Chornobyl nuclear power plant explosion in 1986, the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989, and the Ukrainian independence and democracy movement which played a key role in the collapse of the U.S.S.R. in 1991. Through Ukraine's struggles with independency, VOA was a vital source of accurate news and responsible commentary.

Today, VOA continues to reach millions of Ukrainians each week. The radio broadcasts that began in the early cold war period have been replaced with daily television broadcasts and reporting on VOA's web site. Ukrainians still look to VOA not only to hear about the Washington perspective on what is happening in Ukraine, but also to comprehend America's story—its foreign policy objectives, national politics, social challenges, culture, arts, educational opportunities, business successes and achievements in science, technology, and medicine. The United States continues to serve as an important example for Ukrainians on maintaining a vibrant, prosperous, pluralistic society. Through its strict adherence to journalistic excellence over the past 60 years, the Voice of America's Ukrainian Service has been a key institution in U.S. public diplomacy. Today, its mission remains critical as ever, and we proudly mark this milestone anniversary.

IN RECOGNITION OF DANE NOWELS

HON. DOUG LAMBORN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. LAMBORN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Dane Nowels, an American patriot who passed away on December 1, 2009. As a resident of Colorado Springs and Colorado, Nowels was a true servant to his nation and community. I rise today to honor his contribution to our community and country.

Born in Oakland California on October 18, 1947, Nowels graduated from The Ohio State University in 1969 with a degree in agricultural economics. As an agricultural enthusiast, Nowel was a four time National Champion in Tractor Pulling using the tractors that he built himself.

After service in the Army and a career as a commodities broker, Nowels moved to Colorado Springs, Colorado to provide heavy equipment to farmers and ranchers throughout southern Colorado for Ellen Equipment Company.

Nowels was a natural leader, and he used his talents to serve others in the El Paso County community. As President of the Pikes Peak Firearms Coalition and Vice-Chairman of the El Paso County Republican Party, Nowels accomplished much in El Paso County in defense of liberty. Nowels encouraged minorities, youth, young adults, and businesspeople to rally behind local and state candidates who exhibit support for a strong national defense and limited government. He was an advocate for traditional American values based upon the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights, especially the Second Amendment right to bear arms. In addition, Nowels was an active member of the Pikes Peak Economics Forum, often speaking to and debating area high school and college students about the free market system and the Constitutional rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Throughout his life, Nowels was committed to serving this great country, whether in the Army or defending liberty in his community. I mourn his passing, and today ask that we honor the life of a true American hero.

COMMENDING THE SOLDIERS AND CIVILIAN PERSONNEL STATIONED AT FORT GORDON

SPEECH OF

HON. PAUL C. BROUN

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, December 7, 2009

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend the soldiers, civilians, and military families stationed at Fort Gordon for their service and dedication to the United States, and to honor the lineage of Fort Gordon as an indispensable communications installation and training center in our Nation's history.

Fort Gordon was originally conceived as Camp Gordon on October 18, 1941, as an answer to America's fight in WWII Europe. Camp Gordon was home to three Army Divisions—the 4th Infantry Division, the 26th Infantry Division, and the 10th Armor Division. All served with distinction in the liberation of Europe from the Nazi tyranny. It was not until March 21, 1956, that Camp Gordon was given permanent status and renamed Fort Gordon.

Since that time, Fort Gordon's soldiers and civilians have continuously served with distinction in Vietnam, Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, and in current operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. All the while, the military family members were providing support while dealing with the hardship of long and often times multiple deployment separations.

In June 1986, the United States Army Signal Regiment was established and Fort Gordon was designated as the home base for the regiment. Fort Gordon is home not only to the Army's premier signal training center, but it is also home to deploying active and reserve Army units. The soldiers in these units take the lessons learned from the battlefield in order to incorporate the lessons into the signal training curriculum and in research and development. This functional and technical analysis has lead to the development of mobile subscriber equipment, the Army's communication architecture and information mission area, which include integration of automation, communications, and visual information.

Fort Gordon's role as a communications leader was not achieved through individuality but through a combined effort of the Army and the citizens of Augusta who together have fostered a strong community. Margret Mead said it best when referring to the strength of a community, ''never doubt that a small, group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has.'' These committed Augusta citizens were and are an essential part of Fort Gordon's history that has led to a safer and secure America.

REIT ENERGY GRANTS

HON. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the ''Sustainable Property Grants Act of 2009,'' legislation that would allow real estate investment trusts (REITs) to fully benefit from the energy grants included in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (the Recovery Act).

Congress created REITs in 1960 to enable investors from all walks of life to own professionally managed, income-producing real estate. REITs combine the capital of many investors to benefit from a diversified portfolio of income-producing real estate, including apartments, health care facilities, hotels, offices and warehouses. REITs are required to distribute at least 90 percent of their taxable income. Most distribute their entire taxable income.

Buildings represent about 40 percent of all energy use and approximately 70 percent of all electricity consumption in the United States, but REITS, which own 6 billion square feet of commercial real estate, cannot currently access tax incentives designed to reduce their energy use. Providing incentives for REITs to engage in energy efficiency projects could significantly contribute to achieving our energy reduction goals.

That is why I am introducing legislation today to amend the Recovery Act to allow REITs to participate fully in the energy grants in lieu of tax credits program.

Section 1603 of the Recovery Act provides Energy Grants to companies that invest in qualifying renewable energy projects. These grants are intended to encourage qualifying investments by taxpayers whose tax liability is not sufficient to benefit from existing energy credits. In fact, the Recovery Act Energy Grants were designed as a substitute for energy credits during the current economic downturn since many taxpayers have inadequate tax liability to use the credits. Despite being designed for this purpose, the Energy Grants provision in the Recovery Act have been interpreted to benefit a REIT only to the extent it retains taxable income, which most do not.

This legislation would further existing Congressional policy and promote the greatest possible participation in efforts to increase the use of renewable energy. REITs would be afforded the same economic incentives as other property owners to make investments in renewable energy projects. With enough critical mass, these types of investments should help fuel the U.S. economy's growth, create additional jobs and, over time, reduce American reliance on foreign oil.

I hope that you will join me in supporting this legislation.

CONGRATULATING DAVID COHEN

HON. STEVE ISRAEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. ISRAEL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to offer my sincere congratulations to my constituent, David Cohen, upon being awarded the Dick Steinberg Good Guy Award. This honor is given to a Jewish individual who best demonstrates the good aspects of sportsmanship.

Like the award's namesake, David has earned the distinction in the sport of football. Dick Steinberg was the Vice-President and General Manager of the New York Jets for six years. He was widely regarded and was one of the most respected men in football. As Head Coach of the football team at Hofstra University, he has exemplified the behavior and character that the National Jewish Sports Hall of Fame and Museum believes deserves to be recognized.

I hope that he continues to act as a leader in our community and carry on the legacy of Dick Steinberg. Congratulations to David upon this receiving this great honor.

HONORING HENRY R. MUÑOZ III

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. GONZALEZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Henry R. Muñoz III, a public servant who has dedicated his professional career and philanthropic efforts to serving others, on the special occasion of his 50th birthday.

Born in San Antonio on December 14, 1959, Henry Muñoz has honored us with his vision and leadership for decades, benefiting our cities, state and country. As a longtime friend, I know firsthand his track record of service to this nation and especially to the great State of Texas.

Throughout his life, Mr. Muñoz has engaged in a number of different professions: entrepreneur, artist, philanthropist, and activist. From his appointments to the Texas Department of Transportation, VIA Transit, Smithsonian National Board, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Cooper Hewitt National Design Museum, and many more, Mr. Muñoz has dedicated his passion and efforts to raising funds for these prestigious organizations. Mr. Muñoz has also raised over $5 million in student scholarships, allowing young leaders in our communities pursue their dreams through higher education.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Henry Muñoz III as we celebrate his 50th birthday, a life highlighted by decades of community service, philanthropy, and leadership.

TRIBUTE TO MR. R. STEPHEN BEST

HON. J. RANDY FORBES

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. FORBES. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Mr. Steve Best, on the occasion of his retirement as Fire Chief of the Chesapeake Fire Department.

Chief Best's contributions to the safety and health of the City of Chesapeake's citizens cannot be overstated. Chief Best modernized and diversified Chesapeake's fire and emergency personnel services to meet the wide-ranging challenges of modern life.

Chief Best began his fire fighting career as a sixteen-year-old volunteer with the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department. That experience led to professional firefighting with the Chesapeake Fire Department upon graduating from high school in 1974.

Working his way up through the ranks, Best worked as Fire Inspector and Fire Marshal for Chesapeake. He was promoted to Assistant Fire Chief, then Deputy Fire Chief until April 1998 when he became Chesapeake's Fire Chief and Emergency Services Coordinator.

Chief Best has ensured the Chesapeake Fire Department is able to respond to specialized situations involving hazardous materials, technical rescues, marine incidents, and foam firefighting. He greatly assisted in equipping every Chesapeake fire engine and ambulance with Advanced Life Support Equipment to save precious time in beginning life saving procedures. Best's fire department embodies a sense of community by offering programs such as child safety seat installations, fire station tours, and fire extinguisher training.

During his professional career, Chief Best continued to pursue educational opportunities. In addition to an Associate's Degree in Fire Science, a Bachelor of Science Degree in Governmental Administration, and a Master's Degree in Business Administration, Chief Best graduated with a Juris Doctor Degree from the Regent University School of Law in May 2008.

At home, Chief Best and his wife Sheree reside in Chesapeake. They are the proud parents of two sons. Chief Best teaches Sunday School at Deep Creek United Methodist Church and has served in many leadership roles on the Church Council. He has also served as a board member of the Boys and Girls Club of Southeast Virginia, Chesapeake Division, the Chesapeake Public School Foundation, and the YMCA Board of Management.

Chief Best deserves the gratitude of all of Chesapeake's residents for his innumerous accomplishments that have improved the quality of life here. Madam Speaker, please join me and the citizens of Chesapeake in offering our sincere congratulations to Chief Best on his exemplary service and a retirement well deserved.

WALL STREET REFORM AND CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 2009

SPEECH OF

HON. BRUCE L. BRALEY

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration of the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-country derivatives markets, and for other purposes:

Mr. BRALEY of Iowa. Madam Chair, I strongly support the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act and urge my Colleagues to vote for this bill.

I'm proud to chair the Populist Caucus. One of our founding principles is to fight for America's working families. For the past eight years, our economic policies have put the interests of Wall Street ahead of Main Street. Wall Street and big bank executives exploited loopholes and gambled with our money, which last year led us into the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. And while some big banks continue to accept excessive compensation and bonus packages, America's middle class families are still struggling.

The firms that received more than $350 billion in federal TARP funds increased executive compensation by an average of four percent last year. This is outrageous and unacceptable. This legislation will provide shareholders of public companies an annual vote on executive compensation and help reign in excessive executive compensation.

The Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act will hold Wall Street and big banks accountable by ending the practice of ''too-big-to-fail,'' so that America's taxpayers and middle class families are never again forced to pay off Wall Street's gambling debts. It will manage financial crises by requiring banks and other financial institutions worth at least $50 billion in assets to foot the bill for any bailouts in the future.

As we rebuild our economy, we must implement common-sense rules so that big banks and Wall Street don't jeopardize this recovery at the expense of hard-working Iowa families. This bill protects consumers from predatory lending abuses and finally brings transparency and accountability to an out-of-control financial system. It is about time that we put Main Street ahead of Wall Street. Thank you for taking up this important legislation.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. VERNON J. EHLERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. EHLERS. Madam Speaker, pursuant to Republican Leadership standards, I am submitting the following information regarding projects I received funding for as part of as part of the conference report to the Consolidated Appropriations Act (H.R. 3288), which were not included in House-passed appropriations bills:

Requesting Member: Congressman VERNON J. EHLERS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Agency: Department of Health & Human Services

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)—Health Facilities and Services.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Cherry Street Health Services

Address of Requesting Entity: 550 Cherry St., SE., Grand Rapids, MI 49503

Description of Request: The bill provides $400,000 for Cherry Street Health Services for facilities and equipment. Cherry Street (community health center), Touchstone Innovare (mental health services) and ProAction (substance abuse/mental health treatment) are developing an integrated care system in which patients in need of both mental health and physical health care will be involved in an integrated plan of treatment in which both medical and mental health professionals from different agencies work together in the same office space to complete a plan of treatment, a valuable use of taxpayer funds. In order to provide services to an increased number of patients, the three agencies are building a 92,000 sq. ft. building that will house the operations of the three organizations. The medical, dental and vision care equipment requested will be used in the operation of a federally qualified health center for the treatment of low- income patients most of whom would otherwise not have access to primary health care services.

Requesting Member: Congressman VERNON J. EHLERS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Agency: Federal Transit Administration

Account: Buses and Bus Facilities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: The Rapid

Address of Requesting Entity: 300 Ellsworth Ave., SW., Grand Rapids, Michigan, 49503

Description of Request: The bill provides $1,948,000 for the Rapid's Wealthy Operations Center Expansion in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The funding was requested by the Rapid. This project is a valuable use of taxpayer funds because it will allow the Rapid, the region's largest public transportation service, to expand to accommodate growth needs over the next 30 years.

HONORING MS. EDNA FRADY FOR HER DECADES OF SERVICE TO THE CITY OF FALLS CHURCH, VIRGINIA

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Edna Frady for her decades of service to the City of Falls Church, Virginia and its people. Moving to Falls Church at an early age, Edna has spent virtually her entire life in the community she has known and loved for over six decades. Through her charitable work and civic involvement, Edna, or ''Boss'' as she is known by many, has left an indelible mark on the City.

A tireless community activist, leader, friend, and role model, Edna Frady has made a lifelong commitment to improving the lives of others. The list of organizations she has served over the years is extensive. The Citizens for a Better City, Village Preservation and Improvement Society, League of Women Voters, Women's Club of Falls Church, Falls Church Lions Club, Falls Church Education Foundation, Falls Church Arts Council, and Falls Church Cable Access, have all benefitted from her membership and constant support. Ms. Frady was also an active member of the Falls Church Chamber of Commerce, where she served as a member of the Executive Committee, and in 2000, was awarded the Chamber's ''Pillar of the Community'' award. In recognition of her lifetime of achievement, the Mayor and City Council of Falls Church are planning to proclaim December 14, 2009, ''Edna Frady Day.''

As heavily involved as Ms. Frady was with non-profit community service organizations, she matched that effort as a stalwart force in the Democratic Party. For two decades, she helped lead the Falls Church Democratic Committee, serving on both the 8th Congressional District Committee, and the Democratic State Central Committee. In honor of her commitment, Ms. Frady received the Democratic State Central Committee's ''Grass Roots Award.'' In 2006, she was awarded the Falls Church Democratic Committee's ''Marian Driver Award for Outstanding Service.''

It's a true honor to recognize someone who so selflessly worked for the betterment of her community and fellow citizens. I know that even in retirement, Edna will continue to find ever more fulfilling challenges to assist those around her.

TRIBUTE TO STEVEN AND JULIE KARBER

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. LATHAM. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and congratulate Steven and Julie Karber of Jefferson, Iowa, on being named the winners of the ''Gary Wergin Good Farm Neighbor Award.'' This award recognizes Iowa livestock farmers who dedicate themselves not only to their professions and their community, but also to caring for the environment.

The state of Iowa is celebrating the Karber's achievements, but I feel that we in the U.S. House of Representatives should also recognize and commend the valuable professional and social contributions of Iowa's livestock farmers. Steve and Julie raise sheep in the Jefferson area of my district, but Steve is also an M.D. with an active practice. When the Karbers aren't promoting the sheep industry or handling the day to day demands of being a physician, they are actively supporting the local 4–H and are involved in other community organizations.

I commend Steve and Julie for their many years of loyalty and service to Iowa and to our country. It is an immense honor to represent them in Congress, and I know they will continue to serve as role models of the values of community service in this Country.

TAX EXTENDERS ACT OF 2009–

SPEECH OF

HON. RUSH D. HOLT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of legislation that will extend tax relief to millions of Americans, the Tax Extenders Act of 2009. This bill will extend 40 tax cuts which are due to expire at the end of this year, many of which are important to businesses and families in Central New Jersey.

New Jersey has the highest property taxes in the country. While property taxes are assessed on a local basis to fund local services and schools, I have attempted at the federal level to provide some relief to homeowners. Earlier this year, I reintroduced the Universal Homeowner Tax Relief Act (H.R. 2725) which would extend the property tax deduction for American homeowners who don't itemize on their federal returns. I helped write this initiative to create an additional standard deduction of $500 for single filers and $1,000 for joint filers for local real property taxes paid. I am pleased that the bill before us today extends this deduction for the 2010 tax year and provides needed relief to the 30 million homeowners nationwide and an estimated 600,000 New Jerseyans who are due to lose this benefit this year.

H.R. 4213 also includes $17 billion in tax cuts that would help American businesses create and preserve jobs during these difficult economic times. It would extend the low-income housing tax credit exchange program which has invested more than $3.7 billion in the construction of more than 49,000 low-income housing units nationwide. It will also invest $3 billion to encourage economic development in economically distressed communities.

I especially support that H.R. 4213 would extend the research and development tax credit for an additional year. This tax credit is crucial in spurring private research and driving technological innovation and will support R&D at 11,000 American companies this year. This credit stimulates American made innovation and preserves and creates new high paying jobs in research and development. As important as the R&D tax credit has been, it has never been a permanent part of the tax code and has been allowed to expire several times, most notably in 2007. Congress should work to make this tax credit permanent in order strengthen the incentive for businesses to invest in long-term research by giving corporate leaders certainty that their research investments will be rewarded year after year.

The Tax Extenders Act of 2009 also would extend the above-the-line deduction for qualified tuition and related expenses. This tax cut of up to $4,000 helps parents offset the rising cost of higher education and keeps a college degree within reach of many middle class families. H.R. 4213 also would extend the teacher tax credit that allows teachers to deduct up to $250 for purchasing classroom supplies for their students. More than 3.4 million teachers benefited from this tax credit this year.

The Tax Extenders Act ensures that these tax cuts do not increase the deficit by providing the U.S. Treasury Department with significant new tools to find and prosecute U.S. individuals that hide assets overseas from the Internal Revenue Service.

I am always looking to extend tax relief to New Jersey families. This bill does that in a fiscally responsible way.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. HAROLD ROGERS

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican standards on congressionally-directed funding, I am submitting the following information regarding funding included in H.R. 3288, the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman HAROLD ROGERS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Housing and Urban Development—Economic Development Initiatives (EDI)

Legal Name of Recipient: Appalachia Service Project

Address of Recipient: 216 Green Hill Drive, Chavies, KY 41727

Description of Request: Provides directed funding of $460,000 to the Appalachia Service Project (ASP) in Chavies, Ky. ASP is a volunteer-based organization that works to build and repair homes for underprivileged people in the Appalachian region. In rural counties of Kentucky, significant poverty often prevents families from maintaining access to basic services like water and sewer and performing regular home maintenance. Since 1969, ASP has provided critical repairs to 13,000 homes in Central Appalachia and life-changing volunteer experiences to over 240,000 people. In 2008, the economic impact of ASP's activities across Kentucky was $3.15 million, and ASP will combine this FY10 funding with private contributions to provide emergency home repairs for disadvantaged families in rural Kentucky.

CONGRATULATING ALIVIANE, INC.'S 40TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. SILVESTRE REYES

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. REYES. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Aliviane, Inc., as they celebrate their 40th anniversary. Based in my congressional district of El Paso, Texas, Aliviane is the largest and oldest drug abuse prevention, intervention, and treatment provider in the West Texas region.

