Swedes Convict U.S. Deserter

STOCKHOLM, April 4 (AP) — American deserter Billy Wayne Staton, 26, alleged head of a drug ring operated by deserters living in Sweden, has been sentenced to three years and six months in prison and subsequent expulsion for life, the Central District Court in Stockholm announced today.

Staton, who left his unit in West Germany to come to Sweden in 1968, pleaded guilty this week to charges of illegally importing and distributing LSD Tablets. Half a dozen deserters are awaiting trial on similar charges.

R. Vom Dorf, a spokesman for the American Deserters Committee, commenting on the conviction, said: "Let's face it, over 20 per cent of the more than 400 deserters here are down and out on drugs."

 FROM : LEGAT, COPENHAGEN (100-49) (P)
 SUBJECT: AMERICAN DESERTERS COMMITTEE-SWEDEN

DATE: 10/12/71

ReBulet 1/27/71.

According to information received from the American Embassy, Stockholm, on 9/24/71, the U. S. Trade Center in Stockholm was the target of a demonstration by 70-80 people on 9/21/71. The demonstration was reportedly organized by the American Deserter's Committee and by [redacted] who is the subject of a separate communication to the Bureau. The Embassy advised that the demonstration was relatively small, the first of any significant in a period of 2½ months and represented the first American Deserter's Committee-led direct action against Embassy buildings in a long time. Embassy sources attributed the demonstration possibly to the resumption of bombings of North Vietnam, a recent anti-Vietnam TV program and the re-opening of the school season in Stockholm.

The foregoing is for the information of the Bureau and has not been included in LHM form because it was given logical distribution locally at the Embassy in Stockholm.

The Bureau will be advised of any additional information we may obtain in this regard.

AMERICAN EXILES IN SWEDEN - a short political history

With the escalation of the war, and of the death toll, the dissatisfaction within the United States Military began to make itself known to the world. The American war machine was beginning the process of inner collapse which was to be one of the main factors in determining the length of the presence of American imperialism in Indochina.

During the first stage of the anti-war movement within the military, opponents to the war were forced to work carefully, as the great majority of the members of the military at that time, were in a position of more or less active support of American foreign policy. Surrounded by aggressive defendants of American imperialism, they found themselves pushed into an uneasy silence. Some voiced their convictions, the most well known being perhaps the case of the army capt. in Ft. Jackson, South Carolina, who in 1966 got 5 years in prison for refusing to help train soldiers for duty in Vietnam. Cases like his made it apparent to most, that to stand alone was to hang alone.

In November 1967, four sailors from the USS Intrepid, stationed off the coast of Vietnam, in the Gulf of Tonkin, deserted from their ship while it was in Japan for resupply. With the help of a Japanese peace group they made their way, by air, to Stockholm. They applied for political asylum. This posed a problem for the social democratic government of Tage Erlander. The idea of accepting "political refugees" from such a "democratic" country as the U.S., was of course not only a political problem, but also an economic problem (chance of boycott). Thanks almost solely to Swedish public opinion, the Swedish government was forced to allow them to stay for "reasons of humanity" as they put it.

A lot of GI's read of this in the "Stars and Stripes", the official Army newspaper. Now at last there was a platform for the further carrying on of political propaganda against the American military machines efforts to try and crush the Indochinese revolution.

By february 1968, there were about 30 deserters in Sweden. Most of them having come from their units in West Germany. On the 28th of February, 1968, the American Deserters Committee (A.D.C.) was founded by 22 deserters; with the aid and advice of an American translator. He was an experienced political organizer, and a fluent linguist, and was invaluable in ironing out many of the problems that developed during the first phase of the ADC's work (to encourage desertion).

During the summer of '68, (the year of revolutionary upsurge), as the ranks of the desertion community in Sweden swelled, so did discontent with the structure and activity of the ADC. The ADC had become the unofficial English-speaking wing of Kfml, the Maoist party in Sweden. Or as it is called today Kfml(s). The ADC at this point tried to present itself as the vanguard of the American Left. Many members of the community didn't agree with the Maoist policies of the ADC, some for Marxist/Leninist reasons, but sadly, most for reasons of anti-intellectualism, and anarchism.

