

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

Background - In the last two centuries, the Congress has passed more Federal laws dealing with Indians than any other group of people in the United States. The Snyder Act; the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act; the Indian Education Amendments of 1978; and the Indian Reorganization Act are just a few of the laws that have defined the Federal authority and obligation to provide various programs and services to Indian Country. While the Federal trust obligation lies at the heart of this special relationship, the scope of the United States' responsibilities to American Indians extends beyond basic trust obligations to include a wide range of services delivered in concert with the enhancement of Indian self-determination. Congress has placed the major responsibility for Indian matters in the Interior Department, primarily with the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Mission - The BIA's mission is to fulfill its trust responsibilities and promote self-determination on behalf of tribal governments, American Indians, and Alaska Natives.

Program Overview - The BIA provides services directly or through contracts, grants, or compacts to roughly 1.26 million American Indians and Alaska Natives who are members of 558 federally recognized Indian Tribes in the 48 contiguous United States and Alaska. While BIA's role has changed significantly in the last two decades in response to a greater emphasis on Indian self-determination, Indian Tribes still look to BIA for a broad spectrum of services supported by critical and complex programs. The BIA's programs are funded and operated in a highly decentralized manner, with 90 percent of all appropriations expended at the local level, and an increasing amount operated by Tribes and tribal organizations.

The scope of BIA's programs is extensive and covers virtually the entire range of State and local government services. The programs administered by either Tribes or BIA include: an education system for over 53,000 elementary and secondary students; 28 tribally controlled community colleges; social service programs for children, families, the elderly, and disabled; management of forest, mineral, water, fishery, and farmland resources on nearly 56 million acres of trust land; economic development programs in some of the most isolated and depressed areas of the United States; implementation of legislated land and water claim settlements; replacement and repair of schools; repair and operation of detention facilities; and repair of structural deficiencies on high hazard dams.

Budget Overview - The BIA 2000 budget request is $1.9 billion in current appropriations, a net increase of $155.6 million above the 1999 enacted level. The 2000 budget emphasizes areas of priority concern to Indian country, including: quality education within structurally sound and comfortable school facilities; improved law enforcement services; and fulfillment of the Secretary's trust responsibilities for natural resources management. As the Government Performance and Results Act requires, BIA has developed a five year strategic plan and a 2000 annual performance plan to guide its resource allocations and program decisions and improve accountability.

Quality Education for Native American Youth - Since the founding of the Nation, Congress has funded specific Indian education programs in response to treaty requirements and Federal statutes. Current Indian education programs are governed by a number of laws, including the Snyder Act, the Johnson O'Malley Act, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the Tribally Controlled Community Colleges Act, the Tribally Controlled Schools Act, the Education Amendments of 1978, the Hawkins Stafford Act, and most recently, Goals 2000, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and the Improving America Schools Act. Collectively, these laws are aimed at ensuring quality education of Indian youth and increasing long-term employment and economic opportunities on reservations.

One of BIA's primary strategic goals is to provide quality educational opportunities from early childhood through adulthood. BIA will strive to achieve this goal by meeting specific annual performance goals that address school accreditation, daily attendance, and student dropout rates.

The 2000 school operations budget represents a commitment to the future of Native American youth. This budget supports the President's recent Executive Order on American Indian Education, and shows the priority this Administration gives to providing good educational opportunities to Indian children. The request for School Operations, which will fund 185 schools and dormitories serving over 53,000 elementary and secondary students in 23 states, is $503.6 million, an increase of nearly six percent over 1999. The increase will ensure that schools maintain accreditation and have access to computers and other critical learning tools.

The budget also provides a $7.1 million increase for operating grants to 28 tribally controlled community colleges. The colleges are a critical component of efforts to help Native Americans secure professional employment and promote entrepreneurship on reservations.

Education Construction - The request for the BIA Construction appropriation is $174.3 million, of which $108.4 million, or 62 percent, is dedicated to education construction.

The Replacement School Construction program funds replacement of older, unsafe, and dilapidated schools on reservations. School replacement priorities are based on a Congressionally approved 1993 priority list, which is currently limited to 16 schools. In 2000, $34.8 million is requested for advance planning and design and to complete construction of two facilities ranked ninth and fourteenth on the priority list: Seba Dalkai Boarding School in Arizona and Fond Du Lac Ojibway in Minnesota. These two school facilities have structural and code deficiencies that threaten student safety and are not equipped to handle rising student enrollment. The education facilities improvement and repair program is funded at $36.0 million to address critical health and safety concerns at existing education facilities.

A $30.0 million increase is also provided for an Indian school construction bonding program that will support tribal participation in the President's 2000 School Construction Modernization Initiative. The President's Initiative would provide needy school districts and Tribes with the authority to issue bonds to lenders who could claim a tax credit for the life of the bond in lieu of interest. This financing mechanism would provide Indian schools with an additional tool to address the serious backlog in health and safety repairs. The requested $30.0 million increase would be invested and allocated to Tribes with schools on the top of BIA's repair and replacement priority lists. The Tribes would use this funding to pay back the principal on the school construction bonds.