Established in 1969, Aliviane provides a critical service to our community. Over the past 40 years, the organization has grown and now operates several licensed facilities that assist clients and their families with intensive residential treatment and supportive outpatient services. Aliviane's use of cutting-edge services and techniques has allowed the organization to meet the unique needs of its clients. Today, in large part because of Aliviane's pioneering efforts and commitment, behavioral health has become an essential part of primary health care in our country.

Aliviane has developed programs that have become national and international models and have been used to further advance the behavioral health field. In the 1980s, Aliviane created the first nationally recognized program designed to keep a mother and her child together during treatment. This program has been recognized as a national model by the Office of National Drug Control Policy. In addition, Aliviane has developed the only behavioral health trauma unit in West Texas.

I commend Aliviane for their continued leadership in the behavioral health field and their dedication to further improving the national and international standards for behavioral health care. The hard working employees of Aliviane provide invaluable services within our community and it is with deep gratitude that I applaud their accomplishments.

RECOGNIZING LOUISE JOHNSON

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. LATHAM. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate and congratulate Louise Johnson on the occasion of her 100th birthday on December 24th, 2009.

Louise was born in Esmund, South Dakota in 1909. While growing up in South Dakota, she met and married Lars Vierson Teigland, and the two moved to Iowa in 1939, happily raising two sons, Lowell and Owen, who later served in the U.S. Army. After Lars passed away she married Haakin Johnson, who she also spent many happy years with.

Louise has lived on and managed the family farm in Emmetsburg, Iowa for forty-four years until November of this year when she moved to Lakeside Nursing Home. She's enjoyed being a member of the Emmetsburg flower club, collecting dolls, making corn husk dolls and being passionate about politics.

There have been many changes that have occurred during the past one hundred years. Since Louise's birth we have revolutionized air travel and walked on the moon. We have invented the television and the Internet. We have fought in wars overseas, seen the rise and fall of Soviet communism and the birth of new democracies. Louise has also seen the leadership of eighteen United States Presidents and twenty-three Governors of Iowa. In her lifetime the population of the United States has more than tripled.

I congratulate Louise Johnson for reaching this milestone of a birthday. I am extremely honored to represent Louise in Congress and I wish her happiness and health in her future years.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE

OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding funding for Delaware included as part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010, H.R. 3288.

DIVISION A—TRANSPORTATION, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2010

Name of Project: C & D Canal Trail Improvements

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Federal Lands (Public Lands Highways)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

Address of Requesting Entity: Wanamaker Building, 100 Penn Square East, Philadelphia, PA 19107

Description of Request: $1,000,000 to transform over 13 miles of existing Army Corps service road on the north side of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal—from Delaware City to Chesapeake City—into a multi-purpose recreation trail with associated amenities (trail heads, signage, and self-composting restroom facilities, and security). Creating a multi-purpose recreation trail on the existing service road would ensure a safer area for the residents of Delaware City (one of the fastest growing areas in the state of Delaware), Chesapeake City, and everywhere in between, to continue to enjoy the Canal.

Name of Project: Turnpike Improvement Project: SR–1 & I–95

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Interstate Maintenance Discretionary

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: State of Delaware Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 800 Bay Road, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903

Description of Request: $2,018,000 to improve the safety and efficiency of two major routes along the Northeast Corridor. It consists of three phases designed to improve the movement and safety of interstate, regional and local traffic through this heavily traveled intersection. The three phases include: a redesign of the I–95/SR–1 interchange, adding a fifth lane to I–95, and reconfiguring the I–95 toll plaza in Newark, DE, to incorporate Highway Speed E–ZPass toll lanes. This project is anticipated to reduce traffic congestion and improve overall safety.

Name of Project: Indian River Inlet Bridge

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Surface Transportation Priorities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: State of Delaware Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 800 Bay Road, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903

Description of Request: $779,200 for the construction of a new bridge along State Route 1 over the Indian River Inlet. The replacement bridge will alleviate the safety risk caused by the present scour conditions at the foundations. The new structure will completely span the inlet with all foundation members constructed on dry land. The proposed alignment will be west of the existing bridge at a critical evacuation route in the event of natural disasters.

Name of Project: 40′ Fixed Route Transit Buses

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Buses & Bus Facilities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: State of Delaware Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 800 Bay Road, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903

Description of Request: $974,000 to replace fixed route transit coaches which were purchased in 1996. This is part of a comprehensive bus replacement schedule to ensure safe and efficient transportation equipment is used for fixed route services. The project will enable the Delaware Transit Corporation to continue to provide a high level of service to Delaware residents. DTC provides 10 million passenger trips annually with 14.9 million service miles and serves all three counties.

Name of Project: Automotive-Based Fuel Cell Hybrid Bus Program

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Buses & Bus Facilities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: University of Delaware

Address of Requesting Entity: Hullihen Hall, Newark, DE 19716

Description of Request: $487,000 for a program to research, build and demonstrate fuel cell hybrid buses on the UD campus and in the state of Delaware. The objective is for the project's efficient and uniquely low-cost design of fuel cell transit buses to spur commercialization of this technology which will help reduce our nation's dependence on foreign oil and enable the U.S. to meet its goal of greenhouse gases reductions.

Name of Project: Wilmington to Newark Commuter Rail Improvement Program

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Capital Investment Grants

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: State of Delaware Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 800 Bay Road, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903

Description of Request: $3,000,000 to install a third commuter rail track along the northeast corridor, build a new Newark Rail Station, and purchase four commuter rail cars. This program expands capacity to permit expansion of commuter rail services and increases reliability of intercity and commuter rail services. It will also assist in significantly reducing traffic congestion along the northeast corridor.

Name of Project: Remediation and Reuse of Reclaimed Port Land

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Surface Transportation Priorities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Diamond State Port Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 1 Hausel Rd, Wilmington, DE 19801

Description of Request: $730,500 for the excavation and removal of decaying organic material and other debris left by a previous industrial activity, backfilling, surcharging and paving this 5 acre site for future cargo operations. Approximately 5 acres of Port land in close proximity to the wharf area is currently unavailable for cargo operations as a result of unstable substrate conditions that preclude working with heavy marine cargo in this area.

Name of Project: First Steps Primeros Pasos

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Economic Development Initiatives

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: First Steps Primeros Pasos

Address of Requesting Entity: P.O. Box 1003, Georgetown, DE 19947

Description of Request: $194,800 to support the construction and start-up costs for a bilingual early care facility designed to help children of non-English speaking families develop the language and skills needed to be successful when they reach kindergarten. This will benefit Georgetown, Delaware, and its growing Hispanic community. Upon opening, the center will serve 60 children.

Name of Project: Ministry of Caring

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Economic Development Initiatives

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Ministry of Caring

Address of Requesting Entity: 506 N. Church Street, Wilmington, DE 19801

Description of Request: $194,800 to renovate the Josephine Bakhita House to serve as residence for young adults committed to social responsibility and giving back to the community through one or two years of volunteer service of working within the Ministry of Caring's network of 18 programs to serve the poor and the homeless. This is an invaluable way to gain job experience. This project not only promotes volunteerism, but will also assist those in need in Delaware.

Name of Project: Food Bank of Delaware

Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Account: Economic Development Initiatives

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Food Bank of Delaware

Address of Requesting Entity: 14 Garfield Way, Newark, DE 19713

Description of Request: $194,800 to expand the Milford facility to meet the needs of Kent and Sussex Counties. Expansion will include a full service kitchen to serve hot meals to those in need, a volunteer room for recruiting and meetings, a culinary school to provide job training for the unemployed, and more office space so that more jobs can be created.

Name of Project: Consolidated Communications Facility
Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE–
Bill Number: H.R. 3288
Account: Air Force
Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Dover Air Force Base
Address of Requesting Entity: Dover, DE
Description of Request: $12,100,000 to construct a consolidated communications facility at Dover AFB. Currently, a comprehensive, integrated communications system is impeded by the fragmented location of related communications functions. Consolidating these functions into one hardened facility will improve manpower efficiency by approximately 25 percent. Consolidation and demolition of the old facilities will result in approximately $17,000 in annual energy savings.
Name of Project: Chapel Center
Requesting Member: MICHAEL N. CASTLE–
Bill Number: H.R. 3288
Account: Air Force
Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Dover Air Force Base
Address of Requesting Entity: Dover, DE
Description of Request: $7,500,000 to construct a new chapel center at Dover AFB. The current Dover AFB chapel center is an undersized, structurally substandard facility. A chapel is needed in proximity of dormitory residents because many single Airmen do not own transportation and the other base chapel is 20 minutes from the main base by foot. Airmen who work at the Port Mortuary would also utilize the new facility. An improved chapel is required to host families who come to the base to receive our fallen heroes. A new chapel center is needed to meet diverse worship, fellowship, and counseling needs of Dover AFB.

SUPPORT OUR BORDER COMMUNITIES

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. FILNER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce H.R. 4251, legislation to include certain Department of Homeland Security facilities, such as ports of entry, under the Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) program.

Since 1976, communities have received payments from the Interior Department's PILT program to help offset losses in property taxes due to nontaxable Federal lands administered by the BLM, the National Park Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the U.S. Forest service.

However, all along our Border, communities are not reimbursed for land that the Department of Homeland Security uses for ports of entry. The community often provides resources and services to these facilities without reimbursement from the government. My bill, H.R. 4251 provides support for these communities.

H.R. 4251 amends existing law to include certain Department of Homeland Security facilities, such as ports of entry, under the PILT program. Providing access to these payments will help these communities with the important work they provide along our borders.

HONORING THE FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF PEORIA

HON. AARON SCHOCK

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. SCHOCK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the First United Methodist Church of Peoria. For 17 years First United Methodist has partnered with Irving Primary School to present a variety of services to students from low income families. Bear Buddy Ministry volunteers provide reading and tutoring services to Irving 250 students in second, third, fourth and fifth grade. Bear Buddy Ministry volunteers visit Irving weekly and serve over half of the 353 students who attend Irving.

First United Methodist sponsors a Fine Arts Ministry which partners Irving students with artists from Bradley University and the Peoria Art Guild so Irving students can have a chance to participate in artistic opportunities using visual arts, pottery, writing and photography resources.

The Community Ministry also supports a children's choir which has grown to 52 members in recent years. First United Methodist transports the young vocalists to all of their concerts and civic engagements, including performances at Peoria City Council meetings.

First United Methodist proudly backs a soccer program in Morton, Illinois for Irving students which lasts six to eight weeks. The soccer program gives students proper exercise and shows them the importance of teamwork. First United Methodist members have also built two Habitat for Humanity homes for families of Irving School students. These successes have led First United Methodist to explore future partnerships with Lincoln Middle School and the Peoria Alternative High School. The First United Methodist Church-Irving Primary School partnership is a model relationship which works together to provide a better future for the children of Peoria District 150. I congratulate First United Methodist Church of Peoria for 17 years of quality ministry to the students and families of Irving Primary School. I look forward to many more years of this great partnership which furthers the education of our students. Thank you and I yield back the balance of my time.

A TRIBUTE TO GRETCHEN PUSCH

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS–

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Gretchen Pusch.

Flutist Gretchen Pusch made her Carnegie Recital Hall debut as winner of the Artist International Competition. She has appeared frequently in recitals and as concerto soloist in North America, Europe and Asia. A member of the Dorian Wind Quintet, she has also collaborated in chamber music concerts with Peter Schickele, Anthony Newman, Maxence Larrieu and Paula Robison, among others. Ms. Pusch has performed with the American Symphony, American Composers Orchestra, Brooklyn Philharmonic, New Jersey Symphony and Philharmonia Virtuosi.

Ms. Pusch has been heard on radio, television and recordings for Composers Recording Inc., Panasonic, Summit, Innova, Mode and Windham Hill. Formerly on the faculty of Rutgers University, Ms. Pusch currently serves on the flute faculty of the Juilliard School's Music Advancement Program and the International Festival Institute at Round Top and is a teaching artist for The Academy (a joint program of Carnegie Hall, the Juillard School and the Weill Music Institute). She is a graduate of Boston University and studied with Julius Baker, James Pappoutsakis and Keith Underwood.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing Gretchen Pusch.

WALL STREET REFORM AND CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 2009

SPEECH OF

HON. CHAKA FATTAH

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 9, 2009

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration of the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives markets, and for other purposes:

Mr. FATTAH. Madam Chair, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4173, the Wall Street and Consumer Protect Act of 2009. The bill proposes to address the financial crisis brought on by the financial industry by crafting a comprehensive set of measures that will modernize America's financial regulations and hold Wall Street accountable. A myriad of issues, from predatory lending to unregulated derivatives, are contained in the bill to prevent conditions that led to last year's financial meltdown.

The legislation being considered today outlaws many of the egregious industry practices that marked the subprime lending boom, and it would ensure that mortgage lenders make loans that benefit the consumer. H.R. 4173 establishes a simple standard for all home loans, mandating that institutions must ensure borrowers have the ability to the loans they are sold. In addition, the bill prohibits the financial incentives for subprime loans that encourage lenders to steer borrowers into more costly loans, including the bonuses known as ''yield spread premiums,'' which lenders pay to brokers to inflate the cost of loans. Many homeowners in the current mortgage crisis received were steered into more expensive loans than they qualified for. The bill limits the prepayment penalties charged to borrowers who wish to get out of their loans and refinance on more affordable terms.

Implementing laws to correct the failures that led to the economic conditions that created the worse financial crisis since the Great Depression is important in ensuring the ensuing calamity that transpired after the collapse of the financial markets. Nevertheless, the Chairman's inclusion of a mortgage foreclosure assistance provision in the Chairman's Manager's Amendment brings to light one of the least discussed causalities of the financial disaster. Many homeowners now find they are unable to meet their financial obligations due to the severe recession caused by the unbridled greed and recklessness of many financial services institutions.

On numerous occasions, President Obama declared the road to recovery must begin with correcting the damaged housing market by providing people the tools necessary to keep their homes and prevent foreclosure. According to a recently released report by RealtyTrac, a realty company that maintains a comprehensive national database of pre-foreclosure and foreclosure properties, nearly 400,000 properties received foreclosure filing in August 2009. Though number of filings decreased less than one percent from the previous month, the overall number of foreclosure filings is nearly 18 percent higher than the previous year. More strikingly, the report also indicates 1 in every 357 properties used for housing are under threat of foreclosure.

Although not all homes in the foreclosure process will end in a foreclosure completion, an increase in the number of loans in the foreclosure process is generally accompanied by an increase in the number of homes on which a foreclosure is completed. According to the Mortgage Bankers Association, about 1 percent of all home loans were in the foreclosure process in the second quarter of 2006. By the second quarter of 2009, the rate had quadrupled to over 4 percent.

Traditionally, housing is considered a relatively safe investment that allows for the possibility for a high rate of return. Rapidly rising home prices reinforced supported this view. During the rapid of expansion of housing in the early part of this decade, many people decided to buy homes or take out second mortgages in order to access their increasing home equity. Furthermore, rising home prices and low interest rates contributed to a sharp increase in people refinancing their mortgages. For example, between 2000 and 2003, the number of refinanced mortgage loans jumped from 2.5 million to over 15 million. In 2006 and 2007, the value of housing dropped precipitously, which triggered an unexpected increase in the number of homeowners that were delinquent on their mortgages payments and facing foreclosure.

Mortgage foreclosures are very costly to both the foreclosed homeowner and the mortgage lender. Lenders suffer revenue losses from uncollected interest on delinquent loans, as well as unrecoverable origination costs and fees. Though loans that are insured under the Federal Housing Act mitigates losses to lenders to a certain extent, foreclosures cost the lending industry approximately $32,000 for every home that is in foreclosure proceedings since foreclosed properties are often sold below market value.

Losing a home to foreclosure can have a number of negative effects on a household. For many families, losing a home means losing the household's largest store of wealth. Furthermore, foreclosure can negatively impact a borrower's creditworthiness, making it more difficult for him or her to buy a home in the future. Finally, losing a home to foreclosure can also mean that a household loses many of the less tangible benefits of owning a home. Research has shown that these benefits include increased civic engagement that results from having a stake in the community, and better health, school, and behavioral outcomes for children.

In addition, many homeowners experience difficulty finding a place to live after losing their home to foreclosure. Many will become renters. Nevertheless, some landlords may be unwilling to rent to families whose credit has been damaged by a foreclosure, limiting the options open to these families. There can also be spillover effects from foreclosure on current renters. Renters living in units facing foreclosure may be required to move, even if they are current on their rent payments. As more homeowners become renters and as more current renters are displaced when their landlords face foreclosure, pressure on local rental markets may increase, and more families may have difficulty finding affordable rental housing. Some observers have also raised the concern that a large increase in foreclosures could increase homelessness, either because families who lost their homes have trouble finding new places to live or because the increased demand for rental housing makes it more difficult for families to find adequate, affordable units.

A concentration of foreclosures will negatively impacts communities, not just homeowners facing foreclosure. Many foreclosures in a single neighborhood may depress surrounding home values. If foreclosed homes stand vacant for long periods of time, they can attract crime and blight, especially if they are not well-maintained. Concentrated foreclosures also place pressure on local governments, which can lose property tax revenue and may have to step in to maintain vacant foreclosed properties.

Unforeseen events can happen to all people, in all communities. Unexpected medical expenses, sudden unemployment, and divorce are only some of the myriad of unforeseen circumstances that can create financial instability for hardworking homeowners. Such hardships are frequently cited as significant contributing factors that hinder a homeowner's ability to maintain timely mortgage payments, ultimately resulting in dramatically higher rates of mortgage foreclosure. Homeowners in America face the added pressure of simultaneously handling the financial burdens of unforeseen events and their mortgage obligations.

Making Home Affordable, the new Obama plan which requires lenders to modify mortgages, is a good idea that is off to a slow start as lenders have yet to gear up for or aggressively seek modifications to those eligible. Foreclosures caused by unemployment are becoming a greater and greater portion of the foreclosure problem. Estimates are that 5.5 million homes will enter foreclosure in 2009 and 2010.

In Pennsylvania, a major state initiative to combat family-devastating foreclosures has been operating with success for more than a quarter-century, enacted in the wake of the severe recession of 1983. The Homeowners Emergency Mortgage Assistance Program (HEMAP) has provided loans to over 43,000 homeowners since 1984 at a cost to the Keystone State of $236 million. Assisted homeowners have repaid $246 million to date which works out to a $10 million profit for the state after 25 years of helping families keep their homes.

The Pennsylvania model will work nationally, and that is why I introduced H.R. 3142, the Homeowners Emergency Mortgage Assistance (HEMA) Act, which is pending before the House Financial Services Committee. HEMA establishes an emergency mortgage assistance program for qualifying homeowners who are temporarily unable to meet their obligations due to financial hardship beyond their control. Under HEMA, homeowners would have the opportunity to regain financial stability without the immediate pressure of foreclosure. With the support of Chairman BARNEY FRANK of the Committee on Financial Services and Subcommittee Chairwoman MAXINE WATERS, the HEMA proposal was incorporated into H.R. 3766, the Main Street TARP Act. The Main Street TARP Act proposes to use unspent TARP funds to provide relief for distressed homeowners who are unable to meet their mortgage obligations due to financial hardship, as well as providing assistance to renters seeking affordable housing.

A national HEMA program offers a workable complement to President Obama's new Making Home Affordable program. Making Home Affordable has allocated $75 billion in TARP funds to provide financial incentives to encourage participation by mortgage servicers and homeowners. Although the Treasury Department is taking steps to increase the effectiveness of Making Home Affordable by pressing mortgage servicers to put additional resources and staff into providing loan modifications that make mortgages affordable for homeowners, the scale of the problem is huge and the ability and willingness of servicers to do the work necessary is in question. The loss of six million US jobs since the start of the recession complicates the crisis as many jobless won't even have enough income for a loan modification to be effective.