As tensions grew, tempers deminished. By the time of the arrival of the American delegation to the Stockholm Conference on Vietnam, (Nov. '68), the issue was fast approaching a climax.

A few otherwise experienced political-heads in the American delegation made the tactical blunder of choosing sides, (against Stalinism within ADC). This development didn't help to clear up the situation, if anything it worsened as a result of it. At a meeting that the delegation had with the deserter/resister community, the debate got well out of control. In the suggestion of some of the more level-headed delegates, it was agreed that a mass meeting of the community would be held on the following weekend in order to straighten out everything.

About 60 came to the meeting, out of a total of about 100 in Sweden at that time. The meeting quickly degenerated into a criticism of the ADC from every angle. The "leaders" of the ADC at that point left the meeting, saying that anyone who felt like working with them should follow. Six did. From the anger and disappointment of that meeting, the "Underground Railway" was born. The

"TUR" had the same political program as the ADC, (thanks largely to the efforts of the Left-opposition within the ADC, which formed the most active organizational strength of the TUR). The TUR was soon derailed because two of its main activists were determined in their course towards building a non-Stalinist, Marxist/Leninist organization. It turned out that they were the only two out of the 54 members that enjoyed such thoughts. The great majority (the other 52), dropped out upon finding themselves in a political organization. They refused to participate in political study-circles, and didn't want to have anything to do with the TUR. It evaporated completely in April of 1969. Before its total collapse the TUR was able to print three issues of the first internal newspaper of the deserter community in Sweden. Entitled the Internal Hemorrhage, it was largely devoted to political education. The arrival of the first of these newsletters caused the ADC to begin printing their own, entitled the Paper Grenade, which reached nine issues before it went into hibernation as a result of the collapse of TUR.

In February, 1970, the ADC was restructured around a 9 member central committee, based on work groups, (newsletter group, contact group, etc.). The internal newsletter was revived in March, 1970, after being out of print for over a half year. The ADC continued to work more or less actively until the summer of 1970.

A.D.C. --- SUMMER OF 1970

The question that had been troubling the ADC for so many months was if they should continue to support desertion over resistance. Until this point they had maintained that resistance was impractical. On the other hand, the TUR, impressed with RITA Resistance Inside The Army, France, had supported resistance in the military in 1969. By the summer of 1970 the ADC changed its position, and decided that resistance was most productive while desertion was no longer so. The majority of the membership agreed to dissolve the ADC and go to Germany to do organizing. A statement of dissolution was issued to contacts here and abroad explaining the decision and signed by nearly all members.

ORGANIZATION

Copy 100

Both of the remaining people in the ADC wanted to continue with the same work and so began a new phase in the history of the ADC. They had little understanding of the media and made statements which were used by newsmen to their and the exile communities disadvantage. One such mistake was to continually defend actively the American narcotics dealers in Sweden which resulted in the Palme accusation that the Americans here were killing Swedish children. Public opinion, before sympathetic to deserters, now changed, and Palme was able to begin his "get tough policy" as it was called in the U.S..

The ADC was sympathetic to Kfml(s) and as time passed the influence of Kfml(s) became increasingly strong. The ADC was soon only a name and few members of the community were aware of what had happened.

THE 'CENTER'

In June of 1970, five Americans formed the 'Center'. Supported by RFHL, a group concerned with helping drug addicts, they found a location at Gotlandsgatan 73, in Stockholm. The purpose of the new organization was to problems encountered, and to provide a place where Americans could meet. A consensus was taken and it was decided that there should be no politics. After almost a year the Center was forced to move to a new location because of trouble with neighbors concerning noise. Through the Swedish churches, a new place was found; 'Dialogen', Ynglingagatan 11 (Stockholm), SWEDEN

During this period a democratic styrelsen (board) was elected, a newspaper began, and meetings took place with a representative from the World Council of Churches that was later to bring a source of income into the American community through the Center.

This was to be the Centers' home for only a few months, plans for the building to be sold and the poor condition that it deteriorated into, forced the Center to be evicted once again.

The Center is currently housed at the ADC office.