Law Enforcement in Indian Country - In 1997, in response to alarming crime rates in Indian Country, President Clinton requested that an executive committee composed of tribal leaders and Federal agency staff develop recommendations for improving law enforcement in Indian Country. An executive committee was formed and it strongly recommended an infusion of additional resources for efforts to make long-term improvements in law enforcement services in Indian Country.

Notes:

- 1. 1999 is adjusted to reflect a $19.4 million transfer in law enforcement base funding from TPA to the Initiative in the Special Programs activity. For comparision purposes, this amount is included in both 1999 and 2000. The $23.3 million increase includes a $20.0 million program increase and $3.3 million in uncontrollable costs.
- For a second year, the Department of Justice will request funding for detention center construction in Indian Country.

With 1999 funding, the Department of Justice and BIA are working in partnership to refine and implement a comprehensive plan for improving law enforcement services. The BIA's 2000 budget request includes an $23.3 million increase for the second year of this initiative. These funds would continue efforts to strengthen core law enforcement functions on reservations such as criminal investi-

Operation of Indian Programs $1.69 Billion

In 2000, nine of every ten dollars appropriated to BIA will be provided to education, human services and other on-the-ground programs at the reservation level.

gations, uniformed police, communications, and basic detention services. The allocation of significant additional resources is also consistent with BIA's strategic and annual performance plans, which identify reducing the crime rate and improving law enforcement programs as prominent goals. As part of this initiative, the Justice Department is seeking $124.2 million, largely in grant funding, to improve tribal law enforcement programs.

Fulfilling the Trust Responsibility - The budget includes funding increases for several trust programs, many of which will help save significant additional costs in the future. An additional $4.0 million is requested for water rights studies and negotiations, to help avoid more expensive litigation costs in the future. The budget provides a $1.2 million increase for enhanced protection of endangered species on Indian lands. The environmental management program is increased by $3.0 million to help BIA inventory and clean up more than 650 hazardous waste sites and continue regulatory compliance efforts to avoid costly penalties. Furthermore, additional funding is requested to strengthen tribal buffalo and rangeland management ($1.0 million), and protect trust resources impacted by FERC relicensing ($1.0 million). These increases are necessary for BIA to meet its long-term trust and natural resources management goals.

Supporting Self-Determination - This budget request continues the Federal Government's commitment to support Indian self-determination and strengthen the government-to-government relationship it has with Indian Nations. Tribes depend on the Tribal Priority Allocations (TPA) budget activity for basic necessities and programs critical to improving the quality of life and economic potential on reservations. TPA gives Tribes the flexibility to prioritize funds among most TPA programs according to their unique needs and circumstances, and it will be an important tool for accomplishing BIA's self-determination performance goals. The 2000 request funds the TPA activity at $716.0 million, an increase of $36.3 million over last year, when adjusted for internal transfers. TPA will comprise 42 percent of the BIA operating budget, a decrease from prior years due to the transfer of law enforcement to Special Programs. By consolidating the law enforcement budget and program authority in the Special Programs activity, BIA anticipates improved coordination, accountability, and effectiveness in its efforts to improve law enforcement services.

Substantial programmatic increases are proposed for specific TPA programs that support self-determination. The budget includes a $6.4 million increase for contract support funds to cover administrative expenses incurred by Tribes when contracting bureau programs. The BIA will use this funding to help meet up to 84 percent of the total identified need. An increase of $5.0 million is requested to replenish the Indian Self-Determination Fund. To ensure minimum base funding necessary to operate basic government affairs, an increase of $3.0 million is proposed for small Tribes in Alaska. A $1.7 million increase is requested to enhance existing and begin new Tribal Work Experience Programs at the local level for eligible Indians who cannot obtain such assistance from State or local governments. Such welfare programs are critical to helping the Indian population, which had a higher poverty rate than any other group according to the 1990 census. Lastly, a $2.0 million increase is requested to bring Navajo adult care institutions into compliance with State codes. Once the facilities are in compliance, States will be required to assume the operation and maintenance costs and BIA will be able to redirect the savings to priority programs.

Indian Land and Water Claims Settlement Program - This program provides payments to meet Federal requirements for legislated settlements. The 2000 budget request includes $28.4 million for payments for settlements resolving long-standing tribal claims to water and lands. Most of the 2000 program ($27.5 million) is dedicated to ensuring that the Ute Indian Rights Settlement is funded on a reasonable schedule.

Trust Management Reform - The BIA is working closely with the Office of the Special Trustee on the Secretary's Trust Management Improvement Project High Level Implementation Plan and funding for BIA trust reform activities is requested under OST. The Plan is centered on 13 major sub-projects that will reform current trust systems, policies, practices, and procedures. Furthermore, as part of the overall effort to remedy Indian trust management problems, second year funding for the Indian Land Consolidation Pilot project is being requested under OST.

Government Performance and Results Act - The BIA has updated its 1999 annual performance plan for final Congressional action and polished its performance measures. In 2000, BIA will continue to strengthen its baseline data and refine its tracking and reporting mechanisms to ensure that timely and accurate performance information is available.

National Academy of Public Administration Study - In 1999, the National Academy of Public Administration is conducting an independent study of BIA's organization and management structure. The purpose of the study is to analyze the delivery of BIA's management and administrative services and develop a blueprint for reform.