A HEMA-style loan program could use TARP funds already allocated for foreclosure prevention to directly cure mortgage defaults for the unemployed. As the economy recovers most jobless workers will get back to work and be able to resume their mortgage payments. Even a portion of the $75 billion set aside for Making Home Affordable could pay a lot of mortgage payments to bring homeowners current and not have them at the mercy of a mortgage servicer who is poorly equipped to offer them help.

Such a program could be run much more efficiently than the time consuming loan modification program. A homeowner who indicated that he or she was unemployed would provide verification of unemployment compensation to the servicer and automatically be approved for a loan that would pay any mortgage above 31 percent of their income (the target amount in Making Home Affordable modifications). The Treasury could make payments for the homeowner who is then current on the mortgage. It would cut through the disorder of the loan modification program and slow the numbers of foreclosed properties on the market.

The success of HEMAP is evident in the program's results. Since its inception, 42,700 families were saved from foreclosure by providing over $442 million in loans to at-risk homeowners. The average loan to a distressed homeowner is $10,500, which is much less than the $35,000 it costs to complete most foreclosure actions. Additionally, this estimated average foreclosure cost does not consider the impact of foreclosures on families, neighborhoods and communities.

We have tried everything else. The Treasury has already allocated far more than $2 billion to prevent foreclosures. It seems likely that many of those dollars will not be spent in a timely manner by mortgage servicers modifying loans. It's time to get people's mortgages paid directly and to slow the pace of home losses that are destroying families and crippling our overall economy. It's time to think outside the box about foreclosures—and way past time to keep Americans inside their homes.

IN MEMORY OF LT. COL. GEORGE WITHERS STIER

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. SKELTON. Madam Speaker, it is with sadness that I inform the House of the death of my dear friend Lieutenant Colonel George Withers Stier of Lexington, Missouri.

Stier was born in December of 1919 to Earle Taggart Stier and Grace King Stier. After graduating from Wentworth Military Academy with ROTC training, he volunteered for the Army Reserves and applied for Active Duty in 1941.

During World War II, Stier showed his unyielding courage and love of country while flying the B–17 Flying Fortress. During the last of his 16 bombing missions over Germany, he and his crew were shot down and became prisoners of war at Stalag Luft III. Surviving a 50-mile forced march, Stier and his fellow airmen spent over a year as prisoners of war. On April 20, 1945, he was liberated by General George Patton and his 3rd Army's 14th Tank Battalion.

In 1948, Stier married his lovely wife Kathleen Miller Trumbull. The two returned to his hometown of Lexington, Missouri, where they operated Stier's Clothing Store, a family operation since 1906. A dedicated public servant, he served on the City Council and was president of the local Chamber of Commerce. He maintained his connection to Wentworth Military Academy by teaching business courses to our future servicemen and women.

Preceded in death by his wife Kathleen who sadly passed away in 2004, he is survived by his children, Sheila and George.

Madam Speaker, Lt. Col. George Stier was a courageous airman, a loving husband and father, and a dear friend. I trust that my fellow Members of the House will join me in extending their heartfelt condolences to his two children, family, and friends.

IN HONOR OF MAURICE A. SCHWARTZ

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Maurice A. Schwartz of Stinson Beach, California, who will be retiring next month as Executive Director of the Audubon Canyon Ranch (ACR). Skip Schwartz—everyone calls him Skip—a man known for his rare combination of a strong work ethic, empathy, kindness and humor, has been at the helm of ACR for thirty-four years, a time of great growth and accomplishments for the ranch.

Audubon Canyon Ranch was founded in 1962 to preserve a thickly wooded nesting place for great blue herons and great egrets on the shores of Bolinas Lagoon. Skip first saw the ranch as a visitor in the early 70s and later he and his wife became docents. In 1975 he so impressed the ACR's trustees that they hired him as Executive Director. With his commitment, boundless enthusiasm and practical know-how, Skip tackled the tough problems of a young non-profit and succeeded far beyond anyone's expectations.

Today ACR is a financially solid organization with 24 employees and 800 volunteers with exciting environmental education and research programs and preserve holdings in two counties totaling over 2,000 acres, and will be a beneficiary of a gift of another 1,700 acres in the future. ACR now includes the 1,000 acre Bolinas Lagoon Preserve near Stinson Beach; the 535-acre Bouverie Preserve near Glen Ellen in Sonoma County, the Cypress Grove Research Center on Tomales Bay and several other properties in West Marin. Recently an access agreement was signed with Jim and Shirley Modini, whose 1,725–acre Modoni Ranch in Sonoma County has been willed to ACR.

Due largely to Skip's democratic leadership skills, ACR was named this year by the North Bay Business Journal as one of the five best places to work in the North Bay. Employees—whose average length of employment is 11 years—gave Audubon Canyon Ranch the highest marks of the five firms honored. Employees cited ACR's family focus and its commitment to ''walking the talk'' by making every effort to make the workplace green, including establishing mileage reimbursement for bicycle use during work hours.

Under Skip's leadership, ACR scientific contributions also literally helped put Bolinas Lagoon on the map as a United Nations RAMSAR site of international significance. ACR's conservation science programs have grown to include a Research and Habitat Preservation and Restoration component.

Skip has overseen the creation of a nationally recognized elementary school environmental education program that serves schools throughout the Bay Area at no charge to them or their students. Each year, between 6,000 and 7,000 students from ethnically and economically diverse neighborhoods in four counties participate in ACR's ''hands on'' environmental education program.

Skip Schwartz, who has been the public face of Audubon Canyon Ranch for over three decades, will step down as Executive Director in January, but he will continue to work part time as a consultant with the organization. It appears that the Directors of Audubon Canyon Ranch know just how big Skip's shoes will be to fill. He leaves a legacy of accomplishment, but at least for some time ACR's Directors, staff and many friends will continue to benefit from his knowledge, enjoy his humor and kindness, and be inspired by his practical idealism.

THE APPROPRIATIONS PACKAGE AND AMTRAK

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, today, the House will consider the end of year appropriations package. In that package, is a one-page provision that risk undermining nearly a decade of rail security efforts by Amtrak. It requires Amtrak to allow passengers at stations that accept checked baggage to check their guns.

There are those who argue that this is a reasonable provision which would simply grant rail travelers the same opportunities as aviation travelers. These people fundamentally miss the point.

The challenges of securing rail are very different than securing aviation. Airports are controlled environments with screeners, checkpoints and multiple law enforcement agencies, rail stations are not. Airline passengers are watch listed, rail passengers are not. Guns that are checked on planes are stored away from passengers. Under this provision, guns could be ''checked'' in the same car as the passenger. This provision is bad security of policy and puts Amtrak passengers and staff and anyone else in rail stations at risk.

A TRIBUTE TO REDLANDS CITY CLERK LORRIE POYZER FOR 33 YEARS OF PUBLIC SERVICE

HON. JERRY LEWIS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I would like to pay tribute to Redlands City Clerk Lorrie Poyzer, who over the past three decades has established herself as the institutional memory of this Southern California city.

A true native of this San Bernardino County city, Lorrie Poyzer is a Redlands High School graduate and the daughter of Marion H. Poyzer, who was the city's elected Treasurer from 1960 to 1975. Her grandfather and his sister were the first recorded twins born in the city around 1900.

After graduation from Redlands High School and then San Bernardino Valley College, Louie Poyzer worked for seven years as office manager for the Redlands Teachers Association, and seven more as the assistant manager's secretary of the Bank of America Redlands branch.

She went to work in the City Clerk's office in February 1976, shortly after her father retired as city Treasurer. In those days before computers, she had to retype minutes of the City Council meetings three or four times as changes were made. She was appointed deputy clerk within a year.

Her expertise and years of service led to the City Council appointing Lorrie Poyzer acting City Clerk in January 1983, and she was elected to the first of seven consecutive terms in November 2003.

Madam Speaker, as with many growing cities, Redlands has seen its share of changes in leadership. Ms. Poyzer has served with 10 mayors, 29 City Council members and 11 City Managers. She has overseen the accurate recording of minutes for more than 1,000 council meetings.

Under her leadership, Redlands has become known for its incredibly accurate recordkeeping. The office has ensured that all former paper records have been transferred to computers, and she is proud to say that her office can find any document—even dating back to the city founding in 1888—within 10 minutes.

As City Clerk, Ms. Poyzer has overseen numerous municipal elections and has a long-established reputation for fair and impartial handling of candidates. Her duties have ranged from administering oaths and affirmations to helping organize the city's Centennial celebration in 1988. She has even taken charge of selling tickets to the annual Fourth of July celebration at the University of Redlands.

Over the years, Lorrie Poyzer has become known as the person who knows everything about the city and community of Redlands. She handles all requests for help and information cheerfully and efficiently.

Madam Speaker, after serving as the elected city clerk for 26 years, Lorrie Poyzer is retiring this month. We will all miss her vast knowledge of our city and its history, but we wish her success and happiness on her retirement. Please join me in commending her for a fabulous life of public service.

A TRIBUTE TO DAWN MONIQUE ADAMS-FULTON

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS–

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Dawn Monique Adams-Fulton.

Mrs. Adams-Fulton is a Rehabilitation Counselor for New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. She presently provided services to the chemical dependency population at Cumberland Diagnostic and Treatment Center. She has provided this population with support and guidance for the last ten years. She has demonstrated a high level of dedication to the clients she services by ensuring that they have the tools they need to become and remain productive members of society.

She has been employed at Steinway Child & Family Services for 14 years as a Director Child Care worker. In this role, she is responsible for assisting children with problem solving, life skills and conflict resolution.

Prior to joining the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, Mrs. Adams-Fulton worked in the foster care system for eight years through a host agency, the Richard Allen Center on Life and Sheltering Arms Foster Care Agency. In both positions she was dedicated to making and ensuring children were protected and provided with a happy and safe beginning.

Her leadership, dedication and communication skills have been recognized through receiving many certificates of appreciation.

She obtained her Bachelor's of Science Degree from College of Human Services (presently known as Metropolitan College). Mrs. Adams-Fulton continued her education by attending Long Island University and received her Master's of Science Degree in Counseling and Family Education. Mrs. Adams-Fulton also possesses her certification in the field of addiction (CASAC) and has a License in Mental Health Counseling (LMHC). In addition to her education, she has a credential in Family Development from Cornell University.

She is also a member of Dewitt Headstart Parent Involvement Committee. In this role she is responsible for encouraging and supporting parents and promoting their involvement in their children's education and future.

Mrs. Adams-Fulton enjoys spending her free time with her family and her circle of friends. Her role models are her grandmothers, Marion L. Adams and Emma Campbell. They instilled in her the importance of family and being responsible. In addition, she has a host of leaders that have provided guidance and encouragement in her professional growth.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing Dawn Monique Adams-Fulton.

REMEMBERING SENATOR PAULA HAWKINS

HON. DEBBIE WASSERMAN SCHULTZ

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to remember an historic figure in Florida politics, United States Senator Paula Hawkins, who died at the age of 82 on Friday, December 4, 2009.

Senator Hawkins was the first woman from any State elected to a full U.S. Senate term who was not the wife or daughter of a politician.

Senator Hawkins was a champion of children's issues and issues relating to single women.

She was instrumental in passing The Missing Children's Act of 1982, which established a national clearinghouse for information about missing children.

Senator Hawkins fought to help women enter the job market after divorce or widowhood, for equalizing pension benefits for women by taking into account their years spent at home raising children, for day care for the children of Senate employees and for tax breaks on child care expenses.

But probably her most courageous act took place in 1984 when she publicly disclosed that she was sexually molested as a child.

We should all be grateful to Senator Hawkins, Madam Speaker, for opening the door for so many others.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ZACH WAMP

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. WAMP. Madam Speaker, as a leader on earmark reform among House Republicans, I am committed to honoring House Republican rules that provide for greater transparency. H.R. 3288, the Fiscal Year 2010 Consolidated Appropriations Act, contains the following funding that I requested:

Requesting Member: Rep. ZACH WAMP
Account: Army
Legal Name Requesting Entity: Fort Campbell, Kentucky
Address: 39 Normandy Avenue, Fort Campbell, Kentucky 42223
Description of Request: There is inadequate chapel space at Ft. Campbell. The current facilities are scattered across the entire installation in several substandard World War II buildings that are in disrepair. The construction of a chapel complex will provide every Fort Campbell soldier, their family members and retirees a quality facility in which to worship and practice their religious faith. As overseas deployments remain high, an increasing number of soldiers and families will rely on the chapel to support their spiritual needs. The local Clarksville Chamber of Commerce has strongly advocated for a new chapel on Ft. Campbell. Fort Campbell receives $14.4 million for this project.
Distribution of funding:
Chapel 72%
Antiterrorism/Force Protection Measures 1%
Infrastructure (electric, water) 11%
Supervision, Inspection & Overhead 16%
Requesting Member: Rep. ZACH WAMP
Account: Defense Wide
Legal Name Requesting Entity: Fort Campbell, Kentucky
Address: 39 Normandy Avenue, Fort Campbell, Kentucky 42223
Description of Request: Proficiency of foreign language skills is needed to maintain unit and individual soldier readiness. Each Special Forces soldier is required to practice linguistic skills two-hours per day to maintain skill level. Currently, students conduct language training in a World War II-era facility. The space is inadequate for the number of special operation soldiers receiving language training especially during periods of high attendance. An average student load of 212 students is anticipated. Fort Campbell receives $6.8 million for this project.
Distribution of funding:
Special Ops Language Training Facility 70%
Antiterrorism/Force Protection Measures 1%
Infrastructure (electric, water) 16%
Supervision, Inspection & Overhead 13%
Requesting Member: Rep. ZACH WAMP
Account: Surface Transportation Priorities
Legal Name Requesting Entity: City of Chattanooga's Enterprise Center
Address: 1250 Market Street, Suite 3020, Chattanooga, TN 37402
Description of Request: The City of Chattanooga's Enterprise Center requested funding to complete a feasibility study approved by Congress for a high speed maglev train between Atlanta, Chattanooga and Nashville. Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson Airport is the nation's busiest airport. A maglev train will relieve tremendous congestion in the Atlanta metro area and serve as part of a long needed ''intermodal mass transit system'' for the United States. Federal funding is needed for additional engineering work and development of a detailed financial plan, to include the number of riders and expected profits. The corridor is recommended by the State of Georgia's Joint Study Committee on Transportation Funding. The City of Chattanooga's Enterprise Center receives $750,000 to complete this study.
Distribution of funding:
Salaries, wages, benefits and taxes 23.85%
Professional Fee/Contractors 56%
Office Supplies and maintenance 4.65%
Travel/Conferences and Meetings 9.07%
Indirect Costs 6.43%
Requesting Member: Rep. ZACH WAMP
Account: Interstate Maintenance Discretionary
Legal Name Requesting Entity: City of Cleveland
Address: 190 Church Street NE, Cleveland, TN 37311
Description of Request: The Cleveland Mayor and City Council requested funding to redesign and construct Exit 20 on Interstate 75 to eliminate a dangerous bottleneck of traffic and widen a narrow bridge. This exit is the gateway to the Tri-State Exhibition Center, the Ocoee Recreation Region and the Cherokee National Forest, and is often excessively congested and unsafe for vehicles. A new exit and widened bridge will improve safety for travelers, truck drivers and community residents. The redesign will also facilitate new industrial and commercial growth in the area. The Mayor and City of Cleveland receives $1.2 million for this project.
Distribution of funding:
Right of way and utilities 100%
Requesting Member: Rep. ZACH WAMP
Account: Transportation Planning, Research and Development
Legal Name Requesting Entity: Oak Ridge National Laboratory
Address: 2360 Cherahala Boulevard, Knoxville, TN 37932
Description of Request: The National Transportation Research Center at Oak Ridge National Laboratory requested funding to examine how cutting edge technologies can be used to define real world driving conditions for advanced power train systems research. Building on past investments by the Oak Ridge National Laboratory and the University of Tennessee, this study will support existing research to increase automobile efficiency and safety and introduce new capabilities for advanced transportation for universities, the government and industry. Using these cutting edge technologies to test various combinations of engine components before building a prototype vehicle will save time and money in developing our nation's next generation of trucks, buses, military vehicles and passenger cars. Oak Ridge National Laboratory's National Transportation Research Center receives $250,000 for this research.

A TRIBUTE TO DAVID CALLAWAY

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS–

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of David Callaway, a clarinetist who has been described as nothing short of exhilarating. Mr. Callaway has captivated audiences throughout the U.S., England, France, Germany, Luxembourg, Switzerland, and Taiwan with this masterful virtuosity, expressiveness and musical inventiveness.

As an active educator, Mr. Callaway believes in the nurturing of young musicians, and has inspired future generations of music students through his teaching and mentoring. He is a former Fulbright Scholar to Taiwan, and specializes in the traditional Beiguan music of Taiwan.

Mr. Callaway has appeared with the Atlanta Opera Orchestra, Orlando Symphony, New York Philomusica, New Jersey Philharmonic, New Haven Opera, Sinfonia Celestis, Manhattan Virtuosi, Conductor's Institute Orchestra, and various ensembles at the Spoleto festival In Charleston, South Carolina. He has performed under the batons of such conductors as Kurt Masur, Jerzy Semkow, William Schuman, Julius Rudel, William Fred Scott, Zdenek Macal and David Gilbert. In addition, Mr. Callaway has worked with prominent composers John Corigliano, Donald Martino, Jacob Druckman, Ned Rorem and Karel Husa.

Equally accomplished as a recitalist and chamber musician, Mr. Callaway has performed at Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall, Alice Tully Hall, Merkin Concert Hall, Miller Theater at Columbia University and the Great Hall at Cooper Union. He is also an avid proponent of new music, and has performed the music of John Corigliano, Elloitt Carter, Edison Denisov, Luciano Berio, Steve Reich, Donald Martino, Joan Tower, Chou Wen-chung and Huang-Long Pan.

As a recipient of the William J. Fulbright Scholarship award, David Callaway traveled to Taiwan to research the traditional Beiguan Music of Taiwan and genealogy of the double-reed suona. He served on the Fulbright Committee, was a frequent advisor and mentor to Taiwanese Fulbright grantees, and appeared on the Central Broadcasting Station's radio show ''Life Unusual''.

David Callaway has most recently served on the clarinet faculty of the Juilliard School's Music Advancement Program in New York City, and has taught at Vassar and Bard Colleges, the Manhattan School of Music, and as guest teacher at Emory University.

He received his Doctor of Music Arts and Master of Music degrees from the Manhattan School of Music, and his Bachelor of Music degree from the University of South Carolina. His major teachers have included Ricardo Morales, David Krakauer, Doug Graham and Laura Ardan.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing David Callaway.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF VOICE OF AMERICA'S SERVICE TO UKRAINE

HON. SANDER M. LEVIN

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. LEVIN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 60th anniversary of Voice of America's service to Ukraine.

Created in the early days of the Cold War, Voice of America provides comprehensive, uncensored information to Ukrainians about world events and reinforces the importance of free speech, expression, and a free press. As the Soviet Union fell and Ukraine struggled to shake off the reins of communism, Voice of America continued to serve as a trustworthy, pro-democratic source of news. Its commentary and analysis were highly valued during the Orange Revolution of 2004, and remain so as the country prepares for its first presidential election since ushering in a new era of democratic governance.

Today, Voice of America reaches almost five million viewers across Ukraine each week with its television programming and maintains a Ukrainian-language website with up-to-date news reports. Ukrainians continue to rely on these services for accurate information about national and international events, as well as to learn more about American politics and culture.