ORGANIZATION
In April of 1971 the Unity Front was formed at a mass community meeting at ABF huset, (Stockholm), SWEDEN. A central coordinating committee was elected to help solve certain general

WINTER 1971:

Three newspapers had been in existence; one by Unity Front, one by the Center, and one by ADC. At a general community meeting called by the Unity Front, it was decided to merge all three into a new one entitled the 'American War Resister in Sweden'. The bulk of the staff was comprised of ADC members and was also in part financially supported by them. The non-ADC members felt that the ADC had too much control over the paper. A discussion took place in which the ADC decided to renew their own newspaper again.

However, a compromise was reached in the form of a twice monthly supplement expressly for the purpose of ADC writing from their own point of view. At the time of this writing the newspaper and supplement are still in circulation.

EARLY 1972:

ADC now consists of five people. The amnesty question came up in the news; a suggestion was made to the ADC to set up a conference in Sweden of deserters and resisters to discuss their views on the subject and to decide their future actions in regard to it.

The ADC rejected the idea on the grounds that only the ADC was politically qualified to handle the question. About the same time the Versailles conference on Vietnam was shortly to take place. Both from within the ADC and from without it was proposed to send to the conference as representatives a non-ADC member as well as an ADC member. Amnesty was also going to be discussed at another meeting there. ADC rejected the idea of a non-member going with an ADC member, again on the grounds that no one but ADC members were politically qualified.

A group of individuals concerned with the ADC's stance formed a temporary action group to bring about change. In January these people plus sympathizers in a group of approx. 40 people went to the ADC office to criticize them for misuse of funds, ineffectiveness, opportunism and also at this meeting discovered to their dismay that the ADC was going to send two of their own members to the Versailles conference. The ADC came under heavy fire but was unwilling to commit itself to change and so its isolation was maintained.

SUMMARY

It must be recognized that the American exile community in Sweden is composed of a young and wide cross section of American society. Only organizations of a social or very infantile political character have existed in the past. The organizations by and large have reflected the current trends in the pop revolution; hippies, pacifists, narcotics users, and now advocates of so-called "life drugs" have contributed to the development of the exile community. All these trends and more like them have been the dominant influence in the social and political development of the American exile community at large and the organizations in particular, resulting in a long history of misrepresentation and opportunism by organizations that have existed and do exist now. These trends were combined in some of the more militant individuals and organizations (ADC in particular), with romantic revolutionary Chinese rhetoric. The combination was a fascinating one, full of contradictions. The exile community was far from being isolated in its development, indeed it followed the course of the contemporary pop-culture and attempted to make this trend a politically significant force while knowing very little about the real forces directing the course of history active in the world today.

It seems one of the main problems has simply been the impatience of youth, wanting quick immediate solutions to very difficult problems. These points contributed greatly to the lack of political development in the exile community.

China's present foreign policy has gone a long way towards the shaking up of the revolutionary-pop-culture and as it has had its effect through-out the world (for example the about-face done by Progressive Labor-the American Maoist Party), it has also had an effect in the American exile community. The romantic and utopian ideas that had played such a large role in its development are finally on their way out. However, nothing dies without conflict. We can only hope to minimize the conflict during the transitional stage.

What phase are we moving towards?

We are moving into a more mature and disciplined stage, a union, and where bourgeois interests really lie; with their more capable of dealing with a own ruling class. The working political upsurge, and indeed class has always been sacrificed to create that upsurge. A group of politically aware bourgeoisie intends to sacrifice them on yet another gathered together to form an occasion.

Finally, we have found a which will fill the political need for a Marxist/Leninist vacuum and carry out the tasks organization to deal with the that need to be done, from a problems we encounter, in a basic Marxist/Leninist outlook. manner consistent with the This group is now preparing for basic philosophy and goals of the next politically significant Marxism/Leninism, an organization whose first and foremost priority is always the welfare of the working class.

What is the amnesty period?

It is simply the time when the eyes of the world will once more focus on the American expatriates living in foreign lands. It is an especially important period for the exile community here in Sweden, because it will probably be our last real chance to speak on an international scale. Also, unlike Canada, we have a 79% working-class deserter majority and this is the category that is not being considered in the U.S. in relation to amnesty. Their interests must be represented. We must expose the class conflict here so that the world can see this blatant example of bourgeois oppression of Sweden for American