Madam Speaker, Voice of America will celebrate its many contributions to Ukraine on December 11, 2009. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Voice of America, and its dedicated staff, for its six decades of service to Ukraine.

IN HONOR OF DOUGLAS J. FOLEY

HON. JOHN H. ADLER

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. ADLER of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to have this opportunity to express my gratitude to Mr. Douglas J. Foley for his dedicated and tireless service with the East Dover Fire Company in Toms River, NJ.

Mr. Foley has selflessly and bravely served the people of Toms River throughout his career and is retiring in January after a lifetime of service. After serving as vice-president of the company for the past eight years, he has made important improvements to the Fire Company and the safety of the town and its people.

I would like to thank Mr. Foley for his exemplary service. Thank you for all you have done and I wish you a Happy Retirement.

HONORING GRIFFIN HOSPITAL AS IT CELEBRATES ITS CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. DELAURO. Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to rise today to join all of those gathered to celebrate the centennial anniversary of Griffin Hospital. On December 9, 1909, Ralph Colonna, a worker at Ansonia Brass was the first patient admitted to Griffin Hospital and thus began its distinguished history of providing quality health services to the communities of the Lower Naugatuck Valley.

When Griffin Hospital first opened its doors, it held just twenty-four beds. Today, Griffin Hospital has grown into one of the most respected health institutions in the country. Its facilities cover hundreds of thousands of square feet and include the Griffin Imaging and Diagnostics Center, the Hewitt Ambulatory Pavilion, the Center for Cancer Care, the Yale Griffin Prevention Research Center, Childbirth Center, as well as the only hospital based hospice service in Connecticut. From Charles E. Clark, the hospital's first president, to today's President and Chief Executive Officer, Patrick Charmel, the unique vision of its strong leadership has allowed Griffin to expand its services to meet the changing needs of its patients and the community. In fact, in 2005, much in part because of Griffin's growing industry leadership position, Pat was appointed by the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services to the National Advisory Council for the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality.

Perhaps most important is the culture of care that surrounds Griffin Hospital. In 1992, Griffin adopted the Planetree patient-centered care philosophy—promoting the development and implementation of innovative models of healthcare that focus on health and nurturing body, mind, and soul. Just last year, Griffin became a ''Designated Planetree Patient-Centered Hospital'' which is the formal recognition of the hospital's achievement and innovation in fostering an organizational culture that prioritizes patient comfort, dignity, empowerment, and well-being. In following this patient-centered care philosophy, Griffin has also created an extraordinary work environment for all Griffin employees—reflected in its recent celebration of its tenth consecutive year on FORTUNE Magazine's ''100 Best Companies to Work For'' list.

Griffin Hospital not only provides outstanding care to its patients but also devotes programs and resources to benefit the greater community as well. The Valley Parish Nurse Program, which today serves thirty-five churches throughout the Lower Naugatuck Valley, provides health education, screening and referral services to a total of thirty-five thousand parishioners with a primary focus on outreach efforts to the underserved, minority, and low-income populations. Griffin also founded and sponsored the Healthy Valley project—the goal of which is to make the Valley a better place in which to live, work, raise a family, and enjoy life by measurably improving the quality of life and health of the community and its residents. Healthy Valley also focused on enhancing regional economic development by making the community a better place for businesses to relocate and expand as well as for their employees to live.

An industry leader in providing quality patient-centered care and understanding that their involvement is fundamental to the continued growth and prosperity of its surrounding communities, there are innumerable ways in which Griffin Hospital has made a difference. I am proud to stand today to congratulate the Board of Directors, administrators, and staff alike as they celebrate this very special occasion. Today, as they mark their centennial anniversary, they not only celebrate their past accomplishments but, as they have for the last one hundred years, they look to the future—to ensure that they continue to provide the best possible care to their patients and meet the ever-changing needs of our community. I wish them all the best for another century of success.

HONORING JOHN HARRIS

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate John Harris upon being awarded the ''Distinguished Citizen Award'' by the Sequoia Council, Boy Scouts of America. Mr. Harris will be honored on Tuesday, November 24, 2009 at a special luncheon at Harris Ranch.

Mr. John Harris was born and raised in Coalinga, California in the heart of the San Joaquin Valley. Mr. Harris attended and graduated from the University of California, Davis in 1965 with a Bachelors of Science degree in Agricultural Production/Agricultural Economics. While attending UC Davis, he was commissioned into the United States Army through the ROTC program.

Upon returning to the San Joaquin Valley, Mr. Harris began working on the family farm and ranch, Harris Farms. Harris Farms was founded in 1937 by Mr. Harris' parents, Jack and Teresa Harris. Over the years, the family business has grown to become one of the largest integrated farming operations in the Central San Joaquin Valley. The company produces over a dozen crops including almonds, citrus, tomatoes, lettuce, wine grapes and pistachios. The farm has also expanded to include Harris Ranch Beef Company, which is one of California's largest fed cattle processors, producing nearly two million pounds of beef per year.

In 1966, Mr. Harris and his father decided to devote a substantial part of the Harris Ranch farming and cattle operation to raising and training of Thoroughbred racehorses. The company provides six hundred acres to the Thoroughbreds and has bred and raced several of California's championship horses. In addition to the farm, the cattle ranch and the Thoroughbred Division, the Harris Company also has multiple restaurants and an inn. Today, with Mr. Harris serving as the Chairman of the Board for Harris Farms, the companies in total employ over fifteen hundred people and have gross sales exceeding three hundred million dollars.

Outside of operating Harris Farms, Mr. Harriss is involved with numerous organizations. He is a member of the board for the Water Growers Association and serves as Chair of the Water Committee. Mr. Harris also serves on the Board of Trustees of the Pacific Legal Foundation and is currently serving as Chair of Cattle PAC for the board of California Cattlemen's Association. He has been involved with the California Horse Racing Board since 2001 and is currently serving as Chairman of the board. Mr. Harris also serves on the boards of several agricultural related companies; including Sunny Cove Citrus, Los Gatos Tomato Products, Harris Woolf Almonds and California Thoroughbred Breeders Association.

Mr. Harris has worked with the Sequoia Council, Boy Scouts of America for almost twenty years, hosting an annual luncheon to benefit the chapter. The lunch supports the Scouting programs in western Fresno County and Kings County. His concern and dedication to the youth of our area and his love of Scouting has kept him working with the Sequoia Council, Boy Scouts of America and the growth of Scouting here in the San Joaquin Valley.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate John Harris upon being awarded the ''Distinguished Citizen Award.'' I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Mr. Harris many years of continued success.

A TRIBUTE TO WESTON SPROTT

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS–

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Mr. Weston Sprott who was appointed second trombone of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra in the Spring of 2005.

Mr. Sprott attended Indiana University before completing his Bachelor of Music degree at The Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. While a student at Curtis, Mr. Sprott held the positions of principal trombone in the Pennsylvania Ballet Orchestra (Philadelphia) and the Deleware Symphony Orchestra. He was the founding member of the Texas Trombone Octet, a group that won the Emory Remington competition and was featured in concert at the International Trombone Festival in Helsinki, Finland.

Mr. Sprott has worked under the baton of many of the world's great conductors including Sir Simon Rattle, James Levine, Kurt Masur, Lorin Maazel, Christoph Eschenbach, Andre Previn and numerous others. Mr. Sprott was recently featured in the documentary film ''A Wayfarer's Journey: Listening to Mahler'' with actor Richard Dreyfuss and actress Kathleen Chalfant. He was also a performer in the film ''Rittenhouse Square,'' a documentary under the direction of Robert Downey that played in major film festivals throughout the United States to critical acclaim. In September 2007, Mr. Sprott made his Carnegie Hall solo debut performing Lars Erik-Larsson's concertino in Weill Recital Hall at the invitation of the Bulgarian Consulate. Other engagements have led to performances with gospel and jazz artists such as Branford Marsalis, Take 6 and Donnie McClurkin. Mr. Sprott's performances and interviews have been seen and heard on various TV and radio shows such as: PBS' Great Performances, NPR's Performance Today, and Sirius Satellite Radio.

In demand as a soloist and master class clinician, Mr. Sprott has been a featured guest artist at several of America's leading conservatories and universities. He is currently on the faculty at the Purchase College Conservatory and Julliard's Music Advancement Program, and he previously served on the faculty of The New School University, a division of the Mannes School of Music in New York City. Weston Sprott is an artist/clinician for the Edwards Instrument Company and Music. He performs exclusively on Edwards's trombones and Greg Black mouthpieces.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing Mr. Weston Sprott.

20TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CONGRESSIONAL SPORTSMEN CAUCUS AND CONGRESSIONAL SPORTSMEN FOUNDATION

HON. DAN BOREN

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. BOREN. Madam Speaker, as House Co-Chair of the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus and lifelong sportsman, I hereby recognize the 20th Anniversary of the founding of the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus and the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation. The Foundation was officially incorporated 20 years ago this week on December 7, 1989.

On behalf of the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus and the millions of hunters and anglers across the country, congratulations to the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation on 20 years of successfully supporting the Caucus in advancing pro-sportsmen hunting, fishing, and conservation issues in the United States Congress.

The Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation is the most trusted organization focused on issues of importance to this nation's sporting heritage and serves as the most critical link between sportsmen and women and the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus. The sportsmen and women of America can be proud of the long standing partnership between the Caucus and Foundation in accomplishing many legislative victories on their behalf.

Since its inception, the bipartisan Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus has grown into one of the largest and most effective caucuses in the United States Congress with nearly 300 members representing almost all 50 states. With bipartisan leadership in both the House and the Senate, the Caucus is the sportsmen's ally and first line of defense in Washington promoting and protecting the rights of hunters, trappers and anglers.

With the success of the CSC/CSF partnership, the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation created a network of state legislative sportsmen's caucuses modeled after the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus in 2004, launching the National Assembly of Sportsmen's Caucuses (NASC). Currently with 38 state legislative sportsmen's caucuses and nearly 2,000 legislators, the NASC facilitates the interaction and idea exchange among state caucus leaders and the outdoor community.

Earlier this year the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation launched the Governors Sportsmen's Caucus to facilitate communication and information exchange among a bipartisan team of state chief executives in support of legislation and regulations that promote and protect hunting and fishing. Guided by a bipartisan leadership team of governors and staffed through the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation, the GSC further enhances the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus and the National Assembly of Sportsmen's Caucuses.

The combination of the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus, the National Assembly of Sportsmen's Caucuses, and the Governor's Sportsmen's Caucus, working side-by-side with the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation, serves as an unprecedented network of pro-sportsmen elected officials that promote and protect the agenda of America's hunters and anglers.

The Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus and Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation looks back fondly on the accomplishments of the last 20 years and now looks forward to continuing the work of protecting America's hunters and anglers in the future.

HONORING DR. FLOYD E. ''JACK'' BOWLING

HON. JOHN J. DUNCAN, JR.

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. DUNCAN. Madam Speaker, today I wish to pay tribute and celebrate the long and successful life of one of my District's most devoted community leaders and academics.

Dr. Floyd E. ''Jack'' Bowling recently passed away at the age of 98. Dr. Bowling was beloved in Athens, Tennessee, one of the finest communities in the State. For the past 50 years, he called Athens home and fullheartedly devoted his time to bettering his beloved Tennessee Wesleyan College.

Dr. Bowling served Tennessee Wesleyan College not only as a teacher and administrator but also as its most important fundraiser and benefactor.

His impact on the college is evident as one strolls its beautiful campus. He had a special passion for athletics, and through Dr. Bowling's own donations and fundraising, he was almost solely responsible for Tennessee Wesleyan College's new baseball field and stadium, which rightfully bears his name.

He was also greatly responsible for the school's tennis complex and gym bleachers and used his own money to create the college's first computer lab.

Everyone had the deepest admiration and respect for Dr. Bowling. Great communities and institutions of higher education around the Nation are made so only by selfless and devoted persons like Dr. Bowling.

The current President of Tennessee Wesleyan College, Steve Condon, recently told the Daily Post Athenian Newspaper, ''Virtually everything he touched, every person he engaged, every project he attempted and every colleague and student he mentored was better off because of his light. He was a gift from God to all of us.''

We can all only strive to be remembered in such a way.

Dr. Bowling's service was not confined to Tennessee Wesleyan College's campus. He has long been a supporter of the McMinn Living Heritage Museum and United Way of McMinn and Meigs Counties. He also served as president of the Kiwanis Club, where he was a longtime member.

Madam Speaker, the passing of Dr. Floyd E. ''Jack'' Bowling is a tremendous loss for the Athens community, Tennessee Wesleyan College, his family and many friends, and the multiple causes he has championed over the years. I call his service to the attention of my colleagues and other readers of the RECORD and thank him for being an example to us all.

A TRIBUTE TO GILLEYAN J. HARGROVE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS–

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Gilleyan J. Hargrove.

Gilleyan was born and raised in Brooklyn, NY. She received her early education at the public schools of Brooklyn, New York. Her education continued at Syracuse University, where she received a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology and African American Studies in 1989. Gilleyan then attended graduate school at Binghamton University of New York, receiving a Master's of Science in Education in 1991. She received her administration and supervision license from the College of Saint Rose in 2002.

Gilleyan has always had a love for school and learning new things. She has been an educator for 18 years beginning her work as an elementary school teacher at Community School 21 in Brooklyn and then as an assistant principal at the Program for Pregnant Students in Brooklyn. Gilleyan currently serves as principal at the Granville T. Woods Middle School for Science and Technology in Crown Heights, Brooklyn, where providing students with access to a quality education and a safe environment remains a priority. Gilleyan believes as an educator she has a charge to keep and a God to glorify.

Gilleyan also is a proud lifetime member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. She is married to Eric M. Hargrove and they have two children, a daughter, Brianne Ashley and son, Tyler Robert.

Following in the spiritual foundation set before her by her late grandmother Mary Rose Blowe Couch and mother, Elaine Couch Hinds, Gilleyan has served God for 30 years as a member of Wayside Baptist Church, where her spiritual father and mentor, the late Pastor Joe L. Parker, taught her how to love the Lord. Currently, Gilleyan is a member of Bethlehem Baptist Church where her Pastor is Reverend Larry W. Camp.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing Gilleyan J. Hargrove.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. MICHAEL K. SIMPSON

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. SIMPSON. Madam Speaker, in accordance with the policies and standards put forth by the House Appropriations Committee and the GOP Leadership, I place in the RECORD a listing of the congressionally-directed projects I requested in my home State of Idaho that are contained in the Conference Report accompanying H.R. 3288, the FY2010 Consolidated Appropriations Act.

DIVISION A—FY2010 TRANSPORTATION, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Project Name: Buses and Bus Facilities, Idaho Transit Coalition

Amount Received: $1,000,000

Account: FTA/Buses and Bus Facilities

Recipient: Community Transportation Association of Idaho

Recipient's Street Address: 10480 Garverdale Court, Bldg. 4, Ste. 804A, Boise, ID 83704

Description: Funding for this project will be used to support essential transit systems in rural and urban areas of the State of Idaho. This project meets the criteria of the FTA's Section 5209 Capital Program and has been funded by the Committee since FY 2002.

Project Name: Custer County Economic Development Initiative in Custer County, ID

Amount Received: $500,000

Account: HUD/EDI

Recipient: Custer County, ID

Recipient's Street Address: 802 Main Street, Challis, ID 83226

Description: At almost 5,000 square miles, Custer County is larger than three states, and it has just over 4,000 people. Unfortunately, it is burdened with a high proportion of public lands with over 95 percent of the county's 3.4 million acres administered by federal agencies. The county's tax base, or more specifically the lack thereof, is inadequate to support the services required for such an expansive county. This grossly disproportionate public ownership causes a severe strain on their resources. Funding would be used to construct a community center which would serve a number of purposes for the county.

Project Name: I–84, Broadway to Gowen Road Widening, Boise, ID

Amount Received: $400,000

Account: FHWA/Interstate Maintenance Discretionary

Recipient: Idaho Transportation Department

Recipient's Street Address: 3311 West State Street, Boise, ID 83707

Description: This project will add a third east and westbound lane to I–84 between Broadway Avenue and Gowen Road on I–84. The FY10 earmark will fund the design of this project. The project will be ready for construction in FY11 in conjunction with the Connecting Idaho—GARVEE, bonding—projects in this area. This project is required to alleviate congestion and safety issues caused by the continued fast growth in the Treasure Valley. This project is included in the I–84 Boise Corridor Study adopted by the Idaho Transportation and Community Planning Association of Southwest Idaho, COMPASS, Boards in October of 2001 and part of the COMPASS Regional 2030 Long Range Transportation Plan, approved in 2006.

Project Name: Trail Creek Highway/Forest Highway 66 Reconstruction, Mackay, ID

Amount Received: $3,750,000

Account: FHWA/Public Lands Highways

Recipient: Lost River Highway District

Recipient's Street Address: 213 South McCaleb, Mackay, ID 83251

Description: Trail Creek Highway/Forest Highway 66 runs through the Salmon-Challis National Forest from U.S. Highway 93 west to Sun Valley, Idaho. The road is maintained entirely by the Lost River Highway District and includes 17 miles of unpaved road that is used extensively for commerce and recreational purposes by tourists and homeowners. The high traffic volume—500 cars per day and expected to grow—and poor road conditions cause safety concerns for those traveling along the highway. Funds would be used to complete study and design work and upgrade the road by paving 5.5 miles of gravel road from the end of existing pavement near the West Bartlett Point Road—MP 11.750—to the Copper Basin Turn-off, MP 17.250.

DIVISION B—FY2010 COMMERCE, JUSTICE, SCIENCE AND RELATED AGENCIES

Project Name: Boise Center Aerospace Laboratory, BCAL, Watershed Modeling Utilizing LiDAR at Idaho State University

Amount Requested: $500,000

Account: Department of Commerce NOAA

Recipient: Idaho State University

Recipient's Street Address: 921 South 8th Avenue Stop 8007, Pocatello, Idaho 83209

Description: ISU's Department of Geosciences has developed free spatial analysis tools available to the public for remote sensing and geographic information sciences, GIS. The remote sensing tools include a downloadable toolbox for analyzing light detection and ranging, LiDAR, data. LiDAR is an imaging method using a laser mounted on an aircraft to determine precise vertical information, topography, of the earth's surface—15 cm precision. Commonly, this information is translated into high-resolution digital elevation models, DEMs. LiDAR can provide both a bare earth surface and the vegetated—or built—surface. LiDAR can also provide topographic data below water. Specifically to the concern of NOAA and the State of Idaho, LiDAR can provide up to date and precise flood plain maps for rivers with built environments—such as the Boise River—to guide decisions on flood insurance coverage and land use restrictions. These predictive maps can also aid in evacuation of people and livestock during an impending flood. This project will leverage existing infrastructure and expertise at ISU to develop state-of-the-art watershed modeling tools for NOAA and other federal agencies. These tools will enable better management of watersheds through improved topographic analyses for prediction of runoff, floods, and water storage capacity. Hyperspectral analysis—soils and vegetation—will be coupled with the LiDAR data for a full characterization, spectrally and spatially of the landscape. These analyses will allow for studies of vegetation structure, dependence of vegetation, soils, and earth processes, e.g. fire, erosion, on topology—slope and aspect, drainages, surface roughness. The goal of this research and its resulting algorithms and tools is to significantly benefit NOAA in its ability to convert LiDAR data into usable derivative datasets for environmental and safety applications in Idaho and elsewhere.

Project Name: Idaho Meth Project

Amount Requested: $1,000,000

Account: Department of Justice COPS Meth

Recipient: Idaho Meth Project

Recipient's Street Address: 304 N. 8th Street, Room 446, Boise, Idaho 83702

Description: Methamphetamine trafficking and abuse in Idaho has been on the rise over the past few years and, as a result, meth is having a devastating impact in many communities throughout Idaho. Meth is the number one illegal drug of choice in Idaho and the State's leading drug problem. The financial and social consequences of meth abuse in Idaho are devastating. It is a contributing cause for much of the crime in Idaho, costs millions of dollars in productivity, contributes to the ever increasing prison populations and adversely impacts families. The Idaho Meth Project is a large-scale, statewide prevention and public awareness program designed to reduce the prevalence of first-time methamphetamine abuse in Idaho by influencing attitudes through high-impact advertising. The Idaho Meth Project is focused solely upon prevention and, to achieve this goal, is active in three areas: public service messaging, community action and public policy. This includes a pervasive media campaign reaching the target population through TV, radio, billboards, print, and the Internet.

Project Name: Idaho State Police to participate in the Criminal Information Sharing Affiance Network, CISAnet

Amount Requested: $500,000

Account: Department of Justice COPS Law Enforcement Technology

Recipient: Idaho State Police

Recipient's Street Address: 700 South Stratford, Meridian, Idaho 83642

Description: In 2006, the Idaho State Police, ISP, developed and deployed, on a limited basis, a web-based Case Investigative System, CIS. This tool allows investigators to collect, use and share critical law enforcement information across the state. CISAnet provides a bi-directional information-sharing network within and between state and local law enforcement agencies. CISAnet provides ISP and law enforcement across Idaho with real time access to criminal intelligence information shared by law enforcement partner agencies within the states of Alabama, Arizona, California, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. This ten state area is regarded as one of the most vulnerable to our Nation's security—a ''soft spot'' through which illegal Mexican immigrants filter, illegal drug trafficking passes and terrorists move freely. It is believed that securing this porous border with Mexico is an effective way to protect American citizens. The CISAnet system provides an effective means for law enforcement agencies to share information across state lines on known or suspected criminal activity. Together, access to CISAnet, Idaho's Fusion Center and remote access to CIS will ensure that Idaho state and local law enforcement officers have the best information available in a timely manner. In today's environment, these systems are an effective way to monitor illegal drug and terrorist activity and identify, target and locate potential terrorists. These systems are important components of an overall prevention strategy and are crucial to protecting the citizens of Idaho and the United States' homeland security. The Criminal Information Sharing Alliance network, CISAnet, FY2010 federal funding will be used to continue the integration of CIS into the CISAnet infrastructure, to expand its capabilities by adding a Geo coding module and by integrating CIS, RMS and CISAnet into Idaho's Criminal Intelligence Center.

Project Name: NCOMS Medical and Mental Health Sharing Software Development

Amount Requested: $500,000

Account: Department of Justice Byrne Discretionary Grants

Recipient: Idaho Department of Corrections

Recipient's Street Address: 1299 North Orchard, Suite 110, Boise, Idaho 83706.

Description: States are legally mandated to provide appropriate medical care to incarcerated individuals. These funds will be used to create, modularize and implement the medical/mental health module for the National Consortium of Offender Management Systems, NCOMS. This technology will allow public safety organizations that house offenders to track and record the medical information to ensure that offenders receive proper medical treatment.

DIVISION C—FY2010 FINANCIAL SERVICES AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT

Project Name: Proof of Concept Center

Amount Received: $285,000

Account: Small Business Administration Salaries and Expenses

Recipient: Idaho TechConnect Inc.

Recipient's Street Address: 5465 E. Terra Linda Way, Nampa, ID 83687

Description: Idaho TechConnect was created as a state-wide private-public cooperation that would bridge the gaps in the state's innovation pipeline. The Idaho TechConnect Proof of Concept Center will manage innovations from early stage projects to the launch of a viable start-up business or to license the product or service to an existing business. The Proof of Concept Center will work with new and existing businesses as well as the state's colleges and universities and the INL to create new commercial products, goods and services. Concepts will be vetted to ensure significant and efficient marketability and commercialization. These concepts will then be relegated to teams/existing businesses to build or expand successful and profitable businesses. The Center will provide assistance with business models, intellectual property strategy, and access to capital, resulting in more ideas becoming products, creating jobs and companies. During these challenging economic times, this funding will assist businesses and public entities in their efforts to mature their innovative ideas into market-ready products and services to strengthen the economy of Idaho and the region.

Project Name: Research and Economic Development and Entrepreneurial Initiative

Amount Received: $400,000

Account: Small Business Administration Salaries and Expenses

Recipient: Boise State University

Recipient's Street Address: 1910 University Drive, Boise, ID 83725–1135.

Description: Boise State University will establish research partnerships with business and governmental agencies to aid and assist businesses in an effort to preserve free market enterprise and to maintain and strengthen the local and regional economy. The federal funds being requested will be used to match private and public sector dollars and in-kind contributions to conduct collaborative research that spurs intellectual innovation, creates jobs, and ultimately leads to the benefit and growth of the business community. The funds will also be used to develop the necessary infrastructure to mine, protect, and assess the commercialization potential of the intellectual property that is developed as a result of these efforts. A healthy businesses climate is critical to the economic strength of the state of Idaho, the region and the nation. The innovation and entrepreneurial spirit that originates from this sector will help the United States compete in today's global marketplace.

DIVISION D—FY 2010 LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION AND RELATED AGENCIES

Project Name: Bear Lake Memorial Hospital Addition and Remodel

Amount Received: $300,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: Bear Lake Memorial Hospital

Recipient's Address: 164 South 5th Street, Montpelier, Idaho 83254

Description: The Bear Lake Memorial Hospital is a key service provider to all individuals and plays a vital role in the community, as well as provides services to the popular Bear Lake recreation area. The current Emergency Department lacks sufficient space for a waiting room for emergency room patrons. It also fails to meet HIPPA compliance because of a lack of privacy for patients due to a high-use public hallway dissecting the two emergency room locations. In addition, the current diagnostic imaging facilities are scattered throughout the hospital, which makes it more difficult to provide timely and efficient care. By consolidating the services into one wing, the hospital will be able to provide improved patient care and increase overall staff efficiency. Funding provided would be used for the design and construction of a new addition as well as a renovation of the existing facilities in the Emergency Department and Diagnostic Imaging Department.

Project Name: College of Southern Idaho's Pro-Tech Training Program

Amount Received: $200,000

Account: Department of Education Higher Education

Recipient: College of Southern Idaho

Recipient's Address: 315 Falls Avenue, Twin Falls, ID 83303–1238

Description: This program will enable the College to partner with other agencies to identify training needs and to identify potential candidates for employment. Data provided by Region IV of the State of Idaho Economic Development Agency indicate that manufacturing will be a leading employment area in the Magic Valley and the state of Idaho with over 250 new jobs expected over the next two years. Current trends in manufacturing development necessitate the need for in-depth training in the technological aspects of the design, fabrication, and manufacturing phases of production. CSI is participating in a joint educational venture with Twin Falls High School and local industry that creates a pre-engineering academy at the high school and a Computerized Numeric Controls, CNC/Industrial Networking Program at the college campus. The Pro-Tech program involves students from grade levels 10–14, and allows the students to move from high school into a two-year program at CSI or into an engineering program at one of Idaho's four-year institutions. At the secondary school level, students learn the basics of computer-assisted design, design physics, and fabrication, with each course offering alighted to the program at CSI through either tech prep or dual credit affiliation. At the post-secondary level students will receive industry-standard training in CNC, automated logic, and industrial networking. This program will train students to meet the educational requirements needed to enable them to enter the high demand fields of the hi-tech manufacturing and engineering sectors.

Project Name: Custer County Purchase of Medical Equipment

Amount Received: $400,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: Custer County

Recipient's Address: 801 East Main Avenue, Challis, ID 83226

Description: At almost 5,000 square miles, Custer County is larger than three states yet has just over 4,000 people. Unfortunately, it is burdened with a high proportion of public lands with over 95 percent of the county's 3.4 million acres administered by federal agencies. The county's tax base, or more specifically the lack thereof, is inadequate to support the services required for such an expansive county. This grossly disproportionate public ownership causes a severe strain on their resources, including their ability to provide access to health services. The influx of tourism and visitors due to the nearby U.S. Forest Service, BLM, recreation and wilderness areas leads to an increased rate of trauma and accidents, placing a large burden on the county. The EMT services and health clinics in the County are in need of renovation and modernization of equipment. This funding would be used to purchase the much needed equipment and technology for the clinics and EMT services in Custer County.

Project Name: Idaho Caring Foundation for Children for dental services for low-income children

Amount Received: $300,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: Idaho Caring Foundation for Children

Recipient's Address: 1211 W. Myrtle, Suite 110, Boise, ID 83702

Description: According to the 2000 U.S. Surgeon General's report, ''Oral Health in America'', tooth decay is the single most common chronic childhood disease. As a dentist, I understand the importance of proper dental hygiene at a very young age. Poor oral health can affect a child's self-esteem, ability to eat, appearance and ability to communicate. School attendance can also be negatively impacted. Over 35 percent of Idaho children lack dental insurance, which serves as a major deterrent in accessing and receiving needed dental care. According to Idaho Department of Health and Welfare 2005 Smile Survey, 27 percent of Idaho children in grades K–6 had untreated decay. Low-income, uninsured children suffer the greatest incidence of dental decay because their families lack the financial resources to receive regular dental care. The Idaho Caring Foundation will provide access to needed dental services for 600 low-income, uninsured Idaho children. These services will be provided by our network of 140 Idaho dentists from across the state. Eligible children will be identified by working in partnership with Idaho schools, Head Start programs, and other children's programs, such as the YMCA and the Boys & Girls Clubs.

Project Name: Idaho Early Literacy Project

Amount Received: $350,000

Account: Department of Education Elementary and Secondary Education

Recipient: Lee Pesky Learning Center

Recipient's Address: 3324 Elder Street, Boise, ID 83705.

Description: The aim of the Idaho Early Literacy Project is to ensure that all children in Idaho are ready to read when they enter school. Stage III includes utilization of the research-based booklets, ''Every Child Ready to Read and Every Child Ready for Math'', an integrated approach to reading and mathematical literacy, the training of child care providers statewide, both live and on-line, and a direct intervention with parents and children. The training of child care providers includes a face-to-face approach in larger population centers and an on-line approach for remote rural locations. Stage III builds on early literacy training models implemented in 2008–2010 by unifying reading and mathematical literacy and by strengthening the intervention with parents and children. As such, the project assures that pre-school children will receive direct literacy education from child care providers and in special workshops with their parents, creating the ''language rich'' upbringing necessary to success in school.

Project Name: Idaho SySTEMic Solution

Amount Received: $400,000

Account: Department of Education Elementary and Secondary Education

Recipient: Boise State University

Recipient's Address: 1910 University Drive, Boise, ID 83725–1135

Description: Idaho SySTEMic Solution is a nationally relevant, hands-on, project-based STEM learning system (science, technology, engineering, & math) designed to spur achievement and confidence among elementary-age learners and their teachers. Proven methods show that long-term student achievement and interest in STEM can be dramatically improved by introducing systemic, contiguous, and engaging hands-on activities at an elementary level before children develop misconceptions, gender bias, math anxiety, or become distracted by cultural influences prevalent at puberty. In 2010 the project will extend into middle school grades where the need for hands-on activities is even greater. Key project components include a comprehensive, continuing teacher training model that includes a one-week summer institute and ongoing site-based follow-up training to boost the ability and confidence of elementary and middle school teachers; implementation into demographically diverse schools of curriculum-aligned learning lab systems that have been shown to improve student scores in math, science, and technology; and research and evaluation of results in accordance with Idaho and national assessment standards.

Project Name: Madison County Memorial Hospital Renovation

Amount Received: $350,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: Madison County Memorial Hospital

Recipient's Address: 450 East Main, Rexburg, ID 83440

Description: Madison Memorial Hospital will initiate the implementation of the Electronic Medical Record, EMR, System into Physician Clinics that feed into Madison Memorial Hospital. Information from the EMR helps the clinician make informed decisions. As the patient status is entered into this EMR, the information increases staff efficiencies through faster transcription times, nursing notes, lab results, radiology and other electronic sources. This system will make it easier for physicians and clinicians to comply with all regulations by enabling them to keep their records up to date. Patient safety will be increased by developing a paperless electronic medical record environment where clinical information can be readily shared via electronic transactions with all entities within the Madison Memorial Hospital network.

Project Name: Purchase of Biochemistry and Microbiology Laboratory Equipment

Amount Received: $400,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: Idaho State University

Recipient's Address: 921 South 8th Avenue, Stop 8007, Pocatello, ID 83209–8007

Description: Modern instrumentation is essential to improving both the Biochemistry and Microbiology programs at Idaho State University, ISU. This request will enable the purchase of the required instrumentation needed for courses in biochemistry courses, chemistry laboratories, and microbiology and biology courses. More than 400 students per year would gain access to state of the art instrumentation through this request, improving both the quality of their educational experience and the quality of research in these scientific fields that can be pursued.

Project Name: St. Luke's Regional Medical Center's Children Health Services Expansion

Amount Received: $350,000

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration Health Facilities and Services

Recipient: St. Luke's Regional Medical Center Ltd

Recipient's Address: 190 E. Bannock Street, Boise, ID 83712

Description: St. Luke's Health System is home to the only Children's Hospital in Idaho, providing unique full-service tertiary pediatric services between Salt Lake City, Utah, and Portland, Oregon, both more than 350 miles from Boise, Idaho. St. Luke's delivers over 25 percent of the babies born in the State. The Children's Health Services Expansion project provides an essential increase in capacity for Pediatric Medical/Surgical, Pediatric Intensive Care, Neonatal Intensive Care, Pediatric Oncology, and Pediatric Surgical Suites and support area, to meet the needs of the rapidly growing population in the hospital's service area. Prior to the beginning of this multi-year project, each area was frequently full, requiring children to be placed in adult units or diverted to other and often very distant hospitals. The federal funding provided for the expansion project has resulted in expanding all units with state-of-the-art facilities and equipment. Funding received will assist with the purchase of equipment, including electronic medical record hardware and software programs and patient monitor technology for patient support and EMR connectivity to be used in the Medical/Surgical Pediatrics, Pediatric and Neonatal Intensive Care, Oncology, Surgical Suites and support areas. The hospital is spending millions on the expansion and federal funds will represent only a small portion of the project's total costs.

Project Name: Twin Falls Library Modernization Project

Amount Received: $100,000

Account: Museums and Libraries in the Institute of Museums and Library Services

Recipient: City of Twin Falls

Recipient's Address: 201 Fourth Avenue East, Twin Falls, ID 83301

Description: The Twin Falls Public Library seeks to obtain a fully searchable database for it local historical newspapers. The Library has on 709 reels of microfilm of local newspapers from 1904 to the present. It is difficult to use the microfilm because of its deteriorating physical condition and outdated format. There is no index; if an exact date is not known, patrons must browse through the microfilm by hand, which is very inefficient. These funds will be used to digitize and index 709 reels of microfilm of the local newspaper dating from 1904 through 2008. The searchable database will replace the deteriorating microfilm with a searchable format allowing patrons to search articles, pictures, and advertisements by keyword; view information in its historical context; preserve the look and feel of the original format; and print or email articles, photos, or ads of interest. The reference staff will be able to serve the community more effectively, both on-site and remotely, by digitizing and indexing the microfilm. This newspaper database will be an historical asset to library patrons and will provide an accessible and unique service to the community.

DIVISION E—FY2010 MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AND VETERANS AFFAIRS

Project Name: Civil Engineer Maintenance Complex at Mountain Home Air Force Base

Amount Received: $690,000

Account: Air Force Military Construction Account

Recipient: 366th Wing, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho

Recipient's Street Address: 366 Gunfighter Avenue, Ste 107, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho 83648

Description: The civil engineer functions are currently dispersed among 10 WWII-era wood-frame and Korean War-era facilities. Wood frame facilities have a RAC 2 due to failing roof structures and cracked and spreading concrete foundations that have contributed to failing floors and trusses, presenting risk to squadron members who work in the facilities. Currently, employees must evacuate during heavy snowfall or high winds. The fire safety deficiencies are endemic to all buildings, the patchwork electric wiring is maxed out, which increases fire risk, and the HVAC systems can't keep buildings heated and cooled. The dispersed locations and failing conditions of existing facilities adversely affects all daily Civil Engineering operations and negatively impacts the Wing's mission. This funding will be used for planning and design.

Project Name: Logistics Readiness Center

Amount Received: $20,000,000

Account: Air Force Military Construction Account

Recipient: 366th Wing, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho

Recipient's Street Address: 366 Gunfighter Avenue, Ste 107, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho 83648

Description: The existing Logistics Supply is a condemned 53-year-old wooden structure beyond economical repair. The roof is held up with temporary structural supports. The building is evacuated and now 60 percent of base supply functions operate from temporary spaces across base, creating significant delays in troop/equipment mobilization. This negatively impacts the Wing's ability to demolish and relocate from other substandard facilities on base. When funded, the Logistics Readiness Center will provide command and control for all materials in-bound and outbound, including freight processing, packing, crating, pallet buildup shop, and provide bulk and bin storage. The facility will also support secure storage, an armory, and have administrative areas.

I appreciate the opportunity to provide a list of congressionally-directed projects in my district that have received funding in the Conference Report accompanying H.R. 3288, the FY2010 Consolidated Appropriations Act and provide an explanation of my support for them.

COMMEMORATING THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF VOICE OF AMERICA IN UKRAINE

HON. ROBERT WEXLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. WEXLER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 60th anniversary of Voice of America's Ukrainian Service, which is on December 11, 2009.

As members of Congress know, Voice of America is the largest U.S. international broadcaster and plays a critically important role globally, broadcasting 1,500 hours a week of programming through various media forms spanning news, information, and educational and cultural topics, and reaching an audience of over 130 million people worldwide. Since 1942, Voice of America has filled a critical gap in regions of the world where freedom of the press is limited or does not exist.

Today, Voice of America facilitates the free-flow of information globally. It is particularly important in Ukraine, where Voice of America will be celebrating its 60 years of service.

Voice of America has been essential to advancing democratic freedoms through the free-flow of information and supporting the development of democratic institutions in Eastern Europe, including Ukraine. On the front lines of international broadcasting, VOA has provided a critical outlet for the dissemination of free, uncensored news and information throughout Ukraine in multiple languages and formats. Today close to five million Ukrainians access Voice of America's services each week. VOA's Ukrainian broadcasts have also provided valuable information to the Ukrainian people as they continue their political, economic, and democratic reform efforts and build a stronger civil society.

Today there are still many countries that do not enjoy freedom of the Press, which is an essential component of a functioning and successful democracy. Unconscionably there are governments that continue to deny their populations this basic liberty, creating conditions in which media and members of the press face censorship, intimidation, persecution, or far worse.

Voice of America is essential to American and international efforts to change the dynamics of press freedom and human rights. To that end, I want to praise VOA and its dedicated staff that have worked diligently in Ukraine, and around the globe, to promote and facilitate the free and unfettered flow of information, opinions, and ideas.

Once again, I commend Voice of America on its 60 years of promoting freedom of information in Ukraine. I also want to congratulate VOA Ukrainian Service for its efforts and leadership in successfully fulfilling VOA's core mission to "promote freedom and democracy and to enhance understanding through multimedia communication of accurate, objective, balanced news, information, and other programming about America and the world to audiences overseas."

A TRIBUTE TO HERO K. TAMAKLOE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Hero K. Tamakloe who emigrated from Togo in 1988. Mr. Tamakloe has held many jobs in New York. He's worked as a cab driver, and interned with Woodhull Hospital after working on behalf of the Togo Embassy at the United Nations. Finally, after attending York College, majoring in economics, Mr. Tamakloe decided to apply for work as a teacher with the Department of Education.

Tamakloe was assigned to P.S. 95 Q in Hollis as a substitute teacher, where he worked for two years before taking over YMCA of Greater New York's "Virtual Y" program which serves over 300 students in an after school program. Currently, Mr. Tamakloe is a YMCA of Greater New York employee and is assigned to DYCD (Department of Youth & Community Development) at New York City Housing Authority Beacon Satellite at Bushwick-Hylan and Sumner Community centers in the North Brooklyn area.

Mr. Tamakloe is regarded as one of the strongest off-site YMCA after school Directors in New York City, a reputation complimented by the awards he received. Mr. Tamakloe credits the staff, parents, teachers, mentors and volunteers who helped him to keep the After School and Beacon Programs running smoothly.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the aptly named Hero K. Tamakloe.

IN PRAISE OF THE TRANSATLANTIC LEGISLATORS' DIALOGUE MEETINGS HELD LAST WEEKEND IN NEW YORK CITY

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Speaker, I would like to call the attention of my colleagues in the Congress to a successful meeting of the Transatlantic Legislators' Dialogue, TLD, in New York City from December 4–7, 2009. Chairwoman SHELLEY BERKLEY led a strong bipartisan delegation, which included Vice-Chairman CLIFF STEARNS, Vice-Chairman JIM COSTA, GARY ACKERMAN, XAVIER BECERRA, DENNIS CARDOZA, JOHN DUNCAN, Jr., ELIOT ENGEL, VIRGINIA FOXX, BART GORDON, JAY INSLEE, SHEILA JACKSON-LEE, RON KLEIN and LORETTA SANCHEZ. I wish to recognize these members for their thoughtful contributions to an informed and productive exchange of views with Members of the European Parliament.

The Transatlantic Legislators' Dialogue serves as the formal response of the European Parliament and the U.S. Congress to the commitment in the New Transatlantic Agenda of 1995 to enhance legislative ties between the European Union and the United States. The TLD involves biannual meetings between American and European legislators in order to foster transatlantic discourse and exchange views on topics of mutual interest. Given the recent adoption of the Lisbon Treaty and the additional powers it provides to the European Parliament, it is even more important that legislators engage in this dialogue in order to seek joint solutions to the pressing issues facing citizens on both sides of the Atlantic.

Participants at the New York meeting held extensive discussions about the financial crisis and international trade. The debate was informed by presentations from the Obama administration, including Michael Froman, Deputy National Security Adviser for International Economic Affairs, and Mark Sobel, Acting Assistant Secretary for International Affairs at Treasury. The TLD emphasized the need for a strong and coordinated transatlantic policy response, while reiterating the importance of the Transatlantic Economic Council, TEC, as a framework for cooperation.

Considerable attention was paid to foreign policy issues. TLD participants engaged in vigorous debate about the Middle East, hearing the administration's perspective from Jeffrey Feltman, Assistant Secretary for Near Eastern Affairs. Other foreign policy debates focused on Afghanistan and Pakistan, the Iranian nuclear threat, relations with Russia, and the Balkans. These deliberations were further enhanced by the delegation's meetings on the final day of the TLD at the United Nations with Ambassador Susan Rice and Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs B. Lynn Pascoe.

In addition, the delegates talked about the challenge of climate change and energy security with Jon Wellinghoff, Chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. They also discussed a range of civil liberties issues, including American travel regulations and President Obama's efforts to close Guantanamo.

In conclusion, I submit the joint statement that was agreed upon by American and European legislators at the 67th TLD meeting held in New York. This document emphasizes the importance of continued transatlantic dialogue and cooperation in jointly addressing current financial and foreign policy challenges

TRANSATLANTIC LEGISLATORS' DIALOGUE, 67TH MEETING OF DELEGATIONS FROM THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS, JOINT STATEMENT

(By Shelley Berkley, Cliff Stearns, Jim Costa, Elmar Brok, Sarah Ludford, and Niki Tzavela)

We, the Members of the European Parliament and the United States House of Representatives, held our 67th Interparliamentary meeting (Transatlantic Legislators' Dialogue) in New York City, from 4–7 December 2009.

Building on the joint statement issued following our last meeting in Prague on 18–20 April 2009, we reasserted the importance of regular dialogue on the pressing political, social and economic challenges that affect citizens on both sides of the Atlantic. We agreed to report back to our parent bodies on the content and outcome of our discussions in New York, with an emphasis on the areas where joint efforts are likely to produce positive outcomes.

The Transatlantic Legislators' Dialogue appreciated the Lisbon treaty's entry into force, with its enhancement of the powers and competences of the European Parliament in areas such as International Trade and Justice and Home Affairs, as well as the appointment of an EU President and High Representative. We expressed our desire to continue building on the political momentum created by the election of new administrations in Europe and the United States in order to further strengthen the transatlantic relationship.

We called for continued collaboration between legislators in the U.S. Congress and the European Parliament on legislation and issues of common concern, formalising lines of communication and information-sharing between EU and U.S. legislators to promote compatible legislation reflecting transatlantic cooperation through the work of the committees, in full respect for each side's sovereignty.

We discussed a wide array of international political questions such as the situations in the Middle East, Afghanistan/Pakistan, the Balkans, Russia and Iran's nuclear programme.

We also examined a wide array of issues of common interest, including global concerns relating to Energy and Climate Change, Financial Services and International Trade. We examined how the United States and the European Union could best cooperate in matters of Civil Liberties and Justice and Home Affairs.

Our conclusions are as follows:

INTERNATIONAL POLITICAL ISSUES

(a) Peace in the Middle East requires a durable ceasefire, an immediate and unconditional end to terrorist attacks on Israel, a functioning and effective government in the Palestinian Territories and the resumption of the obligations under the roadmap, including an end to incitement and a solution for the question of settlements. The goal is a secure Jewish state of Israel and a viable Palestinian state, living side by side.

(b) We held a strong debate exchanging a wide array of views between and within the delegations on the strategy for Afghanistan/Pakistan announced by President Obama on 1 December 2009, which provided a new impetus for renewed international commitment to confronting the ongoing challenges of security, terrorism, governance, corruption and socio-economic reconstruction. We look forward to the international conference on Afghanistan that will be held on 28 January 2010 under the auspices of the UN. The EU and the U.S. should enhance their cooperation and support, foster burden-sharing, work to improve the coordination and effectiveness of Provincial Reconstruction Teams (PRTs), and seek to help build critical infrastructure across Afghanistan. Maintaining the stability and cooperation of Pakistan is equally important as well.

(c) On Iran, the dialogue noted the recent, troubling moves by the Iranian Government regarding its nuclear programme, affirmed that a nuclear armed Iran is unacceptable and expressed its concern about the human rights situation in the country. We urge the leaders on both sides of the Atlantic to develop a common policy and unite the international community to meet this threat, including strong sanctions, if it continues to fail to comply with its international obligations in the nuclear area.

(d) Relations with Russia should involve constructive cooperation on challenges and threats, including security matters, disarmament and non-proliferation, along with respect for democratic principles including human rights standards, and adherence to international law. The dialogue expressed concerns about Russia's continued failure to comply with the 2008 ceasefire agreements with Georgia negotiated by French President Sarkozy, as well as the potential for another energy dispute with Ukraine this winter. We also cited the need to enhance mutual trust between the transatlantic partners and Russia. We welcome the ongoing U.S.-Russia negotiations on arms reduction and look forward to Russia's membership in the WTO, once those negotiations are satisfactorily completed, with all its legal obligations.

(e) Challenges remain in our efforts to integrate the Western Balkans into a united Europe. Cooperation between the United States and the European Union remains the most effective way to encourage political and economic development in Kosovo as well as to facilitate constitutional reform in Bosnia, and ensure respect for the rule of law, including cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia, throughout the region.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

We agreed that the Copenhagen Conference is one of the biggest challenges for international cooperation. We welcomed the announcement of President Obama's personal involvement in the COP-15 Summit in Copenhagen.

We discussed the common goal to provide the necessary stimulus for sustainable economic growth, promoting green technologies and creating new jobs.

We discussed how the EU and the U.S. could work together to reach an international agreement to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by setting ambitious reduction targets for industrialised countries and identifiable actions by developing countries. We discussed cap-and-trade systems and the need to avoid incompatible emission trading systems to pave the way to a transatlantic, and ultimately a global carbon market. We noted the link between tackling climate change and addressing energy security and economic growth, recognizing that the fight against climate change could also be an opportunity to create new jobs and sustain economic growth.

We welcomed the creation of a new EU-U.S. Energy Council at the last EU-U.S. Summit in order to strengthen the dialogue on strategic energy issues of mutual interest, foster cooperation on energy policies and further improve research collaboration on sustainable and clean energy technologies. We look forward to the Energy Council deliberations feeding the TEC process and we consider this as another area where the TLD can develop further.

FINANCIAL CRISIS

We examined the consequences of the global economic and financial turmoil. We agreed that the crisis requires a strong and coordinated policy response by the U.S. and the EU. Recovery plans currently being adopted are critical in mitigating the effects of the crisis: approaches chosen should be compatible, strengthen financial supervision to ensure confidence in the system, avoid protectionist measures, and avoid distortions of competition in the transatlantic marketplace.

We discussed the role of international cooperation in financial regulation and supervision, including better crisis prevention and management, and agreed that the EU and U.S. should cooperate on the reform of international financial institutions.

We are pleased that the G–20 leaders have decided to give the emerging countries, within the International Monetary Fund, a position commensurate with their weight in today's global economy so as to ensure support for the developing world and to achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

CIVIL LIBERTIES, JUSTICE AND HOME AFFAIRS

We welcomed the ''Washington Declaration'' on 28 October 2009 on enhancing transatlantic cooperation in the area of Justice, Freedom and Security within a context of respect for human rights and civil liberties. We expressed the hope that it will provide a framework to replace the ad hoc approach of the last decade on data collection and sharing arrangements (PNR, SWIFT, MoUs linked to visa waiver, etc.) with a more strategic approach of law enforcement and judicial cooperation through the Mutual Legal Assistance and Extradition Agreements and through developing an agreement on data protection.

We discussed President Obama's desire to close the Guantanamo detention facility within a year, taking note of the offer by several European countries to accept Guantanamo inmates and encouraging the U.S. and the EU to continue seeking joint solutions to combat terrorism.

The dialogue also discussed the EU-U.S. negotiations to extend the Visa Waiver Programme to the remaining EU member states. We hope that the U.S. visa waiver programme will be extended to all EU citizens as soon as possible, when the criteria have been met. An exchange of views took place on the recent adoption of the U.S. Travel Promotion Act.

In light of the concerns about the Safe Port Act raised by port operators and the trade community, in particular with respect to the cost/benefit ratio of the scanning requirement's possible negative effects on competitiveness and on transatlantic trade flows, we were of the view that the U.S. Administration should re-examine this legislation.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND WTO NEGOTIATIONS

We agreed that trade is as central to the EU-U.S. relationship as it is to world recovery. We call upon the European Commission and the United States to redouble their efforts to bring the Doha Round of world trade talks to a successful conclusion.

We believe that international trade can make a contribution to the restoration of world economic growth and that work to integrate and harmonise EU and U.S. trade practices will lead to a global improvement in living standards and will help secure quality jobs in both the European Union and in the United States.

We believe that participation by Congress and the European Parliament in the Parliamentary Conference of the WTO and in its Steering Committee would enhance cooperation at a global level. We, therefore, call on the leadership of both bodies to take appropriate steps in order to allow us to collaborate in this context.

DEVELOPMENT OF TRANSATLANTIC ECONOMIC COUNCIL

We reiterated our commitment to the Transatlantic Economic Council (TEC), stressing its utility as a framework to achieve a barrier-free market and for macroeconomic cooperation between both partners. We welcomed the results of the meeting held on 27 October, particularly the extended dialogue between the Administrations with legislators that identified past challenges and future opportunities. We discussed progress made over the past year in promoting transatlantic economic integration, including investment, accounting standards, regulatory issues, the safety of imported products, and the enforcement of intellectual property rights.

As we told our Administrations during the recent TEC meeting, transatlantic economic cooperation must be more accountable and transparent. In order to help achieve this objective, the schedules of TEC meetings, agendas, roadmaps and progress reports should be agreed upon between the core stakeholders as early as possible and then made public. Such measures are crucial to developing a clear and transparent process for setting the agenda of the TEC, extending the TEC to new sectors, and establishing a roadmap. We continued to encourage the EU and U.S. executive branches to facilitate more active participation by members of the U.S. Congress and the European Parliament in the TEC process, in particular via the TLD, especially for a pre-legislative dialogue between the respective committees of Congress and the European Parliament. TLD members should be full partners in the Transatlantic Economic and Energy Councils.

We note that on the European side, responsibility for coordinating the TEC will pass from the European Commission's Directorate-General for Enterprise and Industry to its Directorate-General for Trade. We believe that this can provide a new impetus toward removing barriers to trade and investment and on fostering competitiveness in the transatlantic market.

STRENGTHENING THE TLD

We agreed that a working group should come up as soon as possible with a list of concrete proposals for the further work of the TLD. We noted the recent document written by the Atlantic Council of the United States along with several other policy think tanks, entitled ''Shoulder to Shoulder: Forging a Strategic U.S.-EU Partnership.'' We supported several of the recommendations in the document and will use them as a starting point. For example:

U.S. Members of the TLD should be drawn from both House and Senate. U.S. House members should be appointed by the Speaker of the House.

The U.S. Congress should open an office in Brussels. The office would service the TLD and monitor legislation affecting U.S. interests. We noted the European Parliament is opening an office in Washington in January 2010.

The TLD should convene a joint consultative committee on the extraterritorial implications of domestic legislation; and focus regular exchanges on upstream regulatory legislation.

The TLD should hold joint hearings and conduct joint study tours to areas of common concern, for instance to the Middle East.

The U.S. Congress and the European Parliament should ensure regular contacts between appropriate staff, not simply in foreign affairs-related work but across the board in key areas of mutual engagement.

The TLD should spearhead a new generation of internships in Congressional and European Parliament offices. Each Congressional office should offer to host one intern from the EU; each European Parliament office should offer to host one intern from the United States.

In conclusion, we reaffirmed our commitment to strengthening the transatlantic relationship and working in partnership to solve common challenges. We pledged to continue improving the effectiveness of our dialogue in order to realize the full potential of our invaluable interparliamentary relationship, as well as to ensure the relevance of the TLD's work to the European Parliament and the United States Congress.

RECOGNIZING BETTY SALTER FOR RECEIVING THE HABITAT FOR HUMANITY INTERNATIONAL LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

HON. JEFF MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Betty Salter upon being awarded the Habitat for Humanity International Lifetime Achievement Award. Betty has dedicated her life to serving others, and I am proud to honor her service and commitment to the community.

Betty Salter is one of the founders of the Pensacola Habitat for Humanity and has served on the Board of Directors for 28 years. In the early years of the Pensacola affiliate, Betty served as chairman of the Family Selection Committee. In the late 1980's, when the affiliate could not afford to hire a director, she answered the call and volunteered as the Executive Director of Pensacola Habitat. Twenty years later, Betty remains the volunteer Executive Director. She and her husband James, also a volunteer, work six days a week building houses for low income families.

When Betty took over as Executive Director, the Pensacola Habitat for Humanity had built a total of four homes. Five years later, under Betty's leadership, house production jumped to twenty per year. Today, the affiliate builds between 55 and 60 homes each year. Betty's enthusiasm, energy, and generosity have motivated thousands of volunteers in our community to donate their time and their money in support of Habitat for Humanity. In 2004 and 2005, Betty helped lead the Pensacola affiliate through Hurricanes Ivan and Dennis, making sure projects continued as scheduled.

In addition to her service with Habitat for Humanity, Betty has been dedicated to all forms of housing assistance over the years. She served on the Board of Directors for Methodist Homes of Alabama and West Florida. She also served on the Board of the Children's Services Center for over twenty years. Betty has been awarded numerous honors over the years from many charity organizations. This year, Habitat for Humanity chose Betty as one of only four volunteers to award the first Habitat for Humanity International Lifetime Achievement Award.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of the United States Congress, I am honored to recognize Betty Salter for her service to the people of Northwest Florida. She is a dedicated community servant who has sacrificed so much for others in need. My wife Vicki and I wish all the best for continued success to Betty and her husband James, children Gail and Jane, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and entire extended family.

TRIBUTE TO LOVELY HILL BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. CLYBURN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Lovely Hill Baptist Association in recognition and celebration of its rich history and tremendous impact in South Carolina. On December 12, 2009 this 108-year-old organization will celebrate Founders' Day for the very first time.

This organization held its first meeting in 1901 at Lovely Hill Baptist Church in Smoaks, South Carolina. Three years later, they were chartered under the name of Lovely Hill Baptist Educational Congress to reflect their mission to provide for the education of African American youth who weren't allowed to attend public schools. In 1918 the group purchased more than 34 acres to build the first school for black children in the St. George area. Once public schools were integrated, the land was used for the county fair.

In 1932, the organization's mission had grown, and to broaden its scope, officially became known as the Lovely Hill Baptist Association. Sixty years later, Lovely Hill Baptist Association was incorporated, and today, 22 churches are members. In 1999, the association broke ground for the construction of a new conference center on the site of the original school. Construction was completed in 2005, and today the facility provides a much needed center for community activities in St. George and surrounding areas.

The association has several auxiliaries including the Sunday School Congress of Christian Education, the Lovely Hill Women's Auxiliary/Young Women's Auxiliary, the Ushers' Convention, the Brotherhood Convention, and the Youth Convention.

Over the years, a number of moderators have served the Association faithfully—Reverends Coger H. Haygood, J.M. Marshall, S.D. Rickenbacker, and T.E. Sanders. The current moderator of the Association is my good friend, Reverend Dr. S.B. Marshall, who is ably assisted by the 1st vice-moderator, Reverend McKinley Ravenel, and 2nd vice-moderator, Reverend Floyd Wright.

Madam Speaker, I ask you and my colleagues to join me today in recognizing this organization that has contributed so much to the faith community in South Carolina. For more than a century, the Lovely Hill Baptist Association has provided excellent spiritual leadership and Christian education to the citizens of my congressional district. I applaud their rich history and significant contributions to countless numbers of my constituents. And I congratulate them on their inaugural Founders' Day and wish them Godspeed!

TRIBUTE TO DR. A. ZACHARY YAMBA

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. PAYNE. Madam Speaker, I would like to ask my colleagues here in the United States

House of Representatives to join me as I rise to honor and congratulate Dr. A. Zachary Yamba on his retirement from Essex County College. He is the longest serving college president in the State of New Jersey, and the longest sitting President of a predominantly black serving institution of higher education in the nation.

After serving 29 years as President, Dr. Yamba will retire December 4, 2009. Under Dr. Yamba's leadership, Essex County College has experienced unprecedented stability and growth. Enrollment at the College has increased from 7,500 students in 1980 to a record 25,000 students in 2009.

Within a year of his appointment, Essex County College was awarded full accreditation for a 10 year period, a status that was reaffirmed in 1991 and 2001. Over the next 29 years Dr. Yamba demonstrated a commitment to providing quality education to under-represented populations, and ultimately redefined the role of urban higher education in the State of New Jersey and the nation.

Dr. Yamba has positioned Essex County College to be one of the major factors in the movement to grant students of color greater access to higher education. Through his efforts, Essex County College stands in the top 1% of the nation for awarding African American Associate degrees. In addition, Essex County College is the number one Community College in New Jersey for awarding African American Associate degrees and is the number one institution in New Jersey for educating African American students.

Dr. Yamba's inter-generational influence has made an inedible mark on the educational tapestry of the City of Newark, and the State New Jersey. Dr. Yamba became a beacon of hope, accountability and excellence for the mission of urban community colleges. Without his contribution, it is clear that Essex County College and urban community colleges everywhere, would not be as dynamic or academically sound as they are today. He is Regent Emeritus on the Board of Regents of Seton Hall University, was inducted into its Athletic Hall of Fame (Soccer) and has also been awarded an honorary doctorate degree. Additionally, he holds honorary degrees from Rutgers University and the University for Development Students in Ghana.

Madam Speaker, I know my colleagues agree that Dr. Yamba has made a significant impact on the educational system in New Jersey, and the nation. He will leave a lasting impression on those who were fortunate enough to benefit from his guidance. I am honored to have worked with him for a number of years, and I wish him a wonderful retirement.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE FOR H.R. 3963

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, in accordance with the House Report 111–345, I submit the Congressional Budget Office Cost Estimate for H.R. 3963.

DECEMBER 1, 2009.

Hon. BENNIE G. THOMPSON,
Chairman, Committee on Homeland Security, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 3963, the Criminal Investigative Training Restoration Act.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Megan Carroll.

Sincerely,

DOUGLAS W. ELMENDORF.

Enclosure.

H.R. 3963—Criminal Investigative Training Restoration Act

H.R. 3963 would direct the Federal Air Marshal Service (FAMS) to require newly hired marshals to complete a training program in criminal investigative techniques. The bill would authorize the appropriation of at least $3 million in each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 for that purpose.

Based on information from DHS about the anticipated number of new employees and costs to train them, CBO estimates that $6 million would be sufficient to establish and operate the proposed training program. Assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts, CBO estimates that fully funding H.R. 3963 would cost $2 million in 2010 and $6 million over the 2010–2014 period. Enacting the bill would not affect direct spending or revenues.

H.R. 3963 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Megan Carroll. This estimate was approved by Theresa Gullo, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

A TRIBUTE TO MR. FRANK G. FORGIONE, SR.

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a longtime constituent of mine, Frank G. Forgione, Sr., for his outstanding dedication to music, service, and country.

From his earliest days, Frank—the son of two musicians—demonstrated an appreciation and recognition of the power of music. At age 11 he began studying music with Frank Holt, a percussionist for noted bandmaster and composer John Philip Sousa. At the encouragement of his instructors, he auditioned and was accepted into the Navy School of Music here in Washington in 1938.

In December 1941, Frank was stationed at Pearl Harbor aboard the USS Oglala. During the attack of December 7, the Oglala fell victim to the Japanese attack and sank. Fortunately, Frank was able to make it to a dock. He often said that every day he lived after that was a gift.

In 1951, he became head of the percussion department at his alma mater, the Navy School of Music. Just 10 years later, he founded and led the U.S. Navy Special Show Band—the first Navy Show Band—on a tour in South America. Called the Navy's Goodwill Ambassadors, the band toured through South America during a period of unrest.

When the band encountered anti-American sentiment or threats at their shows, Frank directed the band to perform, believing that the universality of music would be enough to win over the crowd. More often than not, his instincts proved correct. The band went on to make several more tours throughout South America and the rest of the world.

Frank Forgione's service did not go unnoticed. He became the first musician since John Philip Sousa to receive the Secretary of the Navy's Commendation Medal.

In 1972, Frank retired with the rank of Chief Warrant Officer. Retirement did not ebb his desire to serve. Inspired by his tours in South America, Frank dedicated himself to relieving the poverty he witnessed while on the continent. For the next 16 years, he enlisted many national corporations to donate food, educational materials, medicine, and other essential supplies to help improve the living conditions for those less fortunate.

In addition, Frank continued fulfilling his love of music. He created the Fort Washington Continentals, an award-winning youth drum corps located in Prince Georges County. The corps was selected to lead Washington's Bicentennial Parade.

At age 70, Frank became bandmaster for the New York Military Academy in Cornwall-on-Hudson, touring extensively throughout the United States, Europe, and Australia. While there he was given the honorary rank of Army Colonel. He retired again in 2005 at the age of 87. Though Frank passed away on July 27, 2009, it is undeniable that his spirit and appreciation for music have remained with those he touched throughout his life.

Madam Speaker, Frank G. Forgione, Sr. was blessed with the gift of music and committed to serving others. He helped to make the U.S. Navy, the State of Maryland, and communities throughout the world a better place. I urge my colleagues to join with me in paying tribute to this extraordinary individual for a life well lived and in offering sincerest condolences to his friends and family on their loss.

HONORING DALE E. HANINGTON

HON. MICHAEL H. MICHAUD

OF MAINE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MICHAUD. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the accomplishments of Dale Hanington of Benton, ME.

Dale Hanington has served the trucking industry for the past two decades, with the last 17 as the president and CEO of the Maine Motor Transport Association, MMTA. During his long and distinguished career, Dale has admirably represented the transportation industry by promoting highway safety and tirelessly advocating for sound public policy affecting members of the MMTA.

Dale's insistence on integrity and the honest sincerity of his approach has gained him the respect of those who have worked with him, both in the trucking industry and during his career with the Maine State Police. It is his unwavering character and consistent advocacy for highway safety that led to his nomination by the Governor to serve on every Maine's Motor Carrier Review Board since its inception. Dale has never taken this reasonability lightly, and has always dedicated his time and expertise to the group's role of reviewing the records of motor carriers with significant and repeated violations and ensuring that proper steps are taken to mitigate safety risks.

His many accomplishments while at the MMTA include increasing the association's strength to over 1,200 companies, as well as adding valuable services for the benefit of the membership. On a personal note, Dale has been a long time and trusted adviser of mine when it comes to the issue of truck weights in Maine. He has worked tirelessly with me and the entire Maine congressional delegation to advocate for a fix to the problem. We are getting closer to a permanent solution and we have Dale and his advocacy to thank for it.

Prior to his leadership at the MMTA, Dale graduated from the Northwestern Traffic Institute and served for 20 years with the Maine State Police, achieving the rank of lieutenant by the end of his career. He is actively involved in community and fraternal organizations such as the Freemasons, the Order of the Eastern Star, the Order of the Amaranth and he spent many years as a Scout Master for the Boy Scouts. Dale and his wife Jean are also very active in the First Baptist Church of Fairfield.

Madam Speaker, please join me in honoring Dale Hanington for his life of dedication and service to his community and his country.

HONORING THE LIFE OF JOHN WARREN COOKE

HON. FRANK R. WOLF–

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I rise to share with our colleagues the recent passing of John Warren Cooke, former speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates. He died on November 28, 2009, at the age of 94.

Born on February 28, 1915, in Mathews, Virginia, Speaker Cooke had a long history of service to Virginia, spending almost 4 decades in the House of Delegates from 1942 to 1980. After serving as the Democratic majority leader for 12 years, he became Speaker in 1968. He was well regarded on both sides of the aisle and considered a true gentleman.

After retiring from the Virginia House of Delegates, Speaker Cooke returned to his hometown to continue serving as the publisher of the Gloucester-Mathews Gazette Journal, as he had done since 1954.

Speaker Cooke's father, Major Giles B. Cooke, served on the general staff of General Robert E. Lee during the Civil War. As a 26–year-old, Major Cooke was on Lee's staff at Appomattox.

As the ninth generation of his family to serve in the Virginia General Assembly and one of the last living Americans with a father in the Civil War, Speaker Cooke will surely be missed by the people of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

I submit an obituary for Speaker Cooke published in The Washington Post on December 2.

[From the Washington Post, Dec. 2, 2009]

COURTLY, POWERFUL SPEAKER OF VA. HOUSE FOR 12 YEARS

(By Matt Schudel)

John Warren Cooke, 94, who served 12 years as the quietly influential speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates, died Nov. 28 at his home in the Mathews County town of Gloucester. The cause of death could not be learned.

Mr. Cooke, the last member of the Virginia legislature who was the son of a Confederate veteran, was the Democratic majority leader in the House of Delegates for 12 years before becoming speaker in 1968. He exercised his authority with a courtly demeanor and a gentle hand but was, as described in a 1979 Washington Post article, ''one of the state's most powerful but little-noticed officials.''

He served in the House of Delegates from 1942 to 1980, when Virginia was struggling with integration and changing from its Democratic, rural roots to a more urban and Republican-leaning state. Among other achievements, Mr. Cooke helped bring a new bipartisan spirit to Richmond by appointing Republicans to key committees for the first time in the legislature's history.

Until 1969, Virginia's legislators had no offices and conducted their business from their desks and briefcases. As speaker, Mr. Cooke had absolute authority to appoint the 100 members of the House to committees as he saw fit. His committee choices, usually based on seniority, could affect the direction and tone of legislation and whether it reached the full House for a vote.

Mr. Cooke, known as ''John Warren,'' was well liked and was praised by his colleagues as ''the soul of fairness.''

A 1970 Post story said Mr. Cooke's ''geniality'' and ''quick dry wit'' served him well in politics: ''He guides smoothly and skillfully, he is courteous, he is a gentleman down to his toes—and he is very, very popular.''

Mr. Cooke was considered a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1969 and 1973, but he bowed out of the races to remain in the House, representing a Tidewater district north of Williamsburg.

In 1972, as the Democratic speaker, he helped arrange a compromise between contentious factions of the Democratic-controlled legislature and Republican governor Linwood Holton to institute a sweeping reorganization of the state government.

John Warren Cooke was born Feb. 28, 1915, in Mathews, Va. His father, who was 76 when his son was born, was an Episcopal priest who had served on Gen. Robert E. Lee's staff during the Civil War.

Mr. Cooke attended the Virginia Military Institute and returned to his home town to work for the Gloucester-Mathews Gazette-Journal. He was publisher of the weekly newspaper from 1954 until March of this year and was president of the old Tidewater Baseball League.

Survivors include his wife of 62 years, Anne Brown Rawn Cooke of Mathews; and two children, Giles Buckner Cooke III of Williamsburg and Elsa VanNess Verbyla of Mathews.

HONORING THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI'S HISPANIC-AMERICAN CULTURAL INSTITUTE

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEH TINEN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Hispanic-American Cultural Institute of the Koubek Center of the University of Miami on their 25th anniversary.

The Hispanic-American Cultural Institute is part of the University of Miami's Division of Continuing and International Education, which was founded in 1984 by Mr. Pablo Chao.

The Institute's primary mission is to offer cultural and academic services to elderly professionals who wish to remain active. The good work done by the Institute has helped countless individuals in our South Florida community. The Institute has offered conferences in various academic disciplines, which have been hosted by recognized educators, writers and leaders of the Hispanic community.

I congratulate the extraordinary leadership of the center's president for the past 10 years, Mr. Manuel I. Muñiz, and Director Chao on the Institute's 25th anniversary. The Hispanic-American Cultural Institute is a valued part of our community. I am sure that the Institute will continue to allow individuals to pursue their academic dreams regardless of age, as well as be a forum where the brightest minds of the Hispanic community can shine.

RECOGNIZING THE RETIREMENT OF JERRY EUBANKS

HON. JEFF MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Mr. Jerry Eubanks upon his retirement from the United States National Park Service. Jerry has been a lifelong public servant, and I am humbled to honor his service and commitment.

A native of McCool, Mississippi, Jerry joined the National Park Service in 1960 after graduating from Mississippi State University with a degree in Civil Engineering. Since joining the Park Service, he has worked across the country from Missouri to California to Virginia to preserve and protect America's national parks. In 1976, Jerry became Assistant Superintendent of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Tennessee and North Carolina. Jerry moved to the Gulf Coast in 1984 to serve as Superintendent of the Gulf Islands National Seashore, where he has remained ever since.

As Superintendent of the Gulf Islands National Seashore, Jerry has worked tirelessly to ensure the protection and viability of our area's natural resources and beauty. Over the past 25 years, he has led the park through numerous organizational and operational changes, resulting in substantial natural, cultural, and recreational program improvements. Among his many successes, Jerry helped lead recovery efforts during several damaging hurricanes including Hurricane Ivan in 2004 and Hurricane Katrina in 2005. He was able to bring operations back online quickly after the storms, ensuring the repair and protection of damaged resources and the restoration of major infrastructure. For his efforts over the course of his career, Jerry has received numerous awards for exemplary service including the Department of the Interior Meritorious Service Award in 2000.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of the United States Congress, I am honored to recognize Jerry Eubanks for his service to Northwest Florida. He is a dedicated community leader who will be sorely missed after his retirement. My wife Vicki and I wish all the best for continued success to Jerry and his wife Anne, his children, grandchildren, and entire extended family.

CONGRATULATING DENNIS K. BURKE ON HIS INVESTITURE AS THE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

HON. HARRY E. MITCHELL

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MITCHELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dennis K. Burke on his investiture as the United States Attorney for the District of Arizona.

I have had the honor of knowing and working with Dennis for many years on numerous issues. I have supreme confidence that his long and distinguished law enforcement career and record of public service will serve Arizona's 8 million residents extremely well as he faces his newest and most important challenge.

Most recently, Dennis held one of the most important behind-the-scenes roles in Arizona state government as Chief of Staff for Governor Janet Napolitano. He also assisted Napolitano in her transition to Secretary of Homeland Security, serving as a senior advisor. He also worked in the Arizona Attorney General's Office and as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the District of Arizona, where he prosecuted drug trafficking cases and organized crime. In addition, Dennis has served in the Department of Justice, as a staff member on the Senate Judiciary Committee and at the White House.

Because of this truly impressive record of accomplishment and service, I was elated when President Barack Obama nominated Dennis earlier this year. Madame Speaker, please join me in congratulating Dennis Burke and wishing him well as he takes on the challenge of leading the District of Arizona as its newest U.S. Attorney.

HONORING TROUSDALE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL YELLOW JACKETS ON WINNING THE 2009 TSSAA CLASS 2A FOOTBALL STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

HON. BART GORDON

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. GORDON of Tennessee. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 2009 Trousdale County High School Yellow Jackets for winning the TSSAA Class 2A State Football Championship.

I congratulate these young men for their hard work and dedication. It takes teamwork and sacrifice from each individual for a team to succeed. The Yellow Jackets 12-1 season ended with them defeating the Buccaneers 13-7 in the Blue Cross Bowl on Saturday.

I commend Trousdale County High School Head Coach Kevin Creasy and Assistant Coaches Jackie Dillehay, Jason Dobbs, Brandon Eden, Hal Hailey, Ben Johnson, Adam Keeton, Steve McClain, and Ronnie White.

I congratulate each player of the 2009 Class 2A State Champion Yellow Jacket Football Team: T.J. Seay, Jordan Harper, Tacola Seay, Hunter Murphree, Craig Brown, Dre Crenshaw, Brent Ford, Dillon Young, Joe Sanders, Devon Turczyn, Seth Calhoun, Josh Payne, Mack Sanders, Tyler Edwards, Marcelly Smith, Joey Cox, Garrett Crafton, Dakota Stovall, Demarius Smith, Kale Satterfield, Victor Hardwick, Spencer Minor, Alex Gregory, Kyle Gregory, Austin Bode, Chase Roberson, Zach Scruggs, Joseph Phillips, Kyle Satterfield, Mitch Merryman, Cody Belcher, Baylor DeLeusomme, Marty Bottom, Shawn Melton, Hunter Kelley, Michael Harper, David Minor, Jordan Holder, Ned Dias, Koryay Smith, and Ben Stadter.

HONORING JOHN WARREN COOKE–

HON. ROBERT J. WITTMAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. WITTMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise to share with our colleagues the recent passing of John Warren Cooke, former speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates.

On November 28, 2009, I and many others around the Commonwealth were saddened to hear of the passing of former Speaker of the House of Delegates, John Warren Cooke.

Speaker Cooke served in the House of Delegates, representing much of the Middle Peninsula from 1942–79 and was its Speaker from 1968 until his retirement.

His dedication and service touched countless citizens of the Commonwealth not only through his work in the General Assembly, but also as publisher of the Gloucester-Mathews Gazette–Journal.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Speaker Cooke's family as we all mourn his passing.

HONORING TEXAS ATTORNEY DAVID GROVE

HON. TED POE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, today the Second District of Texas recognizes attorney David Grove for being awarded the Mickey F. Mehaffy Award from the Jefferson County Bar Association, given each year to honor an attorney for their exceptional pro bono work. He has worked tirelessly to help less fortunate citizens find representation in the court of law.

David was born in Midland and attended the Baylor University School of Law. In 1978, after spending a summer as a law clerk in Beaumont, he returned to Jefferson County as an Assistant District Attorney. He joined a private firm 6 years later and started his solo practice in 1999.

David always donated his time and attention to pro bono work, however, he saw the need for it escalate after the double shot of Hurricane Rita in 2005 and Hurricane Ike in 2008. Both of these hurricanes caused immense damage across Southeast Texas and Southwest Louisiana. This left many residents with damage claims against insurance companies who could not afford representation.

David is a leading advocate for the indigent, making sure they are treated fairly. He also donates a large amount of time to helping families through divorces or child custody cases. He realizes that some people do not have the resources available to defend themselves, their family, or their home, and he makes sure they have equal representation.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of the Second Congressional District and all of Southeast Texas, I want to congratulate David Grove for this wonderful accomplishment. Through his diligent efforts and dedication he has given a voice to many who thought they had none.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. SPENCER BACHUS

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding funding that I requested as part of the H.R. 3288, the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, Juvenile Justice

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama Department of Public Safety

Address of Requesting Entity: Post Office Box 1511 Montgomery AL, 36102–1511

Description of Request: Provide $150,000 for efforts to target the investigation, arrest, and prosecution of child sexual predators in the State of Alabama. Funding will be used for additional personnel and equipment. These funds will allow the investigation and prosecution of child sexual exploitation . The FY 1998 Justice Appropriations Act directed DOJ to create a national network of state and local law enforcement cyber units to investigate cases of child sexual exploitation; this funding will help the State of Alabama to fulfill that mission. The project's total budget is $500,000. Specifically within the budget, $225,000 will go toward permanent personnel salaries, $110,600 for fringe benefits, $75,000 for travel and training and $25,000 for equipment. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs—Juvenile Justice Account. The Alabama Department of Public Safety will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Department of Justice, Department of Justice, OJP—Byrne Discretionary Grants

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama Department of Public Safety

Address of Requesting Entity: Post Office Box 1511 Montgomery AL, 36102–1511

Description of Request: Provide $1,000,000 for the Alabama Department of Public Safety/Alabama Bureau of Investigation Cyber Crimes Unit, Alabama Fusion Center and the University of Alabama at Birmingham will partner with Alabama District Attorneys Association in a multi-pronged approach to investigate and prosecute financial cyber crimes within Alabama. Staff will be hired to conduct computer research and monitor the phishing sites, train law enforcement agencies in analysis and investigative techniques as related to phishing, and conduct analysis and investigation into leads generated by the UAB Computer Forensics Department. This project will protect citizens from predatory actions such as cyber scams. Not only will more criminals be brought to justice but the victims will have a better chance of recovering losses. This will help protect financial institutions against fraud and lessen potential demands on the FDIC fund. The project's total budget is $3,215,585. Specifically within the budget, for the Alabama District Attorney's Association $225,000 will go toward personnel, $154,334 for fringe benefits, $60,000 for travel, $75,000 for supplies, $237,100 for equipment and $150,000 for other expenses; for the University of Alabama at Birmingham Association $364,639 will go toward personnel, $65,659 for fringe benefits, $50,000 for travel, $51,000 for tuition and health insurance,$210,000 for equipment and $289,997 indirect costs; and for the Alabama Department of Public Safety $238,968 will go toward personnel, $103,981 for fringe benefits, $60,907 for travel, $50,000 for supplies, $200,000 for equipment and $80,000 for other expenses. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs—Ju Byrne Discretionary Grants. The Alabama Department of Public Safety will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Department of Justice, Department of Justice, COPS-Meth

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alabama District Attorney's Association—Office of Prosecution Services

Address of Requesting Entity: 515 South Perry Street Montgomery AL, 36104

Description of Request: Zerometh is Alabama's reaction to the destructive force of today's meth epidemic. Its purpose is to expose meth and its deadly consequences to teens and young adults (12–24). The goal is to stop a potential first-time user from ever trying the drug, while encouraging everyone to look for the warning signs and support treatment. The funding will be used to purchase media and develop presentations. Meth use is a national epidemic that requires attention at all levels, but education will be the critical step to slowing down the rate of addiction to the powerful job. Zerometh has a distinctly federal goal in its mission to educate young people as to the dangers of Meth and the impact it can have on their life. The project's total budget is $1,000,000. Specifically within the budget, $830,000 will go toward advertising and media expenses, $50,000 for meth education presentations, $55,000 for administration and training and $65,000 for equipment, supplies and printing. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Department of Justice, COPS-Meth Account. The Alabama District Attorney's Association—Office of Prosecution Services will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

THE UNIVERSAL DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS HAS NO RESET BUTTON

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. McGOVERN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights exactly 61 years ago. This document was born on the ashes of a global war which saw the murder of over six million Jewish people during the Holocaust and the deaths of over 60 million people around the world.

Just when it seemed that humanity was irrevocably lost in the global devastation of this conflict, some of the greatest leaders of their time, such as Eleanor Roosevelt, came together at the United Nations to enshrine a common human bond of individual dreams and aspirations protected by defined rights in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. While formally a resolution, not a treaty, its provisions are part of every legally binding international instrument which sets out to protect human rights.

Today, 61 years after its adoption, the catalog of defined rights has withstood the test of time, but the full implementation of those rights is as elusive as ever. The language and the context in which we discuss these rights today may have changed, but the urgency and importance to protect them globally has not. Terms such as internet freedom, global war on terror, environmental devastation, water-boarding, Guantanamo, corporate social responsibility, food security, women's rights and the Responsibility to Protect are just a few of those modern terms which put in sharp focus the relevance of those rights set forth in this document 61 years ago.

During that period, the United States was a leader among nations in defining and defending those rights and spearheaded international consensus and agreements. More recently, however, we seem to have either forgotten the hard-won lessons of that period or at least have misapplied them.

Instead of holding on tighter to our believes and commitments after the 9/11 attacks, we were willing to consider these sacred values impediments to our national sovereignty and infringements on our right to defend our country. Instead of heeding the admonition of one of the greatest American Presidents—another Roosevelt—who led this nation through the Great Depression and defeated the most evil regime in human history, that ''the only thing we have to fear is fear itself,'' we abandoned our human rights commitments at home. Faced with an unknown and secretive enemy, fear drove us to suspend important legal protections, to re-define the meaning of torture, to engage in extraordinary renditions of individuals utilizing poor human rights records of other countries, and we created with Abu Ghraib and Guantanamo monuments to that failed policy that still serve as recruiting tools for extremists all over the world. All the while we harshly criticized friends and foes alike if they disagreed with us, and set on an international course of democracy promotion, which was of the ''either you are with us, or you are against us'' nature.

To regain our international standing and reputation, and in recognition of the fact that we can only defeat terrorism with the support of the relevant local populations, we have recently undertaken significant diplomatic efforts to repair our international relationships. We have announced the closure of Guantanamo, and have ruled out enhanced interrogation techniques, have passed hate crimes legislation at home and have joined the Human Rights Council. While important parts of these objectives have yet to be achieved, the American public and the international community have rightfully applauded these important and difficult initiatives.

But while we have made domestic human rights gains, we now stand to lose our human rights bearings abroad. With ambiguous statements and actions the United States has sent signals to repressive regimes that human rights may no longer feature prominently in our foreign relations and that there is the possibility of a ''fresh start,'' which can be triggered by a magical ''reset button.'' While I strongly support the direct engagement of repressive regimes around the globe, I am equally convinced that past human rights records cannot be ''reset,'' or glossed over. The Universal Declaration does not provide for a ''reset button'' for gross human rights violations, nor do any of the international human rights treaties. Repressive regimes will only seriously engage the United States and the international community on important human rights issues if we take a principled stand, both in public and in private, which is based on accountability. We owe justice to human rights victims, be that in Sudan, Burma, China, North Korea, Russia or anywhere else in the world.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, on December 9, 2009, I was unavoidably detained and was unable to record my vote for rollcall No. 945 and rollcall No. 946. Had I been present I would have voted:

Rollcall No. 945: ''yes''—Providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 4173) to provide for financial regulatory reform, to protect consumers and investors, to enhance Federal understanding of insurance issues, to regulate the over-the-counter derivatives, markets, and for other purposes

Rollcall No. 946: ''yes''—To eliminate an unused lighthouse reservation, provide management consistency by bringing the rocks and small islands along the coast of Orange County, California, and meet the original congressional intent of preserving Orange County's rocks and small islands, and for other purposes

INTRODUCING THE COMMON SENSE TAX RELIEF ACT OF 2009

HON. RODNEY P. FRELINGHUYSEN

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to offer legislation to address the needs of Americans across the country who have been unnecessarily burdened by taxes, entitled ''The Common Sense Tax Relief Act of 2009.''

As you all are well aware, Americans are extremely concerned with the current state of the economy and they are looking to their government to foster an economic environment that promotes growth.

At a time when Congress is considering health care and energy bills that will significantly raise taxes on all Americans, we must be cognizant of the fact that overall tax bills keep rising.

Over the past year, unprecedented spending on government programs through the so-called ''stimulus bill'' and the bloated Omnibus Appropriations Act of 2009 has produced, at best, modest signs of recovery.

Americans have felt a great deal of uncertainty as their jobs remain in jeopardy and they are unsure as to what additional financial burden will be levied upon them by the federal government.

I represent a state that currently has the highest tax burden in the nation, and to add insult to injury, New Jersey receives the least amount of federal dollars back from Washington per taxpayer.

Every weekend that I am back in my district, I hear from constituents who have had enough with being taxed by a government that has made no effort to follow these constituents lead in getting their financial houses in order.

For this reason, I have offered the Common Sense Tax Relief Act of 2009. This legislation seeks to make permanent several widely supported tax credits that will directly benefit families and small businesses seeking relief, clarity and certainly in their financial planning.

To assist families, this bill will make permanent the child tax credit and the marriage penalty relief tax credit. To assist in the advancement of education, this bill will make permanent the teacher tax deduction, and the tuition deduction. And to assist small business and families seeking to plan their financial futures, the bill makes permanent the current capital gains and dividends tax rates and eliminates the ''death tax.''

Madam Speaker, I urge the immediate consideration of this important legislation that will help propel our economy forward and provide significant relief to all of our constituents.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. GREGG HARPER

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. HARPER. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2010.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AND VETERANS AFFAIRS AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2010

Requesting Member: Congressman GREGG HARPER

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Project Name: Monticello Readiness Center

Project Amount: $14,350,000

Requesting Member: Congressman GREGG HARPER

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Project Name: NOAA Northern Gulf Institute

Project Amount: $4,500,000

Agency: Department of Commerce

Account: NOAA–ORF

Recipient and Address: Mississippi State University, P.O. Box 9627, Mississippi State, MS 39762

Description of Request: The NGI defines the Northern Gulf of Mexico region as the upland and watershed, coastal zone, and coastal ocean areas from the Sabine River, LA in the west to the Suwannee River, FL in the east. The Northern gulf is a rich and interdependent natural environment of great complexity and is important to the region and the nation. The riverine-dominated Northern Gulf ecosystems are under pressure from increasing population and coastal development, impacts from severe storms and climate variability, inland watershed and coastal wetlands degradation, and many other factors. NGI has chosen an approach to Northern Gulf Region issues, problems and opportunities that is closely aligned with NOAA's strategic and research priorities and its user-community. This approach is science driven, regionally focused, and coordinated with other Gulf of Mexico Basin activities, and seeks whenever appropriate to promote the application of its results to support decision makers and policy development.

Requesting Member: Congressman GREGG HARPER

Bill Number: H.R. 3288

Project Name: MSU Cyber Crime Initiative and National Consortium for Digital Forensics Training

Project Amount: $1,500,000

Agency: Department of Justice

Account: OJP-Byrne

Recipient and Address: Mississippi State University, P.O. Box 9637, Mississippi State, MS 39762

Description of Request: The National Forensics Training Center (FTC) provides needed no cost digital forensics investigation training to state and local law enforcement officials nation-wide. Law enforcement students are provided lodging, meals, and training at no cost. The FTC maintains a highly trained instructor staff, two classrooms, and a mobile lab for training purposes. A Full suite of digital forensics short course classes are offered which expose law enforcement and judicial officials to technical techniques in digital investigations and current search and seizure laws applicable to electronic evidence. The project also supports the State of Mississippi Cyber Crime Fusion Center managed by the State Attorney General, a one of a kind Federal/State/Local cooperative effort, addressing cyber crime. Other partners in this effort have included Jackson State University and the University of Mississippi's National Center for Justice and Rule of Law. Since the FTC began operation in late 2005, more that 2100 law enforcement students have participated in its training from 22 states. The demand for this training is increasing every year.

INTRODUCTION OF SMALL BREWERS' EXCISE TAX BILL

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation to promote American jobs. Over 30 years ago, Congress worried that a few industry giants would dominate the domestic beer industry, squeezing out local and regional brewers. In response, Congress reduced the tax rate on beer produced by small brewers. That differential has led to the creation of thousands of craft brewers, who are small business owners and employers in our communities. However, the consolidation at the top of the market has continued.

Today, the two top players in the beer market, which are global companies, control more than 90% of American beer production. Clearly, we need to do more to foster and promote growth for these small, independent American brewers. That is why I am filing legislation today, along with my Committee colleague and friend from Texas, Mr. BRADY, to provide a more graduated rate of excise tax on beer produced domestically by small brewers. Our bill provides two benefits to small brewers. First, for those who produce less than 60,000 barrels per year, the current excise tax rate is cut in half to $3.50 per barrel. Second, for those who produce more than 60,000 but less than 6 million barrels, still well short of the industry giants, they will enjoy the same tax break on the first 60,000 barrels but will pay a tax rate of $16 per barrel rather than the current $18 per barrel on the amount over 60,000 and less than 2 million. Any barrel over that threshold will continue to be taxed at the current $18 rate.

This legislation has the support of the Brewers Association, representing more than 1,500 small and independent brewers in America, including 85 regional breweries that produce between 15,000 and 2 million barrels per year, 470 microbreweries that produce less than 15,000 barrels per year, and 961 brewpubs that sell 25% or more of their beer on site. These small brewers employ more than 100,000 workers, generating more than $3 billion in wages. Their dedication to craft brewing has led to a renaissance in flavorful beer here in America and more respect for American brewers abroad. However, they still lack the economies of scale in marketing, advertising, production, promotion and distribution that the giants of the industry enjoy.

As the landscape of the beer market continues to change, we should revisit these tax provisions to provide for further growth of these smaller brewers. We should continue the effort we started more than 30 years ago to nurture a diverse and competitive market and promote small domestic producers to keep this American industry thriving. These are good jobs in our local communities that protect American craftsmanship. I urge our colleagues to join us in this effort.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. CONNIE MACK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. MACK. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, FY 2010.

Project Name: Interstate 75/Collier Boulevard/SR 84 Interchange Improvements

Requesting Member: Congressman CONNIE MACK

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, FY 2010

Account: Federal Highway Administration

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Department of Transportation

Address of Requesting Entity: 605 Suwannee Street, Tallahassee, Florida 32399

Description of Request/Justification of Federal Funding: $800,000: The current interchange serves the east Naples area, Golden Gate City, and Marco Island, and is the closest interchange from the east to the City of Naples. The funding will be utilized for capacity improvements at the Interstate 75/Collier Boulevard/SR 84 Interchange and will improve traffic flow in the region.

Project Name: FGCU Impact of Freshwater Flow into Coastal Waters—FGCU Coastal Watershed Institute

Requesting Member: Congressman CONNIE MACK

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, FY 2010

Account: Higher Education (includes FIPSE)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Gulf Coast University

Address of Requesting Entity: 10501 FGCU Blvd., South, Fort Myers, FL 33965

Description of Request/Justification of Federal Funding: $350,000; Florida's coast is a principal economic driver, attracting millions of tourists and thousands of residents to the coastal communities of Southwest Florida. Proper management of the freshwater that the coastal environment receives is critical to preventing toxic algal blooms and negative impacts on recreational and commercial fisheries. FGCU is requesting federal funding for their Coastal Watershed Institute to address the impacts associated with changes in the freshwater flows into the area. This project is geared to students learning about future management of our fragile ecosystems.

Project Name: Emergency Services Technology, Collier County, Florida

Requesting Member: Congressman CONNIE MACK

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, FY 2010

Account: DOJ/COPS

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Collier County, FL

Address of Requesting Entity: 3301 East Tamiami Trail, Naples, Florida 34112

Description of Request/Justification of Federal Funding: $800,000 will be utilized for the acquisition of public safety technology equipment for the Collier County Emergency Services Center. The funding is important because it will help to better equip Collier County's emergency service providers to respond to events that could endanger the safety and citizens of Collier County, Florida.

Project Name: FGCU Law Enforcement and Public Safety

Requesting Member: Congressman CONNIE MACK

Bill Number: H.R. 3288—Consolidated Appropriations Act, FY 2010

Account: DOJ/OJP-Byrne Discretionary Grants

Description of Request/Justification of Federal Funding: $200,000 will be utilized for the development of tools for training and processing crime scenes for use by law enforcement and public safety officials. This work will be done at the Florida Gulf Coast University in its Law Enforcement and Public Safety Department.

HONORING THE SERVICE AND SACRIFICE OF MARTIN COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA SHERIFF'S DEPUTY CHARLES DOUGLAS BROWN, JR.

HON. G. K. BUTTERFIELD

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Madam Speaker, it is with deep sadness that I report that a law officer was killed in the line of duty in my Congressional District on Tuesday, December 8, 2009. Thirty-eight-year-old Martin County Sheriff's Deputy Charles ''Charlie'' Douglas Brown, Jr. was killed in an exchange of gunfire while on duty.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, December 12, 2009 as the entire community mourns his untimely death. He is survived by his wife, Cindy, and their two daughters, Morgen and Carlie. He was a member of Maple Grove Christian Church.

Sheriff's Deputy Brown was a U.S. Marine veteran having served in Desert Storm. He served as a member of the U.S. Marines Honor Guard and was recognized with the Elegance Medal. He also assisted with the Katrina disaster in New Orleans, Louisiana and the Tsunami Disaster in Thailand. He was a K9 officer serving with his faithful dog H2.

He had a great love of fishing and hunting, and he was well liked by his fellow officers and throughout the community.

As a nation, we have lost more than 20,000 officers in the line of duty over the course of our history. Mr. Brown was the 115th law officer killed in the line duty this year, and the seventh officer killed in the line of duty in North Carolina.

Despite the constant threats of harm and danger, day after day, and year after year, dedicated professionals, like Mr. Brown, make the sacrifices for their communities, without asking for thanks or praise.

Sheriff's Deputy Brown unwaveringly upheld the values that make this country great—duty honor, sacrifice. Those values and their sacrifice are a somber reminder that the freedoms that we share do not come without a cost.

He and his fellow officers who will carry on this essential work deserve our strong support and our thankful recognition. Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in recognizing Mr. Brown's extraordinary service and sacrifice.

CELEBRATING THE 20TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FRIENDS OF YALE–NEW HAVEN CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Ms. DELAURO. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor the wonderful work done by the Friends of Yale–New Haven Children's Hospital, who are celebrating their 20th anniversary this month.

In 1989, a dear friend of mine, the late Dr. Joseph Warshaw, brought together a diverse group of community volunteers in and around Yale–New Haven Children's Hospital to address issues related to children's health, safety, and well-being. In the two decades since, these dedicated volunteers have continued their important work on behalf of the kids and families of Connecticut, contributing thousands of hours of volunteer time and having raised over $1 million for Yale–New Haven Children's Hospital and the Department of Pediatrics at the Yale School of Medicine.

Through telethons, fundraisers, sports tournaments and other community outreach events, the Friends have worked to raise awareness of and financial support for the important pediatric work done by Yale–New Haven. In addition, they have gone to great lengths to support Yale–New Haven's Emergency Department, the only Level 1 Trauma Center for children in Connecticut, and have fashioned a Pediatric Allocation Committee to distribute funds to worthy projects in the hospital.

The Friends have also helped to fund several very worthwhile programs for the broader community, including We're Special Too!, designed for the siblings of children with chronic illness, and Reach Out & Read (ROR), a literacy program which distributes free books to the children who seek treatment at Yale–New Haven. And for many years I have joined the Friends on Christmas morning, as they have distributed gifts to the kids at Yale–New Haven and helped to ensure that even Connecticut's sick and injured children do not miss out on the joys of the day.

For twenty years, in ways both great and small, the Friends have worked to brighten the lives of children and families in New Haven. On this anniversary, I applaud their efforts and their decades of service, and I look forward to celebrating more anniversaries with them in the years to come.

IN HONOR OF JAMES P. MERCREADY

HON. JOHN H. ADLER

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2009

Mr. ADLER of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to have this opportunity to express my gratitude to Mr. James Mercready for his dedicated and tireless service with the East Dover Fire Company in Toms River, NJ.

Mr. Mercready has selflessly and bravely served the people of Toms River throughout his career and is retiring in January after a lifetime of service. After serving as president of the company for the past six years, he has made important improvements to the Fire Company and the safety of the town and its people.

I would like to thank Mr. Mercready for his exemplary service. Thank you for all you have done and I wish you a Happy Retirement.

WALL STREET REFORM AND CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 2009

Committee on Rules: Granted, by a record vote of 8–3, a structured rule providing for further consideration of H.R. 4173, Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2009. The rule provides that there will be no additional general debate. The rule waives all points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended. The rule provides that the bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. The rule makes in order only those amendments printed in the report of the Committee on Rules and the amendments en bloc described in section 3 of the rule. The rule provides that the amendments made in order may be offered only in the order printed in the Committee report (except as specified in section 4), may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for the time specified in this report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. The rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in the Committee report or amendments en bloc except for clauses 9 and 10 of rule XXI.

The rule provides that the chair of the Committee on Financial Services or his designee may offer amendments en bloc consisting of amendments printed in the report not earlier disposed of. Amendments en bloc shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services or their designees, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. The original proponent of an amendment included in such amendments en bloc may insert a statement in the Congressional Record immediately before the disposition of the amendments en bloc.

The rule provides that the Chair of the Committee of the Whole may recognize for consideration of any amendment printed in the report out of the order printed, but not sooner than 30 minutes after the chair of the Committee on Financial Services or his designee announces from the floor a request to that effect. In the case of sundry amendments reported from the Committee, the question of their adoption shall be put to the House en gros and without division of the question. The rule provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The rule also provides that the Chair may entertain a motion that the Committee rise only if offered by the chair of the Committee on Financial Services or his designee. It also provides that the Chair may not entertain a motion to strike out the enacting words of the bill (as described in clause 9 of rule XVIII). The rule provides that during consideration of the bill, the Chair may reduce to two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting. The rule provides that in the engrossment of the bill, the Clerk is authorized to make technical and conforming changes to amendatory instructions.
